U. S. SOLDIERS AFTER VILLA IN MEXICO

Thursday morning U. S. troops entered Mexico from Columbus, New Mexico, where Villa and his followers attacked the town and did considerable meanness then hiked back into Mexico.

The soldiers sent in by the United States have their orders to get him dead or alive. General Pershing is at the head of the army.

Four hundred Mexican soldiers joined the Americans on their entrance into Mexico and it is reported they are as eager to capture Villa as are the Americans. More than twenty thousand soldiers are available for operations in Mexico.

It is hoped that Carranza and his followers will not do anything to cause friction between the countries. It is believed that Villa has moved toward the Guerrero district, in the foothills of the Sierra Madra Mountains.

A VISIT TO THE OLD SOLDIERS HOME AT AUSTIN

Mr. John Tomberlin, formerly Pilot Point, Denton County recently of Hedley, a Confederate soldier 81 years old; served in the 50th N. C. Regt., Gen. W. W. Kirkland's Brigade; went to Austin last week to enter the old Soldiers Home, because of his advanced age and very feeble health. He was accompanied by Capt. E. E. McGee who upon his return gave the Informer a very interesting report of the Home which may be of interest to our readers. It is a good home for the old soldiers. Mr. Tomberlin is located about 75 yards from the dining room and about 300 yards from the hospital, and about the same distance from the chapel where religious services are held by some of the inmates of the home and city preachers of various denominations. He and Mr. Tomberlin were shown thru the hospital, chapel, dining room, kitchen and other places of importance. The kitchen is well equipped, the cook stove is 7x11 feet. The bakery and ice chest where milk, butter and meat are kept are of large dimensions. The dining room is large, about 400 can be seated at one time at the tables; 22 tables for 20 men to each. The waiters are all young white men, each man waits on two tables. He had an invitation to dine with them which he gladly accepted and found the dinner excellent.

The inmates are now on the decrease. Since the first of January 1916 the death rate has been one for every three days. The coffins they use are nice. A man is employed with a hearse and has the job of digging the graves.

The post office is right on the grounds, also the laundry. The home is in the city limits about one and a half miles out on the street car line that runs to the big dam on the Colorado river.

The number of inmates of the home is now about 325. They are at liberty to go when and where they please; no gates locked. When a soldier is admitted there his pension stops, if he has been on the pension roll. But if he should become dissatisfied at the Home he can get a discharge any time, then his pension is renewed. They can get a furlough any time to visit their people anywhere with free railroad transportation. Everything is as nice there as can be and the soldiers receive the best of treatment and care.

Capt. McGee said he visited the home for the insane while there and saw Grandma Brinson who knew him and was glad to see some one from Hedley.

Pair of 2 year-old mules to trade for good young mare and some money. G. C. Meadows.

L. L. Cornelius and wife left Thursday night for Dallas and Fort Worth. They will visit the Stock Show while gone.

L. L. Amason and family moved Saturday into the Callahan house recently vacated by J. B. Storm.

Mrs. E. L. Woodson of East St. Louis arrived Thursday for a visit with her sister, Mrs. S. E. Lyell.

Many Realize Need of Universal Language

By C. A. PETERSON, St. Louis, Mo.

Many people realize the need of a universal language. The inability of one race to understand another places a barrier between them that can only be surmounted by considerable study.

Only a few persons, who have the least need for this information, can find time to devote to a study of languages. Esperanto, it seems, has not made much headway, and, what I am not familiar with its method or system, I have a plan which seems practical. The vocabulary of the average man is extremely limited. The number of words required in the ordinary course of business or personal activities will probably not exceed a thousand. An organization should be formed composed of one representative from each of the leading countries of the Caucasian race. Their voting power will be in proportion to the number of people having a thorough knowledge of their language.

The foregoing plan, it will readily be seen, would distribute the amount of effort necessary to master this universal language between the various races. For instance, under this plan an English student would be required to master but 500 words out of the 1,000, and even this would be reduced by the use of words which are more or less in use by both English and other people. An American citizen of German descent would be required to master but about 25 per cent, and so on.

Don't Let Clothing Misrepresent You

By MISS ELEANOR CRAIG, Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins, Colo.

It is interesting to analyze the influence of character on clothes, clothes being a rather sure indication of the type of the individual. Of course we readily make up our minds that the unshaven man with soiled and frayed collar and tie, baggy trousers and unshined boots, falls into the same lot with the down-at-the-heels woman, whose belt fails to perform its duty, whose buttonholes are buttonless, and whose ratty-looking hair suggests the need of a thorough combing.

But, aside from these, we can easily recognize the neat, nonimaginary kind, regular in habits, going through life in well-made, unostentatious garb that never attracts attention, because of its commonplaceness. Every rent is darned and there are often patches, but the clothes never need pressing or show the lack of mending.

The imaginative person suggests his bent by a bit of color, a line of originality in the style of the gown, in his selection of tie or his boot, and, nowadays, even of his jewelry.

There is the foppish man, appearing in the morning in one costume, another in the afternoon, and in the evening, with further changes for the following day. It takes no great insight to know that his wardrobe absorbs all his thought in his little brain, and we rejoice that fortune has given him a means of expression other than his own exertions.

Of course one's purse must limit the personality expressed in clothes, but the dominant traits are bound to be reflected, if not in the whole, in little ways. A Priscilla cannot dress as a Dolly Madison, nor a Miles Standish as a Lord Chesterfield.

Light but Warm Clothing for Children

By W. J. BARRY, New York

Provide your kiddies with light but warm sweaters to wear to school under their coats. If the schoolrooms are too cold, they can wear their little sweaters in class. But the windows in a schoolroom should be kept part way open at all times. This is essential where a number of children from different districts are assembled. Fresh air will help to ruin the power of any germs brought in on the clothing. The trouble is that often the teacher is uncomfortable with the windows open in winter and will not agree to any such procedure.

If every mother took an active interest in the ventilation of the schoolroom, there would be less sickness spreading among whole schools of children. Most teachers, however, realize the necessity for fresh air both for their pupils and for their own health.

At night the windows should be opened wide. Now, with all this talk of fresh air, it does not mean that the children should be frozen out of school and home.

You should be absolutely sure that the youngsters are very warmly clad. And at night the best sleeping garments are the light flannel pajamas which cover them from neck to foot.

They should have as many bed coverings as they need to be comfortably warm.

But, first and foremost, the mother should insist on plenty of fresh air.

Girls Expect Too Much From Husbands

By A. G. BERNARD, Washington, D. C.

The reason given by most bachelors for being single is "I can't afford a wife." Now that does not mean that he blames the feminine sex with all the trouble, necessarily. It may also mean that he, too, has his expensive tastes and if the two are added together it spells prohibition as far as marriage is concerned.

The modern tendency to educate daughters to expect as much from their husbands as they receive from their parents at the time of marriage, explains the aloofness of many a good man who ought to marry and really wants to. Without criticizing the ambition of every girl to have higher education and many graceful accomplishments, the fact remains that her greatest and best accomplishment should be the care of a home, the ability and willingness to cook a perfect dinner. Now, girls, don't flare up and say that when you marry you won't be anybody's drudge. That is what fills the divorce courts.

Marry with the idea that it is a fifty-fifty division of work and responsibility.

Let the young man find you in the kitchen making toothsome dishes once in a while, rather than always in the parlor dressed in your most expensive gown.

TAKE A GLASS OF SALTS WHEN BLADDER BOthers

Harmless to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids—Splendid for the System.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.—Adv.

GAS, DYSPEPSIA AND INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" settles sour, gassy stomachs in five minutes—Time it!

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it. Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; its harmlessness; its certain unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-cent case from any dealer and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them; if what they eat lays the lead, ferments and sours and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eructations of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.—Adv.

DAIRY

MILKING THREE TIMES DAILY

Custom Among More Advanced Dairy-men of Denmark—Practice Prevents Congestion of Udder.

What are our dairy cows for? Do we keep them as lawn ornaments, or as a source of milk supply? Shall the dairyman drive his cows from door to door, as dairy cows and goats are driven in some countries, milking as much and as often as his patronage demands as long as his supply holds out, or shall he use more improved methods? Shall he milk once a day, as was the practice some hundreds of years ago, and is yet the custom in some places, or shall he milk three times, as is the custom among the more advanced dairymen in Denmark? Shall the cow be given the opportunity to show her capacity by the removal of her milk product as often as seems necessary, or shall we dry her down to suit our convenience in milking?

Holstein-Friesian Heifer.

As our population and the cost of food products increase, milk as one of the most valuable of food products will also increase in price, and in the near future it will be as customary for dairymen to milk cows three times a day during the earlier portion of the lactation period as it is now to milk but twice. Indeed, owing to the wonderful milk-producing qualities of Holstein-Friesian cows, in order to avoid congestion of the udder it is the common practice among those having the better cows to milk three times daily for many weeks after freshening.

VALUE OF CREAM SEPARATOR

Expert of Missouri Agricultural College Says 25 Per Cent More Cream Secured From Milk.

"The farmer who uses a cream separator obtains as much milk from four cows as is obtained from five cows where cream is raised in a pan," says C. H. Eckles of the Missouri College of Agriculture. The separator method gets 25 per cent more cream from the milk and this will pay for a separator in a year in a dairy herd of ten or more cows. As the cream is separated while fresh and sweet, ripening can be controlled and butter of much better grade can be secured than if the cream is raised by gravity. The use of a separator lightens the work for the housewife. The machine is kept in a small room adjoining the barn and only the separator parts are brought from the house. These, instead of numerous pans and crocks, are returned to the kitchen for washing after the fresh skim milk has been fed to the calves and pigs.

A well-made separator will last for years, in spite of the fact that it is put into service twice a day. The separator should run from four to six years without repairs, if reasonable care is used.

COWS REQUIRE MUCH WATER

Practice of Watering Herd But Once Daily Is Not to Be Recommended—Three Times Is Better.

It is a mistake to be satisfied with watering the herd but once a day. If they can be induced to drink twice or three times a day, it should be done. Cows need much water.

It has been found that the average milch cow requires about 81 pounds of water a day while in milk (nearly ten gallons), and about 64 pounds while dry. Of this, the cow in milk takes rather more than two-thirds (say seven gallons) as drink, and the rest in her food, while the dry cow takes rather less than two-thirds as drink, and a little more than one-third in the food.

TO REMOVE WARTS ON TEATS

Rub Affected Parts Daily With Castor Oil or Goose Grease—Cut Off the Large Ones.

Warts on a cow's teats will disappear after a time if the affected parts are rubbed once or twice daily with best castor oil or fresh goose grease. A large wart, having a narrow base, should be snipped off with scissors and the bleeding stopped by applying powder or solution.

If it starts to grow again, cauterize the part with lunar caustic pencil.

COULD NOT LIE ON SIDE

And Had to Sleep With Head High on Pillow, on Account of Suffering. Says Cardui Made Her Well.

Laurel, Miss.—Mrs. Martha A. Corbin, R. F. D. 4, of this place, writes: "I am glad to write this letter and you are welcome to use it... in any way you choose."

"I have had a soreness in my side so that I could not lie on it to sleep. The back of my head hurt me a great deal too, so that I had to lie with my head high on the pillow. Once a month I would have a great deal of backache... Then I would suffer from dizziness, which would be so bad I could hardly sit up and would have a very queer feeling in my head. The neighbors all advised me to have a doctor, but I had heard a great deal of Cardui and decided to take that. I swelled a great deal too... When that first began on me I would want to stretch and when I would stretch, the pain would run to my hips and shoulders."

"But I began to take Cardui, and before I had taken a half bottle I began to feel better and the swelling began to go down. The pain began to diminish and by the time I had taken two bottles I felt well enough to quit taking it... I think it is the grandest medicine that women can use."

It is the wish of every patriotic parent that his child shall stand in the front ranks of the business world. To get these results the teacher, the parent and the child must work together. Open mutiny with the school means hindrance to the child to attain this high standing. There should be close unity. Consult freely on these subjects which will largely determine the welfare of the future to the child. If your child is not doing well in school it is your duty to see the teacher and help her to devise plans which will remedy the evil. Don't! Don't pour out your wrath on the teacher at the supper table in the presence of the child. It only means that your children will reap what you sow for them. They will have no confidence in the teacher, cause trouble in school, and lose all interest in learning. If the evil exists in school see the teacher and it will be made right.—Ex.

To The People of Texas:

In the Annual Report of the Texas Railroad Commission for 1900, then presided over by that grand old com-moner, John H. Reagan, after noticing the great increase in the amount that the Railroads of Texas had to pay in satisfaction of Jury verdicts and Court Judgments for personal injuries, the report says:

"While we have no official information showing the cause of this great increase, we understand, in a general way, that it probably results in a large degree from the activities of regularly organized personal injury bureaus. The only direct interest which this Commission has in this question grows out of the fact that, as the amount of these payments are increased, the available revenues of the railroad companies are reduced thus necessarily operating, to that extent, to prevent the reduction of freight rates, or, it might be, to cause an increase of them."

What Judge Reagan and his associates foresaw and warned against has actually happened. The Railroad Commission of Texas has increased freight rates. Not much yet; but it is hoped the increases will be sufficiently liberal to relieve the roads of their distressing necessities.

The Commission, after the most exhaustive, patient, laborious and painstaking investigation ever before undertaken by a state rate-making body in which hearing the Commission was assisted by able attorneys and experts, in no way connected with the railroads; and with the single purpose of learning the truth and doing their duty as sworn officials of your choosing, the Commissioners found that the railroads are entitled to earn more revenue to enable them to pay their operating expenses and a fair return upon the value of the property devoted to public use.

It would not be fair to charge the entire increase to personal injury payments. Such payments had, however, a considerable influence in the way of increased expenses; but there are many other ways of unnecessarily increasing the expense of the railroads. The legislature can, and in the past has done so. And every expense imposed or forced on the railroads by the legislature must be considered in fixing freight rates paid by the people, and mostly by the producers of the wealth of the state.

The last legislature was impertuned, by selfish interests, to pass wholly unnecessary and expensive laws, such as the so-called "full crew bill" and others, that would, had they been enacted, have increased the expenses of the railroads of the state about four million dollars per year. The legislature, however, refused the enormous expense on the and producers of this state, justly owe your lawmakers thanks for thus protecting if the legislature had passed laws, the increased expense have had to be taken into con-tion by the Railroad Comm fixing the advances allowed hereafter allowed.

Mr. Lynde has outdone himself in this story of "Mirapolis," the "sudden" western city that grew up in the shadow of a big irrigation dam under construction, and, for a time, threatened to stop the dam's completion.
For the men there is the story of the big business grafter and the government engineer.
For the women there is the story of the lovely and loving little woman who wouldn't let her man be any smaller than the man she knew and loved in him.
And for everybody there is a most charming picture of western life.

AEROPLANE AND AUTO MAIL

Former a Possibility of the Future and the Latter Seen to Be in Operation.

Two new methods of carrying rural mail, and possibly also parcels by post, are fast looming up as reasonably certain and paramount features of government service. Part of it is not far off, while part of it is far enough off only to await practical completion. The instruments of these two methods are the automobile and the aeroplane.

Mail service by aeroplane between postal stations, but not individual service, may be counted upon with certainty just as soon as the reliability of such service has been established, and this does not seem to be far away. At the rate at which these planes travel, dwellers in the mountains and desert places of the West, and also in the high spots of the East, will get their mail with daily frequency and regularity, and more than once a day where necessity would justify it.

SHARP ELBOWS MEAN HEALTH

Also They Do Not by Any Means Denote the Possession of a Quick Temper.

There used to be a notion that a sharp elbow was the sign of a short temper, and the wise lover would better steer clear of a girl if the joint in question was not nicely rounded.

A dimple on the side of the elbow was regarded as a great charm, and in the love stories of a generation ago the heroine was often described as possessing one.

All that sort of thing is out of date now. Not only has fashion decided that slim lines in the figure are to be desired, but science has come to the fore and pointed out that a firm-muscled form is an evidence of good health.

A plump, rounded elbow means that there is a considerable deposit of fat at a place where there ought not to be any, and it implies a certain lack of elasticity in the physical make-up, which probably shows also in the character.

The girl whose elbows are sharp need no longer trouble about hiding them with long sleeves, but may be proud of the fact that they show a trim and well-set frame.

THE WAY OF IT.

TOY WINDMILLS.

The simplest windmill to make, and one of the best whirlers ever devised, is the common paper pinwheel mounted upon a stick (Fig. 1).

A piece of paper 8 or 10 inches square is needed for the pinwheel.
Fold this piece of paper diagonally
from corner to corner, both ways.
Then open the paper, and with a pair of scissors cut along the diagonal creases from the corners to within 1 inch of the center (Fig. 2). Then one by one fold corners A, B, C and D over to the center, as shown in Fig.

3, and run a pin through the corners and through the center of the sheet.

The windmill in Fig. 4 may be made of cardboard or tin. A circular piece 10 or 12 inches in diameter is required. After marking out the outer edge with a compass, describe an inner circle about 1 inch inside of it;
then draw two lines through the center
at right angles to each other, and another pair at an angle of 45 degrees to these. The four lines are indicated by heavy lines in Fig. 5. One-half inch to one side of these lines draw a parallel line, as indicated by dotted lines in Fig. 5. The next thing to do is to cut out the disk, and cut through on the heavy lines just as far as the lines are shown on the diagram (Fig.

5), and then to fold on the other, or dotted lines.

The hub for the windmill shown in Fig. 6 is a block of wood 4 inches in diameter and one inch thick (Fig. 7).
Draw two lines across one face,
through the center, and at right angles to each other. Then carry these lines across the edge of the block, not at right angles to the sides, but at an angle of 45 degrees. Saw along these lines to a depth of 1 1/4 inches.
The ends of the windmill blades are to fit in these slots. Cut the blades of equal size, 9 inches long, 5 inches wide on the wide edge, and 1 1/2 inches wide on the narrow edge, and fasten them in the slots with nails. The hub block, with the blades in position, should next be pivoted to the end of the windmill shaft, a stick 16 inches long (Fig. 6). The end opposite to that to which the hub is pivoted is whittled round, and slotted with a saw to receive a tail (Fig. 8).

HOMEMADE SCRAPBOOKS.

The covers of your scrapbook may be of cardboard from drygoods boxes
if you haven't any boxes at home you can get them for the asking at a drygoods store. The scrapbook leaves should be of manilla wrapping paper.
Any merchant will sell you what you need at a trifle more than it costs him. The size of your scrapbook pages should be regulated by the size of the sheets of wrapping paper, so the paper

may be cut with little or no waste.
The way to prepare the front cover of the scrapbook in Fig. 1 is shown in Fig. 2. Cut a strip 1 inch wide from the binding edge of this cover, and then with a piece of drilling about 3/8 inches wide hinge the strip to the edge you cut it from. Coat the piece of drilling with glue and fold it over the strip so its edges will lap over both the upper and lower surfaces of the cover.

Drill three holes through the back cover and the hinged strip of the front cover, one near each end and one through the center.

If you haven't a punch for punching the holes of the scrapbook use the point of a nail. Figure 3 shows how to index the pages with tabs lapped and passed to both sides of the sheet, and Fig. 4 suggests an arrangement of scraps. When an article occupies both sides of a clipping paste it along one margin as shown.

Lace together the covers and leaves with a shoelace. Pass the lace down through the center holes, along the outside of the back cover to one end, up through the holes at that end, along the front cover to the holes at the other end, down through these holes, along the back cover to the center holes, up through them, and then tie the ends in a bowknot.

By covering the front and back covers with denim, canvas or cambric, lapped and sewing the cloth to both sides of the front cover (Fig. 5), and providing flaps upon the piece fastened to the back cover (Fig. 6), a more attractive scrapbook will be obtained, and the leaves will be protected by the flaps.

like a letter-file. Get a cardboard box about 10 inches wide, 12 inches long and 2 inches deep, separate one long side from the corners, and with a strip of linen hinge it to open as shown in Fig. 8. Then cut a strip about 1 inch wide from one long edge of the cover, and hinge it back in place with a linen strip (Fig. 9). Place the cover upon the box and sew the turn-down side edge and ends of the hinged strip to the box. The scrapbook will then be ready for its pages, which may be prepared as shown in Figs. 1 and 4.

CAUSES FOR SMALL LITTERS

One Reason Which Contributes to Trouble More Than Any Other is Breeding Young Sows.

"Can you tell me why my brood sows only bring between three and six pigs per litter?"

Replying to this question Prof. G.
W. Barnes, live stock specialist of the University of Arizona agricultural extension service, says:

"If you have studied hog conditions in the United States you will find that about four pigs per litter is the average; and I can point to you men in Arizona who are actually raising for market two and three pigs to the lit-

Well-Developed Sow With Profitable Litter.

ter, yet the cost of maintenance of the brood sow is practically the same whether she brings two pigs or ten pigs per litter, which means that the farmers are losing a large percentage of profit by keeping such brood sows
in their herds.

"There are several reasons why brood sows bring small litters, and I firmly believe that the one which contributes to the trouble more than any other is the practice of breeding sows too young. It is no uncommon thing to find sows weighing less than one hundred pounds with pigs. Usually you find them with only two pigs. The young sows which you intend to keep for brood sows should never be bred under nine months of age, and it is much better to wait until they are twelve or fourteen months old. Then if they are not full developed, wait a few months longer. Your brood sow is good for six or eight years, and, if by waiting a few months in her life work, you can increase the size of her litters, you have certainly made good wages for those months. Another thing which contributes to no slight extent to cause small litters is the lack of exercise.

WEANLING PIGS GROW FAST

Greatest Gains for Feed Consumed
Are Made in Early Life—Lard
Hogs Becoming Unpopular.

The prevalent opinion seems to be that swine were designed to eat up the corn crop and grow into 300-pound porkers. Under certain circumstances there is a better profit in selling weanlings than in feeding them up to the usual market weights.

Exact trials at many experiment stations show that the greatest gains for feed consumed are made in early life and that as the animals grow older it takes more feed to produce a pound of pork.

The sucking pig grows very fast
and converts nearly all of its rations into meat. If the sow is fed liberally she, too, will make some gains while supporting her brood. The weanling weighing 25 to 40 pounds is almost clear gain and will often bring ten cents a pound at this age.

On the same principle the 150-pound pig will make more profitable returns on feed consumed than if left until it weighs 250 pounds. There is an increasing number of farmers who prefer to sell light "bacon hogs" and fewer who continue to fatten "lard hogs" up to the extra fat classes that were popular a score of years ago.

GOOD VENTILATION FOR HOGS

Frequently When Shed Is Closed Animals Become Heated and Must Inhale Impure Air.

Of little less importance than the ventilation of this year's crop of corn is that of securing proper ventilation for the animals that eat it, according to the Nebraska College of Agriculture. This is particularly true of hogs.

Frequently when the shed is closed tightly the hogs will become heated, as well as be obliged to inhale impure air. Such hogs, on being exposed to cold air, are likely to become susceptible to disease, especially pneumonia and so-called hog rheumatism.

Noose vs. Halter.

A rope with a noose in it is some what cheaper to tie an animal with than a good halter, but if the noose happens to slip, or the animal gets into some unusual position which draws the rope tight enough to choke
the animal to death, the halter proves a whole lot cheaper in the end.

Growing Suspicious.

There is a place down Third street where certain printers hang out when twilight has come and the day's work is over. And there's a reason!

In lifting type from galley to form a printer uses what is called a "make-up rule." It is a thin strip of steel, and you can buy 'em for about ten cents each.

But the man that runs the place where the Ben Franklin boys go has been led to believe that this little bit of steel is the printer's badge.
Without it the printer can't work, according to his conception. He has been led to believe that.

So, when a printer asks him for the loan of a couple of dollars and is willing to leave the "make-up rule"
as security, the genial host readily passes over the coin. He has a cigar box full of the thin strips of steel at present, and is beginning to think.—

This is a recent discovery of Doctor
Pierce, head of the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. Experiments for sev-able. For those easily recognized symptoms of inflammation—as backache, scalding urine and frequent urination, as well as sediment in the caused rheumatism, "Anuric" acts quickly. In rheumatism of the joints, in gravel and gout, invariably the

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum,
a small box of Barbo Compound, and 4 oz.
of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any drug-moves dandruff. It is excellent for falling hair and will make harsh hair soft and glossy.

It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or House Memorial to Poe.

In what was once known as Fordham, a suburb of New York and now included in Greater New York, stands the humble shingled house known as the Poe cottage. Here Edgar Allan Poe, poet, story teller and critic, lived from 1844 until 1849. It was during this period that he wrote one of his most widely known poems, "The Raven." Twice within recent years the Poe cottage has been moved a short distance because of the encroachments of new buildings. It is now located in Poe park. After many years of activity by the West Chester Historical society, the cottage is now maintained as a memorial to the poet and a museum in which manuscripts and souvenirs of the poet are preserved.

you would build for efficient service now and for generations to come.

The "Road to Wellville" is built that way. And the password to that road is "right living," in which food and drink play such a big part.

More and more people are waking up to the need of banishing from the dietary heavy, indigestible foods, and food deficient in the vitalizing mineral salts. Food scientists now hold that the lack of these elements is one of the chief causes of a long list of ills, including anemia, constipation, nervous prostration, kidney trouble, and so on.

Long ago a food—now famous—was devised to make up for this lack, and it does it admirably.

That food is

Grape-Nuts

Made of whole wheat and barley, it contains all the nutrition of the grain, including those vital elements—phosphate of potash, etc.—which are indispensable for perfect balance of body, brain and nerves, and for warding off disease.

This food comes ready to eat, is economical, and delicious. Digests quickly—generally in about one hour—and is full of health-making goodness.

A ration of Grape-Nuts along with other food has started thousands on the "Road to Wellville."

Siletz had always ridden bareback, but now, why she did not know, she took down Sandry's saddle and slung it on Black Bolt. Poppy followed her movements, and by the time Siletz had put foot in stirrup and swung up, she had caught up her wide skirt and mounted. Siletz flared around at her and her eyes were beginning to sparkle in a face pale with rage.

Without a word they galloped up across the lonesome valley and took to what had once been a trail in the nodding ferns. Now it was but a slight depression running amid the blackened trunks, the endless heaps of ashes. Poppy Ordway followed Siletz, on a chance, a dare, a mere hazard. She did not know the danger, the menace of the hills.

She was saying to herself after her enticing habit of self-communion: "I'll have my precious packet soon. I know I shall. The gods are with me. I feel it."

Once Siletz turned upon her. "Go back!" she cried fiercely, "something is about to happen."

"You're right," said Poppy, and for once the hardness of her nature showed like a rock under waves in eyes and voice and manner, "and I'll be in at the happening."

They spoke no more. Siletz checked Black Bolt in another mile, rose in her stirrups and looked over the appalling spectacle before them. Over and beyond lay the tumbled hills, thick with heavy timber, that ran into the Siletz basin. Somewhere in their fastnesses reared the mighty spine of the Hog Back with its secret trail. And some where up behind the Hog Back was Sandry. Calm as she was by nature, Siletz shuddered as she looked upon the world of fame and smoke. To Poppy Ordway, ignorant of its meaning and its might, it was a splendid spectacle.

Siletz plunged down the ridge on the other side and the woman followed. The shadows of the smoke-filled valley grew into an uncanny twilight. The fine, light ashes made slippery going and more than once Black Bolt slipped to catch his footing, catlike. They rode ahead and entered the fire belt itself. The dusk grew denser. The heat lay like a tangible blanket in the hollows and dips. Siletz urged Black Bolt. Something was calling out of the gray dimness—chilling her heart, hurrying her progress.

She had ridden for a time in deep thought when a scream from the woman behind drew her up with a start. She turned just in time to see the big bay fall and go tumbling down the mountain. With his first lurch he had flung his rider out of the saddle and into a pile of ashes. It was true to her nature that the girl, dismounting, ran, not to the woman but down the slope after the horse. She found him prone and groaning in a little trench, his right foreleg doubled back, the white bone piercing the earth.

A Tall Lone Spiral Into the Dun Heavens.

Poppy Ordway peered fearfully down, her trembling hands gathering her dust-covered skirts.

"Come here!" Siletz cried, commanding; "come here!"

It was the same voice, whimpering with primitive rage, that had compelled that craven "Sandry" from Poppy Ordway's lips that night at the pump, and as the woman had obeyed then, so she obeyed now.

Siletz rose, reaching in the blouse of her shirt, and brought out a gun. Poppy Ordway shrank back, white as chalk.

"What do you mean?" she cried shrilly. "What are you going to do?" Horror widened her blue eyes grotesquely.

"I never shot a living thing in my life," said Siletz solemnly, "but I've got to kill him. And you stand by to watch—it's your work."

There was a sharp report that did not echo in the fire-deadened hills, and the good horse closed his eyes in sudden peace. Siletz turned away to where Black Bolt looked on with wonder, Coosnah crouching beside him. In a swift revulsion she flung the weapon far down the mountain.

She started to mount without a glance at the woman when the other spoke.

"What am I to do?"

"Do? I don't care what you do. Go home. And I hope you never reach there!"

"My God!" cried Poppy Ordway, "don't leave me like this! And look! Look there!"

All along the valley by which they had come a lone, swift drift of smoke was rolling, sent out like a current from some newly fired cross-canyon. Its low-lying pall formed a bewildering mystery to anyone save a native of the hills. A woman on foot would never reach camp through its blinding darkness.

Long Siletz sat turned in her saddle and looked at it. Then a thought of Sandry and his standards pierced the emotions that dominated her. There was but one thing to do.

"Come up," she said at last, "I'll have to take you."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Fires Within Fire.

So it was a double burden that the great black horse carried into the mystery of the shrouded country. Hatred was like a wall between them and Poppy's fingers, clinging perforce to Siletz' shirt, twitched with desire. How short a distance to the packet in the bagging blouse!

So they rode with smarting eyes and aching lungs, down into a dim valley and up again, between fires, under mighty, towering trunks, tottering to their fall. They passed the high spine of the Hog Back, a majestic crown against the smoke, and threaded the ruins of the forest. At last they saw great fires ahead and men running among them.

"Where is Sandry?" Siletz asked, unabashed, of a soldier.

"Don't know. Haven't seen him for hours." He hurried on and the girl rode along the line where a hundred men were laboring with ax and spade and blanket. The wind had dropped and they were working north and south, trying to bottle up a roaring cross-out of a valley. Scattered throughout the hills in squads, obeying the orders sent down from time to time by the ranger and his aids, who patrolled the ridges with field glasses, they worked like a great machine, though they saw no farther than their own trench, their own line of back-fires, their own streak of felled pines.

But work as they would at the base of the high, massed peaks, Destiny was about ready for her grand coup at the fortunes of the Dillingworth, and she snatched a streamer from a cross-canyon and shot it high across line and back-fire and trench into the dry pines on that slope. Also she had sent, an hour before, a tall, lone spiral into the dun heavens from the very heart of the spared timber behind the Hog Back. That spiral had caught the eye of Walter Sandry, working with his waning strength north on the east slope. For how many hours he did not know, he had neither eaten nor slept. But still he went with the spirit that would not quit so long as another stayed at his post.

"If the rains would only come!" he thought as he struggled upward, "it's nearly time for them. If they would only bring their first showers now!"

The roar of the new fire—a solitary pine that went up like a huge, graceful torch—was in his ears, its light before him.

"Now how under heaven did it get started up in here?"

He had spoken aloud as he wearily skirted a clump of young spruce and the words fell short, abruptly broken as he emerged from their shelter.

Before him, in a small cleared space, stood Hampden of the Yellow Pines. His back was toward Sandry and he carried in his hand three candles. He was nearly as black and disreputable as any scarecrow down among the fires. He was intently watching something at the foot of a second pine. Softly Sandry moved until this object was in his line of vision.

Bedded high in a pile of tinder-dry needles a fourth candle glowed brightly in the smoky gloom. With utmost cunning it had been set close against the tree where a long branch of pitch trailed down the rugged bark from far up among the branches. When the candle burned down to the resin-steeped needles—and a man might travel far in the meantime—the upleaping flames need only tick that banner to rush with lightning speed to the swaying, inflammable top.

For a long moment the Easterner stood, lost in wonder. Then the whole thing burst upon him and he roared:

"You can't!" snarled Hampden, "oh, you can't! Well, by God, you will before I'm done with you. You didn't know what you were gettin' up against—your and your—your—Poppy Ordway. You made yer fight, an' you thought you'd won! But you reckoned without me. I'm makin' mine, an' it's a hummer."

He glared savagely along the gun into Sandry's bloodshot eyes, and at this moment Black Bolt heaved up through the ferns, Siletz peering eagerly along his straining neck, and the face of Poppy Ordway at her shoulder. The girl slid out of the saddle and ran to Sandry.

"What is it?" she cried, "what is it?"

Sandry pointed to the burning candle at the pine's foot and instantly she sprang forward and snuffed it out with thumb and finger.

Hampden of the Yellow Pines was the power behind the holocaust!

As this stupendous knowledge forced itself into his weary brain, the other man turned and strode swiftly away among the boles. The wearying climb had taken the breath from Sandry's lungs and he drew a pistol from his belt and fired over Hampden's head. Like an animal the man whirled, hand to hip, and faced him.

"I've got you at last!" Sandy panted. "I've got you at last!"

Hampden's heavy lips curled venomously from his short, strong teeth. "You!" he breathed, "you! You damned Easterner! You lily-handed tenderfoot!"

Sandy smiled grimly.

"This is just about the blackest spot in your crooked career, Hampden," he said at last, "the blackest and the biggest blunder. I can't see why you did it."

"You can't!" snarled Hampden, "oh, you can't! Well, by God, you will before I'm done with you. You didn't know what you were gettin' up against—your and your—your—Poppy Ordway. You made yer fight, an' you thought you'd won! But you reckoned without me. I'm makin' mine, an' it's a hummer."

He glared savagely along the gun into Sandry's bloodshot eyes, and at this moment Black Bolt heaved up through the ferns, Siletz peering eagerly along his straining neck, and the face of Poppy Ordway at her shoulder. The girl slid out of the saddle and ran to Sandry.

Sandry pointed to the burning candle at the pine's foot and instantly she sprang forward and snuffed it out with thumb and finger.

Miss Ordway slipped down from the foamy, steaming hips of the horse, to stand leaning against him, her bright eyes beginning to sparkle with the tension of the moment. At sight of her Hampden's face grew gray beneath its grime. She was smiling with that pleasure which she always found where men fought, or engineered dramatic coups, or worked out clever schemes, and her beauty was never so maddening to him in all his knowledge of her. His one pure dream had, in truth, reached a sorry ending.

"Sandy," said Siletz simply, "I came to you. There's danger somewhere—I don't know where or what—but there's something in the shadows."

A vagrant wind fanned up long sheets and whistling banners that hurried up to leap into the moaning canopy behind the Hog Back. The actors in this little drama were too intent to hear the heightened note.

"So you come to be in at the death!" said Hampden at last, his eyes on Poppy in anguished fury, "you done me to death an' you want to see me die! Oh, th' game's up and I don't care a damn! I'm th' smartest one of this bunch yet. An' but fer th' fact that you've got them two letters you stole from the commissioner and th' account book with the records of our deals an' rake-offs and so on, I'd a had a chance to fight an' win yet! But I know you, Poppy—oh, how damned well I know you!—an' I know I'm whipped. But I'm makin' a fight—you're damned right I am!"

He waved an eloquent arm around at the appalled, shrinking country which seemed to crouch in its nakedness under the shrouding smoke.

"But th' thing that cuss is knowin' that you done it all fer him! A feeble drivelin' thing from th' East! An' they say you'll marry him! Well, go to it! He'll have to move out, fer there won't be any more Dillingworth Lumber company in twenty hours. I'll be behind bars, all right, but I've cleaned him out."

As he finished with a reckless laugh Sandry turned amazed eyes to Poppy. She was pale with anger and she avoided his glance. This was the last thing she wanted—that Sandry should know of her attempt to forestall him in the "getting" of Hampden. She saw her chance to gain his gratitude by her gift drifting away. Also the revelation of her lawyer's perfidy was a mighty blow.

"Hampden," she said unsteadily, "you're the coarsest beast I know!"

"All right. But ain't that what it's all fer? To lay me as a burnt offerin' at his feet—a sacrifice to win his mincin' love? Didn't you say you'd marry him? Ain't I heard it right an' left?"

"No!" cried Poppy, red with rage under Sandry's astounded eyes, "no! I never did!"

"Yes!" cried Siletz ringingly, "you did! You said when Sandry was dyin' that you were his promised wife."

In the hush that followed, intensified by the dropping brands from the huge pine which was now but a blackened, ironed skein in the thickening smoke, there fell upon their ears a sound as incongruous with the strained moment as could be imagined.

It was a shower of notes, high, sparkling, thrilling, that seemed to fall like drops of diamond through the murky canopy. They came up from the west, mysterious, martial, joyful, and their burden was "Lead, Kindly Light, Lead Thou Me On!"

"The Preacher!" whispered Siletz, "Oh, the Preacher!"

And presently through the dim dun-white of the smoke that crept with portent between the crowding pines, there merged the familiar, erect form. With one accord they turned to him as he approached and Sandry for the one moment left Hampden unguarded.

It was all that was necessary. Quick as light the band that had first instinctively sought his hip snuffed it again. There was a flash of metal, dun in the dun effluence, a straightening of the heavy arm that held it, a spurt of flame, a shot.

But quick as the timberman had been, another was quicker. With one leap as Hampden reached for his gun the Preacher reached Sandry, snatched him aside and flung himself before him, his flute raised high in protest, in command. But the gesture came too late.

The bullet meant for the Easterner found lodgment in the gentle breast of the wandering player of hymns, and he sank down in Sandry's arms.

CHAPTER XXIX.

The Sign of the Siletz.

It was Poppy Ordway who struck the gun from Hampden's hand, sending it flying among the ferns.

"We'll have no murder here!" she cried.

Sandry looked at Hampden for one fleeting second as he laid his gun beside him.

"If you move one muscle," he rasped harshly, "I'll kill you on the spot."

Then he eased the slight form of the Preacher down upon the deep pine needles.

Just above the heart blood was pouring from the shabby habit. Sandry tore it away, to find a clean small hole in the white skin, which was fine and delicate as a woman's. The ball had gone straight through, tearing a huge ragged aperture where it emerged in the back from which the red stream flowed in a flood.

The Gesture Came Too Late.

"Cloth!" cried Sandy, "give me cloth!"

His voice broke the spell that bound Siletz and she sprang forward, tearing her garments, ripping out of her breast some mysterious womanly vesture that was white and soft.

"Oh, my God above the sea!" she was crying with gasping sobs, "Lord of the heavens! Spare him! Spare him!" And only Poppy Ordway saw the packet which tumbled unheeded to the ground. With one catlike, graceful movement she threw herself forward, snatched it up and hid it in her own bosom.

Sandry hastily made compresses and bound them upon the wounds. He tore off what was left of his tattered shirt and added it. He took handfuls of leaves from the hazelbrush and padded the compresses, binding them tighter and tighter. But it was heart's blood that was loosened and each effort to stop it was futile.

It was soon evident that the feet in their heavy shoes had gone their last journey upon the hills, that the triumphant flute had piped its last song of victory.

"My children," said the Preacher, "I promised to come when you should need me. I have served a need. You are young, my son, and the path of youth is fair. There are too many primroses thereon to sacrifice one year of it. I am old—old."

Here Siletz flung herself upon her knees beside him, unable to control herself, rocking to and fro after her fashion, her braids swaying and a terrible anguish upon her face.

The handsome blue eyes turned wonderingly upon her.

"Daughter—little one of the tender heart—hush! I hear strange sounds and I would listen."

He closed his eyes and lay for a time in silence, the delicate tracery on his face emerging more clearly as a pallor spread beneath it. It was the divine record of years spent with his God in the high places, though here and there a drooping line bespoke a vague, forgotten sadness.

Presently he murmured: "The Winds of the Mighty One are upon the sounding board of the hills! Ah!"

Again a silence and he opened his eyes with a return to earth. But in them had come the dimness of dreams, and half-remembered years and times and places.

They gazed wonderingly into the dark, tear-blinded ones of Siletz bending above. For a long time the old man lay, staring up with that look of wonder. Then a great joy broke on his face with a shining smile, and he struggled to raise himself on an arm.

"Kahwanna!" he cried, "Kahwanna!"

It was a call from a far-distant past. It thrilled that little company of listeners with its ecstasy.

"Why—why—What have I dreamed, my princess of the hills, that you have seemed so far away? What was it—Ah, I have forgot! But you are here at last!"

He raised palsied, trembling arms to the girl's neck.

"You are back from the gates of death that I fancied had closed upon you! You are back. . . . And there is forgiveness in your dark eyes. Oh, my love, there is forgiveness!"

His lips quivered a bit and he went on.

"Did I dream of the great wrong I did you, Kahwanna? Oh, have you forgiven?"

The blue eyes were tragic in their puzzled wonder, their shining joy, and the voice was desperately earnest.

For a moment Siletz checked her anguish and strove to understand. Then something, some divine instinct, seemed to give her wisdom and she smiled tremulously.

"All is well," she said pitifully, "I have forgiven."

"Thank God!" cried the old man sharply, "oh, God, I thank thee! The way is light at last!"

He tried to raise himself on an elbow again.

"But how does it happen? I saw you die in the lodge of Kolawmie with the babe that you bore me for love on your breast—and yet—yet—I have you again! Did I dream, oh, my princess of the little tribe?"

"A dream," sobbed Siletz softly, "only a dream."

He looked long into her half-frightened face.

"I have searched the world for you, my maid of service with the gentle eyes—eyes like a deer's for softness. Oh, Kahwanna! I have chanted the marriage service, that I never said for you in the days of my youth, a thousand times among the hills! I have mated you in heaven throughout the years wherein I lost you! I have wept for the Primrose that I crushed, at dawn and dusk! I have tried to atone."

Here Sandry shrank as if at a blow, drawing in his breath with a sigh. But the Preacher hurried on, as if to tell all that had lain upon his heart these many years.

WHEN THE AMATEURS APPEAR

Another Good Story Added to the Many That Are Told About Those Enamored of Stage.

The anecdotes told at the expense of amateur players are innumerable, and of course of varying degrees, both of truthfulness and of drollery. Another is added to the list by some student, who ambitiously undertook to play "Hamlet" for the benefit of a charity. The man who was to act the part of Horatio was extremely timid, and when the night of the performance came he was so overcome by stage-fright that he could hardly remember the lines he had so carefully studied. During the scene where Horatio and Marcellus tell Hamlet of the appearance of the spirit of his father, and the prince asks: "Stayed it long?"

"While one with moderate haste might tell a hundred," Horatio managed to stammer out, but so confusedly that Marcellus forgot his cue, and instead of rejoicing "Longer, longer," stood staring at Horatio. The prompter, with a view to helping out Marcellus, began to whisper from the wings, "Longer, longer." Unfortunately Horatio, having lost all control of himself, was inspired with the idea that the man playing Marcellus was looking at him because he had made an error, and that the words from the wings were addressed to him. With a great effort he straightened himself up, cleared his burning throat, and said, loudly: "While one with moderate haste might tell two hundred, then."

Be It Ever So Humble.

When war broke out in Europe a Savannah negro had been doing a bonerattling, banjo thumping act in one of the London music halls, and, like the Georgia negro who told Judge Latshaw in Kansas City that if released he would go so far that it would take $5 to send him a postal card, he wanted to get back home.

Along with a miscellaneous company of Americans he was besieging the American consulate when a southerner in the crowd, noticing him, said: "Nigger, what are you doing here?"

Wheeling with the light of discovery in his eye, Rastus replied: "Fo' God's sake, boss, 'sist dis nigger to git back to ol' Geog'ry. Ise so hungry I c'n heat de po'k chops callin'!"—Collier's Weekly.

Jury Exonerates Dead Cow.

When an automobile hits a cow and injures it badly the driver is to blame and not the cow, even if the cow did get nervous when it saw the auto headlights bearing swiftly down on it. A jury decided the foregoing in Judge Gatens' court and awarded $100 damages to Emil Alt, the cow's owner.

August Semper, who owned the auto, argued in court that he didn't know the Hawthorne bridge was a browsing pasture and that the cow should have worn a red light on its tail. But the jury disagreed with him—Portland Ore.; Dispatch, Los Angeles Times.

PEANUTS AND MILK

Hay made from peanut vines has a value almost equal to alfalfa hay for milk production. Hay made from the entire plant vines and nuts, is one of the best milk stimulating feeds, forcing the cows to a high yield. The hay is rich in protein, contains a good per cent of fat, is rich in mineral matter and is laxative, the same as the best grade of alfalfa hay.

Hay from peanut vines, or the entire plant, is very desirable to feed to dairy cows with milo maize, kaffir or sorghum, overcoming the constipating effect of these feeds and supplying and abundance of protein and oil that many feeds lack. In those sections where these crops can be grown, the farmer can get an income of $4.00 to $8.00 per month from each cow without buying a dollar's worth of feed during the year. The cow will furnish him a regular cash income, whether the season be wet or dry.

The development of the peanut growing industry has been phenomenal in Texas, and while the marketing of the nut crop has proven to be most profitable, there can be no question of a higher return from feeding the crop and marketing it in the form of butter fat. This, too, brings about a marketing of some of the crop every two or three days, and creates a regular cash income to meet the everyday expenses arising on the farm.

NOTICE

I will stand at my barn 2 1/2 miles north of Hedley the Jack's Jack. He is Black Spanish and Mammoth, of the very best strains of jacks and has proven himself to be a fine jack. He is four years old and a sure foal getter. He has a number of colts to show for themselves. $10 to insure. Best of care will be taken to prevent accidents, but will not be responsible should any occur.
S. L. Adanson, Hedley, Texas.

THE PRICE

After dinner comes the dish washing. Every beautiful white dress at a party means that somebody has stood over the tub, hands in suds and face in the steam. The tidy room with its dustless table and speckless carpet, implies, someone who has pushed the broom and flourished the dust rag.

Every beauty rests upon the back ground of ugliness. Every joy is rooted in sorrow. Do you reckon on this? Do you take your share of the world's hard luck cheerfully and as a matter of course? Or are you always looking to skim the cream from life and leave the skim milk for others? Under the rose is the thorn, the banana has a skin, the watermelon a rind, and the nut a shell.

To get the good of this mortal existence you have to break through the things that are hard and prickly. So have a good time but make up your mind to pay the price.

Even love and religion have their mental necessities. Even the Creator must attend to the necessary process of dissolution and decay.

Crops imply dung heaps, liberty costs of death, and progress is paid for by what tragedies and failures! Then why whine, if for the prizes of life you have to pay the price. There are several things we all want. Among them are health intelligence, contentment and esteem. These taste good to everybody. And each one of them rests upon things that are distasteful, things that require effort and self conquest.—Dr. Frank Crane.

GALOMEL MAKES YOU SICK, UGH! IT'S MERCURY AND SALIVATES

Straighten Up! Don't Lose a Day's Work! Clean Your Sluggish Liver and Bowels With "Dodson's Liver Tone."

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. Take a dose of the vile, dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you feel sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store or dealer and get a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful tonight and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous by morning I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it cannot salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable.

I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

REMARKS THAT HAD A STING

Englishman Evidently Yielded His Table in Cafe With Some Feeling of Reluctance.

When Charles B. Towns, who led the fight for the recent legislation against the traffic in habit-forming drugs in New York state, was in China several years ago studying opium smoking among the Chinese, he ran into Samuel Merwin, the American writer.

They dropped into a Shanghai cafe for a bite and found all the tables taken. Two young Englishmen who had finished their luncheon but were dallying over their cigars were approached by the waiter.

"I beg your pardon," said the French waiter, "but would you mind vacating this table? These gentlemen are two distinguished Americans and I would like to accommodate them. One is Mr. Charles B. Towns, the author."

They got up reluctantly and one walked over to Mr. Merwin. "You are quite welcome to the table. We were trespassing, to be sure. I should like to make myself known. I am King George, my friend here is Willie Shakespeare and we were waiting for our friend Rudyard Kipling."

FOUND THE SOURCE OF GUM

Discovery Probably Pleased Small Elsie Considerably More Than It Did Her Mother.

Six-year-old Elsie teased her mother unremittingly for a chew of gum before they went into the theater, but explaining that it was impolite to chew in public her mother refused to give it to her.

Little Elsie did not forget the gum, however, for when the show was over she said:

"Mamma, where does gum come from?"

"From a tree, Elsie," replied her mother.

"What kind of a tree, mamma?"

"Why, a spruce tree, my dear."

"Well, the seat I sat in must have been made of a spruce tree, 'cause I dug a nice big chew of gum off the bottom of it."—Judge.

EXPERIMENTS IN SPRAYING PEACH TREES

Young Peach Orchard in Which Trees Have Not Been Headed Back and Will Probably Break Badly With First Good Crop of Fruit.

Up-to-date fruit growers spray their peach trees as well as their apples, although it is well understood that good results are not always certain, and there is also a liability to injury if care is not used to have the spray solutions of proper strengths and carefully prepared.

With the advent of the ready-prepared lime-sulphur solutions which are safely used at diluted strengths on apples after the blooming period, there has been a tendency to use these ready-made lime-sulphur washes at diluted strength on peaches after the blooming period also, and many fruit growers have been asking the division of entomology of the state department of agriculture whether this can be safely done. Accordingly Mr. Sherman and Mr. Clapp have been making experiments with this material during the past two seasons in the peach orchard at the Statesville test farm. The results so far show that when diluted even at the rate of one gallon of the ready-made solution to fifty gallons of water, there is apt to be serious injury to the trees if the treatment be given continuously, though they have used it successfully on single occasions when not convenient to prepare the standard self-boiled lime-sulphur solution. Trees on which the diluted ready-made solution has been used for two seasons now show a serious lack of growth, even though they made good yields of fine fruit both years, and the treatment was successful against both insects and rot. They conclude that the self-boiled lime-sulphur solution should still be relied upon for spring and summer spraying of peaches—though the ready-made solution should be used in winter at strength of one gallon to eight gallons water for control of San Jose scale. But to depend on the ready-made solutions regularly for summer spraying of peaches—experience says "don't."—North Carolina Experiment Station.

GREEN APHIS APPEARS

Many Southwestern Grain Fields Are Infested, Say Reports.

Serious Spread May Follow Favorable Weather Conditions—Spread Straw Over Infested Spots and Destroy Insects.

The spring grain aphis, popularly known as the green bug, has appeared in grain fields in Tennessee, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and in northeastern New Mexico, and it is probable that it is also in southern Missouri and Arkansas. The danger of this pest doing serious damage in the spring depends to a great extent upon the weather between now and the middle of April. If the temperature during this period is sufficiently high to enable the green bug to breed throughout the winter, and at the same time sufficiently low to prevent its principal natural enemy—a minute black, four-winged fly—from developing, a serious visitation over large areas may be expected.

Spring Grain Aphis or "Green Bug."

In all the states where the green bug has made its appearance grain growers should watch their fields carefully. If any spots appear where the grain changes from green to yellow in color, these should be plowed under as deeply as possible and the ground harrowed and rolled. It is from spots of this character that the green bug spreads over the remainder of the fields. If straw can be spared for the purpose, it may be spread over the infested patches and burned. This destroys the pest as effectively as the plowing under of the ground.

Ordinarily, the green bug is kept in check by the minute fly already mentioned. This parasite lays its eggs in the body of the green bug, and the young, hatching from the eggs within the body, ultimately cause the death of the bug. These parasites are found in a considerable number of insects which are closely related to the green bug. Under favorable temperature conditions they will probably increase until their numbers are sufficient to overcome any material increase in the numbers of the green bug. They are not, however, able to withstand as severe weather as the green bug itself, and it is important, therefore, that the farmers in the regions likely to be affected by the latter take the necessary steps immediately for their own protection.

ERADICATE THE WHITE GRUBS

Growers of Strawberries Should Be Careful in Selecting Land—Best to Avoid Sod Lands.

Strawberry growers who are troubled with white grubworms should be careful in selecting the land upon which the plants are to be set. Sod land, according to J. R. Watson, entomologist to the University of Florida experiment station, is apt to be infested with the worms. He advises that the land be given to some crop not injured by the grubs for two or three years after the sod is turned under. If the grower cannot wait that long, he might pasture pigs on the land six months before planting. Pigs root the grubs out and eat them.

If stable or barnyard manure is used as fertilizer, it might be well to mix with it from 200 to 400 pounds of cyanide to the acre. It is possible that cyanide cannot be obtained. About 100 pounds of sulphur or enough to slightly color the manure might be added. The sulphur can be applied between the rows.

Neither of these substances will kill the grubs, but they act as repellents and will probably drive the grubs away. The best method, however, is to avoid sod lands.

FEEDING THE WORKING MULE

Unlike the Horse, He Will Not Bolt His Food—He Knows When He Has Had Enough.

When the farm mule is working hard, feed him all the grain and hay he will eat. He will not eat too much. Unlike the horse, he will not bolt his grain and leave his hay, but eats a little of one and then a little of the other. When he has had enough he knows enough to stop.

During the winter give him all the corn fodder he can eat. A little hay may be added if desired, but this is not necessary. Many mule owners winter their animals entirely on corn fodder.

What is not cleaned up in the racks is used for bedding. When mules are not working they will eat about 3 per cent of their weight a day of corn fodder.—Farm and Home.

CLEAN HOUSES PLEASE HENS

To Promote Comfort and Lessen Danger of Disease Droppings Should Be Removed Daily.

Droppings should be removed daily, for cleanliness in the poultry house promotes comfort and lessens the chance of disease. Poultry houses, however simple, should be both warm in winter and well lighted. The windows should also be provided with iron netting, so the ash may be raised to admit air in summer, and in mild weather in winter. One portion should be half dark, for the laying and sitting hens, and a proper dust bath should be provided. If lice make their appearance, fumigate thoroughly and after cleansing whitewash with lime to which a little carbolic acid is added.

A Woman's Progress

How to Feel Well During Life Told by Three Women Learned from Experience.

The Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs. Read these letters:—

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I started the Change of Life five years ago. I always had a headache and backache with bearing down pains and I would have heat flashes very bad at times with dizzy spells and nervous feelings. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new person and am in better health and no more troubled with the aches and pains I had before I took your wonderful remedy. I recommend it to my friends for I cannot praise it enough."—Mrs. MARGARET GRASSMAN, 759 N. Ringgold St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Beverly, Mass.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for nervousness and dyspepsia, when I was going through the Change of Life. I found it very helpful and I have always spoken of it to other women who suffer as I did and have had them try it and they also have received good results from it."—Mrs. GEORGE A. DUNBAR, 17 Roundy St., Beverly, Mass.

Erie, Pa.—"I was in poor health when the Change of Life started with me and I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, or I think I should not have got over it as easy as I did. Even now if I do not feel good I take the Compound and it restores me in a short time. I will praise your remedies to every woman for it may help them as it has me."—Mrs. E. KISSLING, 931 East 24th St., Erie, Pa.

No other medicine has been so successful in relieving woman's suffering as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Women may receive free and helpful advice by writing the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Such letters are received and answered by women only and held in strict confidence.
