A NOTICE TO OUR PATRIOTIC CITIZENS

The time is at hand for patriotic Americans to show their patriotism. The Third Annual Red Cross Roll Call begins Nov. 1st, closing Nov. 11th, Armistice day. We will be asked to join the Red Cross once each year. You were eager to join while the war was in progress; let's be no less eager now in helping with the peace time program which is being framed now and will be completed in 1920.

The Red Cross existed thirty-two years prior to the war, but few of us had any part in it. It is time now we should wake up and be real Americans, and not let the burden of disaster fall on a few.

One of the things to be undertaken by the peace time Red Cross is the placing of a Red Cross nurse in every county to look after the health of the people in general, but especially of the children of the public schools. Publicity Chairman.

WILL PAY good price for two desirable light housekeeping rooms, furnished. Call 151.

The Red Cross Roll Call is not a call for money. It is a call to the comradeship of the Red Cross—a comradeship of service—of a common faith in the power of honesty and fair dealing—of a common belief in the principles of mercy and honor.

FOR SALE—Few choice Banded Rock cockerels, McDonald's standard bred and Park's bred-to-lay. J. S. Gremons.

"Friendship is the only cement that will ever hold the world together. The intimate contact of the Red Cross with the suffering people will be one of the greatest instrumentalities of friendship the world has ever known. Woodrow Wilson.

The W. I. Rains family are traveling these days in a brand new cabriolet, or sedan, or patrol wagon, or whatever it is you call these new fangled gas chariots encased in shining glass and shining leather. Bill is well pleased with the space eater, except that its roof came near quitting before it got out of the way of his dome. However, when he leaves his hat off and brushes his hair down flat on the top of his head, it's a pretty good fit.

FOR SALE—Two highly bred Duroc boars, and four sows with pigs, at my farm ten miles north of Hedley. See J. S. Smith, on place. J. M. Calhoun.

Your dollar helped at Corpus Christi, and will help in every emergency. The American Red Cross serves all America at all times.

LOST—Black steer yearling, long kinky hair. Notify S. D. Myers.

WHY NOT MAKE HEDLEY A MODEL COMMUNITY

There are few, and I doubt if any, communities in Texas that can point out as few crop failures as Hedley and vicinity. There are three great reasons for this, first of which is, being at the foot of the plains it receives considerably above the average rainfall; secondly, the rich soil is such that it retains the moisture and thereby stands the drouth better than many places; and, thirdly, we have a class of people that farm instead of just planting and then trust to luck and, possibly, dry weather to kill out the weeds. The last reason is the only one that our citizens have control of, and to their intelligence, in making use of nature's assistance, the credit for the prosperity of our vicinity should be given.

It is often mentioned with pride that people who move here rarely remain renters long. That proves two things: that you are receiving intelligent and thrifty people, and that this section is one of the best agricultural localities in Texas. For a number of years cotton has been very successfully grown here, the raising of it is no longer an experiment, and because of the inroads of the pink boll worm and the boll weevil upon the great cotton growing areas of the South, the price of cotton is likely to be much higher in the future years than in the past. For the above two reasons, we can expect our people to become more prosperous, and raise more cotton from year to year, and because of the high altitude the boll worm and the boll weevil will not likely become a pest here. From the altitude we have cool summers, but being off of the plains it is not nearly so cold here as fifty miles north; we have the rainfall, rich soil and intelligent citizens, therefore we possess the fundamental requirements of making this one of the most desirable places for a home in the South.

Now, it is up to us to make the best use of our advantages, and I did not mention one great, great advantage: We have practically no foreigners. The people who have lived where there are foreigners will appreciate this last great advantage, and those who have not should do so from their reading, and therefore create a sentiment that will permit only people with American ideals. To absolutely guarantee an all American community we must retain at home the boys and girls that are growing up now. Stop just a moment, lay this paper down, and compare the number of boys and girls of this community that have established homes during the last five or six years. How many are to be found here? How many are on the farm? How many have gone to cities and towns? I know practically the results you have found. This is touching a much

These walls should be Alabastined in the latest, up-to-the-minute nature color tints. Each room should reflect your own individuality and the treatment throughout be a complete perfect harmony in colors.

The walls of the old home, whether mansion or cottage, can be made just as attractive, just as sanitary, through the intelligent use of

Alabastine

Instead of kalsomine or wallpaper

How much better, when you have a new home, to start right than to have to correct errors afterward from former treatment with other materials, when you come to the use of Alabastine, as does nearly every one sooner or later.

Once your walls are Alabastined you can use any material over it should you desire, but having used Alabastine you will have no desire for any other treatment.

Alabastine is so easy to mix and apply — so lasting in its results — so absolutely sanitary — and so generally recognized as the proper decorative material in a class by itself that it is becoming difficult to manufacture fast enough to supply the demand.

Alabastine is a dry powder, put up in five-pound packages, white and beautiful tints, ready to mix and use by the addition of cold water, and with full directions on each package. Every package of genuine Alabastine has cross and circle printed in red.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Not understood, we gather false impressions. And hug them closer as the years go by. Till often virtues seem to us transgressions. And thus man rises, falls and lives and dies. Not understood.

FOOD FOR THE DAY.

The simplest foods well cooked and served are the most satisfying to the majority of people for every day.

Coconut Bisque.—Grate one coconut without removing the brown skin, cover with one quart of water boiling hot, and let stand until cold; strain through a thin cloth, and add the juice of one lemon and sugar to taste. Serve cold, preferably.

Eggs De Lesseps.—Sauté the eggs in a pan with a small amount of butter, taking care not to break the yolk. Then place them on a hot platter and dust with salt; brown the butter in the frying pan, adding a teaspoonful of vinegar to four eggs, and one teaspoonful of minced parsley. Serve with calves brains that are boiled, seasoned and sautéed in butter, then pour the sauce over the eggs and brains.

Clarified Beef Heart.—Wash and remove pipes from the heart, wipe dry, stuff with an herb stuffing, tie securely and roast for about three hours in a moderate oven. Remove strings, serve hot with gravy poured around.

Stuffing.—Chop one ounce of suet fine, add two cupfuls of bread crumbs, one chopped onion; season with parsley, thyme, pepper, salt and bit of grated nutmeg. Mix well and add one whole egg to bind it.

Sauce.—Mix three large ripe tomatoes, two sliced onions, two cupfuls of stock, juice of one lemon and a teaspoonful of prepared mustard. Cook 15 minutes, mix with a teaspoonful of cornstarch dissolved in cold water; rub through a sieve, reheat and add a tablespoonful of chopped parsley.

Fish With Green Pepper.—Take one and three-fourths cupfuls of cooked fish and one cupful of white sauce. Cook a half a slice of onion in butter until brown, add salt, pepper. Parboil a pepper, then cut in strips and add to the fish, onion and white sauce. Serve hot.

Celery Toast.—Cut tender stalks of celery into thin slices and cook in salted water until tender. Use but little water, so there is none left when cooked. Add cream to cover, season with pepper and salt; add flour with a little cold milk, mixed to a paste until thick. Prepare buttered toast and pour the celery sauce over it. Serve piping hot.

He either fears his fate too much, Or his desperts are small, That dares not put it to the touch Determined to gain all.

DATES MAKE MANY DELIGHTFUL AND WHOLESOME DISHES.

A few dates, a handful of nuts, a bit of bread and butter, a glass of milk, and one is well fed. The date is valuable food, and it is refreshing occasionally to cut loose from modern cookery and enjoy first principles.

Date and Apple Pie.—Line a pie plate with a rich crust. Fill with a mixture of chopped dates and apples, using one cupful of dates to two of apple; sprinkle with cinnamon, sugar and dot with bits of butter. Cover with a top crust and bake in a moderate oven one hour. Serve hot or cold with whipped cream or a la mode.

Date Sandwiches.—Remove the stones from well-washed dates and cut in strips; add an equal quantity of pecan meats, cut fine; mix with a bit of creamed butter; add a dash of salt and spread on slices of bread. Stuffed dates make a most dainty little dessert when one does not wish anything more filling. Stuff with fondant, cream cheese, or with nuts, as all are good.

Date Cream Puffs.—Fill cream puffs with a mixture of nuts, dates and whipped cream; roll in sugar and serve. The puffs, if made very small, look more dainty and go further.

Date Bread.—Make a sponge with one quart of lukewarm water, half a compressed yeast cake and a teaspoonful of salt, one and one-half pints of flour. When light and spongy add half a cupful each of sugar and molasses and flour to make a drop batter; add two cupfuls of chopped dates; knead and let rise. When light, mold into loaves; rise again and bake 45 minutes.

Date Pudding.—Take two-thirds of a cupful of chopped suet, one cupful of bread crumbs, one egg well beaten, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one cupful of milk, one cupful of stoned dates cut fine, one teaspoonful of vanilla, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a half-teaspoonful of salt and enough flour to make a drop batter. Steam three hours and serve with an egg sauce.

A chicken salad which is different is one using a small cupful of chopped apple with the celery and chicken, adding the usual dressing preferred.

IN BANGKOK

A View in Bangkok.

AT Singapore the traveler bound for Siam quits the liner and embarks upon one of the small steamers which take the mails to Bangkok. The steamer makes for the low mangrove-fringed shore which marks his destination and presently enters the muddy Bangkok river, writes P. A. Thompson in "Siam." On either side stretch salt marshes, soon hidden behind the luxuriant vegetation. Here on the oozy banks are fern-like atap and rank tropical growths, half submerged, while rising from the firmer ground behind are the slender trunks and graceful fronds of areca and coconut palms.

Bangkok is twelve miles from the coast in a direct line, but so tortuous is the river that it is fully three hours before we arrive. Here a score of small steamers are anchored in mid-stream. Others lie alongside the wharfs, together with sailing vessels of all descriptions; merchantmen from Europe, rice boats from up country, and fishing boats from the gulf. Everywhere we see Chinese toiling. Bouts ply to and fro between the banks, and every now and then the little vessels are set dancing and plunging in the wash of the steam launches which tear by. At length we, too, draw in to a wharf and land amidst piles of goods.

Motley Throng in the Street. Behind the wharfs and mills which line the river on its eastern side, we come upon a long street, white and dusty in the dry months, and in the rainy season a lane of mud. Here at all seasons a motley crowd of Chinese, Siamese, Malays, Hindus and Mahometans jostle each other, while coolies toil along at a foot pace with "rickshaws" in the last stages of dilapidation. A crazy gharry, bearing a distant resemblance to a London growler and drawn by a diminutive pony, bumps over the uneven surface, and on one side of the road electric trams, packed with natives, are screeching along the ill-laid track. None of these methods of locomotion appeals to us, nor do we feel inclined to mingle with the throng of pedestrians. However, if we are lucky we may find near by a stable, at which we may hire a pair-horse gharry, a sort of miniature victoria. We will not look on while the ponies are being put in, for it is not well to know exactly how much string is used in the composition of our harness. It is certain that the proportion is large, but if only the reins hold out we must be thankful.

On either side are rows of one-storied wooden houses. The shops on the ground floor are quite open to the street, and we can see Chinese carpenters, tailors and bootmakers at work inside, while elsewhere cheap cotton goods and hardware are displayed. Now and then we pass a Chinese joss-house with fantastic roof-ridge, and through the open door we see an altar decked with tinsel and peacocks' feathers.

Official Quarter and Royal Palace. Our driver expects us to direct him at every step, so if we say nothing he will keep straight on and we shall presently come to the old city wall, whitewashed now, and much picturesque battlements shaped like the leaves of the sacred Bo tree. Within we are at once sensible of a great improvement as we bow over the well-kept surface of a broad avenue, planted with plane trees, and bordered by neat rows of brick houses. As we cross a canal we catch a glimpse of trees reflected in the water, and trim lawns, and beyond them pagodas blazing with pure gold in the sunlight. This is the official quarter. * * * Here, too, is the Royal Palace, whose brilliant roofs and iridescent spires are seen over the dazzling whiteness of the outer wall.

Just outside the city wall is the Golden Mount, a bell-shaped mound, faced with brick, but so overgrown by trees that it has the appearance of a natural hillock. On the summit is a little shrine surmounted by a pagoda, and to it leads a flight of steps, winding about a hill. From here we look down upon a forest of palms and plane trees, through which break the red roofs of the houses. Everywhere rising above the trees are graceful spires and the manifold roofs of temples, with their tiles of rich orange or deep purple, great splashes of color against the clear blue sky. To this place we may often return to watch the dawn stealing over the paddy fields, whilst at our feet the palm trees rise through a veil of purple mist; or when at evening the pink rays of the setting sun are shooting halfway to the zenith we may come up here and see the thousand pinnacles of Bangkok, outlined in the rifts between low-lying clouds against a smoky orange sky.

KEEP BUSY AND LIVE LONG
Notable Examples of Longevity Among Men Who Have Elected to Remain in "Harness."
Maybe it used to be that "the good die young," but it doesn't look as though they're doing it now.
Take, for instance, Rev. Albert Vogel of Jeannette, Pa.
He's one hundred and two years old. He's never smoked or chewed tobacco or drunk intoxicating liquor. Never quarreled or fought with another man. Always trying to do good and to persuade others to behave themselves.
Rev. Mr. Vogel is the oldest active minister of the gospel in the United States.

SAYINGS OF CARNEGIE
Educate man and his shackles fall.
I hope Americans will some day find more time for play, like the wiser brethren on the other side.
Immense power is acquired by assuring yourself in your secret reveries that you were born to control affairs.
The day is coming and already we see it dawn, in which the man who dies possessed of millions of available wealth which was free and in his hands ready to be distributed, will die disgraced.
Labor, capital and business ability are three legs of a three-legged stool; neither is first, neither is second, neither is third; there is no precedence, all being equally necessary. He who would sow discord among the three is an enemy to all.
The first and most seductive peril, and the destroyer of most men, is the drinking of liquor. (Mr. Carnegie himself was a total abstainer, and gave his employees at Skibo castle a 10 per cent advance on their wages every year they reported that they had not touched liquor).—From the Books and Public Addresses of the Ironmaster.

Fish That Spin Silk.
Silk stockings are very expensive nowadays, says Pearson's Weekly.
The most costly of all this kind of hosiery, however, is made from silk which is not the product of the silkworms, but a species of shellfish called a puina.
The puina makes its home in the warm waters of the Mediterranean round Sicily. It has an odd little tube at the end of its tongue.
Out of this tube, spider fashion, or silk-worm fashion, it spins a silk thread with which it fastens itself to any rock to which it wishes to adhere.
When the puina moves on to fresh feeding grounds its silken cable is left behind. This cable, which is called byssus, the Sicilian fishermen gather. Byssus weaves into the softest, finest sheenest of fabrics; but it is very rare and the stockings woven from it consequently are—as has been said—exceedingly expensive.

CHANGE ITS SPOTS

Mr. Dodson, the "Liver Tone" Man, Tells the Treachery of Calomel.

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quick-silver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into your bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for a few cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It can not be trusted any more than a leopard or a wild-cat. Take Dodson's Liver Tone which straightens you right up and makes you feel fine. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.—Adv.

BIG FOOD SUPPLY NEGLECTED CONDUCTOR HAD HAD ENOUGH

Writer Points Out How Great Savings Might Be Effected By Cultivation of Certain Trees.

Nuts are the best of all tree crops because of their high food value, their long keeping qualities and the long life of the trees. But there are many other tree crops almost entirely neglected by us. In tropical countries the food of whole nations is largely derived from tree fruits, both for man and animal. The bread fruit, the banana, the avocado, the pawpaw, the carob, the fig, are examples. But with such fruits as the American pawpaw, the persimmon, the mulberry, the honey locust, the acorn and beechnut are neglected sources of food, especially for animals. Doctor Smith says that our domesticated animals eat about nine-tenths of our food crops and that we spend a large part of our time waiting on these animals. Why not make our hogs and chickens, for example, wait on themselves by having good crop trees, many of which keep dropping their fruit over a large period of time, under which we can pasture them? In Portugal they entirely fatten their pigs on acorns and in some of the Mediterranean islands on chestnuts.—Exchange.

"Forget it. Pay your fare and cut out the bull."
"Get off your foot, I dug up once."
"Where'd you get on?"
"Water street."
"Yes, you did. What happened at River street, just now?"
"Well, at River street, for one thing, a woman handed you a quarter and you bluffed her out of the change; at Hill street four people got on and you rang up three fares; at Prairie street, when you changed that $5 gold-piece—"

WHY NOT MAKE HEDLEY A MODEL COMMUNITY

discussed question: why are people leaving the farm and farming communities? There is one broad answer to this question and it is: they find life more interesting elsewhere than here. Almost every aged parent you can find desires that his children be near him in his declining years, and I firmly believe that the aged parents are somewhat to blame for their children leaving the farm to go to the towns. They have forgotten, while at their work, to make their communities desirable places, socially, to live in.

No one individual can accomplish this. It must come from co-operation. One of the things that has made America great was the interest of its people in its social life. For the past 25 years that whole soul American fellowship has been declining. During those years we find that people are found less and less mingling in each others home life. The rural school and the rural town have been meeting less and less in social gatherings. This American friendliness is the cement of American Democracy, and if our great Republic is to remain the best place on earth to live we must retain this social friendliness. Every community will have to work to this end. Why should we read of communities in other states being model communities of home and social life? Why not let our community be one of these models? As I said, we possess the fundamental requirements. Why not make use of our opportunities, and begin now?

Believing that you agree with the statements I have made, I want to discuss some things that will make our town better and will develop a civic pride and the love of home that we are entitled to.

Our locality, having in its possession such fundamental and natural assets, nothing can prevent it from becoming even more prosperous financially. But all observant people have noticed that many of the most prosperous communities in our country are undesirable locations to make their homes, in which to rear their families. All of you have heard such expressions as (of course referring to other places) "Business is good in this place; I can make money; but I cannot afford to bring my family here." We all know this man would be a valuable citizen, and his family in all probability an asset to any community life, because he has the correct American ideal of home and its surroundings, and also he is likely to be a successful business man. Then the question arises: What are the demands of this man that is looking for something along with business possibilities? His requirements would be, that his neighbors would have similar ideas with reference to home life, so that their children would be suitable companions for his children; and that clean, wholesome entertainment would be ready to attract the growing minds, instead of being entertained by ignorant loafers with dirty yarns; and that there would be a church of his belief where Christian ideals and morals were taught; and most certainly he would expect and demand a high school of such standard that he knew that his children would receive instruction that would give them an equal start with other ambitious and upward looking young Americans. With those things he would know that the young, if good blood were in them, with such environment plus the public civic pride, would have an even start with anybody's child, and that place would be the correct place to make a home.

The next question that arises is: What shall we do? If you are really interested, say so. Talk it to your neighbor, not once, but many times, because such ideals cannot be reached by silent agreement. If we have an interest in a worthy enterprise, as a citizen, it is our DUTY to encourage and work and assist every way possible to make it a success. Once it is started keep it going, because it is a law of nature that when a thing ceases to grow it begins to decay, and it is no less true of the things that man builds and promotes. The thing must be continually improved or it will deteriorate and become worthless, just as a new house with beautiful surroundings without care soon looks as badly as the shack across the road.

To promote town and community improvement there are a number of organizations, such as Commercial Clubs, Church Councils, Parent Teacher Associations, Civic Clubs and School Boards, all of which have their respective duties, but oftentimes they do not accomplish what they could if they worked in unison. Hence, I would suggest an organization embodying all of these mentioned, with a common goal of Town and Community Improvement.

Before I close I want to state some of the general problems for this organization. I do not think that a more proper time to take up such work could be found, because the whole world is in a chaotic turmoil of unrest, and our community was never more prosperous. Here are some of the problems: Our town is unlighted; we have no general water supply, and so are defenseless against fires; our streets and vacant lots should be cleaned up; we have no public auditorium where we can meet in winter for any kind of a program, whether it be for school, lecture or educational lyceum; no plans for clean, wholesome public amusement for anyone, old or young. Our school is crowded and needs a new building and much new equipment.

In conclusion, is it necessary for me, as a citizen, to apologize for pointing out our community's needs and for expressing a desire to assist in its improvement? If you are interested, let us work together.

SHOOK WITH NERVOUSNESS

A Lady Was Flat On Her Back With Terrible Spells, But Her Husband Got Cardui,— And Now She Is Grateful.

McKinney, Texas.—Mrs. Mary Stephenson, of this place, states: "About a year and a half ago I was down in bed for six weeks, not able to sit up. I was flat on my back and had terrible spells. . . . Why, it looked like I would die. At times I didn't know anything. I would get nervous, I couldn't bear anyone to talk to me, —I would just jerk and shoo with nervousness. . . . across my back was so sore and ached me all the time. I would have a dizzy feeling. My limbs ached me and I would get numb and feel so weak. . . . I said to my husband I knew Cardui was good and I believed. I had best try it.

He got me a bottle of Cardui, and when I had only taken one-half bottle of Cardui I felt stronger. I took a half a dozen bottles altogether, then in two weeks after I began taking I was up, in three I was doing my work. I praise Cardui for I believe it saved my life and I am grateful."

For over 40 years Cardui has been helping weak, sick women back to health and strength. Try it.—Adv.

Which?

Uncle is an Indiana newspaper man and sometime at home he discusses the editorials he proposes to write. Not long ago he was discussing one of the average American's pursuit after things that are not essential. "I shall call it 'The Search After the Golden Fleece,'" he said. "I think that title will attract attention.

Nine year old Bobby looked up from his pudding. "Are you going to spell it f-l-e-e-c-e?" he said.

ASPIRIN FOR HEADACHE

Name "Bayer" is on Genuine Aspirin—say Bayer

Insist on "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" in a "Bayer package," containing proper directions for Headache, Colds, Pain, Neuralgia, Lumbago, and Rheumatism. Name "Bayer" means genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians for nineteen years. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost few cents. Aspirin is trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.—Adv.

DEWS OF EVE

No More Gentle Than "Cascarets" for the Liver, Bowels

It is just as needless as it is dangerous to take violent or nasty cathartics. Nature provides no shock absorbers for your liver and bowels against calomel, harsh pills, sickening oil and salts. Cascarets give quick relief without injury from Constipation, Bloating, Indigestion, Gases and Sick Headache. Cascarets work while you sleep, removing the toxins, poisons and sour, indigestible waste without griping or inconvenience. Cascarets regulate by strengthening the bowel muscles. They cost so little too.—Adv.

THE "BLUES" Caused by Acid-Stomach

Millions of people who worry, are despondent, have apes of the depression, the blues and are often melancholy, believe that these conditions are due to outside influences over which they have no control. Nearly always, however, they can be traced to an internal source—acid-stomach. Nor is it to be wondered at. Acid-stomach, beginning with such well defined symptoms as indigestion, belching, heartburn, bloating, etc., will, if not checked, in time affect to some degree or other all the vital organs. The nervous system becomes deranged. Digestion suffers. The blood is impoverished. Health and strength are undermined. The victim of acid-stomach, although he may not know the cause of his ailments, feels his hope, courage, ambition and energy slipping. And truly life is dark—not worth much to the man or woman who has acid-stomach!

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

GOVERNORS FAVOR BUDGET SYSTEM

Gov. Henry J. Allen of Kansas says of the movement to establish a national budget system: "The war emphasized strongly the inadequacies of our legislative machinery in problems of national finance. No private business concern would dare rush blindly into things as does congress. This is because congress lacks a sound system of providing public money for the operation of the ten major executive departments. The work of these agencies can be established only through the adoption of a new method of budgetary procedure."

Governor Allen is one of 22 governors who are reported by the national budget committee to favor the substitution of the budget system for the present system of departmental estimates. The governors made many remedial suggestions, including the following:

Demand executive responsibility for the national budget. Establish a bureau of the budget to draw up estimates of governmental expenses. Provide for congressional consideration of money bills by single committees of the house and senate, or a joint committee of the two. Limit money bills to actual needs and do away with "pork" and "log rolling."

JAMES R. RIGGS A BORN FARMER

The new assistant secretary of agriculture, James R. Riggs, is a farmer—not merely by way of interest in the subject, but by life-long, practical application. Farming has been his primary occupation all his life. More than that, he is a farmer by heredity. His grandfather, Hezekiah Riggs, was born on a farm in Loudon county, Virginia, in 1791. When he was twenty-two years old he moved to Sullivan county, Indiana, and engaged in farming and live stock growing. There Commodore Perry Riggs, father of the assistant secretary, was born and there he spent his life as a farmer and stock grower. All of his sons and all of his sons' sons have been farmers.

James R. Riggs was born in Shelburn, Ind., February 17, 1865. For two years after graduation from the Sullivan county high school, in 1882, he was deputy county treasurer and bookkeeper for a hardware and lumber firm. In 1885, when he was twenty years old, he began his career as a farmer. He made his first purchase of land in 1888. From that time until the present he has continued in the active management of his farms.

While devoting his energies primarily to farming operations, Mr. Riggs has found time both for other business enterprises and for public affairs. He was elected county auditor in 1894. For a number of years he was active in the development of the coal, oil and gas industries of his section. For 12 years he was president of a trust company. He has been connected with the construction of more than 200 miles of improved highway. Since 1912 he has been engaged in the manufacture of drain tile.

WHEN JOSEPHUS FIRST TASTED POI

Secretary Josephus Daniels of the navy is a capable spotlight artist, and he was conspicuously in the public eye during his recent visit to the Pacific coast in connection with the arrival of the fleet. They do say that the official motion pictures of the secretary eating poi at Honolulu are great.

Such delicacies as pig, roasted whole in the ground, with the aid of hot rocks; poi from the mealy root of the taro plant; seaweed and raw fish; pudding made from taro, coconut and coconut milk; beef and taro tops cooked in ti leaves; sweet potatoes roasted in a hole in the sand, and many other viands dear to the palate of the native Hawaiian, were served at an old-fashioned luan, or feast, in his honor. The guests were compelled to eat with their fingers. Napkins were provided, however.

Secretary Daniels did not hesitate. He plunged two fingers into a poi bowl, twirled a sticky lump on their ends and conveyed it to his mouth. He did not wince, as most "malihinis" or newcomers do when they taste poi for the first time. Secretary Daniels was game. Two moving picture men, members of the party, placed their cameras within a few feet of him and turned their cranks as he ate his poi and smiled. And Secretary Daniels did not stop at poi.

HENDERSON, BRITISH LABOR LEADER

The result of the by-election of Widnes, Lancaster, in which Arthur Henderson, the labor leader, was elected to the house of commons, is considered a severe blow to the coalition government. Henderson said his victory was "an emphatic condemnation of the coalition government's policy and of the cynical political compromise upon which the government rests." Henderson's recent expressions of his views include these: "The present world unrest means that the old order of things is in its death throes, that a new society is about to come to its birth and that age-long injustices and inequalities that burdened the lives of the common people are to be swept away. Class rule in politics is doomed, but it is still doubtful whether the ideal of true political liberty will be realized in this or other countries without a violent convulsion of society. The main problem now is to restore popular confidence in representative institutions and to guide the movement of the masses along the path of constitutional changes, and to enable democracy to become master in its own house without violence."

Analyzing the causes of unrest, Mr. Henderson said that the development of political institutions had not kept pace with the growth of democracy, which is awake and conscious of its power, but unable to obtain any real control of the machinery of government.

Encouraging Bolshevism

Everything that falsely encourages unrest also encourages bolshevism.

Misunderstanding of American industrial organization, and of its benefits to mankind, leads to unrest, dissatisfaction, and radicalism.

For example, the Federal Trade Commission tells the public that the large packers had an agreed price for lard substitute (made of cotton-seed oil).

It reproduces letters taken from the files of one of the packers, showing that such agreed price existed.

But it failed to mention that the agreed price was determined at the request of and in co-operation with the Food Administration!

Even the Department of Justice, in its unjust attempt to create prejudice against the packers, has made public these same letters, with no explanation.

How long must this kind of misrepresentation continue? In so far as it is believed, it not only breeds discontent, but results in injustice to our industry.

CHAPTER XXXII—Continued.

Haines was evidently reluctant, but sailor enough to follow as I lowered myself to the deck, clinging hard to keep my footing on the wet incline. A light spar had lodged here, and by making this a species of bridge, we crept as far as the companion, the door of which was open, and gained a view of the scene below. It was a dismal hole in the dim light, but presented no obstacle to our entrance, and I led the way down the stairs, gripping the rail to keep from falling.

The door of the captain's room gave, but it required our combined efforts to press it open against the volume of water, slushing about within. For a moment my eyes could scarcely recognize the various objects as I clung to the frame of the door and stared blindly about in the gloom. Then slowly they assumed shape and substance. Screwed to the deck, the furniture retained its place, but everything else was jammed in a mass of wreckage, or else floating about in a foot of water, deepening toward the stern. There were two chests in the room, one of which I instantly recognized as that of Roger Fairfax. The sight of this made me oblivious to all else.

"There's the chest we want, Haines," I cried, pointing it out. "Have the lads back the boat up to this port; then come down and help me handle it."

"Yes, sir," his voice trembling, "but— isn't that a man over there—in the bunk? Good God, sir; look at him!"

The white, ghastly face stared at us, looking like nothing human in that awful twilight. I actually thought it a ghost, until with desperate effort the man lifted himself, clinging with gaunt fingers to the edge of the bunk. Then I knew.

"Sanchez! You! those cowards left you here to die!"

"No one came for me," he answered, choking so the words were scarcely intelligible. "Who are you, and what brought you here?"

"I'll tell you frankly, Captain Sanchez, and I stepped closer. "We risked coming aboard to save that chest—Roger Fairfax's chest—before it went down. This vessel has its back broken, and may slide off into deep water at any minute. We must get you out of here first."

"Get me out!" he laughed hideously. "To hell with your help. I want none of it. I am a dead man now, and the easiest way to end all will be to go down with the ship—twice as fit a coffin for Black Sanchez. By God! I know you now—Geoffrey Carlyle!"

"Yes, but an enemy no longer."

"That is for me to say. I hate your race, your breed. The very sound of your name drives me mad. I accept no rescue from you! Damn you, take your gold and go."

"But why?" I insisted, shocked at the man's violence. "Is it because I interfered between you and Dorothy Fairfax?"

"That chit; bah, what do I care for her but as a plaything. No, my hate runs deeper than that. How came you here—in the boat stolen from the Namur?"

"No, Captain Sanchez. The day after we left the ship we boarded a schooner found adrift, the crew stricken with cholera, with not a man left alive on deck, or below. She lies yonder now, the Santa Marie—a slaver."

"Merciful God!" and his eyes fairly blazed into mine as he suddenly forced his body upward in the bunk. "The Santa Marie adrift! the crew dead from cholera? And the captain—Paradilla, Francis Paradilla—what of him?"

"He lay alone on a divan in the cabin—dead also."

He tried to speak, but failed, his fingers clawing at his throat. When he finally gained utterance once more it was but a whisper.

"Tell me," he begged, "there was no woman with him?"

"There was no woman," I said gravely, "on deck or in the cabin."

"What mean you by saying that? There was one on board! Don't lie to me! In an hour I am dead—but first tell me the truth. Does the woman live?"

"No, she died before. We found her body in a chest, preserved by some devilish Indian art, richly dressed and decked with jewels."

"English?"

"I judged her so, but with dark hair and eyes. You knew her?"

"In the name of all the fends, yes, And I know her end. He killed her—Paradilla killed her—because she was as false to him as she had been to me. Hell! but it is strange you should be the one to find her—to bring me this tale, Geoffrey Carlyle!"

"Why? What is it to me?"

"You go back to England and tell the duke of Buccleugh how his precious sister died."

"His sister! Good God, you cannot mean that woman was Lady Sara Carlyle!"

"Who should know better than I?—sneeringly. "Once a was called in England Sir John Collinswood."

He sank back exhausted, struggling for breath, but with eyes glowing hated. I knew it all now, the dimly remembered story coming vividly back to memory. Here then was the ending of the one black stain on the family honor of our race. On this strange coast, three thousand miles from its beginning, the final curtain was being rung down, the drama finished. The story had come to me in whispers from others, never even spoken about by those of our race—a wild, headstrong girl, a secret marriage, a duel in the park, her brother desperately wounded, and then the disappearance of the pair. Ten days later it was known that Sir John Collinswood had defaulted in a large sum—but from that hour England knew him no more. As though the sea had swallowed them both, man and woman disappeared, leaving no trace behind.

The face I gazed dumbly into was drawn and white with pain, yet the thin lips grinned back at me in savage derision.

"You remember, I see," he snarled. "Then out of here, Geoffrey Carlyle. Leave me to die in peace. The gold is there; take it, and my curse upon it. Hurry now—do you hear the bark grate on the rocks; it's near the end."

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Before the Governor.

The sound startled me; I imagined I heard the keel slipping, yet before we had reached the door opening on deck the slight movement ceased. My hand gripped the frightened Haines.

"Tell them in the boat to do as I said; then come back here."

"My God, sir, she's a goin' down."

"Not for some minutes yet. There are thousands of pounds in that chest; you've risked life for less many a time. Jump, my man!"

The boat lay in close, bobbing up and down dangerously, yet held firmly beneath the opened port. The box was heavy enough to tax the strength of two men to handle it, but of a size and shape permitting its passage. Sanchez had raised himself again, and clung there to the edge of the bunk watching us.

"Now let down easy, lads," I called. "No, place it amidships; get it even, or you go over. Fix it to ride steady, and stand by—we'll pass a wounded man out to you!"

I stepped across to Sanchez. He saw me coming, and drew back, his ghastly face like a mask.

"No you don't, Carlyle!" he snapped angrily. "Keep your hands off me. So you want me to die with my neck in a noose, do you? I was born a gentleman, and by God! I'll die like one—and go down with my ship. Get out of here now! You won't? You will, or else die here with me! I'll give you a minute to make your choice."

He left no doubt as to his meaning. From beneath the blanket, the black muzzle of a pistol looked straight into my eyes. The hand holding it was firm, the face fronting me savagely scornful.

"I'd like to kill you, Carlyle," he hissed hatefully. "By God, I don't know why I shouldn't. Every time I look at you I see her face. If you take a step nearer I pull the trigger—go!"

It was a hard pull back to the Santa Marie. Dorothy greeted me first, and we stood close together at the rail as the men hoisted the chest on deck. She said nothing, asked nothing, but her hands clung to my arm, and when ever I turned toward her eyes met, and a voice shouted:

"There she goes, buckles! That's the last o' the Namur!"

I turned swiftly, my hand grasping her fingers as they clung to the rail. The battered hull slid downward, the deck breaking amidships as the stern splashed into the depths; then that also toppled over, leaving nothing above water except the blunt end of a broken bowsprit, and a tangle of wreckage tossed about on the crest of the waves. I watched breathlessly, unable to utter a sound; I could only think of that stricken man in the cabin, those wild eyes which had threatened me. He was gone now—gone!

I yet held Dorothy's hand tightly clasped in my own, and the depths of her uplifted eyes questioned me.

"We will go aft, dear, and I will tell you the whole story," I said gently, "for now we are homeward bound."

I write these few closing lines a year later in the cabin of the Ocean Spray, a three master, full of the hatches with a cargo of tobacco, bound for London, and a market. Dorothy is on deck, eagerly watching for the first glimpse of the chalk cliffs of old England. I must join her presently, yet linger below to add these final sentences.

There is, after all, little which needs to be said. The voyage of the Santa Marie north proved uneventful and, after that first night of storm, the weather held pleasant and the sea fairly smooth. I had some trouble with the men, but nothing serious, as Watkins and Haines held as I did, and the pledge of Dorothy's influence brought courage. I refused to open the chest, believing our safety, and chance of pardon, would depend largely on our handing this over in good faith to the authorities. Watkins and I guarded it night and day until the schooner rounded the cape and came into the Chesapeake. No attempt was made to find quarters below, the entire crew sleeping on deck, Dorothy comfortable on the flag locker.

It was scarcely sunrise, on the fifth day, when we dropped anchor against the current of the James, our sails furled and the red English colors flying from the peak. Two hours later the entire company were in the presence of the governor, where I told my story, gravely listened to, supplemented by the earnest plea of the young woman. I shall never forget that scene, or how breathlessly we awaited the decision of the great man, who so closely watched our faces. They were surely a strange, rough group as they stood thus, hats in hand, waiting to learn their fate, shaggy-haired, unshaven, largely seum of the sea, never before in such presence, shuffling uneasily before his glance, feeling to the full the peril of their position. Their eyes turned to me questioningly.

Opposite us, behind a long table, sat the governor, dignified, austere, his hair powdered and face smoothly shaven; while on either side of him were those of his council, many of the faces stern and unforgiving. But for their gracious reception of Dorothy and their careful attention to her words I should have lost heart. They questioned me shrewdly, although the governor spoke but seldom, and then in a kindly tone of sympathy and understanding. One by one the men were called forward, each in turn compelled to tell briefly the story of his life; and when all was done the eyes of the governor sought those of the council.

"You have all alike heard the tale, gentlemen," he said. "Nothing like it hath ever before been brought before this colony. Would you leave decision to me?"

There was a murmur of assent, as though they were thus gladly relieved of responsibility in so serious a matter. The governor smiled, his kindly eyes surveying us once more; then, with extended hand he bade Dorothy be seated.

"The story is seemingly an honest one," he said slowly, "and these seamen have done a great service to the colony. They deserve reward rather than punishment. The fair lady who pleads for them is known to us all, and to even question her word is impossible. Unfortunately I have not the power of pardon in cases of piracy, nor authority to free bond slaves, without the approval of the home government; yet will exercise in this case whatsoever of power I possess. For gallant services rendered to the colony, and unselfish devotion to Mistress Dorothy Fairfax, I release Geoffrey Carlyle from servitude pending advice from England; I also grant parole to these seamen, on condition they remain within our jurisdiction until this judgment can be confirmed and full pardons issued. Is this judgment satisfactory, gentlemen?"

The members of the council bowed gravely, without speaking.

"The chest of treasure recovered from the sunken pirate ship," he went on soberly, "will remain unopened until final decision is made. As I understand, Master Carlyle, no one among you has yet seen its contents, or estimated its value?"

"No, your excellency. Beyond doubt it contains the gold stolen from Roger Fairfax; and possibly the result of other robberies at sea."

"The law of England is that a certain percentage of such recovered treasure belongs to the crown, the remainder, its true ownership undetermined, to be fairly divided among those recovering it."

"Yet," spoke up Dorothy quickly, "if must surely be possible to waive all claim in such cases?"

"Certainly; as private property it can be disposed of in any way desired. Was that your thought?"

"A Fairfax always pays his debt," she said proudly, "and this is mine."

There was a moment's silence at though each one present hesitated to speak. She had risen, and yet stood, but with eyes lowered to the floor. Then they were lifted and met mine in all frank honesty.

"There is another debt I owe," she said clearly, "and would pay, your excellency."

"What is that, fair mistress?"

She crossed to me, her hand upon my arm.

"To become the wife of Geoffrey Carlyle."

THE END.

Orioles.

As for myself I am turned contractor of hammock netting for the orioles, taking my pay in notes. I throw strings out of the window and they snap them up at once. They sit in the cherry trees hard by and wait for me, "Hurry up! hurry up." I never found out before just what they said. But if you will listen you will find that this is what they first say. A vulgarian, I admit, but native—Lowell

Variations In Fall Styles

To say the least, suits for fall have been presented in greatly varying styles, much to the satisfaction of women who aspire to looking more slender than they really are, as well as those whose aspirations are all in the other direction. In spite of the persistence with which fashion artists draw attenuated ladies, in writhing poses, for our admiration, women continue sensible enough to object to looking angular and skinny. The designers of suits have been kind and there are new models for the too slender and the stout figure. The possessor of a "model thirty-six," or any other model of good proportions, can choose any of the various styles.

At the right of the two suits, shown in the picture above, is a model that will simply shave off pounds from the stout figure. Long and gently curving lines, almost unbroken from head to heels, are cleverly calculated to deceive the eye and smooth out the sharp curves in stout figures. American women having insisted on longer skirts, Paris accepted their decree, and this suit takes advantage of the mode to go to an extreme of it. By this means the figure is lengthened. The coat follows the same strategy and note that the waist line is indicated as very long by the group of three narrow tucks in the back of the coat that end in an arrow head, or "crow toes," far below the normal waistline. Silk embroidery on two flat strips of cloth, applied at the sides in the same color as the suit. These bands are a concession or a recognition of the vogue for widened hip lines, but they do not actually widen the figure at all. The suit is made of dark brown tricotine.

The model at the left is an interpretation of the Russian blouse suit, always dear to the thin woman. The plain skirt is shoe-top length. The coat has a full blouse and a skirt gathered in at the natural waist line, giving fullness about the hips. It is short enough to break the figure and prettily decorated with a round silk braid couched on. In this coat the choker collar is made of opossum fur and arranged to fasten up about the chin. In the other suit, fur is left out, but the popular choker collar is retained, made of the fabric and decorated with carefully done embroidery.

For the blouse suit, one of those new cloths that have a silvery sheen, due to a napped surface of gray tone (which is used with all colors) looks particularly well with the gray tones in the fur collar.

Alas, yes! suits are expensive especially when embroidered. But clever women have been known to buy a plain suit and put embroidery on it themselves, thereby saving about $25 and presenting themselves with an exclusive design.

Ribbon for Costumes.

Ribbon is used to a considerable extent by American designers making up their autumn models. And a big use of ribbon prevails in the development of costumes for several important and extensive theatrical productions.

Economy Corner

The business woman must usually be her own beauty doctor, and she need not regret this if she gives herself fifteen minutes time at the end of each day, just before retiring. The hands, as well as the face and scalp, must have systematic attention.

Many girls who do office work, or sell goods over a counter, injure their hands unnecessarily by not washing them often, for much damage is done the nails and skin by permitting an accumulation of dirt to remain in the pores for several hours.

When cleansing hands so stained, soap and water should not be the first application, for nothing but a soft glycerine will be effective.

The finger tips require several extra strokes. Rinsing must be thorough. Drying finishes the cleaning, but is not the simple process that many persons think, and in the manner of doing it lies half the secret of having pretty nails. Each finger must be taken separately, the towel rubbed down the sides, back and front, beginning at the top.

The common mistake is to begin at the finger base and rub up, which simply trains the cuticle down over the nails and thickens the tips. Every nail must be wiped individually, commencing at the top and pressing gently down to the crescent at the base of the nail.

File the Finger Nails.

To keep the nails in good condition, always file them, never use the scissors to cut. Cleanse under the nails with equal parts of lemon juice and water. Use an orange-wood stick; also keep the cuticle around the nails smooth. Polish the nails whenever necessary.

Nails that break easily must be given a course of olive oil. It should be rubbed into the finger tips each night. Massage well and occasionally give the fingers a bath in hot olive oil.

If it is not convenient to use the oil, vaseline is a good substitute. Whenever doing rough work the fingers should be protected with gloves. If it is not comfortable to wear them over the whole hand, fingers can be cut from old gloves.

Polish for Nails.

An inexpensive and harmless nail polish is made by thoroughly mixing together a half ounce of talcum powder, a half ounce of powdered starch, a half ounce of pulverized borax acid and 15 drops of tincture of camphor. Do not rub the nails until the sensitive flesh beneath burns, as this causes them to become dry and brittle.

GET READY FOR "FLU"

Keep Your Liver Active, Your System Purified and Free From Colds by Taking Calotabs, the Nauseless Calomel Tablets, that are Delightful, Safe and Sure.

Physicians and Druggists are advising their friends to keep their systems purified and their organs in perfect working order as a protection against the return of influenza. They know that a clogged up system and a lazy liver favor colds, influenza and serious complications.

To cut short a cold overnight and to prevent serious complications take one Calotab at bedtime with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea, no griping, no sickening after effects. Next morning your cold has vanished, your liver is active, your system is purified and refreshed and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you please—no danger. Calotabs are sold only in original sealed packages, price thirty-five cents. Every druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not perfectly delighted with Calotabs.—(Adv.)

Cooking a Dinner.

Flatbush—I heard that a tin dinner pall on the ground near a house at Palms, Mich., reflected the sun's rays against the house. Smoke was seen and then there was a blaze.

Was Laid Up In Bed

Doan's, However, Restored Mrs. Vogt to Health and Strength. Hasn't Suffered Since.

"I had one of the worst cases of kidney complaint imaginable," says Mrs. Wm. Vogt, 4315 Audrey Ave., Walsaton, Mo., "and I was laid up in bed for days at a time."

"My bladder was inflamed and the kidney secretions caused terrible pain. The trouble was in such bad shape that when I moved the pains were like a knife thrust. I got so dizzy I couldn't stand and my head just throbbled with pain. Heads of perspiration would stand on my temples, then I would become cold and numb. My heart action was affected and I felt as though I couldn't take another breath. I got so nervous and run down, I felt life wasn't worth living and often wished that I might die so my suffering would be ended. Medicine failed to help me and I was discouraged."

"Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I could tell I was being helped after the first few doses. I kept getting better every day and continued use cured me. My health improved in every way and best of all, the cure has been permanent. I feel that Doan's saved my life. Sincerely,

ELITE CAFE

THE BEST FOR LESS

(ON CORNER NEXT TO HIGHWAY)

Having recently been discharged from the U. S. Army, I have established a Cafe in your little City, and though having been here only a short time, have contributed freely to your funds for road work, county fair, premium on cotton, etc.

Now, on the basis of Honesty, Fair Treatment and Good Citizenship, I ask that you spend your money with a man who will spend it with you.

We are equipped to give you unexcelled service at a reasonable price, and we invite you to give us a trial and see how we treat you.

For the benefit of the farmers, we serve a regular meal for less than it costs you to eat anywhere on the Denver Road. Being a farmer's son, I am interested in the farmer, and will endeavor at all times to render you any accommodation in my line. If you need me after closing hours, call me at Room 3, Kennedy Hotel.

THEY GAVE MORE THAN LIFE

One of the least known but most appealing of Red Cross activities is the work it is doing in cooperation with the Government for blinded service men. In the environs of Baltimore there is a beautiful country home, loaned to the Red Cross, where soldiers, sailors and marines are learning to face the future with a smile.

The Red Cross is endeavoring to aid these blinded American soldiers back into lives of real usefulness. Opportunities for training in business, trades or professions which are open to blind men are available. The boys call themselves "blinks." No one is so called until he has been declared officially blind—that is blind beyond the hope of recovery. The "Blinks" dance and swim and skate and bowl, and then there is work to be done. They can be seen strolling about Evergreen surefooted, heads erect and with expectant smiles—soldiers in the finest sense that the word implies. For these men who gave more than life, the Red Cross provides a means of starting life anew.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Womens' complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

But if you can't stay in bed you must keep out of draughts, avoid sudden changes, eat sparingly of simple food and take occasional doses of Boschee's Syrup, which you can buy at any store where medicine is sold, a safe and efficient remedy, made in America for more than fifty years. BUNGALOWS ARE POPULAR NOW

California Type of Five-Room Structure Described.

MAKES A COMFORTABLE HOME

Design Provides a Convenient Arrangement of Comfortable Rooms—is Attractive and Inexpensive to Build.

By WM. A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

There are two good reasons why bungalows are popular. One is the air of coziness that the exterior gives, and the other is that the rooms all are on one floor, simplifying the work of the housekeeper. Bungalows are popular now, but in California a great proportion of the homes built follow this type of architectural design.

The bungalow here pictured is a good example of an inexpensive home. The walls are sided to the height of the window sills, and covered with "shakes," or shingles above. Both are painted green. The porch piers and the chimneys are constructed of rough brick, and the roof is of a gray roofing composition. The attractive porch is floored with concrete.

The dimensions of the house are 26 by 45 feet, just the right size for a small lot. The five rooms are the living and dining rooms, kitchen and two bedrooms; and bath room, of course.

Additional features are the front porch, 16 by 8 feet, and a screened-in rear porch, 9 by 6 feet. The ceilings of the living and dining rooms are beamed, and the walls of the latter are finished with a panel wainscot and plate rail. The woodwork of the two rooms is of pine, stained in a dark mission oak color. These rooms have oak floors. The woodwork in the other rooms is of pine, enameled white, and the floors are of pine.

The living room has a wide, open fireplace, and there is a built-in buffet in the dining room. Bookcases are built-in on either side of the fireplace. The kitchen is well-equipped with cupboards and other conveniences, and each bedroom has a closet. As this house is built there is no basement under it, but any contractor can construct one to take care of the heating plant and provide space for the storage of vegetables, etc.

The floor plan that accompanies the exterior view of this bungalow shows how well the rooms are arranged for comfort and for the convenience of the housekeeper. The living and dining rooms and kitchen all are at the front of the house; the two bedrooms are at the rear, and the bathroom adjoins them. The living room opens out on the front porch, while the dining room is at the front of the house also. All are good-sized rooms; larger than the average small house contains.

Such a home as this should appeal to the prospective builder who wants a comfortable, convenient and attractive little house, that comparatively is not costly to build.

The first thing that a person who wants to build should consider: What sort of a home do I need? It is not a wise policy to put a $3,000 building on a $3,000 lot; neither is it good business to have the home far out of proportion to the value of the site. This is because the time may come when it is necessary to sell, and building a house that is readily saleable makes it a good investment.

After the site is selected, before the plan finally is determined upon, it is well to consult the local architect, the contractor who is expected to build the house and the material dealer, who will supply the lumber and other materials that are to go into the building. These men through education and experience are building specialists and can give the prospective builder some valuable advice about the plan and the materials to be used.

The advantages of building a home, rather than buying one already constructed are many. The owner by building can get the sort of an exterior that appeals to him; and the women members of the family can have incorporated in the plan the little conveniences that they have seen in other homes that appealed to them. After the home is erected every member of the family will have the sort of house that he or she believes is best suited to their needs. Owning a home requires, in a majority of cases, systematic saving. Systematic saving is undoubtedly the greatest method by which to secure assets that will come in mighty handy in the future. By obligating oneself to pay for a home, as the years go by an asset will be created in place of a bundle of rent receipts. The home owner, when he moves into his own home, at once becomes a more stable member of his community; one who is looked upon as a fixture and not a transient. To him will come business opportunities that pass by the renter; likewise his family will be accepted in social circles that are denied to those who do not own their own homes. But best of all, is the satisfaction that comes from knowing that the place in which you live is yours, to fix up as you see fit.

Home building now is on the boom. Rents are high and houses scarce. The money that is paid for rent will pay for a home. With a small amount of cash, the local banker or building and loan association, or real estate man will provide the family man with the sort of home he wants; built according to his ideas of what a home should be. Building and owning a home is good business.

Air Waves.

That aircraft actually navigate a kind of invisible sea is revealed by a series of motion pictures, the first of their kind ever taken, that show the air in motion against the wings of an airplane. Three miles of film were used in making the photographs, and they reveal the plane, instead of being continuously upheld by the air, traveling from crest to crest of a series of waves; in more technical words, the element of rarefaction which produces the lifting power of an airplane is not constant, but is exerted in intermittent moving air waves, not unlike the waves of the ocean. These air waves have their period of formation, followed by a collapse which, again like the sea, has its undertow; and, during more than a quarter of the time in flight, the air flow created by the air screws has no lifting power on the wings. To take the pictures required a special camera devised by the invention section of the United States army.

Trance Treatment.

Dr. Thomas Pomeroy, a New York physician, is quite an unusual type of doctor, with methods peculiar to himself. When a patient presents himself, Doctor Pomeroy, instead of subjecting him to the conventional examination, takes the patient by the hand, and goes into a kind of trance.

During this trance he analyzes all the patient's symptoms before "coming back to earth," and dictates a prescription which is taken down on the spot by his niece, who has been his assistant for many years. He uses nothing but herbs in treating his patients, and generally is averse to surgery.

When the trance is over Doctor Pomeroy is seldom able to remember what he said while it lasted, but the method is said to be so unerring that some of the most successful medical men call him as second opinion in cases where they are in doubt of the correctness of their own diagnoses.

The Mighty Knitting Needle.

More than 22,000,000 knitted articles were turned out by Red Cross women from the time the United States entered the war to the end of last March. The pen may be mightier than the sword, but both will have to take a back seat from the knitting needle.

Germans Grow Rapidly.

Germans which grow in food and cause illness grow very rapidly, particularly if the food is a little warm, and are not destroyed unless the food is well cooked before serving. Simply "warming up" is not enough.

GOODBY, WOMEN'S TROUBLES

The tortures and discomforts of weak, lame and aching back, swollen feet and limbs, weakness, dizziness, nausea, as a rule have their origin in kidney trouble, not "female complaints." These general symptoms of kidney and bladder disease are well known—so is the remedy.

Next time you feel a twinge of pain in the back or are troubled with headache, indigestion, insomnia, irritation in the bladder or pain in the loins and lower abdomen, you will find quick and sure relief in GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. This old and tried remedy for kidney trouble and allied derangements has stood the test for hundreds of years. It does the work. Pains and troubles vanish and new life and health will come as you continue their use. When completely restored to your usual vigor, continue taking a capsule or two each day.

*GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules are imported from the laboratories at Haarlem, Holland. Do not accept a substitute. In sealed boxes, three sizes.—Adv.

Too Ill to Work

Scores of Women

in homes, stores, offices and factories are not fit to be at work. They toil on day after day and year after year suffering with distressing weaknesses and derangements, hoping against hope that they will soon feel better, but how can they hope to do good work or escape permanent invalidism?

Such women are in danger of derangement of women's functions. They owe it to themselves to try that good old fashioned root and herb remedy Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for more than forty years has been restoring American Women to health and strength.

Here is a Notable Example

Joplin, Missouri.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to see if it really would do as it was advertised and it sure did, and more. I was weak and could not do much work, had bearing down pains and had to go to bed. I learned about the Vegetable Compound from my mother and my husband told me to get it. After taking one bottle I was able to be on my feet most of the time and do my work again. I have a baby eleven months old and I have done all my own work, even the washing and ironing since she was three weeks old. I certainly recommend your great medicine to everyone who complains of female trouble and I am more than willing for you to use my testimonial." —Mrs. TIMOTHY GRANEY, 426 Connor Ave., Joplin, Mo.

And Another

Chicago, Illinois.—"I suffered for four years with pains in my sides, hips and legs and a terrible backache. I could not do any work at all. I was treated by many physicians but they did not help me. I read in one of your books where other women have been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I tried it and it helped me very much so that now I can do everything in the house. I have told my friends about Vegetable Compound and you have my permission to use this letter." —Mrs. I. OVENSTEIN, 902 S. Marshfield Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Thousands of such Letters Prove the Curative Value of

BUT THERE ARE STILL MANY GREAT PROBLEMS TO BE SOLVED

ONE OF THEM IS THAT REPRESENTATIVES OF
Foreign Lands are in the wholesale markets of the U.
S. begging for Shoes, Dry Goods and Clothing, and offering them higher prices than they are asking the merchants. This has partially, or largely caused the high cost of living.

FORTY-TWO CENT COTTON IS HERE; the fact is accepted that higher priced goods will be the result.
We are in position to sell you more merchandise for less money. We have a chain of stores, buy in large quantities at a reduction, and give our customers the benefit of this saving.

J. M. HOGGARD DEAD

Some sad news came to W. Z.
Hoggard this week, he having been notified of the death of his oldest brother, J. M. Hoggard, of Chandler, Ariz. The following paragraphs are taken from a long article in the Chandler Arizonan:

J. M. Hoggard, one of the best known characters in Chandler district and affectionately known as "Uncle Jim," was hit by the Chandler Goodyear stage Wednesday night at the Weber drug store crossing. He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, Phoenix, where he died Thursday of shock brought on by his injuries.

Uncle Jim was born 69 years ago in west Texas, spending his early life on the Texas frontiers.
He came here in 1914 and was a contractor and builder. Four married children survive. Mrs.
Hoggard was visiting her children at the time in Oklahoma.
Four brothers survive, W. H. and
R. E., here, and W. Z. and C. P., in Texas and Oklahoma.

His parents emigrated to Texas from Tennessee in 1837, and Wade and Jim, the two oldest, were inseparable companions
throughout his life. Mr. Hoggard's death causes hundreds of friends to mourn his demise and they will miss his cheery greetings and kindly goodfellowship.
