PENALTIES ON SCHOOL TAXES ARE REMITTED

If Delinquent School Taxes Paid Before Dec. 31, 1933, All Penalties and Interest to Be Waived.

To make it easier to pay delinquent school taxes, the Merkel school board at its regular meeting decided to remit all penalties and interest on school taxes that are delinquent, provided such delinquent taxes are paid before Dec. 31, 1933. This will make it possible for those who have not paid their back taxes to pay them without having to pay penalties or interest. After that date, penalties and interest will be added.

The school board is of the opinion that it is nothing but fair that these back taxes should be paid and conditions are now good enough to permit most of these being paid now. Last year only about 60 per cent of school taxes were paid. It is not fair to these 60 per cent to ask that they continue to support the schools while the other 40 per cent do not contribute their part. For that reason, the board has decided to make it easy for these delinquents to pay their taxes before December 31, and after that period if these taxes are not paid the school board plans to take steps to collect them.

School taxes for the year 1933 are now due and may be paid at the tax collector's office at the city hall. These 1933 school taxes will become delinquent after January 31, 1934; after that date penalty and interest will be added. Now is the time for all good citizens to come to the relief of their schools by paying their school taxes.

THANKSGIVING HOLIDAY.

As has been the custom in this county and other city schools for many years, both Thursday and Friday of Thanksgiving week will be holidays. The Texas State Teachers' association meets in Austin on these dates. The schools will be closed.

Prohibition Loses Out After 13 Years

Repeal of the 18th amendment and conclusion of 13 years of prohibition in America were accomplished facts Wednesday, despite unexpected defeat of repeal in North and South Carolina.

The 34th and 35th states ratifying the 21st (repeal) amendment were assured by wet votes in Pennsylvania and Ohio. Utah, on the basis of about 80 per cent of total returns, was the 36th.

The vote in Kentucky, the sixth state to vote on repeal Tuesday, was not counted until the day following and tabulations late Wednesday night showed repeal was leading 64,121 to 47,055.

SETS GOAL OF 1800 MEMBERSHIP IN RED CROSS ROLL

The season of Red Cross roll call is here.

Taylor county's appeal for a membership of 1,800 persons for 1934 is to be launched Monday from chapter headquarters in Abilene.

Chapter executives have planned the campaign this year to offer opportunity of membership to citizens of every town and community in the county, and have solicited the assistance of county home demonstration club women in extending the appeal. Miss Caroline Chambers, demonstration agent, and Mrs. Mack Alexander have been asked to assist club women in organization plans for rural communities. Miss Louis Montgomery, Abilene, is to speak before the county club council at a meeting there next week, in behalf of the roll call. The session has been postponed from Saturday, regular meeting day of the council, because of Miss Chambers' absence from the city.

Robt. B. Wylie, Taylor county chapter chairman, is to direct the roll call in Abilene, where nearly three hundred men and women will be enlisted in the campaign. Plans are to complete the canvass there by Thursday noon.

Taylor county chapter last fall and the past spring distributed 735,000 pounds of government flour to 3,918 families in Abilene and Taylor county. The chapter also distributed among 1,099 families 1,500 yards of cotton materials, 4,392 ready-made garments and 1,080 sweaters, last fall and winter. The food and clothing distribution was carried on by 475 volunteer workers.

Cold, Rain Bring Halt in Ginnings

Cold weather following last week's rain stopped cotton picking in this section for several days. Only 271 bales are accounted for in the week up to Wednesday afternoon, according to The Mail's tabulation of ginnings at the seven plants here and at Stith, Blair and Noodle. Total to date is 15,012, an error of 100 having increased the total last week by that much. Last year ginnings to date 15,675 bales.

MERKEL POULTRY ASS'N. RE-ELECTS ALL OFFICERS; PLANNING FOR FALL SHOW

All officers of the Merkel Poultry association were re-elected Thursday night at the meeting of the association. These officers are: R. A. Ellis, president; E. H. Cordill, vice-president, and Castle Ellis, secretary-treasurer. It was decided that this year the show would be open to the world and that instead of soliciting donations of merchandise from the merchants a catalogue would be published and advertising space sold to help make up the cash prizes.

Secretary Castle Ellis also made the announcement that the entrance fees would not be changed from the usual 25 cents for singles and $1.00 for pens. These entrance fees are about half the amount charged in most shows of this size, which is somewhat responsible for the large number of birds entered here each year, the main purpose of the show being to stimulate interest in pure-bred poultry throughout this section.

SUCCUMBS TO LONG ILLNESS

S. J. Roberts, 81, Resident of Merkel. Since 1905. Laid to Rest At Rose Hill.

S. J. Roberts, 81, resident of Merkel since 1905, succumbed to an illness of several months at his home here at 8 o'clock Saturday morning.

Funeral services were held from the Church of Christ at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, with Elder W. G. Cybert officiating. Interment was in Rose Hill cemetery.

Pall bearers were all grandsons: Max and Rex Roberts, of South Bend; Wade Denton, Abilene; R. D. and Claud Tyler, Abilene, and Ben Sublett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tyre Sublett, Merkel.

Squire James Roberts, who passed his 81st birthday on September 11, last, was born in Tennessee but his family moved to Arkansas when he was a child. He was married on July 28, 1878, to Miss Margaret Reed at Leon, Texas, and they moved from Ellis county here 26 years ago. Since retiring from active farming, he had resided in Merkel. One of the most highly respected and loved citizens of this section, his going leaves a marked void, not only in the family circle, but in the entire community. Having had the privilege of living a decade more than the allotted three score and ten years, he has closed his useful career here to enter on one more blessed in yonder world.

Survivors are his wife and four children: Mrs. B. T. Sublett and S. W. Roberts, Merkel, and Mrs. R. H. Denton and Mrs. R. D. Tyler, Abilene. Ten grandchildren and six great-grandchildren and two brothers, George and Jerome Roberts of Waxahachie, and one sister, Mrs. Mary Harvey of Fort Worth, also survive.

Grocer Makes Bond In Murder Charge

George Howell, Trent grocer, charged with murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Paul M. Ueckert, German farmer of Jones county, was released from the county jail, following approval Monday of $5,000 by Justice W. W. Wheeler here.

Ueckert was fatally shot late Friday afternoon in the Howell grocery store at Trent. He died of a single bullet wound above the heart. He was dead when a physician reached the store a few minutes after the shooting. Exact cause of the quarrel causing the shooting is not known.

Justice Wheeler and Constable N. A. Dowell from here went to Trent just as soon as the news reached here and the body of the slain man was brought to the Barrow Furniture company's funeral home here.

Surviving Ueckert are his wife and seven children. Howell, 60 years old, is also the father of seven children.

Stores Not to Close.

Because Armistice Day falls on Saturday this year, following the example of stores in Abilene and other cities the merchants of Merkel decided not to close their places of business Saturday. The two banks, however, will observe the usual Armistice Day holiday.

Following the meeting, President Ellis appointed the following committees: Clifford Eoff, assistant superintendent; housing committee, Marvin Smith, E. H. Cordill and Roy Miller; soliciting committee, George Woodrum, Ollie Dye, R. A. Walker and Forrest Gaither; coop committee, Bob Mayfield and Clifford Eoff; auction committee, E. H. Cordill and E. Yates Brown, auctioneers, John West and Arl Sharp, auction secretaries.

A meeting of these committees will be held in the next few days and all preparatory work will be definitely assigned.

Rev. C. R. Joyner, the family pastor, who returned from the Baptist convention at Fort Worth to hold the services, officiated for the last rites honoring this beautiful character, the services being held from the First Baptist church. Interment was in Rose Hill cemetery.

Pall bearers were: W. J. Sheppard, O. R. Dye, H. G. Neill, W. C. Neill, Ernest Meeks and R. H. FACING THE ENEMY.

Deserted by the people, Jesus for the first time in his public work forsook Palestine and led his wondering but still dutiful disciples into the foreign cities of Tyre and Sidon. The journey gave him a chance to be alone with the twelve; and it was, in a small way, a repetition of his earlier triumphs.

He hated to leave these kindly strangers. Much more he dreaded the thought of another trip through Galilee. What a graveyard of high hopes it was! Every road, every street corner almost every house and tree was alive with memories of his success. Now he must pass each one again, conscious that it might be the last time, his heart weighed down with the thought of high purposes that had brought no response, and sacrifices seemingly in vain. Small wonder that he cried out against Chorazin and Bethsaida and even his own loved Capernaum, the cities for which he had done so much. "Woe unto you," he cried in his loneliness, "for if the mighty works which were done in you had been done in Tyre and Sidon they would have repented long ago, in sack-cloth and ashes."

So the spring and summer passed, and autumn came, bringing the feast of tabernacles, which he determined to celebrate in Jerusalem. It was a suicidal resolve. The report of his dwindling influence had been carried to the Temple clique which was emboldened by the information. There were spies in every crowd that listened to him. All this he knew but it did not weigh against his resolve. This might be his last feast. He must be true to his calling at whatever cost. So he went.

We catch one glimpse of him on the Temple steps, surrounded by a partly curious, partly antagonistic crowd. It was his chance to recapture a little of the popular favor, to speak a placating word that might open the way to reconciliation; but no such thought entered his mind. The time for defiance had come. "I have offered you the truth," he cried, "the truth that would make you free." And when they shouted that they were sons of Abraham and hence already free, he replied that they were no children of Abraham, but "children of the devil."

They would have killed him then and there, but their courage failed. Give him rope and he would tangle himself inextricably. Every speech was alienating somebody. When the time was ripe they would seize him.

So they argued among themselves, and he went back once more into his Galilee.

MERKEL GETS HAMLIN GAME ON HOME FIELD

Date of Game Also Changed From Armistice Day to Monday; Shannon Out But Rest of Badgers in Good Condition.

Date of the Hamlin-Merkel game has been changed from Saturday, Nov. 11, to Monday, Nov. 13, and the locale has also been changed from Hamlin to the local field. This was by mutual agreement of members of the teams, many of whom are employed on Saturdays, and the concurrence of the coaches.

According to dope both teams are evenly matched. Last year Hamlin tossed the Badgers to a 19-0 loss, which will put a little more fighting spirit in the locals for Monday's tilt.

After losing to Roby, the Badgers stand a very slim chance to win the district but even though they are practically out of the race they are entering the Hamlin game expecting a victory.

Shannon will not play against the Pied Pipers because of an injury received last week. The rest of the team is in good condition.

Roby Lions Down Badgers in Closely Contested Tilt Here

Roby outclassing the Badgers in an aerial game won in the last few minutes to play on a pass from Beane to Myers. The pass was good for about 60 yards with Myers then running across the goal line untouched. Try for extra point failed.

Merkel outplayed their rivals in running attack but were outclassed in the air. The Badgers chalked 4 first downs to 2 for Roby, one of the latter's being made on the touchdown play.

Roby had a poor power attack, gaining only 32 yards from scrimmage while Merkel ran up 92. Not bad for a slick, and muddy field.

Gamble, field general for the locals, was outstanding in his backfield. He chalked up the two longest runs of the game, one a thirty yard gain and another 15 yards.

Merkel threatened only once when she reached the 11 yard line, but was held for downs.

Brother of Late Dr. J. F. Hendricks Dies Only Two Days Later

Moses Hendricks of Oneonta, Ala., who was 84 years old and the only living brother of the late Dr. J. F. Hendricks, survived the latter only a little more than two days. Just an hour before the funeral services were to be held here for Dr. Hendricks, his brother Moses passed away.

The following tribute to Moses Hendricks is reprinted from the Southern Democrat of Oneonta, Ala.:

"Uncle Moses W. Hendricks, one of Blount's best citizens, died at the home of his son, S. M. Hendricks, Sunday afternoon shortly after 3 o'clock. He had been seriously ill for about a week.

"Mr. Hendricks was 84 years old and was a member of the Methodist church. He was a consecrated Christian, believed in his Bible and believed in his church. He was no doubt one of the best Bible students in town. A notation on a fly-leaf in his Bible, dated October 11, 1933, says that on this date he had completed reading the New Testament and Psalms through for the fortieth time in the past eleven and one half years. This is a remarkable record, especially for a man of his age.

"Mr. Hendricks belonged to a family that was very prominent in the politics of this county for forty-five years. There were four of the Hendricks brothers, and all of them held office in this county at the same time. Moses was tax collector, Samuel was superintendent of education, John David was county commissioner and Dr. Joseph F. was county health officer. Moses was the last of them to die, Dr. Joseph having died only two days before Uncle Moses. They both died thinking the other was still living.

"Uncle Moses was the father of seven children, all of whom were dead except Sam, with whom he made his home. He is also survived by 12 grandchildren and 26 great-grandchildren.

"Funeral services were held at the Lester Memorial church Monday and were conducted by Rev. R. H. Jones and Rev. W. A. Murphree. The remains were carried to Rock Springs, his old home, for burial. A short service was held at the church in which Rev. R. A. Tuck made some very appropriate remarks.

"The services were conducted at the grave with the Masons in charge. "The pall bearers were: T. A. Maynor, J. L. Etheridge, L. B. Murphree, O. J. Tuck, J. P. Gardner and Mavin Baker."

Besides his wife, he is survived by five sons, Bruno, Irvin, Henry, Leo and Paul, Jr., and two daughters, Augusta and Bertha Ueckert.

WHISPERING ROCK

Thirteenth Installment.

Synopsis: Ruth Warren, who lived in the East, is willed three-fourth interest in the "Dead Lantern" ranch in Arizona by her only brother who is reported to have met his death while on business in Mexico. Arriving in Arizona with her husband who has ailing lungs and their small child, they learn that the ranch is located 85 miles from the nearest railroad. Old Charley Thane, rancher and rural mail carrier agrees to take them to the "Dead Lantern" gate, 5 miles from the ranch house. As they trudge wearily through a gulch approaching the ranch house, a voice whispers "Go back! . . . Go back!" At the ranch house they are greeted suspiciously by the gaunt rancher partner, Snavelly, and Indian Ann, a herculean woman of mixed negro and Indian blood. Snavelly is difficult to understand but regardless, Ruth takes up the task of trying to adjust their lives to the ranch and its development. Kenneth, Ruth's husband, caught in chilling rain contracts pneumonia and passes away before a doctor arrives. Ruth tries to carry on. She is not encouraged by Snavelly in plans to try and stock the ranch or improve it. She writes to her father in the East asking a loan with which to buy cattle. She receives no reply. Will Thane comes home to visit his father . . . and Ruth meets him. A rancher nearby decides to retire and offers to sell Ruth and Snavelly his livestock on credit. Snavelly tries to balk the deal but Ruth buys to the limit of her three-quarter interest in Dead Lantern ranch.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY—

The day came when Ruth, Ann, and David set out to obtain some Mexicans. She had told Snavelly that she wanted to go, herself, because she had never seen the town of Palo Verde. It was partly true, but she felt that she had her real reason; she wanted to be sure to get some Mexicans. He refused to go with her and she commanded Ann for an interpreter. She hoped David could stand the ride—it would be twenty miles there and back. They would have to spend the night—Heaven only knew how and where.

They had reached the highway and were perhaps a mile south of the gate when they met a covered wagon, accompanied by a horseman. A lean old Mexican with white mustachios and a wispy goatee, drove the team. Beside him sat a girl of eighteen, whose beautiful fawn-like eyes left the figure of the young horseman, as Ruth and Ann came nearer.

Ann spoke quietly to Ruth, "I think we better ask them people."

"Yes, do."

"Buenos dias, Senor," Ann addressed the old man. He promptly pulled up the horses, arose, and shifting the reins to his left hand swept off his large hat in a courteous bow.

"Buenos dias, Senoras," he replied in a voice which was mellowed graciousness.

Ann turned to Ruth. "They will be good—they come from far in Mexico—'round th' border they doan speak so."

She replied to the old man and continued to talk for some time. The young horseman caressed his tender young mustache and drew a little closer to the girl's side of the wagon. The girl caught her black mantilla about her throat with a dainty ivory hand, her large eyes lowered to the small tips of her toes which rested on the footboard under a voluminous blue skirt.

Ann talked steadily and with surprising animation for several minutes; her gestures and expression were much like those of the old man. Ruth saw that she spoke Spanish more naturally than English. Finally, she nodded toward Ruth and swept out her arm to indicate the western mountains. The old man was silent for a time after she had finished. He spoke a short sentence to the young horseman. The young man smiled, shrugged his shoulders and said a word or two, his eyes on the girl.

The old man seemed undecided. He asked a few questions of Ann, and after her replies fell into another silence.

The conversation was resumed and continued pleasantly. Suddenly Ann turned to Ruth. "They'll come. We pay them fifty dollars a month, and give them fresh beef when we butcher. The other things they eat they will buy from us. We can fix up a place in the barn fer 'em."

Apparently everything was settled. She spoke to Ann. "What have you learned about these people?"

"I doan' know th' country they come from—a ranch ten days over the line. Don Francisco was the major domo—boss—of the ranch but there was a death an' a changin' amongst the owners that he didn't like, so he left an' come to th' U. S. Alfredo was workin' at the ranch an' come along on account of the girl. They ought to know cattle work."

They were entering the foothills four miles beyond the ranch gate when the old man drew his horses to a stop. Ruth had noticed for some time that he was intently studying the mountains before him. He turned to Ann and asked in his soft, polite, Spanish, "Are these low mountains not named with the name of the wolf?"

"I have heard that once they were called so," replied Ann.

"Ah!"

Ann waited a moment but he did not continue. Thoughtfully, his eyes scanned the mountains. "Why shouldn't they be named for a wolf?" she asked.

"Ah—these mountains, but have I not heard tales of these mountains?" The old man paused again, and there was an undercurrent of anxiety in his voice as he continued. "Do I mistake myself, or is there not one small canon where it is said a reek speaks with a voice of evil. There is a tale of travelers which I remember to have heard in my boyhood—is it not true?"

Ann spoke quickly to Ruth. "He's heard about th' voice. I doan' think he'll go on."

"Oh, Ann! Think of something to tell him. I want these people—I like them. Now, Ann, I'm going to order you to tell the old man what I told you to tell him; if it's wrong to lie about the voice the blame is on me, not you. And I'm going to ask you never to go through that gulch—we'll build the road around it—and no one will ever go through there again!"

Ann's face was a study. "Well—now—" she said slowly. A moment more of thought and the Indian woman's face brightened with relief. "Why, I don't see but maybe that'll work—Gawd, Miss Ruth, I wish you'd thought of that before!" She turned to the old man and after a few minutes' talk he smiled and gathered up the reins.

"Ann, we can't let them go through! Here, you lead David's horse and give Don Francisco mine. Tell him and Alfredo that you want to show them where we are going to build a road soon—see? Take them around the gulch. I'll drive the team through and take David and the girl. I think I can handle her even if—even if she does think she hears something. Those are my orders, Ann!"

The Indian woman spoke at length to the old man. He did not seem very eager to relinquish his seat on the wagon, but already Don Francisco had placed himself under Ruth's authority. It was strange and rather unseemly to be employed by a woman, thought the old man, a beautiful American woman, who was so fragile and yet had such great strength in her eyes. Ah, these Americans! What wonders their cities must be—still, it was best to come into this country by way of work with which one was familiar.

Ruth drove the wagon with David and Magda seated beside her. She had never in her life driven a team, but it was not necessary to do other than hold the reins; the horses were content to follow the road. As they neared the brown boulder, Ruth began talking animatedly to Magda, her smiling lips close to the Mexican girl's ear. Yet she need not have done so; there was no whispering voice in the vicinity of the rock.

Snavelly was not in sight when Ruth arrived at the barn where Ann and the two Mexicans were waiting. But ten minutes later, as Ruth and her son were on their way to the ranch house (Ann stayed with the new arrivals to help them establish themselves) Snavelly rode out of the trail west of the corrals toward Ruth. She stopped to wait for him.

"Thinkin' of startin' a town on the Dead Lantern?" he asked without smiling.

Ruth laughed. "No, we only brought three. We found them on the main road—they've come from Mexico. I think they'll be good workers—they know cattle."

"What's the woman for?"

"The girl? Oh, she's the older man's daughter—I suppose she'll just keep house for them."

Snavelly looked at Ruth for a long moment in silence, his slits of eyes glinting jerkily. Suddenly he left her and rode toward the barn, dismounting at the saddle shed.

When she reached the porch of the ranch house Ruth paused with her hand on the door, and, changing her mind, seated herself on the rawhide cot.

When next her eyes sought the barn Ann was nearly at the house. The giantess went to the rear and entered the kitchen without noticing Ruth. Ruth had risen to join Ann when she saw the distant figure of Alfredo come out of the barn with a rolled mattress on his shoulder, walk to the wagon (Continued on Page Four)

ARMISTICE DAY.

On the evening of Nov. 11, 1918, in the trenches of France, the scenes were very different. For four years and a half there had been continuous fighting. It seemed that there would always be war. Would it never end?

It was cold and very dreary. A heavy mist hung low over the country and through the mist could be seen the lights of many campfires. This was something new—campfires burning at the front! How different from the previous nights, when campfires were not dreamed of, when matches struck for any purpose at all were carefully concealed under the body, out of sight of chance airplanes that might be hovering about, ready to send a bomb into their midst!

It seemed like a dream—those fires on the hill sides, those lights at the windows. They were proof that the war was over, but yet, the mind refused to accept them. War for four years and a half—and then peace. Out of the midst floated snatches of songs. They were songs of home. The war had ended—ended in triumph for the allies. They were going home. That, I think, was one of the deepest meanings of Armistice Day for the American troops in France.

In America, it seemed as if the people would go mad. Their boys were coming home. Many of the boys, who had left in good health, were coming back, injured for life. Many were not coming back at all. They were sleeping in Flanders' field and many a mother waited for her son in vain. "Let us always remember the deeds of these brave men who met their death in the trenches, and the other men and women behind the lines—who laid down their lives for freedom and peace."

DEFEAT.

No one is beat till he quits. No one is through till he stops. No matter how hard failure hits. No matter how often he drops. A fellow's not down till he lies. In the dust and refuses to rise. Fate can slam and bang him around. And batter his frame till he's sore. But she never can say that he's downed. While he bobs up serenely for more. A fellow's not dead till he dies. Not beat till no longer he tries. Badgers, beat Hamlin!

PEP RALLY.

After the Pep Rally during the chapel period on Friday, November 3, the conversation between Jessie Margaret Berry and Neil Durham was overheard by the Society Editor. N: "Jessie Margaret, what did you think of the Pep Rally this morning?" J. M.: "It was all right, except for one thing." N: "What was that?" J. M.: "They forgot to mention your sidestepping—Did you notice Mary Helen Lancaster's face light up when they yelled: He's grand, He's fine, He knows how to plunge that line, Boaz!" N: "I certainly did. What was Milton grinning about when they yelled: He's a peach, He's a dream, He's the captain of our team, Yea! Shannon!" J. M.: "They gave the little boy a great big hand when he tried to make a speech too." N: "Did you notice when Annie Lee made the threat about having to make a speech if you didn't yell, that Coach didn't yell?" J. M.: "But of course, his speech was a good one. By the way, Mr. Burgess forgot to mention about 'paying the fiddler if you want to dance.'" N: "Can you 'imagine' Mrs. Hay-and toss it in. Immediately behind him came Magda, an olla on her head and a half-filled sack in her hand. She also placed her load in the wagon and returned to the barn. By the time Don Francisco emerged with two chairs and an armful of smaller things, Ruth was well on her way.

"Why are you putting your things in the wagon?" she called to Alfredo who came out of the barn carrying a copper tub as she approached. The young man placed the tub in the wagon, regarded Ruth with a shrug and remained silent, his fingers smoothing his mustache.

"Snavelly was standing just inside the door. "What did you say to them?" demanded Ruth. "Well, I fired them, that's what I did! Do you think I'm going to have a lynx, undependable bunch of trash like that on this place? They tell me they won't work an' are fixin' to leave; then you come down here and they let on they will work—what can you do with people like that?"

Ruth did not reply, but she went to Magda and taking her arm pointed to the ranch house. "Come, Magda." The Mexican girl's eyes questioned her. Ruth smiled and led Magda toward the house. The three men followed.

At the kitchen door, Ruth turned and addressed Snavelly. "You men will have to stay out here," she smiled. "I want to talk to Magda with Ann's help—it's going to be a purely feminine conversation. Excuse us, please."

Snavelly took a step forward, then stopped. "Ann," said Ruth when she had led Magda into the kitchen, "ask her is it not true that she loves Alfredo. Don't embarrass her—make it just between us girls."

But Magda was very much embarrassed. She drew her mantilla about her face and twisted one foot. But she nodded.

"Good! Now, Ann, you tell her that if she and her people stay and are good workmen, that I'll help her and Alfredo build a little house, and that I'll give them ten acres of land which is not included in the partnership but is part of some that I own. Tell her that she and Alfredo and her father can have this land forever. And tell her that they are working for me, not for Mr. Snavelly."

Magda was transfixed with joy and embarrassment when Ann ceased to speak. The girl took an uncertain step toward Ruth. Suddenly, she curtsied almost to the floor and kissed her hand, as though she were a great queen.

"Well," said Ann, "I can't tell you what she said 'cause I don't know th' fancy words in English—anyhow she thinks you're powerful good. But she says she can't tell Alfredo nothin' 'cause he ain't asked her to marry him yet. But she says that she'll see to it that they stay here forever an' work much."

"Ask her why they were going to leave." Before the Mexican girl had ceased to reply, sudden fear filled Ann's face. The Indian woman did not translate Magda's words; she left the kitchen, crossed the back porch and entered her room.

Magda looked at Ruth, puzzled. "The man say we go." Ruth smiled and shook her head. "No go, Magda."

"No, no, no—ah, mil, mil gracias, Senora!" There is a tradition in southern Arizona and northwestern Mexico that the summer rains begin on the Day of San Juan—the twenty-fourth of June. Especially is this tradition strong in the San Jorge Valley, for it is here that the venerable Ambrosio Vega is said to have kept rain records for six and forty years. The discerning still say they can make out his records scratched in the adobe on the left of the altar niche—in the ruin which was once his home.

CHURCH SERVICES

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

We had a good crowd Sunday morning, considering the inclement weather. Our pastor emphasized the importance of putting first things first—that we will attend to all business, go to day school regardless of the weather, but if it is cold or rainy on Sunday we all with one accord begin to make excuses.

Our superintendent, W. J. Largent, has been with us for several Sundays; he will be away with his show cattle for about a month now, after which he will be at home for the winter.

The training course conducted by Brother Joyner was concluded Friday night with several taking examinations.

BAPTIST W. M. S.

The Baptist W. M. S. met in regular monthly business meeting Monday. We adopted as our watchword Joshua 1:9. "Be strong and of good courage; for Jehovah is with thee." It was decided to give a shower to Brother Lee and his wife of Sweetwater. He is now our beneficiary. It will be given to them Thanksgiving day. Our offering for Buckner's Orphans home was valued at $75.00. Next Monday is Royal Service study.

SENIOR-PREP B. T. S.

Subject: "Young womanhood at the feet of Jesus."
Part 1, Vivian Davis.
Part 2, Clara Frances Largent.
Part 3, Coirene Morrison.
Part 4, Mary Helen Lancaster.
Part 5, Jessie Margaret Berry.
Everyone is urged to be present next Sunday evening at 6 o'clock.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Sunday School at 10 o'clock. Any who are not attending Sunday School elsewhere are cordially invited to come join us.

No preaching service, as this is pastor's Sunday at Baird.

Prayer meeting Wednesday evening. J. J. Russell, Jr., Supt. R. A. Walker, Pastor.

METHODIST NEWS NOTES.

The pastor being away at conference, there will be no preaching service at the morning hour and members will visit with other churches in the city. Sunday School as usual.

CHURCH OF CHRIST.

Services for next week as follows:

dent and secretary presented the business of the class with dispatch and order. Then an interesting social hour and a lovely program was much enjoyed by all, especially the vocal solos so sweetly given by Misses Anne Lee Blake, Dorothy Shannon and Mary Jo Russell, with Miss Christine Collins at the piano. Needless to say, the little ladies will be welcome again.

Mrs. Sam Butman read a poem of love and appreciation, written to her by her brother, Latrobe Vaughn, which was so much enjoyed that she was asked to give a second reading. An interesting and unique cake contest provoked the minds of the cake makers. At the tea hour a delightful sandwich plate was served to twenty-three active class members and five visitors. Mesdames Patterson, Coats and Russell, assisted by Mrs. Claude Dye, proved most gracious hostesses. Each guest departed happy to have enjoyed the hospitality of this home.

S. for both young and older at 6:30 p. m. It is a good program; come and hear it. We will have a good warm fire for you to enjoy and be comfortable. Prayer meeting Thursday 7:30 p. m.

Our assembly time will soon be here. It will convene at Cisco Nov. 29 to Dec. 3.

Mrs. Ola Bolls, Pastor.

NORTHSIDE MISSIONARY BAPTIST CHURCH.

In spite of rainy, bad weather last Sunday, we had our all-day service and all of us enjoyed the sermon by Brother Shepherd and the special songs by Brother and Sister Shepherd.

We urge every member of our church to be at Bible School and church service next Sunday morning. "Why churches die and preachers sigh" will be the subject for Sunday morning. "A shocking surprise" awaits every member of the church. "The crisis" has come; the test of discipleship is here.

The church will come face to face Sunday morning with the most tremendous responsibility ever yet experienced in its short history. Every member will be asked to make a voluntary decision and much depends on that decision. The future welfare of the church is involved; souls are hanging in the balances. Let every true loyal member of our church be present.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

The first cold spell of the season cut the Sunday School attendance to only 479 here last Sunday. On the previous Sunday the six Sunday Schools reported 835 present. On the same Sunday a year ago the attendance was 789.

Epworth League Will Sponsor Box Supper

The Epworth league will give on Friday night, November 18, 1933, a "Box Supper" at the Methodist church. All of the young people of Merkel are invited to attend.

Girls, don't forget to fix a pretty box as well as a good one because this is a good chance to catch some of the boys.

The time is 7:30; everybody be there. There will be a program of comedy, dialogue, songs and other things. The supper will be prepared by some of the future cooks of America.

Don't forget 7:30, Nov. 18, 1933, the Methodist church.
