FIRE DESTROYS FARM HOUSE AND CONTENTS

Tuesday morning early the farm dwelling occupied by L. A. Jamar and owned by T. R. Moreman was totally destroyed by fire. Mr. Jamar built a fire in the cook stove and it seems to have caught in the ceiling which was all in flames when he discovered it. They saved nearly all their household effect with the exception of what was in the kitchen. Their year's supply of meat was in the dugout and therefore was saved. Mr. Moreman had $300 insurance on the building. This makes the third farm house to burn in the last six or eight months near Hedley. As dry as everything is people should make sure their flues and stove pipes are all in good shape, and be careful about burning trash, etc. It might save valuable property.

AS THE EDITOR OF THE INFORMER SEES IT

Let a handsome, sprightly and stylishly garbed woman walk down the street and every eye will be turned upon her. It is that instinctive recognition of that which appeals to us. The eye obeys the will of the brain and of the mind. And as we look in admiration upon the wonders of womanhood, so it is when the brightest and the cleanest of nature and the works of man are open to us. We see, we admire, and we retain our impressions throughout the years to come.

Our town may be like the woman. It may be clean, spotless, sanitary and a thing of beauty, or it may wither and decay through neglect and indifference. It may be garbed in the beauties of the handicraft of man, or it may drift along in tatters and obscurity. It may compel the admiration of other people and draw them to our fold, or it may be a place to be seen, shunned and forgotten. It is for us to say, for us to write the verdict of our future.

The birth of a new Spring should see the dawn of a new order of things in this town. It should see every man and every woman striving to make this the brightest and most attractive spot in this section of country. It should see us striving with might and determination to convert a pleasant country town into a garden spot of beauty, with health, happiness and prosperity as the heritage of our daily life. It can be done if we want to do it.

Take a walk around the business section of town. It will compare favorably with the average town of its size. But it should not be on a par with other places. It should be the best of all towns of its class, because our business men have the ability to make it such if some one will take the lead and inaugurate an improvement movement. Business property could be improved with but little expense, fresh paint would do wonders, and neatly arranged window displays in commercial houses would add a hundred per cent to its appearances. Broken sidewalks could well be replaced and new ones added where they are needed, and some time could be spent to good advantage on the streets in many sections of the town. It might even be possible to clean up and cart off some of the rubbish and refuse that litter up the streets, and the alleys and many of the back yards.

And then there are houses in town that have the appearance of age simply for want of a coat or two of paint. They are good houses and shelter excellent people, but the visitor from abroad gets the impression that the town is run down and a place to shun, and his ideas are passed on to other people, and we lose. In some places the yards and fences are well kept and present an attractive appearance, but there should be more of them. Every place should be in the artistic class, and then other people would talk and the talk would be all to our credit. Tongues were made for use and people will use them, and it's up to us as to how they use them when we are the subject of conversation.

We might give the town a general overhauling in every way this spring and shove it right up to the head of the class. If there is not enough funds in the treasury to do these things of a public nature we still have hands and willing hearts, and every man could declare a business holiday and all turn out and rake this burg from end to end. Personally we would consider a day spent thus as quite a lark, something of a holiday, and we don't for one minute think we are more liberal or open minded than the rest of the citizens. Come, speak up! Let's have a clean up day soon. Who will help to start the ball rolling? YOU?

Want to be able to tell whether your wife goes through your pockets or not? Just write her a sweet little note telling her she is hook nosed, bow legged, flat chested and that her false teeth are getting loose. Then deposit the note in your pocket, hang your coat up in the closet, and take your leave —!—!

MOTTLED BUTTER IN WINTER

Defect is One of Workmanship and Can Be Overcome by Application of Proper Methods.

(From Weekly News Letter United States Department of Agriculture.)

Mottled butter is frequently found on the market at this time of the year, and, even though it may be of very good flavor, it is strongly discriminated against by the purchaser.
As this defect is one of workmanship, it can be overcome by the application of proper methods on the part of the buttermaker.

Mottles are caused primarily by an uneven distribution of salt in the butter. This may be produced by insufficient working of the butter or by churning, washing and working it at a very low temperature, or by washing or working it at a temperature several degrees higher or lower than the churning temperature.

When the quantity of butter made in one churning is much less than usual, it is necessary to work it a greater number of revolutions of the churn than usual in order to produce the same results on the butter.

Extremely low temperatures of churning, washing and working should be avoided, because they produce so firm a butter that it is only with great difficulty that the salt can be worked uniformly into it. High temperatures of churning, washing and working must be avoided to prevent an abnormal loss of fat in the buttermilk and also the making of a greasy, leaky butter.

Great variations in temperature during the manufacturing process should always be avoided. Under normal conditions the temperature of the wash water should be the same as, or within two degrees of, that of the buttermilk.

When the churn room is so cold that the butter becomes chilled before working is completed, mottled butter is frequently the result. To prevent this it is preferable to increase the amount of working rather than to raise the temperature of the wash water.

Mottled butter, then, may be prevented by using methods that will insure a uniform distribution of salt.

DAIRY NOTES

Consider records more than appearance in buying a cow.

The sun dispels foul odors and makes the air sweet and wholesome.

There is more money in a good milkman than in any other man on the farm.

Be sure that the calves get all the sunshine that is coming to them this winter.

Thorough milking tends to develop a cow's udder and increase her milk capacity.

Train the youngsters to lead. No heifer should reach her first birthday unbroken to the halter.

The brush and comb are just as necessary to dairy success in winter as the milk pail and scales.

Where more than two cows are milked, the calves should not be allowed to suck after the first day.

Few schemes of farming can succeed with the cow eliminated, and the better the cow the larger the profits.

If you curdy the old cow with the milking stool, don't get mad if she massages you in the ribs with her hind leg.

"CARDUI IS A SPLENDID TONIC"

Says Boyd Lady in Telling of Her Experience With Cardui. Recommends it to Others.

Boyd, Ala.—"About six years ago," writes Mrs. Emma McBride, of this place, "I got run down in health. My weight went down to less than 140, and I am a large woman, and have large bones. My usual weight is much more.
I got a very bad complexion and was dark under my eyes."

"I kept getting worse all the time, would be so very nervous, that, at times, I'd have nervous chills. Couldn't rest well at night, for some time. I suffered great pain in stomach or lower abdominal tips, left side, and back, also had a dull headache. I could hardly do my work at all, could only drag around all the time, and finally for 3 weeks I was confined to my bed and suffered great agony all the time.

"Mrs. ——— Boyd, recommended that I take Cardui. I began using it and when I started on the second bottle, I could see that I was getting a whole lot better. After using the third bottle, I felt I didn't need any more medicine whatever. I never had another nervous spell after taking the Cardui. It's a splendid tonic. I do hope women suffering as I did will use it."

If you suffer as this lady did, try Cardui, the woman's tonic. For sale

FRUIT LAXATIVE FOR SICK CHILD

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver and bowels.

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs" that this is their ideal laxative, because the love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When this little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleaning" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Adv.

IF BACK HURTS CLEAN KIDNEYS WITH SALTS

Drink Lots of Water and Stop Eating Meat for a While if the Bladder Bothers You.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system.
Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush out the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorder disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delicious effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.—Adv.

Add an equal measure of one-third stand in a cold place until well chilled.

Moisten with any cooked dressing, heap on a mound of crisp lettuce, sprinkle with yolks of hard cooked eggs, put through a ricer, and garnish with rings of the white of egg with Shattuck Halibut.—Wipe a one and a half pounds chicken halib t with a piece of damp cheese cloth. Put into a buttered fire-proof dish, sprinkle with salt and pepper and arrange five thick slices of fresh tomatoes over the fish. Sprinkle the tomatoes with a third of a cupful of green peppers, shredded and bake twenty-five minutes in a moderate oven, basting four times during the baking with butter and liquid from the pan.

Baked Fish.—Wash a four-pound fish and sprinkle well inside with salt. Put it in the ice chest for two hours. Stuff it with crumbs seasoned with butter, grated onion, lemon juice, the grated rind, salt and pepper. A few oysters may be added if enjoyed.
Sew up the fish and place in a dripping pan to bake. Cover with slices of bacon and reduce the heat after the first twenty minutes; bake until the fish is tender. The last few minutes of baking the pork may be removed, the fish sprinkled with crumbs and browned in the oven.

NICE WAYS WITH MEAT.

A couple of calves' hearts stewed until tender and seasoned well then sliced either hot or cold make a nice supper dish.

Beef Tongue Fiquant.—Take a fresh tongue, place in a kettle with boiling water and cook six hours or longer, until tender. Then peel and place the tongue in its liquor to reheat. Serve hot, cut in slices with piquant sauce.

Piquant Sauce.—Brown four tablespoonfuls of flour in two tablespoonfuls of butter, and three-fourths of a cupful of the stock in which the tongue was cooked, a half teaspoonful of pa-rika, a chopped sour cucumber pickle, a teaspoonful of salt and a tablespoonful of chopped raisins. Mix well and cook until well blended. Serve hot with the tongue. Season the tongue with salt and pepper while first cooking and if liked, the seasoning of a stalk of celery, one onion, a red pepper and a carrot, adds much to its flavor.

Ragout of Mutton.—Remove the skin from serving sized pieces of mutton stew, brown in hot fat, add a sliced onion, two sliced carrots, two cupfuls of potatoes, sliced, and a few mushrooms add to the delicacy of the flavor. The dry ones may be used if soaked over night. Cook ten minutes, then place in a cooker for six or eight hours or simmer on the back part of the stove.

Cornbeef Hash.—This common dish served uncommonly is most savory.
Rub the inside of the frying pan with a slice of onion. Put in a tablespoonful of butter and when hot add a pint of chopped corned beef, a pint of chopped boiled potatoes and a half teaspoonful of salt, a fourth of a cupful of cream and a half teaspoonful of paprika. Spread evenly over the frying pan and let it brown underneath.
When done, fold over and turn out on a hot platter.

Liver is quite an elegant dish, parboiled, then larded with salt pork and baked in the oven surrounded with chopped carrot, onion, the juice of a lemon, a bay leaf and boiling water to cook. Baste the meat while roasting.

STRAIN ON THE IMAGINATION

Company Was Willing to Believe a Lot, but Longbow's Stay Was Too Much for Them.

Mr. Stretcher—Yes, it's cold, but nothing like what it was at Christmas three years ago, when the steam from the engines froze hard and fell on the line in sheets.

Mr. Cuffer—And yet that wasn't so cold as in '87, when it froze the electricity in the telephone wires, and when the thaw came all the machines were talking as hard as they could for upwards of five hours.

"Well, gentlemen," said Mr. Long-bow, "the coldest year that I can remember was in the Christmas week in '84, when the very policemen had to run to keep themselves warm."

But that was too much, and with silent looks of indignation the other two left to his own reflections the man who treated the truth so slightly.

Soon Settled.

Father and mother were having a little chat by the fire before retiring for the night. The future of their little ones was the interesting topic of their conversation.

"Then what about Harold?" said father presently.

"Ah, Harold," sighed mother, a shadow crossing her sweet face, "I sometimes wonder what will become of Harold! He seems to take a fend-ish delight in hurting his brothers and sisters!"

"Is that so?" said father promptly.

"Then we'd better make him a dentist!"

More Women Farmers.

Statisticians declare that Pennsylvania last year had 7,000 women farmers. In Georgia during the last three years the number of women farmers has more than doubled. The majority of the women go in for raising hogs, cattle and foodstuffs, leaving cotton planting to the men.

Learned to Drink Coffee When a Boy.

If parents realized the fact that coffee contains a drug—caffeine—which is especially harmful to children, they would doubtless hesitate before giving them coffee to drink.

"When I was a child in my mother's arms and first began to nibble things at the table, mother used to give me sips of coffee. And so I contracted the coffee habit early."

"I continued to use coffee until I was 27, and when I got into office work I began to have nervous spells. Especially after breakfast I was so nervous I could scarcely attend to my correspondence."

"At night, after having had coffee for supper, I could hardly sleep, and on rising in the morning would feel weak and nervous."

"A friend persuaded me to try Postum."

"I can now get good sleep, am free from nervousness and headaches. I recommend Postum to all coffee drinkers."

Postum comes in two forms: Postum Cereal—the original form—

Instant Postum—a soluble powder—a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both forms are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup.

all such distress vanishes. It's truly

It is getting the time of the year when people begin to want to dress up, and clean up around their homes. A clean up day should be named soon so all can get to work in a systematic manner. Too much danger of fire with the town full of shacks, rubbish, trash, etc., and too many germ-breeding places for the health of the community.

Hedley has nothing to fight fire with; not even a bucket brigade. And if she had a bucket brigade where would the water be obtained? The City Council might be doing good work to obtain some kind of fire fighting facilities. Some day the town may need it and need it badly.

The serial story, "The Heart

The City election will be held

A SAFE SIGN

The advertising manager of Sears, Roebuck & Co. said at a recent meeting of advertisers that his company kept a force of men whose sole duty is to read country newspapers and mail out literature. Where they find a country sheet with a scarcity of advertising from local merchants they proceed to flood that locality with their catalogues and advertising matter. Could there be any stronger argument why the local merchants should keep on advertising? We think not.—Wellington Leader.

THE HOME WOMAN

There are wise women, sprightly women, fashionable women, scholarly women, eloquent women, literary women, pretty women, hand-some loving and loveable women, but the most indispensable, the most womanly woman is the home woman. All the others the world could afford to lose, great as the loss would be, better than to lose the home woman. Without her the most ennobling feature of social life could not be. Without her the true home could not exist. Without her there would be none of the strong ties, the endearing loves the tender, sweet affections that bind parents to children, children to parents and render the memories of the old home stead so endearing, so subduing all through our after life. Of the home woman it may well be said: "Many daughters have done virtuously, but thou ex-cellest them all"—Clipped.

LEGAL PROFESSION NEEDS REGULATING

PUBLIC RECORDS SHOULD BE KEPT OF THEIR TRANS-ACTIONS.

Lawyers Are Public Servants

(Editor's Note.—The following is the third of a series of articles by J. S. Cullinan, Chairman of the Texas Economic League, on the Administration of Justice, to which subject the League is now addressing itself.)

By J. S. Cullinan.

There may be those who regard the Administration of Justice as a matter entirely in the hands of office holders, and not one that concerns a citizen and that our system of government will hold secure the liberties of the people regardless of the conduct of the citizen. To those who may feel that there is safety in indifference, and who place blind confidence in our system and our servants of government, I want to quote a paragraph from a statement recently made by Hon. Thos. R.
Marshall, Vice President of the United States, as follows:

"Equitable enforcement of the law can never be made to rest upon the office-holders of the land. It must rest upon the individual. It cannot be said that it is the system of government which is wrong. It is the unjust use of the system. It has not been the use, but the misuse of the powers of government which has produced this discontent in the minds of men."

In a previous article I have suggested that it was the legal profession which was making the Temple of Justice tremble, and stressed the importance of higher legal ethics as a source of relief. But the perils of "legalism" neither begin nor end with disorderly conduct on the part of unworthy members of the bar. We have become so legalized that business efficiency is largely determined by law, and property rights has become a legislative prerogative. The subordination of business honor to legal ethics has not improved the morals of industry, and it has resulted in waste, incompetency and instability. The Constitution guarantees rights to persons and property, and government was established to secure those rights, and nowhere in our Constitution is a citizen required to get from government a permit for liberty or a franchise for freedom. They are divine rights.

The citizens are the joint stock holders and owners in government, and it is for them to define the rights of persons and of property.
This government is ours—yours and mine—and we have no right to turn it over to legal counsel or to farm it out to office holders. If we are not willing to discharge our responsibilities as sovereigns, then we should change our system of government and employ a King to run the country.

A Remedy Suggested

Having enraged in these criticisms it is incumbent upon me to suggest a remedy. The business interests have, during the past quarter of a century felt the influence of two powerful forces—Regulation and Publicity. While both these agencies have been used, they have made good, and I do not believe there are many honest men in business who would withdraw them. Their worth having been proved, I would apply them to the legal profession as lawyers are public servants, and have as much of a monopoly on law as our transportation systems have upon traffic.

Considering the public or semi-public nature of the duties of the legal profession, there would seem to be no further reason why its affairs should not be open to scrutiny quite as much as applies to corporate business where the National or State Governments very properly fix or reserve the right to investigate, such corporate business.

Let the Sunshine In

The lawyer has been quite active in regulating business, and is no doubt more capable of working out the details of regulating his profession than a layman, but my first impression is that all lawyers should be required to keep permanent record of all their transactions, and report annually to some department of State the name of all clients, compensation received, from such clients, and the character of service rendered in court or out, and the place where rendered, and that the public and the press be given access to these records.

This nation must depend upon just men for justice, and no man associated with the Administration of Justice should fail to endow his conduct with the influences of publicity, and no lawyer can afford to dismiss an opportunity of presenting to his fellow citizens evidence of righteous stewardship of his client's welfare, or fail to challenge an occasion of winning the confidence and esteem of the people by making public and permanent records of convincing evidence of his professional honesty and integrity. The books of almost all business concerns are open to inspection of proper officials and why not let the sunshine in on the records of the legal profession?

The regulation of the lawyers is suggested as "first aid" to Justice and not as a complete remedy for injustice.

IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

Don't Look Old! Try Grandmother's Recipe to Darken and Beautify Gray, Faded, Lifeless Hair.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur.
Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruft, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.—Adv.

Over a billion dollars was spent last

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, 1 small box of Barbo Compound, and 1/4 oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and restore abundant. It is excellent for falling hair and will make hair soft and glossy.
It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

FAIRM STOCK

KEEP HORSES IN GOOD ORDER

Slim Economy to Permit Animals to Fall Off in Flesh—Oats and Corn Are Best Grains.

It is poor economy to let the horses fall off in flesh by reducing the grain.
Horses cannot be kept in good order on straw and a poor quality of hay.
They need a little grain, even if they are idle. To have the horses strong for spring plowing, harrowing and other heavy and exhaustive work, they must be kept thrifty and in good flesh all through the winter. Oats and corn and bran are the best grains.
If there is no steady work, take off

Splendid Type for Farm.

the shoes and give them daily exercise in the yard every suitable day.

A grass pasture adjoining the stables is a great convenience. The stock may be turned in when the sod is dry and the weather suitable; they will get the exercise they need and will keep warm by grazing. Most stockmen provide winter as well as summer pasture for their stock.

The driving horses, if used on icy roads, should have shoes sharpened.
It is dangerous to drive a smooth horse when the road is icy. The wear and tear of the nervous strain takes too much out of a horse, if nothing more serious happens.

Chain overshoes can be had at the agricultural stores. Keep a pair on hand to use in case of a sudden freeze.

Give the horses judicious feed, daily exercise and good grooming. When this is done the horse's usefulness may be extended for a number of years.

TREATING SHEEP FOR WORMS

Pests May Be Combated by Pasture Rotation, Combined With Drugs Injurious to Insects.

The stomach worm is the worst pest affecting sheep. Lambs are more susceptible than older sheep, probably because the older sheep are accustomed to the presence of the worm.
In the spring, soon after lambing, the old sheep should each receive a dose of one or two ounces of gasoline, followed by a small dose of epsom salts.
After a day or two they should be placed in a worm-free pasture, if possible.

In July treat the whole herd, including the lambs, with gasoline, and turn them into new pasture, and repeat the process in November. Pasture rotation, combined with drugs that are injurious to the worm, is a practical method of successfully combating this worm.

ERADICATE LICE ON CATTLE

Frequently Serious Pest on Stock in Winter—Any of Various Dips Are Quite Effective.

Lice on cattle and young stock are frequently a serious pest in winter.
Any of the various dips advertised or sold for this purpose are effective.
They can be put on with a sponge or brush and worked in thoroughly to the skin, but it is not always safe to wet an animal all over in cold weather.

Kerosene and lard rubbed in from horns to the tail is a safe and sure remedy. An even better one is to use powdered sulphur. Rub it in well with the hand and repeat in two weeks.
There is no danger from using this.

Fill Up Mud Holes.
Do away with all the mud holes.
Nothing thrives in them, not even the

USE OF TRAP NEST IS QUITE ESSENTIAL

A Working Plan for Building a Trap Nest.

A trap nest is a large nest so arranged that after a hen enters it she is confined until released by the attendant. The trap nest shown in the accompanying illustration is used with good results on the government poultry farm and is quite similar to the nest used at the Connecticut state experiment station. It is very simple in construction and may be built at a small cost.

The use of trap nests is essential in breeding poultry for both egg production and exhibition where pedigree records are used in selecting either the males or females, and has a place in mass selection for increasing the egg production. Trap nests are of value in weeding out poor layers and increasing the average egg yield of a flock by selecting the breeding, but are not extensively used on account of the large amount of labor required to operate them. Some poultry breeders trap-nest their pullets during their first six months of laying and use this as a basis in selecting their breeders for egg production.

One trap nest should be provided for four to five hens kept in flocks of 50 or more, while more trap nests per hen are necessary in smaller flocks. The hens are banded with numbered bands, and a record is kept of their egg production. The nest should be visited at least three times daily, and preferably four or five times, frequent trips being especially necessary when the hens are laying freely and during hot weather.

This trap nest may be attached to the underside of the dropping board, with the front facing the pen and arranged so that it can be easily removed, or it may be placed on the walls of the pen. If the nest is placed under the dropping board, the latter will serve as a top for the nest, and the rear of the nest may be of wire to allow good ventilation in warm weather. If the nest is placed on the wall, slats or wire should be inserted from the front of the nest to the wall at a sharp angle to prevent the hens from roosting on the nest.

construction and working of a trap nest. When the hen enters this nest her back raises the door (c), which releases the catch or trigger (a) and allows the door to shut. The catch should be set so that its edge just holds the door, which position is regulated by the screw or nail at the lower inside edge of the catch. A washer should be placed on the screw (d) between the catch and the side of the nest to prevent this catch from sticking. The guard (b) around the catch keeps the nesting material away from the catch.

The length of the catch which supports the door and the triangular notch in the door may be varied slightly for very small or very large hens.

Cut four seven-eighths-inch boards for ends and partitions, 12 inches wide by 19 inches long, enough one-half-inch boards 3 1/2 inches long, laid lengthwise, to cover the top, back and bottom, and one strip 3 1/2 inches long and 1 1/2 inches wide for the front of the nests. Cut three pieces of one-half-inch boards 12 inches long and 3 inches high to insert in the nest to hold the nesting material away from the door.

Nail the top, back and bottom to the ends and partitions (see illustration), insert the 3-inch strips in the nests, and make the guard (b), nailing it to the left side of the nest. Bore a hole in the catch (a) large enough so that the catch will move freely when screwed into position on the side.
Place a washer on the screw between the catch and the side of the nest.
Place a screw at the lower edge of the catch to stop it when set, so that the catch will just hold the door.

Make the doors (c) of seven-eighths-inch material, 12 inches by 6 inches, and cut a triangular notch in the center 4 inches wide. Put two screw eyes in the top of the doors and bore holes in the front of the nests two inches below the top (inside measurement), through which a three-six-teenths-inch wire is run to support the doors.

Attach a narrow strip to the front of the nests for the hens to jump upon when entering the nests. Place a button or block of wood on the front of each partition to hold the door when the nest is closed.

If the nests are to be placed directly below the droppings board, a wire top should be used on the nest, except for a five-inch strip of wood on the front edge of the top to stiffen the nest.

Also it takes up less room in the

BACKACHE, RHEUMATISM

Dear Mr. Editor:

For a long time I suffered from backache, pain in left side, frequent urination (bothering me at all times during the day and night), and the uric acid in my blood caused me to suffer from rheumatism along with a constant tired, worn-out feeling. I heard of the new discovery of Dr. Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., called "Anuric." After giving "Anuric" a good trial I believe it to be the best kidney remedy on the market today.
I have tried other kidney medicines but these "Anuric Tablets" of Dr.
Pierce's are the only ones that will cure kidney and bladder troubles.

NOTE:—Experiments at Dr. Pierce's Hospital for several years proved that "Anuric" is 37 times more active than lithia. Send Dr. Pierce 10c for trial package.

—Run-down? —Tired? —Weak?

Every Spring most people feel "all out of sorts"—their vitality is at a low ebb. Through the winter months the blood becomes surcharged with poisons! The best Spring medicine and tonic is one made of herbs and roots without alcohol—that was first discovered by Dr. Pierce years ago—made of Golden Seal root, blood root, &c., called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Ingredients on wrapper.
It eliminates disease-breeding poisons from the blood, makes the blood rich and pure, furnishes a foundation for sound health.

Being well acquainted with the con-the lad still wore the suit.

"Still wearing your suit?" he asked,

"Yes, sir; I've slept in it."

Enough Evidence.

Two rustics in the old country were

For a long time they were unable to

But after a little consideration the "Na, na; ye're wrong, lad; it can't

CHAPTER XXXI.

The Red Death.

So they were left, these two—the East and the West—alone upon the mighty pyre of the jumbled peaks. Only the forbidding spine of the Hog Back, running like a great thin blade high between the red surf creeping at its base, carried a passage out of the roaring death. Siletz had planned that the splendid black should make it first.

Now she turned back to the two men she loved—the Preacher, silent under the shielding ferns with his Bible and his flute, Sandry prone upon the earth, his face in the pine needles. She passed him and knelt beside the other. Her eyes were dim with the old look of emotion. She bared the white face and gazed long upon it. The call of blood had ever held her to this man mysteriously, though both were ignorant of the vital tie between them, the Preacher because of the dreamy blank in his mind since the tragedy of that far-off day, Siletz because Kolawmie, wise beyond his generation, had seen how blood takes to its own, even at its cost. He had loved her mother and had tried to make her Indian, though she was white, a wife of the old frontier, and he had seen her break her heart and die.

Therefore, after silent hours by the Great Waters he had accepted the mandate of Destiny and had taken the babe of the Broken Sign and given her to the only white woman he would trust, Ma Dally, who took her with few questions when she saw he would not tell her history. So now Siletz looked for the first and last time consciously upon her own. Presently she leaned over and kissed him softly, replaced the ferns and rose.

Beside Sandry she stopped, stood a moment gazing around at the pine boles that loomed like fearful ghosts in the smoke, and sat down beside him, tucking her feet with the age-old motion of the blanket-wearers beneath her skirt, so deeply that she absorbed the ways of the dusky people whom she loved.

She did not speak. When at last the man, his face drawn out of all semblance to itself, raised his eyes to her she was calm as the hills before the fire. He looked at her, raising himself on his elbow, looked long while Knowledge was born in him.

So this was the West, the world he had once thought so unbearable, this was the wild, the untamed, the crude—this slim forest creature who served him without question because he had bought her with a kiss, who asked nothing, who stayed by him to die because she loved him! Who still believed in him despite that other's declaration that she was his promised wife! And yonder went his world, his cultured, polished East, riding down to life and safety, her love forgotten in the face of danger! Yonder went what he had thought "the best blood of the land!"

Nay, he had been wrong! It was here beside him, its feet tucked under it in meekness, the savagery hidden in its dim black eyes! The last barrier went down in Walter Sandry, the last strand of prejudice broke with a snap. He rolled near and caught the hem of her ragged skirt.

"Little Siletz!" he said brokenly, "oh, little Siletz! What am I that you should have done this thing!"

She looked down at him and the rare smile curled up the corners of the lips above the sign.

"You are my man," she said softly, "the king of the whole world! You are the light on the waters, Sandry, the mist in the valleys, the path to the feet of God! Only I have lost my footing thereon."

A tender wistfulness rang in her voice. She fell silent, after her fashion when great emotions stirred her. Sandry's eyes smarted under blinding tears. His chin was quivering with the mighty emotions that swelled his heart to bursting and his scorched and blackened hands clung, trembling, to Siletz's skirt.

"See, little one! I come at last to your 'God above the sea!' Take my hand that we may go together, and pray."

But the girl raised a calm face to the unspeakable heavens—a face in which all struggle had been stilled, where there was neither hope nor fear, only great content.

"No," she said, "I cannot pray for I have no soul. I have lost it as the price of love."

The man could not speak and she answered the look in his face.

"We will go together. You have had no God, I have forsown mine. We will go to hell—it is the right law—the sure and just wage of sin," she was falling into the stately Bible language, taking on the simple dignity of the Preacher's way and manner, "but we will go together. I give my soul to you."

Biting his ashen lips Sandry rose on his knees and gathered her into his arms. He held her to him with all the yearning of his breaking heart and buried his face in her throat.

The dull rumbling again broke through the howling of the storm of fire that was fast surging its way to the cup among the peaks.

Behold the Hog Back running out from the jumbled peaks, a blade between the surges far below. Behold a great black horse, carrying a double burden, staggering blindly.

See a mammoth mongrel who tugs at the rein tied to his collar and strains to follow the dim trail which calls only to the heavy muzzle hugging the earth.

And listen! A woman's golden voice, shrill with exquisite agony. "Help! Help! My God! Oh, my God! I'm choking! I can't breathe! Save me! Save me, Hampden! You great brute, can't you do something?" In her wildness she turned and struck the man behind her and she never knew that her beautiful hand was red with the blood of his wound.

As Hampden looked into her face, distorted like a maniac's, his hard eyes softened. He knew how slim the odds that they would beat the flames to the foot of the trail. Also he knew in that moment that they would never make it.

"Yes," he said, swiftly, "there is something I can do." He slid off the horse. With heavy hands he seized the skirt of the woman's gown and ripped it from her, tearing it into strips which he wound about her and fastened securely to the saddle horn. "When you come to the Hog Back shut yer eyes an' don't look down. He'll take you all right. Now—Good-bye."

He stepped back, then caught her arm for one fleeting second.

"Poppy girl," he said hoarsely, "kiss me—just once. I'm done for, but I love you. My God! How I love you!"

But Poppy Ordway shook his hand loose and shrieked to the horse, which started forward with renewed heart under the lighter load.

Black Bolt stopped at the awful point where the spine left the mountain, trembling in every limb, and snorted with fear. Far below in the sea of smoke long red streamers licked up toward them and blazing torches lighted them like searchlights. But the dog pulled ahead on the long reins, as he was bidden to do. He was going home, faithful, wistful hybrid that he was.

And the horse was of that fine mettle which does its best in the face of danger. Therefore he shook himself slightly, gathered his feet and stepped out carefully on the narrow path. Almost fainting, the woman in the saddle shut her eyes and clung to the saddle horn, every nerve in her body stretched to the utmost and her breath held hard.

Once she averted, opened her eyes unconsciously, and saw the pine tops far below where a cross-gust of wind blew the smoke aside.

CHAPTER XXXII.

The Blessed Rain.

At camp at the upper railway John Dally was searching wildly in the crowds of silent, exhausted men for trace of Sandry, of Siletz and of Miss Ordway.

His face was ghastly, for love tore at his heart with double force.

Ma Dally had not seen him for two days and when she met him she said straightly:

"Siletz went into the fire, son, after Sandry. That was hours ago. An' the Jezebel woman went, too."

That was the hardest knock of the big man's life and he came near not taking it standing. He staggered as from a blow and looked away to the inferno they had left at the north—the great dun canopy that covered the sky.

Then he started on a wavering run among the men, calling for volunteers, shrieking hoarsely that two women were lost up there and that he was going after them. As he ran, looking up, something fell from the hidden heavens and splashed upon his face. It stopped him in his tracks. Then another fell and another, big, plashing drops that struck him like stones in their portent. They thickened swiftly, beating up the light ashes in tiny puffs, and from the gathered men, busy with roll-call and accounting, there came first astounded exclamations and then, as the drops gathered headway, a mighty cheer that rent the covered skies, even as a heavy clap of thunder shook the hills.

"The rains!" they cried, "the rains! The rains!"

And it was even so. Nature took a hand and sent Destiny skulking from the havoc of her carnival. The plashings turned to a downpour.

Among the mountains the effect was indescribable. The thing that took place was too big for man to grasp. It was greater than the fires had been alone.

Long sheets of water fell athwart the world, slanting from some tilted sea of the infinite. They dashed in among the canyons, played along the ridges, lashed slope and ledge and valley. The smoke was beaten to the earth in a blanket that spread over a hundred miles and more. It writhed and twisted and was lost in the clouds of steam that fed, hissing, high above the hills. The gods played with the Coast country. Dally turned his face away from any man and the general went to the little south room in the cook-shack for unaccustomed prayer.

The world turned blue with rain as it had been white with smoke.

And the pygmies, men, who had fought so long and failed, tossed their blackened hands in triumph and shouted with the last of their voices.

For an hour, two, it rained, until the black spikes on the devastated slopes were blotted out.

"It's mighty unusual, a rain's hard's this—specially the first rains," said a man from Toledo, earnestly. "Don't ever remember one's hard. D'you, Bill?" And Bill didn't.

Presently, in the second hour of the downpour, a strange procession loomed out of the gray-blue sheets, startling the men who were out in it, too glad to shirk its worst, standing like ducks in the ashmud.

It was the long, shining body of a giant dog, still tugging at the reins tied to his collar, a dripping black horse, tired to the point of falling, and a woman who sat fastened to the cantle with strips of broadcloth, and whose face was not good to look upon. It bore upon its features the brand of too much horror.

They flocked around her with cheers and eager hands, and questions that tumbled over each other. But John Dally thrust them all aside to seize her wrist and demand word of Sandry and Siletz.

"They're—up behind—the Hog Back," she shuddered as she spoke that name. "We found Hampden—setting the fires—with candles."

Here there were awed mutterings. "He—shot that—Preacher. He said—the East Belt dead—was recorded all right—but that—he owned—the recorder."

She seemed dully bent on straightening out some tangle. "Sandry is—a man—despite all. Get Hampden—if he's alive. No, I don't mean—that. He—sent me down. The horse was—near done." As she slid down into Dally's arms she said with her last ounce of strength but with such commanding spirit that he knew she was in deadly earnest. "Get me—a conveyance—at once. I want to be in Toledo—for the night train—out."

Thus it came, that, as night closed down blue with rain over the tortured country, two things of import to the fortunes of the Dillingworths and its owner were taking place. Poppy Ordway stood on the platform of the dreary station at the lost little town on the backwater, bound for the outside world and the far cities.

At the same moment yet one more procession was coming slowly down from among the peaks, a line of men—a long line, for weary as they were dozens had followed the foreman into the wrecked, mud-deep forest—who bore tenderly among their two slings. It was a significant fact that scattered along that scarecrow line was every man of Sandry's old crews who had gone over to Hampden.

In one sling there swung gently the still figure of the Preacher, his Book upon his breast, its martial fute beside it, its glimmerings of the Past forgotten, its wistful searchings ended.

In the other lay Sandry, his right hand clasping two small dark ones whose owner trudged faithfully beside him refusing all offers of assistance.

A holy joy was in his heart, his lips moved noiselessly in the rolling Latin of a "Te Deum." This was the hour for which he had carefully learned it at college.

Unashamed he acknowledged the existence of that Power which he had once denied to Siletz.

And the little maid who had lost her soul for love lifted wondering eyes toward the world hidden in the dim distance, where her sanctuary, the seven-foot, fir stump, waited in vain for her rites of worship.

There was a wistful pathos in her calm acceptance of the mighty price which had been asked of her, and yet she was content. She had offered both her soul and body, exalted, glorified, in that she might serve this man.

Where her soul had been there was a sweeping, burning, glorious passion which tightened her clasp on Sandry's hand. Neither she nor the young owner realized that they had exchanged places on the path of life.

The procession, headed by John Dally who carried one end of Sandry's sling and was filled with a generous joy in that he had found these two alive, wound slowly down from the cup behind the Hog Back, penetrating that fringe of pines at its foot which had formed the trap. They were now but hideous blackened shapes, monsters that towered frightfully into the rain, their bases smoking here and there where a bowlder shielded stubborn fires.

Close along the face of the giant cliff they pressed, taking the shortest way.

Suddenly, without warning, they came full upon a huddled heap that lay at its base. It was pitifully flat and broken, as if it had fallen from

Dally halted and sent a cry along the line.

They touched the thing with awed amaze, turning up in the blue dusk

WOULD TAKE BIBLE TO RICH

They Do Not Take Time for God's Word, Is Assertion by New York Pastor.

"Pity the poor rich, for they are the poorest of all. They are barricaded against the Bible. If the Master himself were to undertake to carry his message personally to the hotels and apartment houses of New York he would be turned aside by the door-man with the information that 'No peddlers are allowed.'"

So Rev. Joseph W. Kemp, pastor of Calvary Baptist church, explained to me the Sunday sermon in which he said that "the crying need of religion in this city is to put Bibles in the homes of the wealthy."

"How hardly shall they who have riches enter into the kingdom of heaven," the divine earnestly quoted. "It is not that the possession of riches is inconsistent with Christianity, but that the rich grow to worship the creature of their own brains—money. They believe that riches may be counted in the palm. This is not so. True riches are within. There are millionaires of the mind, Rockefeller of the soul, and they are found often rather than among the poor—the rich poor whose doors and whose intellects are open to the Gospel of Christ."

"To what do you attribute the religious apathy of the rich?" I asked Doctor Kemp.

"The rich are obsessed with materialism," Doctor Kemp answered. "They have all the time in the world to read the latest novel, to go and see the latest play, but they have no time for the word of God."—Nixola Greeley-Smith, in New York World.

Marketing Farm Products.

United States Senator Fletcher has called a meeting of the national marketing committee to devise means to aid the farmer in marketing his products, and also to enable the consumer to distinguish between the high cost of food and the high cost of service.

"The farmers of the country are producing annually crops for which they receive $9,000,000,000, and for which the consumer pays, $27,000,000,000," said Representative W. S. Goodwin of Arkansas, a member of the committee. "The farmer gets 35 cents and the middleman gets 65 cents for each dollar the consumer pays for the farmer's crops. There is an enormous amount of waste, especially in perishable products, because of the lack of some central directing intelligence." the heavy face of the Yellow Pines owner.

Hampden, with the aid of the towering spine and the sheer depths, had made good his words. They would never send him to the chair.

And with the passing of the wondrous face under the disheveled gold hair had gone his last desire.

They hastily constructed another sling and added one more burden to the procession.

So at last and forever Walter Sandry came unto his own. There was yet timber in the Coast country. The East Belt was all but free of the shadow. Those old hidden records should be unearthed through Hampden's boast, or he would file on it legitimately himself, for that confession of Frazer's recorded deed would invalidate the O'Connell filing.

His enemy was gone—in shame and wrath and dishonor. He had won his fight.

That old crime, done in poetic justice under the Right Law of primal man, troubled him not at all, for he saw the glory of his father's face, heard his "I am at peace."

Beside him walked that love of which he had dreamed, the pearl of price which he had so nearly lost in his blindness. Before him went his tried friend, big John Dally, whose heart had shut on its own pain and opened to him the more.

At the camp waited the white-haired general who was a mother to him.

Here was his life from this time forth, amid the stark forces of a virgin country. The cities were far away, remote.

He had heard the Winds of God upon the Sounding Board of the Hills and they had shown him Deity. He was no longer a questioner, an agnostic. He had come too close to the bare heavens.

Thus he was borne down the dripping valley, filled with a vast peace, content—a Westerner at last.

"Sandy," whispered Siletz, as the procession wound up the slope to the cook-shack, lifting troubled, adoring dark eyes to his, "will it make any difference to you that I have no soul? Will my heart do?"

And Sandy could only hold more tightly the two small brown hands.

 second of a series of articles by J. S.
 Cullinan, Chairman of the Texas Economic League, on the Administration of Justice, to which subject the League is now addressing itself.)

By J. S. Cullinan.

Continuing the discussion of the Administration of Justice, let us inquire "What is Justice?" One of the greatest thinkers of antiquity is credited with saying that Justice was the treatment of persons according to their deserts. James Madison said that Justice was the end of government; Alexander Hamilton said that injustice was a capital imperfection in government and Benjamin Franklin said that injustice was plunder. President Wilson, in discussing Justice recently, said: "I do know that the United States in its judicial procedure is many decades behind every other civilized government in the world; and I say that it is an immediate and imperative call upon us to rectify that, because the speediness of Justice, the inexpensiveness of Justice, the ready access of Justice is the greater part of Justice itself." The President's conclusions are especially significant, as our government was formed for the avowed purpose of establishing Justice, yet today many a citizen will voluntarily accept injustice as more speedy, inexpensive and ready of access than Justice.

Honest Men Fear the Law.
 If, in the course of human events, we have reached a point in government where speedy injustice is more desirable than delayed Justice, where the penalty of guilt is cheaper than the reward of innocence, where the certainty of wrong is preferable to the uncertainty of right, and where good citizens tremble in the Temple of Justice like children on a stormy night, then we have traveled a long way from the tradition of our forefathers. Whose government is this, that honest men need fear it? If we have reached a point in government where any good citizen must cringe and cower before the law like vassal slaves before their master, and dicker for Justice as though it were a special privilege, then if we are true to the teachings of Washington and Jefferson, it is not only the right, but the duty of the citizens to abolish government.

The men who signed the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States said they were forming a government by the people and for the people. But we seem to have degenerated into a government by the lawyers and for the lawyers. This country is suffering from "legalism" far more than Germany has ever suffered from "militarism," and the more legalized we become the more inefficient we are.

We need not go to war to throw off the yoke of "legalism," that is tyrannizing the liberties and threatening the freedom of the nation. We need only to think and to act. The legal profession has given the nation some of her most profound thinkers, and when I call to mind members of the Texas bar who are the soul of honor, whose lofty characters tower above business and partisan strife and who daily make professional sacrifices to the highest ideals of citizenship, it is with effort that I can do other than glorify that profession, but as a citizen under contract with my government to discharge my duty as a sovereign, I am compelled to speak the truth as I see it, in the hope of helping the better element of the legal fraternity to restore and improve the ethics of that profession.

Legal Ethics Need Reforming.

I am fully in accord with the President's suggestion of reform of court procedure, but do not feel that it will correct the evils which we suffer in the administration of Justice. The ethics of the legal profession, as practiced by many members of the bar, need reforming as well as court procedure, and more righteousness and patriotism in the whole fabric of society will greatly improve the administration of Justice.

Every good citizen should be proud of the age in which he lives, and glory in the achievement of the leaders of his civilization, but this generation has witnessed more stupendous legal thefts than all previous centuries combined, and to speak the name of some of those who have plundered great commercial enterprise is to fill the heart of the American people with shame. But not in the instance has corporate property of the people been prostituted that a lawyer did not plan and approve the raid. No man has a moral right to teach another how to steal, and the teacher, not the student, must take the major share of responsibility. When a dishonest business man and a dishonest lawyer get together, two devils have met, and they, and not the property, should suffer, and neither should all honest men and honest property be penalized for their misconduct. There can be no defense to offer for those who commit business crimes—dishonesty is never defensible, and the press of the nation is to be commended for opening wide its columns to heralding the misdeeds of such business men to the world, but the lawyers are the custodians of the legal morals and upon their shoulders must rest primary responsibility for all legal thefts.

As Reflected in a Mirror —you see in your local paper each week all the news of events taking place around you—among the people you know and love. You'll also find the more important happenings of the world chronicled in this paper—yes, this is your paper in every sense of the word. It leads the fight for everything that will make this community a better place in which to live; it's looking after your interests all the time and right now we have arranged to offer you double value for your money.

Brain Against Brawn

Why do some farmers prosper and enjoy many luxuries, while others, who work just as hard, are always hard up? The answer is simple: one has used his brains and kept posted on up-to-date farming methods, while the other has felt that there is nothing for him to learn. He will not even read a first-class farm paper because he thinks no one can possibly tell him how to run his farm. FARM AND RANCH is prepared especially for farmers, gardeners, live stock and poultry raisers and fruit growers of the Southwest—the home builders. It has been the Southwestern farmer's right hand man for more than a third of a century.

Double Value This Year

This Year Holland's Magazine is just as large and much more interesting than ever before and the publishers are entering all subscriptions TWO FULL YEARS for the same price you formerly would have paid for a one year subscription. The short stories and special articles are clean, snappy and timely. The departments for the housekeeper are many and complete; the fashion pages show the late styles, and the children have a corner of their own. Holland's is truly a Southwestern Home Magazine of sunshine and good cheer which, in ten years time, has become indispensable to more than three quarters of a million people in the Southwest.

Send us your order for these three publications—our paper one year, Farm and Ranch one year and Holland's Magazine TWO YEARS—right away; also show this BIG VALUE OFFER to your neighbor who is not a subscriber to this paper. New and renewal subscriptions will be accepted at the rate advertised, so bring or mail your order now and get the benefit of the combination price.

Keep Telephone From Being an Affliction

By W. J. HARDY, New York

refreshment into the sanctity of home and find there protection from intrusion. Now the very brevity of the telephone appeal disarms them. This friend or that acquaintance or the friend of an acquaintance or friend begs for just a moment.

The telephone cannot be kept waiting. It conveys the nervous feeling that someone is being held in suspense. Often the interruption comes at a trying time, and it may come again and again in quick succession. The victim, freed from the restraints of the other persons present, seeks relief for his damaged feelings in scowling or groaning or making resentful remarks with his hand over the mouthpiece, sometimes by holding the receiver from his ear to mitigate the sound.

Some public men have formally rebelled against the telephone. "I will not be the slave of any man or of his invention," said Tom Johnson, while mayor of Cleveland, when he was asked to leave his table to respond to the call of the telephone. As with most public men, the telephone had ceased to have a hold on his curiosity. He knew that when people called him up it was not usually to lessen but to add to his cares. It is not uncommon for public men to be called up in the middle of the night by people who have no claim on them whatever.

The telephone companies have tried to give some protection to subscribers by establishing what they call private telephones. As the members are not listed, only those persons associated with the subscriber know the number. So the subscriber's telephone is made to give the service for which most people chiefly use it, not to receive but to send messages.

Of course, the telephone is performing a marvelous service. But its merits are fully appreciated. What is needed is a means of keeping it from being an affliction. Some one of the many societies for ameliorating social conditions ought to establish a telephone etiquette, devoted largely to explaining when not to telephone.

Tailor-Made Clothes to Be More Costly

By A. M. WHITE, New York

rics and in the accessories necessary for a suit of clothes for particular customers.

If there is not soon an end of the war, there is no telling where the price of clothes will go—that is, the price of clothes made from imported goods. For several months there has been a scarcity of dyes in the United States, and there is apparently no way to remedy this. To some extent this has been a good thing for the tailors, for they now get about seven times as much for their woolen waste as they did before the dye shortage.

Before the war the waste of woolen rags, as they are generally termed, brought three cents a pound. At present they are bringing 20 cents, and a cent or two more is paid for blue or black woolens. These rags are sent to the factories and the dye boiled out of them and used in new materials. The trouble is that the tailors have very few all-wool rags on hand.

Cotton drilling, generally used for pockets, has advanced from eight cents to twelve cents a yard, and the canvas used for the stiffening is very scarce, for the reason that most of it comes from Belgium. This has gone up from 18 cents to 30 cents a yard, and there is very little to be had at the latter figure. Imported fabrics of every description have advanced from 25 to 50 per cent in price, and they will continue to advance if the war continues.

All of this means that the tailors will be forced to put up their price for custom-made clothing.

How One Can Prevent "Catching Cold"

By DR. L. J. MURPHY, Minnesota Public Health Association, St. Paul, Minn.

containing millions of germs may be scattered about in coughing, sneezing, or as a result of ordinary conversation. A person with an acute cold should try not to infect others.

To keep up the general resistance the skin should be kept in a healthy condition. This can be done best by taking a warm bath at bedtime at least twice a week, and a cold shower or a sponge bath of very short duration every morning.

During the winter season most living quarters are kept too warm. The habit of living in overheated rooms lowers the general resistance and injures the membrane lining of the nose and throat so that one becomes easily a victim to a cold, bronchitis or pneumonia.

Fresh air, too, is just as essential in a sleeping room in the winter time as it is in the summer time. It should not be excluded, but there should be a proper amount of clothing for protection. Clothing should suit the kind of weather, not the season. In warm spells clothing should be reduced; in cold snaps, increased.

Clothing should be reduced when one enters a warm room and put on again when exposed to the cold.

Little Helps to Restful Slumber

By W. L. Pennington, Brooklyn, N. Y.

There are any number of little helps to a sound slumber if you are given to wakefulness. A cup of boiling milk taken just before lying down has a soothing, warming effect, which is conducive to sleep. A hot bath has excellent results in luring on elusive slumber, but only if sleep is sought immediately after taking it. If you take a hot bath and then sit up reading a while you will find yourself more alert mentally than ever by the time you are ready for sleep. The only way hot baths are efficacious is to take one and then compose yourself for slumber at once.

One of the best aids to insomnia is to sit up late reading in a hot, stuffy room. It is almost impossible to sleep after a couple of hours inclosed in a badly ventilated room.

An excellent sleep medicine is a brisk walk in the open air before retiring. Walk around the block, inhaling deeply, then on your return open your bedroom windows wide, take a hot bath (but don't linger in the tub) and hop right into bed.

Fill your mind with peaceful thoughts or make it as blank as possible, relax your entire body, breathe deeply and you are sure to sleep.

To people of importance, with influence that is widely sought for, the telephone has added a heavy burden. It has broken down their last privacy. Once they could escape for rest and

FAVORITES ON FRENCH MENU

Artichokes and Truffles Are Particularly Liked by the Gourmands of That Country.

The Frenchman is very fond of artichokes. One kind, the Vert de Provence, has wide-open petals like a rose in full bloom. The violet Hatte de Provence is a rare specimen of violet hue, having its petals closely folded into a firm ball.

Truffles are among the rarest of epicurean treasures in France. Dogs and hogs are trained to scent out the tubelike nuggets in their earthy coverings in the forests. For the truffle is a fungus which grows underground and requires the scent of animals to discover it. Its growth is rather a mystery, in that science has yet discovered little about it. In Perigord and Provence the custom prevails of sowing acorns in an inclosed space, the natives declaring that when the trees are big enough to shade the ground the time has come for a crop of truffles to be gathered.

A violet truffle is the finest of all. It is covered with polygonal warts and is found in Perigord and Provence. When it reaches maturity in late autumn it puts on a black flesh of reddish violet sheen and its odor and flavor are as delicate as its covering.

STUBBORNNESS HAS A VALUE

Quality Not Usually Considered Praiseworthy Is All Right in the Army Mule.

The fact that a mule is stubborn may lessen his value to the average user—but the soldier is inclined to value this trait. The mule is being rated above the horse for actual use under fire on battlefields, and is much used by the artillery. An untrained horse, being nervous and high strung, is likely to dash about madly under fire, but the mule stubbornly holds his place regardless of the din. The British are now planning to mount a part of their cavalry on American mules. A favorite story of the British artillery is told of the artillerymen who tried to retreat with their guns under a warm attack. The gun team of mules stubbornly refused to budge, so in desperation the gunners returned to the gun and succeeded in beating back the attack. They were warmly commended for their valor—but admitted that the praise was properly due the mules.—American Boy.

New Use for a Cook Book.

There is a story of a man, desperately ill, who, having passed the crisis of his ailment, needed only, so the doctors asserted, an incentive to recover. He had had dire misfortunes and had lost all interest in living. Neither his business, nor his motor car, nor his children, nor his wife sufficed to lure him back to the trials of temporal existence. Then some inspired relative thought of the cook book. She put it into the hands of the sick man as he lay withering on his pillow. He turned it over languidly; then he fluttered the pages with transparent fingers; presently he asked to be propped up in bed. Before long he was whispering fervidly of what he was going to have to eat when he got well—those pig hocks with dumplings; hot waffles and sirup; schnitzelbennen with sour sauce. What were rissoles, and ramekins, and bannocks? And why had he never known about toad-in-the-hole? These were the sentiments that wooed him back to life.—Atlantic Monthly.

Saints and Sinners.

The story regarding Dr. Alexander Whyte and Dr. Hugh Black, who, during their joint Edinburgh ministry, were said respectively to have black-balled the saints and whitewashed the sinners, is now claimed to have originated in London, and to be the property, not of the Scottish Presbyterians but of the Wesleyan Methodists. When Hugh Price Hughes was founding his famous West London mission he wrote to the Rev. Mark Guy Pearse, inviting his personal co-operation. Mr. Pearse replied that, for one thing, he wanted to go and live in Cornwall; for another he wished to be free to preach in different parts of England; and, finally and conclusively, where Hugh Price Hughes was there was little room for anyone else. "Not at all," was Hughes' response; "there'll be plenty of room. You shall edify the saints, and I'll pursue the sinners."—Westminster Gazette.

Fish Failed to Respond.

For some hours the angler had sat on the river bank, patiently waiting, always waiting.

A stranger to the place had been watching him for some time. At last he went up to the old man and asked casually:

"How are the fish in these parts?" The old fisherman rebated his hook, threw it back into the water and then turned calmly to his questioner.

"Well," he replied grimly, "I really can't say. I've dropped them a line every day for nearly a week now, and I've had no reply yet."

Busy Official.

In a recent examination paper for a boy clerk's post was this question:

"If the premier and all the members of the cabinet should die, who would officiate?"

Robert, a boy of fourteen, thought for a time, trying in vain to recall who came next in succession. At last a happy inspiration came to him, and he answered:

"The undertaker."—Tit-Bits.

HIS SHARE OF THE HORSE

Interfering Individual Evidently Was Not as Important as He Thought He Was.

A newly admitted member of a big co-operative society boasting sixteen thousand members met one of the society's vans laden with coal, with the driver sitting on the shafts.

The new member, full of the importance of belonging to such a big society, considered it his duty to remonstrate with the driver on his want of consideration toward his horse by adding his own weight to the load instead of walking. The fault-finder wound up by saying: "I'm a shareholder in the society, and therefore part owner of your horse and van."

"Shareholder, are you?" responded the coal, pulling a hair out of the horse's tail and handing it to the astonished member, with the remark: "Here's your share of the animal, mister."

He then drove on.

Willing. "Why don't you take something for that cold of yours?"

"What would you advise me to take?"

"Quinine."

stood before the big battery of milling machines in the Grape-Nuts factories at Battle Creek, Mich., and after inspecting both the wheat and flour said to the miller:

"That's selected wheat, and no 'patent flour' stunt, either. That wheat comes out of the rolls as honest and unrefined as it went in. Where did you ever make flour before that retained the true mineral content of the grain?"

And the wise miller replied: "I have worked in a good many mills, and I am no youngster, but let me tell you, I never made whole wheat flour like that until I came with this company."

The truth is, white flour is woefully lacking in certain essential mineral elements which are thrown out in the milling to make flour white and pretty, and its use frequently results in impaired health and activity.

Advertising a Sale!

YOU don't leave your rig in the middle of the road and go to a fence-post to read a sale bill do you? Then don't expect the other fellow to do it.

Put an ad in this paper, then, regardless of the weather, the fellow you want to reach reads your announcements while seated at his fireside.

If he is a prospective buyer you'll have him at your side. One extra buyer often pays the entire expense of the ad, and it's a poor ad that won't pull that buyer.

An ad in this paper reaches the people you are after. Bills may be a necessity, but the ad is the thing that does the business.
