ADVERTISING

Money Follows Line of the Least Resistence.

BY W. HOLT HARRIS

UCH has been said and more written about advertising the resources of Texas abroad and our glowing opportunities, when properly safe-guarded, will make the eagle on every American dollar spread its wings and fly to Texas. But the thing most essential to our growth and progress is the proper allignment of our laws and conduct and a clearer understanding of the necessities and requirements of progress. When this is done, it will be as unnecessary to solicit capital to come to Texas as it will be to invite the bees to make honey. Money follows the lines of least resistance and capital flows wherever profit is greatest and conditions most stable. The bank vaults of the nation are filled with dollars that are searching to and fro, up and down the earth for safe and profitable investments but it is of first importance that the house be put in order before the guests are invited. There is nothing that so weakens the foundation of industrial achievement as the knockout dreps of uncertainty, and capital will never seek investment where a myriad of seornful flugers are pointing toward it and neither will it give serious consideration to op-NDING OF CON- portunities that are scarred by fear. No amount of publicity, however adroitly presented, can bring about profitable results under such eircumstances. Such a country can only hope for satisfactory development through some freak of nature.
