served his country in three different capacities, is a married man, the father of twins and one other child, is a major general in the American army and is not yet twenty years old."

GENERAL PERSHING

Lafayette soon had an opportunity to show his mettle. The English general, Lord Howe, was approaching Philadelphia with a superior force. Washington marched out to meet him, and in the skirmish at Brandywine Lafayette was led while urging his men to stand firm

Lafayette wrote to his wife: "Be entirely free from anxiety as to my wound, for all the doctors in America are aroused in my behalf. I have a friend who has spoken for me in a way to insure my being well taken care of, and that is General Washington. That estimable man, whom I venerate the more now that I learn to know him, has become my intimate friend. His tender interest in my welfare quickly won my heart. When he sent his surgeon in chief to me he told him to care for me as if I were his son, because he leved me so much; and, having learned that I wanted to join the army too soon again, he wrote me a letter full of tenderness, in which he admonished me to wait until I should be entirely well."

Washington's exact words in writing to the surgeon were: "Take care of him as if he were my son, for I love him the same."

On November 25, 1777, Lafayette was sent with General Greene to test the strength of the British advance on Philadelphia. Having disclosed their position near Gloucester, he attacked the Hessians with such fury that the latter were routed and Cornwallis, thinking that he was surrounded by the entire American army, retreated with his 5,000 men in hot haste.

This pleased Washington so much that he wrote to congress asking for a regular command for Lafayette. A few days later Lafayette, to his great delight, was assigned to the command of the Virginia division of the army.

As time went on relations between Washington and Lafayette became steadily closer, the latter sometimes referring to himself in their correspondence as Washington's "young soldier." The intimacy between the two men was like that of father and son, the Frenchman being twenty-five years younger than the general he so greatly admired.

Having made a voyage to France on furlough he returned in May, 1780, joining Washington at the army headquarters in Morristown and telling him what nobody on this side of the Atlantic yet knew, of the coming of the military and naval expedițion sent by the king of France to help the Americans. It was Lafayette himself who had been largely instrumental in persuading the king to send the fleet, together with 6,000 picked fighting men under Rochambeau and the young marquis was dispatched in advance to carry the good

In due time Rochambeau arrived with the army of 6,000 men and Admiral de Grasse with a fleet manned by 4,000 sailors and marines,

Lafayette was put in command of 2,000 men and directed to march to Virginia and meet Cornwallis, the British commander. The troops were so destitute that something had to be done. Lafayette after expending his own available cash borrowed on his personal account $10,000 from the merchants of Baltimore. De Grasse's fleet headed for Yorktown, and Washington, with Rochambeau, started to unite with Lafayette in the struggle with Cornwallis. How Washington made forced marches to the South in order the more completely to hem in Lord Cornwalls; how the Count de Grasse with his great fleet arrived off Yorktown before the arrival of General Washington, and how Lafayette persuaded the French admiral to delay the attack until Washington could take command, so that by winning that fight Washington could overthrow the enemies in congress that were trying to have some one else made commander in chief of the American armies; and how, when Washington did arrive, Lafayette was one of the very first to lead a storming party; how Admiral de Grasse's fleet did all and more than could be expected of it, until Lord Cornwallis and his army had surrendered and been disarmed, are facts that every good American knows.

TOMB OF LA FAYETTE

In this final struggle the whole force of the colonies consisted of 7,000 men of Washington's army, 6,000 under Rochambeau and 3,000 of De Grasse's French marines and sailors

Would it have been possible for us to win without the aid of France? Washington and Franklin believed not. Fifty years afterward when the question was asked of Charles Carroll of Carrollton, then the only man alive who had signed the Declaration of Independence, that venerable Christian and statesman replied: "It was God's will."

It will always be a much-vexed question how much financial aid France rendered America. It seems impossible to straighten out the account. Professor Marion of the College of France has expressed the opinion that the total expenditures were fully 2,000,000,000 livres. Much information will be found in his "Histoire Financiere de la France depuis 1715." Fiske in his "Critical Period" puts the expenditure of France at 1,400,. 000,000 francs. Trevelyan states the following in a note to his "American Revolution:" "It was calculated that between the years 1778 and 1783 the war with England cost the French treasury £48,000,000. It was the main cause of those financial difficulties which led immediately up to the Revolution of 1789." This would be equivalent to 1,200,000,000 livres (francs), or $240,000,000, at a time when the purchasing power of money was nearly three times what it is in our day.

When victory was ours Lafayette went home to France. He came back for a short time in 1784. Then came the French revolution. Lafayette from first to last consistently advocated a limited constitutional monarchy for France. His experiences were many, including five years in an Austrian prison, from which he was released by Napoleon in 1797.

In 1824, when Lafayette was sixty-seven, he was invited by President Monroe to visit the United States. He came as the guest of the nation in pursuance of an unanimous resolution passed by congress. The occasion was the dedication of Bunker Hill monument. He made a triumphal tour of the twenty-four states of the Union. Every possible honor was showered upon him. Probably the most moving event in the whole tour was his visit to the tomb of Washington. The climax was the ceremony at Bunker Hill.

Lafayette lived ten years longer. When President Andrew Jackson heard the news of his death in 1834, he ordered on behalf of the whole American people "that the same honors be rendered upon this occasion at the different military and naval stations as were observed upon the decease of Washington, the Father of His Country, and his contemporary in arms.'

Lafayette has been dead 85 years. His clay is dust. But his soul still lives. It has breathed courage into the breasts of war-worn French soldiers. It has wept over the deported, enslaved and outraged women of his native land-over the slaughter of the innocents. And who may doubt that his soul called across the ocean: "Help us, America! Help us as I helped you."

At first we did not hear, or if hearing, did not answer. But at last we heard and heeded and went. The fighting men of France, staggering with wounds, dizzy with fatigue, and the women of France, white with horror over an impending fate worse than death, saw the Star-Spangled Banner afar and cried in thankfulness: "The Americans are coming!"

We arrived-young, husky, smiling, larking fighting men. The French loved us for our looks and our ways. But could we fight? Then came June and Chateau-Thierry, when we stopped the flower of the German shock troops in their tracks, attacked in turn, put the Hun on the run and kept him running! No wonder all France went delirious with joy.

That was what we promised through "Black Jack" Pershing, when he saluted at the tomb in the little cemetery of Picpus in Paris and said: "Lafavette, we are here."

And we made the promise good. He and his young, husky, smiling, larking, fighting men struck the finishing blow which guaranteed that Frenchmen may pursue their honest toil in peace and that French women, with babe at breast, may sleep at night without fear of the Beast.

Such was Lafayette-a great soul, a gallant soul, the living embodiment of the noblest ideal for which men can generously live and gioricusty

In the era of home building that is here there will be, more than ever, much individuality shown in the design accepted, because those who are building homes now have the advantage of many different styles of architecture and home designs that have proven best through use. he presented his request to the American congress there assembled. At first he met with a cool reception. In consideration, however, of the importance of his rank and family connections, and because of his modest offer to serve as a volunteer at his own charges, he was looked upon with more favor, and by a resolution of congress he was granted the complimentary rank of major general in the army. Washington received him with the greatest kindness, gave him a place on his staff, and from that time forth treated him as a son. COOLING MILK ON THE FARM

Milk may be cooled most efficiently on the farm by running it over a sur-'ace cooler in which the available water supply is used at its coldest temperature and the cooling completed by storing the cans of milk in a tank of ice water. It is possible in that way within a short time to lower the temperature of milk to below 50 degrees F. Frequently the water used for cooling milk is not used to the best advantage. Spring water is sometimes allowed to flow over the surface of the ground and is warmed several degrees before reaching the cooling apparatus. During the summer water from a storage tank above ground is usually much warmer than that drawn directly from the well. It is best, therefore, to arrange the cooling system so that the water which flows through the surface cooler or cooling tank comes directly from the well or, if from a spring, it is conveyed in a pipe well below the surface of the ground. If ice is used in a cooling tank the quantity of water surrounding the cans should be as small as possible to give satisfactory results. Space enough should be provided between the sides of the tank and the cans of milk to If a large volume of water has to be cooled much more ice will be necessary. If it is desired to cool milk quickly from an initial temperature of about 85 degrees F. to one of 50 degrees F. by setting the cans in a tank of ice water, the ice water in the tank should have a temperature of about 37 degrees F. Under these conditions about four gallons of water will suffice for each gallon of milk.

In order to cool and hold milk at low temperatures on the average farm a properly constructed cooling tank is necessary. In fact most dairy farms have some sort of tank in which water or water and ice are used to cool and store milk. When an abundant supply of cold-running water continually passes through the tank it is unnecessary to go to the expense of in-

MAKE AND USE STERILIZER

Necessary for Production of Dairy Products of High Quality-Steam Is Recommended.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Sterilization of dairy utensils is necessary for the production of dairy products of high quality, particularly milk and cream, because the washing of dairy utensils, at least by the process generally used, is not sufficient to insure freedom from infection and contamination. Steam is necessary to kill the disease germs and harmful bacteria that lurk in milk cans, buckets and other such equipment used wherever milk is produced. Dairy utensils on small farms are not often sterilized efficiently because steam is not available. The United States department of agriculture has devised a simple and inexpensive, yet efficient, steam sterilizer which can be provided at such a small cost as to justify its use on any farm from which milk or cream is sold. The additional keeping quality which the sterilization of utensils will give milk and cream prob ably will pay for the cost of the sterilizer in one season. Full particulars on how to make and use this device are described in Farmers' Bulletin 748, a copy of which can be had, so long as the supply lasts, on application to the United States Department of Ag-

Millions of people—in fact about 9 out of 10—suffer more or less from indigestion, acute or chronic. Nearly every case is caused by Acid-Stomach.

There are other stomach disorders which also are sure signs of Acid-Stomach—belching, heartburn, bloat after eating, food repeating, sour, gassy stomach. There are many aliments which, while they do not cause much distress in the stomach itself, are, nevertheless, traceable to an acid-stomach. Among these are nervousness, billiousness, cirrhosis of the liver, rheumatism, impoverished blood, weakness, insomia, melancholia and a long train of physical and mental miseries that keep the victims in miserable health year after year. The right thing to do is to attack these aliments at their source—get rid of the acid-stomach. A wonderful modern remedy called EATONIC now makes it easy to do this.

One of hundreds of thousands of grateful users of EATONIC writes: "I have been troubled with intestinal indigestion for about nine years and have spent quite a sum for medicine, but without relief. After using EATONIC for a few days the gas and pains in my bowels disappeared. EATONIC is just the remedy I needed."

We have thousands of letters telling of these marvelous benefits. Try EATONIC and you, too, will be just as enthusiastic in its praise.

Carlyle Sees One Chanceand Takes It.

Synopsis - Geoffry Carlyle, master of sailing ships at twenty-six, is sentenced to 20 years' servitude in the American colonies for participation in the Monmouth rebellion in England. Among the passengers on board the ship on which he is sent across are Roger Fairfax, wealthy Maryland planter; his niece, Dorothy Fairfax, and Lieutevant Sanchez, a Spaniard, who brame acquainted with the Fair-1419s in London. Carlyle meets Dorothy, who informs him her uncle has bought his services. Sanchez shows himself an enemy of Carlyle. The Fairfax party, now on its own sloop in the Chesapeake bay, encounters a mysterious bark, the Namur of Rotterdam. Carlyle discovers that Sanchez is "Black Sanchez." planning to steal the Fairfax gold and abduct Dorothy. He fights Sanchez and leaves him for dead. In a battle with Sanchez' followers, however, he is overpowered and thrown into the bay.

PLAN OF GRAZING FOR GOATS

Give Vegetation Opportunity to Grow by Dividing Range on Which Animals Forage.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) The production of more mohair and meat can be obtained in raising goats on the range by following a plan of grazing which will give the vegetation a chance to grow sufficiently to maintain itself. Most goat ranges are used throughout the year. This and the general practice of driving the goats out from a corral at the ranch headquarters and back every day for months or throughout the year have been largely responsible for deterioration of the range. An excellent method of giving the forage a proper opportunity for growth is to divide the range into three areas-one for spring, another for summer and fall, and a third for winter.

The number and distribution of the goats on these divisions should be such as to secure proper and uniform utilization of the forage. The divisions should be protected from grazing except during the seasons determined upon. On successive parts of the summer and fall range grazing should be deferred until after seed maturity of the forage plants so as to insure proper revegetation. On winter range the forage close to the sheds should be reserved for stormy periods only.

The old practice of bedding the goats on the same bed ground every night in the year prevents proper management of the range and results in overgrazing, in uneven utilization of the forage and general depreciation of the wind. Suddenly, as I stared upward, range. This in turn has a bad effect on the condition of goats and the production of meat and mohair. The use of many bed grounds widely distributed over the range aids materially in improving the quality and quantity of the forage, reducing the trailing and driving of the goats, and securing better growth of goats and mohair. The ideal system is to bed the goats wherever night overtakes them, and it is this system, called the "bedding-out" system, that growers of goats are urged to adopt whatever practicable.

The bedding-out system cannot be strictly adhered to during kidding, during periods of stormy winter weather, nor just after shearing; but its use at other times is practicable and it has many advantages.

Range to be suitable for goats should possess a mixture of browse, grasses, and weeds, be free from continued heavy rains and snows, and be well supplied with bed grounds and watering places. Browse furnishes most of the range feed for goats throughout the year, so that it should be abundant. Grass and weeds are necessary for does and kids during the spring and summer, and are of considerable value at all times to give variety to the for-

Plenty of fresh palatable feed has a marked beneficial effect on mohair production, growth of the goats, and the proportion of kids raised. It also reduces the proportion of losses. Therefore, instead of overstocking a range with inferior goats, the producer should stock it with the number of high-grade goats which it can conservatively carry.

The range goat should be the large, well-built, early maturing Angora, producing a large quantity of fine mohair. The body and chest should be relatively broad and deep, the back wide and straight, the thighs full, the ribs well sprung, and the legs short, strong, and set wide apart. Such Angoras make possible a substantial revenue from two sources-mohair and meat.

The does should be uniform, of good size, have good constitutions, be good producers of mohair, and should produce sufficient milk to insure proper growth of their kids. The bucks should more nearly approximate the ideal than the does. They should be large and vigorous and should produce a large quantity of high-quality mohair. Only those wethers which produce a very, large quantity of fine mohair should be retained in the herd after they are two years old.

Most Popular Hog.

The butcher hog, weighing between 200 and 250 pounds is the most popular with the packing companies be-cause it furnishes everything that is desirable in meat, and consequently will command a higher price.

THE responsibility attached to the preparing of a remedy for infants and children is undoubtedly greater than that imposed upon the manufacturer of remedies: for adults whose system is sufficiently strong to counteract, for a time at least, any injurious drug. It is well to observe that Castoria is prepared today, as it has been for the past 40 years, under the personal supervision of Mr. Chas. H. Fletcher.

What have makers of imitations and substitutes at stake? What are their responsibilities? To whom are they answerable? They spring up today, scatter their nefarious wares broadcast, and disappear tomorrow.

Could each mother see the painstaking care with which the prescription for Fletcher's Castoria is prepared: could they read the innumerable testimonials from grateful mothers, they would never listen to the subtle pleadings and false arguments of those who would offer an imitation of, or substitute for, the tried and true Fletcher's Castoria.

County Agent Helps Farmer to Get Better Prices for Hogs.

By Co-operative Shipments 2 to 5 Cents More a Pound Was Secured-Each Man Paid His Share of Marketing Expense.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

County agents not only show farmers how to grow more live stock and bigger crops, but show them how to get better prices. A field agent of the states relation service of the United States department of agriculture reports that the county agent of Faulkner county, Ark., helped the farmers to get from 2 to 5 cents a pound more for their hogs.

Here is the county agent's plan which worked, as outlined at a meeting of the farmers and bankers. It was agreed that the bankers were to finance co-operative live stock shipments to a central market. This they gladly agreed to do. A day was named for a shipment of hogs. Every farmer in the country was notified by mail or telephone. On the day set the farmer, with 1 hog or 10, brought his porkers into town. Each farmer's hogs were marked so that they could be separated when they reached the market. A man was sent to market with the carload of hogs. He had a record of the markings and ownership of every hog aboard. Each farmer's hogs were sold, separately and records kept. On skim milk after the pigs get a start. settling up accounts each farmer simply paid his share of the marketing expenses, which the bankers had advanced, according to the number of and lard. Save enough gilts and sows hogs he had shipped. Very few of the farmers ever had enough hogs ready for market at one time to make a carload; hence they who offered considerably less than the ners. central market price. By making up co-operative shipments the farmers netted 2 to 5 cents a pound more for their hogs. Faulkner county farmers have sold six carloads of hogs by the co-operative plan recently, and now the co-operative shipping association on a regular and permanent basis is

J. E. ROSS WRITES TO HEDLEY FRIENDS

W. Z Hoggard and Rev. J. M. Mizzell received letters the past week from J. E. Ross of Lawton, Okla, sen of B S. Ross who died here last week. The letters give information as to Mr. Ross' life, and in addition the letter to Mr. Hoggard centained words of deep gratitude for his personal ser vice to their dead, and to them, as did Mrs. Snider's letter, published last week. Mr. Ross wrote Bro. Mizzell as follows: My Dear Brother:

Your kind letter conserning my father was given me by Bro Schaefer. My father, B. S. Ross, was for thirty eight years a Baptist preacher. He was for three years Moderator of old Greer County Okla, Association. He attended Louisville Seminary in 1888; went from Bowie, Texas, with John F. Elder, whom you

Father was a good student, without much literary training. He had a measure of talent. I have said since I was a boy that eral acres, improved or unim-I'd rather hear my father preach preved, let me show you what I than any preacher on earth, be cause he was a good man and a good preacher. I myself am a preacher, though not as good as my father.

I may drive up to Hedley this summer to see the spot where Saturday. He reports that Mrs. my good Daddy fell asleep, and to meet face to face the good yet returned from their visit to people that were so kind and benevolent to him. I am

Lovingly yours, J. E. Ross.
