Oil field accident kills local worker

by Sheri Lewis

A 32-year-old Post man died Friday afternoon after apparently being electrocuted in a work-related accident.

Although few details were made available, the Dispatch has learned that Robert Lee Soto, an employee of Mason Brothers Construction, was transported to University Medical Center in Lubbock shortly after noon on Friday, according to reports. He died at the hospital.

Local EMTs were summoned to the accident scene, which was on the old Rocker A field west of Green Tank near Justiceburg, according to scanner reports. Volunteer firefighters were called out to assist in devising a place for the medical emergency helicopter to land.

Details as to how the accident occurred were not made available.

No information pertaining to the accident was available from the sheriff's department. A representative for Sheriff Cliff Laws said the investigation is ongoing and the sheriff's department could make no comments regarding the incident.

Federal officials with the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) reportedly are involved in the investigation.

Unfinished LAH building to be razed after report cites structural problems

by Sheri Lewis

The skeleton of the would-be emergency building at Lake Alan Henry will be torn down after Garza County officials learned at a special called meeting Monday that problems exist with the unfinished structure.

Rich Oller of Oller Engineering reported to the court that the unfinished structure's concrete floor and steel framing have problems and if the building is completed around the existing portions, the resulting structure would be unsuitable for use by the public.

Following discussion and a review of photos provided by Oller, the court moved to demolish the existing structure, which was constructed by Miller Construction.

In other business, the court discussed an invoice and letter submitted by Miller Construction. Following the discussion, commissioners voted unanimously to allow the local construction firm to take down the unfinished steel structure, directing that such action should be completed by Feb. 3. Following the removal of the structure, the firm will be paid $2,109, or half of the cost of the concrete slab, and the firm will be allowed to keep the scrap metal.

The court also determined that if Miller Construction fails to tear down the unfinished structure, the county will not make any payments to the firm and the structure, as it stands, will become the property of the county.

In October, the court, frustrated by the lack of progress on the emergency building, terminated its contract with Miller Construction, the original contractor for the project.

The original contract for the all-metal building to be erected near the entrance of the Sam Wahl Recreation Area at the Lubbock-owned lake, was finalized in late 2004.

Several weeks ago, commissioners contracted with Rockin' S Welding to complete the unfinished building. Following the action taken by the court Monday, it was unclear as of press time what, if any, timeline has been set for the erection of a new structure.

The court also authorized the county clerk to make necessary arrangements to move the precinct voting place from the unfinished LAH emergency building to an "appropriate location" in time for the March 7 primary election.

Services for Soto were conducted Wednesday at the First Baptist Church. Burial followed in the Terrace Cemetery. Hudman Funeral Home handled arrangements.

Soto's survivors include a wife, three sons and two daughters, according to information from the funeral home.

LAH developer charged with terroristic threat

by Wes Burnett

Lake Alan Henry land developer Jody Ashley of Kent County surrendered voluntarily Tuesday afternoon to Garza County Constable Daniel Yarbro at the constable's office in Post following the issuance of an arrest warrant charging Ashley with making terroristic threats against Garza County rancher Will Senn.

Ashley was booked in by the Garza County Sheriff and was expected to post bond on the Class B Misdemeanor charge, awaiting trial on the charge.

The incident was investigated by Yarbro, who says that he is continuing to investigate other issues related to Ashley's confrontations with Senn.

Reports indicate that Ashley was seen Sunday cutting Senn's fence on County Road 378 in the vicinity of the bridge which was being inspected by the county's engineer Rich Oller along with construction contractor Joe Marts. Yarbro said that no charges had been filed regarding the fence damages.

Informed sources report that on Monday morning Ashley confronted Senn on Senn's ranch, issuing a terroristic threat. Senn called Judge Giles W. Dalby, who was moderating a special called meeting of the Garza County Commissioners' Court.

Judy's Jabberin'

by Judy Ballentine Bush

Hello,
 Well, I'm never gonna believe a weatherman again!!! Wanted rain, even snow so bad, but oh well. Maybe next time.

SYMPATHIES

I want to send my thoughts and prayers to the family of Lucille Baker. I have known Lucille for many years and I know what she meant to her family, immediate and extended. She will be greatly missed I know, but God certainly has a wonderful new angel. You are all in my prayers.

THE YEAR 1905

This will boggle your mind, I know it did mine!

The year is 1905.

One hundred years ago.

What a difference a century makes! Here are some of the U.S. statistics for the Year 1905:

The average life expectancy in the U.S. was 47 years.

Only 14 percent of the homes in the U.S. had a bathtub.

Only 8 percent of the homes had a telephone.

A three-minute call from Denver to New York City cost eleven dollars.

There were only 8,000 cars in the U.S., and only 144 miles of paved roads.

The maximum speed limit in most cities was 10 mph.

Alabama, Mississippi, Iowa, and Tennessee were each more heavily populated than California.

With a mere 1.4 million people, California was only the 21st most populous state in the Union.

The tallest structure in the world was the Eiffel Tower!

The average wage in the U.S. was 22 cents per hour.

The average U.S. worker made between $200 and $400 per year

A competent accountant could expect to earn $2000 per year,

A dentist $2,500 per year,

A veterinarian between $1,500 and $4,000 per year, and

A mechanical engineer about $5,000 per year.

More than 95 percent of all births in the U.S. took place at home.

Ninety percent of all U.S. doctors had no college education.

Instead, they attended so-called medical schools, many of which were condemned in the press and by the government as "substandard."

Sugar cost four cents a pound.

Eggs were fourteen cents a dozen.

Coffee was fifteen cents a pound.

Most women only washed their hair once a month, and used borax or egg yolks for shampoo.

Canada passed a law that prohibited poor people from entering into their country for any reason.

Five leading causes of death in the U.S. were:

1. Pneumonia and influenza
2. Tuberculosis
3. Diarrhea
4. Heart disease
5. Stroke

The American flag had 45 stars.

Arizona, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Hawaii, and Alaska hadn't been admitted to the Union yet. (Should have left Oklahoma out)

The population of Las Vegas, Nevada, was only 30!!!

Crossword puzzles, canned beer, and ice tea hadn't been invented yet.

There was no Mother's Day or Father's Day.

Two out of every 10 U.S. adults couldn't read or write.

Only 6 percent of all Americans had graduated from high school.

Marijuana, heroin, and morphine were all available over the counter at the local corner drugstores.

Back then pharmacist said, "Heroin clears the complexion, gives buoyancy to the mind, regulates the stomach and bowels, and is, in fact, a perfect guardian of health." (Shocking!)

Eighteen percent of households in the U.S. had at least one full-time servant or domestic help.

There were about 230 reported murders in the entire U.S.

Now I forwarded this from someone else without typing it myself, and sent it to you in a matter of seconds!

Try to imagine what it may be like in another 100 years.

It staggers the mind.

AMAZING ISNT IT?

TILL NEXT WEEK

Guess that is it for this week

Everyone please remember in your prayers, we need rain in the worst way. May God bless each of you.

See you next week.

Bomber flyovers...

Statement is available for review at the Post Public Library, according to a press release issued by the Dyess Air Force Base Public Affairs Office. The statement, said to address "potential impacts from the RBTI proposal," also is available for review at www.cevp.com.

According to the Web site, RBTI is a proposal designed to provide "realistic bomber training for B-1B and B-52 aircrews from Dyess and Barksdale Air Force Bases."

The initial environmental impact statement was released to the public in March 1999. Four alternatives were outlined, and two of those alternatives - B and C - were drawn to include portions of West Texas. (Maps of the alternatives are available on the Web site.)

These alternatives were subject to some alterations following a Federal Aviation Administration study, according to information on the Web site. In March 2000, the Air Force identified Alternative B for implementation.

Following this determination, the Davis Mountains Trans-Pecos Heritage Association and Buster Welch sued the Air Force and FAA, charging failure to comply with National Environmental Policy Act requirements, according to the Web site. Both lawsuits were dismissed in early 2003, but an appeal and a separate petition were filed. In an opinion handed down by the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, the adequacy of the RBTI Environmental Impact Statement was upheld, but the Air Force and FAA were "remanded... to prepare a Supplemental EIS which adequately addresses wake vortex impacts and the FAA comments as required by Council on Environmental Quality and Air Force regulations."

The Supplemental EIS, the subject of the upcoming hearing, was prepared in compliance with the court order.

According to information from the Web site, the Supplemental EIS includes information pertaining to the Air Force's re-evaluation and analysis of potential impacts of aircraft wake vortices on structures, vehicles, individuals, wildlife and livestock.

"The analysis presented in the RBTI Supplemental EIS demonstrates that wake vortices, except under rare atmospheric and wind conditions from standard B-52 and B-1B low-altitude flights, fail to generate sufficient wind velocities to damage ground structures and vehicles or pose a hazard to people or animals on the surface," the Web site states.

The Lubbock public hearing actually represents part of a 45-day extension to allow for additional public comment on the environmental impact statement. Each individual interested in speaking at the hearing will be given a time allotment, according to information from the Web site, and an opportunity to speak.

Comments will be accepted by mail through Feb. 17 and should be mailed to Ms. Sheryl Parker, RBTI SEIS Project Manager, HQ ACC/A7PZ, P.O. Box 65399, Langley AFB, VA 23665-5399.

Ashley arrested...

The court session was recessed while Dalby discussed the matter with Senn. "Mr Senn told me that Ashley confronted him on his ranch, and Ashley told Senn that if he found Senn off his (Senn's) property he'd kill him."

Ashley and his associate Lawayne Feagin are developing land on the south side of Lake Alan Henry and have been at odds with Senn over the use of the county road, which splits Senn's ranch. Garza County commissioners recently entered into an agreement with Senn for right of way and are currently contracting for replacement of the bridge which is on the county road.

Additional details were not available as of press time Tuesday afternoon.

County...

Following a brief recess, the court accepted the conveyance by Mr. and Mrs. Wilford C. Senn of a public road right-of-way easement (CR 378/Fuller Road) across Section 111 of the Covered S Ranch; signed a resolution of abandonment regarding the county road right-of-way across Section 111 as recorded in 1935; and approved payment of an invoice pertaining to fence work performed by Pancho's Fencing & Welding for a project along CR 378. The invoice totaled $21,990.

The court also adopted welding guidelines to be used during the current emergency/drought period (see this week's Dispatch for details concerning the guidelines).

Booster Club plans T-shirt sales, concession trailer

The Post Antelope Booster Club met Jan. 9 in the high school library to work out plans for several upcoming events and activities. Items discussed included the printing of a black Post baseball shirt with the words "No Target, No Thrill" on the back. After voting to go ahead with the project, the group decided the booster club will take orders for the shirts. The group also discussed possibly doing T-shirts for the softball team. Rex Cash reported that the superintendent has approved the Booster Club's purchase of a trailer. The trailer, which will be 7 x 16 with three windows, will cost approximately $9,000. Delivery could take about six weeks. The Post Relays are scheduled for April 1, but the Booster Club will have a problem operating the concession stand because there is a baseball game at Abernathy on the same date. It was discussed that the group should ask another organization if they are interested in operating the concession stand. The group discussed preparations for the May 1 All-Sports Banquet. Minutes from the last meeting were read and approved. Members present at the meeting included Rex and Terri Cash, David Nichols, Rodney and Vicki Gray, Wes Burnett and Coach Tim James. The group's next meeting will be at 6:30 p.m. Feb. 6 in the high school library.

On God's Word

By Timothy W. Burnett

Judas is replaced with Matthias

After our Lord Jesus ascended into heaven to be with his Father, the disciples returned to Jerusalem from the Mount of Olives. We will look at Acts 1:12-26.

Upon their return to Jerusalem they lodged in an upper room and continued together in prayer and supplication. Many of the women were with them including Mary the mother of Jesus. Jesus' brothers were also there. According to custom, the women would have stayed in another room.

Verse 13 lists the disciples. Judas is missing from the list. Sometime after Jesus gave instructions to the disciples and his ascension, Judas left to the place where he eventually killed himself. According to verse 17, he was numbered with the apostles and obtained part of the ministry. This was the same Judas who guided the Jewish leaders and Roman soldiers to Jesus. Judas purchased land with some of the money given for his service as a guide. Later a came back to the land and intentionally fell on a sword. Verse 18 gives a pretty detailed description of this moment. From that time on, the field of land was popularly known as the field of blood.

This was the subject of Peter's words to all the disciples, and finished by quoting from Psalms 69:25 and 109:8, "Let his habitation be desolate, and let no man dwell therein. And his overseeing position let another take." Also, please notice that Peter referred to Judas as still having this position up to his death. Peter understood the love of God enough to know that even Judas could have changed and served as one of the first apostles. We've already seen in the Gospels how all the chosen apostles forsook Jesus when he was arrested, and how none of them believed the report of Mary the Magdalene. The difference was that Judas was consumed with a rebellious heart, and when he saw the Lord Jesus ascend to God in heaven he no doubt fell vulnerable to the will of satan to the point of killing himself.

After talking about Judas, Peter took charge of the process to replace Judas according to the scripture in Psalms. He said, "Wherefore of these men which have companied with us all the time that the Lord Jesus went in and out among us. Beginning from the baptism of John to that same day that he was taken up from us, must one be ordained to be a witness with us of his resurrection" (Acts 1:21-22). They chose two of the disciples, Joseph Barsabas surnamed Justus and Matthias. They prayed, "Lord who knows the hearts of all, show which of these two you have chosen, that he may take part of this ministry and apostleship, from which Judas by transgression fell, that he might go to his own place." They put forth the lots and the lot fell upon Matthias, and he was numbered with the eleven apostles.

There was a reason for picking somebody who had been with Jesus from the baptism of John until the day he ascended. Romans 10:9-10 teaches that believing with the heart that God raised Jesus from the dead is unto righteousness. The twelve had to be fully persuaded from the inner depths of their minds that Jesus was and still is the son of God and that God raised him from the dead. As we will see in Acts 2:4, righteousness related to being filled with holy spirit.

Bush, Iran and the Press

by Bill O'Reilly

With most of the American press firmly against the war in Iraq and many media types portraying President Bush as a bumbling fool, the danger we all face from Iran is being shrouded in a fog of partisan bitterness.

In a very underreported story, the International Atomic Energy Agency announced that Iran is resuming its uranium enrichment program, which is necessary to develop nuclear weaponry. The Iranians say they don't want a nuke, they want more electricity. And if you believe that, I have a Victoria's Secret franchise in Teheran I'd like to sell you. The mullahs control plenty of electricity.

Iran is clearly thumbing its nose at the world and is doing so because it believes the USA has been weakened by the war in Iraq, and Europe is too cowardly to do anything other than complain. The fanatical Iranian mullahs are, as one diplomat put it, rolling the dice and daring the world to stop them.

Of course, if Iran does develop nukes, the odds of Al Qaeda gaining access to them are high. What better way to attack the "American devil" than by using a nuclear device? And the mullahs could always claim they had nothing to do with the attack. Remember, it was a rogue Pakistani scientist, Abdul Qadeer Khan, who sold nuclear stuff to Libya and, perhaps, to North Korea. The Pakistani government claimed to know nothing about it.

Now it is hard to imagine that the left-leaning, anti-Bush press, both here and abroad, would encourage President Bush to take aggressive action against Iran. In fact, my guess is any saber rattling by Washington would be greeted with partisan skepticism and scorn in the media.

The question then becomes: Has the White House been intimidated by the chaos in Iraq? With faulty CIA intelligence both before and after 9/11, has Mr. Bush lost the credibility, and perhaps the confidence, to take bold action against Iran?

This is a crucial question as the mullahs challenge the world. Even though Jacques Chirac and Vladimir Putin say they are fed up with Iran, talk is cheap, and these guys are a discount warehouse; in the end, it will probably be left to the USA and Great Britain to deal with Iran's nuclear ambitions, although Israel is a wild card.

This is the real deal, and every American should understand the danger. The chief Iranian leader, Mahmoud Ahmadinejad, wants Israel wiped off the face of the earth and denies the Holocaust ever took place. Obviously, Israel is not going to allow nukes in Iran.

So while some in the anti-Bush media continue to pile on the president at every opportunity, those of us who understand the war on terror are growing increasingly uneasy. The mullahs and terrorists believe the Bush administration is seriously weakened and are watching with great glee. No way in the months directly after 9/11 would these guys have pulled this stuff. But now they are emboldened by the struggle in Iraq and the apathy at the United Nations.

The mullahs are arrogant, dangerous and heading for trouble. I hear Iran's new motto might be a steal from Vegas: "What happens here, stays here. And blank you if you don't like it."

With nukes now in play, that's a recipe for disaster. Veteran TV news anchor Bill O'Reilly is host of the Fox News show "The O'Reilly Factor" and author of the book "Who's Looking Out For You?" ## Attacking lobbyists wrong battle

by Walter E. Williams

Jack Abramoff, the Washington lobbyist who's pled guilty to charges of conspiracy, fraud and tax evasion, has showered millions of dollars on the campaign coffers of both Republican and Democrat congressmen. Like a kid caught with his hands in the cookie jar, many congressmen seek to distance themselves by purging their coffers of Abramoff money. Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist, R-Tenn., in reaction to Abramoff's guilty plea, has pledged to "examine and act on any necessary changes to improve transparency and accountability for our body when it comes to lobbying."

Whatever actions Congress might take in the matter of lobbying are going to be just as disappointing in ending influence-peddling as their Bipartisan Campaign Reform Act of 2002, known as the McCain-Feingold bill. Before we allow ourselves to be bamboozled by our political leaders, we might do our own analysis to determine whether the problem is money in politics or something more fundamental.

Let's start this analysis with a question. Why do corporations, unions and other interest groups fork over millions of dollars to the campaign coffers of politicians? Is it because these groups are extraordinarily civic-minded Americans who have a deep interest in congressmen doing their jobs of upholding and defending the U.S. Constitution? Might it be that these groups and their Washington-based lobby arms, numbering in the thousands, just love participating in the political process? Anyone answering in the affirmative to either question probably also believes that storks deliver babies and there really is an Easter Bunny and Santa Claus.

A much better explanation for the millions going to the campaign coffers of Washington politicians lies in the awesome growth of government control over business, property, employment and other areas of our lives. Having such power, Washington politicians are in the position to grant favors. The greater their power to grant favors, the greater the value of being able to influence Congress, and there's no better influence than money.

The generic favor sought is to get Congress, under one ruse or another, to grant a privilege or right to one group of Americans that will be denied another group of Americans. A variant of this privilege is to get Congress to do something that would be criminal if done privately.

Here's just one among possibly thousands of examples. If Archer Daniels Midland (ADM) used goons and violence to stop people from buying sugar from Caribbean producers so that sugar prices would rise, making it easier for ADM to sell more of its corn syrup sweetener, they'd wind up in jail. If they line the coffers of congressmen, they can buy the same result without risking imprisonment. Congress simply does the dirty work for them by enacting sugar import quotas and tariffs. The two most powerful committees of Congress are the House Ways and Means and the Senate Finance committees. These committees are in charge of granting tax favors. Their members are besieged with campaign contributions. Why? A tweak here and a tweak there in the tax code can mean millions of dollars.

You ask what can be done? Campaign finance and lobby reform will only change the method of influence-peddling. If Congress did only what's specifically enumerated in our Constitution, influence-peddling would be a non-issue simply because the Constitution contains no authority for Congress to grant favors and special privileges. Nearly two decades ago, during dinner with the late Nobel Laureate Friedrich Hayek, I asked him if he had the power to write one law that would get government out of our lives, what would that law be? Professor Hayek replied he'd write a law that read: Whatever Congress does for one American it must do for all Americans. He elaborated: If Congress makes payments to one American for not raising pigs, every American not raising pigs should also receive payments. Obviously, were there to be such a law, there would be reduced capacity for privilege-granting by Congress and less influence-peddling.

It Takes Government to Create a Reading Crisis

by Sheldon Richman

When Horace Mann and his colleagues launched the public-school movement some 175 years ago, they made extravagant promises. Turn the education of children over to enlightened altruistic experts working under government auspices, they said, and literacy, vice, and crime will become things of the past.

I'm not kidding. Most people don't know about these promises, so they don't know how badly the government's schools have failed by their own standards. Apologists for state schooling often defend their abysmal record by saying that no one should expect the government's teachers and administrators to efficiently educate children who bring all of society's problems with them to the classroom. But that's what the founders of what used to be called the "common school" pledged.

The broken promises continue. The schools have a hard time teaching reading. Consider the U.S. Department of Education's latest literacy figures. The department's press release began thus: "American adults can read a newspaper or magazine about as well as they could a decade ago, but have made significant strides in performing literacy tasks that involve computation, according to the first national study of adult literacy since 1992." Of course, this raises the question of how well adults could read a newspaper or magazine a decade ago. Therein lies the tale.

The department defines literacy as "using printed and written information to function in society, to achieve one's goals, and to develop one's knowledge and potential." Now let's look at what percentage of high-school graduates, college graduates, and graduate-school students and degree-holders qualified as "proficient" in the three kinds of tasks used in the study. The three tasks are "prose," able to perform tasks using continuous texts; "document," able to perform tasks using noncontinuous texts in different formats; and "quantitative," able to do computations with numbers embedded in printed material. "Proficiency" is defined as having the "skills necessary to perform more complex and challenging literacy activities."

According to the study, in 1992, 5.3 percent of the high-school graduates tested were proficient in the three kinds of tasks. In the latest study (2003) this percentage dropped to 4.6.

For college graduates the percentages were 36 in 1992 and 29 in 2003. For graduate students or holders of graduate degrees, the percentage went from 45 to 36.

When the three kinds of tasks are broken down, we find no improvement in the ten years. The best that can be said is that in a couple of categories, the results were unchanged.

Results were slightly different for changes in the "intermediate" literacy category, defined as having skills to perform "moderately challenging literacy activities." The percentage of high-school graduates in this category declined slightly from 44 to 42 in the ten years. For college graduates and graduate-level students, there were increases, from 48 to 53 for the former category and from 45 to 50 for the latter.

When you look at the percentages in the basic literacy and below-basic categories for high-school and college graduates and graduate-level students, the results are downright depressing. In many cases the ranks of these categories have grown; in others they improved a little or stayed the same.

This is hardly a ringing endorsement of government schooling. Despite what the state's teachers and experts might imply, learning to read is not that difficult.

Children used to teach themselves with only light guidance from a parent. It takes a government to create a national reading crisis.

These results will undoubtedly be used to justify more government spending on education. President Bush is proposing more than a $100 million to promote education in foreign languages -- in the name of fighting terrorism. (Oh, please!) It is time we stopped being fooled by the people who are responsible for the education mess. As if we needed more evidence, this latest study shows that it's time to separate school and state.

Electric Cooperative Offers Scholarships

Scholarship deadlines are drawing near and South Plains Electric Cooperative, your local Touchstone Energy(r) cooperative, doesn't want anyone to miss an opportunity. The Operation Round Up Board of Directors approved awarding a minimum of 20 scholarships at $1,000 each for the 2006-2007 school year, payable $500 for each of two semesters. This scholarship is for entering freshmen who are seeking a college, university or technical school education.

You are eligible if you are currently a senior in high school or enrolling in college for the first time, and are a member, spouse of a member, child or stepchild of a member or child whose legal guardian is a member of the Cooperative and a participant in Operation Round Up. Students must possess the qualities of honor, integrity, thrift, good moral character and a sincere desire to achieve their educational goals. The Selection Committee evaluates each student on grades, community and school activities, awards and honors, educational goals and financial need. Deadline for applications is March 1, 2006.

Two other scholarships are also available to children of electric cooperative members. The Golden Spread Electric Cooperative Directors Memorial Scholarship and the Texas Rural Electric Women's Association Scholarship give students two additional scholarship opportunities, just because their families are members of an electric cooperative. It's just another way South Plains Electric Cooperative looks out for its members.

All scholarship applications can be downloaded in PDF format at www.SPEC.coop. They are also available by calling Cheryl Wampler at (806) 775-7856 or email at cwampler@SPEC.coop.

South Plains Electric Cooperative serves about 45,000 connected meters in Childress, Cottle, Crosby, Dickens, Floyd, Foard, Garza, Hale, Hall, Hardeman, Hockley, Kent, King, Lubbock, Lamb, Lynn, Motley and Stonewall counties. When you see Touchstone Energy(r), you know this is a locally owned, community-minded, electric cooperative providing high standards of service for customers large and small.
