SINGING CLASS ORGANIZED IN HEDLEY

About a hundred and seventy-five good singers met in the First Christian Church Sunday afternoon. After singing some twenty-five choice selections, the house was called to order by S. J. Ayer, and after discussion it was decided to organize and get ready for the big Singing Convention which meets here in the near future.

R. E. Mann was made temporary chairman. After short talks by Bro. Spurlin and others, several candidates were nominated for president of the class, S. J. Ayer being elected. Robert Watkins was elected vice president, and Miss Cythia Curd was chosen secretary treasurer.

It was decided to meet at the First Christian Church the first and third Sunday in each month, at 3 o'clock p. m. Everybody is cordially invited to come out and sing with us, and help Hedley's class to be one of the very best in this section.

DADDY DAIRY

CORN AIDS DAIRY COW FEED

Producers Ignore Its Cheap and Nutritious Food—Produces Heat, Energy and Fat.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

With well-fitted corn cribs on many farms, and relatively low prices prevailing this year, it is time, says a feeding specialist from the dairy division, United States Department of Agriculture, that correction should be made of the impression found in certain localities that corn is not good feed for dairy cows.

"When it is fed for a definite purpose, with a complete knowledge of its limitations, as well as its true worth, corn is one of the best and cheapest grains we have that can be used for the economical production of milk," says the feeding specialist.

The function of corn in the ration is to furnish the animal with material for producing heat, energy, and fat; but is rather low in protein and deficient in ash.

Corn and Soybeans Grown for Silage—A Good Mixture for Dairy Cattle.

make bone, muscle, hair, and the casein in milk. Consequently, in compounding the grain ration it is necessary to add to corn some feed which is high in this substance, such as bran, linseed meal, or cottonseed meal.

Since corn can be grown on most dairy farms, supplies energy in a cheap form, and is palatable; and since, when it is made into silage, it provides the cheapest and most efficient form of succulence, every dairyman should have the information that will enable him to make corn the basis of a successful ration for economical milk production.

BACTERIA CAUSE SOUR MILK

Most of Tiny Organisms Are Not Only Harmless, but Positively Beneficial to Milk.

Milk, as it leaves the cow's udder, contains bacteria. If the cow is dirty and there is loose hay around, dust from the cow's body and the hay settles in the milk-pail, and this dust is swarming with bacteria.

EXCELLENT AS FORAGE CROP

Cowpeas Will Thrive on All Types of Arable Soil and Requires Very Little Attention.

For feed the cowpea is especially valuable, specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture say, because it will grow on all types of arable soil, requiring little attention and producing most excellent forage.

ETERNAL DEATH, HELL AND RETRIBUTION

St. Luke 16:23. The clock of time in yonder tower will one day strike the dreadful knell; life is over, probation is ended, hope gone, and the white winged angel of mercy has flown forever. Death comes dashing down the road of life on his pale horse, sometimes coming suddenly in view, as if rounding a curve. Rev. 6:8.

Lost sinners! He will level his arrow at your heart, all red and quivering at the point like an adder's tongue as if lapping fire from a distance, with his ghastly gaze and bony hands, he will seize your poor lost soul and drag your immortal spirit into the lake of fire and brimstone, "where the worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched," which is the second death. Once behind the sweltering walls of hell, and locked up in its confines forever, you may scream and cry for mercy only to be hissed at by countless demons with hellish glee. In your resurrected hell doomed body you will stagger through hell's dark empire to the farthest outposts and domains, gnawing your tongue and blaspheming the God of Heaven because of your pains and sores. Rev. 16:9.

Jude 13. Shrieking and screaming you will plunge through the blackness of darkness forever like a wandering star, and like the imprisoned bird that beats its bloody wings against the iron bars seeking liberty, so you will be left to "foam out your shame." Over the rough, sharp and rocky ledge you will stumble and fall to rise no more.

And in the bottomless Abyss the billows of damnation will dash upon you and under your feet forever, surrounded by dogs, and sorcerers, and whoremongers, blasphemers and God haters, demonized spirits and fallen angels, you will wreak out an awful existence in hell forever.

Separated from loved ones, no God, no Savior, no comfort, no rest day or night, no light, no law, no love, no music, hope gone forever, despair set in, doom sealed, and the object of God's unmitigated wrath.

Bound and fettered in chains of darkness, with despair cut deep in every link, your own screams and shrieks will vibrate through that dark Spirit world only to re-echo and play back on your lost soul, and mock you in your misery. Only a holy God knows what retribution awaits the lost soul. O, my friend, if you are lost, and on the road that leads to death, and hell, and despair, I beg you to turn while it is called today. 2 Cor 6:2. Tomorrow may be too late for you. Heb. 12:14.

It is a heart surrender or hell. Rev. 20:15. It is either turn from sin or burn. Joshua 24:15 "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve, God or mammon."

Don't let it be said, too late, too late, For vain will your pleading be; Be ready to enter the pearly gate While open it stands for thee.

An Adventure Romance

When all the rubbing is done, even to the last rite where they divide the fragrant food into two waves falling over the bosom and mercilessly knead the damp ends between folds of the driest bit of the towel, she drops that implement and runs into the big room where the dying open fire blinks its red eye as though it had been waiting up for her.

The writer—who is privileged, for the benefit of a large and growing public, to see her in his mind's eye as her pink bare feet pad up and down the room, racing every time they come to the home-stretch between the unpeopled grandstand of the couch and the fire, and then doubling suddenly, so that her wide eyes may catch her hair still on the wing, for all the world like a kitten chasing its tail—does herein affirm, by the collective manhood of the earth, that she was altogether lovable and beyond the reach of sully thought. Now let her curl up in the bed and sleep.

Slumber meant nothing in Pamela's life. That statement should be taken not in the sense of the common slang of the vulgar, but at its literal face value. What is meant is that when this young lady slept, it was like taking a chunk bodily 'out of life and putting it in warm storage. As a consequence, when the old-fashioned clock on the mantel burred a warning that it was thinking of striking the hour of nine in about two minutes, she opened her eyes and wondered through what magic night had been suddenly replaced by broad and smiling day.

Not for long did that life-long and accustomed miracle hold her attention, for scarcely had it occurred, through force of habit, to her awakening thought than her startled eyes fell upon the tall, stooped, gray-headed figure of a man, clad in livery, and standing unsteadily poised in the doorway of the room. His eyes, naturally deep-set, actually protruded from his face as though they were determined to come half-way to meet Pamela's wondering orbs. He looked like a solemn raven which has carelessly alighted on a live wire.

"He-hello!" stammered the young lady.

"Good-morning, miss," said Tomlinson, in sepulchral and censorious tones. "Where is Master Robert?"

"You mean Mr. Randolph?" asked Pamela, a little breathlessly.

The old man steeled himself by seizing the door-lamb and bowed confirmation of her supposition.

"I don't know where he is," said Pamela, more calmly. "The last time I saw him he was limping west." A twinkle came into her eyes. "Why do you ask?"

"Why do I ask?" he exclaimed. "Miss, do you mind telling me who you are and what you are doing in Mr. Randolph's apartment at nine o'clock on a Friday morning?"

"In November," supplemented Pamela, as though she were supplying a very important addition to the facts in the case. "I am Miss Thornton," she added, with as much dignity as a maiden, tumbled of hair, flushed of cheek, and cuddled in a young man's big bed, could summon.

"He-hello," stammered the young lady.

The effect of her words on Tomlinson was electrical.

"Miss Imogene Pamela Thornton?" he asked, as he suddenly straightened and let go of his supports.

"Yes," said Pamela, gazing at him in undisguised surprise. "How did you know?"

"Why, miss," said the old man, "I'm Tomlinson. Excuse me for saying so," he added, a pale flush in his withered cheeks, "but many a time in the old days Maggie let me take you on my knee. A mort of worry you have given us, miss."

Quick tears rose to Pamela's eyes.

"Oh!" she cried. "You knew Maggie?"

"In a manner of speaking, I did," stated Tomlinson sonorously. "Kissed her; but she never let me get as far as hugging, poor girl! She said she knew she wasn't here for long enough."

Laughter bubbled into Pamela's eyes alongside of the tears, but, in spite of it, the next moment she was crying softly.

"P-poor M-Maggie!" she sobbed.

Tomlinson bobbed his head up and down in formal sympathy, too old to worry much over woman's weeping.

"I understand that she must 'ave went," he said. "Else you wouldn't be alone, miss. Will you have your breakfast in bed?"

"Oh, could I?" sniffed Pamela, and then her eyes fell on the clock. "No, I can't," she decided for herself. "You see, Tomlinson, I only pre-promised to stay until ten."

"I'll be getting your bath ready, then, miss," said Tomlinson, and withdrew.

Half an hour later Pamela was enjoying a lonely "tray"-breakfast, placed at her command before the couch, which faced the friendly fire in the big living-room. Without being a mind-reader, it is possible to surmise that she ate very slowly, in the vain hope that Mr. Randolph would pop in, with or without Father Christmas, and joining her in the meal, banish a baby Mr. Gloom that was hanging round.

While she was still toying with her food she heard the bell ring and Tomlinson's voice saying, in deep, respectful tones: "Miss Thornton will see you, sir. She is in the sitting-room."

Pamela dropped her egg-spoon and stood up, back to the fire, just in time to face a neatly dressed, pink-cheeked, bright-eyed, bald-headed little gentleman, who stood, poised but alert, in the open doorway, like a bird about to peck at her to see if she were the real thing.

"Miss Thornton?" he asked, in a peculiarly liquid voice.

Pamela nodded her head twice.

"I am Mr. Borden Milyuns," continued the molten voice, and the bright eyes studied her face expectantly.

Pamela puckered her brows in an effort to meet that expectancy half-way, but failed.

"Are you?" she asked doubtfully, and with a mental reservation against Mr. Robert Hervey Randolph for outraging the traditions of childhood by sending a Father Christmas in this dapper form. "Won't you sit down?" she added politely.

Mr. Milyuns hung poised for a second longer, and then advanced on the couch decisively, sat down on one end of it, and waved his hand at the other. Tomlinson slipped in and out, bearing the breakfast-tray away. Pamela accepted Mr. Milyuns' silent invitation and seated herself, but tentatively, as though she could only stay for a minute.

"Make yourself comfortable, my dear," said Mr. Milyuns; "I'm going to talk to you for some time."

"You can't," said Pam; "not here. I only have the flat for six minutes longer. That is, I only pre-promised to stay here until ten." Her eyes wandered half expectantly, half wistfully to the door.

The bird-man smiled.

"We'll see about that," he said. "I'm sorry you don't remember me. If you are indeed Miss Imogene Pamela Thornton, I used to take you on my knee often, many years ago."

Pamela could no longer be startled by such announcements.

"That's what Tomlinson said this morning," she remarked. "Ever since last night, everybody I meet seems to— to know my real name. I don't understand it."

"Please trust me," said Mr. Milyuns, "and you'll soon understand a lot more than that." He drew a slip from his pocket. "Now, do answer me carefully. Tell me the addresses of the first four places you and Maggie lived in after your father died."

"I can't remember the first," said Pam, but, after a second's thought, rattled off the names of three streets, and located addresses approximately by describing nearby corners prominent to a child's mind for one reason or another. "Those are the next three," she said. "After that, we went—"

But Mr. Milyuns was satisfied.

"That's enough for formalities, my dear. I'm convinced that you are the person for whom the firm of Milyuns, Branch & Milyuns has been searching for years. Do you remember your great-uncle, Asa Thornton?"

"Yes," said Pamela, a vague wonder and terror in her eyes; "but I didn't know he was real."

"Didn't know he was real?" exclaimed Mr. Milyuns. "What do you mean?"

"Maggie used to say," explained Pamela, "if you're not good, your great-uncle, Asa Thornton, will catch you, and he hasn't cut his finger nails since your poor father married your dear mother." Pamela shuddered.

"You'll have to forget all that," said Mr. Milyuns soberly. "Before your great-uncle died, he repented very effectively of the way he treated your father, and left you an income of ten thousand dollars a year."

Pamela sat up very straight, and then sank slowly into the pillows at her back.

"Ten — thousand — dollars — a — year!" she repeated slowly.

Mr. Milyuns nodded.

"Beginning with today. There is no accumulation waiting for you, because, by the terms of the will, Mr. Randolph was allowed the entire income up to such time as you should be discovered. That provision was quite natural, if you will remember that Mr. Asa Thornton had been searching for you unsuccessfully for some months before he died."

Pamela sat up straight again.

"I want to understand you," she said with a sudden dignity that increased Mr. Milyuns' admiration, already decidedly on the upgrade. "You mean that, with my appearance, Mr. Randolph's entire income completely disappears?"

Mr. Milyuns nodded.

"You have guessed it in one," he said flippantly.

"I don't need ten thousand dollars a year," said Pamela promptly. "You will please tell Mr. Randolph that I shall only take half."

Mr. Milyuns smiled.

"I'll try to carry out your orders," he said blandly, "but I'll have to find Mr. Randolph first. Let me add that you apparently don't know the young gentleman very well."

"What do you mean by that?" asked Pam.

"Well," said Mr. Milyuns, taking another scrap of paper from his pocket and handing it to her, "read that. It was left at my house this morning by a taxi-cabman, who didn't wait for an answer. You see that Mr. Randolph has handed over to you in perpetuity this apartment, Tomlinson, and all the other fixings. It doesn't look very much as though he intended to come back to the near future."

"But I want him to!" cried Pam. "I— I've been expecting him. I didn't half-half thank him for— for—"

Tears of disappointment clogged her throat.

"There, there!" said Mr. Milyuns, leaning over and patting her hand. "I understand just how you feel, because Bob is one of the straightest, openest, most lovable young devils that ever went his own way through a delighted world."

Pamela nodded her head up and down, in silent confirmation of all those kind words. She began to like Mr. Milyuns. She raised pleading eyes to his face.

"Won't you please find him for me?" "My dear," said Mr. Milyuns, so promptly that if she had asked for the house and lot on the northwest corner of Fifth avenue and Fifty-seventh street, he would have promised it to her before he could stop himself. "I will. I haven't proved myself much good at the game, but I'll find Bob for you if I have to start a detective agency of my own. In the meantime, what are you going to do? I suggest that you accept these premises until the truant turns up—only, of course, we must get you a companion."

"A companion?" asked Miss Thornton. "But I have that already. Tomlinson is a dear."

"Tomlinson is splendid in his way," admitted Mr. Milyuns, "but he isn't quite a woman. You can't live here chaperoned by a mere male."

The Bright Side.

The warden of Ohio penitentiary says that this one is true: Recently a negro prisoner, in for life, was brought before him and in the conversation the warden said: "Why, Rastus, you are in for life, aren't you?" With a broad grin the negro replied philosophically, "Oh, no, warden— just from now on."

NEEDS OF CHILD IN WAY OF FOOD

Basket Lunches Require Thought and Care in Preparing to Prevent Sameness.

BREAD IS QUITE IMPORTANT

Simplest Contrivances Are Often Better Than Boxes With Compartments—Heavy Napkins Are Very Convenient in Packing.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

What went into Jane's and Jack's lunch boxes at your house this morning? Were they filled the last minute with what remained on the table after breakfast, supplemented by some of last night's meat and pie, or were the boxes filled with dainty, appetizing lunches, carefully planned and packed?

Growing children have certain special needs in the way of food. Like grown people, they must be supplied with what is necessary for health and strength, but in addition, they must be given, also, what is necessary for growth.

Even when children eat all their meals at home, it is no easy matter to see that they are properly fed; but when they eat part of their meals at school, the difficulty is much greater. It is not easy to make food attractive and to keep it clean when it must be packed and carried in a lunch basket.

Filling Lunch Basket.

The basket lunch is harder to plan and to prepare than the lunch at home. To begin with, many foods cannot be included in it, either because they are not good cold or because they cannot be conveniently packed or easily carried. This leaves fewer foods to choose from, and extra care is necessary to prevent sameness.

Paraffin paper, parchment paper, jelly glasses, and the paper cups and containers for moist foods are a great help in packing lunches. With these helps, foods can be kept from sticking to each other, and such half-solid foods as sliced raw fruits, stewed fruits, custards, and cottage cheese, can be carried in perfect condition.

Good Bread Important.

The quality of the bread used in the basket lunch is especially important because it is commonly served in the form of sandwiches and is, therefore, to be considered, not only as a food in itself, but also as a means of keeping other much needed foods in appetizing and attractive condition.

Variety in breads, too, is more important at this than at other meals, because of the danger of monotony. Wheat bread, whole-wheat bread, corn, rye, or oatmeal breads; nut, raisin, and date breads; beaten biscuit, rolls, crisp baking powder or soda biscuit, toast, zwiebach, and crackers may be used in turn to give variety. Rolls hollowed out can be made to hold a large amount of sandwich fillings, which is an advantage at times.

Packing the Lunch.

Many kinds of lunch boxes, pails and baskets are now on the market. Because they can be washed and scalded easily, the simplest boxes and baskets are often better than the more elaborate ones with compartments in which to keep dishes, knives, forks and spoons. With the increase in automobile travel, well-constructed boxes and baskets which can be easily cleaned have come on the market with compartments for keeping food hot or cold or for holding liquids. These are, of course, suitable only for children who ride back and forth, and particularly suitable where several lunches are put up in one household.

The precautions which must be taken to keep the foods clean and safe differ with circumstances. In dusty seasons they should be wrapped particularly well. In hot weather, the use of soft, moist foods in which molds and bacteria are most likely to grow rapidly, should be avoided. Although chopped meat moistened with a dressing of some kind makes a good sandwich filling, such foods are less desirable in hot weather than slices of meat, peanut butter, or other foods less liable to spoil.

heavier paper towels of much the same size are very useful for packing lunches, and, like paraffin and parchment paper, may now be obtained at a low price, particularly if bought in rather large quantities. If no provision is made in the school for serving lunches, an extra napkin, either of paper or cloth, should be put in the basket, to be spread over the school desk when the lunch is eaten. Napkins can be made out of cotton crepe at a cost of a very few cents each. The crepe may be bought by the yard, and should be cut into squares and fringed. Such napkins have the advantage of not needing to be ironed.

OLD DRY-GOODS BOX AIDS BREAD MAKING

Contrivance Holds Dough at Right Temperature.

Kerosene Lamp or 16-Candlepower Light May Be Used for Heating—Shallow Pan of Water on Lower Shelf Keeps Air Moist.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In making bread the housekeeper often finds it difficult, particularly in the winter months, to hold her sponge or dough at the right temperature so that it will rise in a shorter period of time. She will find a sponge box or bread raiser a great help in keeping the proper temperature. Such a box can be made from an ordinary dry-goods packing box. The following directions for making one are given by the United States Department of Agriculture in Farmers' Bulletin 927, "Farm Home Conveniences."

A box 26 by 20 by 20 inches is a convenient size. About 10 inches from the bottom of the box a shelf made of slats or strips of wood rests on cleats fastened to the sides of the box. A second shelf is placed 4 inches above the lower one. The shelves can be removed when cleaning the box. Below the lower shelf a sheet of galvanized iron, slightly wider than the shelf, is inserted. It is curved in order to make it slip in and stay in place securely. This prevents scorching of the lower shelf when a lamp is placed below and also helps to distribute the heat more evenly. The door is hinged and fastened with a thumb latch or hook and staple.

Several small holes are bored in the lower and upper parts of the sides and in the top of the box to promote circulation of air. A cork, bored through the center to admit a straight thermometer, is inserted in one of the holes in the top of the box. A Fahrenheit chemical thermometer that registers as high as 100 degrees can be used. Such a thermometer may be ordered through a hardware dealer or directly from an instrument dealer.

To avoid all danger of fire, the box should be lined with asbestos or tin when a kerosene lamp is used for heating. A 16-candlepower light will heat the box well, or a small, inexpensive night lamp may be placed in the bottom. A shallow pan of water should be put on the lower shelf so that the air will be kept moist.

The bowl of sponge or pans of dough are placed on the upper shelf. The temperature of the box should be kept as near 85 degrees F. as possible (80 to 88 degrees F.) when bread is made in the quick way. If a sponge is set overnight, 65 to 70 degrees F. is the better temperature until the dough is made in the morning, after which the temperature may be increased to 85 degrees F. The temperature in the box may be varied by raising or lowering the flame of the lamp or by using warm or cold water in the shallow pan.

GOOD TEST OF CHILD'S DIET

If Children Are Strong, Well Developed and Free From Ailments, Food Is Suitable.

The health and appearance of children are a good test of the wholesomeness of their diet. If they are strong, well developed for their ages, free from ailments and full of energy and ambition, one may safely say their food agrees with them. But if they are listless and ailing, or not so well developed either physically or mentally as they should be, and if a competent physician finds that there is no special disease to account for these bad symptoms, a mother may well ask herself if the food is right, and if not, how she can make it so.

Household Questions

Prunes are richer and more nourishing cooked in the oven.

A teaspoonful of baking powder will make fudge more creamy.

One of the nicest ways to cook onions, from every point of view, is to bake them in the skin.

A good aluminum polisher is a mixture of borax, ammonia, and water. Apply with a soft brush.

To bake potatoes quickly, let them stand in boiling water for a few minutes before putting them in the oven.

THIS YOUNG MOTHER

Tells Childless Women What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did for Her

Millston, Wis.—"I want to give you a word of praise for your wonderful medicine. We are very fond of children and for a considerable time after we married I feared I would not have any owing to my weak condition. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I have a nice strong healthy baby girl. I can honestly say that I did not suffer much more when my baby was born than I used to suffer with my periods before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound years ago. I give all the credit to your medicine and shall always recommend it very highly."

—Mrs. H. H. JANSEN, Millston, Wisconsin.

How can women who are weak and sickly expect or hope to become mothers of healthy children? Their first duty is to themselves. They should overcome the derangement or debility that is dragging them down, and strengthen the entire system, as did Mrs. Jansen, by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and then they will be in a position to give their children the blessing of a good constitution.

PRICES ARE REDUCED

In view of the reduction in steel prices made public April 13th, the International Harvester Company of America announces a straight 10 per cent reduction on its products in which steel is the principal raw material used. This reduction applies chiefly to the harvesting machine lines, covering grain and rice binders, shockers, reapers and push machines, mowers, hay rakes, side delivery rakes and tedders, combination side delivery rakes and tedders, corn binders and pickers, huskers and silo fillers.

On March 7th the Harvester Company announced price reductions of from 10 to 15 per cent on the machines principally composed of wood and iron. The price changes announced today complete the reductions on the entire line of machines manufactured by the Harvester Company. The International Harvester Company of America states that the reduction in the price of steel comes at a time when their year's product has been provided for, and will have no bearing on the cost of machines they sell this year. It does establish a lower replacement cost, however, and serves as the basis of a price to which their customers are entitled and which they are willing to accept.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says: "Take for example, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have used for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

Steel Airplane.

According to a recent report from Reuter's, Paris, a giant airplane is being built by the Breguet company, which, when completed, will be a veritable aerial ship. It is constructed with an engineroom in the nose of the machine, the total motive power being 1,000 horsepower, and a comfortable saloon for passengers has been placed in the fuselage. The wings are of a new design, and the machine is being built entirely of steel.

SLUMBER SUITS AND HIDDEN WEAR

THERE is nothing particularly new in negligees, pajamas or under-muslins, except the names by which they are called. Pajamas and the like have become "slumber suits"; a useful and elastic title that will include several types of night dress. "Hidden wear" is also more accurate than undermuslins, for underclothes have long since divided their allegiance between muslin and silk fabrics, with demand pointing toward the use of crepe-de-chine in increasing quantities. As women grow fastidious in these matters they require more in quality of fabric, whether of cotton or silk, more in quality of workmanship, and discrimination in the use of trimming.

It is a little difficult to tell the difference between negligees and slumber suits sometimes, especially when both are modeled after the pajama. The slumber suit pictured is of light pink crepe-de-chine with val lace edgings and small ribbon flowers adding to its daintiness. It is one among many patterned after this particular style which appears almost as popular for negligees. In displays the latter are often distinctly Chinese in flavor, made of figured materials in bright colors, or in plain colors gayly embroidered.

Fine batiste, in regulation garments hand-embroidered and rather sparingly trimmed with good laces, holds its own with its silken rivals, having certain qualities of refinement that cannot be outclassed. Underwear appears to have swung away from anything but soft sheer fabrics, and there is a tendency toward the use of light colors in place of white.

Easter Brings Its Brides

THIS year's Easter brides find themselves privileged to choose the simplest and most conventional of wedding gowns, or to take note of and reflect current features of the styles, cleverly manipulated, in their wedding dresses. To be simple and conventional is sure to place a wedding gown above criticism and is a safe and sane choice on the part of the bride. But daring youth often aspires to being original and modistes are more than ready to indulge them in gowns that are interesting from this point of view—and beautiful because it is their business to make them so. The conventional gown is the long-sleeved and (more or less) high-necked model which generations have approved, made of silk fabrics—including satin or velvet as well as the sheer materials—and worn with it is a veil of net or lace, or of net bordered with lace.

Happy the bride that inherits a wedding veil of lovely lace! She may select either the simplest or the most elaborate of gowns to be veiled by her precious possession. The pretty maid pictured at the left, has chosen to feature a magnificent veil over a wedding gown of heavy crepe-de-chine, simple and straight in lines. It is long sleeved and square necked. One edge of the veil forms a frill that is wired to keep it upstanding across the back of the head, where it is attached to a band that slips under the hair at the sides and is decorated with orange flower buds across the front. She has chosen the regulation bridal bouquet.

The youthful bride at the right has a draped gown of white satin with plaited tunic of chiffon and a band of plaited chiffon heading the bodice. There are long, close-fitting sleeves of chiffon that partly cover the bands, but so transparent that the arms seem uncovered. She indulges in a very long train and a voluminous veil flowing from a quaint bonnet with a cluster of orange blossoms posed at each side. Wreaths of the blossoms form a charming detail of the tunic and a little cluster of them on the bodice finishes off a very interesting costume. Having been a little independent in the choice of her gown the bride reveals her serious mindedness by carrying a prayer book.

In a message to the directors and members of the Wisconsin Live Stock Breeders' association, Andrew W. Hopkins, until recently its secretary, makes the following statement: "It truly is a noteworthy fact that where live stock farming has attained a high standard of perfection there also has citizenship attained an equally high standard. An intelligent contact with farm animals always has and always will insure quality in the men; and a closer kinship with the better types surely brings forth fruits not yet compassed. General education, honesty of purpose, righteous living, culture, and religion have made the most progress in those communities in which intelligent stock farming has been most generally pursued."

Cattle and Corn—A Good Combination in Profitable Farming.

The United States Department of Agriculture has received a copy of Mr. Hopkins' recommendations for the future development of the live stock industry in Wisconsin. These recommendations point out that stockmen may well seek to increase their returns from live stock: (1) by discarding inferior animals, (2) by strengthening their organizations, (3) by cooperating when necessary in buying and selling, (4) by combating disease, (5) by supporting boys' and girls' club work, (6) by studying live stock and milk marketing, (7) by insisting upon more stabilized markets, and (8) working for the proper relation between the price paid the producer and that paid by the consumer.

IMPROVEMENT OF PUREBREDS

Virginia Farmer Gradually Helps Quality of Stock by Using Those of Superior Type.

Of 151 head of live stock on a farm in Shenandoah county, Va., all but five are of pure breeding, the United States Department of Agriculture is advised. Cattle and swine are the principal classes of animals kept.

In participating in the "Better Sires—Better Stock" campaign, the owner of these animals states that he castrates all inferior and surplus hogs, keeping none for breeding that can not be registered. "I castrated 26 in one day," he adds. "Three of these were good enough yearling boars to head most herds." By keeping only those animals for breeding which are of superior type, this farmer is gradually improving the quality of stock on his farm.

CONSIDERING OATS FOR HOGS

Not Worth While Unless Selling for Less Than One-Half as Much Per Bushel as Corn.

As a general rule it is not worth while to consider oats as a feed for hogs unless they are selling for less than one-half as much per bushel as corn. In case the hogs are being carried along rather slowly, however, or the tankage is extremely high-priced, it may be worth while to feed as much as a pound of oats per pig daily. In any case continue to depend chiefly on corn and tankage, feeding at least two or three parts of corn for each part of oats and at least one-fourth of a pound of tankage per pig daily.

EWES NEED AMPLE EXERCISE

Excellent Plan to Scatter Rough Feed Away From Sheds and Let Them Pick It Over.

No matter how well they are cared for, if they do not have ample exercise the ewes are likely to have very unthrifty lambs. An excellent way to exercise the flock is to scatter out some rough feed away from the sheds every day, and permit them to pick it over.

FEEDING ROUGHAGE TO SOWS

Care Should Be Taken by Farmer That It is Bright, Nutritious and Free From Mold.

Under no condition should a brood sow be fed upon any roughage which is not bright, nutritious and free from smut or mold. She does not relish or thrive on such inferior feed. It is very apt to cause severe digestive troubles, and may lead to the loss of her litter

STRICTLY ACCORDING TO RULE

No One Could Deny That Candidate, in His Entrance Examination, Made 50 Per Cent.

An examination story from the London Morning Post: They wanted him badly at the college, but unfortunately there was an entrance examination from which not even the most promising of Rugby three-quarters could claim complete exemption. It was only an oral questioning—and yet one had to get 50 per cent to pass. The matter was left in the hands of a sporting young don, and his protegee got through. Later on it appeared that only two questions had been asked. "The first," said the examiner, "was the date of Trafalgar; he got that wrong. Then I asked him what the chemical formula for sulphuric acid was. He said: 'I don't know—really I don't.' Well, that was right, for it was obvious that he didn't know. So I passed him with 50 per cent."—Christian Register.

That Much Settled.

"We were made for each other, weren't we, dear?"
"I don't know, George. What is your salary?"
"Thirty per week."
"No, we were not made for each other."

DIDN'T LAST LONG ENOUGH

Possibly the "Woman in the Sky" Didn't Use a Really Good Kind of Feather.

Two little tots were still trying out Christmas sleds although it was a week or more after the holiday and the short hill down which they were coasting was entirely devoid of snow in spots. They would slide along for a few feet until they came to a bare spot, drag their sleds over the barren place to the next patch of snow and repeat.

"Where does the snow come from?" the smaller of the two children, a boy of about four, suddenly asked.
"My mother says it is some woman way up in the sky shaking her pillows until the feathers fall out," was the naive reply of his companion.
"Well," exclaimed the boy, after a thoughtful pause, "I wish her feathers wouldn't melt."

Remedy Worth Trying.

There are many troubles which you cannot cure by the Bible or hymn book, but which you can cure by systematic exercise and fresh air.—Henry Ward Beecher.

The fable of the tortoise and the hare teaches us that perseverance usually gets the gate receipts.

TIMELY FORMULAS

Egg Preservative
For 15 dozen eggs: Select a 5 gallon jar; clean and dry; boil 10 quarts of soft water; when cool place in jar and thoroughly mix 1 quart of water glass (sodium silicate) with the water. Water glass can be purchased at drug stores. Place eggs carefully in jar. Use only clean infertile eggs. Do not wash eggs. Keep solution 2 inches over the top of eggs. Will keep well for months. Recommended by leading authorities. Put up a supply for next winter while eggs are cheap.

Whitewash
Sack half bushel lime in boiling water. Keep covered during process. Strain and add peck of salt dissolved in warm water. Put 3 lbs of ground rice in boiling water and mix to a paste. Put 1 lb Spanish whiting and 1 lb. of Clear blue in warm water and dissolve. Mix the two solutions together and let stand for several days. Keep prepared in kettle and heat well when to be applied. Good paint substitute. Very useful for inside of hog and poultry houses.

Stock Food
This formula is recommended by the Government. Glauber Salts 2 lbs., Soda 1 lb., Salt 1 lb., Fenugreek 1 lb., Linseed Meal 25 lbs. Mix very thoroughly, and give one tablespoonful three times a day. Try it.

Hog Worm Remedy
Mix 6 grains of Santonin and 4 grains of Calomel in a palatable slop for each 100 lbs. of hog weight. Withhold feed for 24 hours and give to infected hogs in a clean trough. Where several are to be treated, care must be used in seeing that each get their share. Follow up with a dose of salts or castor oil. There is perhaps no other one thing that retards the growth of hogs in this locality as much as intestinal worms. Get rid of them. Hedley Livestock and Fair Association.
