By Becky Warren
 Six men, ranging from 18 - 31 years of age, were arrested early Tuesday morning at the Hitchin' Post bar for disorderly conduct. It seems that Deputies Tommy Binford and Randy Johnston had their hands full when a fight erupted in the parking lot. At press time all six of the men were still in the Garza County jail.
 The office received 52 calls during the past week.
 On October 27, a 42 year old male was arrested for DWI and was released on a $1,500 bond.
 On October 29, a 22 year old male was arrested for reckless driving and no driver's license. The charges were not accepted by Justice of the Peace Pct. 2 Dee C. Justice. Also a 23 year old male was arrested for public intoxication. The charges also were also not accepted by Justice of the Peace Pct. 2 Dee C. Justice. According to J.P. Justice the charges on both counts were not accepted due to lack of proper affidavits.

Plains Co-Op looks at Post for new site

by Wesley W. Burnett
 Post is among several South Plains cities being considered by Lubbock's Plains Co-Op Oil Mill for an expansion site, which will employ approximately 50 people and cost an estimated $30 million to build.
 Citing increased regulatory problems in Lubbock, Plains Co-Op chief executive officer Wayne Martin said in a Lubbock Avalanche-Journal (10/29/95) article that the board of directors voted in October to expand the operation to another city.
 Mayor Jim Jackson and city manager Rick Hanna met with Martin October 19 and were well received. Martin explained to Jackson and Hanna that the company is looking for a 640 acre site, situated adjacent to a strong railway connection and with major highway access.
 Hanna also reported that the company is seeking a site which will include cooperative working arrangements with local government. "We feel we have demonstrated we fit those conditions quite well," Hanna emphasized. "We will do everything we can do to secure this new industry for Post." Mayor Jackson added. "Right now, we don't really have anything specific to work with, we are waiting for details from Plains Co-Op."
 Martin said that he expects to pick a site in January. Among the cities included in the search are Hale Center, Littlefield, Snyder and Post. "We've had several offers from area cities," Martin told The Post Dispatch in a telephone interview Tuesday.
 Hanna sent a letter to Martin last week, outlining the strong interest of our community toward meeting the needs of Plains Co-

Op. "We are looking for an appropriate site for them, and we have gotten terrific cooperation from the Chamber of Commerce and everyone we've asked to help," Hanna added.
 The Plains Co-Op is owned by 77 cotton gins spread throughout West Texas. It has been located in Lubbock since 1936, with its current mill at 34th and Avenue A generating more than $100 million in annual sales. The plant now employs approximately 200 people.
 Martin also said that the new plant could be the site for moving the entire Lubbock operation at some future date.
 Martin said the Co-Op is looking for other sites for expansion due largely to the stifling regulation and an anti-business atmosphere in Lubbock. One ingredient is the storm water run-off tax being levied on property owners in Lubbock based on square footage of roofing. With large warehouses, this can be a serious problem.

'Nostalgia Night' lights up stage at Tower Theater Saturday

Don Caldwell's popular "Nostalgia Night" will light up the stage at the Tower Theater Saturday night, with another outstanding musical show on tap. The fun begins at 7 p.m. and is ideal entertainment for the whole family.
 Tickets are on sale at Lily Dale's, Norwest Bank, the Hotel Garza and at the door.

 The Tower Theater board of directors is seeking public support to purchase sound and projection equipment. One of the fund raising projects is the $25 donation, which names a seat for the donor. Call 495-3461 or 495-3297 to assist in this project.

City gets 35% sales tax increase

Two recent reports from the State Comptroller point to a healthy economy in Garza County, with a 35.1 percent first quarter 1995 increase over last year in the sales and use tax analysis. The latest city sales tax rebate reflects the continued sales strength with a check for $13,999.91, compared to $11,944.71 last year. The 17.2 percent increase in sales is for the reporting month of August.
 Total rebates to the City of Post through the October payment are $168,440.60, 11.26 percent increase over the same period in 1994 of $151,381.79.
 The sales and use tax analysis shows a total of 204 reporting outlets, compared to 129 last year. The dramatic increase is primarily related to the opening and continued operation of Old Mill Trade Days, whose vendors report sales tax directly to the comptroller.
 Gross sales for the first quarter 1995 are reported at $11,953,136, compared to $8,845,880 for 1994.
 "Since the inception of the Main Street Project and the development of tourist attractions in Post, the economic impact of tourism is now clear," Post Chamber of Commerce president Jim Plummer commented. "Every dollar spent in Post by visitors has a multiplying affect on all businesses. It is obvious that we are thriving, for example, there are no vacancies on Main Street. Not many small towns in West Texas can make that claim."
 "The Chamber of Commerce is proud to support and be a part of the third largest industry in Texas and we intend to continue finding new ways to attract tourists to Post," Plummer added.

Will citizens have to get id cards to own a vehicle?

by Wesley W. Burnett
 Every now and then an issue pops up which demands attention and inspection. Such an issue came to light a couple of weeks ago when I received a notice from Garza County Tax Assessor Collector Laura "Chita" Hataway concerning new vehicle registration requirements beginning November 1.
 New rules issued by the Texas Department of Transportation, the agency of state government which Mrs Hataway and her staff represent here through their administration of vehicle registrations, state that "Texans who request title transactions in counties using the Registration and Title System (RTS) must provide their social security number."
 Whoa! Just a minute! Hold the phone! Time out!
 Must provide their social security number?
 I thought I had fool proof assurance that this travesty of individual liberty could not be enforced on citizens of this great and wonderful nation, home of the brave and the free. I turned to a copy of the federal law, known as the Privacy Act of 1976, which states that "no government agency" may deny benefits or privileges to anyone refusing to disclose their social security number. I gave a copy of this to Mrs Hataway, who was not in at the time. We then placed a call to our state representative David Counts, who referred us to his assistant in Austin.
 Friday I received a set of documents from Austin, including a ruling by the Texas Attorney General, and amendments to the federal privacy act which appear to make exceptions for "driver's licenses and motor vehicle registration." However, none of these documents cite Constitutional authority for allowing state government agencies to demand such identification as a social security number.
 So, I ask my original question one more time, "What Constitutional authority is there to require Texas citizens to provide a government issued identification number in order to own or operate a motor vehicle?"
 I don't believe such authority exists.

Texans cast ballots on proposed constitutional amendments

by Wesley W. Burnett
 Early voting at the courthouse continues through Friday for the 14 proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution. Those not voting early will then be able to cast ballots Tuesday, November 7 from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. at precinct voting locations.
 This week we continue our series on the proposed amendments, giving detailed information based on the actual wording of the amendments, rather than a summary. Last week we explained amendments one through seven.
 Although my opinion is exactly that, my opinion, readers will be exposed to the amendments and hopefully make an informed decision at the time of voting.

Santa rolls into Old Mill Trade Days on covered wagon

When Santa Claus arrives at Old Mill Trade Days on Saturday, November 4, he will not be dropping in by helicopter or parachute or on a motorcycle...just like last year, Santa will roll into Old Mill Trade Days in an authentic covered wagon.
 With only six shopping days left before Christmas, Old Mill Trade Days, is decked out for the holiday season and packed with bargains from more than 500 vendors.
 Visitors to the November 3-5 Old Mill Trade Days will also be treated to entertainment Saturday and Sunday, with country and western sounds by Jackie Fox in two performances on the Rainmaker Amphitheater stage on Saturday beginning at noon. Sunday afternoon will feature gospel sounds by Jackie Stone, The Lighthouse Five, The Tylers and Sabrina Sherrod.
 Entertainment is great, but shopping with Old Mill Trade Days vendors offering thousands of unique crafts and antiques is what most visitors seek during the monthly event.
 There's plenty of free parking and admission to the park is only $1 per person. Once inside visitors delight in the wide variety of food choices with convenient benches and rest areas. The park is open 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Preparations for this weekend's Old Mill Trade Days found Thurman Maddox (left) and Marvin Butler paintin' and fixin' and cleanin' this week.

Are you at risk for bone disease?

More and more Americans, as many as 25 million have some degree of osteoporosis. Osteoporosis is a crippling bone disease that is age-related, but not caused by old age that develops slowly. So slowly that it often takes years before you realize you have it. This disease is sometimes referred to as the "silent disease". Bones become brittle and often crack. Your wrist might break, you may get shorter because the bones in the spine collapse, or you might even develop a hump on your back.

Who is at greater risk of developing osteoporosis? *Women: osteoporosis is eight times more common in women than in men. *Women who have gone through menopause, particularly through early menopause (prior to age 45). *Caucasians and Asians: of the various races, blacks have the lowest incidence of osteoporosis in the American population. *Low calcium intake: 75% of Americans women age 18-30 consume less calcium than the Recommended Dietary Allowance. *Family history of osteoporosis. *If you are rarely active. *If you are underweight. *If you smoke. *If you drink heavily.

There is no cure for osteoporosis, and that is tragic, because you can take steps to prevent it. We never outgrow our need for calcium. The Food Pyramid tells us that everyone should consume 2-3 servings of milk products daily. Servings do vary for teenagers, older adults and pregnant or nursing mothers. Primary calcium sources include: milk, cheeses, milkshakes, frozen desserts, yogurt, and pudding. Secondary sources include: dried beans, oysters, salmon, sardines, shrimp, and tofu. Most fruits and vegetables are major sources of vitamin A and C but are poor sources of calcium. Foods from the grain group provide carbohydrates and little calcium.

Most people in this country grow up drinking milk and learn in school that milk helps build strong bones and teeth. But what do you do if you find out from your doctor that you are having trouble digesting milk, or lactose intolerance? Lactose intolerance occurs when the lactose or sugar in milk passes through the digestive system without being digested and absorbed. Your doctor might recommend managing the problem by adding enzymes. Be sure to check with your physician before adjusting your calcium intake. Listed below are some easy ways to keep dairy foods in your diet: drink milk in one-cup servings or less with a meal or snack, choose cheese, try yogurt, treat yourself to half-cup servings of ice cream, and look for lactose reduced or lactose-free milk in the grocer's dairy case.

Always remember to talk with your physician about your personal dietary intake.

Extension programs serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, sex, color, religion, disability or national origin.

Bring Your Spouse Along!

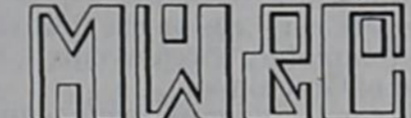

Bringing along a spouse on a business trip is no longer the free first-class vacation it used to be, thanks to tighter tax rules, but that doesn't mean that one's better half has to stay home. Tagging along can still be a good deal.

What you can't do anymore is charge a spouse's expenses freely, unless he or she is a company employee eligible for travel expenses on his or her own. It's no longer enough for a spouse to co-host a cocktail party for customers, for instance.

But you can still deduct most of the trip's cost -- those items the company would have paid for anyway. You can deduct the cost of a single hotel room (and pay a little extra on your own for the double), the cost of the car you'd have rented anyway (even if a spouse uses it) and the cost of your single airfare (even if you get a family discount fare). A spouse's meals, of course, are not deductible.

We'll help you dot the i's and cross the t's when it comes to taxes. We've got the knowhow you need at:

Family dance Saturday with Nashville star Deanne Timberlake

Deanne Timberlake and her band Mesa will perform Saturday night, Nov. 4 at the Post Community Center. The whole family is invited. The dance starts at 8 p.m. with a $5 cover charge for each person. The proceeds from the dance will go to the Post Recovery Center. No alcohol is allowed.

Recently back from Nashville, Deanne Timberlake has just released her first album of original material titled "That's Just the Way I Like It!". Deanne, formerly of Dickens, Texas, has made herself known in West Texas and Eastern New Mexico by performing as a single in clubs and private occasions, over the past several years.

Since completing her album, Deanne has endeavored to promote her career and her album to its fullest potential. In an effort to reach larger audiences with her music, Deanne realized that she must put together a band. The most feasible option was to find a band that was already put together to back her up.

Deanne searched for months to find the band that she felt best suited her own musical style and preference. The selection was not difficult in the end because MESA, a band out of Lubbock, outshone them all.

A four piece band, consisting of Dennis Barnes on bass, James Holcom on drums, Rick Ward on lead guitar, and Rickie Condren on keyboard, Meas is, without a doubt, the most versatile country dance band in West Texas.

DeAnne, backed and complimented by the music of Mesa, delivers a high energy performance, aimed at getting the crowd on the dance floor early and keeping them there 'till last call. The band prides itself in a large repertoire of music, excellent musicians, and outstanding lead vocals.

"Light is like a liquid in many ways. The very words we use to describe its effects, 'drench', 'leak', 'flood' and 'seep', to name but a few, are indeed the same ones we use to apply to the actions of liquids.

For me, light is like a liquid in that it quenches my inner thirst, a deep down craving to capture its effects on film; to show in a photographic image the sometime subtle, sometimes dramatic interplay of light and object; in short 'to paint with light.' My 'palette', called the grey scale, can project, not reality, but rather my vision of reality and convey my emotional responses to my subjects and their interactions with light. If my images cause you to respond emotionally or in any other way to sense the drama that I felt when making them, then I have succeeded."

Libertarians urge restoring Constitution for the U.S.

The Libertarian Party of Texas executive committee has issued a resolution calling for the restoration of the Constitution for the United States, specifically demanding Congress rescind the Emergency Banking Relief Act of March 9, 1933 and for a presidential proclamation ending the related state of national emergency.

"We have been under a national emergency for 62 years," Texas Libertarian Party chairman Jay Manifold declared, "it is time that we face the reality that the great depression is over." The resolution points out that U.S. Senate Report 93-549 admits that the emergency has resulted in authorization rule without regard to normal constitutional process.

Using the vast and almost unlimited power authorized by the 1933 amendment of the War Powers Act of 1917, the nation has seen a continuing erosion of individual liberties and disregard for Constitutional limitations, both from the executive, judicial and legislative branches of government.

"Careful study of the 1933 legislation authorizing the president and treasury such broad powers," Manifold added, "explains why there is such widespread federal and state government abuse. Ruling by executive order has become the primary instrument of government control, not unlike King George's royal decrees."

Manifold cited the executive order to use tax funds to bail out Mexico, over the objections of Congress, as one example of such decrees. "With the Emergency Banking Relief Act as his foundation of authority, the President has no obligation to abide by the Constitution," Manifold insisted.

"The President can, at his discretion, declare bank holidays, seize financial assets of citizens, declare national emergencies and suspend Constitutional rights as he pleases," Manifold emphasized. "Obviously, if we continue in a declared national emergency, we will also continue to lose our freedoms."

Meals on Wheels needs help...

To the people of Post: Meals on Wheels needs your help.

Most people may not know that the government doesn't pay for all the cost of the meals. We have to make up 30 percent.

As times have gotten harder our donations have fallen off. So we don't get the money that we used to.

In turn everything else has gone up in price.

We are having to pay someone to deliver for us on Tuesdays. We need a volunteer every Tuesday.

We need donations, surely you can do one or the other. If everyone in Post would just send one dollar a month we wouldn't have to worry.

This program is a good cause, please help.

Thanks,
Twana McCrary
Director Meals on Wheels

Editor's note: This is a very important service to our elderly and "shut-ins," and your Garza County United Way campaign funds Meals on Wheels. Please consider the importance of your contribution and how United Way pools resources to help local organizations continue serving our community.

Girl Scouts get help from United Way...

The Post Girl Scout program is one of the organization's sponsored by the United Way of Garza County.

The United Way helps us to support and maintain our Girl Scout House in Post. Without their help we would not be able to have this special place.

Last year our membership was 90 girls and 15 adults. Our program is offered to girls going into kindergarten through 12th grade. Our kindergarten girls are called Daisies, their leader is Penny Mason. They meet on Thursdays at 3:30.

One activity that they have done this year is to make pompons and megaphones and they enjoyed playing cheerleaders, they will be having a day outing soon.

First grade through third grade are Brownies. Our first grade leader is Shellee Odom. They meet on Tuesday at 3:30. They have done several activities such as making bird feeders, hiking, and learning about manners. Her assistant leaders are Grace Piaz and Kristi Odom.

Our second grade leader is DeDe Smith and they meet on Thursdays at 3:30. They started the year with a 31 scoop salute ice cream party and are currently working on a "Contemporary Issue" program "Staying Safe Preventing Child Abuse."

Our third grade leader is Kristy Rutherford and her assistant is Gloria Guerrero. They meet on Mondays at 3:30.

They are teaching the girls to cook and will be making scrapbooks.

Fourth through sixth grade are called Juniors. Their leader is Julie Gonzales. They are planning to attend workshops on computers, and jewelry making, offered by the Caprock Council. They meet every other Friday.

Our seventh grade troop are Cadettes and their leader is Carol Tobias and her assistant is Jennie Dobitos. They meet on Tuesdays at 5:00. They have been to the Science Spectrum and skating last month and they attended a workshop about the law and women's careers in law.

Jaquita Blevins is the leader for the 8th and 9th grade Cadettes and 10th grade Senior Girl Scouts. They meet the first Tuesday of the month at 6:00. They have had a kidnap breakfast and they also attended the badge workshop on the law. They have planned several trips and a service project for the following month. Pat Cruse and Debbie Martin are assistant leaders.

Our program welcomes new members any time of the year from girls to adults.

We count on our United Way support. Please help us and make a donation to the Garza County United Way.

Woman's Culture Club holds meeting

by Katharine Trammell

The Woman's Culture Club met Wednesday, October 25 at 2 p.m., in the home of Iva Hudman. Joyce Strubhart was co-hostess.

Giles McCrary presented a very interesting program of videos of his travels in eastern Siberia. Traveling in that area is by an icebreaker ship, the bow of which is six foot thick, solid steel.

Mr. McCrary was on the first ship that completely circumvented the island of Greenland.

One small village had a museum of very artistic carvings made of the ivory from walrus tusks.

Blue fox farms were one of the means of livelihood of people in this area.

Generally speaking, English is the second language. A few words of English and a smile usually span the language gap.

Delicious refreshments were served to guest, Giles McCrary, and to club members, Nona Lusk, Ruby Kirkpatrick, Donna Craig, Maxine Earl, Ruth Hall, Bebe Boren, Barbara Hardin, Doll Haire, Dorace Wilson, Mary Neff, Joyce Strubhart, Iva Hudman and Katharine Trammell.

The real story on medicare reform

by Stephen Chapman

Congressional debates are supposed to inform the public, but often they do nothing more than distract. The Medicare debate has rarely risen above Democrats accusing Republicans of wanting to rob the elderly to fatten the rich and Republicans accusing Democrats of endangering old people by bankrupting the program. You've heard all this before, maybe?

When the back-and-forth gets less cliched than that, it focuses mainly on the amount of money the GOP proposes to save over the next seven years — whether $270 billion is far too much or just barely enough. All this amounts to an exercise in missing the point. You'd never know that the House and Senate have agreed to a basic restructuring of our biggest health care program, with huge potential benefits for the entire system of medicine in America.

The problem with Medicare is that it costs a lot today and will cost far more tomorrow. It is the third biggest single item in the federal budget, swallowing $180 billion a year, with expenses rising 10 percent annually. It also generates health care inflation by increasing the demand for treatment and minimizing the need for doctors and patients to control expenses.

Controlling expenses is the chief problem in American health care. We know how to stamp out polio, prevent heart disease, treat cancer, transplant organs, you name it. We even know how to extend medical insurance of one kind or another to everyone (as we do for the elderly through Medicare). What we don't know how to do is assure universal coverage and the most advanced medical treatment in the world without going through money like a drunken sailor.

Fixing that flaw was the ostensible goal of President Clinton's health care package. It was rejected, though, out of well-founded fear that it would strangle doctors and hospitals with red tape, deprive people of choices by effectively forcing them into health maintenance organizations (HMOs), lead to rationing of treatment and, in the long run, increase costs rather than reduce them. Unfortunately, the issue didn't expire when the Clinton plan did.

Those who oppose the GOP Medicare plan fling the charge of hypocrisy, arguing that Republicans are doing to the elderly what Clinton wanted to do for everyone — push them out of traditional fee-for-service medicine into HMOs in order to save money, never mind if the quality of care suffers. The proposal, you see, lets beneficiaries opt out of traditional Medicare coverage in favor of private insurance or HMOs. The New York Times' story on Thursday's House vote said the measure would "curb Medicare spending and encourage the elderly to turn to private managed-care organizations."

So what's the difference between Clinton's approach and this one? A crucial innovation that would allow the elderly to keep the same doctors they have now without paying a financial penalty, while giving them powerful incentives to eliminate unnecessary expenditures. It's called the Medical Savings Account, and it holds considerable promise.

Here's how it would work. A Medicare recipient would get the money the government now spends each year on the average beneficiary (currently about $4,800). Then she could buy a catastrophic insurance policy covering only those expenses above $3,000 and put $1,500 in a special account to pay for expenses below the deductible.

This has several virtues: It gives patients the freedom to go to the doctor they choose; it reduces their maximum out-of-pocket exposure; and it gives them a stake in eliminating unnecessary spending, since they would get to keep any money left in the MSA at the end of the year. Contrary to myth, MSAs would be a winning bargain for the sick as well as the healthy.

Critics assume the GOP plan will drag the elderly into HMOs, but the assumption is mistaken. Peter Ferrara, a health care expert at the National Center for Policy Analysis who helped draft the legislation, estimates that at least half of the people in Medicare will choose MSAs instead — for the simple reason that it offers the best deal. No more than 20 percent, he says, will join HMOs.

That's a good thing for the rest of us, because HMOs give the individual patient no reason to economize on medical care and have proven a weak antidote to our money troubles. MSAs, on the other hand, restore many of the cost-control incentives needed to rein in health care expenditures without compromising quality.

If the plan works, it would be a great improvement in our health care system, preserving the best of the status quo at an affordable cost. There are no guarantees, but give the Republicans points for boldness.

Do we really want to put people before profit?

by Walter E. Williams

Nation of Islam Minister Louis Farrakhan says one of the demands of the Million Man March on Washington was for the government to create an environment where "people are put before profits." Since profit demagoguery is a deceptive tool used by scoundrels all over the world, irrespective of ethnicity, let's de-mystify the concept of profits.

Let's get its definition out of the way first. Profits represent the residual claim earned by producers. It's what's left over after all other costs — wages, rent, interest — have been paid. Roughly six cents of each dollar companies take in represent after-tax profits. By far, wages paid are the largest part of that dollar, representing about 60 cents. Far more important than simple statistics is the social role played by profits: Profits guide resources to their most highly valued uses as determined by people's wants and desires.

Remember when Coca Cola introduced the "new" Coke? People were outraged. Who do you think made them bring back the old Coke? Was it Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala? Sorry. It was the specter of negative profits (losses). Profits make sure producers correct mistakes and find out what most consumers want.

After Hurricane Andrew's destruction, people in the Miami area wanted more plywood. What made lumber mills increase production and lumber yards get the trucks out and head south? Again, the specter of profits — this time, the windfall variety. All that plywood heading south meant plywood prices rose in other locations, perhaps discouraging less valued uses of plywood, such as home improvement projects. That's wonderful. After all, rebuilding and repairing homes after a hurricane is a more highly valued use of plywood.

Profits also force producers to behave themselves. If producers waste input, their production costs will be higher, and they'll charge prices higher than what consumers are willing to pay. Therefore, the company will make losses (negative profits) and go out of business. As a result, the company's resources become available to someone who'll put them to a better use. That's if there's no government bailout, as in the case of Chrysler Corp., enabling the company to continue squandering resources.

If we care about people's wants, rather than beating up on profit, we should beat up on non-profit makers. Government schools fit the latter category. They squander resources and produce a shoddy product while administrators, teachers and staff earn higher pay and perks with customers (taxpayers) picking up the tab. Unlike other producers, educationists don't face the rigors of the profit discipline, and hence, they're on easy street.

How about the U.S. Postal Service? It provides shoddy and surly services, but the management and workers receive increasingly higher wages while customers pay higher and higher prices. Again, wishes of customers can be safely ignored because there's no bottom-line discipline of profits.

Without any question, the major problem of people in general, and blacks in particular, is the non-profit-making sector of our economy. In any poor neighborhood, you'll see some nice cars, some nice clothing and some nice food but no nice schools.

Here's Williams' law: Whenever the profit incentive is missing, the probability that people's wants can be safely ignored is the greatest. It's not just the post office and schools but delivery of police services and garbage collection as well. More than anybody, poor blacks should know this well.

Is it constitutional to require i.d. cards?

Further, I am discouraged that our elected officials, including our own state representative, would approve such legislation without first demanding that there is Constitutional authority for the proposed law. It seems elementary to me, that all legislation should meet Constitutional muster... otherwise, it places the burden on law abiding citizens to challenge Constitutionality in the courts, which is an expensive proposition.

Let us suppose, for the sake of discussion, that I do not have a social security number... I believe I am correct in stating that there is no law requiring a citizen to have such a number... unless that citizen wishes to be considered for specific government benefits pertaining to the Social Security System.

So, having decided that I am not interested in obtaining any benefits from the government, other than the benefit government is required to provide by guarding, defending and insuring my Constitutional rights, I go to the courthouse to transfer a title of a vehicle I might decide to purchase.

I am pleased to report that Mrs Hataway is every bit as unhappy about this legislation as I am, and declared that she and her staff will give citizens the opportunity to volunteer their social security numbers, but will process title applications regardless of whether or not a social security number is provided.

Mrs Hataway's concern for Constitutional rights is to be commended. She did say, however, that when the title application arrives in Austin, the Texas Department of Transportation will probably return the application unprocessed. Then, the ownership will not be complete, in that the new owner will not have a registered title," she explained.

Now what? Will I then be required by the state to apply for and obtain a social security number in order to prove my ownership of a vehicle? Or, will I just have to walk away from the counter, happy to have a bill of sale or some other document to prove my ownership? Say, for the sake of discussion, that I decide that obtaining a social security number is not in my best interest, and so therefore, I do not comply and simply go about my business.

Now, I have this vehicle with an invalid registration sticker. That's okay, I couldn't get one because I do not have the identification number required by the state.

Then one of our friendly law enforcement officers notices I do not have a current registration sticker on my windshield. They stop me, go through the usual routine, write out a ticket, ask me to sign it... which I might or might not do, and I'm on my way... except now I will get a demand letter from one of our Justices of the Peace to appear and pay the fine for not displaying a valid vehicle registration sticker.

So, I go before the judge and explain my predicament... I don't have such a sticker because the appropriate state agency refused to provide me such a certificate on the grounds that I did not have the required identification in the form of a social security number.

So, now what? The judge, or jury, then has to decide whether or not I am required to produce such a number, even if I don't have one.

The judge has a problem. He or she has to ask the important Constitutional question... does the state have the authority to require citizens to be labeled with an identification number in order to own and operate a motor vehicle?

Let's take this ridiculous situation to another level... what if, for the sake of discussion, the state decided that instead of a vehicle, a citizen would have to have a social security number in order to obtain title to property? Such as buying a house or a boat or farm or tractor... well, you get the idea. If the state has the authority to demand an identification number for registration of a vehicle, then the same power can be used to demand that number for any or all property citizens might own or purchase.

Is that what makes Texas and America the greatest nation in the world? I think not.

That kind of government interference in the private lives of citizens is taken right out of the book according to Karl Marx, and it is the purest form of socialism and state tyranny that started a revolution in the 1770s in this country.

It is a sad state of affairs that we have come to requiring citizens to show an identification number in order to live a normal life.

Now back to the hypothetical situation... if I refuse to obey... and will not show the required number... I will then eventually lose my "privilege" to drive a vehicle legally in Texas. It is obvious if that happens, that I will be unable to operate my business or earn wages as I am qualified to do otherwise. For as is obvious to all, the state can destroy a person's ability to survive in our time by denying the right of mobility.

I've thought about this a lot... and I thought about how my great and great-grandfathers would have reacted in their time in a similar situation. If Bill Burnett or Ethelbert Samuel had been stopped on the streets of Bonham by the sheriff or deputy, who armed with the power of law and weapons, demanded to see the proof of registration on the wagon and mule, I can just imagine the response those two staunchly independent and proud Southern gentlemen would have given, and it wouldn't have been "yes, sir, right away sir." The ridiculous nature of such a scene is just as silly today as it would have been then.

Well, mules and wagons have been replaced with cars and trucks... but is there really any difference in their relative importance?

For the modes of transportation are no less important now than then... the difference was that 100 years ago our elected officials understood the limitations of government and valued the ideals of individual liberty.

No one then would have dared demand that a mule or wagon be registered. No government dared to imply that citizens had to have state approval to go from one place to another.

How far we have come, how close we are to achieving Marxism. Maybe Kruchev was right after all... we will end up burying our liberties with the shovel of righteous socialism.

All in the name of curbing welfare fraud. Well, the best way to curb welfare fraud is to abolish welfare. And since state approved welfare is nothing more than socialism, why do we allow it to continue? That question will have to be answered at the voting box. In the meantime, I restate my question... "what Constitutional authority requires a citizen to provide an identification number in order to own or operate a motor vehicle?" I hope our elected officials are pondering this critical question.

Amendments

Amendment No. 8

Section 1. Section 18, Article V, Texas Constitution, is amended by amending Subsection (a) and adding Subsections (e) and (f) to read as follows:
 (e) The office of Constable in Mills County is abolished. The powers, duties, and records of the office are transferred to the County Sheriff.
 (f) The office of Constable in Reagan County and the office of Constable in Roberts County are abolished. The functions of the office are transferred to the County Sheriff. However, the office of Constable is abolished under this subsection only if, at the statewide election at which the constitutional amendment providing for the abolition is submitted to the voters, a majority of the voters of Reagan County or Roberts County, as applicable, voting on the question at that election favor the amendment.

Section 2. The following temporary provision is added to the Texas Constitution: Temporary Provision. The abolition of the office of constable in Mills County under the constitutional amendment proposed by the 74th Legislature, Regular Session, 1995, providing for the abolition of the office in that county takes effect January 1, 1996. This provision expires January 2, 1996.

Section 3. The following temporary provision is added to the Texas Constitution: Temporary Provision. The abolition of the office of constable in Reagan County and in Roberts County under the constitutional amendment proposed by the 74th Legislature, Regular Session, 1995, providing for the abolition of that office in those counties, takes effect January 1, 1996, if the conditions of Subsection (f), Section 18, Article V, as added by that constitutional amendment, are met. This temporary provision expires January 2, 1996.

No. The Texas Constitution is crammed with county exceptions such as these, and make for a nightmare of trying to figure out which is where, and what is what. Either the office of Constable is necessary for effective law enforcement in our counties, or it isn't. To use the Constitution for special situations such as these are administrative and legislative matters, not Constitutional. Another example of the silliness of most of these proposals.

Amendment No. 9

Section 1. Article XVI, Section 70 (c), of the Texas Constitution is repealed.

Section 2. This proposed constitutional amendment shall be submitted to the voters at an election to be held November 7, 1995. The ballot shall be printed to provide for voting for or against the proposition: "The constitutional amendment allowing investment of money from the Texas growth fund in a business without the business's disclosure of its investments in or with South Africa or Namibia."

Yes. Investment should be based on sound economic and market principles, not political. This Constitutional article should never have been approved in the first place. A big however, should be the caution that governments generally do not do well as investors, and revenue from taxes should always be at the very lowest necessary to maintain the limited and proper role of government. We should look for ways to cut government spending before worrying about investing excess tax collections.

Amendment No. 10

Section 1. The following temporary provision is added to the Texas Constitution: Temporary Provision. (a) This temporary provision applies to the constitutional amendment proposed by the 74th Legislature, Regular Session, 1995, abolishing the constitutional office of state treasurer.

(b) The constitutional office of state treasurer is abolished effective September 1, 1996. The transfer of specific constitutional powers and duties to the comptroller of public accounts under the constitutional amendment takes effect on that date. The statutory powers and duties and the property and other obligations of the state treasurer are transferred to officers and agencies of state government in the manner that the legislature provides by general law.

No. It just doesn't seem right. I am concerned that by eliminating the Treasurer's office, we would be placing too much power in the State Comptroller's office.

Amendment No. 11

Section 1. Article VIII, Section 1-d-1, Subsection (a), of the Texas Constitution is amended to read as follows:

(a) To promote the preservation of open-space land, the legislature shall provide by general law for taxation of open-space land devoted to farm, ranch or wildlife management purposes on the basis of its productive capacity and may provide by general law for taxation of open-space land devoted to timber production on the basis of its productive capacity. The legislature by general law may provide eligibility limitations under this section and may impose sanctions in furtherance of the taxation policy of this section.

Section 2. The following temporary provision is added to the Texas Constitution: Temporary Provision. (a) The changes to the law made by Chapter 560, Acts of the 72nd Legislature, Regular Session, 1991, are validated.

(b) This section does not authorize a property owner to claim a refund of taxes paid unless the tax payment was challenged as provided by law before the effective date of this amendment.

 No. In a free society, it is not the proper role of government to legislate or restrict private development of property. Another gross example of socialistic controls favored by central planners in Austin.

Amendment No. 12

Section 1. Section 1, Article VIII, Texas Constitution, is amended by amending Subsection (d) and adding Subsections (g) and (h) to read as follows:

(d) The Legislature by general law shall exempt from ad valorem taxation household goods not held or used for the production of income and personal effects not held or used for the production of income. The Legislature by general law may exempt from ad valorem taxation:

(1) all or part of the personal property homestead of a family or single adult, "personal property homestead" meaning that personal property exempt by law from forced sale for debt; and

(2) subject to Subsections (e) and (g) of this section, all other tangible personal property, except structures which are personal property and are used or occupied as residential dwellings and except property held or used for the production of income.

(g) The Legislature may exempt from ad valorem taxation tangible personal property that is held or used for the production of income and has a taxable value of less than the minimum amount sufficient to recover the cost of the administration of the taxes on the property, as determined by or under the general law granting the exemption.

(h) The Legislature may exempt from ad valorem taxation a mineral interest that has a taxable value of less than the minimum amount sufficient to recover the costs of the administration of the taxes on the interest, as determined by or under the general law granting the exemption.

No. Now, on this one you have to read it very carefully. The current "Subsection (d)" says the legislature by general law "shall exempt..." This leaves the impression that it will be exempt for the reasons stated. Now take a look at the proposed amendment, the legislature "may exempt..." a slight difference, and an important one. I go with the word shall, although it has been ruled by the U.S. Supreme Court in various cases to mean "may." I think in this case, shall imposes a stronger limit on the legislature. Otherwise, I fear we will all start getting taxed on personal property items in our homes, which means someone will have to list those items.

Amendment No. 13

Section 1. Article VIII, Texas Constitution, is amended by adding Section 19b to read as follows:

Section 19b. The governing body of a political subdivision may exempt from ad valorem taxation boats and other equipment used primarily in the commercial taking or production of fish, shrimp, shellfish, and other marine life. The legislature may provide for the administration of the exemption authorized by this section and may provide additional qualifications and limitations for the exemption.

No. Same reason for other special interest changes in the Constitution. Why should shrimp boats be exempt and not my automobile, for which I need to earn my wages? Why not exempt all equipment and vehicles for exemption? Either we tax it all, or we exempt it all. What's sad about this proposal is that it ever got enough votes to make to the ballot. It just goes to show how politicians in Austin operate... for each other and their special pals.

Amendment No. 14

Section 1. Section 2, Article VIII, Texas Constitution, is amended by amending Subsection (b) and adding Subsection (d) to read as follows:

(b) The Legislature may, by general law, exempt property owned by a disabled veteran or by the surviving spouse and surviving minor children of a disabled veteran. A disabled veteran is a veteran of the armed services of the United States who is classified as disabled by the Veterans' Administration or by a successor to that agency; or the military service in which he served. A veteran who is certified as having a disability of less than 10 percent is not entitled to an exemption. A veteran having a disability rating of not less than 10 percent nor more than 30 percent may be granted an exemption from taxation for property valued at up to $5000. A veteran having a disability rating of more than 30 percent but not more than 50 percent may be granted an exemption from taxation for property valued at up to $7,500. A veteran having a disability rating of more than 50 percent but not more than 70 percent may be granted an exemption from taxation for property valued at up to $10,000. A veteran who has a disability rating of more than 70 percent, or a veteran who has a disability rating of not less than 10 percent and has attained the age of 65, or a disabled veteran whose disability consists of the loss or loss of use of one or more limbs, total blindness in one or both eyes, or paraplegia, may be granted an exemption from taxation for property valued at up to $12,000. The spouse and children of any member of the United States Armed Forces who dies while on active duty may be granted an exemption from taxation for property valued at up to $5,000. A deceased disabled veteran's surviving spouse and children may be granted an exemption from taxation for property valued at up to $5,000. A disabled veteran who is entitled to an exemption which in the aggregate is equal to the exemption to which the veteran was entitled when the veteran died.

(d) Unless otherwise provided by general law enacted after January 1, 1995, the amounts of the exemptions from ad valorem taxation to which a person is entitled under Section 11.22, Tax Code, for a tax year that begins on or after the date this subsection takes effect are the maximum amounts permitted under Subsection (b) of this section instead of the amounts specified by Section 11.22, Tax Code. This subsection may be repealed by the Legislature by general law.

No. More social fooling around with taxes, taking from one group of people and giving to another. All well intentioned, this deserves the trash heap with other socialistic nonsense being proposed on this ballot. Using tax exemptions to promote special causes is unAmerican and smacks of Marxist socialism. Texans deserve better than this.

Wildcats dominate Antelopes 41-0

by Brent Ross
Friday night at Antelope Stadium, the Bold Gold met an Idalou team that came to play. The Wildcats dominated from the opening kickoff in route to a 41-0 victory over the Lopes.

Idalou took the kickoff and ate up more than five minutes before scoring the first touchdown of the game. After getting the lead, the Wildcats never looked back.

Trailing 14-0 in the second quarter, the Bold Gold made their best attempt at a score on a drive that started on their own 32. The offense used a nice mixture of Alvin Reed, Saul Martinez and the passing of Jamie Hernandez to move the ball.

The Lopes had five first downs on the drive converting two long third downs and a fourth down and six. However, the drive stalled when Martinez was stopped for no gain on a fourth and 10 draw play from the Wildcat's 10.

Running back Conrad Garcia carried the load for Idalou as he was too big for the Lopes to contain. For Post, Josh Grisham caught one pass and came up big on defense making several tackles behind the line of scrimmage.

The Lopes take off this Friday, but return to action in the season finale at 7:30 Nov. 10 in Seagraves.

Idalou slips past J. V. 20-14

by Brent Ross
The Post junior varsity dropped to 5-3 on the season as Idalou beat the Lopes 20-14 in Idalou.

The Bold Gold made their yards on the ground as they rushed for 110 yards on 28 carries. Anthony Gomez led all runners with 17 carries for 77 yards and a touchdown. He was followed by Sam Woods who had 35 yards on eight rushes.

The Post quarterbacks were six of eight for 43 yards and a touchdown. Woods threw for 30 yards and a touchdown as he went four of eight on the night. Shawn Henderson was less successful going two of 10 for 13 yards.

The receiving corps took the night off as Slade Bevers was the only wideout with more than one catch. He had two receptions for 16 yards and was followed by Roland Basquez who had a 15-yard touchdown grab.

The Post coaches said Idalou's defense was the best the Lopes had faced all year. They said even in the loss, the Bold Gold's defense played its best game of the year.

Post will take off this week, but will get back to work next Thursday as it faces Seagraves in the season finale.

Defensive breakdowns in 8th grade 18-6 loss

by Brent Ross
The eighth grade Lopes did something Thursday they are not used to, they lost. Idalou defeated Post 18-6 at Antelope Stadium.

The first quarter was a battle of defenses as no one could get on the board. In the second quarter, Braden Conner threw to Luis Leds who made a nice run after the catch for a 21 yard touchdown. The conversion was no good.

A couple of defensive breakdowns led to two Idalou touchdowns and a third-quarter safety against the Bold Gold rounded out the score.

"Idalou just fought a little harder than we did," Post coach Darrell Radle said. "We had a good defensive effort except for three or four breakdowns."

He said the game's outcome surprised him.

"We thought we would win because we beat them last year," Radle said. "It just never works that way."

Radle said he hopes the loss will be a learning experience for the kids.

The Lopes now look towards the game with Lubbock Christian today in Lubbock.

'100 years of Heroes' visits DQ

A taste of the Old West will soon be visiting the Dairy Queen store in Post in an exhibit called "100 Years of Heroes."

To help celebrate the centennial of the Fort Worth Stock Show and Rodeo, the Dairy Queen store will be displaying a variety of western memorabilia, November 3-30 during regular Dairy Queen business hours. Some of the highlights of the exhibit include historic bandanas, boots from Justin Boots' vintage collection, and a barbed wire collection from The Burly Corporation of North America.

The exhibit will travel to seven different Dairy Queen stores in West Texas for monthly displays. Post is the fifth stop of the tour. "100 years of Heroes" will end its tour in February 1996 at the 100th-year celebration of the Fort Worth Stock Show and Rodeo.

The exhibit is sponsored by Chapman Dairy Queens, Justin Boots and The Burly Corporation of North America.

United Church of God of Prophecy
The Bible tells us about the great victory obtained by a young shepherd over Goliath. It has been a story that fills us with hope even today. Hope to face up to the impossible and not fear any adverse situation that you may encounter in your life, but rather to see the great possibilities we have when we let God manifest His power through us. Goliath can be equated to the devil. Satan came to kill, steal and destroy, but Jesus came to undo the works of Satan. God was the source of David's faith and inspiration when he faced Goliath.

When Samuel, sent by God, arrived at David's house to choose a King among his family, no one considered David for this position — not Samuel, not his father, nor his brothers. As each son came before Samuel, he began to make judgements on the physical appearance of each one. But God told him not to look on the outward appearance, because He rejected them; for he looked upon their hearts (Samuel 16:7). As soon as David came forward, Samuel received the word of God, Samuel poured out the oil to anoint David as king of Israel. From that moment on, the Spirit of the Lord was over David.

We all know the story of the "would be" battle between the Israelites and the Philistines. King Saul and the entire army of Israel were full of fear and for forty days Goliath would come out and mock God and His "mighty army." When David reached the camp, he became enraged at the taunts made by Goliath and he became full of courage in his zeal for the Lord.

In Memoriam
In remembrance on the second anniversary of the death of Louis Martinez, November 2, 1993 and Octaviano Martinez, November 10, 1993, from your sister and daughter... you never know what you've got until you lose it.

Let's try to let bygones be bygones and love each other, for all the Martinez family. God bless each and everyone of you in our days of need and may we be comfort to each other. God bless my father and brother, who we remember always.

November is National Hospice Month

November is National Hospice Month, a time to recognize the special qualities of hospice care. Hospice affirms life by providing compassionate care to terminally ill persons and their families.

Hospices are dedicated to ensuring that the terminally ill die with dignity, without pain and in a loving environment.

A Proclamation making November

Hospice Month in Lubbock will be issued by Mayor Pro Rem Randy Neugebauer at the November 2 meeting of Hospice of Lubbock's Board of Directors.

The meeting will be held Thursday, November 2, 1995 at 11:45 a.m. at the Christ Lutheran Church on 78th and Indiana.

If you need more information contact Linda Mayes at Hospice of Lubbock at 795-2751.

Hospice is ... a special concept of care for terminally ill people that offers physical, emotional and spiritual support for patients and their families.

The goal of Hospice is to enable persons with a terminal illness to enjoy the best quality of life, pain-free, surrounded by family and friends at home or in a home like setting.

Hospice of Lubbock ... a non-profit agency incorporated in July 1986, admitted its first patient in October 1987 and, to date, has served over 1,300 patients and their families. Hospice of Lubbock holds membership in both the Texas Hospice and National Hospice Organizations.

Hospice Care ... is provided by an interdisciplinary team of professionals that includes nurses, social workers, certified home health aides and chaplains as well as Hospice-trained volunteers. The patient's care is directed by his or her attending physician.

Patients ... may be of any age and may be suffering from any type of end-stage disease or terminal illness such as cancer, cardiovascular (heart), pulmonary (lung) or renal (kidney) diseases, neuromuscular disorders or AIDS.

Service Area ... of Hospice of Lubbock encompasses Lubbock, Bailey, Cochran, Crosby, Dawson, Floyd, Garza, Hale, Hockley, Kent, Terry, Lamb, Lynn and Yoakum counties.

Payment ... for services may be made by Medicare, Medicaid, private insurance, Champus or private pay on a sliding scale fee. Hospice of Lubbock also accepts charity patients, therefore ability to pay is not a consideration for admission.

Solitude is fine when you are at peace with yourself and have something definite to do.
