WOMAN'S NERVES MADE STRONG

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Winona, Minn.—"I suffered for more than a year from nervousness, and was so bad I could not rest at night—would lie awake and get so nervous I would have to get up and walk around and in the morning would be all tired out. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to make weak nerves strong."—Mrs. ALBERT SULTZ, 603 Olmstead St., Winona, Minn.

How often do we hear the expression among women, "I am so nervous, I cannot sleep," or "it seems as though I should fly." Such women should profit by Mrs. Sultz's experience and give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial.

For forty years it has been overcoming such serious conditions as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, dizziness, and nervous prostration of women, and is now considered the standard remedy for such ailments.

GEORGE WASHINGTON MEMORIAL BUILDING

By Rupert Hughes

TO Be Erected at the National Capital and Dedicated to Our Boys Who Have Fought, Suffered and Given Their Lives for the Freedom of the World.

MEN of '17 and '76! The men of 1917 have maintained the legacy left by the men of 1776, and have paid the debt incurred. The odd coincidence in numbers stands as the symbol of a real bond. Washington borrowed of France the men and the money that saved the day for the freedom of the colonies. Wilson sent back to France the men and the money that saved the day for the freedom of the nations. We repaid Lafayette with Pershing.

There is a universal eagerness to build a fitting memorial to the heroes of the war of wars. Monuments will spring up all over the United States to individual men, officers and organizations. But there is an insistent demand for one great national memorial.

The only place for it is, of course, the capital of the country, and Washington has been and will be in a large sense the capital of the world. No memorial will be appropriate which has not a lasting value and a dignity of usefulness as well as beauty and splendor. No statue or group of statues could be reared which would express what this memorial must express. No column of melted cannon, though it were made of steel barrels a mile high, would convey the message. An imperial arch would imply nothing more than a gateway for conquerors and would act simply as an obstruction to traffic.

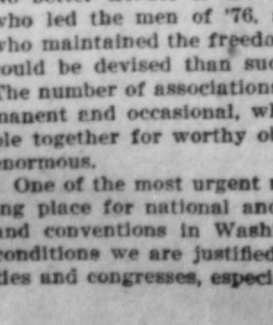

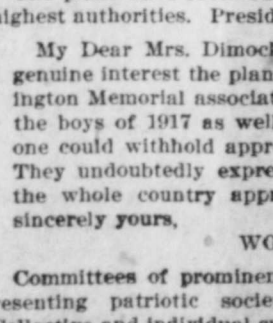

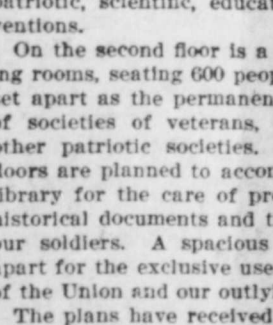

The right memorial must be a temple, a temple of architectural grandeur, a museum for statues, busts, tablets, archives and interesting relics, a place of daily resort, and a meeting place for national gatherings.

It is an amazing fact that Washington—the seat of our national government, the center of world activity, the mecca of congresses—has no large and dignified meeting place, no convention hall of any dimensions. The memorial described will therefore meet a pressing need.

What ideal should this memorial most vividly express? Of what religion should the temple be? Surely, the religion of freedom, of democracy, of equality, and of opportunity.

It should express the triumph of the ideals of Washington and the founders of this Republic as those ideals have spread through the world and united in the recent bloody victory over the spirit of autocracy.

By strange good fortune these ideals can be immediately realized. Construction can begin at once. Since George Washington would accept no money for his services to the nation two gifts were voted to him, one consisting of a sum in cash, which he disposed of as an endowment to the university now known as Washington and Lee; the other a number of stock certificates valued then at $25,000. The latter amount he set aside in his will to be used as a cumulative fund for the diffusion of knowledge. In the vicissitudes of time the stock he bequeathed lost its value and the dying wish of the father of his country seemed likely to remain forever unfulfilled.

ican architects. The committee of award selected from these a plan of such impressive beauty as to silence criticism. This majestic structure will be spacious enough to house a multitude. The main auditorium occupies a floor space of 38,500 square feet, with a gallery of 10,000 square feet, giving a seating capacity of 7,000 persons; it will furnish room for inaugural receptions, national and international conventions and conferences, orchestral concerts and celebrations. Several small halls are grouped about it to accommodate meetings of smaller bodies—military, patriotic, scientific, educational, and similar conventions.

On the second floor is a banquet hall with serving rooms, seating 600 people. Here also are rooms set apart as the permanent national headquarters of societies of veterans, of reserve officers and other patriotic societies. The third and fourth floors are planned to accommodate a museum and library for the care of precious relics, souvenirs, historical documents and the personal histories of our soldiers. A spacious chamber has been set apart for the exclusive use of each sovereign state of the Union and our outlying possessions.

The plans have received the indorsement of the highest authorities. President Wilson writes: My Dear Mrs. Dimock: I have noted with genuine interest the plans of the George Washington Memorial association for a memorial to the boys of 1917 as well as those of '76. No one could withhold approval from such plans. They undoubtedly express what the heart of the whole country approves. Cordially and sincerely yours, WOODROW WILSON.

Committees of prominent men and women representing patriotic societies are collaborating. Collective and individual subscriptions in large and small amounts are being received. Every child who contributes ten cents receives a button carrying the legend: "This pin means a brick in the memorial building." The name of each donor will be entered on the records.

Such a building is very much needed, and if erected would contribute very materially toward the process of conference, consultation, discussion, awakening of public interest and conscience, reconciliation of views, recognition of abuses—the process through which a great self-governing people works out its problems and reaches its results. No better tribute to the memory of Washington, who led the men of '76, and to our boys of '17, who maintained the freedom which he established, could be devised than such a national memorial. The number of associations and organizations, permanent and occasional, which seeks to bring people together for worthy objects in this country is enormous. One of the most urgent needs is a suitable meeting place for national and international societies and conventions in Washington. Under existing conditions we are justified in inviting large societies and congresses, especially those of an interna-

The Story of a Wonderful Recovery

There is hardly any one who does not experience some trouble with the stomach. It is so common that we frequently pay little or no attention to it. Yet, the stomach is very easily upset, and catarrhal inflammation of the mucous lining develops, grows worse—the pain and distress is incessant and the truth dawns that we have chronic stomach trouble.

The case of Mr. Louis Young, 205 Merrimac St., Rochester, N. Y., is typical. He writes: "I suffered for thirty years with chronic bowel trouble, stomach trouble and hemorrhages of the bowels. We bought a bottle of Peruna and I took it faithfully. I began to feel better. My wife persuaded me to continue and I did for some time as directed. Now I am a well man." Mr. Young's experience is not unusual.

If you suffer from catarrh in any form, whether of the head, stomach, bowels or any other part of the body, try Peruna. It may be just what you need. CHAPTER XXXII.

The White Night.

"Lord, I'm tired," groaned Rickard, stumbling into camp, wet to the skin. "Don't you say letters to me, Mac. I'm going to bed. Tell Ling I don't want any dinner. He'll want to fuss up something. I don't want to see food."

The day, confused and jumbled, burned across his eyeballs; a turmoil of bustle and hurry of insurrection. He had made a swift stand against that. He was to be minded to the last man-jack of them, or anyone would go, his threat including the engineers, Silent, Irish, Wooster, Hardin himself. This was no time for factions, for leader feeling.

In bed, the day with its irritations fell away. He could see now the step ahead that had been taken; the last trestle was done; the rock-pouring well on; he called that going some! He felt pleasantly languid, but not yet sleepy. His thoughts wandered over the resting camp. And then Innes Hardin came to him.

Not herself, but as a soft little thought which came creeping around the corner of his dreams. She had been there, of course, all day, tucked away in his mind, as though in his home waiting for him to come back to her, weary from the pricks of the day. The way he would come home to her, please God, some day. Not hearing his burdens to her, he did not believe in that, but asking her diversions. Contentment spread her soft wings over him. He fell asleep.

Rickard awakened as to a call. What had startled him? He listened, raising himself by his elbow. From a distance, a sweet high voice, unreal in its pitch and thrilling quality, came to him. It was Godfrey, somewhere on the levee, singing by the river. It brought him again to Innes Hardin. He pulled aside his curtain which hung over the screening of his tent and looked out into a moon-flooded world. Rickard's eyes fell on a little tent over yonder, a white shrine. "White as that fine sweet soul of hers!"

Wandering into the night, Godfrey passed down the river, singing. His voice, the footlights, the listening great audiences were calling to him. To him, the moon-flooded levee, the glistening water, made a star-set scene. He was treading the boards, the rushing waters by the bank gave the orchestration for his melody—"La Donna e Mobile." He began it to Gerty Hardin; she would hear it in her tent; she would take it as the tender reproach he had teased her with that afternoon in the ramada.

He gave for encore a ballad long forgotten; he had pulled it back from the cobwebs of two decades; he had made it his own.

"But, my darling, you will be, ever young and fair to me."

It came, the soaring voice, to Tom Hardin, outside Gerty's tent on his lonely cot. He knew that song. Disinherited by his wife, a pretty figure a man cuts! If his wife can't stand him, who can? He wasn't good enough for her. He was rough. His life had kept him from fitting himself to her taste. She needed people who could talk like Rickard, sing like Godfrey. People, other people, might misconstrue her preferences. He knew they were not flirtations; she needed her kind. She would always keep straight; she was straight as a whip. Life was as hard for her as it was for him; he could feel sorry for her; his pity was divided between the two of them, the husband, the wife, both lonely in their own way.

On the other side of the canvas walls, Gerty Hardin lay listening to the message meant for her. The fickle sex, he had called hers; no constancy in woman, he had declared, fondling her hair. He had tried to coax her into pledges, pledges which were also disavowals to the man outside. Silver threads! Age shuddered at her threshold. She hated that song. Cruel, life had been to her; none of its promises had been kept. To be happy, why, that was a human's birthright; grab it, that was her creed! There was a chance yet; youth had not gone. He was singing it to her, her escape—"Darling, you will be, ever young and fair to me."

Godfrey, singing to Gerty Hardin, had awakened the camp. Innes, in her tent, too, was listening. "Darling, you will be, ever young and fair to me!"

So that is the miracle, that wild rush of certain feeling! Yesterday, doubting, tomorrow, more doubts—but tonight, the song, the night isolated them, herself and Rickard, into a world of their own. Life with him on any terms she wanted.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

The Battle in the Night.

Gathering on the bank were the camp groups to watch the last stand of the river against the rock bombardment. Molly Silent had crept down from the Crossing, full of fears. Out there, somewhere on the trestles, on one of those rock cars, was her Jim. She sat on the bank by Innes and Mrs. Marshall.

Mrs. Hardin, floated by in her crisp muslins. A few feet behind stalked Godfrey, his eyes on the pretty figure by his side. Innes turned from his look, abashed as though she had been peering through a locked door.

Gayly, with a fluttering of ruffles, Gerty established herself on the bank, a trifle out of hearing distance. A hard little smile played on the lips accented with Parisian rouge. The childish expression was gone; her look accused life of having trifled with her. But they would see—

"Don't look so unhappy, dearest," whispered the man at her side. "I'm going to make you happy, dear!"

She flushed a brilliant, finished smile at him. Yes, she was proud of him. He satisfied her sense of romance, or would, later, when she was away from here, a dull pain pricking at her deliberate planning. Godfrey found her young, young and distracting. His life had been hungry, too; the wife, up there in Canada somewhere, had never understood him. Godfrey was ambitious, ambitious as she was. She would be his wife; she would see the cities of the world with him, the welcomed wife of Godfrey; she would share the plaudits his wonderful voice won.

His eyes were on her now, she knew, questioning, not quite sure of her. She had worried him yesterday because she would not pledge herself to marry him if he sued for his divorce. She had told him to ask her that after the courts had set him free. She could not have him sure of her.

An exclamation from him recalled her. She found that he was no longer staring at her; his eyes were fixed on the trembling structure over which a "battleship," laden with rock, was creeping.

"I want to stay with you, you know that dearest. But it doesn't feel right to see them all working like niggers and me loafing here. You don't mind?" Oh, no, Gerty did not mind! She was tired, anyway! She was going back to her tent!

He thrust a yellow paper into her hands. "I sent that off today. Perhaps you will be glad?"

She flung another of her inscrutable smiles at him, and went up the bank, the paper unread in her hands.

The long afternoon wore away. They were now dynamiting the largest rocks on the cars before unloading them. The heavy loads could not be emptied quickly enough. Not dribbled, the rock, but dumped simultaneously, else the gravel and rock might be washed down stream faster than they could be put together. Many cars must be unloaded at once; the din on Silent's train was terrific. His crew looked like devils, drenched from the spray which rose from the river each time the rock-pour began; blackened by the smoke from the belching engine. The river was ugly in its wrath. It was humbling itself for its final stand against the absurdity of human intention; its yellow tail swished through the bents of the trestle.

The order came for more speed. Rickard moved from bank to raft; knee deep in water, screaming orders through the din; directing the gangs; speeding the rock trains. Hardin oscillated between the levee and dams, taking orders, giving orders. His energy was superb. It had grown dark, but no one yet had thought of the lights, the great Wells' burners stretched across the channel. Suddenly, the lights flared out brightly.

Not one of those who labored or watched would ever forget that night. The spirit of recklessness entered even into the stolid native. The men of the Reclamation forgot this was not their enterprise; the Hardin faction jumped to Rickard's orders. The watchers on the bank sat tense, thrilled out of recognition of aching muscles, or the midnight creeping chill. No one would go home.

To Innes, the struggle was vested in two men, Rickard running down yonder with that light foot of his, and Hardin with the fighting mouth tense. And somewhere, she remembered, working with the rest, was Estrada. Those three were fighting for the justification of a vision—an idea was at stake, a hope for the future.

Rickard passed and repassed her. And had not seen her! Not during those hours would he think of her, not until the idea failed, or was triumphant, would he turn to look for her.

Visibly, the drama moved toward its climax. Before many hours passed the river would be captured or the idea forever mocked. Each time a belching engine pulled across time hazardous track it flung a credit to the man-side. Each time the waters, slowly rising, hurried their weight against the creaking trestles where the rock was thin, a point was gained by the militant river. Its roar sounded like the last cry of a wounded animal in Innes' ear; the Dragon was a reality that night as it spent its rage against the shackles of puny men.

Molly Silent had seen her husband's train pull in. She watched for it to go out again. The whistle blew twice.

Something was wrong. She left her place in time to see Silent, his face shining ghastly pale under the soot, pull himself up from the "battleship" where he had been leaning. Estrada, sent by Rickard to find out why the train did not pull out, saw him the same instant as did Molly. Silent swayed, waving them back unseeing, like a man who is drunk.

"God, man, you can't go like that!" cried Estrada. "Who's going?" demanded Silent, his tongue thick with thirst and exhaustion. The whistle blew again. "I will!" The train moved out on the trestle, as the whistle blew angrily twice. Only Molly and Silent saw Es-he'll ever have." He turned a minute later to see his chief standing bare-headed. His own cap came off.

"We're burying the lad," said Marshall.

The minute of funeral had to be pushed aside. The river would not wait. Train after train was rushed on to the trestles; wave after wave hit them. But perceptibly the dam was staidening. The rapid fire of rock was telling.

Another ridge of yellow waters rose. The roll of water came slowly, dwindling as it came; it broke against the trestle weakly. For the first time the trestle wavered. Workers and watchers breathed as a unit the first deep breath that night. There was a change. Every eye was on the river where it touched the rim of the dam. Suddenly a chorused cry rose. The river had stopped rising. The whistles screamed themselves hoarse.

And then a girl, sitting on the bank, saw two men grab each other by the hand. She was too far away to hear their voices, but the sun, rising red through the banks of smoke, fell on the blackened faces of her brother and Rickard. She did not care who saw her crying.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

A Desertion.

When the afternoon waned and Godfrey did not call on her Gerty was roused to uneasiness. Had she angered him by refusing to make the definite promise? Could it be love, the sort of love she wanted, if he could stay away like this when they could have in every minute? Their last chance and Godfrey slighting it!

He would surely come that evening, knowing that she would be alone! The little watch Tom had given her for an almost forgotten birthday set the pace for her resentment. Nine, ten, eleven! How dared he treat her so? She blew out the lamps when she found that she was shaking with anger and undressed in the dark. She could not see him, if he came now, her self-control all gone! But she could not go to bed. She stood in her darkened tent, shaken by her angry passions.

Suppose that he were only trifling with her? What was that paper he had thrust in her hand? With a candle she found the yellow paper. It was a copy of a telegram to Godfrey's lawyer. "Start divorce proceedings at once. Any grounds possible. Back soon, Godfrey."

The frightened blood resumed its normal flow. If he had done this for her then she had not lost him. An apparent elopement, why had she never thought of that before? That would cement their bond. Her scruples could grow on the road. Oh, she could manage Godfrey! She would go with him. She remembered that she must go to bed if she were to have any looks in the morning.

When Godfrey came to her next afternoon, pent, refreshed after a long morning's sleep, he found a charming hostess. She was shy about his telegram. Enchantingly distant when he tried to reach her hand!

"I can't go without you," he cried. He had discovered her interpretation of his telegram and it delighted him; he began to believe in his own intention. "I know. You shrink from it all. You dread the steps that will free you. You need me beside you to help you. Let's cut the knot. Tonight!"

"Not tonight. Maybe tomorrow," whispered Gerty, and then she managed a few tears and he was allowed to kiss her. It was all arranged before he left the ramada. They were to leave together the next day. Her object would be accomplished by their leaving together. He would feel that he owed her his name.

Of course Gerty must do it in the conventional way! She would have used rope ladders had they been needed. The conventional note was pinned to her bureau scarf.

Innes was with Tom when he found it. They came in together from the river. Neither had noticed the odd looks from the men as they passed through the encampment. A dozen men had seen Hardin's wife leave for the North with Godfrey.

Gerty's letter told Tom that it was all over. She had tried to stand it, to be true even through his cruelty, but a feeling stronger than she was made her true to herself, and so true as last to him!

Innes' revulsion lacked speech. The common blatter sickened her. She could offer no comfort. His eyes told her it was worse than death. He struck off her hand when it touched his shoulder. Gerty's hand had coerced him that way. He was done with softness.

His silence oppressed her. This was a man she did not know; inarticulate, smitten. She told herself that even a sister was an intruder—but she was afraid to leave him alone. She took a station by her own tent door. She would not go down to dinner. For hours she watched his tent. When it grew dark she could no longer endure it. She found him where she had left him.

cano's edge; and the swift eruption scorched her. It was the pitiable wreck of dignity, of pride. His words were incoherent; his wrath involved his sister, crouching in tears. Innes shrank from him, the man she did not know. The coarse streak was uncovered in all its repulsiveness. He turned on Innes suddenly. She was crying, a huddled heap on the couch.

"I've had enough crying—between you and Gerty. Will you get out? I've got to have some sleep."

Through her sobs he could make out that she was afraid to leave him. "Well, then, I'll go. I'm used to having to leave my own tent. A dog's life." He flung out into the night.

CHAPTER XXXV.

A Corner of His Heart.

The second evening after the closure Rickard was dining with the Marshalls in their car. The Palmyra was to pull out the next day. Hardin's name was brought up by Tod Marshall. "She was light potatoes," he dismissed the woman. "But she's broken the man's spirit."

Rickard, it was discovered, had nothing to say on the subject of the elopement.

"I'm sorry his sister is not here tonight," began Marshall mischievously. "I did ask her, Tod" Claudia hastened to interrupt her lord. "But she would not leave her brother her last evening."

"Her last evening?" exclaimed Rickard. "Is she going away?" Marshall subdued his twinkle. "We are carrying her off. She is to visit Mrs. Marshall while I am on the road."

Rickard gulped down his coffee, boiling. "Mrs. Marshall, will you let me run away early? Why should he give any excuse? They knew what he was running away for!" He made his way to the little white tent on the far side of the trapezium. Innes, by the door, was bidding goodbye to Senora Maldonado.

He forgot to greet the Mexican. She stood waiting; her eyes full of him. Surely, the kind senior had something to say to her? He had taken the white girl's hand. He was staring into the white girl's eyes. Something came to her, a memory like forgotten music. Silently, she slipped away into the night.

Rickard would not release Innes' hand; her eyes could not meet the look in his.

"Come out and have a walk with me! You were not going to tell me you were going. You were running away from me?"

"You know that I love you! I have been waiting for this minute, this woman, all these lonely years."

Her head she kept turned from him. He could not see the little maternal smile that ran around the curves of her mouth. Those years, filled to the brim with stern work, had not been lonely. Lonely moments he had had, that was all.

"Nothing for me?" He stopped, and made her face him, by taking both of her hands in his.

She would not look at him yet, would not meet the look which always compelled her will, stultified her speech. She had something to say first.

"We don't know each other; that is, you don't know me!"

"Is that all? There was relief in his voice. "I don't know you! Haven't I seen you day by day? Haven't I seen your self-control tried, proved—haven't I seen your justice, when you could not understand— Look at me!" She shook her head, her eyes on the sand at her feet. He could scarcely catch her words. They did not know each other. He did not know her!

love red or blue, that's a fact; Basen or Rostand; heat or cold. Does that matter? I know you!"

An upward glance had caught him smiling. Her speech was routed. "I'm—the—only girl here!"

"Do you think that's why I love you?"

"Ah, but you loved Gerty!" That slipped from her. She had not meant to say that!

"Does that hurt?" Abashed by her own daring, yet she was glad she had dared. She wanted him to deny it. For he would deny it? She wondered if he were angry, but she could not look at him.

The minutes, dragging like weighted hours, told her that he was not going to answer her. It came to her then that she would never know whether Gerty's story were wholly false, or partly true. She knew, then, that no wedding, wife's or sweetheart's, would tease that story from him. It did not belong to him.

His silence frightened her into articulativeness. He must not think that she was foolish! It was not that, in itself, she meant. The words justified one another in their soft swift rush. He—he had made a mistake once before. He had liked the sort of woman he had thought Gerty was. She herself was not like the real Gerty any more than she was like the other, the woman that did not exist. He would find that they did not think alike, believe alike, that there were differences—

"Aren't you making something out of nothing, Innes?"

"That voice could always chide her into silence! Her speech lay cluttered in ruins, her words like useless broken bricks falling from the wall she was building."

He took her hand and led her to a pile of rock the river had not eaten. He pulled her down beside him.

"Isn't it true, with us?"

"It is, with me," breathed Innes. Their voices were low as though they were in church.

"And you think it isn't, with me?" Rickard stood before her. "Is it because I trust you, I wonder? That I, loving you, love to have the others love you, too? Don't you suppose I know how it is with the rest, Mac-Lean; how it was with Estrada?"

Should I be jealous? Why, I'm not. I'm proud! Isn't that because I know you, know the fine steady heart of you? You hated me at first—and I am proud of that. I don't love you enough?" He knelt at her feet, not listening to her pleading. He bent down and kissed one foot; then the other. "I love them!" The face he raised to her Innes had never seen before. He pressed a kiss against her knee. "That, too! It's mine. I've not said my prayers since I was a boy. I shall say them again, here, you teaching me." His kisses ran up her arm, from the tips of her limp fingers. His mouth, close to hers, stopped there. He whispered:

"You—kiss me, my girl!"

Slowly, unseeing, as though drawn by an external will, her face raised to his; slowly, their lips met. His arms were around her; the world was blotted out.

Innes, minutes later, put her mouth against his ear. It was the Innes he did not know, that he had seen with others, mischievous, whimsical, romping as a young boy.

"I love—red," she whispered. "And heat and sunshine. But I love blue, on you; and cold, if it were with you—and the rest of the differences—"

He caught her to him. "There are not going to be any differences!"

(THE END.)

Biblical Town of Gaza.
Al-Mintar, or the watchtower, still exists to the east of the town of Gaza. It is where Samson is said to have carried the gates of the city. On the road from Gaza to Jaffa are ancient olive trees, many of them more than one thousand years old, with gnarled bark and immense trunks. There is an old legend which credits Gaza with the invention of the first mechanical clock. These were perhaps the sand clocks which are still used in some mosques.

Little Things Cause Sunshine.
The sunshine of life is made up of very little beams that are bright all the time. To give up something, when giving up will prevent unhappiness; to yield, when persisting will chafe and fret others; to go a little around rather than come against another; to take an ill look or a cross word quietly, rather than resent or return it—these are the ways in which clouds and storms are kept off, and a pleasant and steady sunshine secured.—Aiken.

Beginning of Pittsburgh.
November 25 is the anniversary of the raising of the English flag over the ruins of Fort Duquesne in 1754. The place was then named Pittsburgh, in honor of Britain's famous prime minister. It owes its great growth to its proximity to coal and iron fields of vast magnitude.

Akers.

Miss Jessie J. Davis of Hedley is spending the week with her friend, Miss Ruby Witt.

The parties at the homes of Mrs. Tom Johnson last Thursday night and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Washam Friday night were much enjoyed by large crowds.

LIGHTS FOR HEDLEY

T. S. Kemp, Clarendon Delco Light Man, and a representative of the main office of this product have been in Hedley two or three days the past week in an endeavor to interest our city council in putting in a light and power plant for Hedley.

The Delco Light, although comparatively new in this section has proven its superiority, and gives entire satisfaction wherever used. It is said the company has a very attractive contract which it is offering to towns and cities that install its plants, and the Informer would like to see the Hedley council give the matter careful consideration. There is no doubt that we need a light and power plant, and if one can be installed on terms that will allow it to pay for itself, we see no good reason why it should not be done.

As for Mr. Kemp, the Informer can vouch for him; the fact that he recommends the Delco Light is all the recommendation it needs to those who know him.

Let's get on the progressive band wagon and have lights and power in Hedley.

Eccentric Stranger.
"A quaint sort of feller came along here yesterday in a motorcar and stopped in front of the gate," related Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "He asked if he could get a drink of water, and I said: 'I reckon.' He wanted to know if I could tell him how fur it was to Tunilville, and I said I reckon I could. Next he asked how many children I had, and I told him I reckoned there was 14. He inquired if it was going to rain, and I answered that I reckoned it was. "Then he grinned at me and says:

"This seems to be the day of reckoning," and I said: 'What say?' just like that.
"He grinned again and driv on. Something sorter funny about that feller, and still he didn't 'pear to be pericely crazy. Mebbe he was one of them German properganders, or some thing."—Judge.

Adversity sometimes brings a man's good points out by the roots.
If a man cultivates bad habits he is apt to cultivate earthly miseries.

THE MOST DANGEROUS OF ALL DISEASES

No organs of the human body are so important to health and long life as the kidneys. When they slow up and commence to lag in their duties, look out! Danger is in sight.
Find out what the trouble is—without delay. Whenever you feel nervous, weak, dizzy, suffer from sleeplessness, or have pains in the back, wake up at once. Your kidneys need help. These signs warn you that your kidneys are not performing their functions properly. They are only half doing their work and are allowing impurities to accumulate and be converted into uric acid and other poisons which are causing you distress and will destroy you unless they are driven from your system.

What He Could Do.
A good old Quaker was milking a cow whose lively disposition had often taxed his patience severely. The pail was nearly full of foaming milk, when in some manner the cow managed to overturn it. The old man in righteous indignation snatched up a nearby club to strike the exasperating animal when he remembered the precepts of his religion.
He dropped the stick, and in a voice trembling with anger said:
"I may not beat thee, neither may,

I kick thee, but—I will twist thy durn tall!"—Everybody's Magazine.
Children's handkerchiefs often look hopeless when they come to the laundry. Wash with good soap, rinse in water blued with Red Cross Ball Blue.
A woman raves over her new springs and her husband raves over the bill for it.
Good resolutions are about the only buried treasures men have.

Constipated Children Gladly Take "California Syrup of Figs"

For the Liver and Bowels

Tell your druggist you want genuine "California Syrup of Figs." Full directions and dose for babies and children of all ages who are constipated, bilious, feverish, tongue-coated, or full of cold, are plainly printed on the bottle. Look for the name "California" and accept no other "Fig Syrup."

Graceful Evening Wraps

An evening wrap, to be worn with a variety of evening dresses, may be in a color, but cannot exceed, and rarely equals, a wrap of black satin for elegance and good style. Therefore the evening wrap of black satin is a perennial that comes to bloom with each new season; an institution in the wardrobe.
There are some new weaves in silk, very soft and rich, that have a luster as high as that of satin, and they are competing with it for favor in evening wraps. There is not much choice between them, as they are very much alike in appearance. The new fabrics have the advantage of novelty, while satin has a wonderful record behind it, but whatever the fabric, the styles in wraps made from them are the same.
This season's evening wraps are long and ample, capelike affairs that narrow at the ankles and are as wide as the body. To fulfill their destiny they must be sumptuous looking and graceful. Many of the new models have voluminous collars and some of them have short sleeves.

A beautiful example of the black satin wrap appears in the illustration. It is a loose, short cape with a shawl collar, to which the body of the wrap is joined by an embroidered band. The band is narrow with figures in brilliant colors that remind one of jewels. The same colors are used in the large embroidered disks that adorn the wrap at each side of the front. Even a very youthful bride will be regal looking in a wrap of this kind, especially if she wears a crest of plumes in her hair like Guinevere of old.

Pretty and Practical Negligees

When negligees come up for consideration in the bride's trousseau it is hard to be in the least degree practical. There is so much latitude for this most intimate dress that designers can give free rein to fancy and let it play with the ancient fabrics, the finest laces, crepes and nets, the gayest ribbons and all the lovely little silk and satin finesses that lure them to extravagances. They indulge in many caprices and draw inspiration from all quarters of the world. But there are negligees that are practical as well as pretty and two of them are shown in the picture above.

georgette, and a coatee, in which crepe and plain and printed silks are all combined in a novel way. It has an effect of angel sleeves made by extending the crepe, which forms the short front of the coat, into floating draperies at the back. A silk cord, sometimes put on in loops and sometimes straight, finishes the edges of the crepe and three strands of this cord, are prettily arranged about the neck.

One of these is a simple, graceful garment, which is very much like the regulation Japanese kimono. But it follows the lines of the figure more closely and has sleeves that are set in, with a point at the top and all seams outlined with a narrow fancy braid. The length of the figure is not broken by a wide sash, as in the Japanese garment, but a narrow grille of satin defines the waistline. This negligee is made of bright-colored satin and cannot be improved upon for a lounging robe.
The negligee at the right of the picture has a plaited skirt which is made either of a thin silk or of crepe

Rhinestone Rage is With Us.
An evening gown of monochrome red satin is trimmed with narrow bands of pale blue velvet spangled with small rhinestones that glitter lights in red and white and purple. These bands tell the story of the rhinestone rage in garnishing dinner gowns, theater party gowns and wraps—and even the toilettes for demure afternoon teas.

Colored Hose is Demand.
Owing to the number of different colors in the new lines of woman's shoes, the demand for colored silk hosiery has been greatly increased.

AN ALL-AROUND SAVING

Thanks to the War, housewives have been given some unforgettable lessons in common sense. Minute saving and penny saving have gained new significance.
One vital economy which has impressed itself upon thousands of practical women is quick breads—the new and better way of supplying the staff of life, always recognized as more essential than bullets.

While the pre-war methods which so frequently suggested the use of yeast were far ahead of the pre-historic practices of soaking grain in water until softened, then making into a paste and baking into a hard, granite cake, the necessity of using baking powder with substitute flours in the various war recipes has antiquated the old, slow, cumbersome methods which for centuries have handicapped cooks, without sacrificing taste, texture or technique.
Quick breads mean a saving of time and when made of high-grade ingredients are also of better quality and more economical.

The use of baking powder prevents a continuous loss of a small percentage of flour from which there is no escape when yeast is used.
One of my friends writes of her experiences and how she was won over to the new way as follows:

"Through my desire to 'Save Food and Help Win the War,' I became interested in an unusual advertisement for Calumet Baking Powder in which it was claimed that dough left over from the evening meal could be placed in the refrigerator and used for breakfast biscuits with gratifying results.
"Early training had taught me to consider yeast as the only leavening element worthy of my time and trouble in baking. I laid aside my prejudices and was delighted to find the problems which formerly worried me are now so easy, and today seem almost unreal. I am filled with a new zeal to cook since I gained the help of this time-saving product."
Even though the world is again following peaceful pursuits, the purchase power of a penny is much less than it was a few years ago. Housewives can only meet this unusual condition by heeding the lessons which the War has taught them, including the tests that have proven the folly of judging values by outward appearances, such as the size of the package or looking at quantity rather than quality, etc., for example—a 10-cent can of Calumet will furnish more leavening than the Big Can of double its size of some cheap mixture, manufactured by hazardous methods.—Adv.

FOR TIGHTNESS IN THE CHEST

Thedford's Black-Draught, Says Kentucky Lady, is Excellent For Breaking Up a Cold.

Elgin, Ky.—Mrs. Albert Albright, who has lived here many years, says: "I use Black-Draught as a laxative. It is splendid for breaking up colds. I have used it for a bad cold and tightness in the chest. One cup of good warm tea made from Black-Draught I found most helpful. It makes the liver act and gives almost instant relief."
This spring my little daughter began having chills, the hard, shaking kind. After the chills her fever would rise and her head would ache. We are a good way from the doctor, so I just began giving her good doses of Black-Draught and it cured her. She is in good health, has a good color, and her appetite is all right. So of course we consider Black-Draught as unsurpassed for a family medicine."

Don't wait until you have headache, sick stomach, indigestion, or other disagreeable symptoms, but take an occasional dose of Black-Draught to help keep your system free from poison, your body in good health.
Made from purely vegetable ingredients, Black-Draught acts in a gentle, natural way, and has no bad after-effects. It may be safely taken by young and old.

WHEN BUYING ASPIRIN ALWAYS SAY "BAYER"

Ask for "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" in a Bayer package—marked with "Bayer Cross."

Don't buy Aspirin tablets in a pill box. Insist on getting the Bayer package with the safety "Bayer Cross" on both package and on tablets. No other way!

You must say "Bayer." Never ask for merely Aspirin tablets. The name "Bayer" means you are getting the genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin," proven safe by millions of people.

Beware of counterfeits! Only recently a Brooklyn manufacturer was sent to the penitentiary for flooding the country with talcum powder tablets, which he claimed to be Aspirin.

In the Bayer package are proper directions and the dose for Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Colds, Grippe, Influenza-Colds, Neuritis and pain generally.

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin," American made and owned, are sold in vest pocket boxes of 12 tablets, which cost only a few cents, also in bottles of 24 and bottles of 100—also capsules. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

Danger in Abbreviation.
 Even the school nurse has her fun. In a talk before the central philanthropic council the other day, Miss Helen R. Stewart of the board of health told of one little boy who, after he had been examined by the nurse, went to the teacher in tears, complaining that the nurse called him names.

When the teacher expressed her surprise, the boy sought to prove his case by handing her the card the nurse had given to him as her record of the examination.

"Look at that!" he cried.
 "Poor nut," read the card.
 "Poor nutrition," explained the teacher, finally sending the child away with a better opinion of the nurse.—Dallas News.

Von Tirpitz a Pauper.
 The Tribune de Geneve is informed that Grand Admiral von Tirpitz is staying at Wildegg, Switzerland, as the guest of Lieut.-Colonel Wille, son of the former commander-in-chief of the Swiss army.

Tirpitz has lost all his fortune. His son is a clerk in a bank at Zurich, and his daughter is a governess in a Zurich family.

To avoid paying the German war tax of 1913 Tirpitz invested his money in Italian securities, with the result that he is now penniless. What a patriot!

Information Needs Confirmation.
 "Old Dorsey Dudgeon prides himself on knowing where the conflagration is as soon as he hears the fire-bell ring," related the landlord of the Petunia tavern.

"By the time half a dozen whangs have changed he has scrambled into a garment or two and is out on his front porch, hollering to the people running by just where he knows the fire is."

"He should be of considerable assistance to the volunteer firemen and others in sending them in the proper direction," commented the interested guest.

"Eh-yah! He would be if he didn't nine times out of ten know it wrong." Kansas City Star.

Glossing Over the Facts.
 "Pa, what is a euphemism?"
 "I'll have to explain that by giving you an example, son."

"Yes, pa."
 "The dictionary says a euphemism is 'a figure of speech by which a word or phrase more agreeable or less offensive is substituted for one more accurately expressive of what is meant,' as in the case of the society reporter who states that a widow who has been married three or four times is 'led to the altar' by a wealthy old codger who never had the slightest notion of getting married until he faced the preacher."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

NEW QUEEN AT BELTSVILLE

Calamity Wayne Pauline II Completes Year Test, Producing Eleven Tons of Milk.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A new queen reigns in the herd of Holsteins on the government experiment farm at Beltsville, Md. She is as unassuming and peace loving as any of her subjects, although she bears the name Calamity Wayne Pauline II, and has just completed a test in which she produced in a year more than 11 tons of milk. In 365 days she produced 22,547.8 pounds of milk which averaged 3.805 per cent butter fat, the total fat being 855.4 pounds.

This animal was selected by dairy specialists of the United States department of agriculture from a Michigan herd in July, 1917. She was brought to the Beltsville farm, where she produced a heifer calf, and was started on her test December 7, 1917, at the age of eight years. The test was run through the coldest winter that section had experienced in 40 years, and a summer that was extremely hot. The test for advanced registry was conducted under the rules of the Holstein-Friesian association. During the year the animal was handled by two different herdsmen.

A son of Calamity Wayne Pauline II has been placed at one of the government substations, and one of her half-sisters is making a fine record at the Michigan Agricultural college. Calamity's 305-day record was 19,256.4 pounds of milk, averaging 3.7 per cent butter fat, making a total of 718.13 pounds of fat.

All the dairy cattle on the Beltsville farm are used for experimental purposes, and will be given at least two advanced registry tests to determine their capacity for production.

SUPERVISE PURITY OF MILK

List of Equipment Necessary to Furnish Laboratory Is Sent Out by Dairy Division.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A letter has been sent by the dairy division of the United States department of agriculture to 1,500 health officers in cities having over 5,000 population urging the city governments to supply the health officers with proper laboratory equipment so they can adequately guard the city milk supply. A health department without a laboratory equipment is as helpless as a soldier without arms, says the letter. A city government has no right to hold its health department responsible for the health of the community unless it has provided the department with the equipment necessary to wage the fight against disease.

The work of supervising the safety, cleanliness and purity of its city milk supply is one of the most important duties of the modern health department. Bacteria, dirt, added water and preservatives in milk cannot be determined without chemical and bacteriological apparatus. The letter gives a list of the equipment necessary to furnish a laboratory for milk analysis.

DAIRY COW MOST PROFITABLE

Animal Never Fails to Return Profit for Feed and Care—Keep Her Comfortable.

The dairy cow is the most profitable animal on the farm if rightly managed, as, under ordinary conditions, she never fails to return a profit for her care and feed, if she is given the right kind of food and just the right quantity. If she is underfed, her product will be correspondingly small, and if she is overfed, she will be unhealthy. Feed the cow just right, keep her quiet and comfortable, and she will be equal in value to the goose that laid golden eggs.

COOKING GRAINS FOR COWS

Act Does Not Ordinarily Add Much to Palatability—May Decrease Digestibility.

While some unpalatable feeds may be consumed by dairy cows in larger quantities if they are cooked, the cooking does not ordinarily add much to the palatability of the grains and may even decrease their digestibility.

The Flow of Meat

Two-thirds of the live stock in the United States has to be raised in the West.

One-half of the consumers of meat live in the East.

In other words, most of the live stock is one or two thousand miles distant from most of the people who need it in the form of food.

Fifty years ago, when live stock was raised close to every consuming center, the country butcher could handle the job after a fashion.

But the job got too big.

Now millions of animals have to be moved hundreds of miles to millions of people. Somewhere on the way they have to be turned into meat.

The packers solved the problem. They set up plants where the "live haul" and the "meat haul" were in the right balance. They built up distributing systems—refrigerator cars, refrigerating plants, branch houses. They saved time, money and meat everywhere. The stockraiser benefited in better markets and higher prices; the consumer, in better meat and lower prices.

As the country grew, the packers had to grow, or break down. Because of its present size and efficiency, Swift & Company is able to perform its part in this service at a fraction of a cent per pound profit.

$16,000 for EV'RY HUNDRED INVESTED

Is what the Fowler Farm Oil Company paid its stockholders. The Fowler was a Rank WILDCAT with only 300 acres, yet when the Golden Sands were tapped every stockholder was made immensely wealthy; from this lonely Wildcat has sprung the Wonder Pool of the World---BURKBURNETT.

HUNDREDS OF MILLIONS of dollars have changed hands, thousands of men have been made rich. Burkburnett, ten months ago a little country town of less than 1000 inhabitants, is today the center of the oil world, with a population of 20,000. It seems so like a fairy story, yet we know it is true. It is but the history of an oil field, following a big discovery. If in your mind you are able to calculate the immense wealth developed in Wichita county in the past ten months, please remember it is all but the fruits of the lonely Wild Cat out among the sand hills of Red River near Burkburnett. To W. L. Fowler, and his Wild Cat, must be given the credit of bringing to Wichita county those hundreds of thousands of investors and those hundreds of millions of dollars.

THE BUCK CREEK OIL COMPANY IS ANOTHER WILD CAT. We claim nothing else. But in our wildest wildcat dreams, we can be no WILDER than was the Fowler Farm Wild Cat ten months ago. Yet how much greater the opportunity for gain.

THE BUCK CREEK OIL COMPANY, WITH ITS 10,000 ACRES surrounding its deep test, together with large acreage near several other deep tests now drilling, offers to the public the BIGGEST, the BEST and the RICHEST WILD CAT opportunity ever placed before the investing public. How often in your minds have you said: "If I could have had the opportunity to put a hundred dollars in FOWLER." But when a better opportunity seeks you—is now knocking at your door—you hesitate.

Here are some of the facts as to WHO, WHERE AND WHAT the Buck Creek Oil Company is:

OUR CAPITAL IS $100,000, divided into 10,000 shares at $10.00 each. Experience, observation and common sense teaches us that a large majority of the Wild Cat

Oil Companies blow up, and accomplish absolutely nothing, on account of not having sufficient capital with which to do the work. They must either pull up pegs and quit or else sell off the company's holdings in order to meet the necessary expenses. We have chosen a better way. We have made our capital sufficiently large to enable us to give our stockholders a sure enough deep test. We are going to the bottom.

WE HAVE BOUGHT AND WILL OWN OUR OWN MACHINERY. A new heavy Standard Outfit complete. Ours will be the Biggest and Best Drilling Outfit in North Texas. The derrick timbers are now on the ground, awaiting the rig iron which has been shipped with the other machinery, and should be here within the next few days.

WE HAVE SECURED ACREAGE NEAR ALL THE OTHER DEEP TESTS now drilling in our country, and will endeavor to secure acreage near other deep tests to be put down, just as soon as their locations are made.

IT IS OUR INTENTION TO MAKE BUCK CREEK ONE OF THE BIGGEST COMPANIES IN TEXAS, and we shall take advantage of every opportunity to safeguard against any possibility of loss. By this method, we are not only offering our stockholders the benefits of our own deep test, but we are giving them advantage of these other deep tests. It would be foolish indeed for us, even with the very best prospects for oil, to hold our entire 10,000 acres surrounding our own deep test, risking all on a dry hole. It is our plan, therefore, to sell part of our acreage, while we are drilling, at what we consider the most opportune time and at the very highest price possible. Money secured from sale of acreage will be placed in the treasury for the stockholders, and subject to their wishes. By this means we feel reasonably sure that every possibility of loss can be eliminated.

THE MANAGEMENT OF OUR COMPANY IS VESTED IN A BOARD OF FIVE DIRECTORS, elected annually by the stockholders, as clearly set forth in the Articles of the Association, filed and recorded in Deeds of Record of Donley County, Texas. The Directors for the first year are:

C. A. CROW, Memphis, Texas

C. D. AKERS, Clarendon, Texas

E. H. WATT, Giles, Texas

P. H. WILLIAMS, Hedley, Texas

W. D. UTTS, Burkburnett, Texas

OUR WELL WILL BE DRILLED ALWAYS UNDER THE CLOSE AND CAREFUL SUPERVISION OF MR. WILLIAMS, OUR MANAGER. Mr. Williams has had twenty years experience in deep well drilling in this country and in Old Mexico. He has brought in some deep wells and some big wells. He is well known throughout this country as a man, strictly honest and dependable in every way, and we feel sure that in securing his services as General Manager we are giving our stockholders one of the biggest assets possible in a wildcat oil company. After having read about our plans and purposes, just who and what we are, and having convinced yourself that we are the only and original Buck Creek Oil Company, that we are all we claim to be, and that we mean business, come in with us, get a hold on this Wild Cat, and be one of the boys WHEN THE WELL COMES IN. Remember the Stock is open to the public for only a few days. It is going fast and will soon be sold out. OUR BOOKS WILL BE CLOSED AFTER JUNE 21. This is your Golden Opportunity! You'd better take advantage of it!
