

Champs!

Now The Computer is Moving to Wide-Open Fields!

The electronic computer is moving into the wide-open spaces, literally, in Bailey county this year, but farmers who would like to go all-modern will have to get on the line — computer line, that is — before the April 1 ASCS deadline.

J. K. Adams, county agent, said a farm management specialist will explain how the program works at a special one hour discussion next Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock in the Bailey County Electric Coop meeting room here in Muleshoe.

More than ever before, Adams points out, management decisions are making or breaking farmers on the High Plains. The computers will come to the aid of the farmers, helping them decide what planting system they should use as they sign up ahead of the April 1 deadline.

Says Adams "The time will be well-spent by farmers who need a more scientific approach in figuring out the complicated choices offered by the present farm program."

He said he urges all farmers who are confronted with a decision on cotton to come to the

Monday afternoon meeting "and learn how to furnish the computer the proper information."

At the session, which is open to all interested people, an Extension farm management specialist will be on hand to discuss the new system.

Adams said farmers using the service fill out forms to submit information on such things as land, cotton allotment, other allotments, yields and production costs.

A set of forms, available at the county agents office, is prepared for each plot of land designated as an "ASCS farm."

Adams said that for the analysis to be meaningful, information on such items as production expenses needs to be highly accurate.

SPEAKING OF INDUSTRY

Muleshoe Studies Plainview's Plan

Muleshoe will study industry from A to Z at an all-day meeting here March 22, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce locally and by the Texas Industrial commission on a state level.

And in the meantime, leaders here are delving into industrial programs of other towns. Latest among these is a study of Plainview's industrial program, presented fully this past week by J. M. Collins, district manager of Southwestern Public Service Co., from Plainview. He spoke to the Muleshoe Lions and a large number of guests, including several members of the Rotary Club.

"At the very outset, let me say that there are always some who will drag their feet when you start an industrial program," Collins said. For instance, there was the Plainview business man who said he didn't want Plainview to grow anymore — that it was big enough as it was. Fortunately very few held that view.

"Then there was the businessman who held the view that he had pioneered and had come into Plainview on his own; let anybody else who wanted to come, use the same method, strictly on his own."

"And there was also the view voiced by some of our people that industry stinks. That 'stinks' view is what knocked us out of the Swift & Co. which went instead to Clovis."

Collins said that securing industry is "never easy — it takes the combined efforts of everyone in the city, county, business, professions."

He said Plainview's program has added millions to the economy of that town, but that the city "still needs to expand its industry to move it beyond farming and farm-kin industry." He explained: "We are very happy to have such a prosperous agri-industry, but we feel now that we need to go for other types of industry, too."

He said competition for industry is extremely keen. "The community that is seeking industry," he explained, "but be prepared to devote time, energy and investments to meeting this competition."

"However, there are a number of factors which enter into this competition: Schools, cultural life, civic and service organization, availability of labor, churches, parks."

"Then there are also several 'allies' to industry-getting such as railroads, utilities, govern-

Library Dinner Plans Completed

Friends of the Library have launched ticket sales for their first annual banquet to be held Monday, March 21 in Fellowship Hall of First Methodist Church, and from all indications, a good crowd will be on hand for the event. The organization is headed by Melvin Evans.

Evans said the organization "feels indeed fortunate to have secured one of the nation's top librarians as the speaker."

Evans said the speaker will be R. C. Janeway, chief librarian at Texas Tech and one of the nation's most prominent librarians.

Tickets are on sale at the Chamber of Commerce office at $2.25 each, and may be had by anyone interested in library and its promotion. Neal Arnold is membership chairman.

Joe Harbin, general banquet chairman, said Janeway was born in Siloam Springs, Ark. in 1916 and received a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Kansas in 1938. He received his bachelor of science degree in library science in 1941 from the University of Illinois, and his master's degree from the same school in 1944.

From 1938 until 1946 he was with the University of Kansas and from 1940 until 1944 with the University of Illinois. In 1944-1946, he served at Bradley University and was assistant director of the library at the University of Kansas from 1946 until 1949. He became librarian at Texas Tech in 1949, a position he has continued to hold.

He is a past president of the

R. C. Janeway

Texas Library Association, and in 1963 was named Texas Librarian of the year.

He is a member of the steering committee of the First Texas Governor's conference on Libraries.

Persons interested in securing tickets to the March 21 event, first of its kind ever held here, may call 242-4248 for reservations.

Since this is to be what has been termed a "year of decision" for the area — deciding what action to take on the four-county bookmobile — an special interest is being shown this year in the entire library program and Friends of the Library.

C-C Committee Plans Salesmen's Training Course

Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce's retail activities committee, the "Go-Go club" bunch will sponsor a school to teach sales folk how to meet John Q. Public.

This was announced by Harvey Bass, chairman of the committee, and to do the job, one of the state's outstanding leaders in this field, D. W. Thomas, will conduct a course May 2, 3, 4 and 5 in the Muleshoe high school, starting at 7:30 p.m.

"The course is entitled, 'The Dynamics of Selling'."

"The decision to hold the sales course was one of the results of this week's Go-Go meeting. Said Bass: "We realize the need for additional training of local store people to provide pleasant, efficient service to their customers. From throughout the Muleshoe area."

Thomas is Sales Management Training Specialist with Distributive Education department, division of extension, University of Texas.

He holds a bachelor of arts degree from Baylor University and has done 27 hours toward his master's degree at Sam Houston State College, Huntsville.

Thomas has served as a division head in a department store, a sales manager, teacher in Lamar Tech and instructor in infantry replacement in the U. S. Army.

JAYCEE-ETTES' PLAN COMPLETE

Entire Families to Receive Free Immunization at Clinic

When a Muleshoe doctor and two nurses from the state health department unpack their needles and serums in the halls of the old courthouse here in March, April and May, they'll have plenty of needles — and serum — for both junior and his parents.

That was announced Saturday by Barbara Mills, publicity chairman for a mass immunization program which originally was planned only to immunize well babies.

But the program has been expanded greatly. Mrs. Mills has been informed by the state health department, and will include just about everybody in the family from two months to 80 or even more — all, that is, who are well at the time.

"The state health department nurses met with us and suggested that we expand the program to a family level," Mrs. Mills said, "and we agreed. The doctor who has volunteered to lead the clinic, also agreed, so it looks as if we are going to have three big, big Saturdays on our hands."

The state of Texas will furnish not only the nurses, but the vaccines as well. Shots to be given will include DPT, oral polio and smallpox. The health department pointed out, Mrs. Mills said, that the nurses and the doctor also will give booster shots, such as DPT shots which are needed every four years and smallpox shots that need to be re-taken every five years. In addition, polio should be "boosted" every four years.

The officers of the club pointed out that students who plan to go away to college this summer or next autumn also should take smallpox and booster shots before they leave for school; thus the free shots here are a "natural" for such students, officers explained. Most colleges now require a smallpox immunization before a student can

Spencer's Laundry Aired by Crume

Editor's Note: Our Spencer Beavers, postmaster here, is the subject of Paul Crume's column last Wednesday in the Dallas News. Seems Crume, who hailed originally from this country, and Spencer were boyhood friends. Crume's column follows:

A young man walked by the other day and said, "The Beaver sends his regards."

He was talking about Spencer Beavers, the high postmaster of Muleshoe, Texas, custodian of Uncle Sam's interests in that shallow water area.

The last time I saw Spencer, he looked old, wise, sage and canny. You had the feeling that he knew where every 5 cent stamp in the county had been sold for two years and also that Mrs. McGillicuddy likes the letters in her rent box to be stacked on top of the newspapers and magazines.

The last time I saw Spencer before that, he was about three feet tall. He was always about a foot shorter than the rest of the pack of boys who forged on Farwell, Texas. He always wore a baseball cap and extremely dirty sneakers, sometimes even in winter, and something in between that satisfied the legal definition.

Since he was smaller than the rest of us, he had to be extremely witty and dangerous.

He was the fastest man I have ever seen at yelling, "Venture dubs." This applied to a marble game that was the least innocent childhood pleasure I have ever got into. It was rudimentary gambling. Nobody ever thought of playing for anything but keeps. Cookies were smashed in it by the hundreds, and fistfights broke out every 30 minutes over some interjection of the rules.

The more thoughtful players were always reluctant to commit an acquaintance to the game.

If you yelled "dubs" fast enough, you were permitted to move your jaw around the circle at an equal distance and perhaps to substitute a heavier battering ball. "Venture dubs" froze everything.

As I said, Spencer was small. He didn't look as wise then, either. I can never remember that he ever got into any of the fights over how the rules were to be applied.

But I remember that he usually ended up with most of the marbles.

The world that Spencer and I grew up in is gone. Nobody wanted a potto then. The classy people always sat on their front porches at night, under the porch light, and read The Saturday Evening Post where everybody could see them. This demonstrated for all to see that this was a household devoted to culture, by jolly.

And maybe it was. The Saturday Evening Post has never been regarded as culture since it lost Colin Glencairn.

While these cultured people were demonstrating their devotion, some of us like Spencer and some people I could mention were at work in the alley — but no more of that.

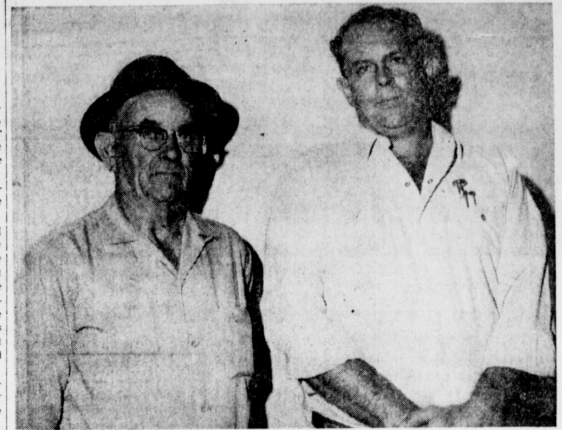

I'll bet he's the best postmaster of his class in the United States — but don't get into a game of marbles with him.

the fourth grade in the annual science fair at Mary DeShaze elementary school, Bill Taylor, principal, said Saturday.

David Hardgrove finished in second place for the fourth grade; Arthur Lopez and Sofia Torres, tied for third, and Keith Rangel and Roger Hallium each received honorable mention.

In the fifth grade, Glen Harrison finished in first, Mike Kimbrough second and Rex Black at third. Boyd Lee McCamish was given honorable mention.

PLAN

(Continued from Page 1) mental agencies, regional chambers of commerce — all of these can be called on for aid. "Many of these organizations maintain full-time industrial developers on their staffs and they can be of great help to the communities seeking industry."

His talk came just at a time when Muleshoe is putting out all its efforts to secure industry with a day-long program slated for March 22.

He explained that attitude of the people is a big factor in securing industry. He pointed out: "I believe the attitude of Plainview people has changed greatly in the six years we have been actively seeking industry. Even those who were opposed to industry are now joining in to help make it possible. The people are working together for an even greater future for their town, and this, in turn, has its effect on industry."

He gave these figures to illustrate the success of Plainview: Between 1959 and 1965, bank deposits increased from $43.5 million to $52 million. Net buying rose from an annual total of $62.5 million to $78.2 million.

From 1962 to 1964, while industrial employment rose from 770 to 1225 persons, net per capita buying income increased from $1800 a year to $1971 per year. Retail sales climbed from $54.7 million to $79.4 million.

Time to Pray...

Life can be so full and active... There are the school hours, time for study, and for a growing child there must be recreation. Also a time for eating is necessary, and a time to be with the family. One of the most needed times is to be with God in prayer. There are times that we should give thanks to God for our food, and times to seek his guidance and watch-care, and there are times to pray with others. This we can do by attending church.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.
