LARGEST COTTON CROP

GOVERNMENT BUREAU GIVES STATISTICS ON THE YIELD FOR LAST SEASON.

STRICT MIDDLING AVERAGE

Notwithstanding Crop of 1908 Larger Than Yield of 1907, It Was Sold at $20,000,000 Less.

Washington, June 2.—Bulletin 100, which has just been issued by the Bureau of the Census, consists of a report on the production of cotton in 1908, prepared under the supervision of William M. Stuart, chief statistician for manufacturers, by Daniel C. Roper, expert chief of division.

The finally revised figures for the crop of 1908, expressed in equivalent 500-pound bales and including linters, show a total production of 13,587,306 bales. This represents an increase over 1907 of 2,211,845 bales, or 19.4 per cent. It is the third largest crop ever produced, being exceeded only by the crops of 1904 and 1906, and is 378,751 bales larger than the average crop of the last five years.

Of the total production in 1908, 5,232,128 bales, or 45.9 per cent, came from the territory west of the Mississippi River while the States east of the Mississippi contributed 7,355,178 bales, or 54.1 per cent.

The production reported for Texas, 3,913,084 bales, is the second largest recorded, being exceeded only by that of 1906, which was 368,740 bales larger. This State showed a falling off in 1907 of 41.9 per cent as compared with 1906, but increased its crop in 1908 by 65.8 per cent over 1907. Texas produced 28.8 per cent of the total for the country in 1908; 29.8 per cent in 1907; and 31.5 per cent in 1906.

Notwithstanding the fact that the crop was 2,211,845 bales larger than the crop of 1907 and that the spinning qualities of this crop was superior, it has been disposed of by the growers at approximately $20,000,000 less than that of 1907.

Put Main On Causeway.
Galveston: The county of Galveston Tuesday entered into a contract with the city of Galveston for the placing by the city of its duplicate water main in and on the causeway. TOM BARNETT SHOT TO DEATH.

Was In Cell Under Sentence of Life In Prison.

Ablene: Tom Barnett, convicted of the murder of Alex Sears and sentenced to serve ninety-nine years in the penitentiary, was shot to death Friday morning about 1:30 o'clock by a mob of masked men, who entered the jail where he was confined, awaiting the section of the higher court.

About fifty masked men assembled in the jail yard and began seeking entrance to the jail. They were met at the door by Jailer L. L. Peery, who was overpowered and badly injured about the back.

After about a half hour's work the mob finally succeeded in breaking through the outer door of Barnett's cell, but could not force the inner door. Some one in the mob cried: "Let's shoot him," and his words were followed by a regular fusillade of shots from Winchesters and revolvers. Fifteen shots in all entered Barnett's body.

Packery Business Enormous.
Boston, Mass.: The four big Chicago packers, Swift, Armour, Morris and Cudahy, and their associate, the National Packing Company, do an annual gross business of nearly $800,000,000, a total greater than that of the Steel Corporation in its biggest year, 1907, when gross sales reached $757,000,000.

New Braunfels Has Big Fire.
New Braunfels: Two large feed sheds, adjoining the Landa oil mill, caught fire Sunday and burned to the ground with all their contents. Ten thousand bushels of corn, an immense quantity of cobs, two tons of baled hay, 2,000 tons of baled shucks and other feed, and a large corn sheller, besides a box car were destroyed.

MOBS ARE WRONG

The killing of Tom Barnett, in the Abilene jail, last week, by a heartless mob, and the serious injuries inflicted on the jailer, again reminds us of the danger that lurks in every county where such people as compose these lawless gangs reside.

Tom Barnett was charged by indictment with the murder of Alex Sears. At the last term of the District Court, a jury of twelve good Taylor county men sat on the case, and after hearing all the evidence, they returned a verdict of guilty and assessed his punishment at 99 years in the penitentiary.

Last Monday Messrs. Foster, Cole and Westbrook went to San Angelo and had a conference with the interested parties there. The committee on the bonus are now at work, and will not cease until everybody shall have had a chance to subscribe.

These are the cold facts about the railroad, and reader can judge for himself as to what the prospects are. Our people are working like beavers and we shall soon see what will be done.

A FINE CALF

On the 7th, inst., one of the Jersey cows which Higher Bros. purchased at the St. Cloud Farm, at San Antonio, last winter, gave birth to a bull calf, that for high pedigree, perhaps, outranks any Jersey in this part of the state.

"Eminent 2nd," the grand sire of this calf, took the first prize on the Island of Jersey two years in succession, and when imported to this country, he was sold at public auction for $10,000. A fall sister to the paternal grandame of the new bossy, was a Jersey Island prize taker, and when brought over to the States sold for $5,000.

For aristocratic ancestry, the little bovine can lay claim to the best blood the world has ever produced. The little fellow is a typical Jersey, and has all the marks of his noble ancestors. He lives and grows up on a diet of mesquite grass, in this climate where cattle acquire a constitution like the buffalo, he will be heard from later on.

When asked what he was worth, Mr. Fisher shook his head and said he did not know, but it would take $500 to buy the calf now.

A GOOD RAIN

A fine rain, accompanied by a fearful electric storm, fell here last Tuesday night.

The cloud formed in the northwest, and for two hours there was a continual dash of lightning. The wind shifted to the northwest, and for a time it looked like we were in for a destructive wind storm. Many of our people sought their storm houses for safety, but the wind soon ceased, and for a half hour a nice rain fell.

The rain extended over the north and northwest part of the county.

RAILROAD DOINGS

Mr. Lanin Here Last Saturday—Citizens Meet Saturday Night And Take Steps To Raise Bonus

Last Saturday, J. J. Lanin, the railroad promoter, met a goodly number of our citizens and told them he was ready to construct a railroad to Sterling from some point on the Santa Fe near San Angelo, as soon as the Sterling people put the $50,000 bonus and secured the right of way through the county.

Saturday night a large number of citizens met at the court house Chairman W. L. Foster stated the object of the meeting. A committee of three persons was appointed to secure the right of way for the road.

For the purpose of conferring with San Angelo and other towns, W. L. Foster, Eugene Westbrook and J. S. Cole were appointed as a committee. This committee were to meet at San Angelo and prepare suitable subscription blanks for raising the bonus, which has been done. A committee of seven were appointed to solicit subscriptions—they to begin as soon as they secured the proper blanks.

Last Monday Messrs. Foster, Cole and Westbrook went to San Angelo and had a conference with the interested parties there. The committee on the bonus are now at work, and will not cease until everybody shall have had a chance to subscribe.

These are the cold facts about the railroad, and reader can judge for himself as to what the prospects are. Our people are working like beavers and we shall soon see what will be done.

FATAL FIRE AT DALLAS

Reverend Hooten, of Our Town Has Grand Son Burned To Death

Last Sunday morning, about 4 o'clock, the Knight building, at Dallas, in which several families were rooming was discovered on fire. D. C. Dannelly and family were among the occupants of the building, and the Dallas News has this to say:

"D. C. Dannelly, his wife, Mrs. Hetta Dannelly, and four children were on the front of the third floor. Taking each one of the younger children and calling to the elder to follow, the man and woman leaped from the front window to the awning. The man was removed from this by the firemen. He has injuries of the face and many bruises. Mrs. Dannelly, with the child in her arms, passed through the awning of tin. She sustained cuts on the head and breast. Her left leg was fractured near the thigh. Her right arm was broken above the elbow. She had other hurts. The two children had many slight bruises, but are running about playing today. Annie, the older, was not badly hurt. Herschel, the 10-year old boy, failed to jump. His body, burned to a crisp, was found at the window ledge of the room on the third floor, the one fatality of the fire."

Mrs. Dannelly is a daughter of our fellow townsman, Rev. J. B. Hooten, to whom we extend our sympathy for the loss of his grand son and the injuries to his daughter and her family.

THE TOWN COW

The old cuss provoking, break-fence cow is again abroad in town. Her trail is strewn with mutilated flower beds and the shrunken stubs of rare shrubbery, now give mute testimony of the devilish destructive proclivities of the old thief. That bean and roasting ear patch, on which the owner had spent much time and coaxing and fondly dreamed when he would regale himself with snap beans and green corn at the noon-day gastronomic hour, all vanished down the omnivorous maw of the town cow, his dreams of joy turn to maledictions, while his thoughts dwell in the two barrels of his shotgun.

"THE OLD LOVE"

Poem That Influenced Chicago Society Woman, After Third Separation From Husband, to Return to Him---Strict Conditions Are to Govern the Reunited Household.

And in its home—the human heart— It hath a master spell, The old love—the old love— It worketh strong and well; Ay, well and sure it worketh, And casteth out amain Intrusive shapes of evil— A sullen, spectral train; The serpent, Pride, is created, And Hate hath lips of gall; But the old love—the old love— 'Tis stronger than them all!

CHICAGO.—Though given to what some of her friends and acquaintances call morose and contemptuous views and tenets, like the members of a sect or school of philosophers founded by Antisthenes, of whom Diogenes was a disciple, Mrs. F. K. Parker, a society woman of this city, is to-day a living example of what the old love will do.

In a novel she has just written she calls married life a farce and love nonsensical. Yet she has taken back her husband for the third time, her latest divorce suit having been dismissed at her request only recently.

To Mrs. Parker the search for perfect content has assumed the everlasting proportions of the old quest of the end of the rainbow. As a pretty, vivacious girl she was a leader in the younger society set a few years ago and had many admirers.

She tried to find it in that state, telling her friends that she would never marry. Soon afterward Parker appeared on the scene and her declaration never to marry was forgotten.

To all outward appearances, for a time, peace and happiness reigned in the new home. Then the young bride came to the realization that she had not yet found the elusive "perfect content." Marital life lost its glow and a divorce suit followed.

Temporary separation from her husband and the worry over her case grew irksome to Mrs. Parker and a reconciliation was effected. But it was not for long.

The gossip of the South side soon had another tale of marital unrest in the Parker home to discuss, and in just as short a space of time the story of another reconciliation. Then came a third separation, and now they have "made up" again.

"It's the master spell of the old love," says one of her neighbors. "The divorce proceedings were ended merely as a convenience," says Mrs. Parker.

But the neighbor comes back with the declaration that it is love, even if Mrs. Parker tries to make herself believe that it is not.

The neighbor is Mrs. A. E. Rose, whose classmate she was in the preparatory school she attended and her most intimate friend, Elizabeth F. Elliott, is author of the stanza of poetry here reproduced.

Mrs. Rose sent the poem to Mrs. Parker soon after the third separation, and she believes that the truths contained in those few lines awakened the little love god in Mrs. Parker's breast and had some influence in reuniting the couple.

Mrs. Parker is not optimistic regarding her future happiness. She stated the day following the return of her husband to her home that she doubted the efficiency of the reconciliation, but deplored the fact that there was no alternative.

Terms of Reconciliation. Before being allowed to accept the probation of his wife and return to the beautiful South side home, Mr. Parker conceded to the several demands of him, among which were the following:

He must make a full accounting of the $50,000 dower Mrs. Parker brought him on their marriage.

He must make a full and binding agreement as to the finances in the home in the future.

He must apologize for his past actions and must promise to be good in the future.

"There were many silly statements as to promises to love and obey, etc., which were never considered," said Mrs. Parker, "but there were certain requirements as to our relations to which Mr. Parker agreed. However, I do not care to discuss them at length. It is none of the public's business what agreements we made. Our reconciliation is complete and successful."

"There were many silly statements as to promises to love and obey, etc., which were never considered," said Mrs. Parker, "but there were certain requirements as to our relations to which Mr. Parker agreed. However, I do not care to discuss them at length. It is none of the public's business what agreements we made. Our reconciliation is complete and successful."

"And happy?" was suggested. "I would not say that," replied Mrs. Parker, "but we are living in the same house."

"Do you contemplate reinstating your divorce proceedings?" was asked. "It would not look well to reinstate them now, but I may be compelled to take such a step later on if the other side of the house does not abide by the agreement we have entered into. The divorce suit was ended merely as a matter of convenience."

One of the charges against Mr. Parker in the divorce proceedings was that he had not accounted for the $50,000 dower, and she wants a full accounting—an itemized statement—as to where the money went. Parker claims to have used the money in his business. He is at the head of a firm of auditors.

What appears as a reflection of the moods of Mrs. Parker is contained in the story she has just submitted for publication. The title, "Marital Unrest," forecasts the attitude of the story. She pictures the fabled couple whose "milk and water sentiment is fed on moonlit nights and grows like a balloon, not in substance but in size, to resolve itself into the semi-engagement stage and finally into marriage."

For such as these she contends there is no content. The glow of the moon wanes and the glare of the sun of reality blinds them. No matter how loose the bond or how long the chain, it soon chafes and becomes short.

No Retreat for Woman. There is no remedy, she declares. If they are divorced the man may forget, but there is no retreat for the woman. The cloud of the great error in the problem of life forever darkens her pathway.

Mrs. Parker closes her fable of regrets by charitably taking a large part of the blame upon her own sex.

"The just righting of the wrong should come from the woman, as to her usually falls the greater part of the blame for making the mistake."

Though Mrs. Parker will not say so, it is believed by many that the story is based upon her own experiences on the troubled and stormy sea of matrimony. Among those who have had the privilege of reading the advance sheets there is an impression that she sought a reconciliation with her husband because she realized that some of the blame for their marital mistake rested upon her shoulders.

Another reason for the reconciliation is seen in the fact that several months after Mrs. Parker filed her last suit she underwent a change of heart on the divorce question. She no longer believes in it, and did what she could to retard the growth of the evil by withdrawing her own petition.

Dwells on Divorce Evil. What she did wasn't much, when it is taken into consideration that the recent census for 1897-1906 brought to light nearly a million divorces and demonstrated that the movement constantly gains in velocity, but she feels that it will help a little. The divorce evil is also one of the subjects of her story.

"About one marriage in every eight is broken, at the present rate," she says, "and in some states in the union the proportion is a great deal higher, probably one in every four or five. This latter fact is particularly true of this section of the country, the central and middle western states having from two to three times the rate of the Atlantic states."

"An investigation by the department of labor 20 years ago showed that nearly 400,000 divorces had been granted in the United States between the years 1867 and 1886, and that divorces were increasing 2 1/2 times as fast as the population. The broad contrast then was between the north and the south. But the divorce rates of the north and south have been converging, while those of the east and west have diverged. With the opening of the "quick and easy divorce" mill in Reno, Nev., the western states will soon be in the championship class.

"Marriage nowadays is nothing more than a farce, in many instances a mere business arrangement. The census figures on divorce wipe out many false impressions."

"It is frequently assumed that many couples who find their way to the divorce courts separate precipitately before they have given marriage a fair trial. But the figures show, and usually figures don't lie, that the average interval before separation is something more than 6 1/2 years, and is not diminishing."

Do Not Separate Soon. "More than half the couples lived together above four years, while in the majority of cases the duration of marriage exceeded seven years. Therefore it would be rash to surmise that people are forming risky and unstable unions in full view of their easy dissolution, made possible by the laws of most states."

"Not many seek divorce in order to remarry, at least, such is not usually the case as some persons would make the unknowing public believe," says Mrs. Parker.

"In Connecticut, for instance, during a period of four years, the number of divorced persons married was about 30 per cent. of the number legally separated in the same length of time. In Rhode Island the proportion was even less."

"Remarriage is one of those cases in which, as Dr. Johnson expresses it, 'hope triumphs over experience,' and it is not at all certain that the rate for divorced persons much exceeds that for widows and widowers of the same age. Certainly the restrictions that many states are imposing on remarriage do not seem to appreciably affect the divorce rate, and the only solution for the evil is in the hands of those persons contemplating divorce. Let those who make matrimonial mistakes suffer a little for their misstep instead of rushing to the divorce court."

The poem that is credited with having done something towards reuniting the Parkers was widely copied at the time, but now it is forgotten. The author claims no credit for her part in abating the divorce evil by one case.

"It was one of these little jingles that often run through my mind," said she, "and I delight in scribbling them down on any scrap of paper that may be handy. Some of my family picked this one up and sent it to one of the Chicago newspapers, and somehow it managed to escape the waste basket and get into print. If it helped to smooth a rough path for some one I am heartily glad of it."

PROVED TRUTH OF ASSERTION Kindergarten Pupil Gave Demonstration of Fact That She Could "Undress Herself."

It was the opening day of the kindergarten. The teacher began by asking each child what it had learned to do.

"James, what can you do?" "Please, ma'am, I can sharpen pencils."

"That's very nice. William, what can you do?" "I can throw a ball."

"That's splendid. Mary, what can you do?" "I can undress myself," was the proud response.

"I'm sure that must be a great help to your mother, Mary. Rachel, what can you—?" "I can undress myself," interrupted Mary.

"Yes, Mary, that's very nice, but you mustn't interrupt. Rachel—"

"So you have said twice before, Mary. If you interrupt me again, you will have to be punished. Now Rachel, what can you do?"

"I take care of my baby brother sometimes, and—"

"That's lovely, Rachel. Charles, what can you do?" "I can undress myself," persisted Mary coyly before Charles had time to answer. So the teacher gently led Mary to the cloak room to meditate on her disobedience. Shortly afterward the doctor called to see if all the children were well.

"Yes," the teacher assured him, "we are all well and happy this morning. Oh, all but one little girl. I think there must be something the matter with her tongue. Will you look at it, please? Mary, come here a moment."

Mary fluttered into the room minus her clothes. Waving her arms she said with childish glee: "See, I can undress myself!"—Everybody's Magazine.

His Harvest. "Huh! you don't hope to raise any vegetables in that back yard, do you?" sneered the Old Suburbanite. "Why, every carrot you raise there will cost you more'n a bushel of the best purchased at the market."

"Sure, I know that," cheerfully answered the newcomer, resting on his spade. "Of course this as a garden will be a total failure, and I don't care a cuss if it is. But I tell you what, I shall raise the biggest crop of crisp, fresh appetite, the largest and juiciest hours of sleep, the sweetest and mellowest dreams, bushels and bushels of fine exercise, and barrels of good health, right here on this little patch. This crop, on the whole, ain't going to be a failure. Not on your life."

A Dreadful Possibility. I now come to the middle point of my story, which is that there may be, after all, possibly, no Smart Set. I suspected this for a long time, but fought against it. I hated to think that in a grand country like this, where we have everything that is going around anywhere—where we had liberty, and freedom and taxes and sudden death, to think that after all we have been doing these few hundred years, we haven't even got a Smart Set to fall back upon—nothing in fact to look up to.—New York Press.

FIVE TIMES HIGHER THAN NIAGARA.

The above is a photograph of the Kaieteur fall on the Potaro river, Essequibo, British Guiana. The perpendicular height of the fall is 741 feet, or nearly five times that of Niagara. The width varies from 350 feet in the dry season to 400 feet in the rainy season, and the depth of water passing over similarly ranges from a few feet to 20 feet. Even in very dry seasons, the river has a depth of 35 feet about a quarter of a mile above the fall. The face of the fall is of sandstone with a capping of harder conglomerate. It is suggested that the falls may be used to provide power, and it is pointed out that the chief fall alone would supply 2,125,000 horsepower.

WANTS MEN FREED

Aged Minnesota Ex-Judge Would Ease His Conscience.

After Thirty-Four Years He Seeks the Release of Two Negroes Whom He Prosecuted and Had Convicted.

St. Paul, Minn.—Bowed and bent and only a memory of his former brilliant self, Judge James Egan has lifted a weight which has lain upon his conscience for 34 years by appearing before the state board of pardons and pleading for the release of two negroes, serving life sentences for murder. They were incarcerated when Judge Egan was only a young prosecuting attorney. Between the day of their judgment and now lies a lifetime, and now the prosecutor confesses that they were unjustly imprisoned and asks their freedom. Behind an act which casts a shadow on an exceptionally brilliant career lies a dramatic story.

The two negroes, R. L. Underhill and George Washington, were arrested and tried principally upon circumstantial evidence. A house upon Summit avenue had been robbed and the burglars, escaping in the darkness of a storm and overcast night, shot at a policeman who attempted to intercept them. He died without being able to make a coherent statement. Later, after two vagrant negroes had been jailed by the police, a woman living in the house where the robbery had occurred, identified them as the burglars. She admitted that she had caught but a glimpse of the men at work, and that in the dark.

As prosecuting attorney Egan vigorously pressed the case against the two men, and with the city deeply stirred by the crime convicted them and sent them up with life sentences.

Years passed and the prosecuting attorney became a judge, noted for his keen wit, his marked ability and a clear far-seeing judicial mind. After many years Judge Egan retired, and for nearly a decade had not been a figure in public life. Before the pardon board a bent and enfeebled old man, his mind clouded on many subjects, but entirely clear on this, begged that the governor and the members of the pardon board free his soul from the weight of the knowledge that the two men were frightened into making false confessions and unjustly committed to a life of harsh confinement. The board was astounded by the confession and has taken the case under advisement, to thoroughly investigate it.

GIRL TO FLY IN AN AIRSHIP.

Berkeley (Cal.) Young Woman Is Enthusiastic Promoter of "Heavier-Than-Air" Machine.

Berkeley, Cal.—Miss Bernice Cunningham, the 19-year-old daughter of James R. Cunningham of this city, is an enthusiastic promoter of a new flying machine now being constructed in a suburb and has announced her intention of making a flight alone in the air craft.

Miss Cunningham is enthused over the flying machine and haunts the shops at Sather station, Fruitvale, where the machine is being constructed. She has made herself familiar with every part of the craft and believes she will experience no difficulty in managing the machine in the air.

The machine, the invention of Peter English of Alameda, is a combination of a helicopter, or self-lifting machine, and an aeroplane, and differs radically from any flying machine yet invented. It is provided with two immense propellers, which supply the lifting and propelling power, and has a greater aeroplane surface than the Wright brothers' machine. It has a tested lifting power of 1,700 pounds.

English asserts his machine will fly just as well at a height of three feet from the ground as at a greater altitude.

Star and Garter Auction Fails to Bring Out Bidder.

House Once Was Resort of Dandies and Many Royal Persons Have Been Entertained in the London Hostelry.

London.—For the second time within two years the Star and Garter hotel, Richmond, was offered for sale by auction the other day at the Mart, following the sale of the furniture of the hotel three months ago. There was no bidding and consequently no sale.

Albert Chancellor, the auctioneer, made an eloquent speech, referring to the hotel as "a far-famed hostelry, a palace of pleasure crowning the hill of delight."

"The view from this spot is," he said, "the finest in England, perhaps in the world. You can motor down from London in a few minutes."

"Yes," interposed one of the company, "and get locked up."

The hotel had cost $700,000 and could be used equally well as hotel, hydro or skating rink. As a provisional bid the auctioneer suggested the "trifling sum" of $150,000, and then $125,000, but there were no offers and the item was declared not sold.

It is just 100 years since the Star and Garter was opened, after being for five years left to decay. Perhaps some clever hotel-keeper may find a good augury in that circumstance. In 1809 Christopher Cream, who had been the duke of York's cook, became proprietor of the hotel, even then 70 years old, and he succeeded in making it a favorite resort of the period—the period of bucks and dandies, of heavy gambling and quick quarrels, of four-hour dinners and wonderful feats in the consumption of port.

The popularity of the hotel continued throughout the century. Queen Victoria and the prince consort, Louis Philippe, Napoleon III, and Emperor Maximilian were among its many royal patrons.

In the '60s and '70s the Star and Garter attained the zenith of its fame. Thackeray mentioned it more than once in his novels; Meredith made Richard Feverel talk to Bellona there, and W. E. Norris makes it the scene of some of his cleverest chapters. But the real revealer of the charms of the Star and Garter was "Ouida."

Who can forget that page in "Under Two Flags" in which the water party at Richmond, who pay seven guineas apiece for their dinner, are pelted with brandy cherries by Zu-Zu, have their best cigars "thrown away half smoked by pretty pillagers" and listen to Laura Lelas singing a barcarolle? And who does not remember that even more dramatic scene at the Star and Garter in which beauty meets Lady Guenevere?

GOULD-FISK THEATER SOLD.

Famous Grand Opera House Which Shielded Magnates from Mob Brings $1,000,000.

New York.—The famous old Grand opera house at Twenty-third street and Eighth avenue has been sold to a company by the executors of the Jay Gould estate for $1,000,000.

Many memories of Jay Gould and "Jim" Fisk and incidents of the late '60s and early '70s are linked with the famous theater. It was here that Gould and Fisk took refuge from the mobs on "Black Friday" in 1873.

In the building is a vault of heavy masonry extending from the basement to the roof, the floors of which are reached by a narrow circular stairway in the stones. Fisk said that he and Mr. Gould concealed themselves in this vault when the infuriated crowd attacked their offices in Wall street district.

One of the boxes in the theater is known as the Gould box and is kept locked. It seats 20 to 30 persons, but has never been occupied except by members of the Gould family.

Star and Garter Auction Fails to Bring Out Bidder.

House Once Was Resort of Dandies and Many Royal Persons Have Been Entertained in the London Hostelry.

London.—For the second time within two years the Star and Garter hotel, Richmond, was offered for sale by auction the other day at the Mart, following the sale of the furniture of the hotel three months ago. There was no bidding and consequently no sale.

Albert Chancellor, the auctioneer, made an eloquent speech, referring to the hotel as "a far-famed hostelry, a palace of pleasure crowning the hill of delight."

"The view from this spot is," he said, "the finest in England, perhaps in the world. You can motor down from London in a few minutes."

"Yes," interposed one of the company, "and get locked up."

The hotel had cost $700,000 and could be used equally well as hotel, hydro or skating rink. As a provisional bid the auctioneer suggested the "trifling sum" of $150,000, and then $125,000, but there were no offers and the item was declared not sold.

SHOES FOR HOLLAND'S HEIR.

Seventeen Pairs of Most Costly Footwear for Baby Princess Made by American Firm.

Brockton, Mass.—The tiny feet of Holland's baby princess are to be incased in American soft soled shoes—the most costly infant's shoes that were ever made in this country. They bear the stamp of a Brockton firm and the future ruler of the little Dutch kingdom will not want for shoes for all sorts of conditions, for there are 17 pairs in the order just finished.

In one of the 17 pairs the lining is a piece of satin from Queen Wilhelmina's wedding gown. Another pair is of cloth of silver, and still another has the finest white Parisian kid.

Brocaded satin that costs $100 a yard in the piece has been used for one or two pairs of the tiny foot covering, and beautiful silks made up the material in others. In some, too, the softest calfskin that the market affords has been used.

$5,000,000 Gold From Nome.
Seattle, Wash.—Nome's gold output this year will approximate $5,000,000, according to Jafet Lindenburg, a pioneer of the Nome district who is in Seattle. The cleanup of the boxes will be taken about July 1. The output will be little greater than last year.

DOG PAYS OWN LICENSE.

Hidden Coins Brought Out When Time to Settle With Flint (Mich.) Authorities Comes.

Flint, Mich.—Max, a black-and-tan dog owned by Charles C. Fitzhugh, a local pharmacist, has come through with a dollar to pay his annual license and thus insure safety from the city dog catcher for another year. And Max earned all this money himself.

In the rear of the store where his owner works Max, who is a trick dog, has a box half filled with excelsior, in which he hides pennies and nickels earned by doing tricks. When a customer comes into the store the dog starts his repertory of stunts, plays dead, walks lame, says his prayers, "talks" to the best of his ability, walks erect on his front legs and then on his hind legs, sits up and does numerous other tricks for the entertainment of his visitors. The majority of the patrons of the store know the dog and always when he has finished his act he is given a penny or a five-cent piece, which he hides in his box.

The other day when the animal's owner decided that the license should be paid he sent the dog back to the box time after time until the canine had brought to him a dollar in pennies and nickels, and, placing the cash in an envelope, the owner started for the office of the city clerk, the dog carrying the envelope in his mouth.

Whenever the dog wants a piece of candy from the showcase he gets the money from his box, tramps up to where his master is and exchanges it for chocolates.

There is no particular breed about Max. He was a "tramp" dog and Mr. Fitzhugh took him in, gave him a home and taught him tricks.

STORY OF A LOST PEARL.

Worth $8,000, a Paris Charwoman Finds It and Sells it for Two Francs.

Paris.—In the last twelve months a pearl pin has had a strange history. A charwoman picked it up last summer in the gravel of the Champs Elysees and, having no idea of its value, she sold it to a jeweler, who dishonestly took advantage of her ignorance and gave her two francs for it.

He was not very much wiser himself, however, as he sold it for $20 to a dealer, who easily found a purchaser at $85. The latter got $200 for it with equal ease from a fifth person, who in turn went over to London with the pearl pin and disposed of it for $4,000 to a jeweler.

In his turn the jeweler showed it to a detective, who recognized it as a pearl worth $8,000, which had been lost or stolen a year before in Paris and which he had been commissioned to trace and, if possible, recover.

The detective started investigating, step by step, the history of the jewel in the 12 months, and was able not only to ascertain exactly through what hands it had passed, but to annul each successive deal of which it had been the subject, from the $1,000 paid by the London jeweler down even to the two francs which the charwoman had got for her find.

JUDGE QUITS, SWEEPS STREET

East St. Louis Magistrate Forced by Health to Resign Office and is Now Wielding Broom.

East St. Louis, Ill.—Forced by order of his physician to resign his office of police magistrate and obtain employment where he could enjoy pure air and outdoor exercise, Judge Thomas Stanton has started to work as a street sweeper in East St. Louis.

As police magistrate Stanton received an average of $300 per month. As street sweeper he receives $1.50 per day.

Stanton was elected police magistrate of East St. Louis two years ago, after filling the unexpired term of Magistrate Patrick McKane. The time and attention he gave his office told on his health and he became a sufferer from stomach trouble. One year ago he was taken to the hospital, and for several weeks it was feared he would die.

Stanton sweeps the street from Broadway to Missouri avenue, on which is located the city hall, police headquarters, fire department, the justices' offices, among them being the office he occupied, a bank and several other large business houses.

Deaf-Mute Is Made Lawyer.

Raleigh, N. C.—Roger D. O'Kelly, colored, of Raleigh, born deaf and dumb, after studying at Shaw university here has obtained a license from the supreme court as an attorney.

Some weeks ago while playing football one eye was so injured it had to be removed, and it was thought this would prevent O'Kelly from becoming a lawyer. He said he had "one good eye left and would make it anyhow." O'Kelly graduated with high honors at Shaw and was specially commended by United States Commissioner of Education Elmer Ellsworth Brown for his pluck.

Fortune Cent at a Time.

Trenton, N. J.—By the will of Henry B. Howell, who died a few days ago, aged 92 years, and who made a fortune of $100,000 by a penny toy shop which he conducted here for 40 years, $35,000 goes to charitable institutions and the temperance cause.

Mr. Howell was a bachelor, and the remainder of his estate is willed to his nephew and niece, Thomas J. Sawyer of Worcester, Mass., and Mrs. Anna M. Smith of Malden, Mass.

Starch, like everything else, is being constantly improved, the patent Starches put on the market 25 years ago are very different and inferior to those of the present day. In the latest discovery—Defiance Starch—all injurious chemicals are omitted, while the addition of another ingredient, invented by us, gives to the Starch a strength and smoothness never approached by other brands.

Not Hard to Please.

"Woman may be uncertain and coy," remarked the boarding house philosopher, "but she isn't hard to please. That's where the poet is wrong."

"What new light have you had on that subject, Mr. McGinnis?" asked the landlady.

"She'll put up with almost any kind of stick for a husband and wear any old thing on her head for a hat."

THE KING OF ITALY

Is Grateful for Aid Given Earthquake Sufferers.

In interview with Dr. Klopsch of Christian Herald He Discusses Relief Measures and Turkish Situation.

The regard of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy for the American people and his gratitude for the relief they gave to the victims of the Italian earthquake, together with comments on ex-President Roosevelt, Ambassador Griscom, and the Turkish situation, are set forth in an interview with him by Dr. Klopsch, its editor, in the forthcoming issue of the Christian Herald.

Dr. Klopsch says in his account of the interview:

"It was a few minutes after ten in the forenoon of April 28 when I arrived at the gateway of the Quirinal. A few minutes later it was announced: 'His majesty will now receive you.'

"Almost at the very door the king received me, taking my hand and shaking it cordially, remarking at the same time, 'Come and sit down.' And down we sat. I had abundant opportunity for observing the quiet unassuming king and of noting the excellence of his English.

"He said that the princely generosity of America had deeply touched his heart, and that he was glad of the opportunity for expressing his sincere gratitude for the practical shape the sympathy of the American people had assumed.

"America," said he, "is a rich country, very rich; and its people know how to use the bounties of a kind Providence in a way that must be pleasing to the giver of every good gift.

"He then asked me: 'How do you raise such vast sums? Do the millionaires of your country give you large sums?' I replied that the money was generally from people in moderate circumstances, who give as God has given them and in his name. 'Then they give large amounts?' 'No, your majesty,' I answered, 'the average contribution is $2.75.' 'But that is very large. Fourteen lire is a great deal of money in Italy.'

"He changed the subject for a while, saying he was sorry that Ambassador Griscom was to leave. 'He is a very fine man, and very popular, and has done most excellent work in connection with the Red Cross relief operations; too bad he must leave us.' I ventured to remark that he would probably continue to stay for some time, owing to the crisis in Turkey.

"It will only be a few days," he replied, implying that in his estimation the new order of things in Turkey was practically an accomplished fact.

"Is it not marvelous that the Sultan could so long have held his own with Turkey alone stagnant, while all the rest of the world was making tremendous progress?" I inquired.

"Thirty-three years," the king replied, as though himself marveling at the great length of the 'sick man's' incumbency.

"I expressed regret at the injury the queen was reported to have met with in ministering to the sufferers of the Messina disaster. 'Oh,' he said, she simply stumbled and fell, striking against a bottle, bruising herself, but she is now fully recovered.'

"You have met many crowned heads," he inquired. Among others I named the queen of England and the former empress of Russia. 'I am going to meet them both to-morrow at Naples,' he said, with a smile that indicated he anticipated a pleasant time.

"I fear the emperor of Russia is not very happy," I said. 'The papers say he is not.'

"I assure you, you are mistaken. I know the emperor of Russia is very happy and very contented. One must not believe half the papers say," he said, with a pleasant, reassuring smile.

"We had conversed for over an hour, when the king, looking at his watch, said: 'I will now have to take my train for Naples, to meet the king of England.' We arose, he shook my hand, and the audience was over."

BURDENS LIFTED

From Bent Backs.

A bad back is a heavy handicap to those of us who have to work every day. Nine times out of ten, backache tells of kidney weakness. The only way to find relief is to cure the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills have given sound strong backs to thousands of men and women. Mrs. Wesley Clemens, 211 Marion St., Manchester, la., says: "Constant work at a sewing machine seemed to bring on kidney trouble. The kidney action was irregular and the pains in my back and loins so severe I could hardly endure it. Doan's Kidney Pills made me feel better in a short time, and I took them until entirely free from my trouble."

THE HINT GENTEEL.

Mr. Saphead—By Jove, it's nearly 12 o'clock. Perhaps I had better be going.

Miss Smart—Well, they say "Never put off till to-morrow what you can do to-day."

Prominent Women Aid Good Cause. A large number of women occupying prominent positions in society, or on the stage, are taking an active interest in the anti-tuberculosis campaign. Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has recently given $1,000,000 for sanitary homes for consumptives. Mrs. Keith Spalding of Chicago has erected a sanitarium for the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute at a cost of about $50,000; Mrs. Collis P. Huntington and Mrs. Borden Harriman have given largely to the consumption fight. In Porto Rico, Mrs. Albert Norton Wood, wife of a prominent army officer stationed at San Juan, has stirred the entire island through the anti-tuberculosis crusade she inaugurated. Mme. Emma Calve is a most enthusiastic worker, and has given largely of her talent and money for the relief of tuberculosis sufferers, and Miss Olga Nethersole has even lectured before the public on tuberculosis.

Couldn't Stand It. A Raleigh, N. C. woman not long ago received into her house for "training" a "cracker" girl from the mountains. Endeavor was made to inculcate in the girl a love for order and cleanliness, but suddenly this discipline ceased, for the "poor white" fled to her home in the fastnesses. Thither the Raleigh woman traced her after some difficulty.

"Why did you leave me, Mary Jane?" she asked.

"Mis' Morgan, I jes' couldn't stay!" exclaimed the girl. "I was jes' cloyed with neatness!"

Englishman's Withering Reply. The best of us sometimes forget the beam in our own eyes while we search for a mote in another's. An American traveling abroad met an Englishman with the rather remarkable name of Pithorne, which was pronounced Thorne.

"What's the good of the 'P'?" the American queried; "you don't pronounce it, do you?"

The Englishman gazed at him with the manner of one who, while he pities, is bored.

"What's the good of 'h' in 'orse'?" he questioned, convincingly.—Spare Moments.

MAKING SUNSHINE It is Often Found in Pure Food.

The improper selection of food drives many a healthy person into the depths of despairing illness. Indeed, much sickness comes from wrong food and just so surely as that is the case right food will make the sun shine once more.

An old veteran of Newburyport, Mass., says: "In October, I was taken sick and went to bed, losing 47 pounds in about 60 days. I had doctor after doctor, food hurt me and I had to live almost entirely on magnesia and soda. All solid food distressed me so that water would run out of my mouth in little streams.

"I had terrible night sweats, and my doctor finally said I had consumption and must die. My good wife gave up all hope. We were at Old Orchard, Me., at that time and my wife saw Grape-Nuts in a grocery there. She bought some and persuaded me to try it.

"I had no faith in it, but took it to please her. To my surprise it did not distress me as all other food had done and before I had taken the fifth package I was well on the mend. The pains left my head, my mind became clearer and I gained weight rapidly.

"I went back to my work again and now after six weeks' use of the food I am better and stronger than ever before in my life. Grape-Nuts surely saved my life and made me a strong hearty man, 15 pounds heavier than before I was taken ill.

"Both my good wife and I are willing to make affidavit to the truth of this."

BOY'S GRATITUDE WAS REAL.

Has Long Cared for Grave of Man Who Had Been Kind to Him Many Years Ago.

Rev. John Henri Sattig, pastor of St. Philip's church, Dyker Heights, Brooklyn, tells this beautiful story:

"In Milford, Pa., there is an old graveyard, neglected, weed-grown and unkempt. Of all the mounds in that village of the dead only one is cared for. On that the grass is neatly trimmed, flowers bloom and never a weed appears. The visitor who looks upon this evidence of love and devotion amid so many examples of forgetfulness usually asks whose grave it is, and the sexton answers: 'The man whose body rests there had neither chick nor child. Nearly every day for the six years since the man died a boy comes here to tend to the grave. Winter and summer he comes. The lad is the butcher boy. The man was the only human being who ever was kind to the boy.'

"The boy, two years old, was afflicted with a rash. After he suffered with the trouble several weeks I took him to the doctor but it got worse. The rash ran together and made large blisters. The little fellow didn't want to do anything but scratch and we had to wrap his hands up to keep him from tearing the flesh open till the blood would run. The itching was intense. The skin on his back became hard and rough like the bark of a tree. He suffered intensely for about three months. But I found a remedy in Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. The result was almost magical. That was more than two years ago and there has not been the slightest symptom of it since he was cured. J. W. Lanck, Yukon, Okla., Aug. 28 and Sept. 17, 1908."
