The city's water is okay

AeroCare, a service of Methodist Hospital, has been serving Post the past week following the closing of Garza Memorial Hospital. AeroCare helicopter crew members have been here to augment evening and weekend medical care. Post EMS continues also to serve medical needs in Garza County, and is available on 24 hour call. (Photo by Becky Warren)

There's nothing wrong with our water, although some Post residents complained last week following the "boil water" notice published in last week's Post Dispatch.

The notice, run in the legal section of the Dispatch classifieds, was published by requirement of the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission (TNRCC) regulations, according to City Manager Rick Hanna. Any time a municipality experiences a major water outage like the one Post had late last month, the state requires publication of a "boil water" notice to inform the public of the possibility of water contamination and methods by which water can be made safe for consumption.

"It's a safety precaution the state deems necessary," Hanna said. "We're required to run the notice within 24 hours or at the next available publication date. Because the outage occurred on Tuesday and was not repaired until just before midnight, we were well beyond the newspaper's deadline and were not able to get the notice in immediately."

When asked if there was the possibility of contamination with this outage, Hanna replied, "I didn't boil my water."

If city officials ever perceived a true problem with the water system, they would utilize the local radio station, the local newspaper and the Lubbock newspaper to let people know, Hanna said.

"We'd also be knocking door to door, telling people," he said.

The city's latest water outage occurred September 24 when a bleeder line off the main line in Sand Creek on the west side of town suffered a break.

Post ISD studies Internet connection

A three-year informational system plan which will see the introduction of the Internet to Post Independent School District students and teachers was the focus of Tuesday's meeting of the board of trustees.

Brian O'Neal of the O'Neal & Associates consulting computer firm met with board members to discuss the plan, which will focus on networking. Through the plan, which is designed to be phased in initially at the high school and later at the middle school and elementary campuses, a networking system would be developed which would like the Post ISD to the Lubbock offices of the Education Service Center (ESC). The ESC would provide the link to the Internet.

The introduction of the Internet would allow students and faculty members to tap into vast resources of information currently not available in Post, O'Neal said. Also, the networking of school computers would allow the use of e-mail messages between classrooms and campuses.

School officials noted that the ESC will make available a filtering service to enable the district to block out offensive materials found on the Internet. Also, students will be required to sign and adhere to an "acceptable use policy" prior to being allowed to use the Internet.

The move will require the installation of a "T-1" telephone line from Lubbock to Post.

In other business, trustees:

- * Received a presentation from middle school counselor Sharla Wells and several parents involved in the Practical Parent Education program.
- * Handled the monthly bills, financial reports, budget change requests and appraisal district tax reports.
- * Approved the employee model handbook as recommended by the Texas Association of School Boards.

Evaporation continues at White River Lake

White River Lake, the city's sole water source, continues to drop. According to Al O'Brien, lake director, the lake level was down 18.6 feet Monday.

"That's about where we were in June before the good August rains," O'Brien said.

Evaporation has slowed somewhat due to cooler temperatures, he said, "so we're a little better off. But it's still low - it's the lowest it's been in 34 or 35 years."

Elevator repair at OS Museum

by Sheri Lewis
What should have been a routine elevator repair at the OS Museum has turned into a repairman's nightmare.

Several weeks ago, Dover Elevator repairmen out of Midland were summoned to Post to work on the museum's elevator. At first glance, it appeared the elevator had developed a hole in its jack and the jack needed to be replaced.

"Normally a job like that would take one or two weeks," said Button Bourne of Midland, one of Dover's repairmen. "We've had two crews in here for more than a month now and there's no telling how much longer this is going to take."

When workers began the effort to replace the jack, they found the old casing had crumbled and needed to be replaced. In cleaning out the area around the old casing, workers encountered water - lots of it - which has slowed down their progress tremendously.

This situation is "very unusual," he said, noting that a fellow employee who has been working on elevator repairs for 35 years said he's never seen anything like it. A new casing will be anchored in concrete to correct the problem.

Tax 'n Facts by Terri Cash, CPA

No-Tax Fringe Benefits

Tax-free fringe benefits are not what they used to be; many of the old programs disappeared, and no new ones took their place, but a few old goodies remain, good for the employee, easy for the employer.

Consider these: employee discounts on company services, as long as prices aren't more than 20 percent below retail; discounts on company goods, as long as prices to employees are not below cost; bargain meals at company dining rooms and cafeterias, as long as all employees have access and annual revenue meets or tops costs; on-premise athletic facilities; no-added-cost benefits, like permitting employees to use an empty hotel room; work-related fringes like free parking near the office (though there are restrictions for some shareholders and partners); and dependent care assistance payments, up to $5,000 (or $2,500 each for couples filing separately) of employer-paid child care or care for dependents, meeting certain conditions.

County Ag Day and crop tour

The Annual Garza County Ag Day and Crop Tour will be held this Friday, October 11 at the Graham Community Center. The day will begin at 8 a.m. with coffee and donuts and the actual programs and tours will begin at 8:30. The days schedule will conclude at 1 p.m. following a meal.

A couple of stops during the tour will feature an in depth look at cotton weed control plots and cotton harvest aid test plots. The weed control plot will feature a look at chemicals to control weeds in both irrigated and dryland cotton. These plots were established in the fall of 1995 and will hold insight into herbicide selection that is both economical and effective as well as environmentally sensitive. Research findings and evaluation from the past year from these plots will be presented during this stop on the tour.

The second stop on the tour will feature a variety of Harvest Aid chemical applications for both dryland and irrigated cotton fields. A total of 18 different chemical applications are to be featured during this portion of the tour. The purpose of these plots will be to allow cotton producers to compare a variety of applications and chemicals under dryland field conditions and make informed decisions prior to individual field applications.

Several ag chemical companies will be supporting this year's Ag Day and they include, Rhone Poulenc, Elf Atochem, Bayer and Zeneca.

The representatives from the participating companies will be on hand to answer questions and give input during the tour.

Following the completion of the tour Rhone Poulenc and Elf Atochem will provide a fish fry and complimentary lunch for all present. Private Pesticide Applicators will receive two Continuing Education Units towards license requirements. The tour and the meal is open to all interested residents in the county and your attendance is welcomed. The day promises to be full of information and good fellowship. If you plan to attend the tour and or the lunch, please call our office at 495-4400 by 12 noon on Thursday October 10. As always, feel free to call our office if you have questions.

While on the subject on important events, it is important to keep in mind that this week, October 6-12 is National 4-H Week. Garza County 4-H members will undertake a variety of activities during the week to promote 4-H in the county and recruit new members. If you have members of your family between the ages of 9 and 19, you have the makings of a 4-Her! Keep in mind that there are over 50 different project areas that a member can participate in - not just livestock projects. There is no fee required to join 4-H and any child within the age requirements can enroll, regardless of whether they live in town or in the rural areas of the county.

4-H is one of the only youth organizations which offer families a chance to participate in any project as a family unit. Keep this in mind and if you want to do something for your kids that is worthwhile and offers a chance to build family ties, call our office and enroll in the county 4-H program.

Texas Recycles Day Nov. 15

The third annual Texas Recycles Day is just around the corner. On Friday, November 15, businesses, local governments, schools, media and civic environmental groups are invited to pledge to start a new recycling program, expand an existing program or support a recycling event.

Texas Recycles Day was a huge success last year with 90 percent of the communities that organized a recycling event reporting increases in their recycling participation.

This year, the executive steering committee has set a goal of 250,000 pledges. As an incentive for pledges, a tremendous prize package has been assembled.

The Steel Recycling Institute will give away a 1996 Jeep Wrangler on Texas Recycles Day 1996.

Other prizes include grocery shopping sprees, a vacation package for four to Sea World of Texas, gift certificates to Home Depot and a Texas Instruments laptop computer.

The Steel Recycling Institute will also provide Jeeps to be displayed in communities that are organizing pledge drive events for Texas Recycles Day. For more information about the Jeeps, contact Jerilyn Reske or Ben Walker at (512) 472-3276.

As part of the Texas Recycles Day event, Amoco Chemical Co. is sponsoring the Texas Recycles Day School Challenge. The challenge will run October 1-31, 1996 and participants will compete for $6,000 in cash awards.

For more information about the Texas Recycles Day Workplace Challenge or the Texas Recycles Day School Challenge, call (512) 239-3150. For general information on Texas Recycles Day, contact Helen Lettunich at (512) 239-3164.

TO THE CITIZENS OF GARZA COUNTY

My name is Mike Harper. I am the Republican nominee for Sheriff of Garza County. Due to recent severe injury and surgery that is going to take a few more months to heal, I am unable to pursue this campaign. Although my name will be on the ballot, I am hereby WITHDRAWING from the election.

There are two candidates still running and I think that Sheriff Ratke has the conservative common sense approach to law enforcement and will continue to do a good job. Although I am still 100% Republican, I HEREBY ENDORSE AND PUT ALL MY SUPPORT TO SHERIFF KENNY RATKE.

I would like to thank the Republican Party of Garza County for all their support, Governor George Bush for his personal endorsement, County Chairman Carolyn Chapman, Precinct Chairman David Stelzer, all the campaign workers and the people who stood behind me.

Sincerely,
Mike Harper

ANNUAL PERCENTAGE YIELD*

Your First 11-Month Renewal Comes With Our Guaranteed Interest Rate.

If you're like most people, it's getting pretty hard to second-guess interest rates. They've gone way down. Some say now they're going up. Tough to know what to do. That's why Norwest has introduced the Rate Control CD.

Open a Rate Control CD, and Norwest will guarantee the rate for your first 11-month renewal. If rates go up, your CD can earn the current rate at maturity—but if rates go down or stay level, you can just leave this auto-renewing CD in place to earn the same 6.25% APY (annual percentage yield). Your interest earnings can be applied to your Norwest checking or savings account, or applied to your CD balance.

That's just like Norwest Bank. A new CD that starts out great and keeps your options open.

*Annual Percentage Yield of 6.25% based on an interest rate of 6.23%. Rate is fixed for duration of deposit term. A penalty will be imposed for early withdrawal. Opening deposit requirement $5,000.00. Offer good September 11, 1996 through October 18, 1996. For individuals only.

Get children out of government schools NOW

A grass-roots alliance of educators, parents, scholars, and clergy claim America's "public schools" can be improved by dissolving their bonds with government. From every state in the Union, over 2,000 people have signed a "Proclamation for the Separation of School and State."

Marshall Fritz, founder of the Fresno, Calif. based Separation of School & State Alliance, says, "Government-run public schools are based on coercion and now produce the most violent, illiterate, and ignorant generation this nation has ever known. Only when we separate education from the state can educators and families be free enough to improve the system. Americans don't have a common church, common magazine, or common pizza. We don't need a common school. We must end tax-financing of schooling, repeal compulsory attendance, and stop all government mandates about curriculum and academic outcomes. We must de-politicize schools."

The "Separation Alliance" will gather for its second annual conference November 24-26, 1996, at the Double Tree Hotel in Arlington, Virginia. Over 50 speakers, panelists, and responders will probe the failure of government-run public schools. Some will prescribe immediate steps to begin rescuing more children from the dangers of state schooling. Many speakers will suggest long-range steps to rescue all.

One of the highlights of the conference is a debate between Notre Dame law professor Charles Rice (affirmative) and the Council for Basic Education president Chris Cross. Resolved: Government at any level should not set academic standards. Fritz claims the conference goes "far beyond the banal bromides of education reform" and gets to real issues such as Will We Still be Americans Without Melting Pot Schooling? by researcher Sheldon Richman; Can Character Education Without God Ever Satisfy Religious Families? by education professor Kevin Ryan; The Monstrosity of the Teacher-State by columnist Joseph Sobran; How Separation Helps Break the Poverty Trap by Fritz himself.

William Bentley Ball will receive the 1996 "Alexis de Tocqueville Award for Excellence in Advancing Educational Freedom." Jacob Hornberger of The Future of Freedom Foundation will make the keynote address. John Taylor Gatto, 1991 New York State Teacher of the Year, will lead a host of current and former public school teachers to address why they now favor Separation.

Other major talks include: Drugging Children for Peace and Quiet: ADD & Ritalin Reconsidered by psychiatrist Peter Breggin; Uncork Education Creativity: Repeal Compulsory Attendance by home education leader Cathy Duffy; The True Purpose of Education by Father John Hardon, S.J.; How State Schools Became America's Established Religion and How to Get It Disestablished by M. Stanton Evans; The Coming Exodus: Why Protestants Will Leave Government Schools by Joel Belz and R.C. Sproul, Jr.; and Why Catholics Need Separation of School and State by Steven Mosher.

The Separation Alliance is a non-profit educational organization whose mission is to inform Americans how education can be improved - especially for the poor - by the full separation of school and state. The group has no political or religious affiliations and is strictly educational, leaving to others any ballot initiatives, lobbying, or electioneering needed to accomplish Separation. ## Harry Browne has a better idea...

Reprinted from September 1996 "Freedom Daily."

by Richard M. Ebeling

Why Government Doesn't Work by Harry Browne (New York: St. Martin's Press, 1995) 245 pages; $19.95.

Government is big, intrusive, and out of control. It is hard to find practically anyone who disagrees with this general perception of the political situation in America today. A Democratic president even says the era of big government is over, and leading Republicans insist that it's time for a new American revolution to put government back on a shorter leash. Yet, nothing changes. Government keeps growing, regulations continue to expand, and individual liberties continue to be destroyed.

Why? There are several reasons for this. First, many people, while disliking some things that the government does, still desire the state to interfere in private and market affairs in other situations in which they do not like the choices their fellow Americans make or the outcomes that result from those choices. Second, there are many people who do not like the tax burdens they must bear for programs that others lobby government to establish, but they want the state to subsidize various activities of their own for which that they would prefer not to have to pay the full cost.

Government gives, government takes away

Third, some people do not like it when the government prohibits or restricts various market opportunities they would like to take advantage of, but they have no objection to using the state to protect their own producer corner of the market from competitors who might otherwise capture a portion of their own market share and profits. And still others, while they might not like various interventions in the marketplace and in social life, just cannot imagine how certain desired outcomes and situations could be assured if not for the government's provision of the desired result.

Americans, therefore, seem to suffer from a split personality: hating and mistrusting government, yet also wanting government to guarantee personal, social, and market outcomes that they are fearful a free society might not or would not provide them with. It is an ideological and psychological split personality that, in fact, dominates the people of the entire Western world.

Public needs fresh look at market solutions

This ideological and psychological dichotomy is reflected in the vast majority of writings on social and economic policy issues. While the number of books advocating "market solutions" to "social problems" have increased dramatically in the last several years, there are still few works that present to the general public fairly consistent, uncompromising cases for a strictly limited government, with all matters other than basic protection of life, liberty, and property left to the voluntary choices and interactions of free men in a free society.

This is exactly what Harry Browne does in his new book, Why Government Doesn't Work. Mr. Browne is well known as a successful investment analyst who uses the sound principles of free-market economics to explain the consequences of government interventions and to recommend strategies for personal financial security and improvement. He is also well known for his 1973 book, How I Found Freedom in an Unfree World, in which he demonstrated ways to live freely as best one can in a world of statism and busybody do-gooders.

Statism and collectivism are bankrupt

Mr. Browne, in the last few years, has concluded that statism and collectivism have become sufficiently bankrupt that it's worth a try to make an unfree world freer. He has decided to run for the presidency of the United States on the Libertarian Party ticket. And one of the last chapters in the book explains why he thinks the two main American political parties cannot be counted upon to win freedom for an unfree America. But separate from the fact that the book is clearly meant to serve as his personal manifesto as a presidential candidate, the volume is a clear, persuasive, and wide-ranging exposition of why government is a threat to human liberty and has failed in all of the various programs it has imposed on American society in the name of the social good.

How and why government is so big

The first half of the book is a lucid overview of how and why government has grown so much in the United States during the last six decades since the New Deal. In essence, he argues that people have suffered from a growing tendency to fall victim to the fallacy that government has the knowledge and ability to solve their problems for them; this has been reinforced by the "dictator syndrome" in which too many people want government to remake the world in their own desired image, even when this involves others in the society being forced to conform to those preferred patterns. At the same time, politicians and those who control the levers of state power have seduced several generations of Americans into accepting greater government control by enticing them with promises of "entitlements" and illusory securities from the inevitable uncertainties of ordinary life.

Why government has failed to solve problems

The second half of Mr. Browne's work details why government has failed in the areas of health care, education, welfare, crime, national defense, and Social Security. Reasonably priced health care has been threatened, he argues, precisely because the state has already pervaded so much of the medical profession with licensing requirements, regulations, subsidized care, and research restrictions on both treatments and pharmaceuticals. The answer, Mr. Browne argues, is to reverse this trend and to free the medical profession from these controls and interferences.

The same applies in the areas of education and welfare. The federal government's growing funding and controlling of education and welfare have undermined people's abilities to control their own family's needs and material chances for improvement. The solution, he explains with amazing clarity, is returning both education and charity to the private sector, free from the manipulating and stifling hand of the state. Social Security, Mr. Browne argues, is a Ponzi game in which the government has created a "pay-as-you-go" system in which an intergenerational war has been created between those who have been promised financial security from the state and a younger, working segment of the population who, with an aging population, will face an increasing tax burden to meet the benefits the government has promised. He proposes that the vast holdings of government land and property be sold off over a six-year period and the proceeds be used to finance private annuities for those in or near retirement age under Social Security and to retire the accumulated federal debt.

We need not fight other's battles

Mr. Browne argues that America should not search around the world for enemies to fight at the expense of taxpayers' wealth and young Americans' lives. We are protected by two large oceans from practically any threat of invasion. And a Strategic Defense Initiative-type system could provide us with security from nuclear attack. America should follow the advice of the Founding Fathers and have economic intercourse with all, but political and military alliances with none.

On these and several other important topics of current political interest, Harry Browne eloquently demonstrates that a system of individual freedom not only guards us from governmental tyranny, but also supplies us with the best chances for the good, happy, and prosperous lives that each of us fundamentally wants for ourselves and our families. This makes Why Government Doesn't Work an excellent book to hand to those who need some help in sorting out the important political issues of the days.

Politics' false promises...

by Walter E. Williams

Blacks are more loyal Democrats than anyone else. What's the payoff? As I see it, the greatest payoff was the success of the civil rights movement, culminating in the 1964 Civil Rights Act. But constitutional guarantees and economic well-being, for the most part, are battles fought in different arenas.

As a group, blacks have made the greatest advance in human history. For a large segment of the black population, the benefits of that unprecedented progress have proven elusive. Much of their day-to-day well-being is dependent on the whims of the political arena. The recent welfare reform bill, signed by President Clinton and supported by congressional Democrats (opposed by black congressional Democrats), highlights the dangers of the political arena. I have always predicted that when it becomes politically expedient, Democrats will dump blacks just as Republicans did during Reconstruction.

One political lament against the new welfare law is that there aren't enough jobs for people who may be kicked off welfare. Those making that lament have been and are now supporters of measures that run jobs out of inner cities. The recently enacted increase in the minimum wage is an example. No employer is going to pay a person $5.25 an hour when that person is so unfortunate as to have skills enabling him to produce only $3 an hour worth of value. Among predictable employer responses to mandated wages that exceed worker productivity are: automation, relocating to a more highly skilled labor market or moving to a low-wage country. They make this response because of competitive pressures resulting from the fact that you and I prefer lower prices and investors prefer higher returns.

Higher local taxes have run jobs out of cities. In pursuit of the welfare state, city politicians thought businesses were unresponsive to tax increases and poor-quality city services. Now that businesses shun cities, the politicians who ran them out in the first place are trying to devise incentives for them to return.

Washington, D.C., a bankrupt city in receivership, is an example. Over the last several decades, the city raised business taxes and sales taxes, established housing price restrictions and provided shoddy city services. Many residents and businesses left the city. Now, Washington's politicians are calling for various tax privileges, including a low flat federal income tax and other gimmicks, to lure businesses and people back.

Education is another promise of politics. Mostly under the supervision of black politicians, black education borders on criminal fraud. The worst education occurs in cities where a black is superintendent of schools, the mayor is black, the city council has large black representation, and a large percentage of school principals and teachers are black. The only point of this observation is to argue that education fraud cannot be attributed to racism. Race has nothing to do with it.

There are islands of black-supervised education excellence, schools such as: Marcus Garvey (Los Angeles), Marva Collins Preparatory Schools (Chicago and Cincinnati), Ivy Leaf (Philadelphia) and a precious few others. There'd be many more if there was school choice. While more than 80 percent of black parents support school choice, black politicians and civil rights leaders are against it. They're captives of the education establishment, whose interests are diametrically opposed to what's necessary for black academic excellence.

The bottom line is that for the poorest of blacks to share in the unprecedented group progress, attention must shift inward and away from politics. Solutions won't be found in Washington or state capitals. They will be found in families, neighborhoods and local organizations.

Stubborn juror on trial without jury

Vin Suprynowicz

The judges and prosecutors of Gilpin County, Colorado, hell-bent on making an example of Laura Kriho, the juror who dared think for herself in the jury room of a recent drug possession case, faced a problem:

How were they going to explain to the jurors at Ms. Kriho's trial (without inviting an indignant rebuff) their contention that jurors should be jailed if they allow themselves to be empaneled on a jury even though they have doubts about the constitutionality of the law or the reasonableness of the decision to prosecute?

How were they going to ask those citizen-jurors to confer on them the heretofore undreamed-of power to jail fellow-jurors who — once in the jury room — dare to think for themselves, saying things like "I'm not going to send this girl away for years on some minor possession charge," after His Holiness has "instructed" them "not to think about or discuss" such matters as the sentence he might impose?

Trial of juror refusing to convict

That's right, as this column is written on Oct. 1, 1996, Laura Kriho of Nederland, Colo. has just endured the first day of what is almost certainly America's first two-day trial of a juror who refused to convict.

Needless to say, the judge and prosecutor found a way out of their quandary. First Judicial District Chief Judge Henry Nieto assigned himself to the case. He immediately ruled Ms. Kriho's attorney, Paul Grant, can't bring in any evidence — or expert witnesses — dealing with the traditional right of jurors to deliberate without intervention from the government-salaried judge. Then, he ruled Grant and Kriho could not have any additional time to prepare for this first-of-its-kind case, and that prosecutor Jim Stanley — who blew his original drug case thanks to Kriho — could go ahead and prosecute Ms. Kriho as well. (No potential for vindictiveness there, surely.)

First a jury, then denied a jury

Finally — get this — although the prosecution had originally granted Laura Kriho's request for a jury trial at her Aug. 16 arraignment, Judge Nieto allowed prosecutor Stanley to promise that, in the event of the wayward juror being convicted, he would seek jail time of less than six months.

—Although the Constitution specifically states: "In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury, ..." today's courteous courts have ruled that the Sixth Amendment doesn't really mean that, at all. What it really means is the government need grant you the "privilege" of a trial by jury only if you face a sentence of more than six months.

No jury for this stubborn juror

Laura Kriho doesn't get a jury. The little brotherhood known as the Judges of Gilpin County, determined to asphyxiate our traditional jury rights and replace our citizen juries with government lackeys, sworn in advance (under penalty of imprisonment) to convict as instructed, will now judge and sentence poor Laura Kriho, themselves.

(Another of the handful of Gilpin County judges, Frederic Rodgers, wrote an article for the summer issue of the local "Judge's Journal," misrepresenting the facts of the Kriho case and explaining to his fellow Philistines how to prosecute "obstructionist" jurors.)

"To deny me a jury trial leaves little doubt about the outcome of the trial," Ms. Kriho told Joe Vigorito of the group Colorado Legal Eagles in late September. "I can't imagine how I can ever get a fair hearing in front of any judge in this district when they have all probably read Judge Rodgers' article. It looks like they intend to make my case a demonstration case, ... so that they will be free to prosecute other jurors who want to acquit based on reasonable doubts."

Black-robed incubi are real clever

This little coven of black-robed incubi think they're clever. What they fail to realize is that the guarantee of a trial by a randomly selected panel of our fellow citizens — not a jury stacked only with those who have sworn in advance, on penalty of imprisonment, to convict if so instructed — serves the same function in our society as that little weight that jiggles on top of a pressure cooker. It may seem noisy and untidy, but tie it down and soon the whole operation will blow up.

To date, the vast majority of citizens who have a problem with the government have been willing to surrender peacefully to the process of justice, confident they'd eventually have a chance to "tell it to the jury," to convince their neighbors they'd been wronged, no matter what the ever-expanding "letter of the law."

If the Gilpin County judges — and others like them all across America — finally succeed in tying down that safety valve, why wouldn't more and more victims of government, taxation and oppression, urged to "surrender and you'll get a fair trial," figure "No chance in that rigged game; I might as well take as many G-men with me as I can?"

Where will it end?

If the courts continue down this road, it becomes increasingly likely — however strongly we may advise against the wisdom of such a course — that bodies will eventually hang, kicking, from the light posts in front of every government building in America.

And that some will wear black robes.

Attorney Grant says that, in the event of a conviction, there will be an appeal. Donations are welcome at: Laura Kriho Legal Defense Fund, c/o Paul Grant, Box 1272, Parker, Colo. 80134, tel. 303-841-9649; e-mail pkgrant@ix.netcom.com.

Homecoming victory delights 'Lopes, fans

The Post Antelopes came home to a capacity crowd Friday night and gave the homecoming fans something to cheer about. Josh Grisham scored four touchdowns and rushed for over 200 yards as the Antelopes beat the Morton Indians 55-6.

In the early going it looked as though the 'Lopes were going to struggle as the first two possessions resulted in five plays and a punt and four plays and a fumble. But the Antelope defense held tough, allowing the offense to get untracked. On the third possession of the night, the 'Lopes drove the ball 79 yards in 12 plays for the first touchdown of the night. Quarterback Jaime Hernandez capped off the drive with a 9-yard keeper. The PAT by Anthony Flores was blocked and the score was 6-0.

The next 'Lope possession began with a great punt return by Grisham, giving them the ball at the Indian 38-yard line. Five plays later Grisham scored from 20 yards out. The two-point conversion pass from Hernandez fell short and the score was 12-0. Morton drove the ball to the Post 20 yard line before Hernandez intercepted a pass and raced down the sideline for an apparent TD, but the officials ruled that he stepped out of bounds at the Indian 47-yard line. The key play in the ensuing drive was a 27 yard run by Grisham that put the 'Lopes at the Morton 20 yard line. Grisham then ran it in from 4 yards out to pu the Antelopes up by a score of 18-0. The PAT was wide to the left, leaving the score the same with 1:57 to go in the first half.

But Post was not through for the half. After another Morton punt, Jaime Hernandez locked up on a 63 yard bomb to Jay Gorman and with 1 second left on the clock Grisham ran the ball in from three yards out. Hernandez locked up with Gorman again on the two-point try and Post led at the half 26-0.

After a great homecoming halftime, the Antelopes came out even more fired up in the second half. The 'Lopes kicked to Morton and the Indians fumbled the ball into the arms of Seth Pennell at the Morton 24-yard line. One play later Grisham struck again on a 24 yard touchdown jaunt. The PAT by Flores was good and the score stood at 33-0.

The next Indian possession stalled again and they were forced to punt. Flores raced through the blockers and took a blocked punt the balance of the field for a TD. Todd Terry ran in from 3 yards out on the two point conversion and Post led by a count of 41-0.

Morton drove the ball down to the 'Lope 29-yard line on their next possession before fumbling. The ball was recovered by Brandon Patchke at the Post 32 yard line. The Antelopes moved the ball 68 yards in 9 plays with Grisham waltzing in from two yards out to cap off the drive. Hernandez' PAT was good making the score 48-0.

The defense continued to dominate, with yet another interception by John Barboza. Morton finally scored with 1:07 left in the final stanza when running back Travis Garrett scored from 16 yards out. The two-point conversion failed and the score stood at 48-6.

Homer Gomez scored the final touchdown of the night for Post on a 21 yard run. The PAT was good, making the final score Post 55, Morton 6.

Head coach Richard Gorman said, "The players set some goals this week and really jumped on Morton early. The kids played extremely well."

Gorman also said he thinks the team is starting to catch on to the new system as they get ready to enter district play.

"The offense took exactly what the Morton defense gave them," Gorman said, citing the play of the whole offensive line and the blocking of Orlando Castillo and Todd Terry. He also praised Jaime Hernandez and Sam Zubia on defense.

Antelope boosters say "ring your bell!"

"Don't just sit there, ring your bell!"

Antelope Booster Club and the Post High School Varsity cheerleaders would like to urge all fans to buy their own cowbells to bring to the games. The cowbells will be transformed into "spirit bells", as the PHS cheerleaders will paint your bell free of charge.

Let the team hear your support as they battle on the field for Post victories!

Lasting Impressions has a supply of bells for $5 each.

Support the team, cheerleaders, and a local business and let's "ring out some spirit" as we go into district play Friday night, October 11 against the Crosbyton Chiefs at 7:30 p.m. in Antelope stadium.

For more information on the bells or free painting call Kim Mills at 495-3719 or call 495-4154.

Also congratulations goes to Gordon Terry. Gordon won the game ball from the 1996 homecoming game, which was signed by all the varsity players.

Indians shoot the 'Lopes

by Becky Warren

The Morton Indians came to town last Thursday night and shot the 'Lopes down 8-0.

The Indians had a one drive for 48 yards that ended in a touchdown with the two-point conversion.

"I thought we played well at times, but we gave up one big play on defense and it hurt us," said Coach Randy Matthews. "Offensively we moved the ball well, but we got to many "dumb" penalties. Playing well on defense were Clint Johnson, Waylon Strawn, Barrett Scrivner, Adrian Serreno, Blake Brown, Matthew Leininger and Vic Patel."

Rushing for Post was Barrett Scrivner, eight carries for 31 yards; Roland Castenda, 11 carries for 36 yards; Brandon Perez, two carries for four yards; Michael Huff, three carries for eight yards and Lazero Moreno, one carry for two yards.

The 7th graders will host Crosbyton this Thursday night at Antelope Stadium.

PHS band wins at Festival

Pride of Post High School band competed Saturday, October 5 in the Pioneer Marching Festival at Wayland Baptist University in Plainview. The band, under the field direction of Drum Major Amber Conoly, received a Superior rating, and was runner up in class AA.

The percussion section, including Derek Guthrie, Jenny Conoly, Scott Parker, Jason Fields, Ashley Mason, Amy Pedersen, Lindsey Rudd and Jennifer Morgan received the Outstanding Percussion award in class AA.

The High School band will compete two more times this week. Thursday evening at 6:50 p.m. they will be marching at the Texas Tech Marching Festival, and on Saturday, October 12 at 2 p.m. they will perform at the UIL marching contest at Jones Stadium in Lubbock.

JV 'Lopes put bees in Indians war bonnets

by Becky Warren

The JV 'Lopes traveled to Morton last Thursday and left the Indians with bees in their war bonnets. The 'Lopes outscored the Indians 28-12.

"We scored the first four times that we had the ball. Raymond Jefferson scored from two yards out on the opening drive for a 6-0 lead. He finished off the second drive with a six yard pitch around the right end. Billy Crawford found the end zone right up the middle for a five yard TD plunge. Crawford scored his second touchdown on a 12 yard sweep."

"Defensively the JV did a good job. This was our first game with the freshmen combined with the JV. I think every kid played on defense during the game and all in all I was satisfied with the way they played," Coach Fred Postell. "They should get better and better the more they play as a group."

We began district competition this Thursday in Crosbyton.

District competition opens with Crosbyton

The Post Antelopes, fresh off their dominating performance against the Morton Indians last Friday night, take a 3-2 record into District 4-2A tonight when they play host to the Crosbyton Chiefs.

According to Coach Richard Gorman, the Chiefs are picked to be one of the two playoff teams in the district. "This will be a tough ball game, but we can beat them," he said. "We'll just have to have a great game."

Crosbyton is led by 6'2", 210 pound running back Jeff Lang and quarterback Adam Reyna who was a district honorable mention last year at safety. The Chiefs run an I formation offense and predominately run the ball. They can throw but usually don't, Gorman said. The Crosbyton defense runs multiple sets including a 4-3 and a 5-2. Gorman said the Antelopes have not faced a team like Crosbyton this year. "It will be a new experience," he said.

The JV Antelopes travel to Crosbyton for a 6 p.m. kick off and the 7th and 8th grade 'Lopes will host the Chiefs tonight at 5 and 6 p.m.

Eagles soar over Longhorns 55-0

by Becky Warren

The Southland Eagles soared over the Loop Longhorns last Friday night in a 50-0 contest at Eagle Stadium in Southland.

The Eagles, who were observing their homecoming, put the Longhorns to shame.

In the first quarter the score was in favor of the Eagles 22-0. At the end of the second quarter the score continued to be in favor of the Eagles at 44-0.

No scores were made in the third quarter but Southland reminded that in the fourth by adding six more to their already 44 to shut the game down early.

Salone had a 46 yard run with Sigala kicking the extra point. Also a 37 yard run with Sigala kicking the extra point. Also a two yard run with the point after failing, a 15 yard run with the kick good and a 28 yard run with the extra point. Burchfield has two runs, one for five yards which resulted in a fumble and an eight yard run.

South had 14 first downs; 40 rushes for 296 yards; three passes for 39 yards, with two fumbles (1 lost) and two penalties for 15 yards.

'Lopes tie Indians in battle here Thursday at Antelope Stadium

by Becky Warren

The 'Lopes sent the Indians home last Thursday with a tie in the war bonnets.

The score was 6-6 at the end of the game.

In the first quarter Tyrone Jefferson scored on our first possession on a 17 yard run. Our try for the extra points was no good. The score was 6-0 in favor of the 'Lopes.

Morton came right back on their first possession and scored on a 44 yard run. Their try for the extra points were no good either. That tied the game at 6-6.

Both teams had several more drives during the games but could not score.

Post drives were stopped by fumbles while our defense stopped Morton.

"Our offense turned the ball over seven times (six fumbles and one interception)," said Coach Chili Black. "Our defense played very good in that Morton was unable to score off the turnovers. Ryan Wulfjen made several saving tackles and also one interception."

Others playing well on defense were Ricky Halford, Jeremy Baker, Erick Smith and Jamie Collzo. On offense was Ross Babb, Justin Lewis and Justin Norman having good games.

The 8th graders will host Crosbyton here Thursday night at Antelope Stadium.

*We're your experts.
We're your team.*

*We're YOUR hospital,
YOUR medical center.*

It began as a team, a team with vision.

In the late '60s a team of people from West Texas joined together to pursue a dream, a dream of a first class School of Medicine at Texas Tech University. They also envisioned a first class teaching hospital working hand-in-hand with Texas Tech to serve the medical needs of the families living in this area and for generations to come.

This team included Gov. Preston Smith, Bill Parsley, Dr. Brandon Hull, John Logan, Delwin Jones, Bill Clayton, Reed Quilliam, Elmer Tarbox, Doc Blanchard, R.B. McAlister, and countless others including our County Commissioners, the Texas Tech Board of Regents, Hospital District officials and other West Texas Legislators. Through their collective efforts, University Medical Center opened its doors on February 1, 1978.

In the years that followed, others joined the team to secure and preserve this dream. Speaker Pete Laney, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, Sen. John Montford and others worked to bring the Texas Tech Medical Center into continued prominence.

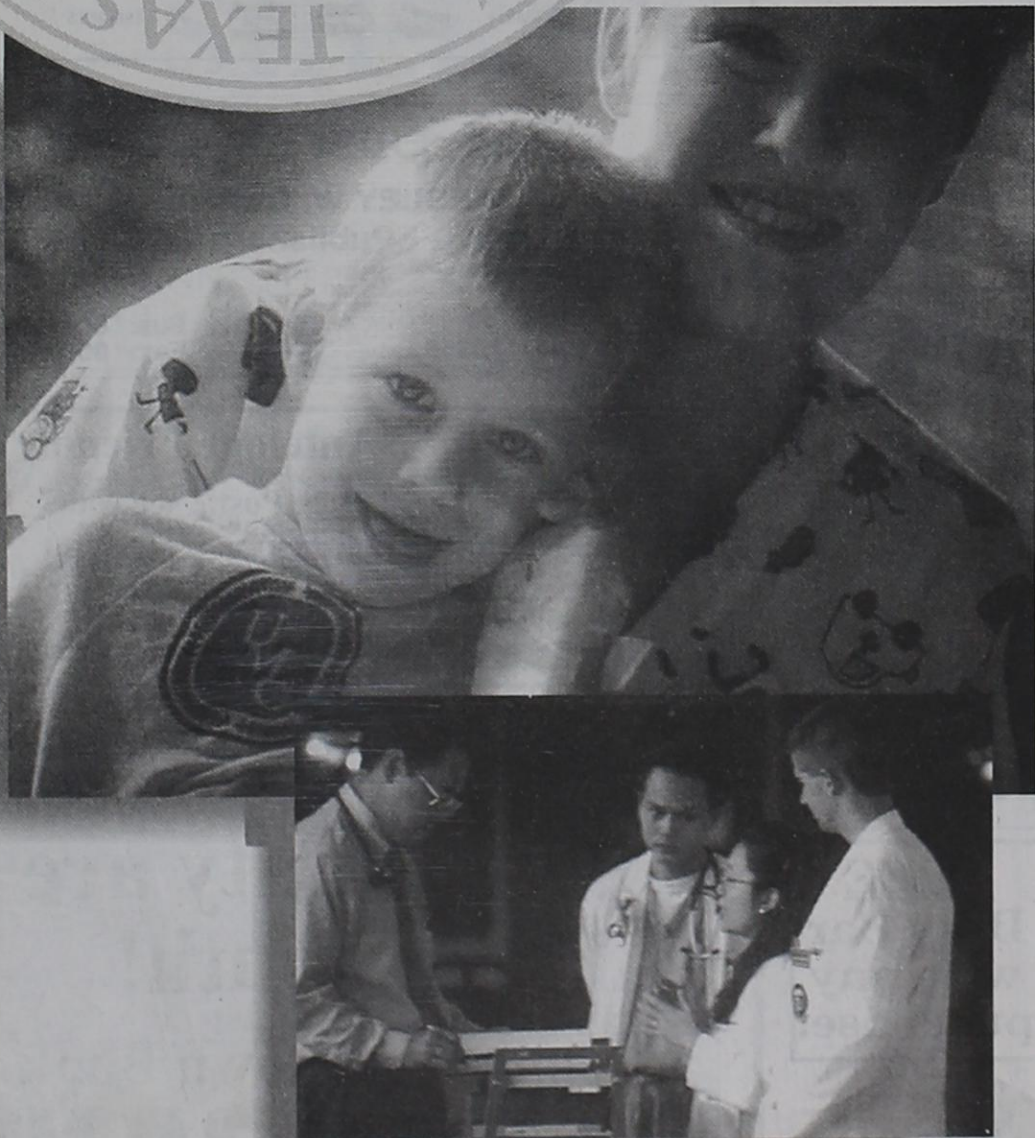

With the help of these leaders and the support of the community, our team has brought a new level of care and a number of "firsts" to the region. UMC was the first Lubbock hospital to provide:

- EMS with paramedics
- Neonatal Intensive Care Unit
- Pediatric Intensive Care Unit (PICU)
- ECMO (Extracorporeal Membrane Oxygenation)
- Burn Center
- Institute for Pain Management
- Bone Marrow Transplantation
- Kidney Transplantation

This tradition of firsts continued in 1993 when University Medical Center received the state's first Level One Trauma designation.

Leaders and programs such as these and University Medical Center's affiliation with today's Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center ensure that we are on the leading edge of patient care, research and technology.

It's still a team today, a winning team with vision.

Red Ribbon campaign for 1996

The Red Ribbon campaign began as a passionate, grassroots expression of concern. It was initiated in 1985 by a group of parents in Illinois and Virginia following the brutal murder of Enrique Camarena, a Drug Enforcement Administration agent, by drug traffickers. By urging citizens to wear the symbolic red ribbon, they created the backbone of support for the Red Ribbon Campaign.

Today, the red ribbon symbolizes the commitment of countless citizens fighting to eliminate substance abuse in their communities. The Red Ribbon Campaign is now an ongoing comprehensive alcohol and other drug abuse prevention education program with the last week in October being designated as Red Ribbon Week.

In Texas, the annual Red Ribbon campaign is undertaken and promoted by Texans' War on Drugs. At the local level, the campaign is under the direction of the S.T.A.R.S. organization at

The Campaign is set for October 19 - 25 this year. S.T.A.R.S. are working with various local organizations and the Elementary/Primary School and the Middle School to make Red Ribbon Week 1996 a week to remember. Watch for all the red ribbons, posters and programs to come. BE DRUG FREE !!!!

German Food

by Betty Dennis

German food is usually thought of as being very bland. This has not always been the case. Throughout the middle ages Nuremburg was the center of the spice trade for all of Northern Europe and spices were "the status symbol" of the day. In the later half of the 1700's the "French" style of cooking became popular and herbs gained favor as spices waned. One dish that retained its flavor is the Spice Cake, with many versions, but the most famous is the one with seven spices to commemorate the biblical story of creation.

The three foods most commonly associated with Germany did not have their origins there, but perhaps were perfected by German cooks.

Sausage is available in over 300 varieties, but was common as far back as the Greek and Roman Empires.

Germans now eat more potatoes per capita than any other Europeans, but that did not come easy. The rest of Europe had embraced the potato, which is from South America, about 100 years before Frederick the Great posted soldiers in the fields and forced farmers to plant, harvest, market and eat the tuber.

Sauerkraut's first mention in ancient writing is in China. It was in the provisions provided to workers on the Great Wall which was started in 400 BCE. The Tartars brought it to Germany when they invaded in the 1200's.

Germany's cooks continue to change their food, just as the food of all the world reflects our living history. Pork and beef have always been favorites, followed by various fowl. Recently the workers from Arab countries have made lamb gain popularity.

Germany has many festivals and many of them are religion or harvest related. The most famous of all did not start out as such. October Fest was the wedding reception of Ludwig I of Bavaria. Ludwig was considered a wise ruler. His grandson was Mad King Ludwig who is most famous for his castles which Disney recreated.

Visit the Post Public Library to learn more about German food. Also, watch the Dispatch for the date the Main Street Cafe will serve German food to commemorate October Fest.

Post Public Library hours are Monday, 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 2 p.m. to 6 p.m.; Tuesday 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.; Wednesday thru Friday 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. with the Library closing on Saturday and Sunday.

Letters to the Editor

What if... you had been on wrong side?

What if you had been driving on the wrong side of the road? Is the patrolman supposed to wait until there is an "injured party" (like a head-on collision)?

What if dare-devils and careless thrill-seekers used the Lubbock highway for high-speed racing and muscle-car dragging?

Are taxpayers supposed to pay for public highways that they can't use without risking serious injury?

How would you get to Lubbock if the highway was unsafe? Would it make any difference that you had a constitutional common law complaint, against some negligent speedster, if the "injured party" was one of your loved ones?

I confess I don't know just where to draw the line as to the highways.

Jerry Burnett, Ladonia

Editor's Note: When my brother and I were younger, we, as did our children later, played a vicious game of "what-if?" One of my favorite "what-if" questions was posed by our sons on many occasions as we traversed this wide and spacious country when they were five to seven years old. "Dad," the question would begin, "what if the sun crashed into the earth?" Or, another favorite went like this, "Dad, what if the earth stopped turning?" I could go on, but my brother's questions open a whole vista of interesting "what-ifs."

So, let's take them one at a time.

First, I wish to emphatically insist that the writer (my brother) misunderstands my position on enforcing highway codes and regulations. It is the common sense of travel and common standards accepted by the vast majority of drivers that regulates safety on the highway.

With or without traffic signs or enforcers, drivers, the overwhelming majority of whom do not seek harm to themselves or others, will drive according to their best interests. In that I mean they will be on the alert for potential hazards. Those who are not alert, and there are plenty of them on the roads, are not going to be more alert because there is a statutory rule written somewhere.

I remember very early in my driving training (and it was not a sanctioned government program), our Uncle "Sam" (a nickname for William Paul Samuel, our mother's brother) emphasized very strongly, as only he could do, to constantly be on the look-out for "those crazy" other drivers. "Keep your eyes moving," he insisted, "look ahead... not just over the hood, but way out there."

See an intersection, up ahead, be careful, stop signs don't work... watch out." I could go on and on with the list of stuff he hammered away at me. The point is simple, there is no security on any roadway, private or public. And making or enforcing statutes, pretending that this will stop idiot behaviors, is not only silly, it is downright foolish.

I will admit, however, that it is very difficult for most of us to comprehend what real freedom is all about... because we have been brainwashed for three generations to believe that somehow government rules will protect us. If that were so, then there would be absolutely zero accidents on our highways. But there isn't, and that is proof enough that statutes don't protect people... but they are very handy tools for controlling people.

The dare-devil racers and other "bad" guys that worry my brother have always been out there, and are out there right now. Rules and regulations will not change their behaviors.

So, back to my brother's question, "do we have to wait for an injured party to stop a person driving on the wrong side of the road?" Let's pretend for a moment that you are driving and actually witness someone driving on the wrong side of the road. For the sake of this "what-if" question, let's pretend that there are no "law" enforcers anywhere around. What is the proper response for you? Will you just keep on going and "let the next guy" take care of the problem? If it is a serious violation of law, would you take the time and risk of your own well being to try to intercept or correct the wrong-sided driver?

You see, common sense then has to be involved. What is the common sense approach to this "what-if" problem? I've never really faced this, so it is difficult for me to figure out the proper response. Question is, what would be the proper response for a peace officer who happened to be around? Naturally, common sense would apply here, and because the wrong-sided driver is a threat, the peace officer has a lawful obligation to intercept in some way... not because there is a statute about driving on this or that side of the road, but because it is a clear case of endangerment to others. It is the same situation as a man pointing a loaded gun at some other's head... that situation requires a defensive response.

Another point made by the writer is the question about taxpayers and what they should expect from public highways. If highways were privately owned, then each motorist would, through a contractual agreement by paying a toll for use of the road, be required to adhere to the rules and regulations of the owner of the road. This eliminates the problem of government rules and regulations. If a highway owner abuses his/her customers, well then, the owner will soon be bankrupt, other owners will step forward to fill the gap.

Taxpayers are not owners of anything... they have been duped into believing that since they pay taxes to upkeep the roadway, that somehow they have ownership. Expectations are based on false premises. The owner of the roadway, a government or its agency, could care less what taxpayers think or say. Legislative dictatorship operates outside of the law for the interest of those who pay the most bucks for influence, and it is certainly not those of us who pay taxes. The trucking industry is a prime example. Highways are predominantly built with trucking as a high priority... and for good reason, but it has nothing to do with safety or security or taxpayer concerns... it is money which drives the design and operation of highways... and the trucking industry pumps billions into the political coffers of politicians who write the rules and regulations, and oversee the enforcers.

An important answer to the riddle about "what-ifs" on the highways rests in the re-establishment of courts of common law in every county. Only when jurors are free to hear evidence, ask questions and investigate, then and only then will the guilty be assessed appropriate damages to deter "dare-devil" drivers and other irresponsible behaviors.

The problem we face today is that the judicial system is unjust, unfair and ineffective. Juries are screened, manipulated and controlled to the point that guilty often get soft reprimands, while their victims are left in the lurch. When common law is re-instated, when juries are free of the shackles of codified statutory rules and regulations, the punishment will be in direct proportion to the damages.

Then, and only then will the guilty be made to suffer strong enough to cause them to change. Instead of relying on ineffective rules and regulations, we will be protected by a common law heritage that sends the strongest of messages to those who would step beyond common sense and injure another person or their property... "you will be held accountable, and your punishment will get your attention."

I'd like to see giant billboard signs at the entrances to all the highways coming into Texas... they would say, "Welcome to Texas, a common law nation, you will be held accountable for your actions!"

Come to Church!

by David Graves, Calvary Baptist Church
"Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is, but exhorting one another..." Hebrews 10:25
The scripture above reminds us that it is important to be found in church. Have you ever set down and thought about this for a moment? Why is this important? Before we examine the reasons together, I will admit that we live in a busy world and there are many demands on our time. I can tell you from experience that it is worth every effort we make to attend church.

What are some of the reasons that we should attend church? First, we do it because the scripture commands us to do it. Second, it is a witness to those who are not in church when they drive by our churches on Sunday and Wednesday during the services. Third, church is the one place in the world where you can come and find acceptance.

Fourth, Church is a place that exist for the sole purpose of meeting God on a regular basis. Fifth, in spite of all our faults as individuals ( and we all have them), we need each other! Sixth, we need to be an encouragement to the Sunday School teachers and officers in the churches. Seventh, our presence speaks, at least in part, about what we think of Jesus.

Finally, we must not allow ourselves to be counted among the, "...as the manner of some is..." group that the above scripture speaks of. I must be counted as one who will be found in the House of the Lord at all of the appointed times.

I realize that there are those who are not well and cannot be in church. However, if you are able, will you make the commitment today to be in the church of your choice this coming Sunday? See you in church!

Card of Thanks

The loss of our son and brother, Alvin Hahn, has made our hearts heavy with grief and sadness that would have been unbearable had it not been for the love, prayers and kindness of our many friends and neighbors.

For this, please accept our heartfelt thanks for the visits, food and your offers of help.

Our special thanks to Brother Darryll Smith, Bo Jackson, Larry Moore and Mary Margaret Norman for a beautiful service that lifted our hearts.

We also wish to thank the pallbearers - Robert Hahn, Larry Hahn, Tommy Allredge, Jimmy Draper, Lee Norman, Keith Bullard and along with Dee Justice did a wonderful job that made the burden easier to bear.

Thank You,
Billy and Cleo Hahn
Dewey and Barbara Stevens
Billy Jr., Charlene, Angelia and Kimberly Hahn

We would like to thank everyone for their concern, phone calls, gifts and prayers during Lori's recent surgery and recovery. Donna and Lori Jones.

We would like to thank everyone for their visits, cards, flowers and prayers at the time of our loss. We also appreciate all of the food that was brought and the meal that was prepared by the Methodist women. We offer a special thanks to Twin Cedars and the EMT's for the care given Daddy. The love and concern shown by Rev. Payne and Rev. Smith was a blessing to all of us.

God bless you,

State Capital HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams & Ed Sterling
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Gov. George W. Bush ordered the Department of Public Safety to dispatch 100 more troopers and narcotics agents to an 80-mile-long sector of the border with Mexico.

In August, the DPS beefed up its numbers around Eagle Pass, to stop the flow of illegal drugs. Ranchers in that region have complained that armed drug smugglers are invading their property. The smugglers are bringing in at will huge caches of heroin, marijuana and other drugs from Colombia and Mexico.

State officials say the magnitude of the problem warrants immediate federal assistance, but the federal government has not met requests for more agents and air surveillance.

Public Safety Commission Chairman James B. Francis Jr. of Dallas told the Dallas Morning News that foot-dragging by President Clinton's drug czar, former Gen. Barry McCaffrey and other federal officials, has slowed the interdiction effort.

"All we have gotten is one excuse after another when we asked them for help. What you get is a bunch of lip service and no action," Francis said.

McCaffrey said it will be two years before enough U.S. Border Patrol agents will be available. Texas will be assigned 100 of the 1,000 agents who are being trained, while California will be assigned the other 900 agents.

Francis criticized the apparent inequity. "We've got 700 miles of border and (California has) 100 miles. It's completely irrational rationing manpower according to need," he said.

Traffic Death Toll Leaps

Traffic deaths have increased 17 percent across Texas and 30 percent on rural interstate highways since the state began raising speed limits last December.

In an analysis of accident reports from Dec. 8 to June 30, the Austin American-Statesman reported last week that at the present rate, about 3,600 people will die in traffic accidents in Texas this year — the highest total since 1985. The traffic death toll during the period was 1,936, compared with 1,655 traffic deaths between Dec. 8, 1994 and June 30, 1995.

"It's worse than I even thought it would be," said Bob Draper of the National Traffic Safety Institute. "But it's not totally unexpected. You now have people driving not just 70 but 80, 85, even 90 mph. At those speeds, when an accident happens, people die."

Dev Tulsiani, an engineer for the Texas Department of Transportation, said his agency hasn't yet pinned the blame for double-digit increases in traffic deaths on the higher speed limits. The fact that more drivers are on the road might figure into the equation.

Bush Submits Welfare Plan

Meanwhile, last week, Gov. Bush sent to U.S. regulators a plan implementing federally mandated changes to the welfare system, while incorporating reforms passed during the 1995 Texas Legislature.

Although states have until July 1997 to submit such plans, Bush submitted Texas' plan months ahead of the deadline to retain an additional $72 million in federal funds for the "Texas for Temporary Assistance for Needy Families" — known as the Aid to Families with dependent Children program before the new federal welfare overhaul.

Bush made the decision to send the plan to Washington after Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and House Speaker Pete Laney said they were satisfied with it.

The state was budgeted to get $414 million in AFDC funds in the current budget, the Dallas Morning News reported. Bush's action means the state will receive a $486 million lump sum payment — $72 million more than it would have otherwise received, the Houston Chronicle reported.

Federal regulators have 30 days to review Texas' 97-page plan to see if it meets requirements.
