Thousands of acres could be left out of CRP

By RICK WHITE Managing Editor

Bailey County farmers bid in almost twice the allotted amount of land during the 26day Conservation Reserve Program sign-up period that ended March 28.

A total of 141,829 acres in Bailey County were bid into the 11-year-old federal program that pays farmers to idle crop land, according to the Farm Service Agency.

The average bid was between $35-38, which included a $5 maintenance fee.

A total of 637 farmers bid. Under CRP rules, the most Bailey County can get accepted into the program is 91,006 acres, or 25 percent of the total registered crop land, unless a waiver is granted to accept more.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture is expected to announced in June which land has been accepted in to the program.

Some FSA officials were caught off guard by the high numbers.

"I blame that predominantly on the drought we're in," said Bailey County FSA executive director Kim Hanlin. "If it was teasible to plant the land and make a profit, they wouldn't be bidding it into CRP."

CRP contracts in Texas covering 2.5 million acres and nationally covering 22 million expire Sept. 30.

About 32.9 million acres are now enrolled in 10-year contracts around the country.

Under the new rules, equal weight will be given to erosion, water quality and wildlife habitat in determining which of the estimated 240 million eligible acres nationally will be accepted into CRP.

Soil erosion is the only area in which West Texas will rate high.

In order to be eligible, land had to have an erodibility factor of at least 8. The average for Bailey County was 13 according to the Soil Conservation

Mules rout Dimmitt behind Kemp's no-hitter

By RICK WHITE Managing Editor

There was no fist pumping or jumps of joy after Layne Kemp tossed a fiveinning no-hitter Tuesday at Dimmitt.

He just smiled.

It's about as close to showing an emotion as the Muleshoe High School junior gets.

Kemp (3-4) allowed just four base runners and got plenty of offensive support from his teammates as Muleshoe hammered Dimmitt in a 14-0 District 1-3A game called after five innings because of the 10-run mercy rule.

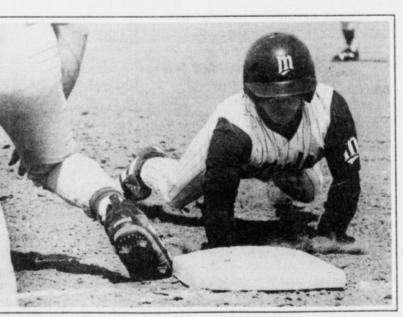

Muleshoe coach Brad Hill was excited about the no-hitter and hustled out to the mound to congratulate his staff ace after the final out.

"I said, 'Hey, Layne! You know you threw a nohitter! He just looked at me and said, "Yes, sir.' He just had a smile on his face He's real calm and mild-mannered."

He had his coach fooled. "I was pretty nervous, I just tried not to show it," said Kemp, who struck out 10 and walked two. Muleshoe (7-7) broke

Local spotters play key role for NWS

By SAMUEL VILLARREAL Journal Staff Writer

A group of 50 law enforcement officers and volunteer firefighters from the Muleshoe area attended a tornado spotting seminar Wednesday, where they learned to identify severe weather.

The National Weather Service held a training seminar Wednesday at the Earl M. Ladd Fire or tornadoes often produce clouds with several Station to help local spotters identify severe weather before it happens.

NWS meteorologist Jody James, who conducted the seminar, said local spotters may be more important this year than years past.

"Last year was a weak year (for severe weather)," James said. "This years looks like it will be at or above average."

James said the recent outbreaks of storms in the Panhandle and South Plains areas will probably be a common sight this year.

Council dumps trash proposals

By RICK WHITE Managing Editor

The Muleshoe City Council Wednesday rejected proposals from two private contractors to take over the city's solid waste disposal.

The Council unanimously rejected proposals from Browning Ferris Industries (BFI) of Amarillo and South Plains Waste Services of Olton.

The city will re-open bidding in hopes of attracting additional proposals.

Browning Ferris is an acknowledged international leader in the solid waste industry while South Plains is a small, relatively new company.

Muleshoe City Manager James Fisher said the two proposals were from opposite ends of the spectrum, making them hard to compare.

"We really need to explore all the options available," said Fisher, adding that he has received calls from two or three other firms inquiring about the contract.

"We need to find someone that will be our partner in solving all our sanitation issues. Waste management is more than just picking up the trash and hauling it to the landfill."

The switch to a private contractor to handle the city's waste disposal would be permanent, Fisher said.

The current budget for waste disposal is $249,276 a year.

Under new state guidelines, the city must close its Type I landfill by October. The landfill will be full before then, Fisher said.

BFI's bid of $14.95 a month for residential customers was substantially higher than in other communities, according to Fisher.

Fisher said the BFI's residential fees in other communities are in the $10-12 range and include both Type I (perishable) and Type IV (bulk items) service.

The bid submitted to Muleshoe was for Type I service only.

This factor will be based on the offer amount and whether cost-share is involved.

"Not a soul was comfortable with what they bid, "Lutz said. "They just didn't have any idea how price would weighed."

James said the NWS uses radar equipment to track storms and alert spotters before storms systems approach their area.

Even with all the high-tech equipment, James said the NWS still relies heavily upon local storm spotters in times of emergency. Because they are surrounded by intense storm activity, some tornadoes can remain undetected by even the most sophisticated weather radar.

"We often receive calls of visual confirmation of a tornado," James said. "When we look at our radar, there isn't anything there.

"When the NWS confirms severe weather, the first thing we do is alert local law sheriff's stations and police departments in the area," James said.

James said television stations provide the best means to quickly alert a large number of people when severe weather strikes.

The City of Muleshoe maintains one alert siren, which is located at the Earl M. Ladd Fire Station. Muleshoe Police Chief Rick Henegar said the siren is powerful enough to heard throughout the city.

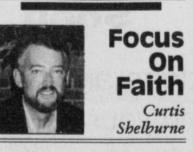

Henegar said he would like to see an increased emergency alert system and plans to meet with city officials to discuss the matter.

McCall said rain in the Maple area was spotty, with ### subscribe, call 272-4536 Here's a Gift You and I

Could Never Afford

To accept something we have in no way earned can be difficult. It offends our sensibilities. It kills our pride. To learn that we have no claim to the "bread of righteousness" but must look up to God for "the crumbs of grace" feels a great deal to us like accepting charity, taking a handout, receiving a gift which would indebt us deeply and forever to the Giver. It seems that way, well, because it is that way. How, we religious folks want to know, can we obtain salvation? How, our un-churched friends want to know, can we find genuine happiness, fulfillment, contentment?

All "ways" to salvation that have ever been tried boil down in the final analysis to only two: grace through faith or law through works. Gift? Or wage? They are mutually exclusive. We must choose.

Ah, but to accept such an undeserved gift would be deadly to our pride. Yes, it would. Which is precisely what God intended. Some of us, well-intentioned but seriously mistaken (and deperately needing to spend some time grappling with Paul's Letter to the Romans) worry, "If salvation is based completely on what Christ has already done, what does that leave for me to do?" as if we might not only be humbled, we might be out of work! How else, we want to know, can I show that I've earned God's gift? But a gift that is earned is no gift at all.

Behind our question lies one like this: "Do you mean to say that I've lived all of my life as a good Christian but that a serial killer who truly repents and accepts Christ is just as acceptable to God as I am?" Yes. And if that hurts, our pride is not dead yet, and we have far too high an opinion of ourselves. (Read Matthew 20:1-16.)

Is Christ's sacrifice all-sufficient? Or is it not? Gift? Or wage?

If you can add something to His sacrifice, at least part of your salvation becomes a wage. And if part is a wage, what part? How much? How can you ever be sure that you've worked enough? And if you can never be sure, how can you ever really be at peace with God? You can't. Not that way. It won't work. It never has.

The Good News is that we can have peace. Salvation is always available. Wonderfully. Freely. As a gift. Once our pride dies. Once we lower ourselves to accept the most expensive gift ever given. It is a gift bought and paid for. But you didn't buy it. Nor did I. Nor could we. Ever. It was bought by Christ. For you. For me. A lifetime spent loving Him and His children is the proper response to His love, but it will never earn for us what is already freely given.

By RICK WHITE Managing Editor

Seniors Cari Faver and JoBeth Gilleland hope to finish their high school track careers the same way they started — with a district title.

Faver and Gilleland are two of the big reasons why Muleshoe is among the favorites to win the girls title at the District 1-3A track meet Thursday at Canyon Randall High School.

Sanford-Fritch and Perryton also figure in the hunt.

We don't have quantity, but we do have quality," Muleshoe coach Kim Zollinger said. "We have a chance to win, or at least contend, in every event.'

Zollinger rates Sanford-Fritch as the slight favorite because of depth.

"It's been hard," admitted the two-time regional qualifier in both races. She went to state in the 1600 as a sophomore.

Gilleland said she was disappointed when the Lady Mules participated in a weaker class at the Deaf Smith Relays in Hereford two weeks ago.

"I really wanted to see how we would have done," Gilleland said about competing against some of the top Class 4-5A schools in the Panhandle. "You always run faster when someone is pushing you."

Gilleland qualified for regionals in the 300-meter hurdles last year.

The 800 meters is shaping up to be the most interesting race at district.

Lindsey Dudley of Sanford-Fritch has the best time (2:29.6) heading into the meet, but Muleshoe freshman Stacy Locker is right on her heels.

Also in the mix are Leigh Ann Ogden of Perryton and Shawna Kenworthy of Dimmitt.

Locker has run a 2:31.1 and can do better if she's pushed, according to her coach.

"Cari and Stacy have been basically been running by themselves all season,' Zollinger said.

Locker also figures to finish second behind Faver in the 1600.

Other strong favorites include Jenae Mincher of Sanford-Fritch in the 200 and 400 meters; Mindy Mason of Sanford-Fritch in the discus; and Whitney Ellis of Friona in the 100-meter hurdles.

Preliminaries start at 9 a.m. Field events start at 1:30 p.m. with the finals at 5 p.m.

County Heart Association holds meeting

At the monthly meeting recently held of the Bailey County Chapter of the American Heart Association several community related items were discussed.

One of the events being worked on at this time is the Hoops for Heart which will take place at Watson Junior High and De Shazo Elementary. This is going to take place either late April or early May.

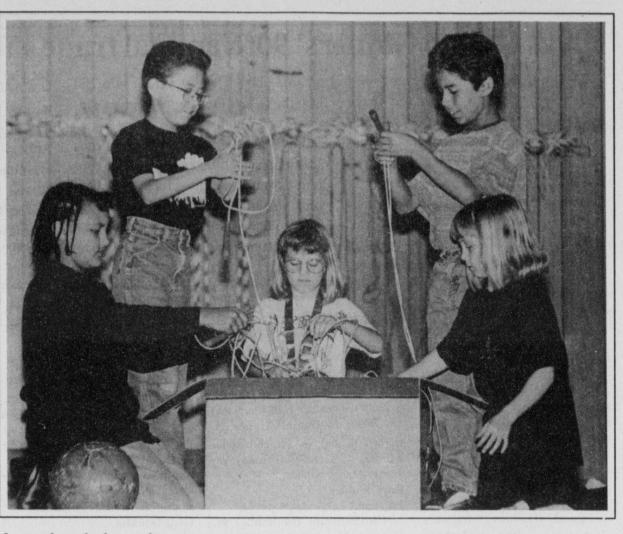

Also discussed were the Memorial Mailings that have already gone out in First Bank's statements and are scheduled to go out either April or May in Muleshoe State Bank's statements.

Another event that the public is invited to sign up for is an adult CPR class that is going to be held at the Dillman gymnasium on Saturday, May 3, from 9-12. There will be "hands on" instruction. Anyone who attends will receive a certification that will last two years and a manual.

Walkers are needed to participate in the American Heart Association Heart walk that will take place April 19 from 9-11 a.m. at the Muleshoe High School track. In case of bad weather, the Heart Walk will be moved to the civic center.

Heart related illnesses have made up at least 40% or the total deaths in Bailey County since 1992. An incomplete list of honorary chairpersons includes the Jim Gruhlkey family and Dr. Bruce Purdy. Several community groups will be walking and raising money for this important event. Those who raise $50 or more will get a T-shirt. The young and the young-at-heart are encouraged to participate.
