

INTERMEDIARY IN LINDBERGH CASE IS SENT TO JAIL

Peacock Also Under Investigation, Following Report that $25,000 "Earnest Money" Was Asked of Colonel.

Hopewell, N. J., May 19.—The startling confession Tuesday by John Hughes Curtis, the Norfolk, Va., "intermediary," that he had perpetrated an "enormous deception" in the search for the slain son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, was closely followed by the disclosure late Wednesday night of other details leading to a most thorough investigation of the "Jafsie" phase of the fantastic drama.

Curtis, 44-year-old shipbuilder, just before dawn Tuesday, following long grilling from police authorities, sat down to a typewriter and tapped out his own story of faking mysterious contacts with the supposed kidnapers of the child.

The boats and all of the persons to whom Curtis has been referring were creations of his own mind, police were told by the manufacturer, who so captured the confidence of Colonel Lindbergh, himself, that the latter was with him the night the child's body was found.

"I honestly believe that for the last seven or eight months I have not been myself due to financial troubles," Curtis said in his signed confession.

In an improvised court-room at the Lindbergh estate, Curtis waived a hearing on a charge of giving false information and was ordered committed to jail in default of $10,000 bail.

The statute under which he was arraigned provides a penalty of three years imprisonment or $1,000 fine or both.

Primarily the directing heads of the relentless pursuit wanted to know whether Curtis had told "the whole truth."

They made public the hitherto unconfirmed information that Curtis' associate in his "fake" negotiations, Dean H. Dodson-Peacock of Norfolk, Va., once expressed his confidence in the "contacts" of Curtis and made a futile request that Colonel Charles Lindbergh supply $25,000 for ransom purposes.

LINDBERGH BABY FOUND DEAD.

Hopewell, N. J., May 19.—The baby son of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was found dead on Thursday, May 12. The child had been murdered.

The body, lying face down in a depression and partly covered with dead leaves, was discovered by a negro truck driver in a patch of woods in the Sourland mountains, less than five miles from the Lindbergh home near Hopewell, N. J.

The discovery was made by accident when the driver, walking into (Continued on Page Eight)

WILL SECURE CAPS AND GOWNS WITH PROCEEDS SENIOR CLASS PLAY

The Senior play of 1932 is to be presented on Friday evening, May 20. "Kid Kolby," the play that has been chosen, is one of the best. This is to be one of the best performances that Merkel High school has offered this year, for the Seniors like their play and have it up to perfection. For the first time in the history of the school the proceeds of the play will go to the fund to secure caps and gowns for the Seniors.

The play is a three-act comedy drama that will furnish entertainment for the evening. The story, a very clever one, has much humor furnished by dashing young stenographers in Mr. Theodore Bancroft's office. He is the head of a large consolidated manufacturing concern and is in love with his secretary, Eileen McPherson. Things become very complicated when his son, Teddy, just out of college, comes home and falls in love with Eileen too. Teddy has been fighting under an assumed name, that of "Kid Kolby," and becomes entangled in some affairs of which his father does not approve at all. Billy, Eileen's small brother and office boy to Bancroft, finally has a hand in bringing things out right.

The players are: Mr. Bancroft, Elmer Adcock; Eileen McPherson, his secretary, Margaret Canon; Billy, Eileen's small brother, W. M. Taylor; Teddy Bancroft, "Kid Kolby," Woodrow Wilson; Jerry, the Kid's trainer, Cephas Wozencraft; a radio announcer, Monta J. Moore; three businessmen, R. D. Ely, Ross Ferrier, Jr., and Marshall Stalls; a radio man, H. C. Toombs; a messenger boy, Robert Manscill; a boy from the drug store, Selma Jones. The hospital staff consists of Dr. Dalton, Isadore Mellinger; Miss Kelly, the nurse, Avis Deavers. The stenographers are Ida Mae Derstine, Willie Evelyn Boaz, Nelle Durham, Helen Yeats, Zada Bell, Marie Stanford, Elleta Foster and Madeline Murray. The chorus girl is played by Mary Elizabeth Grimes. Lela Patterson portrays the part of the maid.

The play is to be presented at the Grammar School auditorium at 8:15, Friday, May 20. The admission is twenty and twenty-five cents. Come and enjoy an evening of fun. Help the Seniors pay for their caps and gowns. Everybody be there. We are counting on you!

BIG SPRING GETS NEXT WTCC MEET

Sweetwater Convention Termed Most Fruitful in History of Regional Body.

Sweetwater, May 19.—The most fruitful West Texas chamber of commerce convention since the organization's formative days adjourned here Saturday with selection of Big Spring as the 1933 host city and election of Wilbur C. Hawk, Amarillo newspaperman, to the presidency.

Hawk succeeds Houston Harte, San Angelo, a fellow publisher, whose administration has been outstanding.

The convention itself was outstanding because its whole theme is the outstanding question in American life today. That is, taxation and public expenditures: a curb on the extravagant and senseless spending spree in which—it was shown by figures—city, state and federal governments have been wallowing for twenty years, abetted and prodded on by taxpayers suffering from an overdose of false pride and patriotism.

In the main forenoon sessions and afternoon group conferences the one subject was foremost. The American crazy-quilt system of taxing and spending was turned wrongside out for examination by well-informed speakers. The talks and conference crystallized in passage of three resolutions designed to save millions annually in revision of state and local government.

Guest of Honor at Friend's Inaugural

Having been one of the guests of honor at the inauguration last Monday at Baton Rouge of his boyhood friend, Oscar K. Allen, as governor of Louisiana, Rev. J. T. King, pastor of the First Baptist church, returned to the city Wednesday.

The ceremony was one of especial significance to the Merkel pastor, marking as it did the conferring of the greatest honor in the gift of the Louisiana voters on his personal friend whose career he had followed so closely and with whom he had been associated so intimately throughout his life.

Featured as part of the inaugural program was the dedication of the new state capitol, which is 33 stories high, and which was an achievement credited to the administration of the former governor, Huey P. Long, now United States senator, also a personal friend of Rev. Mr. King. The dedicatory ceremonies included the unveiling of a bust tablet of the former governor.

"I am now preparing a statement to the voters of Texas setting forth the platform on which I shall stand."

SMALL TO SUPPORT STERLING. Sweetwater, Texas, May 19.—Senator Clint C. Small said Saturday he planned to support Gov. Ross S. Sterling in the coming gubernatorial campaign, if the governor concluded to run.

His statement was made before the governor definitely announced his candidacy from Amarillo.

Election is Voided; Call Another May 28

In the special election held last Saturday to name two aldermen, J. A. Buford was high man with 71 votes. G. W. Boyce, W. W. Haynes and S. D. Gamble each received 65 votes for the other place. The names of Haynes and Gamble were written on the ballot by friends. The printed ballot included the name of C. P. Stevens besides Boyce and Buford. 142 votes were cast.

Due to a technical irregularity, however, the result of the election was declared void by members of the city council in a special session held Monday night to canvass the votes and another election ordered for Saturday, May 28.

J. P. Sharp, Sr., will be election judge, the usual hours for city election to obtain, from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. The fire station will be the voting place.

THE OBITUARY PAGE

Once I was talking with Kent Cooper about what interests people in the newspapers. He said: "When a man gets to be about forty-five years old he discovers the obituary page." I certainly am not a gloomy minded person, but I have always thought more or less about death. The attitude of a large portion of the human race toward it seems to me infantile and silly. It isn't a pleasant subject but certainly it is an inevitable one. Why dodge and pretend and act like children? Said Caesar: "Of all the wonders that I yet have heard. It seems to me most strange that men should fear; Seeing that death, a necessary end, Will come when it will come." All of which leads me to remark that there is a certain advantage in discovering the obituary page comparatively early in life. The tragedy is that some men never discover it. I have seen a doddering old millionaire, with one foot in the grave, fighting with a taxi-man over a nickel, or trying to beat down the price of a neck-tie. I once sought a contribution to charity from a millionaire who was well over sixty and notoriously tight. He told all the reasons why he couldn't give up a cent, and as he warmed up to the subject he began to act as if my call were an insult. Finally I said: "Why are you so mean? Why do you deny yourself pleasures and squeeze every nickel? It isn't your money; it's your children's money or will be in a few years. Why let them have all the pleasures? Why not have the fun of giving some of it away?" This rude remark shocked him. I think it started a line of thought that made quite a change in his life. Moses prayed: "So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom." I assume that to mean that, when we get along toward middle life and note by the papers that men of our own age, or a few years older, are dropping off, we ought to stop and take stock. We ought to say: "As life goes I have maybe ten, fifteen or, at the most, thirty years. Therefore, I ought to quit thinking—How much money can I pile up? and begin thinking—How (Continued on Page Two.)

Chevrolet Sales in April Reported 85 Per Cent Over March

Detroit, May 19.—One of the most encouraging reflections on current business to come out of this automotive center in recent months was the announcement here that Chevrolet dealers reported 85 per cent more cars sold at retail in April than in March, that April sales were 6,000 units greater than production, and that sales in the last ten-day period of the month exceeded either of the other two periods by 5,000 new cars and trucks.

In the last ten days, dealers reported purchases by the public of 24,176 new units, according to W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager as compared with 19,672 in the second ten-day period, and 17,461 in the first period.

The total of 61,309 compares with 33,125 sold in March, a gain of 85 per cent, and with 55,432 built in April, which was 5,000 more than the production schedule called for at the beginning of that month, Mr. Knudsen reported.

The vineyards are renowned for the rich, wine-like flavor of the great purple clusters of fruit. MAN MADE THE TOWN

by RUBY M. AYRES

NINTH INSTALLMENT.
Diana, in love with a married man, Dennis Waterman, has a nervous collapse as a result of the gay life of London society. Her aunt, Mrs. Gladwyn, takes her to a doctor, who orders her to the country for a rest. Dr. Rathbone has a country home nearby. Dennis calls at the cottage, then goes away for a long trip. He writes from America that he is there with Linda, his wife. Diana finds herself becoming more and more interested in Dr. Rathbone, and questions her nurse, Miss Starling, about him. She also questions Jonas, a farm boy of the neighborhood, about a woman who lives in Dr. Rathbone's house. Her name is Rosalie. Then Diana meets Rosalie in the woods; she acts strangely and leaves Diana puzzled.

Soon after the meeting in the woods with Rosalie, Dr. Rathbone calls again at Diana's cottage.
A cablegram from Dennis arrives. He is returning from America. That interrupts what might have been a tender episode between Diana and the Doctor. He leaves; later Dennis cables that his return will be delayed. Diana, thirsting for love, turns her thoughts again to Dr. Rathbone. She is thinking of him now as "Donald." Regardless of the mysterious Rosalie, Diana resolves to see Dr. Rathbone. She goes to his house, but as she stands at the front door the doctor's big police dog leaps at her and she feels his teeth tearing at her throat. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY—
Donald Rathbone had dined alone that night.
He had heard Diana's car drive up, but had merely thought it was one of his own returning from the village to which he had sent his chauffeur with a message.
The dining room was on the far side of the house, and the heavy oak door was shut, so he heard nothing more till Diana's terrified scream rent the silence, followed by that pious cry upon his name.
"Donald . . . !"
Rathbone was out in the hall almost before it had died away, but even then, for an instant, in the dim light he could hardly understand what was happening.
Servants were rushing from other parts of the house, but it was Rathbone who dragged Nero away, almost throttling him in his iron grip, Rathbone who, throwing the dog aside into someone else's outsidy, lifted Diana in his arms.
"Oh, my—God!"
She looked up at him, her eyes half mad with terror, then with a little convulsive gesture she put her lacerated arms round his neck, clinging to him desperately for one heart-breaking moment before she fainted.
He carried her into the study and laid her on the couch; his face was gray, and his breath came tearing from him as if it were he who was suffering, and not she.
The chauffeur was in the room now, and the housekeeper, a middle-aged woman with a quiet, capable face; and seeing that for a moment at least Rathbone was utterly unnerved, she fetched water and brandy and gently bathed Diana's face and bleeding arms.
It seemed an eternity to those around before she stirred a little and then opened her eyes: eyes still so terrified and wild that it was almost unbearable when she started up, crying and moaning afresh:
"Donald . . . Donald . . . Save me!"
He went on his knees beside her.
"It's all right . . . I'm here . . . don't be frightened . . . you're quite safe . . . It's all right . . . it's all right . . . I'm here . . . you're quite safe with me."
He put his hand over her eyes for an instant as if to wipe the last terrible moments from her memory, but she pushed him away, crying out like a frightened child—
"He tried to kill me . . . he tried to kill me . . . oh, why didn't you come? . . . He tried to kill me . . ." And then with a shuddering sob:
"Oh, my arms . . . look at my arms!"
It was a relief to them all when she slipped back into unconsciousness, but when Mrs. Farmer tried to force brandy between her lips Rathbone prevented her.
"No, leave her alone."
He dressed and bandaged her arms while she lay unconscious; he was as gentle as a woman, thorough and capable, but the sweat was standing in great beads on his forehead, and his curious hard breathing alone broke the silence.

When at last he had finished, Mrs. Farmer gave a little sob.
"Thank God her face isn't touched, sir."
Rathbone said nothing. He stood looking down at Diana with a queer blank look in his eyes.
Mrs. Farmer spoke again, hesitatingly:
"Shall we put her to bed, sir?"
He turned then.
"Here—in this house? . . . No, I'll take her home."
When they brought the rug he wrapped Diana in it and lifted her in his arms, carrying her out to the car himself.
He laid her on the seat with a cushion beneath her head and let down the windows to the cool night air.
"Drive carefully," he said.
The car moved slowly away.
Rathbone sat opposite Diana, leaning a little forward, his hands gripped between his knees, staring at her.
It was like some monstrous nightmare from which he could not free himself.
How had it happened? Why had she come? Why, in God's name, had she come, alone and at this time of night?
The car stopped at Miss Starling's cottage, and the chauffeur came to the door.
Rathbone got out. "Don't touch her," he said briefly.
Rathbone went back into the passage and called the Creature's name, but there was no reply, and with a muttered imprecation he returned to the car.
"The place seems deserted. I'll carry her in. Go in the kitchen and get some hot water—and bring it upstairs to me."
He laid Diana on her bed, clumsily pulling the quilt aside and then gently covering her with it, before he pulled the curtains back and opened the window wide.
She stared up at him piteously for a moment before she whispered:
"Am I going to die?"
"No, my dear—no!"
He went on carefully, as if realizing the importance of every word.
"You've got to be brave and try never to think about it again. You've got to be very brave and trust me to look after you. Can you do that?"
She nodded, slow tears falling down her face.
"It—hurts so," she said.
"Yes." She made a little movement to wipe the tears from her face, but the pain in her arm was too great, and Rathbone took his own handkerchief and gently wiped them for her before he drew his arm from beneath her head and laid her back on the pillows.
Her eyes sought his with fear.
"I suppose, when I'm well—you'll go again?"
"Go?—Where?"
"Not see me any more, I mean."
He put his hand on hers for a moment: it was like her to touch his tenderness when he had been trying harshly to condemn her.
"No, not if you still want me," he said.
She said suddenly, with a ghost of her old childish impertinence, "Poor Dr. Rathbone—you can't quite escape me can you?"
"Have you thought I wished to?"
She sighed. "I have thought so—yes."
Away in the distance the church clock struck eleven.
He asked, "Does that mean that I am still—a wall for you to lean against? Wasn't that what you called me?—a safe harbour, Diana?"
She pressed his hand in assent, the old sweet smile crossing her face as she looked up at him.
The garden gate creaked, and Rathbone went over to the window.
"That is Miss Starling," he said.
"I'll just go down and see her; you don't mind being left now for a moment?"
Downstairs she could hear him talking to Miss Starling, and presently they came up together. Diana wondered if the Creature could possibly have been crying, or if it was just the night air had reddened her lids.
She bent over Diana and rearranged her pillows and the bedclothes with capable hands.
"I'll make you nice and comfy presently," she promised.
She asked no questions, and Diana liked her better at that moment than ever before.
"I'll just run away and take off my cloak and bonnet," she said practically, and went away.
Rathbone stood at the foot of the bed.
"Do you mind if I go now?" Rathbone asked. "I'll come in the morning—quite early."

"You've been very kind."
"And you won't worry?"
"No."
She looked up at him with such trustful eyes that, moved by a sudden impulse which he could not control, Rathbone bent down and kissed her.
A very gentle kiss on the forehead, just between her brows, and he turned away at once, but not before he had seen the look of happiness that flashed into her eyes.
"Good-night," he said again, but when he reached the door she called him back to say:
"I'm glad it wasn't 'good-bye' this time."
He looked at her gravely.
"I hope you'll always be glad," he said.
CHAPTER XIV
The day Dennis Waterman was due to arrive at Southampton Rathbone took the bandages from Diana's right arm.
"And now there's something I want to say to you," Rathbone said briskly. Diana turned round, the old scared look creeping into her eyes.
"Something nasty?"
"Nothing in the least nasty," he assured her. "Quite the contrary, in fact. It's just this—I want you to start going about again, to take an interest in your old life."
She said slowly, her eyes on his face:
"When I went to see you the first day in Harley Street, you told me that if I went on as I was going then, I should kill myself, and now you are telling me to go back to it all."
"But not at the same breakneck pace. Besides, you are so much better in every way than you were then, in spite of this last."
"You cannot go on living here indefinitely, you know that, Diana, so the sooner you make a start the better."
She took a little step towards him.
"Do you want to get rid of me?" she asked very directly.
"Is that a fair question, do you think?" he asked. "Besides, it won't be 'getting rid of you,' as you put it. I shall see you in London sometimes."
"Only—sometimes?"
He smiled rather constrainedly.
"I know what is best for me," she said wiffully.
He checked a smile.
"And what is best for you?" he asked.
"To be where I am happiest," Diana said with troubled eyes. "And I am happiest where I know I shall see you most often."
And then there followed a profound silence which seemed as though it could never be broken, till Rathbone said with an effort:
"We must be very frank with each other this once, Diana, and then we'll never talk about it again. I know you won't misunderstand me when I say that my life was settled for me—or perhaps I settled it myself, whichever way you prefer—many years ago, when you must still have been only a schoolgirl. I can't go back on it, even if I wanted to. I've always felt that when a man takes certain responsibilities upon himself he should stand by them, whatever his inclinations, whatever comes between. I can't explain more definitely, I haven't the right to. I can only hope you will understand."

He broke off, as if for a moment he had lost himself in the wistful beauty of her face.
She stood helplessly silent for a moment before she broke out with something of her old impetuosity.
"I wish I knew what it really is I feel about you; I wish I could explain, but I can't, and if I did, you wouldn't understand. Nobody would. But if I go back to London, as you say you want me to, there'll be other men again, I know that. You see—" she submitted rather pathetically—"I must do something—go about with someone. Aunt Gladwyn is kind, but we're not really friends. I know lots of girls like myself, but we don't any of us really care about each other. Then there's Dennis . . . he arrives in England today you know. I didn't tell you before, but he does."
There was sharp silence which Rathbone broke.
"Are you glad, Diana?"
"I don't know," she said almost in a whisper, and then, as he said nothing, she went on: "Everything is so different since I came here, I don't understand why. I've never had one single cocktail since I came here—no wonder my skin looks so nice."

We asked the McCarthy's

"What's the best reason for having a telephone?" we inquired.
Said Mr. McCarthy:
"You never know when you'll get a business call at home. And during the day, it's a fine thing to know the Missis can call you, if thing's go wrong."
Said Mrs. McCarthy:
"Well, I'll admit I enjoy 'visiting' on the telephone. And it does save a world of trips to the grocery, the drug store, the cleaners and the like. What if we should need the doctor, or the police, or the fire department?"
Perhaps you do not have a telephone at home. If not, we really believe you're missing something. If you're interested, call the business office.

THE BADGER WEEKLY

Published weekly by the students of Merkel High School and sponsored by the Senior Class of '32—Mrs. E. B. Irvin, sponsor.

The Staff:

Editor-in-Chief—Ida Mae Derstine. Sports Editor—Willie Evelyn Boaz.
 Assistant Editor—Lela Patterson. Assistant Sports Editor—Rosa Ferrier.
 Society Editor—Mary Elizabeth Grimes. Joke Editor—Cephas Wozencraft.

SHANNON PLACES EIGHTH AT STATE MEET.

For the first time in about ten years Merkel High school had a representative at the state meet. Shannon was eighth in a field of about seventy contestants in the mile run. His time in the preliminaries was 4:47 and in the finals he made the distance in 4:46. Both of these times were better than the district record of 4:49. Although Shannon did not win this year he showed that he has ability and he will probably win the state meet one or both of his remaining two years of competition. The entire school extends congratulations to Shannon and wishes him better luck for the next two years.

FRESHMAN NEWS.

Milton is back from Austin! Although he did not place, we are very proud of him. There were seven ahead of him in the finals but that means he is eighth best in the state. Milton will have two more years to try for the mile run and will win one of the two years, we are sure. He said he had a grand time and no doubt he did. He went through the capitol and also went to shows. We, the Freshmen, want to say again: we are very, very proud of our "Fish", Milton Shannon.

THE BRIGHT SIDE OF LIFE.

"Traveled all over the world, eh? West up the Rhine, I suppose?"
 "Climbed it to the top."
 "Saw the Lion of St. Mark?"
 "Fed it."
 "And visited the Black Sea?"
 "Filled my fountain pen there."
 "G'wan, you'll be telling me you died at the Dead Sea next."

The worst second-story men are those who insist upon telling a story the second time.

Mrs. Irvin: "How do you like the potato salad?"
 Mr. Irvin: "It's delicious. Did you buy it yourself?"

A state highway is a magnificent stretch of road lying between two detour signs.

J. B. Moore: "What is the most deadly poison known?"
 Ross: "Aviation poison."
 J. B.: "How much does it take to kill a person?"
 Ross: "One drop."

Few, if any, world war veterans are so enfeebled, it appears, as to be able to stand a loan.

An elderly lady was visiting the university hospital in Oklahoma City. "Poor boy," she said to an ex-soldier who had been wounded, "you must have been through some pretty tight squeezes."

At this he turned violent scarlet and stammered: "Uh-Well-Uh-the nurses here have been pretty good to me for a fact, madam."

A naval holiday for five years is suggested by Senator Borah. It is felt that the country will be safe as long as we have millions of movie ushers ready to glare at an incoming enemy.

Breathes there a student with soul so dead
 Who never to himself hath said,
 When faintly hearing the tardy bell,
 Words that rhymed with ham and dell?

SPORT NEWS.

The last whistle has blown for the "Badger News" of the year '31-'32. Old Merkel High has had some wonderful sportmanship during this year. Every game we have had in football, basketball and track was well done. It was fought in the right way and in the right spirit.

There are some members of the Badgers and also members of the Pep Squad that will have to say good-bye to the dear old Badgers of Merkel High. When we think of the Badgers, we think of the Pep Squad, do we not? It is hard for us to say good-bye, but our time has come to leave dear Merkel High.

Badgers and Pep Squad of M. H. S., stay in there and fight through thick and thin and don't forget the members of the Badger team and the Pep Squad of '31-'32, because we will always be with you in spirit.

"KID KOLBY" TO BE PRESENTED MAY TWENTIETH.
 The Seniors have worked very hard this year and they have reached the highest peak of their dreams: they are to present their play Friday, May 20.

This play is going to be a very good one and they are expecting the entire high school to be present.

It is going to be presented at the Grammar School auditorium. Admission is twenty and twenty-five cents. Be there!!!

THE SUNBONNET GIRL.

Last Friday evening the M. H. S. chorus very splendidly presented the two-act operetta entitled "The Sunbonnet Girl." It was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone present and the chorus is to be congratulated upon its fine work.

Miss Tracy, director of the chorus, is to be especially praised for her splendid work.

We are expecting great things of the M. H. S. chorus next year.

On Sunday evening the chorus also presented "An Evening of Praise," which was equally as good as the operetta. The various churches of the town dismissed their services for the occasion.

THE SENIOR PICNIC.

On last Thursday thirty happy Seniors, along with their sponsor, boarded a truck and left the old high school behind. They went to Buffalo Gap where everyone had the best time of his life. Games of baseball and football were enjoyed and later a picnic feast at the lunch hour. The menu consisted of olives, sandwiches, pickles, potato chips, punch, cakes and fruit.

In the afternoon some of the group enjoyed a swim in the swimming pool while others enjoyed themselves by making pictures. The class then went to Lake Abilene and later returned home very happy, tired and sunburned.

Guests for the affair were Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Burgess and Miss Fannie Belle Boaz.

SENIOR NEWS.

The end of our high school career is almost here. Exams! Play! Songs! And what have you! We are very busy, but we will take a little time to write something for our last issue of the Badger Weekly. As this is our last issue, we wish to say that we have enjoyed publishing it very much.

We had a great time on Senior Day; however we are sorry that Helen hurt her knee so badly. We hope that she will be able to walk as well as ever soon.

Come to see "Kid Kolby" to night at the Grammar School auditorium.

THE TRANQUIL SEA.

The river of life goes gently flowing, flowing
 Into that boundless sea
 Where the rich and poor together shall in Spirit united be.

Days, months and years are all mere milestones,
 Milestones of old father time,
 Set to mark the dreary passage, set to sound
 The death bell's chime.

And the day is truly coming, it makes no difference
 What our class may be,
 When we shall hoist our sails together, and sail
 Into that silent sea.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. J. B. FERRIER

Heart Attack Fatal for Beloved Womar. Resident Here for Thirty-Two Years.

The entire community was shocked and saddened when word spread Saturday afternoon that Mrs. Christine Ferrier, 73, wife of the late J. B. Ferrier, had died of a heart attack. When shortly after lunch her son, Ross, and his wife called at his mother's home for a visit, she was found dead in the back yard, apparently stricken as she went about some light duties.

Funeral services were held at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon from the family residence, Rev. E. L. Yeats, pastor of the Methodist church, officiating, with interment in Rose Hill cemetery beside the grave of her husband, who passed away three years ago.

Pall bearers were: N. A. Dowell, Frank Golladay, Dr. R. I. Grimes, W. J. Sheppard, Sam Swann, Bud Sears of Abilene, Claud Comegys and Roger A. Burgess.

Mrs. Ferrier was born in Ohio and came to Texas 52 years ago, settling near Anson. Thirty-two years ago the family moved to Merkel where they have resided since.

Three sons survive: Ross, who lives here, and George and Frank Ferrier, who are on a ranch near Clovis, N. M., and who came just as quickly as the sad news reached them of their mother's death.

A long time resident of Merkel, a consistent member of the Methodist church, she leaves a blessed memory as a mother, church worker, unselfish neighbor and exemplary character, one whose place in the glory world has long been assured.

Plan Night Closing Postoffice Lobby To Begin June 1st

The Mail has been furnished the following statement as to night closing of the postoffice lobby by Postmaster O. J. Adecock:

"We have received the street letter box furnished by the department for the reception of mail that may be mailed at night between the hours 8 p. m. and 6 a. m. As soon as we get the concrete post shipped from Cincinnati, Ohio, we will erect the box at front of postoffice. We will then be ready to begin closing the lobby of the postoffice.

"This action was recommended by the lease inspector who recently inspected the new quarters.

"Patrons of the office will take notice of this and be governed accordingly. If we get the post referred to above in time to install by the first of June, the lobby closing will begin at that time."

Best Opponents in Fifteen Inning Go

The Merkel nine won a 15 inning battle with Jones Drug company boys at Abilene last Sunday by the score of 7 to 4.

Six straight scoreless innings preceded the 15th, when a fluke homer by E. Palmer settled the issue. The ball was lost in the heavy vegetation near third base while Palmer circled the paths. Pitcher Tannie Jones then doubled, Woods walked for the third time, and a single by Bryant drove over two extra scores.

Tannie Jones, although yielding 13 hits, struck out 13 and failed to walk a man.

Merkel's line-up was: N. Palmer 3b, McLean 2b, McGaughey rf, E. Palmer cf, Ashford c, Woods 1b, Derrick ss, T. Jones p. D. Bryant lf.

The Jones Drug boys will oppose Merkel here next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock on the West Merkel grounds.

In an exciting game at Trent Monday, the Trent team defeated Merkel 3 to 1. The Merkel players, it is reported, are out for revenge at an early date on the neighbors to the west.

Delegates Selected by County Rural Carriers

At a meeting at Cobb park, Abilene, at 3:30 Saturday afternoon of Taylor County Rural Carriers and their wives, A. C. Terry of Trent, Owen Holley of Abilene and Mr. McCormick of Tuscola were named delegates to the state convention at Galveston.

Dallas Visitors are Cordially Welcomed

Merkel business men, augmented by the school children almost en masse, greeted the Dallas trade trip party with typical West Texas cordiality when they arrived by special train at 8:10 last Saturday morning. The Dallas party had spent the previous night at Sweetwater where the West Texas Chamber of Commerce was holding its annual session.

Headed by the Dallas band, the visitors formed in parade style and marched up two blocks of Edwards street, rendering an enjoyable concert during their stay, and visiting speakers from automobile fenders as stands extended Dallas' invitation to their Merkel friends to visit them at any time.

As one of the greetings to the visitors, the Farmers State bank displayed a banner across the front of the building, "Dallas, we welcome you," and inside beautiful flowers arranged on desks and in windows added their friendly fragrance.

In reporting to The Mail the loss of her purse, containing a considerable sum of currency, Grandma Baker gave notice that from now on she expected to keep her money in the bank.

She missed the purse last Sunday, being uncertain whether or not she carried it to church with her. It contained eight $20 bills and five $10 bills.

Rainfall for 1932 Exceeds 13 Inches

Following a quarter inch rain near midnight Sunday, the Merkel section has enjoyed four days of generally fair weather. Farmers have taken full advantage of this condition, as for several weeks past the ground had scarcely dried sufficiently for work in the fields before another rain came, and cotton planting is now in full swing.

According to reports from farmers generally, prospects are fine for a splendid yield of wheat and oats, barring setbacks, in this section, with indications of yield exceeding last year's harvest.

Rainfall last week, reported by The Mail, was 3 inches, total for the year 12.79. With the above quarter inch added, the year's figure is now 13.04 inches.

The last test in numbers that our county supervisor gave, the Trent grammar school made the highest in the county. We are proud of our teachers who taught these grades so successfully.

Saturday, May 14, was rally day for co-operative extension work in Taylor county. There were 15 representatives from Trent and they placed four times in quilts. The winners were: Mrs. T. L. Stevens, first on painted quilts; Mrs. R. L. Reeves, second on painted quilts; Mrs. J. P. Stevens, first on applique, and Mrs. C. T. Beckham, third on piece quilts. There were 80 quilts entered. A delightful day was spent, dinner being spread picnic-style in one of the exhibit buildings at the Fair Park. Those going besides the winners, were: Mesdames Ben Howell, Ed Burks, Annie Boone, R. L. Reeves, Lillian Grace Reeves, Betty Lou Howell, Roy Stewart, Charlie Wash, J. I. Leamon, Wallace Kelley, Mark Williamson, Claude Stewart, T. H. On May 30, Decoration day, we are asking the Trent community to assemble at the cemetery for an all-day working. Each family, or group, is asked to bring a well filled basket and lunch will be spread at the noon hour. Don't forget the date. If you do not have a relative buried there, remember your friends that are there. Everybody invited. Let's don't forget the resting place of our dead.

THE GRAMMAR SCHOOL TEACHERS.

(By Glynn Reaves, Fifth Grade.)
First on the line comes Mr. Franks,
He is always pulling some of his pranks,
And using his paddle day by day,
We are always glad when he rings the bell to play.

Then comes Mrs. Reynolds, my teacher,
We all think that she is a fine preacher.

Next on the line comes Miss Strawn
When she uses her paddle
You would think that she is very strong.

She has a friend, her name is Mrs. Reaves,
She usually has something up her sleeve,
For she is my mother don't you see,
And she is pretty strict, if you ask me.

THE SWING.

(By J. E. Perkins, Fourth Grade.)
Oh swing over the land,
Up to sky and back again,
Over the great shadows of the hills,
Over the house, meadow and hills.

Oh swing so swift in the tree top high,
Across the land I go so high;
When the sun is setting low in the west,

I get out of my swing and go to rest.

COMPERE NEWS

Since the rains of the past week the farmers have been patiently waiting until the soil dries before they finish planting their 1932 crops.

The gardens of this community are real pretty and the "fryers are getting ripe", so it won't be long now!

Compere school closed Wednesday, May 11, as one of the community's most successful school terms. Four factors made this possible: a community that was interested and willing to co-operate in having a good school, faithful parents and pupils, loyal trustees and teachers who were willing to give and do their best. The present faculty have been unanimously re-elected for the 1932-33 term. They are as follows: J. M. Taylor, principal; Mrs. J. M. Taylor, intermediate; Mrs. M. K. Milner, primary.

The closing school program given by the school children on the night of May 11th was attended and enjoyed by a large crowd of patrons and friends. The following pupils received "perfect attendance certificates": Emily Olive Newman, George Newman, Maurine Sherrill, Kathleen Milner, J. T. Smith and Robert E. Spurgin. The following pupils also received "honor certificates" for high grades: Oma Chancy, Julia Gita Bompas, Robert E. Spurgin, Lee Roy Ramsey, Burton Foster, Winifred Loven, Kathleen Milner, George Newman, Maurice Sherrill and Emily Newman.

Mr. Earl Foster and daughter, Lolla, of Merkel visited relatives here Saturday and Sunday.

We are sorry to report Mrs. S. S. Sherrill on our sick list.

Quite a few from this community have been attending the closing school programs at Noodle.

John Henry Palmer of Truby visited his father, Henry Palmer, several times the past week.

Brother Robertson filled his regular appointment at Zion Chapel Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Garrett and Mrs. C. S. Childers' sister, all of Tuxedo, were guests in the Childers' home and attended the presentation of the "Wild Oats Boy" Thursday evening.

Mrs. John Henry Palmer of Truby, a former teacher of this place, is attending the bedside of her father, Mr. Harris, who is reported quite ill at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Foster were Sunday afternoon guests at the teaching.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Taylor and Mrs. M. K. Milner and daughter, Kathleen, were Ansen and Abilene visitors Saturday.

The school children, teachers and patrons enjoyed a school picnic Tuesday of last week. Ball games and various outdoor games were enjoyed until the noon hour; then, oh, my! the feast that was spread! Evidence indicated it was enjoyed to the fullest extent. All departed wishing another good time like that next year.

"The Wild Oats Boy" was presented Thursday night to one of the largest audiences that ever attended a gathering of its kind at Compere. From all reports it was a record-breaking crowd.

"The Wild Oats Boy" is an unusually good play and the characters put it over in a big way. Since the play was such a success, we feel that Compere has as good a talent as you would find in any rural place of its size. The community wishes to express its appreciation to the director and cast of characters for working so faithfully and earnestly to make the play a success.

Hodges Happenings.

Well, here we are again after quite an absence. Glad to report all the folks that were sick with the "flu" are o. k. again.

Grandma Patterson died at her home here Saturday, May 7, and was laid to rest in the Midway cemetery. The entire family have our sympathy.

The rains surely were fine but the farmers are hoping they will stop for a while as very few have any cotton planted.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Driden of Abilene were guests of Mrs. Walker Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Hopkins and children of Abilene visited his sister, Mrs. E. H. Bruton, one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Arwin Ross and baby of Clark county, Arkansas, were recent visitors at the L. M. Walsh home.

Miss Jane Ackens of the Midway community spent the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Walker.

Several from here attended the play, "Wild Oats Boy," at Compere and all reported it as one of the best they ever saw.

Mars is putting on their play at the Baptist church here Saturday night, May 21. Everyone invited.

Cooperative Use Pays Well

Here is a lesson in the value of co-operation.

Time was when every community had its own small, isolated electric power plant — if it had any electric service at all.

That was before it was technically possible to link up groups of towns and provide them with power through widespread systems of electric transmission lines.

Today many communities share each power plant. Thus they utilize the facilities more efficiently and receive a higher grade of service at a much smaller cost. The small town's new industrial importance is a direct outgrowth of this improvement in power supply.

The West Texas Utilities Company is rendering this dependable, inexpensive and elastic type of power supply to 125 progressive West Texas cities and towns.

Do you know that your increased use of Electric Service is billed on a surprisingly low rate schedule... and adds only a small amount to your total bill?

Celebrating One Year of Amazing Success

CONSUMERS ARE THINKING

Consumers are now doing a lot of thinking in the matter of buying the everyday necessities of life. People are beginning to realize that a great portion of the supplies of the country are drifting into the control of a few gigantic corporations. And the consumer is wondering whether this is the best thing for a country like the United States which has always held its opportunities open to the efforts, ingenuity and genius of the individual.

The Red & White organization has no fight on any system of merchandising but it knows that in order to give the consumers the best values there must be an amalgamation of the independent interests. The Red & White group of independent retailers now represents an organization with purchasing power as great as any other food organization in the world and is able to pass on to the customers, values which are unsurpassed by any other form of merchandising. People are always glad to buy their supplies from a home-owned store where the proprietor is a resident of the community and contributes to its civic and social up-keep. Red & White stores are that kind.

HOW TO CUT THE FAMILY GROCERY BILL

Regular customers at Red & White stores realize the splendid saving made in the family grocery bill. They are not obliged to depend upon Saturday special sales for reduced prices because Red & White stores have reduced prices every day in the week and it is this splendid saving, a little bit on each item purchased, which cuts down the grocery bill. Very true Red & White stores also feature special week-end sales and consumers are offered Extra Special Values but it is the everyday saving which they make that is the thing that counts. This is all made possible by the increased purchasing power which the Red & White store has as a result of combining its purchases with thousands of other independently owned retail grocers throughout the United States and Canada.

GLENER CLASS PARTY.
The home of Mrs. F. E. Church was the scene of a lovely party Friday afternoon when Mesdames Hughes, Toombs, Church and Ferrier entertained members of the Gleaner Sunday School class. Mrs. Burgess was a most interesting leader for the devotional after which games of "42" proved happy diversion. A duet by Freddie Hughes and Nancy Jean Scott was most enjoyable as also readings by Dora Marie and Becky Jewel Gaither and Frances MaKe Church.

Delicious sandwiches, cake and cream were served to Mesdames L. R. Thompson, Fred Latham of Abilene, Jim Collins and W. V. Bean, visitors, and class members present were: Mesdames Boyd, Grimes, Gamble, Hale, Vaughn, Sublett, Largent, Iddings, Briggs, Richardson, Buford, Burgess, Gaither, Mashburn, Roberts and Case.

WILLING WORKERS.

Mrs. W. C. Elliott extended hospitality to members of the Willing Workers class on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. A Mothers' Day program that had been delayed on account of inclement weather provided inspiration for a wonderful devotional and a pleasant social hour followed for Mesdames Derstine, John Russell, Walker, Witcher, Vaughn, E. Tucker, Coats, Carb, J. Baker, Butler, Clark, Slaton Misses Mary Keny and Mary Derstine and the hostess, Mrs. Elliott.

T. E. L. LASS.

Members of the T. E. L. Sunday School class spent a most enjoyable day in the open on Wednesday of last week at the suburban home of Mrs. Earl Lassiter. Dinner was prepared over an open fire at noon and in the afternoon a farewell shower for Mrs. Burl Scott was given. The honoree received many pretty and useful presents, mingled with expressions of regret that she will soon be leaving Merkel to make her home elsewhere. Visitors of the class were Mesdames Tom Largent, Iddings and Saffles. Class members were Mesdames Brown, Stevens, Conder, Derstine, Dye, Warren, Angus, Swann, Anderson, Toombs Largent, Renfro, King, Scott, Collins, Booth, Lancaster and the hostess, Mrs. Lassiter.

MEMORIAL DAY PARTY.

Mrs. Charlie Higgins and Mrs. Dent Gibson, assisted by Blanche Dennison, entertained the Fidelis Matrons, Friday at 3 o'clock in Mrs. Higgins' home. Mrs. Tom Riddle led the devotional, reading from the Bible the ten commandments. After the business session, the hostesses entertained with interesting contests and games, all in keeping with Memorial Day.

Plate favors were small flags. The napkins were also decorated in red, white and blue colors. The house was decorated with several varieties of spring flowers.

Strawberries and cake were served to Mesdames Sam Swann, Byers Petty, Warren Smith, Chas. Higgins, Clarence Perry, Tom Riddle, Geo. Caple, W. S. Slayden, E. P. Allen, Dent Gibson.

J. U. G. CLUB.

When Miss Dora Marie Gaither, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Forest Gaither, entertained her club on Saturday of last week, she invited them to drive over to Cobb Park, Abilene, and the various play devices there were enjoyed to the fullest. As the happy afternoon drew to a close, a picnic supper was served to club members and their sponsor and three guests, Mrs. Dee Grimes, Betty Lou Grimes and Becky Jewel Gaither.

FUNDAMENTALIST BAPTIST CHURCH.

This old world is going to hell so fast that you can't see her for the dust. Today men want religion without the Holy Spirit; Christianity without Christ; forgiveness without repentance; salvation without regeneration; the letter without the spirit; politics without God; heaven without hell; having a form of godliness but denying the power thereof from such turn away. This alarming condition has come upon us because there are too many preachers and laymen who are cowards; afraid to preach against sin.

Next Sunday night we will preach on "The Modern Leprosy of Sin." In this sermon we will lift our voice against sin and spare not. Again we thank God that our laymen are becoming alarmed. Every Sunday night we will have a meeting for men and boys only. God has laid it on the heart of Brother Tom Huffman to begin such a work; so we want you to be there this Friday night, for startling things will be proclaimed on the housetops. Preaching every Saturday night, Sunday 11 a. m. and Sunday night. Bible study Monday night. Prayer meeting Wednesday night. Street service Saturday 3 p. m.

There were 6 baptized last Sunday and about 9 more waiting baptism. Come to our church and hear the "Old Time Gospel" preached.

Young Peoples' Bible study same program as for last Sunday.

Lindbergh Baby

The woods from the road, found what he thought was a child's foot sticking out of the ground and notified the police. The identification followed quickly.

It was apparent that the child had been killed soon after he was stolen from his crib in the nursery on the night of March 1. Whether he had been killed with calculating purpose by criminals who found it advantageous to them to get rid of the child, or whether he had been thrown there by kidnapers fleeing in panic, was not determined.

The body showed the marks of two fractures of the skull, one on the left side and the other on the right. The latter was a hole a half-inch in diameter.

Positive identification of the baby's body was furnished by Betty Gow, the nursemaid, about whom so much interest in the case centered immediately after the baby's disappearance. The garments found on the body were taken to the Lindbergh home and examined by Miss Gow there. She positively identified the shirt and the waistband as those of the baby whom she had taken care of and to whom she was devoted. The sleeping suit which the baby wore when he was stolen was missing.
