TAUGHT DOMESTIC SCIENCE SCHOOL

Miss Hewey of Wichita, Kansas was the center of attraction at Richerson & McCarroll's among the women folks Saturday, Monday and Tuesday. She conducted a class in domestic science those three days free of charge to all who would attend. She certainly knows how to cook and to tell others how. We venture the assertion there'll be several men in and around Hedley with stomachache the next week or two caused from eating the dishes the ladies are learning to make. If every woman could cook like Miss Hewey does then every man would sure be a home and wife lover, 'tis said, "the way to reach a man's heart is through his stomach." We failed to learn whether the teacher taught the ladies how to secure more food to cook. Hope she did.

Miss Hewey is advertising the White Deer flour made by the Red Star Mills in Wichita, Kansas, and sold by Richerson & McCarroll.

MRS. B. F. NAYLOR PASSES AWAY

Mrs. B. F. Naylor, wife of our county tax assessor, and daughter of our Capt. E. E. McGee and wife, died at the family home in Clarendon last Sunday morning about 2:30, and was laid to rest in the Clarendon cemetery Monday afternoon. Mrs. Naylor was born in Irede county, N. C., January 23, 1868, and was married to B. F. Naylor January 8, 1891 in Denton county, Texas. She was a consistent member of the Methodist church. She leaves her husband and ten children, and father, mother, three brothers and three sisters to mourn her death.

Her mother was too ill at home to attend the funeral, but we are glad to report that she is improving.

Of The Hedley High School

EDITED BY W. J. Benson
Julia Etta Lane
Roxie Sibley Lewis

The Basket ball girls of Hedley High School visited Goodnight Saturday afternoon Feb. 3. A game of ball was played with the girls there at three thirty resulting in the scores 21 4 in favor of Hedley. There is some good material in the Goodnight team all they need is more practice. The girls went out to see the buffaloes after the game. They were taken into the girls' homes and served nice suppers such as ball players delight in after a hard game.

The play "A Southern Cinderella" was played in the college auditorium to a large attentive, appreciative audience. We left wishing every little village had as many friendly, sensible and broad minded people in it as Goodnight. When Goodnight comes here the best the girls can offer is none to good for them.

A box supper for the benefit of the library (bookcases) to be given Monday night.

The literary society elected new officers forgetting the editors "clear light". We are "plumb sore" over it. We have literary society every Friday afternoon after recess. Everyone come a free show every time.

Clarendon High School boys basket ball team came down one day last week and were defeated nicely by the local team. The score stood 35 to 12 in favor of Hedley. We are coming to the front. Did you know it?

Blanche Adamson started back to school Monday after an absence of two weeks.

Mellie Bird, Frances and Blanche visited in the country Tuesday afternoon. How they must have missed the roar and buzz of the city.

Some of our girls have been attending the cooking demonstrations, we wonder why?

Reed was at school one day this week.

Tom McDougal, Jewel Brinson and Lola Simmons accompanied the basket ball girls to Goodnight.

MRS. WALTER YOUNG PASSES AWAY

Our hearts were made sad on the morning of the Jan. 25 when the message came that Mrs. Elpha Young (Miss Elpha Adamson) was dead. Her illness was of short duration and she quietly passed away at an early hour on the date above mentioned. On Tuesday a baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Young and the little bud so fair went on before to meet mother at the gate.

Elpha (as she was commonly known here) was born June 29th in Collin county Texas and died January 25th 1917 at Plainview, Texas. She would have been twenty six years of age in June. She was laid to rest in the Plainview cemetery, by the side of her little babe, on Friday in the presence of a large crowd of friends and relative. She leaves a husband, father, mother, four brothers and four sisters with many friends and relatives to mourn her death. She was married in December 1915 to Mr. Walter Young of Plainview and had lived there ever since her marriage. Elpha was a devoted wife, always obedient to her parents, affectionate and kind to brothers and sisters and pleasant and kind to every one she met.

O, how sad it is to have to give up our loved ones, but our Savior knows best and works all things together for good to those who love Him and we must bow in submission to His will. To the heart broken husband we would say, lean on our blessed Master who took your dear companion away for a purpose we cannot understand, but who never makes mistakes, and to the father and mother, brothers and sisters look up to Him who knows your sorrow and who is always ready to help his children. He takes our loved often for a blessing, in disguise to us, but He is a great and loving Father and never puts more on us than we are able to bear. While we are bowed in grief, perhaps she is over yonder with songs in her mouth and a harp in her hands rejoicing over the great victory she has won. What a great privilege to us to live while we are left here to meet her up yonder where we will never have to say goodbye, where we will feel no more pain, where we will shed no more tears and where we will live in grandeur throughout the endless years. How grand a privilege it is, I say to live as our Savior would have us live, to follow the steps of Him who went about doing good, whose delight it is to make glad the hearts of His children who obey Him.

I confess in sorrow that I did not put as many flowers in Elpha's pathway as I could and should have done, but am promising my Saviour today that, as her passing away has caused me to feel my neglect, I will do better by my loved ones, friends and neighbors and will try harder to follow in His steps, who spoke the right word and acted the right act which helped others. I pray that we may all be more kind and more unselfish with each other and may we all live here so we will be prepared to meet those gone before.

JOHNSON FOR LIEUT. GOVERNOR

Austin Feb. 6. Senator Johnson of Hall county today announced his candidacy for lieutenant governor of Texas, subject to the Democratic primaries in 1918.

THE HEAD ON THE OLD CENT

In 1885 the government of the United States made an offer of $1,000 for the most acceptable design to be placed upon the new one cent coin soon to be issued. Some Indian chiefs traveled from the northwest to Washington to visit the great father. Andrew Jackson occupied the executive chair and Martin Van Buren was vice president. These Indians journeyed to Philadelphia to inspect the mint, whose chief engraver was Barton Longacre, who invited them to his house, where, to celebrate the event, a distinguished company had assembled to welcome them.

The engraver's daughter Sarah aged ten, greatly enjoyed the visit of her father's guests, and during the evening, to please her, one of the chiefs took his feather-helmet and war-bonnet and placed it on her head. In the company was an artist, who immediately sketched her and handed the picture to her father. Mr. Longacre knowing of the competition for a likeness to go upon the cent projected, under the inspiration of the hour, resolved to contend for the prize offered by the government. To his delight the officials accepted it, and the face of his daughter appeared upon this coin, which circulated about the nation for nearly a quarter century. It is said that there were more than 100 competitors for the prize.

Savage and civilized life was thus intermingled in the American face and Indian headgear. The face of Sarah Longacre has gone into more hands, more banks, more homes, more pockets, more stores, more schools, yes, more churches than any other coin in the United States, if not in the world. It is said that the dollar once boasted of its superior value to the cent, declaring the latter unworthy to stay in its company. "Ah," replied the cent, you may be more valuable, I am more pious, for I attend church every Sunday, but you are seldom seen there." The Indian chief considered it an honor to put his bonnet upon the head of the engraver's daughter for the headgear was an heirloom.

But we're thinking, thinking
Of the loved, the absent one.

When we gather at the fireside
With merry laugh and jest,
How we wish the absent dear one
Was here with all the rest.
Still we join in all the frolics,
But we wish the day was done
For we're thinking, thinking
Of the loved, the absent one.

Yet when the day is over
And all have gone to rest,
We feel the Heavenly Father
Does all things for the best
So we cheer our drooping spirits
With the rising of the sun,
But can't help thinking thinking
Of the loved, the absent one.

Her Cousin,
Ela Culwell.

PEEL OFF CALLUSES WITH THE FINGERS

To painlessly and quickly remove any callus spots from the bottom of the feet apply a few drops of freezone directly upon the hardened skin and shortly it will peel right off without pain, soreness or bleeding.

This drug is an ether compound. It simply loosens the dead callused skin. It doesn't eat it away, but loosens it so it peels right off with the fingers.

A quarter ounce of this freezone costs little at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every corn or callus from one's feet. This is the only way to free the feet from corns and calluses without soreness, danger or infection.

After the corn or callus is lifted away the skin beneath and surrounding is found pink and healthy, and not inflamed, or even irritated. This is a good thing to know.—Adv.

Fact Versus Fancy.

A good story is being told of a reply given by a student to a question set in an examination paper:

"If 20 men reap a field in eight hours," ran the question, "how long will it take 15 men to reap the same field?"

The student thought long and carefully before setting down the answer, and when he handed in his paper this is what the examiner read:

"The field having already been reaped by the 20 men, could not be reaped by the 15."—Tit-Bits.

PREPARED BY THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Martin House.

APARTMENT HOUSES FOR BIRDS.

The purple or house martin is not only one of the most valuable destroyers of insects, but also is a lovely bird, with most graceful flight and interesting habits. Martin houses are built on the apartment plan to satisfy the social instinct so marked in martins but so conspicuously lacking in most other birds. They usually contain not less than ten nor more than twelve rooms, pole shown here is made from hardwood boards put together with screws. The concrete base has a core of two-inch iron pipe which extends upward far enough to make a firm connection with the upper part on which the house slides. A heavy weight is employed to hold the house hard against the roof. By passing the cord around the hook of the weight exactly as shown and pulling it upward until the weight is clear of the ground, it can and for this reason are relatively complicated, especially if they are miniature of elaborate buildings, as is often the case. Like the single-room houses, they should be easy to inspect and clean from top to bottom, and, if possible, should be made proof against the English sparrow. A combination of these essentials in a plain house has been worked out by the United States bureau of biological survey as easily be held without slipping while a more secure knot can be tied. A hook less wearing to the cord and fully as serviceable may be made from an acute natural crotch of oak or other hardwood instead of iron. Where this house is exposed to strong winds it may be advisable to attach guy wires to corners of the roof. The pole may be made of a single piece of four-linch galvanized pipe, set in a concrete

Illustrated in the accompanying figures. The body of this house slides upon its pole, to the top of which the roof is solidly attached. The pole is hollow, and through it runs a cord by which the house is raised and lowered. The floors are all removable by lifting up. When the house is out of contact with the roof all of the entrances are closed by gates actuated by springs, the gates moving upward to close, and being kept down and open by pressure against the roof. By means of this device sparrows may be kept out of the house until martins are due to arrive, or if they get in when the house is open, they can be trapped by suddenly lowering it. The

In Woman's Realm

Pretty and Sensible Morning Dress Which May Be Made of Linen, but is More Likely to Be Made of Cotton, Such as Indian Head or Some Other Suitable Weave—Pretty Headdress for the Opera.

Here is a pretty and sensible morning dress which may be made of linen but is more likely to be made of cotton such as Indian head or some other suitable weave. For it appears that linen is soaring in price, with the end not yet in sight. There is no very good reason for preferring it to substantial and beautifully-woven cotton materials.

Now that the days are short and the evenings long, and while the weather out-of-doors is not inviting, springtime clothes may be got under way. The dress shown may be cut by a mighty well worth while. There is a feast spread there for the eyes, as well as the ears.

The coiffures and hair ornaments are enough to engross eyes that love to see woman's crowning glory still further glorified. This season, handsome combs have taken precedence over other hair ornaments. They are made of silver filigree, shell, coral, amber and gold; some of them are enameled, and most of them are set with brilliants and mock jewels. Besides these, there are many pretty opera caps and headdresses in which malines, brightened pattern for a plain skirt and jacket, furnished by any of the standard pattern companies. It has a wide cape collar and a belt with sash ends made of the same material as the dress.

The skirt is embroidered near the bottom with occasional sprays of flowers, and this embroidery reappears on the cuffs, collars, and sash ends. The jacket is laid in plaits at each side of the front and across the back. The sleeves are plain. Plain white buttons, either bone or pearl, and buttonholes, are used for fastening the jacket, whether the material of the dress is with spangles or rhinestones, make a background for wonderful feathers or other ornaments.

A headdress of this kind is pictured here. It consists of a fan of plaited maline, set on a headband made of wire, covered with many thicknesses of malines. In front of the fan of malines a smaller fan-shaped ornament of fine rhinestones is set, and bands of rhinestones are slipped over the headband, at short intervals, all the way round it.

Silver cloth and silver lace make headbands that are ornamented with white or a color, and the embroidery is done in white cotton.

The same character of suit is made with a middie blouse. This simplifies the matter of laundering them. Embroidery is left out of the reckoning on these. Among the newest and most satisfactory house dresses are skirts and blouses in one, of unbleached linen or cotton resembling it. In making these clothes, that must stand the wear of everyday and a weekly tubbing, goods that will look best in the long run should be chosen.

Even those who have no ear for music find the opera alluring, and one might be stone deaf and still find it either strands of pearls or rows of spangles or rhinestones set on them. They are easy to make. The foundation is a narrow band of buckram, covered with silver cloth. Silver lace is placed over this and sewed along the upper edge. In one of these ornaments a strand of pearl beads is sewed along the upper edge, and a disk, covered like the band with silver, is set at the front. Pearl beads are sewed all over its outer surface.

An Instantaneous!
Willie was at last the proud owner of a small camera. The happy little boy listened to his father's instructions on the way to work it, and then prepared to take his little sister's photograph.

Now for a beginner this is not a very easy thing, and Willie, engrossed in the difficult task, spent a good half hour running from the camera to the subject, and from the subject to the camera, arranging one thing, fixing another, and taking the greatest possible care that everything should be in order.

"What in the world are you doing?" asked his uncle, who arrived at that moment.

And Willie, in a most serious tone, replied: "An instantaneous, don't you see?"

The Reason.

Boarder—Why don't you husband what corn you're scattering so?
Farmer—Can't husband it. It's all hen-pecked.

Emerald Most Precious Stone.

The most precious of all stones—provided it contains no flaw—is the official tribute paid to the emerald in a bulletin issued by the Smithsonian Institution. Tracing the history of emerald finds from the days of Cleopatra, the Smithsonian furnishes interesting scientific information regarding these gems, saying:

"Unfortunately it (the emerald) is seldom free from flaws, and were this not the case an emerald would be of greater value, carat for carat, than the diamond. Today a good diamond is worth about $250 to $400 per carat, according to its purity and size, while an emerald varies in value from $250 to $500, increasing very rapidly with size. Flawless emeralds weighing more than four carats are among the rarest of jewels; a perfect stone of four carats is practically priceless, whereas a diamond would bring only $1,000 to $2,000."

FACE NEW ORDER OF THINGS

Parents Do Well to Adapt Themselves to Modern Ways in Conversing With Their Children.

There is a good deal more of life and fire and color in the talk of the young today than there was in the speech of an older day. Many an adult is ill at ease in a group of young people now. His talk is much duller than that of the young people around him. They can use figures of speech; they can employ dynamic and striking phrases; in brief, their speech stimulates, while his moves along in a rather heavy, conventional, formal way. This is the new order of things in American life. It is inevitable, considering that we are becoming constantly more gregarious. We see a great deal more of one another than we did of old; and so we have to talk more freely and more volubly than was required when social life was much simpler than it is now.

So children must be heard as well as seen. But shall we release the brakes altogether, and let them run without check? People can talk so much that they become unduly excited, unstable and erratic. A child who rushes in to the table from the street, and keeps talking in a tense, excited way is over-joying the talking business. In some way he ought to be quieted. He should be helped to get hold of himself. He is running with the throttle open.

This problem could be settled satisfactorily, and to the advantage of everybody concerned, if the father and the mother could talk so as to interest their children. When a parent can tell a good story or describe a happening of the day in a colorful manner, he can get his children to listen, and they will be benefited in body and mind by so doing.—M. V. O'Shea in The Mother's Magazine.

HAD ORIGIN IN SENTIMENT

Interesting to Trace the Beginnings of Holidays That Are Distinctly American.

First and last, enough sentiment has been expended upon American politics to equip a regiment of poets laureate. Distinctly American holidays are full of it. Fourth of July, of course, made itself. The 22nd of February became one by common consent. It had its origin in a convivial supper in a New York tavern in 1783, when a company met to listen to an original ode and drink innumerable toasts. Enthusiasm survived the wine, and as the gentlemen went gaily and unsteadily home they swore to meet again on future anniversaries. Regarded at first as a purely party custom, it broadened beyond federal circles to take in all Americans. Jefferson's followers attempted a similar observance in his honor, but he countered with another bit of sentiment, refusing to divulge the date, on the ground that only the birthday of the nation should be so treated.

Thanksgiving was sectional and religious as well as political, and sentiment graced it in plenty. One of the customs that lingered in good old New England households until the middle of the last century was to lay five grains of corn upon the plate of every person at table in memory of a day in early colonial history when five ships came sailing into harbor just in time to shake away the specter of famine. It was Washington who appointed the first national day of thanksgiving, at the instance of congress, after the signing of the Constitution. For many years, however, annual observance of the day remained a matter of state, and actually ceased to New England. Like the 22nd day of February, it became a national custom only recently; unlike the 22nd day of February, it spread largely through the influence of a woman, Mrs. Sarah Josepha Hale, who advocated it for 20 years in the editorial columns of Goddard's Book.—Helen Nicolay in the Century.

Fish Has a Huge Appetite.

When the lighthouse tender Corregidor pulled into Manila it brought for the bureau of science aquarium a monster manatee, the first live fish of this kind to be placed on exhibition there, and with it one disgusted keeper, who informed the bureau officials gathered at the pier to greet the new arrival, that "this fish, seguro, eats more than a horse," and that it had taken practically all of the time of three men collecting food for it, the Manila (P. L.) Bulletin says.

The manatee, which arrived there in the best of health apparently, seems to be almost entirely a vegetarian and is particularly fond of a certain kind of sea grass that is said to grow along the Cavite coast, as well as in the waters in which the fish was caught. A good sized banana full of the succulent stems and leaves is needed to appease the captive's normal appetite during a single day.

BILIOUS, HEADACHY, SICK "CASCARETS"

Gently cleanse your liver and sluggish bowels while you sleep.

Get a 10-cent box. Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months. Adv.

BEEES MAKE HIVE OF HOUSE

Four Swarms Removed From Building When a Fifth Arrives at Iowa Home.

Four swarms of wild bees recently have been removed from the two-story house of Earl Berryman on the East side of Rockwell City, the Cedar Rapids (Ia.) Gazette says. Three of them were located under the shingles on three corners of the building and one was back of the weather boarding near the eaves on the south side of it. About three bushels of combs were removed, but the amount of white comb honey was not nearly so great as the fine yield this year from good hives in the neighborhood.

A fifth swarm arrived and endeavored to gain an entrance to the building at the eaves on the south side. Failing to find a suitable opening, this swarm clustered within and around a four-inch drain tile lying in the grass near the building.

Co., Omaha, Neb., for beautiful cook book. It is sent free to mothers.—Adv.

Horse-Shy Young Men

The discovery is being made that many young men who have reached manhood in the last ten years do not know how to harness and attach the horse to the buggy, crank the beast, step on the horse-starter, engage the clutch and get across the country under one horse power.—Indianapolis Journal.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRETS.

A well known actress gives the following recipe for gray hair: To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1 oz. of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off. Adv.

HORSE MUST BE WELL FED DURING WINTER

The efficiency of the farm horse next spring and summer will depend largely upon the feed and care it receives this winter, asserts Dr. C. W. McCampbell, associate professor of animal husbandry in the agricultural college.

"Despite the fact that feeds are high in price, the farm horse must be well fed during the coming winter months," said Doctor McCampbell. "A study of market prices reveals the fact that bran and alfalfa hay are two of the cheapest feeds available when feeding value is considered. Both are well adapted to winter feeding because of the lighter work of the farm horse during the winter season, and because of the cooler weather. This being true, both should enter largely in the farm horse ration this winter."

Use Much Roughage. "At present prices a combination of 6 parts of corn and 4 parts of bran is 20 cents a hundredweight cheaper than corn alone, and has practically the same feeding value as first 18 months and especially the first winter determines to a great extent the size of the colt at maturity," said Doctor McCampbell. "The size of a horse determines very largely its value."

"Good breeding gives wonderful possibilities, but it takes feeding if these possibilities are to be fully realized. The best bred colt will be no better than a scrub if fed upon a starvation ration."

"A draft colt makes one-half of its development by the time it is one year old, hence the importance of a good start. The colt should be taught to eat grain before it is weaned, and after being weaned should be allowed a liberal ration of alfalfa or clover hay with other available roughages, such as corn fodder, kafir butts, cane hay, and straw. The colt should be fed sufficient grain to keep it in a good growing and thrifty condition."

Colts Need Exercise. "One should never be able to see a colt's ribs. A ration of from six to an equal weight of oats. Ten to 12 pounds of alfalfa hay a day in place of prairie hay will enable one to reduce the grain ration approximately 20 per cent.

"Large amounts of roughage, such as corn fodder, cane, and straw, which might otherwise be wasted, may be utilized when alfalfa hay is fed, for the richness of the alfalfa causes a craving for other roughages."

The size of the draft horse will depend largely upon the feed and care that the weanling receives during the first winter, asserts Doctor McCampbell.

"In developing the colt, it must be remembered that the feed it gets the eight pounds of grain a day should be fed for each 1,000 pounds of live weight. Oats is an excellent feed but at present the price is so high that it is not practical. A good substitute is corn, 70 per cent; bran, 20 per cent; and oil meal, 5 per cent by weight."

Colts should not be housed too closely during the winter, pointed out Doctor McCampbell. In this climate a shed opening to the south will furnish sufficient shelter for winter.

Colts should have access to a pasture or large lot so as to have plenty of exercise. Where winter pasture, such as wheat or rye is available, the feed bill may be cut down considerably.

IMPORTANT TO SAVE ALL LIQUID MANURE

Considerable Proportion of Nitrogen Lost Through Fermentation and Leaching.

The fertilizing value of the total excrement from horses is about $29 per animal per year, and from cattle about $25, according to the chemistry section of the Nebraska experiment station.

Nearly half of the nitrogen and potassium from farm animals occurs in the liquid excrement. It is therefore important that this be saved through use of sufficient straw to absorb it. Manure stored in the open barnyard loses a considerable proportion of its nitrogen through fermentation, and its potassium and other mineral elements through leaching.

This loss may be avoided by hauling the manure to the field as fast as it accumulates. If this is impracticable, it may be stored in a covered shed, where animals run over it, and so keep it well packed. The greatest loss of fertility occurs when the manure is stored in loose piles.

HOG LICE QUESTION IS VERY IMPORTANT

Pests Take Advantage of Conditions in Cold Weather and Breed Quite Rapidly.

(By R. C. ASHLY, Minnesota Experiment Station.)

It has been estimated that a 150-pound hog has 92,000 drops of blood. Suppose he is supporting 1,000 lice and each takes one drop of blood per day. What per cent of his blood will be lost daily, and who will pay the bill?

The question is important right now, for lice are worse in winter than in summer. The hogs pile up closely and spend much time in their beds. The lice take advantage of the situation and breed rapidly.

To remove the lice is neither difficult nor expensive. Dipping or spraying with coal-tar compounds is dangerous in winter, but three other treatments are available. There are:

1. Equal parts kerosene and machine oil mixed together and applied with an oil can, brush or swab.
2. Crude oil (thinned with kerosene, if too thick), applied with a brush or as a spray.
3. Powdered staphisgria dusted on the pigs, or steeped as a ten and applied with a brush or as a spray.

For a small bunch the first treatment is the most convenient, but when one has many hogs the crude oil is cheaper. Be sure to apply between the ears and in both flanks. The lice prefer folds of the skin.

Clean the beds and pens thoroughly, also. If these are thoroughly sprayed with the oil there should be no further trouble from the lice. If the hogs sleep in straw sheds one can keep them free from lice by treating them every two weeks. Try it!

STURDY COCKERELS MAKE BEST CAPONS

Fowls Should Be Good-Sized, Vigorous and With Large Frame—Keep Them Growing.

The very best cockerels must be selected for capons. They should be good-sized, vigorous. A large frame is necessary if much flesh is to be put upon it, and in breeding for capons one should select a strain that matures as early as possible.

The capons must be kept growing every moment and they should have a reasonably large range.

If confined too closely they are apt to become droopy and sick. While not particularly active, they thrive better if they have a reasonably large run, and they seem to take on fat better.

Too many people make the mistake of waiting until within two weeks of marketing before fattening their birds. They should be pushed at least six weeks to get the very best results. This will produce a large, fat capon that will bring a fancy price if packed in clean, white paper in a clean box.

Street Scenes in Saloniki

ALONG THE WATER FRONT

STRIKING picture of street life in Saloniki, Greece, is given in a bulletin of the National Geographic Society, compiled from a communication to the society from H. G. Dwight.

Somebody had told me that Saloniki was rather like Genoa, writes Mr. Dwight. My first impression, therefore, was of a disappointing flatness, not in the least comparable to the lofty air, the piled, bastioned, heaven-scaling air, of the Italian city. Yet Saloniki scales heaven, too, in her more discreet manner. And there is even something faintly Italian about her. This is most palpable on the broad quay of the water front, especially when a veritable row of fishermen from the Adriatic are drying nets or sails under the sea wall, just as they do in Venice. The crescent of white buildings facing the blue bay would not look foreign in any Rimini or Spezia. The white tower, which is the most conspicuous of them, might justly have been the work of an Italian prince. Indeed, a doge of Venice is said to have built the first edition of it, and Suleiman the Magnificent employed Venetians for his own.

A "splendid palace" opens florid gates of hospitality there. A skating rink and a cinematograph offer their own more exotic entertainments to the passer-by. Cafes abound, overflowing onto the awning sidewalk. Electric trams clang back and forth in proud consciousness of the fact that they existed when Imperial Constantinople was yet innocent of such modernities. These cars take you around the eastern horn of the bay to the trim white suburb of Kalamaria, where consuls and other notables of Saloniki live, and where Sultan Abdul Hamid II spent nearly four bitter years in the Italian villa Allattini, looking out at the provincial capital which he and Nero embellished in their day. On the opposite horn of the crescent is the latin-enough park of Besh Chinar (Five Plane Trees), where it is good to sip coffee and listen to music in the cool of the day. And if you did not know that greater prize and ornament of Saloniki for Olympus, the true Thessalian Olympus of Greek legend, you might easily imagine it to be some white Alp or Apennine looming magnificently across the bay.

Not Wholly Italian in Looks.

Look a little closer, however, and this Italian appearing town has unfamiliar details. The white campanilli that everywhere prick up above the roofs of weathered red are too slender and too pointed for true bell towers. Then, as you land at the quay you perceive that the electric cars are labeled in strange alphabets. The cafes do not look quite as they should, either. As for the people in them, a good many would pass without question. Just such slight and trim young men in Italy would sit at little tables on the sidewalk. Just such young women, rather pale and powdered as to complexion, rather dusky as to eyes and hair, would sit beside them. And you hear a good deal of Italian. But you hear more of other and less familiar languages. And those red fezzes are a new note. So are those more numerous hay-colored uniforms that sat at no cafe in my Italian days.

A more striking note is afforded by numerous dignified old gentlemen taking their ease in their bathrobes, as it were, slit a little up the side and tied about the waist with a gay silk girdle. Over the bathrobe they usually wear a long, open coat lined with yellow fur, which guards them from the cold in winter and in the summer from heat. And none of them is without a string of beads, preferably of amber dangling from his hand and giving him something to play with.

Queerly Garbed Old Ladies.

Such an old gentleman should be accompanied by an old lady, who contributes what is most characteristic to the local color of Saloniki. The foundation of her costume is a petticoat of some dark silk, and a white bodice crossed below her throat—a very thin bodice, cut very low at the neck and palpably unstiffened by any such mail as western women arm themselves with.

Over this superstructure the old lady wears a dark skirt boiero lined with fur and two striped silk aprons—one before and one behind. The latter is caught up on one side, some corner of it being apparently tucked into a mysterious pocket. But the crown and glory of the old lady is her headdress—a sort of flat frame, tightly wound about with a stamped or embroidered handkerchief, and crowned with an oval plaque set off by seed pearls. Whatever its color, this creation invariably ends in a fringed tail of dark green silk, also ornamented by a gilt or gold plaque of seed pearls, hanging half way down the old lady's back. In this wonderful tail she keeps her hair, of which you see not a scrap, unless at the temples. And about her throat she wears strings and strings of more seed pearls.

She is, this decorative, this often extremely handsome old lady, a mother in Israel. The old gentleman in the gaberdine is her legitimate consort, while many of the modernized young people at the cafe tables are their descendants—very many. A dozen different estimates of the population are given, varying according to the race of the informant; but they all agree on the point that Saloniki contains not far from 150,000 people, and that more than half of them are Jews.

MAN NOT REALLY STRONGER

Woman Says Idea Is Merely a Fiction, Inspired and Fostered by the Gentler Sex.

It is strange that no man envies us; that you never hear one of these lords of creation bemoaning the fact that he was born a man and not a woman. Time and time again women will rail against the supposed handicap of their sex. Without so much as a protest they let the poet write about man as "the noblest work of God." It never so much as occurred to them to dispute or deny it.

It is refreshing and no less surprising, then, to find in one of the current magazines, the Unpopular Review, an article on the joy of being a woman.

Men are geniuses, the writer contends, merely because women permit them to be. Women lose nothing by this generosity, since it is infinitely more gratifying, more soul-satisfying, to have made a Plato than merely to have evolved his philosophy. Woman deliberately and with malice aforethought permitted herself to be saddled with a reputation for weakness so that man might grow strong enough to be considered a worthy mate for her.

"Man is a timorous, self-distrustful creature," the author writes, "who would never have discovered his powers if not stimulated by woman's weakness."

"Women, conscious how they hold men's welfare in their hands, simply do not dare to discover how strong they might be if they tried, because they have so far used their physical weakness not only as a means of arousing men's good activities, but also as a means of turning to nobler directions their bad ones. Men are naturally acquisitive, impelled to work for gain and gold. Unable to deter them from this impulse, we let them support us, preserving for their sakes the fiction that we are too frail to support ourselves."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Tattooing was a distinct trade in Cæsar's time.

SYRUP OF FIGS FOR A CHILD'S BOWELS

It is cruel to force nauseating, harsh physic into a sick child.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Adv.

Some Reason for It.

"Gosh! You must owe Jones an awful lot of money if you'll stand for that!"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Effort to Be Consistent.

"Thought you approved of the eight-hour law."

"I do approve of it."

"Then why do you want it repealed?"

"Well, even a law shouldn't be compelled to work overtime."

Regrets Inevitable.

He had proposed and been rejected.

"Very well," he said coldly, "there will come a time when your treatment of me will be regretted."

"I shall never regret it," she replied.

"Oh, I don't mean you," he returned. "I refer to the man whom you will finally accept."

State Pride in the Navy.

No method has yet been found to stimulate and keep naval enlistment up to full strength. The suggestion was made to Secretary of the Navy Daniels that state pride be used to encourage enlistment, that whenever a new ship is given the name of a state, the state so honored be expected to furnish a certain number of men for service on the new boat. Secretary Daniels, in replying to the suggestion, points out that it is impracticable to enlist men for service on a particular ship, but that steps have been taken to carry out the idea by establishing navy recruiting stations at all state capitals where such recruiting offices do not now exist. Effort will be made, too, to obtain the co-operation of state officials in the establishment of the new naval reserve. State pride and a spirit of friendly rivalry among the states should be made the fullest use of in keeping the navy's man power up to high-water mark.—Charlton Bates Strayer, in Leslie's.

That was a sure enough "Panhandle shower" for a while last Sunday. A "Panhandle shower", son, is a hard wind in dry weather that lifteth sand, gravel, rock, and boulders from the earth and lifteth barbs from the wire fences, and staples from fence posts, and lifteth hats from the heads of passers-by, mixes all into one conglomerated mess, and bloweth into the ears, nose, mouth and eyes of those who would gaze upon wind-lifted forbidden scenes of life. After a few hours of moaning, groaning, sighing, prying, trying, pushing, pulling, creaking, shrieking, shaking, quaking, howling, rocking and blowing from one direction, it turns around and blows like Fury from another direction. It is the only kind of shower, my son, that leaveth everything dryer than before. After such a shower sometimes, we are told, windmills have to be primed before they will pump water. The housewife liketh not such showers because the sand settleth on everything. To them we hereby impart a secret. When the wind starteth to blow open wide doors and windows and the sand will go on through without stopping.

"HEDLEYITES IN-VADE LAKEVIEW"

Last week the Lakeview Promoter came out with quite an article about Hedley invading Lakeview on Friday before. After making a nice mention of the boys and girls basket ball games played there, the Promoter then proceeded to knock on the play put on by the basket ball girls that night, and slams them good and hard like as if they had been a traveling show instead of just school girls. Also lays the blame for a "bum" moving picture show at Hedley's door, when Hedley is "not guilty."

We have always considered it a newspaper's duty to write up sorry traveling show troupes as they should be reported. The public is usually "gulled" on such shows and the sooner they are put out of business the better for the public.

But, when an editor jumps on and slams the home talent of a neighboring school, as the Promoter did in this case, the "what nerve" belongs to him.

The idea! Just a bunch of school girls who have never appeared in public except in home talent plays, being referred to a "show troupe." We wonder Dickson, if, since publishing the article, you have enough conscience left to feel any pang of remorse.

We have been informed that the Lakeview school trustees received 25 per cent of the proceeds derived from the "Southern Cinderella."

We are also aware of the fact that the "New Queen Circuit" is not a Hedley development, but is from Collingsworth county.

Surely the Promoter editor has not the old time Southern chivalry--else he would have had more regard for ladies--especially school girls--than to have criticized them as he did.

We also know that the "show troupe" was just girls of the basket ball team putting on the play to help bear expenses of the team.

We also know, that if the Promoter wants it, the girls will gladly refund his 25 cent that he coughed up for his "experience to reach its education."

We remember that Hedley and Lakeview school pupils have heretofore exchanged courtesies--Hedley playing at Lakeview and Lakeview at Hedley--and that the plays were put on by amateurs and not theatrical artists. And never has the Informer had anything to say that was not complimentary of Lakeview's plays. Also paid the cash to see their plays--which, we suspect, is what is ranking in Promoters breast.

We also notice in the Promoter of the same issue a program to be rendered this Friday night at Lakeview, the proceeds to go toward furnishing the Lakeview girls basket ball team with suits. Anytime you want to go somewhere with the play and basket ball team--come to Hedley and we'll guarantee you, and any of Lakeview's people, will be treated as royally as people can be treated, and should the play fall down the outside world will never learn of its failure through the Informer.

There are two highly important points for a man to consider before having his car overhauled.

The first point is to assure himself that the men who are going to work on the car are mechanics expert enough to locate and properly repair at the parts that need attention.

The second point is to convince himself that he can trust the shop to give him an honest accounting of the amount of work that was actually done on the car.

We gladly welcome an investigation on both of these points. We have the facilities, the workmen and the business methods that will more than satisfy all who investigate.

FALLING HAIR MEANS DANDRUFF IS ACTIVE Save Your Hair! Get a 25 Cent Bottle of Danderine Right Now—Also Stops Itching Scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its luster, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any store, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, luster and luxuriance which is so beautiful. LOSSES HIT FARMERS Cotton Growers Suffer by Inaccurate Grading of Staple.

Field Survey of Marketing in Representative Towns in Nine Principal Producing States of South and Southwest.

That losses to cotton growers in the United States probably reached seven and a half million dollars in 1913-14 because grades were not properly taken into account in the primary sales, and that in spite of a tendency toward improved conditions since the promulgation of the official cotton standards of the United States the losses due to inaccurate grading are still great.

The specialists point out that cotton producers themselves can have a large share in improving these conditions. The growers are urged to familiarize themselves with grades and to insist that the proper classification be given their bales by buyers.

Great Variations Found. The surveys conducted by the specialists showed great and inconsistent variations in prices paid for cotton of different grades.
