CHRISTIAN CHURCH

The First Christian Church will open her doors the first Lord's Day in October. Clarendon and Memphis will close their Bible School contest on Sept. 26, and will meet in joint session with the Hedley congregation at 9:45. At 11 o'clock communion and preaching services will be conducted by the visitors.

Let every one come, for there is a welcome awaiting all who will worship with us. We especially invite all other communions in town to worship with us at the 11 o'clock services.

In the afternoon the local Bible School will be organized.

SYRUP BUCKETS WANTED

NOTICE

This is to notify the people of Precinct 3, Donley county, that the county will not do any more road work, except in washouts where it is absolutely necessary, as money is exhausted.

Will ask you not to expect too much of your next Commissioner, for his hands will be tied for a while in a financial way.

Do a little road work free, and don't expect the county to do it all because you pay a little road tax. We haven't raised your tax on a level with the price of labor.
Respectfully,
J. G. McDougal.

FIRST STATE COTTON

A bale of cotton was brought in Friday by D. M. Tims & Culwell, Hedley, Texas.

Business men quickly got up a premium of $80 and presented it to Mr. Fitzgerald. After discussing the matter, and considering the fact that the county fair was then in progress at Clarendon, it was decided to take the bale on to Clarendon, which Mr. Fitzgerald did. We understand he was given a $50 premium up there, and sold the bale at 30c.

MEMPHIS FAIR BOOSTERS

About fifteen auto loads of Memphis people were in Hedley Wednesday morning, boosting the Hall County Fair, to be held in Memphis Sept. 28 to Oct. 1. Quite a number of ladies were in the party. The Memphis Band was also present, and rendered some excellent selections for the crowd which gathered around them on Main street. They remained here about thirty minutes, but there was too much hustling around for us to succeed in getting a personnel of the party in that short time. From remarks heard during and since the "invasion," quite a number of Hedley people will attend their Fair.

Hedley friends regretted very much to learn of the death of Dr. J. Q. Durham of Memphis, which occurred on Wednesday of last week. Some weeks ago Dr. Durham suffered a stroke of paralysis, from which he never rallied sufficiently to leave his bed.

H. M. Crawford and members of his family have returned from a trip to points down state.

THE PARTNERSHIP OF MAN AND WIFE

Home Engineering is the most important business man and wife are engaged in. It is the greatest partnership in life. In successful home building there is need of a growing bank account—money should be saved and kept track of, else home engineering will be fraught with difficulties.

The friendship, courtesy, service and accommodations of this bank are freely offered to the home builders of Donley county.

May we help you by safely caring for your money, making it "go further" for you? A growing bank account is an anchor to windward.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased. Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble. Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions. Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Crops Very Brief.
A southern plantation owner was inquiring of one of his renters the condition of the crops. The renter was true to type in her love for unusual words.
"How is your crop coming along, 'gantle'?" was the question.
"Briefly, Mister Smith, briefly," was her reply. "Ise mighty 'traid you is going to have to produce my rent this fall."

Ten minutes later O'Hara re-entered with a lanky and embarrassed companion.

CLEANS OUT TONES UP WHOLE SYSTEM

When you're clogged up by CONSTIPATION, jaundiced by a torpid LIVER, devitalized by poor BLOOD or soured by DYSPEPSIA your case calls for Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup—an old physician's famous prescription, in successful use for 68 years as an all-around family medicine.

GO ROADS

Grayson visiting his home, the past contemplating an improvement in Donley county roads. He understands. GOOD roads and family, from problems in skin county. While it is true that with his ways must be made, who lives in the road. Public discussions are still in progress. The first point touched is that the public highway is a potential short-haul freight and express line, and that with a national system of improved roads intersecting each state north, south, east and west there will thus be constructed the basis of a comprehensive nation-wide system of traffic arteries with which state and county systems may connect. With such a system provided the development of freight and express transportation is anticipated far beyond comprehension, says Chicago Tribune. Its advocates assert that the motortruck as it appears on the public highways today is but an infant to what it will be once the public roads are built to permit its enlarged use.

Those who doubt the possibilities of the highway freight and express as factors in the reduction and stabilizing of food costs are told to look back over the development of the railway and note that the beginning was upon a basis far less promising as a practical proposition than the basis upon which the gasoline driven vehicle stands today.

Dropping back to the point of short-haul delivery, attention is being called to the fact that the radius of highway shipping is being gradually extended as modern roads are being built. Advocates of a national highway system, the creation of which is provided for in the Townsend bill now pending in congress, have encountered the argument that approximately 50 miles is the maximum of motor delivery. Their answer is that while this may be true, it is true only at the present time because of the illogical connections and the general condition of the roads.

The same economic conditions which forced railway development are forcing a national development of the public highway, and the advocates of a national highway system assert that each day's discussion of the present economic situation produces additional reasons why the federal government must get down to highway building on a nationwide scale and in deep earnest.

In a sense the legislative mind at Washington seems to be approaching the present phase of economic problems somewhat in a spirit of weariness. "Will we ever get anything really finished?" is a question which seems to express their feelings, since so many problems, like the proverbial cat, keep coming back.

But one fact seems to be making itself very clear, and that is that since the public highway is the best lap between the producer and consumer, the logical place to begin cutting down living costs is by eliminating permanently the time-consuming and fuel-wasting roads. To accomplish this purpose the construction of a national highway system as a necessary and logical connection with state and county systems is being looked upon with increased favor.

Bond Issues Pending.
Legislation to authorize good roads bond issues amounting to $391,253,800 are pending with excellent chances of being passed.

POULTRY FLOCKS

FOOD PRODUCTS FROM FOWLS

An Average Farm Poultry Furnish About 10 Per Cent of Meat for Family Use.

A large proportion of the poultry products of this country are produced on general farms. Nearly every farm has its poultry flock. The average American farmer reserves about three dozen eggs a week for family use and about 50 fowls are consumed by the family during the year. These food products can be secured absolutely fresh, which considerably enhances the value of this contribution from the farm, says the United States department of agriculture. Of the meat furnished by the farm to the operator and his family, poultry constitutes about 10 per cent.

A small flock of poultry can be kept on the farm at little cost. The fowls find scattered grain about the farmstead and on the adjoining grain fields after harvest. Garden refuse and kitchen waste are usually available for them. They also feed on insects and worms. In many cases the farmer's wife and children find pleasure in caring for the flock.

STEW OR SELL ALL ROOSTERS

Male Bird Does Not Aid in Production of Eggs and Should Be Disposed Of in Summer.

Farmers lose many millions of dollars annually from bad methods of producing and handling eggs. Much of this loss is preventable, because it is due to the partial hatching of fertile eggs, which have been allowed to become warm enough to begin to incubate. You can help save the loss due to blood rings by keeping the male bird from your flock after the hatching season is over. The rooster does not help the hens to lay. He merely fertilizes the germ of the egg. The fertile germ in hot weather quickly becomes a blood ring, which spoils the egg for food and market. Summer heat has the same effect on fertile eggs as the hen of incubator. After the hatching season is over, cook, sell, or pen your rooster. Your hens not running with a male bird will produce infertile eggs—quality eggs that keep best and market best.—United States Department of Agriculture.

Hens Not Running With Rooster Produce Best Eggs for Market and Preservation.

CLEAN CONDITION OF FLOCK

Boards Under Roosts Make It Easy to Remove Droppings Daily—Little Sand Helps.

To keep the flock in a clean and sanitary condition dropping boards should be provided and roosts above them. This makes it easy to remove the droppings each morning and helps greatly to keep the house free from objectionable odors. A little sand sprinkled on the dropping boards after each cleaning will make the cleaning easier.

HOMEMADE HOPPER IS HANDY

Joint of Stovepipe and Wooden Box Make Convenient Device for Feeding Dry Mash.

An easy way to make a hopper for feeding dry mash to poultry is with a joint of stovepipe and a wooden box, 10x10x4 inches. Set the box on the floor and hang the stovepipe from the roof so that it is about 1/2 inch from the bottom of the box. Fill the pipe with the dry mash. It will feed down into the box as the chickens eat it out.

POULTRY NOTES

Facts for Sick Women

Reliable Information

All American women know of the great success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in restoring to health women who suffered from ailments peculiar to their sex, yet there are some who are skeptical and do not realize that all that is claimed for it is absolutely true—if they did, our laboratory would not be half large enough to supply the demand, though today it is the largest in the country used for the manufacture of one particular medicine. The facts contained in the following two letters should prove of benefit to many women:

Buffalo, N. Y.—"I suffered with organic inflammation and displacement. When lifting I had such pain and bearing down that I was not able to stand up, and it hurt me to walk or go up or down stairs. I was going to a doctor without any results and he said the safest thing would be to have an operation. I met a lady who told me she had had three operations and was not well until she took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I felt relief after taking two bottles of Vegetable Compound and I kept on with it until I was cured. I always use Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and they are fine. Everything used to turn sour on my stomach and the Liver Pills relieved that."—Mrs. A. ROOSTER, 553 Fargo Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y.

Sacramento, Calif.—"I had organic trouble and had such terrible pain and swelling in the lower part of my side that I could not stand on my feet or even let the bed clothes touch my side. I gave up my work thinking I would not be able to go back for months. My mother advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it had saved her life at one time, and it put me in a wonderful condition in a couple of weeks, so I can keep on working. I work in a department store and have to stand on my feet all day and I do not have any more pains. I surely recommend your Vegetable Compound to all my friends and you may use those facts as a testimonial."—BETSY J. PARKER, 3350 M St., Sacramento, Calif.

SCORE ONE FOR DIPLOMACY HONEYMOON SURELY AT END

Will Be General Agreement That Little Joe Deserved the Treat He Was Looking For.

Little Joe had been told that he could not go to grandmother's house before the end of the week. And he wished very much to go right away, for grandmother had a new kind of cooky. He coaxed mother, but to no avail, so he decided to try strategy. "Mother," he said sweetly, "when I get to be grown and away from home I'm still a-going to come back and see you every day." Mother was delighted. "That will be grand," she said. "I do hope you will remember that promise."

"Yes," Joe was positive, "and if anything should happen that I couldn't come any day I'm going to be sure to send your grandchildren to make up for me, so you'll know I remembered you."

He made the trip to grandmother's house that afternoon.

Sad it is when the brief story of the honeymoon departs, leaving only the prospect of the endless monotony of ordinary life ahead.

But that was where the Smiths stood. Their honeymoon had soon waned under the stress of modern life. In fact, Mrs. Smith was already adopting the policy of masterly inactivity; even hubby's most loving of dearmost couldn't get a kind word out of her.

The tiff happened on Wednesday, and lasted till Sunday morning, when he, attired for his usual stroll, asked her:

"What is for dinner today, my dear?" His suave voice and winning smile earned for him a brief retort. The lady replied with more force than grace:

"Oh, rats!" But he was not caught unaware. With a sweet smile he countered with the remark:

"Well, don't cook one for me, darling; I think I'll have dinner out!"

MAN O' WAR Horse of the Century?

IS MAN O' WAR the horse of the century? This is the topic of topics wherever lovers of the thoroughbred and racing enthusiasts gather. The eastern race-going public has gone simply crazy over this 3-year-old chestnut colt by Fair Play-Mahubah, by Rock Sand, bred by Maj. August Belmont, owned by Samuel D. Riddle of Philadelphia, trained by Louis Feustel, ridden by Jockey Clarence Kummer, and raced in the name of the Glen Riddle farm. His appearance packs the track to capacity. Crowds mill around the paddock to get a "close-up" of him. The thousands of horse-lovers can't bet on him—his odds are prohibitive. They just want to see him. And the applause he gets—well, it's past all describing. There's only one trouble—he practically scares out all competitors. But to make amends he usually breaks a record.

Even veteran professional turf writers permit themselves to speak of Man o' War as the "undisputed champion of the American turf," "champion of champions among thoroughbreds past and present," and so on. Some of them get almost hysterical. Here's the New York Tribune, for instance, on Man o' War's performance in the Dwyer stakes at Aqueduct:

"Man o' War, the handsome 3-year-old chestnut colt of Samuel D. Riddle, which earlier this season had established himself as the greatest thoroughbred of the age, proved himself the horse of eternity at Aqueduct yesterday afternoon. One stops, awestruck, in contemplation of this God's mightiest handiwork in horseflesh. Words are inadequate to describe him. The great colt, the perfect horse, the irreproachable son of Fair Play, did what no other horse of history ever did: he ran a mile and a furlong in 1:40 1-5."

Man o' War is a great horse. Now, to discuss him intelligently it must be defined. So, what is a great horse? Well, a great horse, like a great man, is hard to define. But it is axiomatic that a great horse must have certain qualities. He must have speed. He must have courage. He must be able to carry weight. He must be able to run a distance. He must have the intelligence to win the race. He must be consistent in performance. He must be willing to do his best. Desirable qualities are a good disposition, an amiable temperament, a rugged constitution, and a good body. And above all he must have that something called class—that something that enables the stake horse to hook up with the rest in the stretch, look him in the eye and to win.

It would seem too much to expect of horseflesh that one individual should have all these qualities. Nevertheless, Man o' War apparently has them. Anyway, here are some of the exact details of this sensation of the racing season.

ever done. J. E. Madden bought him for $50,000 and retired him to the stud. J. H. Rosseter, the California sportsman and breeder, bought Friar Rock and some mares and their foals for $100,000. One of these foals, Incheape, hailed as a second Man o' War, was bought the other day by S. C. Hildreth for $150,000. Mr. Rosseter let Incheape go because he thinks some of the others of this first crop of Friar Rock youngsters are better still, but he refused Hildreth's offer of $250,000 for Friar Rock.

Mr. Riddle bought Man o' War on a bid of $5,000 at the Belmont yearling sale of 1918 at Saratoga, at which three other colts brought upward of $13,000 each.

As a 2-year-old Man o' War ran nine races and won them all except the Sanford Memorial at Saratoga. In that stake J. Loftus got him practically left at the post and he was beaten a neck by H. P. Whitney's Upset in 1:31 1-5. At the next meeting Man o' War beat Upset like breaking sticks. Incidentally, J. Loftus could get no license to ride this year.

Up to July 10 Man o' War had run five races this year and had won them all—the Breakers, Withers, Stuyvesant, Belmont and Dwyer. As a 2-year-old he won $83,325. His victory in the Dwyer brought his 1920 winnings to $44,475, and made him the leading money-winning horse of the year. Were his owner a stake-hog instead of a sportsman, he could doubtless have won the rich Kentucky and Latonia derbies with the colt.

Man o' War as a 2-year-old met and defeated the best of his age, including Upset, Golden Broom, Blazes, King Thrush, Cleopatra, Dominique and John P. Grier. The racing world recognized his quality and asked: "Will he go on as a 3-year-old?" Man o' War answered the question by winning the Preakness at Pimlico last spring from Upset, Wildair and King Thrush in 1:51 3-5 for the mile and an eighth with 126 pounds up.

The champion's next appearance was in the historic Withers at Belmont May 29. He won from Wildair and David Harum, running the mile in 1:35 4-5 with 118 pounds up. This is a new American record, the fastest mile in actual racing. The record was set by that of 1:36 1-5, held jointly by Fair Play and Fairy Wand. Yet Man o' War was not only hard held and was eighth.

Whitney string of high-class 3-year-olds. Man o' War carried 126 pounds and John P. Grier 108. The shrewdest handicappers gave John P. Grier an undeniable chance and reckoned on a thrilling race. They got it. The two horses ran neck and neck to the last sixteenth. Here they went to the whip. John P. Grier cracked and Man o' War went on to win, ridden out, by a length and a half.

The time, 1:49 1-5, is a new world record. The previous American was one-fifth of a second slower and was held jointly by Borrow and Boots. Brown Prince ran the distance in England in 1917 in 1:50 2-5 with 105 pounds up. The best Australian time is 1:52. Man o' War ran the quarter in 23 2-5, the half in 46, the three-quarters in 1:09 2-5, and the mile in 1:35 3-5. So the horse ran faster than the records all the way around. Donau's half-mile in 46 1-5 at Los Angeles has stood since 1909. Artful's three-quarters over the straight course at Morris Park in 1:09 3-5 has stood since 1904. The mile in 1:35 3-5 was one-fifth second faster than Man o' War's new record in the Withers.

Man o' War is watched day and night. His personal caretaker is Frank Loftus. Clive Gordon rides him in his work. His stable name is Red. He hasn't a mean hair on him. He has a tremendous appetite, sleeps like a tired boy and apparently has no nerves. The cheering crowds do not excite him. A race like the Dwyer does not upset him in the least. He is perfectly sound, has never been cut or bruised in a race and has never even sneezed since Mr. Riddle got him. And he'd rather run that, eat. Those who know his work say he can break any record he goes after.

Man o' War seems to enjoy the parade and the applause and acts his prettiest. He is well-behaved at the post. He is a quick breaker. He runs with full enjoyment of the race. He travels so smoothly and with so little friction that experts pronounce his action perfection.

Clarence Kummer rode Man o' War in all his races this year. Two days after the running of the Dwyer, Kummer's mount, Costly Colors, fell and the jockey got a bad fall, which sent him to the hospital. It was said later by Mr. Riddle that Kummer would be in shape to ride Man o' War in his fall engagements.

Man o' War is not for sale at any price. Mr. Riddle was offered $200,000 before the horse was raced this year; the latest offer made was $300,000 by Joseph L. Murphy of New York. Mr. Riddle plans to have Man o' War in black and yellow silks for the fall, then put him at the head of the parade.

TWO SEASONABLE COATS AND A HAT

IF ANYTHING can reconcile a sumptuous world to the coming of autumn and winter, the coats and hats with which we are to face the cold ought to qualify. There is nothing in their makeup to even suggest depression and everything that speaks of comfort and brilliance is theirs. They are here before the autumn leaves and will still be here when the leaves are gone, adding as much to the glory of the year as lies in the power of human beings to contribute. The coats are made of materials that are soft, thick, in textures that reveal the richness of quiet colors.

Long lines tapering in toward the bottom are chosen for many coats. Very ample collars in the cape, muffler and shawl varieties make them look equal to protecting one against the most frigid weather and altogether the new models are very graceful.

One of these long, cozy coats appears at the left of the two shown in the picture. It is shaped to hang in toward the bottom and has a group of buttons down the middle of the back, accented by rows of large covered buttons at each side. There is a very ample cape collar and equally generous sleeves with deep cuffs.

A shorter coat in a lighter color appears at the right. Its distinguishing feature is the oddity of its construction. Whoever is looking for something new will find it here for the designer appears to have centered his attention on originality and to have a passion for difficult workmanship. Very fine tailoring is evident in the wide folds across the back bordered by narrow tucks. The sleeves abide by the mode in being full and present cuffs lengthened to the elbow at the back and finished with cloth-covered buttons. Another surprise waits in two slit pockets at each side that find place in an unlooked-for drapery. Finally the coat ends its eccentric career at the knees, being considerably shorter than the average.

The round hat has a duvetine crown and a puff of brocaded ribbon about the face. A band of plain, narrow ribbon, with small beads set at intervals about it, finishes the band and there are small appliqued motifs of the narrow ribbon set on the brocade.

September Forecasts the Mode

A NEW chapter in the story of hats begins with September, for this month properly ushers in the autumn styles. Its bright, placid days bring out between-seasons millinery belonging neither to summer nor to winter, but forecasting the brilliant end of the year. Milliners agree upon fabrics for making between-seasons hats, choosing those that belong to any time of the year, not the sheer things of midsummer or the heavy, warm-looking winter materials.

For this particular September they have taken duvetyne, satin, taffeta, materials that resemble hatter's plush and ribbons, and occasionally put with them some plain velvet in making up many lovely hats for fall. Decorations include ostrich feathers, wings, feather and ribbon ornaments, but, above all, elaborate embroideries in rich shades and narrow ribbons that add tones that are often enough quiet colors.

Four very practical hats in the attractive group above portray four different shapes that may be relied on to be becoming—which is the chief end of millinery. One of them is of duvetyne with upturned brim faced with satin in a light color. A curling spray of feathers monopolizes the brim, springing out of the facing at the left front and curving over the brim edge. Just below it a square-crowned sailor shape is covered with duvetyne and faced with velvet in a darker color. Duvetyne makes the collar about the crown ending in a bow with small covered balls at the ends of the folded material. The right is also of duvetyne with a little brown hat at the top with plaited ribbon edge and band of plaited ribbon about the crown. The shades of the crown are in the shades of the crown.

STUDY CLUB ENTERTAINED

The members of the Study Club, Nineteen Study Club family, from Clark county, entertained a group of friends with a party at the home of Mrs. Noel Wednesday, who lives with her family.

The house was beautifully decorated with ferns, vines, and flowers. The club enjoyed the evening very much. The guests were then shown into the dining room where delicious refreshments consisting of orange sherbet and cake, in which the color scheme had been carried out, were served. White asters and fern were given as favors.

After a few minutes of "getting acquainted" the guests were very delightfully entertained by Mrs. Alva Simmons, soloist, and Miss Mae Simmons, reader. Mrs. Simmons sang in a manner peculiarly sweet, with Mrs. Louie Thompson at the piano. Miss Simmons, with her usual grace and charming interpretation, gave readings which were enjoyed very much. The guests were then shown into the dining room where delicious refreshments consisting of orange sherbet and cake, in which the color scheme had been carried out, were served. What Would a Wagon Be Without Wheels?

IT'S admittedly a foolish question. A wagon wouldn't be a wagon without wheels. It would be a sleigh or just a box. The wheels make the wagon go. They are, therefore, the most important part of a wagon. And they stand the roughest usage of any part of the wagon. They carry a double load—a load on the hub and a load between the rim of the wheel and the ground. To stand this strain they have to be stronger than any other part of the wagon. And the hub must be the strongest part of the wheel—it is the foundation of the wheel.

Weber Wagon hubs are made of the best grade "A" material, and are shaped with great care by expert workmen. The Weber hub is equipped with a collar that keeps grease from working in between the skein box and hub. This prevents loosening of spokes by the action of pressed-in grease. Weber wheels are also provided with extra large skeins and because of the wide bearing surface the skein box cannot cut into the skein.

When hauling heavy loads, you can always depend on Weber wheels. Let us help you Weberize your hauling.

"Dearest, dearest brother!" she whispered.

With even more suddenness than he had caught her to him, he gripped her slender shoulders and thrust her out at arm's length.

"What have I done?" he groaned.

"What have I done?"

She sought to smile, but her eyes dilated with dread. "No, no, dear!" she soothed. "Be calm! You are all right. You are yourself—yourself."

"Yes—now—too late!" he cried.

"How will you ever forgive me—when you know? For me to take advantage of you this way! I thought myself a man!"

"There, there, dear; be quiet now. It's merely all this excitement. It's all doctor's fault locking you up in that horrid place. But you are safe now, dear, quite safe. So be quiet, that's a good boy. You know you promised."

"Can't You See? Would a Brother Kiss You as I Kissed You?"

"If only it was that!" he groaned. "Little girl, think—open your eyes! You cannot be so blind! Can't you see? Would a brother kiss you as I kissed you?"

More than ever frightened and bewildered, she stood silent. He bent nearer. At last the meaning of the look in his eyes forced its way into her consciousness. Her cheeks flamed scarlet and as suddenly whitened.

"You see!" he said. "You have not understood your own feelings, because you have been unable to think of me other than as a brother. But I, Amy—little sweetheart—"

"No, no! don't—don't say it!" she panted.

"But it is with the utmost reverence—"

"Oh, Will! no-no-no!" she shrieked, and she fled from him in wild panic.

He sprang after her and caught the door as she attempted to jerk it shut between them. His purpose, however, was only to close it without the violent jar that might have awakened old Tillie. Instead of following the frightened girl into the hall, he shot the bolt.

CHAPTER XIII.

Bemm Declares Himself.

At dawn Tillie, half waking, felt something warm against her bony shoulder. She gave it a shove and met with a soft resistance that caused her to screw her head about in affright. On the pillow beside her lay the tear-stained face of her beloved little niece.

"Land sakes!" she exclaimed. "Whatever in the world—"

The big brown eyes opened wide in a startled gaze. Still dazed from slumber, the girl clutched her companion's arm. "Tillie! don't leave me—don't leave me alone!"

"I won't, dearie; course not. There, here, it's all right—only a bad dream. Lie still and go to sleep again," crooned an old woman as she had soothed the when a young child. She muttered: "Suck goings on! I never did!"

Her elbow and stared at it. "It's daylight already."

"You lie still."

"I'll get up and look."

"No. That's the secret. I went for him in the coupe after you were sound asleep."

"My! my! You went after him—all alone?"

Amy blushed and hurriedly explained: "He told me he would go raving crazy if they kept him shut up; so what else could I do? We had it all arranged. As soon as the moon went down, he climbed from his window and I brought him home."

"Poor Mr. Will! Of course, if he would have gone crazy, you done just right, dearie."

"I'm so glad you think so, because you must help me keep him hid, else they'll come and take him back there, or maybe to jail."

Tillie cogitated, and replied: "There's that place in the attic where you and him used to play robbers' cave."

"Just the thing. We'll fix it up at once. Maybe, though, they'll only ask if he is here. Go and see if he—No, keep away, so if they come you can tell them you haven't seen anything of him."

After breakfast Amy found courage to creep upstairs to listen at Clinton's door. Hearing nothing, she slipped under the door a note asking him to remain in his room and raise his rear shade if unable to reach Tillie in the kitchen by means of the speaking tube.

She returned downstairs to help Tillie "do up" the morning's work, but soon cajoled her out into the garden. Hardly were they out of the house when the telephone rang. The call not being answered, the ring was repeated, not once, but fully half a dozen times, at frequent intervals. Blissfully ignorant of the impatient calls, Amy, with hands safeguarded from thorns by leather gauntlet gloves, was training the rose-laden vines over the lattice of her summer house. Tillie supported the stepladder and haided up ties of soft twine.

After a time the telephone renewed its impatient summons. The gardeners worked on, oblivious. Presently the telephone was re-enforced by the sharper ring of the doorbell. The result was the same. Three times the bells rang, more or less in unison. Still no response; still Amy remained intent on her thorny blossom task, with only an occasional glance upward at the rear window of her brother's bedroom.

The doorbell ceased ringing. A few moments later two persons, a keen-eyed, suspicious young man and an agitated young lady, came hurrying out of the pergola into the garden.

"There she is!" exclaimed the young lady. She waved her hand and called: "O-ho! Amy!"

Amy twisted about so suddenly that she almost fell off the ladder.

"Goodness!" she whispered. "It's Ellen and Charlie!"

"Pooh! Don't fret. We'll fool them easy," reassured Tillie.

The girl promptly recovered her balance and her aplomb, and called banteringly: "Oh, is it really you? You must be going for a foothill motor drive to be out at this unearthly hour. It almost tumbled me over to see you."

"Then you haven't heard, dear!" exclaimed Ellen.

"Your brother has escaped from the sanitarium," Bemm bluntly stated the news.

Amy threw up her hands in realistic stage consternation. "Escaped? Will escaped? Oh! oh! Has he gone daft again? How? Where did he go? When was it? Oh, dear! Wandering about, in his condition?"

"Hasn't he come home?"

"Home!" scoffed Tillie. "Don't you know anything about crazy folks? Don't you know they always try to get away from their relations? Didn't he want to run away from home the very first night he came?"

"Indeed, yes," agreed Ellen. "You remember he even knocked you down, he was so violent."

Bemm's face darkened. "He's a bit too violent. The next time we'll put him where he can't get out."

"We?" queried Amy.

"He—er—friends," Bemm hastened to explain. "He'll be apt to do himself harm, y' know, if he's allowed to run loose."

"Before he is cured," added Ellen.

Amy rubbed her flushed face. That most eminent of scientists—Charles Darwin—observed that the expression after-effects of spasms of fear, anger and mirth are remarkably similar. There were tears in Amy's reddened eyes as she looked up past Bemm's fashionable straw. Suddenly her half-compressed eyelids widened—she flung up her hand and made a quick downward gesture.

Bemm spun about and ran up at the rear window of the bedroom. The shade was down and light rippled on the floor.

might take you for a Sherlock Holmes."

The random shot hit Bemm so unexpectedly that he was disconcerted. "Miss Lowrie!" he snapped in angry protest.

"Why, what—Oh I beg your pardon, Charlie!" she replied, her look expressive only of innocent contrition. "Raffles was a gentleman burglar, wasn't he? And I meant a gentleman detective."

"Detective?" exclaimed Ellen.

Under her shocked gaze Bemm flushed a brick red. Tillie had unobtrusively started up the garden toward the kitchen door. Amy renewed her attack.

"Oh, not a common, low, ordinary detective, Ellen," she protested. "No one could dream of Charlie being that—could they? But a Sherlock Holmes or a Gibberer—that famous French detective, you know—that's altogether different, isn't it? So romantic!"

Unable longer to endure the grilling, Bemm turned to retreat. Tillie's head appeared above the blossoming shrubs; it moved toward the kitchen porch with marked rapidity. He looked about at Amy with a glance of resentment and suspicion and started up the garden on a run. The girl smothered a cry of dismay and darted after him. She was only a few steps in the rear when he overtook Tillie.

"Stop!" he ordered the hurrying woman. "What are you going to do?"

She halted and faced him squarely, her arms akimbo. Her tone was tart: "I ain't working for you. Mind your own business."

"I shall," retorted Bemm, and he showed her a silver-plated officer's star.

Tillie's mouth closed with obstinate firmness. Amy hastened to interpose. "There's the phone ringing! Maybe it's news of Will!"

She went past Bemm. He started to follow her, but paused to grasp Tillie's wrist. "Come along," he ordered.

"Why, Charlie!" remonstrated Ellen, who had hastened up the garden after Amy.

"I'll have no tricks," he rejoined.

Ellen gave him a disdainful glance. But he had turned to overtake Amy, holding fast to Tillie. The girl went direct to the telephone, without making any attempt to elude him. She had the receiver at her ear when, still dragging the reluctant Tillie, he overtook her.

"S-sh-h!" she whispered. "It's that nice police official at the hall. They've seen Will out near City park, and—"

"What!" cried Bemm incredulously. "Yes—here, take the phone. He's asking for you. He heard your voice."

"Stand where I can watch you—both of you," peremptorily commanded Bemm as he took the telephone. "Hello! hello! This is Mr. Bemm."

The receiver buzzed with a vehement reply that brought a flood of scarlet into the face of the listener. He slammed the receiver on the hook.

He tottered to the rear window, opened the shade and sash with shaking, fumbling hands, and crouched against the sill in the midst of the instreaming light and air.

Downstairs Amy and Ellen were weeping in each other's arms, reconciled companions in misery.

The doorbell rang sharply. The weepers flew apart.

"Some one's come!" sobbed Ellen. "My eh-eyes!"

Amy, regardless of her tear-wet face, flew in through the front hall. But already the door, unlocked by Bemm, was opening to admit Dr. Kirkland. Mrs. Kirkland came in after her husband as Amy rushed to meet them with well-feigned eagerness.

The Image of Another Face—snatched up his hat and ran out through the front hall, without stopping to take leave of the ladies.

"Mercy!" exclaimed Ellen. "Has everybody gone mad?"

"I guess he's hopping mad," observed Tillie. "My! Listen to the door slam! He's madder'n a wet hen."

Amy looked significantly at Tillie and said: "I haven't done the he rear window purpose. The roses are a group of looking up at the man was turned down. Behind him sounded a shuffling footstep. He started nervously and spun about. Old Tillie stood in the middle of the room, her finger on her lips.

"What! It's you!" he exclaimed.

"How the devil—"

"Tasst!" she warned, "Miss Ellen's still downstairs. She'd run and tell her pa first thing. You just missed being nabbed by Mr. Bemm—only they phoned him to go out and get you at City Park."

"To go out for me? Who phoned?"

"The p'lice. They seen you out at City Park and—"

"Saw me?"

"Yes; that's what they phoned Miss Amy. If it hadn't been for their making Mr. Bemm light out that way, he'd sure have got you. He's a 'ective."

"Detective?—that sissy? No."

"Fact. You've heard Miss Amy toast him over the coals. My, but wasn't he mad! He'll come back madder from that wild goose chase. That's why I've come up to make your bed and clean up and tell you to get up into your old robbers' cave if he comes back. I'll let you know when. Stead of making the bed, guess I'll take the bedding down to air."

As he turned beside the door of the bathroom passage he caught a side glimpse of some one moving on the far side of the room. He faced angrily toward the new intruder—and saw his own image in the big cheval glass on the opposite wall.

"Jove!" he muttered. "This won't do. Must pull myself together."

He went across to the mirror and stared fixedly at his frowning image.

"Buck up, you idiot!" he advised himself. "Let yourself be hypnotized by that rot about double personality, did you? . . . That's it, grin! It's time that you were grinning at your ut—"

The word broke off in the midst. He glared into the mirror, the smile frozen on his lips. At the left side of the image of his face was the image of another face, smaller and less distinct—another image, yet his own face!

His eyes dilated with terror. He stood glaring at the second image, petrified with horror, powerless to move. It was his own face. . . . There were differences—no mustache, the color almost white, the outline more thin; yet it was his face as it might be after an illness. It could not be a double reflection in the glass, for it lacked the mustache—also the expression was absolutely different. Unlike the immobile terror of his first image, the ghostly second face was twitching with active fear. The mouth gaped open.

"Insane!" he gasped. "I—am going—insane!"

He tottered to the rear window, opened the shade and sash with shaking, fumbling hands, and crouched against the sill in the midst of the instreaming light and air.

Downstairs Amy and Ellen were weeping in each other's arms, reconciled companions in misery.

The doorbell rang sharply. The weepers flew apart.

Unconscious Humor.

The teacher of a third-year class during a test in written English requested each pupil to write an original sentence containing the word "character." After much thought one little girl evolved the following: "All the teachers on the third floor have a good character," which, doubtless true, sounded rather hard on the teachers of the other floors.

In another school one of the teachers occasionally appears wearing one of the modern straight-effect gowns confined at the waist by a heavy silken cord with large tassels. One of the boys, writing upon the subject "Our School," referred to his teacher in flattering terms, but being unversed in the artistic as to raiment, finished his paper with the remark, "But sometimes she comes to school wearing her bathrobe."

COLONIAL DESIGN IS ATTRACTIVE

Eight-Room House Built of Wood and Stucco.

HAS AN ATTRACTIVE PORCH

This Home Will Accommodate a Good Sized Family and Can Be Built at a Minimum Cost—Modern Features.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 127 Frairies Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

While it is approaching the fall months there still is plenty of time to build that new home so that it will be ready for occupancy before the winter sets in. However, if the house is to be furnished, no time should be lost in selecting the plans and letting the contract.

Costs of building have been reduced materially since last spring. The prices of lumber have come down and contractors will soon have about finished the contracts they undertook early in the year. Consequently now is a very good time to go ahead with the home building plans.

The most important phase of home building is selecting the plans. The design should be decided upon with care, as it is expensive and unsatisfactory to make changes after the building operations actually are begun. The right sort of a house will contain just enough rooms to accommodate the members of the family; it should not en adjoins it through a good-sized pantry.

The living room is large—13 by 21 feet 6 inches. In the center of the side wall is a large, open fireplace, while on either side and at the front are double inswinging casement windows, making the room light and airy. The dining room also is of good size—18 by 13 feet. This room also is fitted with casement windows, a group of four at the rear and two at the side making it a bright and cheery place. The library to the right of the reception hall is 13 feet square, and could very nicely be made into a guest bedroom, if required. The kitchen is 11 by 13 feet, and opens into a rear porch of good size.

The stairs lead to a large central hall on the second floor, out of which open the four bedrooms, bath room and sewing room. The latter is a room of good size for its type, being 8 by 9 feet, and can be made to serve the purpose of a children's playroom. Each of the bedrooms is on a corner, and is as large as the living rooms, or "parlors," in the old-fashioned houses. Their location cost more than it is certain the home builder will be able to pay, and it should be arranged so that the work of caring for it can be done in the most satisfactory way. Care also should be exercised in selecting the type of exterior, eliminating as much as possible any out-of-the-ordinary effects.

Shown in the accompanying illustrations is a design for an eight-room house that is modern in every way—exterior appearance and interior arrangement—and one that can be erected at a minimum cost. This house is of frame construction, set on a concrete foundation, the exterior being of board siding with stucco above the second floor.

With the exception of the ornamented roof, this is a colonial design. The balance of the colonial is maintained throughout the exterior and the interior, and the porch, with its square piers and railed balcony above, adds another touch that is along the lines of the early American homes. The roof is covered with tile of concrete, and a good effect is secured by running the rafters to the eaves without boxing them, as is done ordinarily.

How the eight rooms are arranged is seen from the floor plans which also gives them plenty of ventilation. One of the reasons these rooms are of the size they are is that the architect has specified space-saving closets. These closets accommodate in small space as many garments as the larger, dark closets found in many homes; are equipped with hangers which keep the clothes in the best of condition and permit the owner to withdraw the hangers from the closets when a garment is needed. These closets save a foot or more over the ordinary closets and add just that much to the size of the room.

Under the house is a full basement finished with a concrete floor. Here are provided separate rooms for the heating plant, the fuel, the laundry, and a storage room for fruits, vegetables and canned goods. The laundry is located so that the clothes have to be carried the least distance, and is arranged so that it will accommodate the modern labor-saving washing machine, mangle and dryer, that are needed by the family of good size in these days of high laundry labor costs.

Taken all together this is an excellent home for a good sized family. At the same time it is not expensive, its dimensions being only 36 by 38 feet. All of the walls, both foundation and in the superstructure, are straight, which are the most economical in both labor and materials to construct.

By consulting your local architect, contractor and building material dealer the cost of this house can be ascertained.

Power of the Mind.

Medical history shows that thousands of people have died the victims of their imagination. They were convinced that they had diseases when in reality they never had. The truth was not in the body, but in the mind. Most people are convinced of their natural ability all their life, but to get better they need to get better.

BEAVER BOARD

FOR BETTER WALLS & CEILINGS

Skillful Work without Skilled Labor

Plasterers hard to get? Skilled labor scarce? No need to hold up your new building, repairing, or remodeling on this account. Build better walls and ceilings with sturdy panels of Beaver Board. Do the work with hammer, saw, and nails. These big lumber panels will never crack or fall, and after they are painted and decorated they can be easily washed with soap and water. They are permanent, too, for Beaver Board lasts as long as the building. Beaver Board is always carried in stock by us. Ask us for free literature and prices. We deliver it, of course.
