Board promotes Dudgeon to new post; Open Houses set at tonight

The Merkel school board last week promoted Merkel High coach Roy Dudgeon to a newly created position of assistant head coach due to the health problems of Merkel football coach Al Mitts.

MISD superintendent Bill Everett told The Mail Tuesday he felt coach Mitts may need some assistance until he has fully regained his health and that the decision was made based on that fact.

The board also discussed personnel but personnel contracts will not be decided upon until the March and April board sessions.

In other school related news, MISD will be holding open houses at the Elementary and middle school tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at both campuses. A Merkel PTO meeting will be held at the Elementary followed by the open house.

Also, MISD enrolled six more students last week and the current student population stands at 1,340 students, up at least 90 from the start of the current school year.

The field for the three positions for the Merkel school board grew by one last week as David Carter tossed his hat in the ring in Place 7, where he will oppose incumbent Ray Pack and challenger Larry Hellums. In Place 6, incumbent Jack Riney faces the challenge of Earl Laird and Place 5 incumbent Jack Ferguson is facing the challenge of Jerry Dawson. Filings for those elections closed Wednesday after press deadline and The Mail will print a final list of candidates in both the school and city election next week.

Also, the district reported an 83 per cent current tax collection rate and after another month, collections will be out of local control as past due accounts are collected by the Taylor County Central Appraisal District.

Extension service offering many "back to basics" seminars tonight

The Taylor County Extension Office and the department of continuing education at Hardin Simmons will be sponsoring a series of meetings and lectures concerning a wide range of subjects.

Back to Basics in Agriculture and Home Economics seminars will be held March 8 at 6 and 8 p.m. at the Muddy Center at HSU. The cost for the classes is $5 for 1 to 4 of the available classes.

Those classes include Pecan management presented by Dr. George McEachern, a state extension horticulturist; Cutting your grocery bill and coupon clipping by the Taylor County extension staff; Beef cattle-Basic production practices by Dr. Jerry Cowley, area extension beef specialist; Gardening by Dr. Thomas Lee, extension plant pathologist.

Also, Financial budgeting and record keeping by Don Newhouse, a FFA supervisor; Heating and cooling alternatives by Weldon Echols, an extension energy specialist; Landscaping by Everett Janne, an extension horticulturist from Texas A & M University; Quick and easy sewing by Roberta Walters of the County extension office; Animal Damage control by Bruce Leland, an animal damage control specialist.

More information is available by calling the Extension Office.

Barnett & Malone win tourney

by C. M. Seymore

The Big Country Domino tournament held in Merkel had surprising results. A team of Traveling Barnett and Dangerous Dan Malone took the first place trophy without too much serious competition. They defeated the team of B. B. Toombs and Tub Hogan in the finals. Third place went to the team of ex-county commissioner J. E. McDuff and Doodie Moore. Fourth place went to Tobe Blair and C.M. Seymore. Blair said his partner was running way too many fives for them to have finished any higher.

Many of the old favorites were knocked out by the $5 entrance fee before the tournament started.

The championship team was almost disqualified for Malone making one of his shoulder movements when Barnett cut Malone's last play, which was strictly against the rules. A quick meeting of the UIL rule committee allowed the play, claiming Malone was only knocking a fly from his shoulder. This upset Hogan very much who quickly lobbed his double six and for all practical purposes, the game was over. Welljack Toombs, who got in too late for the tournament because of competition in Houston, said he thought it was a legal move but Odell Dickerson, another spectator said he thought Hogan had just seen the handwringing on the wall and had to kick up about something.

Dinner was served by the Dairy Bar and after a good meal, tempers were back to normal and the tournament was finished without anymore hassel.

Ski Nebraska, what do you call Mondale now?, Hance...more

by Cloy A. Richards

Did you know that you can ski Nebraska?

I found out that was true in Austin Friday while helping judge the Nebraska Press Association Better Newspaper Contest.

I also learned another fact that I had suspected all along. The University of Nebraska football team is the local team for every paper in the state, because they entered photos of the Nebraska team in the local photo category, a bunch of them did, so they must be the local team, everywhere in the state.

We had a nice time at Lake Canyon, played a little golf at Landa Park in New Braunfels, which is the best public golf course I have ever played.

Snow two weekends in a row is a little strange this time of the year. Nature is surely playing tricks on itself. The daffodils are coming out and the other flowering shrubs are going crazy, and then at night, it decides to snow.

Gary Hart made it two in a row over the weekend and now writers must come up with something else to call Walter Mondale, if some of you haven't already come up with a different name for him.

Mondale can no longer be called the front-runner because he hasn't been lately.

....Once your down in Austin, Bob Wills is still the king.

That statement is true, until the once every two years of politicking that we seem, somehow, able to survive. This season is no different.

The Texas race they are talking about in Austin, Dallas, Houston and those areas is for John Tower's Senate seat, and the three democrats seeking it. They are as different as Texas democrats could possibly be.

I am leading to a fact that won't sit well with a lot of faithful Democrats in this part of the country, in that Hance, the Lubbock-based U. S. Congressman, would probably be our most effective choice here for the U. S. Senate, of the three Democrats.

Hance, in my opinion, cannot win this statewide race because of geography. Hance will, in my opinion, beat the other two candidates in voting West of Interstate 35, but, there will be enough of the rest of the state, where the population is, to carry either Krueger and Doggett.

It may be a sad fact, but your vote for Hance, while it will be worthwhile in the light that will express your opposition for the other two candidates.

This may be one of those sad but true political facts, but there aren't enough votes outside of Hance's strength area for him to win, unless a bloodbath occurs between Doggett and Krueger that will leave no survivors. If Hance had strong support in the metro areas, he could win, but he doesn't and probably will not.

It may all be wasted thoughts anyway.

Their republican opponent will be Demo... I mean Republican Phil Gramm of College Station, and he has a lot of support statewide, especially with his new Republican friends.

Turner tagged for Tye chief's post

Merkel patrolman Al Turner was hired Monday night by the Tye City Council to become their new police chief. Turner replaces Merkel resident Henry Guenther as chief.

Merkel Police Chief Ray Pack has already started interviewing prospects here to replace Turner. Turner was interviewed last Monday by the Tye council and was the only applicant they interviewed.

Guenther said he was resigning to devote full-time to a business here.

Trent Lions, FHA sponsoring fingerprinting at Home State

The Trent Lions Club and the Trent FHA are sponsoring an Operation Childfind finger-print campaign Saturday at the Community Room of Home State Bank.

Finger-printing will take place from 9 a.m. until noon and there will be no charge.

Operation Childfind is a national, non-profit organization that runs centers to help the families of missing children and has successfully lobbied with the federal government and state agencies for more cooperation in finding missing children.

The organization recommends that children from birth to 18 be fingerprinted and parents must accompany children through the 8th grade to take part in the Trent campaign.

The Trent Lions Club and the Trent FHA is encouraging parents of Trent children, or any children that have yet to be fingerprinted, to attend the Saturday session. The guardian will be given the fingerprints for safe keeping and copies will not be made for the sake of privacy.

Masons host Merkel-Trent students

The Merkel Masonic Lodge honored the Merkel and Trent National Honor Society members March 5 with a covered dish supper.

The supper was held in conjunction with Public School Week, March 5-9.

Serving as guest speakers were

District Deputy Grand Master Charles W. Westbrook of Hamlin, MISD superintendent Bill Everett and TISD superintendent Roy Neff.

The honor students demonstrated their candlelighting ceremony for the Mason and Eastern Star members and Worshipful Master Charlie Baker thanked the sponsors; Mrs. Joan Walker of Merkel and Mrs. Henry Brady of Trent for sharing the ceremony.

Baker told The Mail Tuesday that the Masonic Lodge here hoped to make the dinner an annual event.

Lambda Beta beauty pageant is set with a new twist- a boy's category

The theme for this year's Lambda Beta Beauty Pageant will be "Keeping the Dream Big" and this year there is a new twist, a boys category has been added.

3rd grade.

The entry blank is on Page 2 of The Mail and will be available from the school and Hammond Insurance Agency. The pageant will be held April 14.

Entry forms may be returned to the school or Hammond Insurance.

Local businesses will be contacted in the near future and a child may designate a sponsor on the form, but is not necessary because Lambda Beta will assign a sponsor to each entry.

The "So What" generation

by Russell McAnally

Some good things do happen in church. Last Sunday, at Pioneer Memorial United Methodist, when Billy Ray Riley and David Ray came forward to receive the morning offering, I noticed that David had on a new pair of boots, or they looked new to me. Thinking about that new pair of boots sent my mind in retreat to the years of the mid twenties and thirties. Those are some of the years people call, "The Good Ole Days."

Back in those days, when a boy or girl got a new pair of shoes, almost all of the community knew about it. Most of the time the new pair of shoes came at about the same time as the first cold spell. There was a pair of "Sunday" shoes but those were worn only on special occasions.

A new pair of shoes brought with it a feeling of being loved or that the shoes was a reward for being good or something.

Not long ago, a relative of mine bought a new car. We didn't go riding in it nor did we test the horn or kick the tires. We just said it was pretty and that it wouldn't last as long as those built 20 years ago. A friend of mine recently moved into a new $100,000 house with no more ceremony than we did long ago when we got a new cotton sack for picking cotton. That $100,000 house would have bought at least twenty new homes 50 years ago and every house would have seen a housewarming and presents by all of the people of the community.

There is trouble everywhere when the wonderful things and experiences become commonplace. I call this the "So What" generation. I tried to tell a grandson what it would mean to graduate from college and get on with living a good life and he said, "So What?" Someone says they made a trip to Europe of the Holy Land and we hear "So What?" A new car was a thrill but now so what, a new tractor brought out all of the farmers, but now sympathy is extended because of the high prices. One of my sons served two different tours of duty in Vietnam and now he has retired and is trying to get settled in as a civilian. He has been hurt more than one time by people on hearing of those two tours of duty by word or action said, "So What?"

I remember eating a banana last week and thinking that banana tasted more like the bananas 50 years ago than any I has tasted in years. They sometime lie around the house and turn black with old age. In those long ago, gone by days, you could buy a dozen bananas for ten cents, but didn't have ten cents with which to buy the bananas.

We may have lost the excitement and wonder of something new and I thought I heard a faint "So What?" The so-what attitude also misses out on gratitude and sharing with others the blessing of the new things and the wonder of experiencing the excitement of a new pair of shoes or a wonderful tasting banana.

Fortnightly group listens to poetry of former Merkelite

The Fortnightly Study Club met in the home of Mary Collins Feb. 28 with Aileen Knight as co-hostess. During a business session, conducted by club president Alwyn Sandusky, plans were finalized for the guest day program, a style show, to be given March 13 at Heritage Hall at 4 p.m. Members are permitted to invite guests.

Program chairman Alice King announced that the program on Literature would be presented by Mildred Hamm who would read poems written by a former Merkelite, and Grace Lee Brown would read poems of long ago.

Miss Hamm read several selections from a book of poems published many years ago by her cousin, Melba West Foy, who now lives in Baird. Melba is remembered by many friends here as the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. West, both of whom were pioneer residents of Merkel. Her mother, Grace West, was a charter member and past president of the Fortnightly Study Club and she was instrumental in its organization in 1934. A special tribute was paid to her memory at the first meeting of our club last year. Her father, Henry West, a former Merkel mayor, was connected with West Company Hardware and Grocery Store, one of the towns' leading businesses, for all of the years it was in existence.

Her book, "The Least of These", is composed mostly of short poems covering a variety of subjects. Some, such as "Mother 'O Mine" were tributes to family members. Some, such as "Modern Oratory" were humorous. This poem was written before the days of television about the radio commercials.

Mrs. Brown read several selections from famous English and American poets. She chose selections from the poems that most of us were required to memorize when we were students. The English poets from whose works were selected include Keats, Kipling, Hugo, Wordsworth, Tennyson, Shakespeare, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, Robert Browning and Christine Rosetti. American poets included Frost, Longfellow, Poe, Whittier, Bryant and Holmes.

Refreshments were served to Mrs. C. M. Brown, Miss Mary Collins, Miss Avis Deavers, Mrs. S. C. Dixon, Mrs. Mack Fisher, Miss Mildred Hamm, Mrs. John Hammond, Mrs. Comer Haynes, Mrs. Orvel Hill, Mrs. Buster Horton, Mrs. Carl Hughes, Mrs. Allen King, Mrs. C. B. Knight, Mrs. Curtis Rister, Mrs. Perry Rogers, Mrs. Phillip Pursley, Mrs. Ed Sandusky, Mrs. C. M. Seymore, Mrs. Andy Shouse, Mrs. Aaron Sudderth, Mrs. Alf Walla, Miss Maurine White and Mrs. Ray Wilson, members, and one guest Marie Reeves.
