for each registered voter to show a valid photo ID in order to cast a ballot. For those who do not have any acceptable forms of identification, then an Election Identification Card can be obtained from any Department of Public Safety location at no charge.

If you are voting by mail, you do not have to submit photo identification and if you have a documented disability, you may apply to your county voter registrar for a permanent exemption from the photo identification require-

There will be nine proposed amendments on the ballot for the Nov. 5 election in Texas. While most will be related to a variety of amendments regarding ad valorem tax exemptions, most West Texas residents likely will be concerned with Proposition 6, which would ensure proper water resources be allocated to the communities that need them most.

The amendment proposes providing for the creation of the State Water Implementation Fund for Texas and the State Water Implementation Revenue Fund for Texas to assist in the financing of priority projects in the state water plan to ensure the availability of adequate water resources. If the proposal passes, communities devastated by drought may qualify for assistance from the state

Women's Chamber

Clark, Grisham visit Chamber women

Members of the Women's Division Post Area Chamber of Commerce met Oct. 9 in the home of Naomi Matzler, who prepared a fabulous meal for the ladies in attendance.

Members present included Marie Neff, Donna Degan, JoAnn Seltzer, Betty Posey, Linda Puckett, Olive Shaw, Anna Gibson, Michelle Gibson and Pat Cruse.

President Cruse opened the meeting with a prayer, followed by the pledge to the U.S. flag.

After conducting a brief business meeting, Cruse introduced guest speakers Roberta Clark, administrator of Golden Plains Health Care Center, and Pixie Grisham with Post Cares, a faith-based community organization providing assistance to residents and others throughout the area.

Both Clark and Grisham discussed their respective business and organization, latest activities and the services each provides residents of Post.

Cruse thanked the ladies for a wonderful program and commended each for the work she does in the community. Cruse commented the information provided would help the Women's Division move forward with planning the organization's Christmas project.

The group next will meet Nov. 13.

The Women's Division of the Post Area Chamber of Commerce was established more than 50 years ago as an auxiliary branch of the Chamber whose membership comprised wives of downtown business owners.

The group, which actually survives that of the original Chamber, was organized to create civic consciousness while encouraging and aiding in the development of the Post community.

Members represent all segments of the community: women in business, retired women, women who volunteer and women in government. The Women's Division is actively involved in numerous projects that benefit the community, including awarding a scholarship to a deserving graduating high school student.

The group raises funds for various nonprofit organizations and also sponsors the "Yard of the Month" contests, usually held each May.

Area county, district clerks conclave in Post

Special to the Dispatch

Members of the Region 2 County and District Clerks Association of Texas gathered for their fall meeting last week at the Heritage House.

About 40 clerks from the area attended the daylong continuing education conference Oct. 4. Region 2 covers 32 counties reaching to Wichita County to the east, Bailey County to the west, south to Borden County and as far north as Floyd County.

Topical subjects were presented by specialists from across the state. Nannette Forbes of the Texas Association of Counties spoke about the latest law changes that affect district and county clerks.

The morning continued with Dean Stanzione, director of court administration for Lubbock County, who discussed the implementation and troubleshooting of the mandated electronic-filing rule affecting civil cases in district and county courts. While larger counties have launched the program, the start date for smaller-populated counties, such as Garza, is July 2016.

Swisher County Election Administrator Richelle Culifer discussed polling place procedures concerning the new photo voter identification requirement. The morning concluded with a short course on records management basics by Linda Lemon, the central archivist and records manager for Lubbock

After lunch, the education continued with instruction on electronic filing by clerks to appellate courts by Vivian Long, deputy clerk of the Seventh Court of Appeals in Amarillo. Following were separate breakout sessions, then a business meeting and the day concluded with a drawing for door prizes.

Garza County Judge Lee Norman welcomed the group of clerks to start off the day. Post City Councilwoman Pixie Grisham was on hand to offer the invocation. Jim Plummer, district and county clerk for Garza County, coordinated and hosted the event.

A breakfast, morning snacks and a lunch were catered by PJ's Catering from the Heart. The food service was sponsored by Cogniserve and Kofile, vendors who serve clerks' office needs.

Prior to the event last Friday, the clerks, presenters and vendors who spent the night on Thursday were treated to a cookout at the Hotel Garza Bed and Breakfast.

As the participants entered the Heritage House the next morning, they were greeted and were registered for the conference by Janice Plummer and Linda Alaniz of the Post Area Chamber of Commerce.

Jim Plummer said, "The conference was well attended, the presenters were professional, the food was delicious and the Heritage House and its services made for the perfect place for this event."

County and district clerks throughout the region gathered last Friday at the Heritage House in Post for their fall conference. Jim Plummer, clerk of courts for the county and district, coordinated the affair and hosted the event.

Members of the County and District Clerks' Association of Texas, Region 2, meet for a continuing education conference Oct. 4 at the Heritage House in Post.

Tech Chancellor Kent Hance set to retire Menu

Special to the Dispatch

Texas Tech Chancellor Kent R. Hance announced during the Oct. 11 Board of Regents meeting on Lubbock campus that he will retire in 2014 and has agreed to become chancellor emeritus of the Texas Tech University System.

Hance, who became chancellor on Dec. 1, 2006, said serving his alma mater "has been a dream for me. I love what I do, and I want to continue to help this great institution any way I can.'

Mickey Long, chairman of the Board of Regents of the Texas Tech University System, said, "Our chancellor has done fantastic work in raising the national profile of the Texas Tech University System. I am pleased that he has agreed to continue to support our universities."

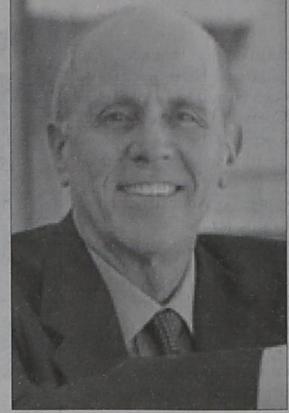

After becoming chancellor emeritus, Hance will maintain an office on the Texas Tech University campus and will be available to assist the TTU System's next chancellor on projects. He will continue to teach his extremely popular seminar class on leadership.

The Dimmitt native, who graduated from Tech in 1965 with a bachelor's degree in business administration and the University of Texas in 1968 with a law degree, pointed out that when he became chancellor less than seven years ago the TTU System had been in existence 10 years and consisted of two universities — Texas Tech University and Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center.

"Today," Hance said, "the Texas Tech University System has doubled in size with the addition of Angelo State University and the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center at El Paso. We now have facilities throughout the state."

Enrollment on the main campus in Lubbock topped 33,000 students this academic session and pushed total enrollment to more than 44,000. The university's most recent capital campaign that raised more than $1 billion for the system.

Hance is the third chancellor in the history of the TTU System, which was established by the Board of Regents in 1996 and formally created by the Texas Legislature in 1999. Former Texas Sen. John Montford served in the office from 1996 until 2001 and Dr. David Smith held the office from 2002 until early 2006.

HAVE A GREAT SEASON!

8th annual Tom Butler event kicks off Saturday

By Wayne Hodgin The Post Dispatch

Tom Butler was one of the region's shining stars of the cowboy and ranching community when his life was tragically cut short in a vehicle accident in February 2006.

The Texas Tech student from Guthrie might have been only 18 years old when he died, but he fast was becoming a West Texas rodeo legend in many respects.

His mother, Traci Butler, said her son was one of those rare individuals who had a memorable and positive impact on everyone he met — young and old.

"He lived life with infectious passion and purpose, with the wisdom of someone three times his age," Butler said.

First held in the fall of 2006, only a few short months after his tragic death, the Tom Butler Memorial Bronc Riding event was a way for Butler's memory to live on and his rodeo dreams alive.

Since its inception, the event has raised nearly $100,000 in scholarship money for scores of high school seniors. Because of the tremendous growth in the event, the scholarship awards have increased every year. Since 2006, the event has awarded scholarships to every applicant who has applied.

During its first two fledgling years, the Tom Butler Memorial was held in Seymour but has since moved to the Post Stampede Rodeo Grounds in Post.

"We felt like the city of Post was a better allaround location for the event not only because of the better rodeo facilities but also because of its proximity to Lubbock," Butler said. "It's continued to evolve over the last six years and gotten bigger and bet ter."

5,000 to Post City, now the official home of the Tom Butler Memorial Bronc Riding event.

"The city of Post, the Post Stampede Rodeo music."

Committee and the residents of Post have been overwhelmingly supportive of our event," Butler said. "I can't say enough good things about them. We're very appreciative to them and to the dozens of volunteers throughout the region who help put the event on."

The 2013 eighth annual Tom Butler Memorial Bronc Riding event will kick off at 9 a.m. Saturday at the Post Stampede Rodeo Grounds. The Calcutta-style competitive selection will begin at 11 a.m., and the riding commences about noon. The awards presentation is slated for 5

Vendors, including food and drink booths, will be set up at the arena and will be open to the public from 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. A silent auction also will be conducted throughout the day. Jake Hooker and the Outsiders will perform a dance from 8 a.m. to midnight.

"We encourage all area residents to come out Indeed it has. Last year's event drew more than in support of our cause this weekend," Butler said. "I can't think of a better weekend spent than at a rodeo with lots of fun, food and good

The first Texas South Plains Honor Flight was chartered last year, and this year is the first year that two Post veterans were able to join.

The group was expected to visit a number of war memorials, despite the shutdown of the federal government, which closed parks and monuments across the country.

A group of Mississippi Honor Flight veterans made news earlier this week when they broke through the barricades prohibiting access to the World War II Memorial. Park rangers didn't stop them, and have since ensured veterans have access to the site.

Court rejects case against election law

By Ed Sterling Special to the Dispatch

AUSTIN — A three-judge panel of the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals on Oct. 3 rejected a case challenging the constitutionality of a 2011 Texas election law regulating deputy voter registrars. In a 2-1 ruling, the majority of the panel said the plaintiffs Voting for America Inc., Brad Richey, Penelope McFadden and Project Vote Inc. "have not made a clear showing" that certain provisions of the law violate

Voting Rights Act. Plaintiffs challenged these five points in the state election law: (1) Prohibition of non-state residents from serving as volunteer deputy registrars;

(2) Prohibition of a volunteer deputy registrar from serving as such in more than one county;

(3) A compensation provision;

(4) Prohibition from photocopying or scanning voter registration applications submitted to a deputy voter registrar but not yet delivered to the county registrar; and

(5) Prohibition of voter deputy registrars from sending completed voter registration applications via U.S. mail.

reversed a lower court ruling

and ordered that the case be sent back to the district court level for further proceedings. Fifth Circuit Judge W. Eugene Davis dissented.

Tax revenues climb again

Texas Comptroller Susan Combs on Oct. 9 announced that state sales tax revenue in September was $2.01 billion, up 2.7 percent compared to September 2012.

"State sales tax revenue collections continued to grow at a moderate pace," Combs said. "Growth was led by collections from the construction, telecommunications and retail sectors. State sales tax revenue has now increased for 42 consecutive months."

The state comptroller's office will send cities, counties, transit systems and special purpose taxing districts their October local sales tax allocations totaling $579.8 million, up 5.2 percent compared to October 2012, Combs said.

DPS gives enforcement count

State Highway Patrol troopers made more than 1,600 DWI arrests during a special enforcement period recently, which included the Labor Day holiday, the Texas Department of Public Safety announced Oct. 8. The citations, more than 3,540 seat belt/child safety seat citations, 1,223 fugitive arrests and 977 felony arrests.

The targeted DWI enforcement period spanned 18 days and included additional patrol hours funded by a Texas Department of Transportation grant.

The precise count of DWI arrests was 1,682, and 218 of those arrests were a direct result of the increased patrols funded by the TxDOT grant, DPS Director Steven McCraw reported.

TXDOT plans to name names

The Texas Department of Transportation on Oct. 2 announced it is notifying the top toll violators and giving them a deadline to pay their overdue tolls or be included on a list the agency will publish in the next two weeks.

Authority to report the names of violators publicly and other powers were provided by Senate Bill 1792 passed in the recent legislative session, TXDOT said, adding that drivers owe more than $27 million in unpaid tolls-money that will be used to pay debt and fund operations on these roads.

"Everyone using our state's toll roads is responsible for paying to use them. Chronic violators are ultimately taking from tolls," said Sen. Kirk Watson, D-Austin, the author of SB 1792. "The bipartisan support for SB 1792 reflects how strongly the legislature feels about going after toll road abusers who are looking for a free ride."

Cuckoo protection is proposed

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service on Oct. 2 announced its intention to propose to add the yellow-billed cuckoo to a list of protected animals under the Endangered Species Act of 1973.

Preferred habitat of the yellow-billed cuckoo, according to Texas Parks & Wildlife, includes open woodlands with dense undergrowth, overgrown orchards and pastures, moist thickets and willow groves along stream

Grand jury does not in-

A Travis County grand jury on Oct. 4 declined to indict Travis County District Attorney Rosemary Lehmberg for her conduct after she was arrested on April 12.

Lehmberg, who serves as the state's chief ethics prosecutor, on April 19 pled guilty to drunken driving and served about three weeks of a 45-day jail sentence.

Lehmberg still faces a lawsuit seeking to remove her from office for intoxication.

Dixie Divas Looking to help

They all come with some kind of a price and all with a certain amount of disappointment but still Rodney keeps trying.

He likes to help people. It's something as deeply born in him as his constantly smiling blue eyes or wit that is quicker than a summer storm that brews when it comes up a cloud. He helps us all, so much so that there is often little time left to help himself. But for his family, his neighbors and his church friends, his help is always appreciated and rarely taken for granted. We know his heart and know that the talent with which the Lord has blessed him immensely is his gift RICH for service to his fellow man.

He'd never be so bold as to say so, but it's his calling. The same way another man picks up a stethoscope or another takes up the Bible. Rodney was called to help those in need. Mostly, the needs are simple, just time consuming such as a bale of hay delivered to a neighbor or a brother-in-law, a child picked up from school or someone who just needs a word of advice or encour-

He has bigger projects, too, though. I can't count the number of times I've seen him take a wayward soul in, clothe him, find him a place to live and make sure he had something to eat. Most of the times, he tends to hire them, too. He's always looking for a good worker on the farm.

And since I can't count those times, I'd be at a loss to count the times that they just couldn't be helped. Sometimes they disappear into the night. Sometimes they leave with Rodney owing them wages and sometimes they are bold enough just to quit to his face and head up the road.

Still, he keeps trying. I guess that is the most perplexing part of all — he keeps trying. After all the let downs and disappointments — I'm trying to think of one true success and either there isn't one or it has just escaped me — he digs his heels in and goes right back Here's why it's perplexing: Rodney is the cynic of the family. The pessimist. Before winter's chill has even melted into spring, he will be expecting a summer's drought and worrying about what he'll do for hay. Before a new calf is born, he will be wary over whether it will survive. Before he has his annual physical, he will prepare himself for bad news.

Yet despite all the ones who brought their hard luck stories to him and he reached out a hand that somehow got bit, he never gives up. He keeps believing in the innate goodness of people and that one day he will find someone to help and that it will make a lasting difference in their lives and those around them.

I remember that morning in Sunday school when his eyes teared up — Rodney's tender heart brings him to tears a lot — and told of the people who wanted to help. Their child was desperately sick, they had nowhere to go and no food to eat.

"Why don't we put them in the little house down here that church owns and let's help them."

We followed our general in battle. Furniture was given, food donated and heat bought. Someone found him a part-time job. They seemed grateful. It lasted until winter had faded and spring was coming.

I called Rodney to tell him I knew of a job for the man. He sighed. "He's gone. Long gone."

He sounded resigned. He's long used to it by now. But he won't quit helping. When it's born in you like it is with Rodney, you just keep doing the best you can to help those in need.

And one day, it's gonna stick good with one of 'em.
