BOLLIE BUSINESS IS ENORMOUS

The bolling business is assuming vast proportions in this country now, since the weather has turned off mild. The farm. ers all had from one to twenty or more bales of bollies in the field, and pulling them by hand or machine has been going on at a rapid rate. It takes about 2400 pounds of the bollies to make a bale of lint when ginned to the polls to cast your vote. and brings something like $25 to $30 per bale. The bollies are PLANT MORE SHADE TREES just pulled off the stalks bur and all, and a boll breaking machine at the gin breaks the bolls apart (threshes it out in a sense) and allows the gin to work on the cotton.

The gin is busy ginning all the time and numbers of farmers are selling the bollies to ginned out when the rush is over.

There we found a friendly welcome and a list of inexpensive but clean rooming-houses where American students usually find lodgings.

In the beginning we bought an alcohol stove, teapot and saucepan. The concierge supplied us with some dishes and table silver. This we found a very interesting experiment. We went to the patisserie near by and ordered hot rolls every morning at our door for 10 centimes, and a bottle of milk from the cremerie. WITH A CUP OF TEA

MANY DELICIOUS TIDBITS UN KNOWN TO AVERAGE HOSTESS.

Possible to Meet the Variations of Individual Tastes Without Turning Affair Into Formal Reception-Some Dishes Worth Trying.

There are many tidbits delicious for serving with the social 5 o'clock cup which are unknown to the average hostess.

Unless one keeps well abreast of the times accompaniments are apt to be limited to shop-bought wafers of a conventional order, or cakes frequently over-sweet.

Without robbing the occasion of its principal charm by making a formal reception of it and serving an elaborate repast, it is possible to discover new things and to meet the variations of individual taste.

For instance, the dainty finger rolls may be split lengthwise and the soft crumb in one half removed. The hollow thus formed is to be filled with cream cheese softened with a little whipped cream. Put the two halves together and tie with bebe ribbon or tinsel cord.

Or some finely chopped walnuts may be stirred into the cheese, which is to serve as filling, with or without the addition of minced olives.

Again, the following mixture, which is just a trifle elaborate, will appeal to many palates:

One roll of cream cheese, a teaspoonful of pimentos, chopped fine, and a full tablespoonful of mayonnaise. The olives should be chopped by hand. Mix and use as above.

Another good form of sandwich, made this time of conventional slices of bread, requires four heaping tablespoonfuls of minced chicken and three of mayonnaise. A cream dressing can be substituted for the one of oil. Spread the mixture on three squares of whole wheat bread and cover with smaller pieces.

Or, chop fine some blanched almonds, toasted but not salted, grind them in the meat chopper or crush in a mortar and spread between delicate squares of buttered bread.

For a single sandwich, that is, having but one slice of bread in its composition, this combination of ingredients is considered choice: Over a dozen large plump olives pour boiling water, allowing them to stand a few minutes, then drain and put on the ice. Now chop fine enough pimentos to form a teaspoonful of the mince. Chop the olives, add the pimentos with one tablespoonful of fine cracker crumbs Crush all the mayonnaise and spread on shapes cut from thin, rather stale bread.

Again, to many callers tea, ideally served, always means a hot biscuit of some sort and unsalted butter. For all such, small hot "soda biscuit," toasted English muffins, and even dainty bites of the nature of popovers are welcome. The truly English crumpet is obtainable of late years in all our large cities. Toasted and served very hot with quantities of good butter, it becomes so delectable that we sympathize with the man in "Pickwick Papers" who preferred dissolution to cutting down his crumpet supply. Scones, hot and buttered, are any other favorite accompaniment. These, unlike the crumpet, can be easily made at home. To prepare them nicely use this rule: A quart of flour, a teaspoonful of salt, and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder mixed together. Sift well, chop into the flour and blend well a heaping tablespoonful of butter. Now add enough cold milk to make a soft dough. Turn out on a pastry board, handling as little as possible, and cut with a small cutter. Put them upon a hot griddle, and when one side has browned, turn. Split with fingers or fork-never cut them-and butter well.

Why He Couldn't Sit Down.

Harry, aged six, is an orphan; but an indulgent grandmother and kind maiden aunt have taken care of him. The first pair of knickerbockers were secured recently, and it was a proud moment for the boy when his aunt put them on him on Sunday morning and he was permitted to go to church with his grandmother. Naturally maiden aunts know very little about the arrangement of knickerbockers. and there was a suspicious fullness in front and an equally mystifying tightness in the back to be observed, as the little chap trudged happily along. In church Harry sat down, but did not appear comfortable and stood up. "Harry, sit down," whispered his grandmother. He obediently climbed back on the seat, but soon slipped of again. "Harry, you must sit down." "Grandma, I can't. My pants is choking me." She looked more closely than her dim sight had before permitted, and discovered the new little knickerbockers were on hind side before. Harry stood up during the remainder of the service.

A Hold-Up

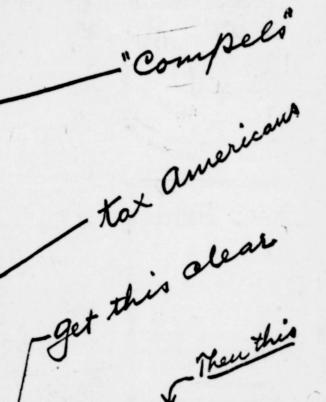

An Oppressive Trust.

Before the Coffee Roasters' Association, in session at Chicago on Thursday, Thomas J. Webb, of Chicago, charged that there is in existence a coffee combine which is "the most monstrous imposition in the history of human commerce."

There is very slight exaggeration about this statement. It comes very close to being literally true. There is a coffee combine in Brazil, from which country comes the bulk of the coffee used in the United States, which is backed by the government of Brazil and financed by it, which compels American consumers, as Mr. Webb said, "to pay famine prices for coffee when no famine exists."

The worst thing about this is that the consumers of the United States have been compelled to put up the money through which this combine, to further cinch them, has been made effective. There were formerly revenue duties imposed upon all coffee entering the United States. Those taxes were denounced as an imposition upon the people; as taxing the poor man's breakfast table, and the like. The taxes were removed. Immediately thereafter Brazil imposed an export duty upon coffee up to the full amount of the former customs taxes in this country. The revenue which formerly went into the treasury of the United States was diverted to the treasury of Brazil. The poor man's breakfast coffee continued to cost him the same old price.

But this was only the commencement. The "valorization" plan was evolved in Brazil. Through this plan the government, using the revenues derived from the export duties for the purposes, takes all of the surplus crop in a season of large yields and holds it off the market, thus keeping the supply down to the demands of the market and permitting the planters to receive a much higher price than they would otherwise have done. The United States consumes more Brazilian coffee than does the rest of the world. We are the best customers of Brazil, and Brazil buys little from us. Now Brazil is promoting, financing and maintaining a trust designed, and working effectively for the purpose, to compel American consumers to pay an exorbitant price for the coffee they use. What is the remedy?-Seattle Post-Intelligencer-Nov. 19, 1911.

Stuffed Prunes.

Let choice prunes soak over night in cold water. Steam until tender, slit down on one side and remove the stone from each. Grate edam or other cheese, add a little fine-chopped red pepper or a dash of paprika and enough mayonnaise dressing to mix the cheese to a soft and smooth consistency. Fill the open spaces in the center of the prunes with the cheese mixture. Serve with toasted crackers and lettuce salad over which French dressing has been poured. Neufchatel cheese may be used, also French dressing in place of mayonnaise. You can stuff the prunes with half a walnut instead of cheese, and after pressing together roll in granulated sugar.

Keeping a Dinner.

When it is necessary to keep the dinner warm for the belated diner, the cook will find a good substitute for the brain-marie used in all firstclass restaurants for keeping food warm, by taking a deep baking pan, fill it half full of hot water and set into it covered bowls containing the various articles of food that are to be kept hot, says the New Idea Woman's Magazine. Set the pan in a moderately hot oven and the belated diner will be pleased with the fresh taste of his dinner.

Standard statistics of the coffee trade show a falling off in sales during the last two years of over two hundred million pounds. Authenticated reports from the Postum factories in this city show a tremendous increase in the sale of Postum in a like period of time. While the sales of Postum invariably show marked increase year over year, the extraordinary demand for that well-known breakfast beverage during 1911 is very likely due to a public awakening to the oppression of the coffee trust.

Such an awakening naturally disposes the multitude who suffer from the ill effects of coffee drinking to be more re-ceptive to knowledge of harm which so often comes as a result of the use of the drug-beverage, coffee.-Battle Creek Evening News-Dec. 19, 1911.

Suggestion That Will Relieve Hostess of Much Worry While Presiding at Tea Table.

"At a formal afternoon tea," remarked the woman who keeps bachelor hall, as she put the kettle on and filled an oval plate with cheese straws, "whoever presides is generally fairly on guard against spilling tea on the embroidered cloth; but when one has it every afternoon, as I do, it doesn't pay to use fine white linen and delicate needlework to array the table. Yet one likes to have it attractive. I had had two of my prettiest drawnwork tea cloths badly spotted before I had the inspiration I wanted. Then I deliberately stained a bit of white linen with the kind of tea I generally use and let it dry so. Then I took that tea stained bit downtown and searched until I found a heavy linen of that precise tint. It was the old, twilled weave that you see, and I found the silks that harmonized with it for the simple drawnwork edge that you were admiring on this one, for a scallop with a design of maidenhair ferns above on a second and for a little running pattern of clover leaves and an occasional blossom that secures the deep hem of my third one. The dull gray-green of the material and the clearer fern and clover colors make a thoroughly artistic setting for my white china and bits of old silver, to say nothing of the antique candlestick, and I have no more nervousness when somebody's hand shakes while lifting the freshly filled teapot."

IN LESS STRENUOUS TIMES

Explanation of the Difference Between Domestic Standards Now and Those of Long Ago.

In the Woman's Home Companion there is an interesting presentation of the difference that exists between the domestic standard of young married women of today and those of the past generation. How did the women of the middle class of a generation or two ago manage when they could not keep help? Following is the answer quoted from a Companion editorial:

"They lived according to their means; they did not set up impossible standards, and they knew much less about the science of bringing up children. They had no special style to keep up; gave the children a weekly bath; kept the table set between meals; did not serve their meals in courses, but put all the food on the table at once; confined their social affairs to evening calls and parties, and church suppers, at which they wore the same black silk dress for at least two seasons; in short, every woman did only what she could, and her friends made it easier for her by doing likewise."

Women's Secrets

A A BOARD

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but R. V. is but one of the many signs that tell of the poisons in your blood, clogging up your system, because of constipation. Many other symptoms are the direct result of this condition.

A lazy liver leaves in your system all sorts of lingering poisons, which it should have filtered out, so there is no use treating the symptoms, unless you first relieve the condition of constipation itself, which is largely the result of a lazy liver. For headache, backache, biliousness, indigestion, rheumatism, malaria, tired feeling, pimples, blotches, yellow complexion, etc., you are urged to try

THEDFORDS K-DRA

Pure, reliable, strictly vegetable, this popular liver remedy has been in successful use for more than 70 years.

Mrs. Hannah Wieneke, of Otterville, Ill., says: "From the time I was 10 years old, I had very bad sick headaches, quite often, and at times, I was simply blind. An old lady came to our house, and induced me to try Thedford's Black-Draught. In a little while, I was all right. It simply saved my life, and I can't praise it enough."

Ask for Thedford's. You will never regret it. At all drug stores. Price 25 cents.

For HORSES and COWS. Mr. F. Ulrich, Georgiana, Fla., writes: "I have been using Mustang Liniment for horses and cows many years and there is no better remedy, in particular for red bugs on horses. When a horse starts rub-bing his head he generally has red bugs. Try the Liniment and it will stop it."

TO MAKE MARSHMALLOW LOAF Served in Slices With Whipped Cream,

It Makes a Most Delicious Light Dessert.

Beat the whites of four eggs until stiff. Into them stir a tablespoonful of gelatin dissolved in one-half cupful of hot water. Add one-half cupful of cold water and one cupful of granulated sugar. Beat well and divide into three equal parts. Flavor each part differently (or with the same flavoring if preferred) and color one part with melted chocolate, one with beaten yolks of two eggs (or leave it white) and one with pink coloring. Let it stand until you are sure the colors will not run into each other, beating it now nad then. Dust a breadpan with powdered sugar, put in the chocolate part and sprinkle with chopped English walnuts, add the white part and more nuts; lastly, the pink. After standing for a few hours the brick will turn out like ice cream. Serve with whipped cream .- Delineator.

Meat Hash.

Just plain, plebeian hash. Few can make it good. Chop meat with a fourth its quantity of fat-corned beef is best; put in frying pan and fry slowly while you chop equal amount of potatoes. Then add to meat. Salt if necessary, pepper a little and stir well until the whole has really fried a little. Then add a little boiling water; stir all well, and make it into a nice flat cake, straight on one side. Set on moderately hot part of stove to crust one side. Turn out carefully, so as not to break it, with crust side up. Two beets added when potato is put in make an improvement.

Tomato Catsup.

Boil half a bushel of tomatoes until soft, force them through a fine sieve and put a quart of white wine vinegar, one pint of salt, two ounces of cloves, two of allspice, one-half ounce of cayenne pepper, one tablespoon black pepper, two heads of garlic skinned and chopped fine. Mix together and boll four hours.

Crystal Icing.

All one teaspoonful vanilla to two teaspoons boiling water, stir in one cup confectioner's sugar and use as soon as it will spread. This icing is quickly made and has a sparkling appearance. A little coarse sugar dusted over gives it brilliancy.

Cream Sauce. Mix to a paste one tablespoon butter and half a teaspoon flour, with salt and pepper, and add to the juices in the pan. Gradually add half a cup milk

IN AGONY WITH ITCHING

"About four years ago I broke out Cough, etc. with sores on my arms like boils. After two months they were all over my body, some coming, and some going away. In about six months the, boils quit, but my arms, neck and body broke out with an itching, burning rash. It would burn and itch, and come out in pimples like grains of wheat. I was in a terrible condition; I could not sleep or rest. Parts of my flesh were raw, and I could scarcely bear my clothes on. I could not lie in bed in any position and rest. In about a year the sores extended down to my feet. Then I suffered agony with the burning, itching sores. I could hardly walk and for a long time I could not put on socks. "All this time I was trying everything I could bear of, and had the skill of three doctors. They said it was eczema. I got no benefit from all this. I was nearly worn out, and had given up in despair of ever being cured when I was advised by a friend to try Cuticura Remedies. I purchased Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Resolvent, and used exactly as directed. I used the Cuticura Remedies constantly for four months, and nothing else, and was perfectly cured. It is now a year, and I have not had the least bit since. I am ready to praise the Cuticura Remedies at any time. (Signed) E. L. Cate, Exile, Ky., Nov. 10, 1910.

SYNOPSIS.

Elam Harnish, known all through Alas-ka as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 30th birthday with a crowd of miners at the Circle City Tivoli. The dance leads to heavy gambling.

"I still got that hunch." Kearns fingered his cards a long time. "And I'll play it, but you've got to know how I stand. There's my steamer, the Bella-worth twenty thousand if she's worth an ounce. There's Sixty-Mile with five thousand in stock on the shelves. And you know I got a sawmill coming in. It's at Linderman now, and the scow is building. Am I good ?"

"Dig in; you're sure good," was Daylight's answer. "And while we're about it, I may mention casual that I got twenty thousand in Mac's safe, there, and there's twenty thousand more in the ground on Moosehide. You know the ground, Campbell. Is they that-all in the dirt?"

"There sure is, Daylight." "How much does it cost now?" Kearns asked.

"Two thousand to see."

"We'll sure hump you if you-all come in," Daylight warned him. "It's an almighty good hunch," Kearns said, adding his slip to the growing heap. "I can feel her crawlin' up and down my back." "I ain't got a hunch, but I got a tolerable good hand," Campbell announced, as he slid in his slip; "but it's not a raising hand." "Mine is," Daylight paused and wrote. "I see that thousand and raise her the same old thousand."

The Virgin, standing behind him, then did what a man's best friend was not privileged to do. Reaching over Daylight's shoulder, she picked up his hand and read it, at the same time shielding the faces of the cards close to his chest. What she saw were three queens and a pair of eights, but nobobdy guessed what she saw. Every player's eyes were on her face as she scanned the cards, but no sign did she give. She laid the hand face down again on the table and slowly the lingering eyes withdrew from her, forehead. The bronze of his cheeks was darkened by the accession of blood. His black eyes glittered and his nostrils were distended and eager. They were large nostrils, tokening his descent from savage ancestors who had survived by virtue of deep lungs and generous air-passages. Yet, unlike MacDonald, his voice was firm and customary, and, unlike Kearns his hand did not tremble when he wrote.

"I call, for ten thousand," he said. "Not that I'm afraid of you-all, Mac. It's that hunch of Jack's."

"I hump his hunch for five thousand just the same," said MacDonald. "I had the best hand before the draw, and I still guess I got it."

"Mebbe this is a case where a hunch after the draw is better'n the hunch before," Kearns remarked; wherefore duty says, 'Lift her, Jack, lift her,' and so I lift her another five thousaid."

Daylight leaned back in his chair and gazed up at the kerosene lamps while he computed aloud:

"I was in nine thousand before the draw, and I saw and raised eleven thousand-that makes thirty. I'm only good for ten more." He leaned forward and looked at Kearns. "So I call er five thousand."

"You can raise if you want," Kearns answered. "Your dogs are good for five thousaid in this game."

"Nary dawg. You-all can win my dust and dirt, but nary one of my dawgs. I just call."

The saloon keeper finally spoke: "If anybody else wins, they'll have to take a mortgage on the Tivoli." The two other players nodded. "So I call, too."

MacDonald added his slip for five thousand. Not one of them claimed the pot, and not one of them called the size of his hand. Simultaneously and in silence they faced their cards on the table, while a general tiptoeing and craning of necks took place among the onlookers. Daylight showed four queens and an ace: Mac-Donald four tacks and an ace, and reached forward with an encircling um little fly?" movement of his arm and drew the There's a big strike coming on the Yukon, and it's just about due. I don't mean no ornery Moosehide, Birch creek kind of a strike. I mean a real rip-snorter hair-raiser. It's sixty-two get my stake by running the mail out below now, and still goin' down. Better wait till she breaks." Daylight laughed, and the old sourdoughs around him laughed. "It's a thousand miles to Dyea," Bettles announced, climbing on the chair and supporting his swaying body by an arm passed around Daylight's neck. "It's a thousand miles, I'm saying, an' most of the train unbroke, but I bet any chechaquo-anything he wantscontract, and I start for salt water at hand down. The way of it was that that Daylight makes Dyea in thirty days.' "That's an average of over thirtythree miles a day," Doc Watson warned, "and I've traveled some myself. A blizzard on Chilcoot would "Yep," Bettles retorted, "an' Daylight'll do the second thousand back again on end in thirty days more, and I got five thousand dollars that says so, and damn the blizzards."

Farmer's Grievance Was That Story Once Accepted Should Not Remain Good.

A story is being told at the expense of an old English farmer who was recently called upon to explain why he had failed to take out a license for a favorite fox terrier dog. "'E's nobbut a puppy," the defendant remarked, in response to a question as to the animal's age. "Yes, yes! So you say. But how old is he?" "Oh, weel, I down to earth sooner or later. couldn' tell to a bit," was the reply. "I never was much good at remembering dates, but 'e's nobbut a pup- girl giddy, py." On the other hand, it was maintained that the animal in question was a very, very old-fashioned puppy, and the magistrate inflicted the usual was met by a friend who wanted to Can quickly be overcome know how he had fared at the police CARTER'S LITTLE court, "Nobbut middlin'," was the re-ply. MacDonald smiled benevolently. "I see you, Daylight, and I hump this time for two thousand. How's that hunch, Jack?"

"Still a-crawling, Mac. You got me now, but that hunch is a rip-snorter persuadin' sort of a critter, and it's my plain duty to ride it. I call for three thousand. And I got another hunch: Daylight's going to call, too." "He sure is," Daylight agreed, after Campbell had thrown up his hand. "He knows when he's up against it, and he plays accordin'. I see that two thousand, and then I'll see the draw."

In a dead silence, save for the low voices of the three players, the draw was made. Thirty-four thousand dollars were already in the pot, and the play possibly not half over. To the Virgin's amazement, Daylight held up his three queens, discarding his eights and calling for two cards. And this time not even she dared look at what he had drawn. She knew her limit of control. Nor did he look. The two new cards lay face down on the table where they had been dealt to him.

"Got enough," was the reply. "You can draw if you want to, you know." Kearns warned him.

"Nope; this'll do me." Kearns himself drew two cards, but did not look at them. Still Harnish let his cards lie. "I never bet in the teeth of a pat hand," he said slowly, looking at the saloon keeper. "You-all start her rolling. Mac."

MacDonald counted his cards carefully, to make doubly sure it was not a foul hand, wrote a sum on a paper slip, and slid it into the pot, with the simple utterance:

"Five thousand."

Kearns, with every eye upon him, looked at his two-card draw, counted the other three to dispel any doubt of holding more than five cards, and wrote on a betting slip.

"I see you, Mac," he said, "and I raise her a little thousand just so as to keep Daylight out."

The concentrated gaze shifted to Daylight. He likewise examined his claim. Likewise he arranged the takdraw and counted his five cards.

"I see that six thousand, and I raise her five thousand . . . just to try and keep you out, Jack."

"And I raise you five thousand just to lend a hand at keeping Jack out," MacDonald said in turn.

His voice was slightly husky and strained, and a nervous twitch in the corner of his mouth followed speech. Kearns was pale, and those who looked on noted that his hand trem- about him while Daylight gave his bled as he wrote his slip. But his orders.

"That's what I thought," Campbell said, sadly. "It cost me six thousand before I quit."

"I wisht you-all'd drawn," Daylight laughed. "Then I wouldn't a' caught that fourth queen. Now I've got to take Billy Rawlins' mail contract and like an unbroken colt. mush for Dyea. What's the size of the killing, Jack?"

Kearns attempted to count the pot, but was too excited. Daylight drew it across to him, with firm fingers separating and stacking the markers and the sum.
