Merkel Mail turns 90 this week

by Cloy A. Richards

This week marks the passing of an important milestone for Merkel and The Merkel Mail. On April 12, 1889 the Merkel Mail published it's first edition and 90 years later we are still around.

The Mail is Merkel's oldest business. By going through old editions of the Mail, one could easily see that the paper has gone through times of severe economic problems, and to my knowledge, never missed an issue.

My family and I arrived here eight months ago and since that time we have strived to give the readers of the Mail a more credible source of news and information pertinant to this town. We have also tried to improve the appearance of the paper and the way the news is presented.

The inherent problems of producing a small weekly newspaper are many. In order to obtain information, an editor or reporter, at times, must step on toes to obtain the facts. The problem is that the toes you sometimes step on belong to friends and acquaintences. But if it means missing an event, or not being able to obtain facts, we will continue to pursue our job in order to meet the public trust that any newspaper in town is required to meet. In a popularity contest, most newspaper editors would rate right in there with the neighborhood dog that keeps turning over your trash cans.

In the year to come the Mail will continue to work to provide the news, do what it can to stimulate the local economy, carry on our attempts to do something about the depressed agricultural community on a local level and to help the town progress

A town must have a certain amount of growth to certain amount of business growth to replace the businesses that close. In other words, a certain amount of growth is necessary to maintain the levels of population and businesses that citizens of Merkel are accustomed.

We will continue to make improvements on the Mail. We will work to expand our coverage of local events and to tell the readers of the Mail about the events that will some way or another affect their lives.

My family and I appreciate the support we have received from local citizens since our arrival. Through your support we have managed to up the average weekly circulation to 1685 paid customers, in increase of 23 percent over eight months ago. We have also enjoyed the support of the business community and have managed to up the average size per issue to 10.9 pages per issue, an increase of 1.8 pages per week.

The results of the increased financial support can be seen by the readers through increased photographic coverage of news and events as well as increased news coverage in general.

The management of this paper is still not satisfied that we are doing the best job that we can do. We will still strive to improve our product, and it's financial footing as well will strive to improve Merkel and it's financial footing.

It is the only way we know to insure that 90 years from now, some other editor will have the chance to review his efforts as well as review the city's efforts.

In light of recent business closings in town and in light of a generally unhealthy economy across the nation, it is time that the citizens of Merkel do everything they can to take care of their own.

The bicycle tire is spinning at about 2,000 r.p.m.'s and at this rate it will spin easily in her hand. (Bottom Center) Sr. Rick Howes tries in vain to swing the suitcase in a straight line. The suitcase was equipped with a gyrascope that prevented fluid movement. (Below) Carol prepares for the landing of an egg bounced off a "Cake" made of synthetic rubber. This time she was lucky, she caught it.

"Previews of Progress" a live science show put on by the General Motore (G.M.) company made a stop at Merkel High School Friday.

Carol Wisniewski, a G.M. representative, went through a number of experiments that included a chemical cake, synthetic rubber manufactured in a pop bottle, a talking computer, making Mike Sims, a Merkel senior, "float" on an air bearing platform, a laser that "danced" on a movie screen to the sound of Boston's "Don't Look Back", a model of the solar powered Moon Rover, and an experiment in which Rick Howes, also a Merkel senior, was to make a suitcase move in a straight line. Rick found this experiment a little frustrating and quite impossible. The suitcase housed a gyrascope from a B-52 bomber that kept the suitcase moving in anything but a straight line.

Carol is one of eight groups that tour the country giving the G.M. presentation that has been seen by nearly 40 million students and adults in the U.S.

The presentation is a non-commercial science stage show, in non-technical language seeking to inspire more students in scientific and engineering related fields. It also is designed to show how modern research benefits our society.

Stenholm testifies before House Agriculture Committee

The following is an excerpt from testimony before an Agriculture Subcommittee in which Congressman Charles W. Stenholm questioned Dr. George R. Hall, Commissioner of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, concerning the current fuel situation.

Mr. Stenholm. Since the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978 passed, the complicated nature of the law is causing in my district a terrific decline in drilling activities; because those who we need to depend on to get out and find more oil and gas are diminishing. I think we need to spend a lot more time on that. We need to find a way to encourage production in the belief that is the only way we are going to have supplies of fuel for our agricultural producers at a price we can afford. Honestly, we are having hundreds of wells in my district being shut-in today. These are oil and gas wells that could be producing today. This is because of the rules that you people are spending so much time and effort putting together which are so complicated that our oil and gas producers cannot understand them. My question is: Are you devoting any time to making it a little simpler for those people we are depending on in this country to produce the oil and gas?

Mr. Hall. I thank you for that question. I bring up an area that greatly concerns me. One way that we have been trying to deal with the problem was to produce some manuals in sort of simplified how-to-it type explanations. I also have been part of a group that has been going around the country, including Texas and elsewhere, trying to explain the regulations. We have been setting up hot lines at the Commission to try and answer questions and try to clarify the nature of the regulations. Nonetheless, they are complex. This is due in part, I believe, to the fact that the complex nature stems from the law itself which is complex. In this connection, I was interested in this recently. I shared a platform with Senator Bennett Johnston. There were a lot of questions being asked. There were a lot of complaints about the large number of categories in the Bill. Senator Johnston stood up and said that he was not going to entertain those kinds of comments and that he had put in several of the categories himself and he had done that deliberately to the point of trying to limit the authority of the FERC not to treat certain kinds of gas in ways that Congress wanted it treated. So, I think there is a point to spelling things our so that they are not uncertain. Congress, Senator Johnston pointed out, put fairly complex requirements on the FERC because they wanted things handled certain ways and they did not want any uncertainty about how it was going to be done. I guess what I am trying to say is this. One way to reduce uncertainty is to be specific and then, of course, it becomes complex.

Mr. Stenholm. Do you believe you are making some progress with the industry in overcoming this problem that has literally caused them to shut down

Mr. Hall. I would say that I think we are making some progress in simplifying our regulations. We are reducing the number of forms. I would note that it is listed as one of the major goals that this Commission has announced to Congress for this coming year. I think that we are making progress in reducing some of the forms. We have tried to simplify some of the regulations. And, as we work with the Law and as we get some experience with it, we see ways that we can reduce the reporting burdens and simplify things. I think we can go a long way toward this.

Mr. Stenholm. I was not here last year, but I will say that, if we in Congress have made your job a little tougher, I would appreciate your coming back with recommendations as to how we could simplify the Act to make your job easier.

Mr. Hall. I appreciate your concern.

Mr. Stenholm. Sometimes it is a little hard for the farmers in my district to see. We as farmers have a hard time understanding this complex energy matter. It is hard to see our natural gas going to the East at a price that sometimes it has been getting and seeing coal coming back to us at a price that is continuing to go up. I want to close by emphasizing this. I hope we are going to look at the simplification so that we can get on with producing more.

Best buys at Texas supermarkets

Best buys at Texas grocery markets this week include carrots, potatoes, eggs and turkey, according to Gwendolyne Clyatt, a consumer marketing information specialist.

Also, frozen or canned fruits and vegetables may offer budget prices, she says.

Mrs. Clyatt is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University

This week's price-quality trends are the following: FRESH VEGETABLES -- Low prices appear on carrots, potatoes and onions. Price drops on broccoli and cabbage make them better buys. Also, prices on head lettuce are down and quality has improved.

POULTRY - Buy fryers on special for use later in the summer. Also, turkey offers attractive prices, and eggs are available at bargain prices

GROCERY MARKET AISLES - In vegetable buying, consumers may find that canned and frozen vegetables are more economical than fresh. Grocery features include canned applesauce, pears, vegetable oil, cake mixes, tuna fish and peanut butter.

FROZEN FOOD CHESTS -- Specials include vegetables, dinners and ice cream.

FISH - Fresh fish is limited, but frozen packs have attractive prices.

DAIRY - Specials include milk, sour cream,

yogurt and several cheeses

BEEF - Prices are rising, but some features appear on blade chuck roasts, round and chuck steaks, ground beef and beef liver.

PORK - Prices are see-sawing, but features do appear on Boston butt roasts, end chops, semi-boneless hams and smoked picnics.

CONSUMER WATCHWORDS: Read labels before buying. First item on the ingredient list is main item in the package as a rule.

For example, in comparing hash notice that some labels read "meat and potatoes," while others say "potatoes and meat." "Potatoes and meat" hash is mainly potatoes, and the price is much lower than "meat and potatoes" hash

Letters to the Editor

I would like to ! - his means to thank an the people who helped support my recent campaign - I received much encouragement and other help as well as financial aid. I am not ashamed of the recent voting turn out - to the contrary, a record voter turnout was recorded in Tye and the turnout in Merkel was larger than some in the past.

I am proud of the way in which Barbara and I conducted our campaign never will I have to be sorry for any action we took or words we said. We based it on truth and honesty as we will any future actions we plan. Our facts will still always be available to anyone interested in

Am I disappointed in the results? Well, to be honest, I'd have to say yes! If I hadn't wanted the position I wouldn't have tried for it. But all I can say is that the incumbents had a better campaign plan than we did!! I wish them well in their next terms of office. My only hope is that they will represent all the taxpayers in the school district.

The campaigning may be over and all the votes in, but I will still be an involved citizen, workng for the betterment of the Merkel Independent School District.

Again, let me say "thanks" to all the people who did so much for both Barbara and

> Thank you, Vicki Spurr Tye, Texas

Dear Editor, I am writing this letter to thank everyone who supported Vicki Spurr and I (both morally and financially) in our campaign for school board. Running for that office was a rewarding experience in that I met many nice people and gained a wealth of information. I am very proud of the record voter turnout in the Tye box and the large turnout in the Merkel box. This shows that many people who may not have been involved in our schools before wanted to be counted now. I would like to ask these people to stay involved since our main concern is the future of our children. All of the facts Vicki and I have will remain open and we will continue to be involved, with our main concern being the best education for the children. In conclusion, I wish our opponents much success in their new terms of office and hope they will work for the good of the whold district. Again, Thank you for your support and Although I wasn't in on the school issue, I'm glad to see that Merkel residents can get aroused over something. Most of us are pretty apathetic and that includes me. I suggest that if you want to make Merkel a better place, sit down and make a list of the things you would like to see changed, or new things started. Then check the ones YOU would be willing to be involved with. Let us pull together for Merkel. I'm glad I live here.

The Starr Nursing Home of Merkel has obtained approval of an Orientation and Training program for its staff of employees from the Texas Department of Brenda J. Quinn, Administrator of the 45 bed long-term care facility announced today that a Training Coordinator has been designated and that orientation, job specific training and on going in-service training of personnel began on March 26, 1979. "Each employee who has any contact with residents of the facility is enrolled in the training classes. This includes nurses aides, dietary personnel, social service staff, maintenance and laundry employees" she said. The designated coordinator for training the staff is Sharon Allen, R.N. who holds the required degree or license and experience to qualify as instructor. A total of 30 personnel of the various day and night shifts at the facility are receiving the training.

"Knowing that our staff is specially trained for. their duties gives them more prestige with patients and their families, and, we will all feel more competent in our jobs," said Brenda Quinn. "Our goal is to serve the individual resident's psychological, physiological, and social needs to the best of our ability.

The required hours of training in the basic program varies according to the staff position held. Nurse aides, for example, must develop the required competencies by successfully completing five hours of orientation and 35 hours of job specific training. All aides are then required to receive a minimum of 3 hours of continuing education each 3 months thereafter. Records of each employee's training hours are kept by the facility.

Approval of the program by the Texas Department of Health verifies its compliance with requirements of Senate Bill 9 passed in 1977.

Stenholm named to post Corresponding Sec., Betty Allday; Treas.,

Congressman Charles W. Stenholm was recently elected Treasurer of the Balanced Budget Caucus in the U.S. House of Representatives. In his position of leadership on this panel the Congressman plans to explore ways to limit the growth of government spending and work toward a balanced bud-get. He believes that deficit spending must be eliminated if we are to maintain the fiscal integrity of this Country. He is sponsoring a constitutional amendment to accomplish this

For years Congress has succumbed to the temptation for spending to solve our nation's problems. As additional demands have been made on the Federal bureaucracy, it has become inefficient, expensive, and unwieldy. We are now finally beginning to realize that many of our social problems cannot be solved by throwing money at them.

Congressman Stenholm plans to look close ly at the total cost of the Federal government and not just at the often superficial figures pre-sented in the budget. The cost of our regulatory agencies is about $5 billion a year and yet their regulations require $150 billion in compliance costs for business. A'ls o Congress throughout the years has routinely voted in-creased benefits without considering the costs. As a result future Congresses will be required to pay for our present obligations. It has become vital for legisla-tors to consider the effect their decisions will have on the total cost of running our society.

It is time to more carefully analyze the expenditures of the public sector and eliminate those outlays that are unproductive. Mr. Stenholm believes society should rely more on individual initiative and less on government

We haven't always had a problem in this country with overregulation by government. But we sure have one today. The first regulatory law wasn't enacted by Congress until 1887, the 100th anniversary of our Constitution-and 111 years after the Declaration of Independence was signed. That law, the Act to Regulate Commerce, created the Interstate Commerce Commission which was the first and for 27 years the only independent regulatory agency in the Federal The Federal Trade Commission was next, established in 1914. Then came other regulatory agencies: the Federal Power Commission, 1920; the Food and Drug Administration, 1930; the Securities and Exchange Commission, 1934; the Federal Communications Commission, 1934; the Civil Aeronautics Board, 1938 For more than 80 years, from the time of the first federal regulatory law in 1887 until this decade, government was concerned primarily with economic regulation Most of the mechanism for economic regulation was in place by the beginning of World War II.

But a wholly new type of government regulation came with the beginning of the 1970s: social regulation. Establishment of such agencies as the Environmental Protection Agency, 1970; the Consumer Product Safety Commission, 1972; and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, 1973, have made it a whole new ballgame.

The CAB, for example, has jurisdiction over a few hundred firms. The ICC over a few thousand, But EPA, CPSC and OSHA have an impact on hundreds of thousands of firms, non-profit organizations and state and local governments.

Let me show you the impact of this new field of regulation. The Federal Register is the book in which new government regulations are published.

In 1955 some 10 thousand pages were published each year in the Federal Register. By 1970, 15 years later, that number had grown to 20,000. But by 1977, following the advent of social regulation, the number of pages in the Federal Register had mushroomed to 70,000.

There is, indeed, reason for genuine concern about excessive and growing regulation of our lives by government. Earlier this year, as Vice Chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, I held hearings on government regulation.

As a result of the hearings I recently introduced legislation that speaks to some aspects of over-regulation. And I intend to introduce further legislation in the months ahead. A study conducted for my hearings revealed that government regulation will cost business, taxpayers and consumers

$102.7 billion in fiscal 1979. I have introduced a bill requiring the President to submit to Congress each year recommendations for reducing the cost of regulation by up to 5 percent. These cost-cutting recommendations will go into effect within 60 days unless they are disapproved or modified by Congress, and their effectiveness will be audited by the General Accounting Office. Witnesses testified at my hearings that conflicting federal regulations often put them in impossible situations. The owner of a sausage company testified: "In our plant, USDA (U.S. Department of Agriculture) requires that our sausage kitchen floors be washed repeatedly for sanitary purposes, yet OSHA (Occupational Safety and Health Administration) rules that floors must be dry. What is a man to do?"

I have introduced a bill that would have the President seek out federal regulations that work at cross-purposes and eliminate the one which makes the least sense.

I am also going after some of the specific paperwork and red tape that accompany regulation. For example, the Federal Housing Administration, the Veterans Administration and the Farmers Home Administration each have their own individual mortgage and note forms. I've introduced a bill to require them to adopt a universal form.

I have formed a Joint Economic Committee staff task force to search out further regulation reducing initiatives. In future months I expect to offer additional legislation in my effort to cut the government's regulatory giant down to size.

Keller Sponsors

Law On Sales Tax

State Representative Ray Keller, Duncanville, has announced his sponsoring of legislation aimed at redistribution of the city sales tax "to allow cities to regain the tax revenue that is rightfully theirs in the first place.

Explaining, Keller said, "The city sales tax is voted on by citizens of a local municipality but it is promulgated, administered and dispersed by the State. My bill calls for redistributing this money on the basis of population rather than where it is collected, under present law. Now, when someone shops outside his home town, the 1 percent portion of the tax does not return to the citizen in the form of services. It goes to another city for services, means the shopper is footing the bill for another city and represents blatant taxation without representation.

Research by the National Garden Bureau indicates that many beginning gardeners have only a hazy idea of the mature size of vegetable plants. Also, beginners often fail to leave suf ficient space between rows.

All it takes is one successful garden to make each succeeding vegetable garden a breeze. Yet, first gardens are, more often than not, overly-large, crowded and poorly arranged, with tall plants in the front and frequently harvested vegetables stuck way in the back Your next vegetable garden can be as pretty as a picture, sensibly arranged and of a practical size. Use this National Garden Bureau plan as a model and be sure to

The 300 sq. ft. National Garden Bureau garden is 20 × 15 ft., about the size of a 1-car garage. It is designed to accommodate 13 kinds of vegetables and will supply most of the fresh vegetables needed by a family of three. It can be weeded, watered and harvested within an average of two hours' time each week.

Seeds for this garden will cost about $6.50 yet, from it, you can harvest $150 or more of delicious vegetables, depending on the length of your gardening season.

You might not care for some of the vegetables shown in the plan. Substitute others of comparable plant size. Seed packets and gardening books can advise you. Your County Cooperative Extension Service offers free bulletins on vegetable gardening and lists of locally recommended varieties.

Depending on the length of the gardening season in your area, you can plant "succession crops' as soon as you have harvested the vegetables shown in this plan. Dear Editor, In the past there have been statements in your paper about the Tye PTO wasting funds on attorneys instead of spending it on the child-

I would like to know where these people get their facts? Mine reflect that in the past three to four years the Tye PTO has raised a total of $15,000.00 of which approximately $12,000.00 has already been returned to the children, either through the teachers or direct improvements to the physical facilities.

The teachers have an account from which they may order supplies of teaching aids at any time. This account is periodically replenish-

Improvements from the PTO include work on the parking lot, new playground equipment, a commercial fryer for the kitchen, air conditioning and etc.

The Tye PTO voted to spend money on an attorney, but it was the consensus of the group that this money would indirectly benefit the students. I would hope that in the future when people make such statements they would check the facts and figures. As you can see from the above figures the Tye PTO is not letting the children suffer.

We are happy to welcome Martha Whisenhunt as a parttime teacher for the Resource Room. She also spends some of her time with the Merkel Elementary Resource program. Our students will benefit very much from this additional in-Learning games can be developed by using the eggs and hiding messages inside. We hope everyone enjoys the Easter season as much as we are here at school.
