

THE HEDLEY INFORMER

VOL. XI

HEDLEY, DONLEY COUNTY, TEXAS, MARCH 25, 1921

NO. 13

Mr. and Mrs. H. Cook and little daughter had business in Clarendon Tuesday, as did Mrs. John Mace, H. P. Wilson, Claude Bain, and the Informer man.

We are sorry to know that our good friend John Mace is quite sick at the Adair Hospital in Clarendon. He is said to be getting along reasonably well.

ADAMSON-LANE POST AMERICAN LEGION MEETS

The Adamson Lane Post of the American Legion met in the McDougal building, perfected organization, and elected the following officers:

Nat S. Perrine, Commander; Orville Doherty, Vice Commander; Paul L. Dishman, Adjutant; P. T. Boston, Finance Officer; J. D. Gilliam, Chaplain; Sam A. Thomas, Historian. Executive Committee: L. E. Thompson, Cecil E. Williams, Chas. Dean, Alva T. Simmons, G. E. Kinslow.

A banquet and smoker were important features of this highly enjoyable meeting. Thirty-eight ex-service men are now members of this Post, and there are quite a number of other eligibles here who will doubtless become members at an early date.

The Post has selected as its regular meeting time the first Thursday in each month.

PARENT-TEACHER NOTES

The Chautauqua given by the Parent-Teachers' Association proved a great success both financially and otherwise. Those who were unaware of our organization, now realize that we are here, and here to stay.

The first program, "Stunts," did what it claimed to do—furnished hearty laughs for the crowd. The program for the second night was furnished by Miss Hawk of Clarendon, and her assistants. A splendid program was rendered. We take this occasion to publicly thank Miss Hawk and her helpers. We can get some idea of Miss Hawk's unselfishness and generosity from the fact that she rendered this program free of all charge, because she appreciates the Parent-Teacher organization.

The play, "Safety First," on the last night, was greatly enjoyed. The house was packed, and the players handled their parts in fine style.

About $150 was cleared by the Chautauqua. This is to be spent for better equipment for the school.

Every member come to our next meeting at the Methodist church basement Monday night, March 28th. A short program will be given and then we'll have a sociable hour. The same plan of furnishing refreshments will hold over from our last meeting.

If you don't belong, come and join. Fathers are given a special invitation.

To the people who have so faithfully cooperated with us in all our efforts, we wish to express our sincere appreciation.

MRS. BRINSON DEAD

We regret to have to chronicle the death of Mrs. W. C. Brinson, for many years an honored citizen of Hedley, who passed away Wednesday at Austin. She was the widow of Uncle Bill Brinson, who died here several years ago, and has been in failing health for some time. Among the surviving relatives who live in this county are her son, W. G. of Hedley, and her daughter, Mrs. M. L. Putman, of Ashtola.

Funeral services were held at the First Baptist Church in Hedley this (Friday) morning at 10 o'clock, after which the remains were laid to rest in Rowe cemetery. We sympathize deeply with the bereaved loved ones.

J. W. Forbis motored to Shamrock Saturday night and returned Sunday evening.

SOME INTEREST AROUSED IN TRUSTEE ELECTION

Considerable talk is heard of the School Trustee election on Saturday, April 2nd, when successors are to be chosen for three trustees whose terms expire, and who will not stand for re-election, according to report.

A number of representative citizens, including many of our largest tax payers, have prevailed upon Messrs. T. R. Moreman, W. I. Rains and J. S. Beach to shoulder the responsibilities of trusteeship, in case the voters elect them, and their names are herewith submitted for the consideration of those citizens who have the welfare of our school and our children at heart.

Speaking for himself, the Informer editor heartily approves of this ticket. He couldn't do otherwise if he tried—which he won't. They are three of our best men, altogether capable, reliable and responsible. Let's make it unanimous.

A DISTRESSING ACCIDENT

A very distressing accident occurred yesterday about noon at the Nat S. Perrine home. Mr. Perrine was backing his car out of the garage, not knowing his little 2 1/2 year old son, Nat Jr., was anywhere about, when the little fellow walked directly behind the car, was knocked down and the heavy wheel ran onto him, breaking three ribs and crushing him badly. Accompanied by Dr. Webb, the parents rushed the little one to the Adair Hospital at Clarendon, where everything possible is being done. A report comes in just before press time that he is doing well, but the outcome cannot yet be determined. We can only hope sincerely that his recovery will be sure and soon.

HEDLEY LIVESTOCK & FAIR ASSOCIATION WILL MEET

The meeting that was to have been held Monday night did not materialize on account of the very bad weather, so another has been called for Saturday (tomorrow) night, March 26th.

Let all who are interested in Hedley's progress attend this meeting, join the Association, and do their parts in "bringing things to pass."

It is said to be as easy to go forward as it is to slip backward—and less dangerous. Let's try it a whack! Come to the meeting Saturday night.

MRS. JOHNSON ENTERTAINS

Mrs. P. C. Johnson was hostess at two very delightful social events of recent date.

On the afternoon of the 11th inst. a reception was given in honor of Mrs. Y. F. Walker, the wife of the new Baptist pastor.

Then on the evening of the 22nd inst. she entertained her Sunday School class of the First Baptist church.

On both occasions her enviable reputation as a hostess was fully sustained, and, as always, the guests were delighted with the treatment accorded them in this hospitable home.

WHOEVER BORROWED my Pipe Wrenches, please return them at once, as I need them.

Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Kersey are now full fledged citizens of Hedley, having moved down from Clarendon last week. Mr. Kersey sold his Picture Show there to Mr. Hale of Clarendon.

W. H. JOHNSON, of Portland, Ore., who says no one could have done him any greater kindness than the friend who advised him to try Tanlac. — Gains fifteen pounds.

"Not in a long time have I enjoyed such good health or felt so well generally as I do since taking Tanlac," said W. H. Johnson, 319 East 43rd St., Portland, Ore., who holds a responsible position with the Northwest Transfer Company.

"About a year ago I began suffering from lack of appetite and stomach trouble and since that time—that is, until Tanlac set me right—I have felt so poorly that I could hardly do my work. My food seemed to do me little good, if any, as my digestion was bad, and I lost both weight and strength continually.

"After every meal there was a dull, nagging pain in the pit of my stomach that kept me feeling miserable for hours.

"The gas from my sour, undigested food would blow me up terribly and my nerves were so upset that I would lie awake half the night unable to sleep. I was constantly having blinding dizzy spells and could not bend over and straighten up quickly but what everything seemed as dark as night to me.

"I was telling a friend one day how bad I felt and he advised me to try Tanlac and I just want to say he couldn't have done me a greater kindness.

"I have picked up all of fifteen pounds in weight, my appetite is fine, and although I am eating just anything I want my stomach never gives me a particle of trouble. My sleep is sound and restful and my strength and energy have been so renewed that my work is no longer a burden to me." Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.—Adv.

WELL DESIGNED HOME FOR FARM

Comfortable Frame House With Stucco Foundation.

WILL KEEP YOUNG AT HOME

Attractive Home Shown Below Contains All the Modern Conveniences of a City Home—Fitted With Labor-Saving Devices.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD. Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the expert authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 107 Pine Street, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

"What can I put into the house that will make it as comfortable and attractive as any home in the city? That is the question the progressive farmer asks when he starts to build a home. That is the question that should come to the mind of every farmer. If it did we would hear a great deal less about 'back to the farm' movement. 'Keep the boys on the farm' agitation, etc., because there would be no need for any such propaganda. Comfortable farm homes would be the most effective propaganda that could be devised.

It goes without saying that much of the movement to leave cities is due to this one cause, poor home conditions. The farm home has in many cases been substituted in the city barn, even the house or granary. What is the inevitable result? The wife is overburdened with work in domestic surroundings, the children become disgusted and leave for the cities where comforts are available. Happily to say, however, these old notions are gradually disappearing and farm homes are now being built in the most modern style with all the conveniences of houses in the city. By these we mean running-water bathrooms, electric light, electric appliances, etc.

Take a look at the attractive home shown here. This is an example of how farm homes are being built today. This is not a mere shelter consisting of four walls and roof, but is a "homey" house, well-designed and arranged and fitted with many conveniences and labor-saving devices that lift much of the burden from the shoulders of the homemaker.

Much of the charm of a home lies in the appearance of the exterior, although it is not as important as the inside. Here we have a large front porch, the kind that is needed on the farm, because there are children who need a suitable recreation place on rainy and disagreeable days. In this case the front porch has been screened in, making a delightful sunporch. The house proper is built of frame with shingles above the first floor. It is what is familiarly known as the story-and-a-half type.

The low, wide, sloping roof is covered with prepared roofing and is broken up by a roof dormer in front and rear. The foundation walls which are concrete have been covered with stucco above the building line. The large brick chimney on the right side indicates a fireplace, which is built in the living room. This room is reached directly from the front porch drilled up in bedrooms, bath and storage room. The latter can be very easily converted into an additional bedroom by the use of some wall-board and a few hours' work. Otherwise it is very convenient for storing clothes out of season. There are two bedrooms on this floor, one 13 feet 6 inches by 14 feet, the other 13 by 12 feet.

There is every reason in the world to believe that this home will help in keeping the farm family together. More of them are being built every day.

and is 16 by 13 feet. To the left is a bedroom, 12 feet 6 inches by 13 feet, convenient for the hired help. In case this bedroom is not needed the partition can be taken out and the entire front of the house made into one large living room.

Identical in size and shape with the living room, and directly in rear of it, connected by an open doorway is the dining room, which is lighted by a half-day window on one side. It

AVERAGE WEIGHT OF CALVES

Figures Secured From Dairy Herds of University of Illinois—Factors That Influence.

A very well-bred Holstein bull calf weighing 112 pounds was recently dropped at the Kansas state agricultural college farm at Manhattan. Most of the dairy infants, however, weigh considerably less than this Kansas heavyweight.

In the dairy herds of the University of Illinois the average weights of the calves of the various breeds at birth have been as follows: Holstein male, 90 lbs.; female, 88 lbs.; Ayrshire male, 77.7; female, 71.4; Guernsey male, 70; female, 68.8; Jersey male, 62.4; female, 59.7 lbs.

NO SNAKE QUITE HARMLESS

French Biologists, Through Experiments, Have Proved That Blood and Saliva Produce Toxic Effects.

Only snakes with poison fangs have been regarded as dangerous, but certain French biologists, especially Dr. C. and Madame Marie Pissalix, have found reasons for believing that the blood and saliva of all serpents may produce toxic effects. The venomous action has been demonstrated by experiments on birds, guinea pigs, rodents, and lizards, with the secretion of the parotid glands of certain colubers, common and well-known harmless snakes, and with the blood of snakes of this order that do not have parotid glands. The effects were analogous to those from the secretion of the poison glands of cobras, vipers and rattlesnakes. In bats, known two kinds of venom are found. Mucous venom, from the mucous glands existing chiefly on the abdomen, exerts a paralyzing action, and when injected into the veins produces stupor, with a sudden stopping of respiration. Two rabbits were killed by water in which a common edible green frog had been washed. Granular venom, from the larger granular glands existing only on the back, is a very active poison in some species, and gives rise to such symptoms as terror, hallucination, vomiting and convulsions.

Dreaming of Hair.

For a man to dream his hair is long like that of a woman signifies a weak mind and a cowardly nature, also deception will be practiced of which he will be the victim. To dream you have short black curly hair is a sign of secret sorrow. To have red hair is an evil omen to all except barbers and hair dressers, to whom it promises an increase in business. White hair, honor and wealth. To dream your hair falls out is a sign of approaching evil, loss of a friend. Smooth, well-combed hair foretells happiness and the ending of an old misunderstanding between friends. Disordered, tangled hair signifies deep grief. To dream the hair is longer and darker than usual, increase of wealth.

DAIRY

HANDY GATE FOR DEHORNING

Holder Rigged Up Leaving Sufficient Space for Animal's Head is Easily Constructed.

A lock gate for catching and holding cows while they are being dehorned and marked, is simple in construction.

First make a gateway in the lot fence, using not less than 4-inch material for the gateposts. Now nail a 6-inch board on each side of these posts, across the gate at the ground, and also two others across at the top of the posts. Close up half of the opening by nailing boards diagonally to the boards at top and bottom of the posts, as illustrated. Get a strong pole, about 4 inches in diameter and 12 feet long. Bore a hole through its large end with a 1-inch auger; also bore through the bottom boards, about 8 or 10 inches from the post at the open side of the gate. Let the pole down between the top boards and the bottom ones, and insert a 1-inch rod through the bottom boards and the pole. Then tie a 1-inch rope to the top end of the pole.

When ready to dehorn or mark a large strong animal, drive her toward the gate. Just as she passes her head by the pole, pull it over against her neck, and she is easily held. There

WATER FOR COWS IN WINTER

Good Plan on Very Cold Days to Heat It Just Enough to Take Disagreeable Chill Off.

The dry cow must have plenty of good water and on very cold days in winter it is a good plan to warm it just enough to take the chill off. When cows are forced to drink ice cold water in zero weather they will turn away from it before they have consumed enough to meet their requirements. If salt is sprinkled over the fodder portion of the cow's ration or otherwise supplied at intervals of two or three times a week it will assist in keeping her system in good tone.

FOR WASHING MILK BOTTLES

Fill Receptacles With Water When Emptied to Prevent Albumen and Casein Hardening.

The milk bottle, if not washed as soon as emptied, should be filled with cold or lukewarm water till it is washed. The albumen and casein harden and stick fast when they dry as well as when heated. So that if hot water is poured in the bottle or can that has had milk in it the albumen and casein will harden and stick. After washing with lukewarm water use hot water, which removes the fat, and rinse in boiling water or steam to kill the bacteria.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

"ETERNAL PUNISHMENT"--- "KOLASIS"

Punishment is any pain or suffering inflicted on a person or people for crime or offense. Everlasting Punishment, Matt 25:46: "And these shall go away into everlasting punishment: but the righteous into life eternal." Everlasting Punishment (kolasis) 2 Peter 2:9. "The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished"—kolasin. Rev. 20:10. "And the devil that deceived them was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false prophets are, and shall be tormented day and night for ever and ever." Does "for ever and ever" mean an eternal duration in this passage? Certainly it does. In Heaven it is always day; Rev. 21:25 "And the gates of it shall not be shut at all by day: for there shall be no night there." In hell it is always night; Matt 25:30, "And cast ye the unprofitable servant into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth." Rev. 14:11, "And the smoke of their torment ascendeth up for ever and ever: and they have no rest day or night." Rev. 7:15, "Therefore are they before the throne of God, and serve him day and night." The saints remain in heaven through one eternal day—they serve him "day and night." The wicked will be in hell and will be tormented "day and night." If the "day" stops in heaven, or the "night" in hell, then the torment will stop.

Matt 25:41, "Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting (aiolos) fire, prepared for the devil and his angels." Matt 25:46, "And these shall go away into everlasting (aiolos) punishment: out the righteous into life eternal (aiolos). Who will be "tormented" for ever and ever? How long will for ever and ever be? Matt 25:46, "And these shall go away into everlasting (aiolos) punishment (kolasin): but the righteous into life (zoen) eternal (aiolon). I John 4:18 "There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear: because fear hath torment"—kolasin.

In each of these passages we have the word "kolasin." 1st, Fear hath torment—"kolasin." 2nd, Wicked will receive everlasting punishment—"kolasin." What does the word "kolasin" mean? If "eternal punishment" consists in simply dying—dying never to live again—or "ceasing to be" as the annihilationists declare, then every beast of the field will suffer "eternal punishment" for they will cease to be. Mark 9:45, "Cast into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched" (asbestos) 1st, The wicked will be cast into a "furnace of fire" 2nd, It is "everlasting (aiolon) fire" 3rd, Will this fire ever cease? No, it is "unquenched"—asbestos—fire—will never cease. The wicked will receive "everlasting punishment." As "everlasting fire" is fire that never ceases, is unquenchable—asbestos—fire; just so is "everlasting punishment" punishment that never ceases. But punishment is "any pain or suffering inflicted on a person for crime or offense." Therefore the one punished must exist in a conscious state to be punished. Rev 20:10, "And they shall be tormented day and night for ever and ever."

Library of Congress

The Library of Congress is a complete satisfaction to the perturbed soul of the scholar Edward Everett, who years ago exclaimed: "Who can see without shame that the federal government of America is the only government in the civilized world that has never founded a literary institution of any description or sort?"

So said Representative Simon D. Fess of Ohio the other day in the house in an address on the subject of the library. Mr. Fess is a scholar himself. He is a lawyer. He has served as college president and professor in several institutions. He is the author of works on American politics and history. In connection with appropriations for the Congressional Library he was asked to deliver an address upon the Library as a literary institution for the information of the members. In his address, as reported in the Congressional Record, the following interesting facts are found:

East of the Capitol stands the most beautiful building in the world, the creation of the genius of the architect, sculptor, and painter. Within its walls is found a collection of publications which is rapidly overtaking the Bibliotheque Nationale of Paris and the British Museum of London, the only other libraries which exceed in number of books the Congressional Library.

Like all other great institutions, this had its small and insignificant beginning. It started some time before the beginning of the last century with the appointment of a committee to report on need and selection of suitable books. Five thousand dollars was appropriated in 1800. Beckley of Virginia was appointed librarian by Jefferson in 1802. The first catalogue was of nine pages, prepared in 1802. The library then containing 964 volumes and nine maps, classified on the basis of size into quartos, octavos, and so forth. The purpose of the Library was stated by Senator Mitchell in 1806 to be "to furnish with such materials as will enable statesmen to be correct in their investigations, and by becoming display of erudition and research give a higher dignity and a brighter luster to truth."

While the purpose of the Library was originally limited to the service of the legislative department, under Spofford it soon extended to both the Supreme Court and the Executive, including the various departments and numerous bureaus under the departments. The growth was so constant that all available space where it was housed in the capitol building was occupied. In 1897, when the Library was moved to the new quarters, 600,000 volumes were crowded into a space allotted for but 400,000 volumes. The rapid growth dates from the entrance of Spofford, to whose genius was due not only the fine response of the public, both official and unofficial, but also to the plans and execution which resulted in the most complete and superb library building of the world.

modating those books. For, under the system of interlibrary loan, they are made available to investigators throughout the United States. In this respect it differs from national libraries abroad, which are purely reference libraries, which must be consulted on the spot.

Its printed cards represent a service which is also unique, the one successful attempt on a general scale to centralize once for all the expense of (1) cataloging books and (2) of manufacturing the catalogue entries.

In addition it is (1) a legislative library for congress; (2) the main reference library for the executive departments and bureaus; (3) the law library of the Supreme court; (4) the copyright office of the United States; and (5) the national library to give a special service for the entire country.

The catalogue of 1812 contained titles of 3,076 volumes and 53 maps and charts. When the Capitol was burned in 1814 by the British, the library had cost all told about $9,000 for books and operation. The librarian's salary was at first $2 per day. The library was destroyed August 24 and on September 21 Jefferson wrote from his home tendering his library to congress. The committee was authorized by act of congress to purchase the 7,000 volumes for $23,950, which was done in January, 1815. Jefferson catalogued the library, which was later declared by Spofford as "an admirable selection of the best ancient and modern literature up to the beginning of the present century." These books were hauled from Monticello to Washington in farm wagons.

From 1815 to 1851 the Library grew from 7,000 to 55,000 volumes.

On the evening of December 22, 1825, Edward Everett discovered a fire in the galleries of the Library, and he, assisted by Daniel Webster and other members of congress, put it out. In 1851 a second fire destroyed all but 20,000 volumes of the then handsome collection of 55,000 volumes. Only one-third of the Jefferson collection was saved. Congress at once took steps to rebuild the loss. Before the year was ended in several specific acts it had appropriated $253,700 for the purpose. Ten years later a general catalogue of 1,338 pages was published. In 1862 the last complete catalogue, arranged by subjects, was published in two volumes of 1,744 pages.

The card catalogue was adopted about 1865, and was perfected from time to time to its present wonderfully serviceable system.

In 1864 A. R. Spofford was selected as librarian, and that year might be taken as the beginning of the third stage of Congressional Library history. Congress sympathetically responded to legislative demands. Frequent appropriations were voted and many private collections were secured after the fashion of the famous beginning in 1815. Three years after the selection of Spofford, congress authorized the purchase of the valuable collection of Americana from Peter Force. It contained 60,000 volumes and cost $100,000. It was regarded as a rare collection of books and pamphlets on American subjects, manuscripts, newspapers, maps, autographs and so forth. About the same time the collection of the Smithsonian Institution, comprising 40,000 volumes, was transferred to the Congressional Library. It contained invaluable publications of the various learned societies throughout the world with which the Institution had exchange arrangements.

Accessions were constantly made, among which were, in 1866, the Pettigru law library; 1882, the manuscript papers of Benjamin Franklin; 1883, the Matthew Carpenter law library; 1882, the Tomer collection of 27,000 volumes, which contained, among other invaluable publications, an almost complete collection of copies of letters and papers of General Washington.

As far back as 1846 a provision of the copyright law required a deposit in the Library of one copy of every book, map, chart, manuscript, map-ing those books. For, under the system of interlibrary loan, they are made available to investigators throughout the United States. In this respect it differs from national libraries abroad, which are purely reference libraries, which must be consulted on the spot.

Its printed cards represent a service which is also unique, the one successful attempt on a general scale to centralize once for all the expense of (1) cataloging books and (2) of manufacturing the catalogue entries.

In addition it is (1) a legislative library for congress; (2) the main reference library for the executive departments and bureaus; (3) the law library of the Supreme court; (4) the copyright office of the United States; and (5) the national library to give a special service for the entire country.

Its reference readers number as many as those in the British Museum, or the Bibliotheque Nationale; but the facilities accorded them, for example, of direct access to the shelves, surpass those of any other considerable reference library whatever. Unlike the Bibliotheque Nationale and British Museum, which close at sundown, the National Library is open till ten o'clock every evening, and on Sundays from two until ten.

Its building is in cubic area about 10,000,000 cubic feet, equal to that of the Capitol. In floor area it greatly exceeds it. Its shelving capacity is sufficient to accommodate 3,500,000 volumes and can be increased to double that number.

The total appropriation for the library, the copyright office, and the care of the building and grounds is about $720,000 per annum. Against this are receipts, copyright fee, and proceeds of sales of the printed cards, totalling about $200,000, so that the net outlay for the library is about $520,000 per annum. In addition, there is, however, the expense for printing and binding, for which the annual allotment has been about $200,000. The amount annually spent for books and other material for collections is about $38,000. This barely suffices for the ordinary material.

The amount annually spent for books and other material for collections is about $38,000. This barely suffices for the ordinary material.

Agitation for a new library building began back in 1873. In 1886 authority was given to purchase a site, which cost $585,000. An appropriation of $500,000 was made to begin the construction. The total cost was $8,347,000, exclusive of the site. A library which had numbered about 75,000 volumes in 1864, when Spofford came to its head, had grown to nearly 1,000,000 volumes by 1897, when it was transferred to its new home in September of that year. The former crowded quarters had given way to a wonderfully commodious structure of about 10,000,000 cubic feet of space, where 2,000 readers can be accommodated at one time in the midst of one of the world's greatest collections of books, pamphlets, maps and so forth. Mr. Spofford asked to be relieved and was made a sort of librarian emeritus, with John Russel Young as librarian. In this position Spofford continued to his death in 1908. Two years after his appointment Mr. Young died.

President McKinley sought the best possible talent, which was found in Dr. Herbert Putnam, the librarian of the Boston Public Library. Doctor Putnam was the first specially trained librarian to be selected, and he, at the request of the President, accepted the position, although at a substantial financial sacrifice. With this appointment of Mr. Putnam began the fourth stage of the growth of the Congressional Library. The last 29 years have witnessed the development of this government institution into a genuine national library. His plan organizes the library centers into one stupendous library system, with Washington as the center as a general clearing house for library information throughout the nation. It thus serves the general reader, who is not limited to the authorities found in the Congressional Library, enormous as are the present sources, numbering in the collection 2,813,333 books and pamphlets, 103,448 maps, 829,400 volumes and pieces of music, and the 418,976 prints. Through the interlibrary arrangement he has access to the collection of about 3,000 libraries scattered throughout the nation. By international arrangement, with some additional inconvenience, he also has access to some of the world's greatest libraries outside of the United States. This arrangement exists with 158 libraries, from 24 countries.

The Library is still third in dimension, but overtaking the first two—Bibliotheque Nationale and British Museum. In point of quality it cannot overtake them, for they have material original in form which it can never secure.

It gets and preserves many volumes not suitable for a local library. The result is to save local libraries the expense of getting and accommodating those books. For, under the system of interlibrary loan, they are made available to investigators throughout the United States. In this respect it differs from national libraries abroad, which are purely reference libraries, which must be consulted on the spot.

YOU NEVER CAN TAME A WILD-CAT

Mr. Dodson Warns Against Use of Treacherous, Dangerous Calomel.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crushes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tonic you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.—Adv.

The size of trouble depends on whether it is coming or going.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. "Cold in the Head"

An acute attack of Nasal Catarrh. Those subject to frequent "colds in the head" will find that the use of HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will build up the system, cleanse the blood and render them less liable to colds. Repeated attacks of Acute Catarrh may lead to Chronic Catarrh.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is taken internally and acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system, thus reducing the inflammation and restoring normal conditions.

YOUNG GIRL FINDS RELIEF

Wants to Tell Other Girls All About It

Evansville, Ind.—"I am eighteen years old and have been bothered for several months with irregular periods. Every month my back would ache and I always had a cold and felt drowsy and sleepy. I work in a millinery shop and I went to work every day, but felt stupid and would have such cramps. I had seen Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and had heard several women talk of it, so mother got me some. This Vegetable Compound is wonderful and it helped me very much, so that during my periods I am not now sick or drowsy. I have told many girls about your medicine and would be glad to help anyone who is troubled with similar ailments. You may use my testimonial as you like."—STELLA LINX-WILDER, 6 Second St., Evansville, Indiana.

Some girls lead lives of luxury, while others toil for their livelihood, but all are subject to the same physical laws and suffer in proportion to their violation. When such symptoms develop as irregularities, headaches, backaches, bearing-down sensations and "the blues," girls should profit by Miss Linx-wilder's experience and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

HOW DOCTORS TREAT COLDS AND THE FLU

First Step in Treatment Is a Brisk Purgative With Calotabs, the Purified and Refined Calomel Tablets that are Nausea-less, Safe and Sure.

Doctors have found by experience that no medicine for colds and influenza can be depended upon for full effectiveness until the liver is made thoroughly active. That is why the first step in the treatment is the new, nausea-less calomel tablets called Calotabs, which are free from the sickening and weakening effects of the old style calomel. Doctors also point out the fact that an active liver may go a long way towards preventing influenza and is one of the most important factors in enabling the patient to successfully withstand an attack and ward off pneumonia.

One Calotab on the tongue at bed time with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, pleasure or work. Next morning your cold has vanished, your liver is active, your system is purified, and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Druggists sell Calotabs only in original sealed packages, price thirty cents. Your money will be cheerfully refunded if you do not find them delightful.—(Adv.)

An Adventure Romance

By GEORGE AGNEW CHAMBERLAIN

COPYRIGHT THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

GREENWOOD CEMETERY.

Synopsis.—Robert Hervey Randolph, young New York man-about-town, leaves the home of his sweetheart, Madge Van Teller, disgruntled because of her refusal of his proposal of marriage. His income, $5,000 a year, which he must surrender if a certain Miss Inogen Pamela Thornton (whom he has seen only as a small girl ten years before) is found, is not considered by the girl of his heart adequate to modern needs. In a "don't care" mood Randolph enters a taxi, unseen by the driver, and is driven to the stage door of a theater. A man he knows, Duke Beamer, induces a girl to enter the cab. Beamer, attempting to follow, is pushed back by Randolph and the cab moves on. His new acquaintance tells Randolph she is a chorus girl, and has lost her position. She is in distress, even hungry, and he takes her to his apartment. There, after lunch, a chance remark convinces him the girl is the missing Pamela Thornton. He does not tell her of her good fortune, but secures her promise to stay in the flat until the morning and leaves her. Realizing that the girl's reappearance has left him practically penniless, he bribes the taxi driver to let him take his job, and leaving word with the legal representative of the Thornton estate where he can find Pamela, takes up his new duties under the name of Slim Hervey. One evening he is engaged by Beacher Tremont, notorious profligate, to drive him and Madge to a hostelry known as "Greenwood."

Mr. Slim Hervey, chauffeur, was still plunged in reverie when his senses were assailed by a whiff of lilac, a mere nuance of perfume, that proclaimed the approach of Miss Madge Van Teller. He jumped out just in time to throw open the door of his cab for the couple and take the murmured order of Mr. Beacher Tremont. "All right. Hit it up for Greenwood."

Luckily for the cabman's entertainment, his engine was working in silent perfection that night. The late hour gave him almost undisputed right of way so that driving became an automatic adjustment of his course in line with the curb and released his attention to gorge itself at leisure with eaves-dropping. By squirming his shoulders he managed to cock one ear over the top of his high overcoat collar; it was the ear next to the open speaking-slot.

"What a dream of a night," said the clear voice of Miss Van Teller. "Shall I be a traitor to my sex and betray one of its secrets to you?"

"Please do," murmured Mr. Tremont. One could divine that he had slipped an arm around her and was holding her close.

"Well, it's this," she continued. "Women are not conquered by man alone, but by man and atmosphere. We never rush at the precipice; we flutter toward it with many steps and pauses. The silliest breezes of impulse may carry us on or a puff of unkind air hold us back. It all really depends on the man imposing his atmosphere so steadily that the drifting soul of woman forgets its inborn title to vagrancy and sleepily assumes its enemy's goal."

"Madge," said Mr. Tremont almost earnestly, "you frighten me. I never knew you could talk like that. You frighten me because I have a terror of analyzed personal relations."

Randolph could hear a faint rustling of her robe as though she had nestled closer to her escort. "I never meant to startle you, Beacher," her voice continued, not quite so clear. Into its tone had crept, hesitatingly, a trace of unaccustomed emotion. "I was only warning you. Every man can make a world of his arms for one woman; not all can hold the illusion to beyond possession."

"I can, if you will only help me," whispered Tremont, and paused as though his own earnestness were taking him by surprise.

"I wonder," said Miss Van Teller. "You have played the right game. You have never said a vulgar thing to me or stooped to the usual hypocrites; those are compliments by inference that have flattered the best that is in me. You have set the play in a high plane that winning wins all of me; but—"

"But what?" asked Tremont.

"But there is danger in the high flight," finished Miss Van Teller. "An air-pocket in your atmosphere and, pouf! all is lost—the good in me that you will have missed as well as the bad that you could have won by a baser effort."

"What do you mean?" asked Tremont, no longer making the slightest effort to hide his awakened interest.

"I was thinking," said Miss Van Teller, dreamily, "that every woman is collectively indispensable to the continuity of this yarn. He missed the ditch by a hair's breath, caught his own with a gasp, returned to the middle of the broad highway and fixed his attention on a certain very definite matter with which it had been more or less constantly concerned ever since he had been directed to hit it up for Greenwood.

The road to that well-known hostelry was usefully devious and fares were seldom worried as to how any particular driver set out to find the choicest of needles in the haystack of the country inns that dot the landscape of Westchester and adjacent counties as long as he brought the search to a successful end somewhere this side of the pangs of hunger.

Nevertheless, had not Mr. Tremont, himself a motorist of no mean experience, been completely absorbed by the sudden discovery that he had his right arm around an entirely new world, he would have been struck inevitably by two things. First, that this was certainly not any one of the climbing roads to the Greenwood hostelry; second, that the man at the wheel knew more about losing his way in the vicinity of Manhattan and finding it again than did the combined roadmaps of the United States and its allies—supposing it to have had allies at the time. However, Mr. Tremont's absorption was not only absolute but continuous so that it held him in its inexorable grip right up to the moment of ghastly awakening and even over the edge. He was just saying, "My darling, never fear. I'm taking you to a place so quiet and so guarded that this dream which you have dressed in an unexpected glory can flow on unbroken as long as we are true to it and to ourselves," when the cab drew up at a solemn and impressive portal.

Without leaving his seat, the cabman reached back, unlatched the door and threw it open. "Greenwood cemetery, sir," he barked.

The girl was first to grasp the words, the time and the place. "Oh!" she gasped, and in the sound of her cry Mr. Randolph could divine her whole body suddenly stiffening to a tense awakening and to the stabbing memory of the last time she had come to this still place, her heart bursting with its long farewell to all that was left of her mother.

Then came Mr. Beacher Tremont's voice in oldtime familiar tones. "Greenwood cemetery! Why, you triplite blockhead, I said Greenwood hostelry. Of all the d—n fools! What the devil—What the h—ll—What the—What—"

He choked himself into a gulping inarticulate silence as he climbed from the cab to look in the face the sum total of all human stupidity. No sooner had he alighted than Miss Van Teller found herself in voice again. "Oh! oh!" she moaned, pressing her hands to her eyes, aching open, "take me away from here."

"Sure, miss," said Mr. Randolph promptly, threw in his clutch and was off.

"Hi, you! D—n you! Hey! You! Driver! Confound your d—d impudence! Hey! How am I going to get home?" The first of these cries was very plainly, the last very faintly heard by Mr. Randolph. After them came down the wind something that sounded very much like the ghost of a wall of despair, but the driver paid no heed. His attention was absorbed by something quite different; the dry sob of a little heap of smoke-colored chiffon.

Detours, subterfuges and the finesse of the road-faker were swept from Randolph's mind; he made straight for the bridge and home, but long before they reached the river all sound had ceased to issue from the cab and in its stead reigned a purposeful, almost menacing silence. What was she thinking in there? What could she think? Why didn't she go right on crying and keep her mind fully occupied with that?

As they swept down the incline from the bridge into City Hall park he suddenly realized that he had been on the verge of giving himself away. He half turned his head and shouted through the speaking-slot, "What address, miss?"

"Bobby, I hate you."

YALE WILL ENDEAVOR TO PULL OUT OF RUT

Coach Tad Jones to Try Modern Tactics in Fall.

Elis Have Stuck to Old-Fashioned Game and Last Fall Made Extremely Poor Showing—Camp Is Expected to Assist.

Yale will try to get out of the rut. Tad Jones is going back as head football coach. He'll spend all his time from now on in an effort to redeem the Eli grid craft.

The last year was a heart-breaker for Yale followers. The team didn't play together. Princeton and Harvard made a door mat out of the Bulldogs.

Even little Boston college scalped Yale.

Jones feels keenly the poor showing of his eleven last year. Back in Tad Jones.

1916 he took the Yale craft—poor in material and power—and produced a wonder team that rolled up both Princeton and Harvard.

In 1920, with apparently superior material, he fizzled. While other schools have turned to modern football, the Elis have stuck to the old-fashioned game. The style they play is behind the times.

But look for a different policy next year. Tad is going to cut loose and try to catch up.

It is believed that Walter Camp will also play an active hand in football at New Haven next year.

Camp signified his willingness to step out of retirement. What Yale has lacked in a consistent policy and modern tactics it will get in large doses from Camp and Jones.

NEUROPHOBIA IS GOLF GRIEF

London Physicians Find Mysterious New Disease Stops Swing of Player's Club.

London physicians are now treating a mysterious new disease which afflicts golfers and is named "neurophobia."

In one case a man attacked with neurophobia could not stop wagging his driver at the ball before hitting it. He is now being treated by a specialist in hypnotism.

A promising golfer has had his career wrecked by another phase of neurophobia which he developed on the Bramshott links. He played the first nine holes in two strokes under par. On the tenth tee, having raised the driver somewhere around his neck, he was seized with a sort of temporary paralysis and could not complete his swing.

Arrangements are now being made for a visit of the antipodean player to England and the United States. Kirkwood now plans to come to the States with the American professionals after their tour abroad. He won the Australian open championship at Sydney with a score of 290 for 72 holes.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

Rev L B Hankins was entertained with an elaborate dinner in the hospitable home of J. H. Brown and family last Sunday.

The Sunday School class of Mrs. Frank Kendall was delightfully entertained Tuesday evening. She has a class of fourteen boys, and she is constantly looking to their best interest.

Rev. L. B. Hankins was guest at a six o'clock dinner Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kendall.

Memories of the past were brought vividly before us last Sabbath when Brother and Sister Newman took their usual places in the congregation of the Methodist church.

Rev. W. E. Lyon of Abilene, Missionary Secretary of Northwest Texas and New Mexico conferences, was a guest at the Methodist parsonage last Friday. While here, he and the pastor called a meeting of the Centenary forces and appointed the following committee: W. A. Armstrong, W. A. Pierce, Mrs. Nena Pierce, Mrs. Frank Kendall, J. H. Crow and J. D. Gilliam.

An excellent Easter program will be rendered at the Methodist church Sunday morning. Easter duets, quartets, solos and appropriate readings will be some of the interesting features of the occasion. Be sure to hear it.

J. D. Gilliam is employed at the Kersey store, helping to put over the big sale that is now on.

A TEXAS MOTHER'S EXPERIENCE

Houston, Texas.—"After the advent of one of my babies, my health became very poor. I was nervous and so weak I could not do anything, could not eat or sleep and was nothing but a wreck when a friend advised me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. USE OF HOG-CHOLERA SERUM

Work of County Agent in Alabama Community Results in Material Decrease in Losses.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Losses by hog cholera have been materially reduced in Bullock County, Ala., as a result of the work of the county agent in training farmers in various centers throughout the county to use the serum and apparatus developed by the department. Forty-nine cars of hogs, 3,928 head, have been marketed from the county through cooperative work, with an estimated saving of $6,000. In Houston County the department's representatives taught 18 men to vaccinate hogs. Six sets of instruments owned by the Ethan Rotary club were supplied to the demonstrators and a serum-distributing point was established in charge of a reliable veterinarian. More than 9,000 head of hogs were treated. In many cases it was found that sickness, other than cholera, was due to some incidental cause, such as had peanut meal, and balanced rations were advised. The county agent's work resulted in 32 farmers establishing pastures to keep their hogs off the open range, the land thus pastured being freed of many noxious weeds by the rooting of the animals, and prepared for future cultivation. Forty-four farmers in the county were interested in stump removing, and about 2,000 acres of land was cleared in this movement. About five tons of dynamite was bought for the purpose, largely on the co-operative plan.

Injecting the Serum.

BREEDERS FAVOR PUREBREDS

South Dakota Association Inaugurates Campaign to Discard Scrubs Now in Use.

"You have the bulls and they are needed, needed badly. Let's get them working for the breed."

This appeal, made by M. J. Flanagan, president of the South Dakota Shorthorn Breeders' association, has been sent to all Shorthorn breeders in the state, preparatory to putting on a purebred-sire campaign. According to the plan, selling expenses will be kept down to the lowest possible figure. "But we will put out a lot of bulls," the letter of notification states, "that will do good and create a demand for better cattle. It is constructive work of the best kind."

In a letter to the United States Department of Agriculture, Mr. Flanagan, who also is president of the South Dakota Federation of Livestock Breeders' associations, states: "With the co-operation of the various departments we shall be able to do a good work in getting purebred bulls in use where scrubs are now used."

PUREBRED RAMS HELP SHEEP

Lambs at Six Months of Age Outweigh Dams and Yield More Than Twice as Much Wool.

Native ewes bred to purebred rams at the Mississippi coastal plain experiment station resulted in lambs which at the age of six months outweighed their dams and yielded more than twice as much wool. This result of the use of good purebred sires is announced by the United States Department of Agriculture, through the bureau of animal industry, in a report covering the last fiscal year.

GOOD FEED TO FATTEN HORSE

Linseed or Flaxseed May Be Used to Advantage for Supplementing Animal's Ration.

Linseed or flaxseed is very good feed for supplementing the fattening horse ration. If used with soft feed, it may be boiled to advantage. Otherwise it should be ground and fed in limited quantities up to half a pound after being accustomed to it. Oil-cake meal, which is the by-product without the oil, may be fed up to one pound per day.

PRINCIPAL CAUSES OF ILLS

Pigs Are Too Often Compelled to Work Over and Live Upon Same Soil Too Intensely.

Experience teaches us that the most serious diseases of swine are those of an infectious or contagious character, and the parasites that get onto or into the pig. Now most of this is caused primarily by the fact that the pigs are all too often forced to work over and live upon the same soil too intensely, without any intervening rest or change of that soil.

STREET APPAREL FOR SPRINGTIME

HERE are two youthful followers of the mode outfitted for Easter—and afterward—with new suits, new hats and new footwear. As they are experts in the art of dressing tastefully and as each has made her selections different from the others, it is worth while to study the details of their quiet, springtime apparel for the street. Their suits are widely different, but equally good style, their hats agree only in being small, but in the matter of footwear each has chosen plain silk stockings and low shoes—to be worn with spats when the weather is cool.

The extremes of the box-coat style begin with the jacket at one end and end with the finger-length flaring model at the other. In the youthful, spring-like suit at the left of the picture, there is a short, loosely adjusted jacket with flaring sleeves, a plaited skirt, somewhat longer than the passing styles, and a sash of brightly striped ribbon finished with knot and tassel at the ends. The hat of silk and cellophane braid has a narrow brim and the shoes are plain kid pumps with baby French heels.

The suit at the right is a dignified model, which might be worn by an older woman. Its coat has bands of eye ribbon as a decoration on collar and skirt, which is quite full; it owns allegiance to the coat-sleeve and is one of the few models having a wide belt that definitely defines the waist line. The skirt is a little longer than the average and quite plain; the turban is of deep blue Batavia cloth and cellophane braid and the smart shoes of suede with strap over the instep and the fashionable baby French heel.

Within the Walls of Home

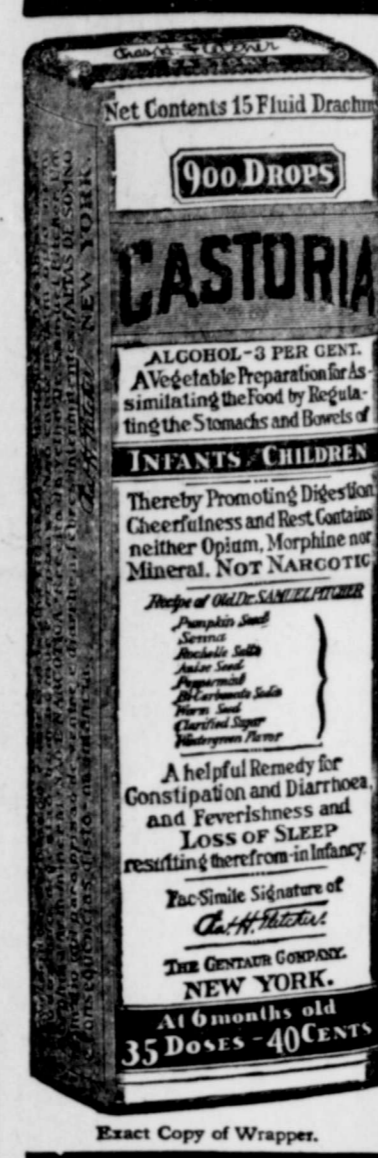

IN THE realm of special privilege—that is within the four walls of home—all sorts of negligees blossom out, as varied and unlike each other as flowers in a garden. Here splendor-loving women can go as far as they like, drawing inspiration from all quarters of the earth and of other lands; and this is what they do. If anything odd or beautiful happens to be overlooked by them, some kind genius among costumers is sure to bring the neglected treasure to their notice in an alluring form, to his gain and theirs.

Considering everything the two negligees shown in the picture above are quite unpretentious. One of them in rose and blue georgette is a lovely and fragile looking affair in which old blue in a soft shade is posed over rose color, the blue over-garment showing a wide embroidered border at the bottom and narrow embroidered bands on the bodice. The underslip provides the brief kimono sleeves, and narrow satin ribbon the loose, long girdle weighted with beads and ornaments at the ends.

The loose, straight hanging coat of satin at the right, resembles a kimono more than anything else, but as ingenious fancy has introduced an odd drape at each side supporting a long silk tassel. Instead of a hem at the bottom a corded edge is draped up and tucked in irregular folds. This is the type of negligee that is enjoying the favor of woman-kind at present, and it is made oftentimes in changeable taffetas that furnish as beautiful colors as georgette can boast. As a rule houndoir coats are shorter than the negligee pictured, and cut on more definite lines with set-in sleeves. They are often made with a long body having a deep flounce set on to form the skirt, and provided with pockets that are ornamental. Frills and ruffles made of the taffeta—especially when their edges are frayed—make the prettiest trimmings.

DENIED PLEASURES OF TABLE

Great Jockey Had to Sacrifice Much to Maintain His Position as King of Riders.

Fred Archer, the famous English jockey, had to employ heroic measures to keep his weight down. The story is told of how, on one occasion he was the guest of a very hospitable host.

From the kitchen came the perfume of savory meats, and at dinner a sturdy, rosy-cheeked man-servant made his appearance, his back bending under the weight of a great salmon on a lordly dish.

Poor Archer's face, as he surveyed the initial preparations for the evening meal, was quite piteous to watch. Then, with a shrug of the shoulders and a sigh, but ill-concealed by a cynical remark, he left the table, and shortly afterward his host saw him pass the window on a hack, galloping toward the training grounds.

Later on he partook of a tiny glass of champagne and a biscuit, playing one game of billiards, and retired to bed.

HERE'S HOPING HE SUCCEEDS

French Inventor Working on Scheme Which Would Lower the Price of Wearing Apparel.

A French inventor, who has spent many years in Brazil and Nicaragua, states that women will be able to purchase blouses, jumpers, and even costumes, made of leaves and peelings. Men may be offered suits and underwear of the same materials.

This man has devised a machine which can extract weaving threads from bunnans, pineapples, and other fibrous plants. For example, the leaf of the wild pineapple gives a thread over two yards long.

He hopes later to be able to utilize the skins of many other fruits. It is to be hoped that he succeeds, for the cost of clothes will be considerably less than those made of present-day imitation silks and mercerized cottons.
