PRICE FIVE CENTS

AROUND THE SQUARE

Editors, printers, publishers and devils of Eastland county newspapers, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Whitey Hicks, owners and publishers of the Rising Star Record, Saturday evening. This was the second meeting of the group, the first being held in Cisco, some three months ago.

All sessions are informal, with "good eats" playing a very important part. Mr. and Mrs. Hicks took the group to a downtown cafe, where a wonderful turkey dinner was served. After the last course had been devoured they returned to the Hicks' home where games were played. A first class party was the verdict rendered—thanks to the Hicks.

In July Joe Dennis and Onus Dick will surprise the group with a well advertised fish fry.

Last week while on our vacation, we planned to do a little "reducing", but were interrupted by three turkey dinners, four banquets and a number of special "snacks for visitors." In spite of all we did to avoid this food, we managed to gain three pounds. Now we must try and work it off.

If those Reds were as quick to repatriate as they are to decapitate all American war prisoners would have been at home by this time. There are times when we wonder why Ike doesn't squirt a little "high-life" on some of those Red leaders. That would make them jump like a hound dog who had been stung by a hornet. That dog could pick them up and put them down like greased lightning.

We are not complaining, however, for Ike is doing a splendid job. He doesn't talk much and has suggested that Russia talk less and act more. One of these days the whole world will wonder how Ike did it.

Looks as though we are to investigate the "Pentagon" and so far as we are concerned, we think it about high time. About all those "big shots" have had to do in the past was to polish their brass buttons and badges and make mistakes, and some of the mistakes have been easily made.

We must take politics out of war if we ever hope to do anything worthwhile. If Ike should learn the truth, maybe he will put them on a straight water diet, and then they will all quit.

The world has had at least two teetotalers—Daniel of "Iion's den fame", and Dwight D. Eisenhower, president of the United States.

The plight of Russia today is worse than it was in the days of old Czar Nick. The Czar would shoot down innocents by the hundred, but shooting was not such a painful death. That bunch of nincompoops who are riding in the saddle at this time, insist on torturing one of our boys, now coming home from years of imprisonment, both warped brains and bod—thanks to this bunch of Red bastards. When they all land in here we are going down there and volunteer for special service as a fireman, and boy we will keep things hot.

P. S.—Uncle Joe Stalin is doing time down there right now, if our Bible is true.

We wish spring would come on in. These frosty nights are no good for gardeners, and our tomato plants may die before we can get them in the ground. It is not the cost of the plants, but rather the work involved that has caused this delay. We have no desire to dig a second bunch of holes.

Graham Oil Man Is Shot

Eugene Knappenberger, 25, was found shot to death early Tuesday near the rear gate of the home of Bert Richards, 56, prominent Graham automobile dealer.

Richards was charged with murder and released on $2,000 bond. Knappenberger was the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Knappenberger. He worked for his father who owns oil properties.

Richards summoned officers to his home after the shooting at 2:15 a.m.

Shonuff—Again! Weather Men Predict Rain

Eastland County acres were still thirsty Wednesday morning.

The weathermen's predictions that the area would get badly-needed moisture Monday—and Tuesday—proved slightly incorrect.

And this morning—again—the U. S. Weather Bureau saw "a slight chance for showers" late Wednesday.

The forecast calls for cloudy and continued warm weather. This afternoon's high is slated around a torrid 90 degrees, and the night's low—about 60.

For Thursday, the weather men predicted "partly cloudy with afternoon showers." The Thursday afternoon maximum mercury reading is scheduled to be around 85 degrees.

Quarterback Club Minstrels Ready For Opening Entertainment; Plans Made For Their Greatest Season

Just look around you, folks! No doubt about it, it's SPRING! Now that simple statement—it's spring—means a lot of different things to different folks. Mother probably gets backache from just thinking of that cleaning she's either already done or plans to do; father is either shining his golf clubs or oiling his fishing reel, not even thinking about that troublesome before coming out the Annual Minstrel Show! But it's been in the making for several weeks now the final ingredients are being added, and these boys are going to SPREAD IT ON come Thursday and Friday night of this week, time 8:00 p.m.

This Minstrel Show is a community project. Maybe you never thought of it in just that way. Of course we can't all be in the cast, that would be impossible, but the most of us can support it by the price of one ticket, especially when we know there's a lot of enjoyment in store for us. Come up and laugh at your neighbors with your neighbors.

Each year the show has something different to offer. New talents along with your old favorites, comical acts and in contrast a beautiful old darlie's song that puts a lump in your throat. Yes, sir, real variety in entertainment that most folks who have ever been to one of our Minstrels would admit they wouldn't miss for the world.

So each and every one of you good citizens of Eastland have a special invitation to the Minstrel as of here and now. The cast members have worked hard and long but the success of the show depends on your support and attendance. See you there!—Contributed.

Other than the annual dues collected, this show is practically the only means of raising funds for the worth while projects the Quarterbacks sponsor, so like grandmas, they do a little mixing at this time of year. It takes plenty of work, fun, long hours of rehearsal, and often a bit of criticism of the portions of "spice" added before coming out the Annual Minstrel Show! But it's been in the making for several weeks now the final ingredients are being added, and these boys are going to SPREAD IT ON come Thursday and Friday night of this week, time 8:00 p.m.

Notary Public Deadline Set For June 10th

Secretary of State Howard Carney has announced that he will reappoint all persons who now hold Notary Public Commissions and that all such persons must qualify by filing an oath and bond with the County Clerk of their residence between June 1, 1953 and June 10, 1953. The law specifically requires County Clerks to approve Notary bonds and individuals should not send money or requests for commissions direct to the Secretary of State. All Notary matters can only be received by the Secretary of State after the County Clerk acts thereon.

Any person who has not heretofore been a Notary Public should apply to his County Clerk between May 1, 1953 and May 23, 1953, if he desires to have this application given prompt attention in the State Department, as the rush of reappointing all old Notaries may slow up the ordinary process of making new appointments and issuing commissions.

Secretary of State Carney said, "Each person applying for a commission as a Notary Public must be at least 21 years of age and a resident of the County for which he is appointed; exact names and permanent addresses should be given to the County Clerk in application for a commission, as location of the Notary may be necessary long after he has notarized a particular instrument."

In Texas House At Austin—

Court Debate Due Thursday

The statewide court redistricting bill which would abolish Eastland County's 91st District Court is scheduled to go before the House in Austin Thursday morning.

Fairly warm floor debate on the measure is expected, according to reports from the state capital at noon today.

However, observers assert that passage of the measure by a sizeable majority by House members is expected when it goes to a vote.

Under terms of the statewide bill, two new districts would be added, 10 changed in some manner and 10 left unchanged. One district would be discontinued.

The district to be dropped entirely, according to the set-up outlined in the bill, would be Eastland's 91st District Court.

It would be combined with the 90th District Court composed of Stephens and Young Counties.

Prior to introduction of the statewide redistricting bill recently, Rep. Omar Burkett of Eastland offered a bill which also would combine the 91st and 90th districts.

Rep. Burkett has delayed action on his measure pending final disposition of the statewide bill which goes before the House tomorrow.

Sgt. Franklin Is In Germany

WITH THE 1ST INFANTRY DIVISION IN GERMANY—Sgt. First Class Eugene Franklin, whose wife, Dorothy, lives at 806 Hawthorne Ave., Ft. Worth, recently arrived in Germany for duty with the 1st Infantry Division.

Stationed in the southern part of Germany the 1st is undergoing constant field training as part of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Army.

SFC Franklin is a motor sergeant in Headquarters Company of the 16th Infantry Regiment's 3d Battalion.

The son of Mrs. Virgie Lee (father deceased) of Route 3, Ranger, he entered the Army in 1938.

She's Walking 5,000 Miles—

Peace Pilgrim County Visitor

A New Jersey woman, nameless except for her title, "Peace Pilgrim," visited Eastland County Sunday in her walking trip from coast to coast in an effort to bring peace to the world.

She came to Cisco, Eastland and Ranger from Ableton.

The pilgrim carries a message that she asks people everywhere to send to the United Nations, "or to whomsoever you believe has the power to end the war in Korea."

The message follows: "Peace Pilgrim's Three Petitions: Peace Pilgrim's Plea for Peace in Korea: Let the killing in Korea cease! Then deal with this conflict situation according to the only principles which can solve it—overcome evil with good, and falsehood with truth, and hatred with love!"

Peace Pilgrim's Plea for a Peace Department:

To the President of the United States and National Leaders: This is the way to peace—overcome evil with good, and falsehood with truth, and hatred with love. We plead for the establishment of a Peace Department, with a Secretary of Peace who accepts these principles—all conflict situations at home or abroad to be referred to this Peace Department.

Peace Pilgrim's Plea for World Disarmament and Reconstruction: To the United Nations and World Leaders: If you would find the way to peace you must overcome evil with good and falsehood with truth, and hatred with love.

Any person who has not heretofore been a Notary Public should apply to his County Clerk between May 1, 1953 and May 23, 1953, if he desires to have this application given prompt attention in the State Department, as the rush of reappointing all old Notaries may slow up the ordinary process of making new appointments and issuing commissions.

Carbon Takes 2 Games From The Gorman Quint

Carbon Wolverines (girls) met the Gorman Panthers for a one inning baseball game on Tuesday, April 21, and were successful in taking the game by a score of 10-0, which they claim was an easy victory. Carbon boys took a fast game from the Gorman nine, the score being 11-8 in their favor.

The boys also met the Seranton team on Monday, and were successful in taking another game. The score was 3-2 in Carbon's favor.

Samuels Rites Held Tuesday In Breckenridge

Final rites for Mrs. Laura Samuels, 59-year-old resident of Breckenridge since 1934, were held at the Kiker Funeral Home Chapel in Breckenridge Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 p.m. Rev. Ivan Hall of Mineral Wells officiated and interment was in Breckenridge Cemetery.

Mrs. Samuels died in a Gorman hospital Monday night at 10 o'clock following a week's illness.

Mrs. Samuels resided in Breckenridge at the home of a daughter, Mrs. R. L. Huse.

She was born August 16, 1893 in Comanche County, living there until coming to Breckenridge in 1934. She was a member of the Church of God.

Survivors are two daughters, Mrs. Huse and Mrs. C. C. Cantrell of Breckenridge, three sisters, Mrs. E. L. Short, Goldthwaite; Mrs. R. C. Everett, Ranger; Mrs. George Samuel, Gorman; four brothers, Ed and Oran Gipson, of Stanton; Claude C. Gipson of Falfurrias; and Harrison of Borger; four grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Funeral services were held at 10 o'clock Tuesday at the Kiker Funeral Home Chapel in Breckenridge. Burial was in the Kiker Cemetery.

Attending the funeral from Ranger were Mr. and Mrs. Everett and Archer, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Cozby and Mrs. George Cox.

Lamar Baptist Revival To End Friday Night

The revival meeting at North Lamar Street Baptist Church is still in progress, and many souls are being saved. Up to Tuesday night there had been 8 additions to the church, and six of them by baptism. During the last quarter (12 weeks) there have been 38 additions.

Last Sunday there was 113 in Sunday School.

The revival will close Friday with an all-day Fellowship, and dinner on the ground. Services will start at 10 o'clock and continue all day with a Youth Fellowship at night. The public is invited to attend.

Community Chest Funds On Increase

NEW YORK — Community Chest campaigns have already collected almost 10 per cent more than last year's record donations, according to Ralph H. Blanchard, executive director of the Community Chests and Councils of America.

Receipts of 1,500 community chests last year totalled $240,920,220, 13.6 per cent above 1951 receipts. Blanchard said 875 campaigns have reported a total of $246,795,991 received this year. Final receipts are expected to be about $260,000,000, he said.

Blanchard, secretary of the Menninger Foundation at Topeka, Kan., said this would raise efficiency, production and well-being.

He told personnel directors at a meeting of the American Management Association that the industrial personnel director must be "some sort of psychiatrist" on the job.

Lions Likely Aid A Cappella Choir

While a group of musicians from CJC failed to arrive in time to take part on the program, the Lions Club had a splendid meeting Tuesday at noon. Several visitors were present.

The club may sponsor a fund to purchase robes for Eastland High School's A Cappella choir and a committee will report next week the amount of money needed. The cost will be something more than $400.

A committee to nominate officers and directors for the coming year will make its report next week. Following the election the club will sponsor a special banquet, and wives are to be invited.

In last week's Telegram there appeared a story that the Lions Club had changed its meeting days. This was erroneous. The change will be for next week only, when the club meets on Monday rather than Tuesday, because of a conflict.

C. H. Ballew To Get Commission

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Charles H. Ballew, Rising Star, an upcoming June graduate of the Southwestern University Medical School, is one of 150 students who will spend their first year of internship at one of the Army's 11 teaching hospitals.

Having met the educational, physical and other requirements set up by the Army, the young doctors will be commissioned first lieutenants upon their graduation and will be called to active duty on July 1st.

The program offers top-flight experience in all the major fields of medicine under the guidance of both civilian and military doctors.

Ballew has been assigned to William Beaumont Army Hospital, Fort Bliss, El Paso.

Seven Veniremen Selected By State, Defense Counsel During Monday, Tuesday

The slow process of selecting a jury to hear the bizarre murder trial of Donald Hawkins Brown, 24-year-old Dallasite charged with the sadistic gun-torch slaying of Joe Campbell, 25-year-old Dallas finance collector formerly of Ranger, was expected to be completed in Judge Henry King's Criminal District Court in Dallas late this afternoon.

District Attorney Henry Wade, spearheading the prosecution, and Harvey Lindsay, chief of the defense counsel, had agreed upon seven jurors when Judge King recessed the court late yesterday afternoon.

Two jurors were chosen Monday and five more were added to the roster Tuesday.

The selection of five more veniremen today would complete the jury and make it possible for the trial to get underway Thursday morning.

Most prospective jurors were disqualified during the Monday and Tuesday sessions by claiming that they would not give the death penalty. Others declared they could not vote death on the basis of circumstantial evidence.

The state, during the two-day questionings of veniremen, exercised two of its 15 allotted preemptory challenges on jurors. The defense has used six of its 15. Very few prospective jurors were disqualified on grounds that they had formed opinions about the case.

District Attorney Wade's case for the state, as thus far based, is based wholly on circumstantial evidence.

Chief exhibit will be a pair of blood-stained bus driver's trousers, bearing Brown's name, an empty auto key case, the property of the defendant, and other items which Dallas detectives found at the South Dallas rooming house where Brown, his wife and their two small children made their home until moving a few hours after the slaying which took place only about a block away.

In addition, the prosecution will introduce the testimony of about 50 witnesses who will offer circumstantial remarks.

District Attorney Wade will ask that Brown be found guilty and sentenced to die in the electric chair at Huntsville.

Brown's defense, according to his counsel, will be based on an alibi which will prove, they assert, that Brown was "somewhere else" on New Year's Eve and thus could not have committed the brutal crime.

The victim had been beaten, shot four times in the head with a .25-caliber revolver, his body drenched with gasoline and set afire in a blazing automobile across the street from a funeral home in South Dallas New Year's Eve about 10 p.m.

The defense will ask for a suspended sentence for the fiery-fetched accused slayer who was arrested 14 days after the brutal murder at a Fort Worth taxidermist establishment. At the time of his arrest, he was living in Fort Worth with his wife and children under an assumed name.

Citizens Urged To Understand Liquor Laws

What people don't know about the Texas liquor laws can cause them a lot of trouble. Thirty-two persons, for example, were arrested at 2 a.m. Sunday for drinking beer at a plush Austin tavern. They paid fines. The guilty ones may have thought that only the tavern operator was responsible to the law in a case of this kind. But the liquor control act provides that any person consuming alcoholic beverages in a public place after hours is subject to a maximum fine of $50 and costs. Coke R. Stevenson Jr., state liquor control board administrator, said today that there exists much misunderstanding of the law, particularly with respect to the granting of beer licenses and wine and beer retailers permits. The administrator explained that to get a permit, the applicant must go first to his county judge and obtain the appropriate forms, which are filled out in triplicate. One copy goes to the nearest district office of the Texas Liquor Control Board for investigation. The county judge is empowered to deny the application if he sees fit, in which event the applicant may appeal to the district court. The application remains on file in the county judge's office for not less than five nor more than ten days, during which time any citizen may appear and protest the granting of the license or permit.

During the waiting period, the county clerk certifies that the proposed location of the establishment is in a "wet area" (if it is). The clerk also certifies that issuance of the license or permit would not be in violation of county commissioners court regulations.

If the location is in an incorporated city or town, the city secretary certifies that the location is not in violation of any city ordinance.

At the end of the hearing period, the applicant pays his state, county, and city fees. The original application and a copy of the tax collector's temporary receipt are sent to the liquor control board. Some applicants think that when this is done they are ready to do business, but the law says no.

Liquor control board workers must first check the application form and determine whether the applicant is disqualified for a number of reasons, such as, for example, having been convicted of a felony during the preceding two years.

When all this checking is done, the application is approved, and by accepting it the applicant agrees that his license or permit is a personal privilege which cannot be sold, given away, or disposed of except according to the provisions of the liquor control act.

The license or permit can be suspended or revoked for violation of the state liquor laws.

For almost three years, an unanswered speeding summons issued to Robert A. Caldwell, Proctor Ark., lay in state police files.

Patience was rewarded. The mail brought a check for $15 from Caldwell along with this message: "I can't take it any longer. Here's your money. I might add that the highway patrolman who arrested me was a damn good Yankee."

Roses Are The Perfect Gift On Mothers Day

It means the same in any language—mother, mater, mudder, mutter, madre. And this is the time of year when a gift of real thoughtfulness will mean the most to her.

One of the most popular gifts is a choice of rose plants. What other gift will bring so much joy and beauty year after year as the roses bring forth their colorful blossoms from late spring until frost. As a lasting reminder of this occasion, nothing could be more appropriate for Mothers Day this year. Many nurserymen have rose plants available in pots so that Mother can enjoy the blooms immediately.

Nurserymen have a fine selection of plants available so that a favorite color and type of rose may be easily found. Quality is important of course, and the leading rose growers have recommended a number of varieties known as All-America Rose Selections. Any mother will be delighted to receive a Chrysler Imperial rose—a truly magnificent crimson red hybrid tea. Another excellent choice would be Ma Perkins, an enchanting coral-shell pink floribunda. Both of these roses, which won the AARS award for 1953, have been pre-tested for two years and can be successfully grown in any garden in the country.

Other AARS varieties which are highly popular are Vogue, a magnificent cherry coral floribunda, and two lovely hybrid teas, Helen Traubel, a sparkling apricot pink and Fred Howard, a soft yellow pencilled with pink.

Roses are not only appropriate for Mothers Day, but also for Father's Day and any occasion when thoughtfulness is the keynote.

Olden Junior-Senior Banquet Carried Out In Garden Setting

The junior class of Olden High School honored the senior class Friday evening, April 17th, when they hosted the annual banquet in the Olden gymnasium.

A starlight theme was carried out in the decorations, with roses entwined around the small wooden fence, which surrounded the garden scene. The tables were laid with white linen cloths and decorated with tall blue candles, in crystal holders placed on large silver stars. Blue place cards, programs and silver nut cups marked each place. Fried chicken and all the trimmings comprised the menu.

Bill Butler was the master of ceremonies and introduced the program. James Horn gave the invocation, Eloise Horn gave the welcome and Sandra Herrell gave a toast to the seniors, with Joyce Thomas giving the response.

Sandra Herrell, Rita Jones, Eloise Horn and Margaret Alford sang two songs and Bill Bryan, Marvin Elliott and Thomas Lindsey gave a pantomime.

Any Way You Look At It—

... there seems to be no way of escaping the onrushing tide of automobile accidents. Statistics now available show a new high score for 1952, and locally the situation is no better so far for 1953. Apparently more steam must be applied to traffic education even though many individuals and organizations are hard at work trying to solve our problems. In the meantime drive carefully and keep your car in good running condition.

Murder she yelled

By Joseph Shellie

THE STORY: Al Kemmer mysteriously moved the body of a murdered racketeer which was found by Midge Burnett, a guest at High Hill, which Al runs. Now Al has received a note demanding payment of $5000 for silence on Al's move to protect the reputation of his place. Al and Dan Morrison, the athletic director, talk it over and Al decides to pay $2500 and say he can't raise the rest.

XII
I MET Al in the office at 8:45 p. m. He shakily ripped open a pack of spearmint and threw me a stick. He was chewing two at a time this evening. On the desk was a brown grocery bag, packed full and standing upright. Through the open window came the jumpy music of the record-player. It was a big night—the Friday dance—the only time in the week when we had neckties and evening gowns.

I read the note Al had written: "This is all I can raise, positively. Any more would bankrupt me, and then I wouldn't care who you talked to. So it don't pay you to be a hog. Be satisfied. He stuffed the bag under his arm. "Okay, let's go out and be somebody's sucker."

"Taking the office gun?" I said. "No gun," he grunted. "I don't want to shoot anybody, and I don't think anybody'll want to shoot me."

Our shoes made a slight rattle on the cinders, like sounds being made far-off. Al chewed with tight jaws. "I hope they're all at home," he muttered. "I don't see running into anybody." The little hall lights shone faintly. The cottages looked deserted, never-lived-in, but I knew there were girls in some of the rooms. There were always some who missed a dance—girls who'd made a conquest during the first few days of their stay, only to have the guy snatched away by some seductive new arrival—and now, shunning the public humiliation of the dance, they stayed in their rooms and wrote home what a wonderful time they were having.

The cinders ended—we were walking on soft dirt. The air was rich with cool piny smells. Al held up his luminous watch. "Only seven more minutes," he said unsteadily. "Let's hurry up."

"Yes—you get there late, they'll make you take it back." I stopped. I caught his arm. I listened. Soft footfalls.

THEY stopped immediately. I looked back, squinting, blinded by motes of darkness. I thought I saw a dim figure—

I gave Al a push. "Keep going." I slipped off the road to my right and crouched behind a tree. Al's footsteps clomped away. In a moment I heard the crumple of earth again. I tensed. I tested my footing.

A man came. Middle-sized. Trim. Springy. No hat. Light suit and open-throat shirt. It was Sgt. Franklin Healey, Pennsylvania State Police. Dressed for a night out.

"Taking a walk?" he said pleasantly. "Swell—nice night for it." He walked quickly ahead. "Is that your friend Kemmer up there?"

Al was floundering about 10 yards away. "Good evening, Kemmer," Healey said. "Looks like everybody's out promenading tonight."

"Yes," Al mumbled, "it's a— it's a—"

"Nice night for a walk, like I was telling Morrison. Say—I see you've brought your lunch along."

Al hunched the bag into his armpit. "Yeh—my lunch—I gotta eat all the time, account of my colitis."

Healey smiled sympathetically, and reached under Al's arm and took the bag. He popped a pencil flashlight inside. "Look at that. Now, what do you want to carry all this money around for?" He chided.

Abruptly Al said, "The safe. The door won't lock good. When I go out for a walk, I take half of the money with me, so in case there's a robbery or anything, half of the money will be saved, anyway."

"That's using the old bean," Healey said. "Now suppose we take a walk back to your place and have a little talk."

As soon as we were inside the office, Healey closed the door, turned at Al and said, "We know that body was on your land."

Al laid his lower jaw on his chest. He groped behind him for his chair and unrolled himself into it. "What body?"

"Let's cut the kidding," Healey said. "Once we got on to the fact the body had been dragged it was easy to find where from."

Al was rapidly stuffing gum between his teeth. "Owh shzhoh nuvvin about it," he spluttered through the wad. "Supposing it was on my land—does that prove I moved it?"

"Not by itself. But there were a couple of strange coincidences. Somebody used the phone to tip us to it being on Stacey's land; somebody with a fake accent. Then you called Stacey."

"Somebody's trying to get me in trouble. That animal Stacey. He wants to push all his troubles on me." Al's voice got shriller as he began to believe his own spiel. "I ain't going to stand for that kind of monkey business. I'll get a lawyer to take care of him."

HEALEY let him run down. "And who were you paying off with this dough?"

Al cleared his throat. "I told you—"

"The safe wouldn't lock. I know," Healey moved lithely across the room to the safe. He pulled at the handle—

The door swung open. "You outfoxed me that time," Healey said.

"No foxing about it," Al said daintily. "When I tell you something, it's good as gold."

Healey seemed abstracted now. "Kemmer, till we clear this thing up, I want you to stick around. Don't leave your grounds."

Healey went out. Al followed him to the front doorway and watched him walk away past the rec hall. Then Al came back, smiling. "Nice guy, for a cop."

Polly-Pops Are Party Fare

Whatever the occasion, birthday party, May party or just rainy-Saturday-afternoon party—the children enjoy it more if there is something really festive about it. Balloons and paper hats are good items to keep on hand—because they help to make any young get-together a party, but the "cats" are the really important thing. Polly-pops served with ice cream squares (with animal centers) will give any party a gala touch, and in addition are simple to prepare. Ice cream all made up with animal centers are available on short notice from the ice cream dealer and Polly-pops take no time at all.

POLLY-POPS

- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup light corn syrup
- 1 cup top milk
- 4 cups SUGAR Corn POPS
- 1 cup salted peanuts

Combine sugar, corn syrup and top milk in saucepan. Cook over low heat to 240° (soft ball in cold water). Mix SUGAR Corn POPS and peanuts in buttered large bowl. Pour on syrup, mixing thoroughly. Press into buttered muffin pans to about 3/4 inch in thickness. When cool, remove from pans and insert a wooden skewer sideways in each one to resemble a lolly-pop. Yield: 2 1/2 dozen Polly-Pops, 2 1/2 inches in diameter.

Obesity Damages Liver, Medical Expert Discloses

Obesity causes damage to the liver, according to findings disclosed in the Archives of the Internal Medicine, a publication of the American Medical Association, by Dr. Samuel Zelman of the Winneton Veterans Administration Hospital in Topeka, Kan.

Zelman warned fat people that obesity can cause cirrhosis of the liver, which sometimes is fatal. The duration of obesity, rather than the degrees is the determining factor, he said.

Zelman based his conclusions on a study of 20 overweight men, whose ages ranged from 23 to 71 years, and whose weight ranged from 206 to 299 pounds. All showed both laboratory and histologic evidence of liver disease, he said. Zelman said food requirements of fat people are increased over the normal and constitute a functional overload on the liver.

New Recipes Will Be Available With Each New Can Shortening

When it comes to recipes—women are natural born collectors! The urge to "collect" is universal—as any small boy's pockets or any Hobby Show will tell you. Buttons, shells, stamps, dolls—all have their loyal adherents. But, writes Winifred S. Carter, who conducts a household information service for Proctor & Gamble, women everywhere—young, old, in cities or on farms—unite in this. They're mad about recipes! Particularly new ones that are easy practical... and mouth-watering.

Which is as it should be. For recipes are an important part of happy home life. They bring new enjoyment to family meals, and fresh stimulus to the one who plans and cooks them.

Recognizing this enormous interest in recipes, the manufacturers of a famous all-purpose vegetable shortening have just done a constructive thing. They're turning their labels into young cook books; On both the one pound and three pound cans there are exciting new recipes for cake and pastry making, and for frying. Lots of 'em. On the inside too, for they're cleverly perforated for removal. Since new ones will appear periodically, you can soon build up your own personal file of sure-fire successes. So now, your recipe collectors, here's a wonderful new source of them. Go right on clipping your magazines and newspapers. Consult, as always, your tried-and-true cook books. But remember the thrilling information now available to you in this practical, ingenious way. And treasure these recipes. Every one has been per-

Average Income $5,760 HOUSTON SUBURB HAS FATTEST POCKETBOOKS IN LONE STAR

WASHINGTON—Residents of West University, P. L., Houston suburb, boast the fattest pocketbooks in Texas with a median annual income of $5,760, a Bureau of Census report discloses.

Median income for breadwinners over the entire state was $2,273, compared with a national average of $2,599.

The figures, based upon a 20 per cent sampling, represent the median 1949 income reported to 1950 census-takers by families and unrelated individuals in Texas urban places of 10,000 or more population.

Census-takers reported that metropolitan Houston, including all of Harris County, had a median income of $3,078—the highest among the state's four largest metropolitan areas.

Metropolitan Dallas, comprised of Dallas county, reported a median income of $2,992, followed by metropolitan Fort Worth (Tarrant County), $2,853, and metropolitan San Antonio (Bexar County), $2,196.

Beaumont-Port Arthur proved the "richest" metropolitan area in the state, with a median income of $3,279.

Lowest median income in the state, $885, was reported by Denton.

Highland Park, prosperous Dallas suburb, was second richest suburb with a median income of $5,144.

The average family or individual in Dallas earned $3,042, highest figure among Texas' four largest cities. Median income in Houston was $2,937; Fort Worth, $2,830, and San Antonio, $2,378.

Which Got The Wonder Drug?

Each of these calves, owned by Hiram Hoag of Johnson, Vermont, is four months old. The difference is that the bigger, thriftier one was fed an aureomycin supplement, a product of Lederle Laboratories Division of American Cyanamid Company, from the day it was born until it was three months old; the other had no aureomycin. With Mr. Hoag is Ian Pritchard, right, of the University of Vermont which supplied the aureomycin used in a statewide series of such feeding experiments by Vermont farmers.

Plane Is Used To Fight Eagles

H. H. Austin used a plane in his campaign against five eagles preying on lambs at his property at Ginnagulla, Australia.

Austin got tired of losing £50 ($110) worth of lambs daily to wedge-tailed eagles, believed to be the world's largest. He got hold of his friend Rea Moore, president of the Tamworth Gun Club. They called on another Tamworth friend, Jim Packer, and mapped out the aerial campaign. Packer owns a small single-engine Auster plane which he pilots as an "air taxi."

On "E-Day", Moore strapped himself to a seat alongside an open door on the Auster. He checked his 12-gauge double-barreled shot gun, and, with Packer at the controls, they took off. They soon caught up with two eagles.

"I had time only to fire one barrel into each eagle," Moore reported. "I think we scored a hit on the first one, but I am not certain it was a kill."

"The second eagle went down with feathers flying. A horseman on the ground killed it with a stick." Next day Moore and Packer went up to look for the three remaining eagles but couldn't find them.
