THANKSGIVING SERVICE AND A BIG DINNER

The union Thanksgiving service held last Thursday in the Methodist church was attended by a large crowd. The program as announced in the Informer was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

Following the service, the ladies of the First Baptist church served an excellent dinner in their Sunday School annex, just across the street from the Baptist church. The Informer family were among the fortunate ones who were privileged to partake of this feast, therefore we know whereof we speak when we say it was an excellent dinner. The proceeds amounted to $46.50.

RED CROSS SEWING

Material for making garments for the Red Cross has arrived, and volunteers are needed to help with the sewing. If you can sew, and wish to help, let us hear from you.

Mrs. J. C. Coffey, Chm.

WE ARE LATE THIS WEEK

The Informer is both late and short of news this week, caused by our absence from home five days the past week, it having been necessary to take the children to Amarillo for throat operations. We expected to be gone only one or two days, but circumstances were such that we were kept much longer. We hope to "catch up" with the regular schedule in a few days.

In this connection, we want to thank our neighbors for many kindnesses shown us.

PECANS—Good Oklahoma New Pecans, delivered in Hedley at 16c a pound.

Mrs. Vera Glass of Hedley and Miss Lillian Smith of Wichita Falls came in the first of the week to meet their sister, Miss Zoe Smith of San Francisco, and will be with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith, for a few weeks.—Claude News.

HOME GUARD COMPANY ORGANIZED THIS WEEK

The local company of the Home Guard, Company H of the 142nd, was mustered into service last Monday at Clarendon, according to The News. Major Culbertson of Wichita Falls and Capt. Hankins of Quanah assisted in the work.

Sixty five enlistments were secured, and drill will commence at once. The company will be federalized within a few days, we are told.

Officers are: Nat S. Perrine of Hedley, company commander; George Taylor, 1st lieutenant; Byron Blevins, 2nd lieutenant.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. Walker

NOT ON BREAD ALONE

There is within all of us an ever-growing appetite which craves substantial nourishment for the soul.

A sumptuous table heaped with palatable delicacies fails utterly to satisfy this hunger.

With all our carnal gluttony we find ourselves at certain periods of our existence yearning for spiritual food.

Wealth and luxury leave but an emptiness; poverty and sorrow distress and harden our hearts; the world is a cheat—a bauble that eludes us and leaves us in vagueness.

We may be talebearers, liars and thieves, but in our serious moments there comes upon us an overwhelming longing for something that will appease our appetite, besides bread alone.

We wish for the sustenance in which Truth and Mercy are blended, that our souls may be satiated, and our fever cooled. In ten thousand delectable forms it is spread out before us, but we rebel against accepting it.

Though we may be starving and weak to the point of falling we refuse to eat.

In our misery and weariness we crave the everlasting Voice of Nature to lull us to sweet repose, yet in strange perverseness we fight to keep awake.

From all around us comes the call to the feast.

It comes from the silent starry nights; from the boisterous days; from the shimmering silver streams;

Why?

DO WE BLUSH?

ANY shock or emotion which makes the heart pump an extra supply of blood into the arteries and veins which supply the face will give rise to the reaction which we call "blushing." The emotion, of course, must be one of the variety which causes the heart to beat faster than usual. Excitement, embarrassment or anger will cause this, while fear, which retards the action of the heart, will cause the opposite effect, producing a pale white look.

Because the shock or emotion must be one to which we are not accustomed, some persons blush far more readily than others. A person, for example, who is not in the habit of listening to certain language will blush from embarrassment when he hears it the first few times but, if the experience is continued, he will become "hardened" and lose the ability to blush—which is the reason that blushing is considered to be one of the attributes of innocence.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

by Nellie Maxwell

We all might do more than we have done, and not be a whit the worse for it, if we were loving that emptied the heart. Not giving that emptied the purse.

THANKSGIVING GOOD THINGS.

IT IS a good plan to have as much as possible of the preparation for our feast day done ahead of time. Some things are better done ahead of time, for example, cranberry jelly and stuffing the turkey. A turkey which is stuffed the day before it is roasted, is of much better flavor, as the seasoning has a chance to work into the fowl. Mince and pumpkin pies may be made early so that on Thanksgiving day only the less important things are left to be done.

Celery may be washed, wrapped in a cloth and laid in a cool place. Nuts may be cracked, and many little things which take time, can be attended to the day before.

A salad which will be enjoyed by everyone may be all ready to serve. The lettuce washed, drained and placed in a cool, airtight place to keep crisp.

For the dressing, take two table-spoonfuls of chopped green pepper, one table-spoonful of chopped red pepper, one table-spoonful of minced parsley, one small Spanish onion chopped, a table-spoonful of salt, one-quarter of a cupful of vinegar and three-quarters of a cupful of good olive oil, or any sweet vegetable oil may be used, but it will not have the delicious flavor of the olive. Shake all together in a pint mason jar a half-hour, at intervals, then place in a cool place. This dressing will keep for two weeks, and is called Sherry's dressing. This is especially good with tender head lettuce or Chinese cabbage.

When making the pumpkin pie, just add a few drops of lemon extract with the ginger used in seasoning, and notice the improvement in flavor.

Cranberry frappe is a delicious way of serving that berry. Strain the cooked berries, using two cupfuls, a cupful of sugar and a pint of water, two table-spoonfuls of lemon juice to set the color, and freeze as usual.

from the dancing leaves of the forests; from songs of birds and sighing winds, but our eyes are heavy and our ears are dull.

Right at our elbows is a dust-covered volume filled with uplifting encouragement and fatherly love, intended for guidance to the very happiness we desire.

But we let this great book lie in a dark corner untouched while we continue to stumble on and cry for peace.

We refuse to open our eyes when we ought to be wide awake; we decline to close them when we ought to be asleep; we are wilfully headstrong and insistent upon having our own way.

We see not the good, but stroll and strut with evil.

We are human; but within each one of us there burns the spark of divinity, and not until this spark shall be fanned by our own hand into flame, and kept burning by simple prayer and faith shall our hunger be fully satisfied.

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

By C. N. LURIE

Common Errors in English and How to Avoid Them

"EVERY ONE ARE."

THERE is always a strong tendency among writers or speakers to make a verb agree in number with the noun that is nearest to the verb in position in the sentence. For example, many persons use such sentences as the following: "Every one of these letters were signed by me," without recognizing the grammatical error involved.

The subject (nominative) of the sentence is not "letters," but "one," modified by "every." One is in the singular number and requires, therefore, a singular verb. "Letters" is in the objective case, governed by the preposition "of." You cannot say, "Every one were signed," and the use of the phrase "of the letters" does not change the grammatical rule involved. Therefore, instead of saying "Every-one of these letters were signed by me," say "Every one of these letters was signed by me."

Of course, the same rule applies to "each." Do not say, "Each of these letters are mine," say, "Each of these letters is mine."

THE FRIENDLY PATH

By WALTER I. ROBINSON.

"HE OFTEN stood beside his gate. An honest-faced old man."

The unknown author of these lines introduces a character known to everyone and generally loved. In every community there may be found the aged man, with the happy, smiling face. The world has not showered a great amount of wealth upon him. He has gone through trouble and sickness. He leans upon his worn cane before the humble dwelling and he smiles and chats in his quaint fashion whenever one passes the gate.

Many who are more fortunate than he feel more cheerful when they receive his greeting. They understand that he has come to the evening of his life without piling up riches and without winning wide honor. They are battling unceasingly to win both. They cannot find the cause for the peaceful look on the old man's face. They cannot imagine anyone being happy in his declining years, without accomplishing much that they aim to gain.

If one asked this familiar character to explain the cause for his apparent content, he probably could not comply with the request. The reason is so simple that even he does not recognize it.

He has acquired what neither money nor honor can buy. He has lived an honest life and looks the world squarely in the face. Countless persons are his trustful friends. Lacking much that others possess, he nevertheless has a clear conscience and his mind is at rest. The smiles he receives from the populace are the blessings which his own open-hearted friendliness has brought him to bring sunshine into his few remaining days of years.

The world needs to catch the spirit of his kindly old soul. One is poor indeed, regardless of his accumulation of gold or his poverty, if he approaches the end of the path without sincere friends.

BOY STARTS PUREBRED HERD

Was Means of Eliminating All Scrubs on Father's Farm—Crops Tried for Pasture.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Other pig club members may be encouraged by the way in which Thurbert Campbell, a thirteen-year-old boy in Haskell county, Oklahoma, persisted in spite of various setbacks until in little more than a year he had not only started a purebred herd of his own, but eliminated all the scrubs from his father's farm and induced the latter to plant forage crops that had never been tried before.

To begin with, Thurbert's father was not very much interested, either in his joining the pig club in the spring of 1920, or in the Eureka Boys' Demonstration club, of which he was a member. The father was unable, and partly unwilling to back the boy financially when he proposed buying a bred gilt. He had plenty of ordinary hogs which he considered good enough for himself, and thought they would do quite as well for the boy to start with. A purebred gilt would cost $50. The county agent became interested and took the matter up with the father, who agreed to let the boy borrow the money if he could do so without obligation on the father's part.

When the time came ten pigs were farrowed, but only one was alive. It was a crushing blow. Thurbert came to the county agent for advice. His $50 note was extended by the bank. He was determined not to quit. The gilt was bred again, and Thurbert went right ahead caring for his pig. The second litter brought eight pigs, all alive, and things looked considerably brighter for the boy. The one pig from the first litter sold about this time for $45, and two of the new ones for $15 each, so that after paying his note with interest Thurbert had $22 left.

From the same breeder who furnished the gilt Thurbert now bought a boar pig. The price, $50, was to be paid when the boy had sold some more stock. Two more pigs which were sold at $25 each cleared the note off and left Thurbert free from all indebtedness with a balance in the bank. An arrangement has been made with an older brother who is to grow the feed while Thurbert furnishes the herd. The "herd" consists now of foundation stock, soon due to farrow again; three younger gilts, which will be bred this fall; the herd boar, and one young boar which is for sale. All the father's scrub brood sows have been disposed of, with no other scrubs left but a sote, which will go to the pork barrel.

Oats, rape, sudan grass and sweet clover have been tried out with good results for summer pastures. Bermuda and red clover have been planted on a small scale. The entire family is won over to the purebred stock idea and many changes for the better have been begun on this farm.

FEEDING THE PREGNANT EWE

Fair Amount of Silage, With Cottonseed Cake and Hay, is a Recommendation Made.

Pregnant ewes should receive from three to four pounds of silage per head daily during the winter. This should be supplemented with two or three ounces per head daily of cottonseed cake and some hay. After the lambs are born silage increases the milk flow of the ewes. In the fattening of lambs and yearlings for market the cheapest gains have usually been made when silage constituted a part of the ration.

FEED SILAGE TO THE SHEEP

Must Not Be Made Entire Ration, but Should Be Used With Proportion of Hay.

Whether or not it pays to feed silage to sheep, hogs and horses is a more or less debatable question. It will be safe to feed it to sheep of all classes except that feeding a flock of breeding ewes on silage alone or a ration composed almost entirely of silage is likely to cause a crop of weak lambs in the spring. It will always be safer, therefore, to use some hay and toward spring a little grain also for ewes that are due to lamb.

The westerner looked his surprise. "I laugh because it's so commonplace—so shopworn, so to speak. But while you're my guest you shall miss nothing from the usual to the most uncommon . . . by George."

"What is it?" "Look—that big purple machine, with all the people. Looks like a delegation of visiting Elks . . . or . . . what in the name of time can such a big, clumsy—"

GOOD HOME OF SIMPLE DESIGN

Economy of Construction and Strength Are Features.

HAS LARGE FRONT PORCH

Floor Plans Show Convenient Arrangement of Rooms—Represents Ideally Efficient Type of Dwelling.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF CHARGE on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 187 Fairlie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

"In my own home I am king," is the sentiment that makes every homeowner thrill with pride. Independence and certainty are what every family want, and these can be obtained through the ownership of a home. The man who owns a home invariably makes the more reasonable citizen, because he takes a deep interest in civic affairs. His taxes are an important consideration in his life, and unless he watches the affairs of his town, votes regularly and takes more than a newspaper interest in matters of state, he is liable to be affected quite keenly.

Buying or building a home is a matter of individual taste and requirements. Small families lean to the small home or bungalow type. Here they can get four, five or six rooms, ample for their needs and on the same floor. But there are many people who want the bedrooms upstairs away from the noise and activity of the living rooms. Moreover, the large family needs a large house, but in building this house they want permanent comfort, not something that is pretty and freakish.

Simplicity of design, economy of construction and strength are the outstanding qualities of the home shown dows on three sides provide an abundance of sunshine, making the room warm and cheerful as well as spacious.

To one side is a double open doorway leading to the dining room. This room has been very well proportioned and has the added advantage of a large bay window. It is 13 feet 3 inches by 14 feet.

Another single door opens from the living room into a small hall which leads upstairs. A small closet has been placed in this hall.

Opening into the dining room on the opposite side of the house is the kitchen, built according to the latest developments in modern building ideas. It is small, compact and completely equipped with sink and cupboards. A door opens out on to the small porch entry and another into the pantry. In all new houses the kitchen is small, as it has been realized after many years that the housewife can accomplish her work in a small room just as well and much easier than in a large oversized kitchen. A glance at the floor plans shows how extremely well arranged are these three rooms on the lower floor. Everything points to substantial comfort and plenty of room.

On the second floor are found the bedrooms, three in all, with a sleeping porch in the rear above the kitchen. This provides in reality four good-sized bedrooms with excellent light and ventilation, which, after all, are here. There is nothing pretentious about the exterior arrangement, yet it is far from being an ordinary house. Set upon a brick foundation it has been built to take a very attractive rough stucco finish. Moreover, it has a feature that is important in all homes, a large front porch. In this case open. It can be very easily screened in during the summer to make a sleeping porch and glazed in during the cold weather for a sun parlor of generous size. Stout stucco pillars support a half hip roof with a pleasing exposed rafter effect. There is ample room for exterior adornment by lattice and trellis work which will greatly beautify the porch during the summer. Instead of wasting space for a vestibule, the front door has been placed to open directly into the large living room, which is 13 feet 3 inches by 23 feet, representing an area of over 300 square feet. This is an excellent room for recreation, reading, family council, entertainments, etc., and easily one of the most attractive parts of the whole house. To add to the comfort and homeliness, win-the two most important things in a bedroom. Each room gets light from windows on two sides. All of the bedrooms are fitted with space saving closets or wardrobes. The depth of these closets is about 18 inches, and the width about 20. Compared to the usual clothes closet several feet in depth, these space-saving garment carriers are a real economy.

There is a high attic above which can be divided into at least two more sleeping rooms. Above the second floor plate the siding is shingles.

This is the type of home many families want. This is what they hope to build some time this year or next. It represents an ideally efficient type of dwelling and can be built for a reasonable amount because of the simplicity of its design. There is every reason to believe that the long delayed building boom will start in earnest in early spring. Those who have their designs ready will get the jump on the rest of the field and will not be liable to delay because of shortage of workmen.

Scottish Tongue Dying Out.

The dying Scot tongue is shown in the last Scottish census. The number of females in the population exceeded that of males by 185,482. Persons able to speak Gaelic only number 10,314, of whom 4,890 are in Ross-shire, 4,690 in Inverness-shire, and 506 in Argyllshire. Outside these three counties only 195 persons have been returned as speaking Gaelic but not English. Those able to speak Gaelic and English number 151,159. A steady decline during the last 30 years is shown by these figures. In 1891, 6.3 per cent of the total population of Scotland were able to talk Gaelic; the corresponding figure is now 3.3 per cent.

Foregoing to Bed.

The pupils in the sixth grade of the Emerson School were instructed to use the word "going" and "foregoing" in sentences. No difficulty was had in using "going" correctly, but "foregoing" was more difficult. Finally one little fellow said he had a sentence. This is what he wrote: "The boy ate an apple foregoing to bed."—Indianapolis News.

Pretty Things that are made at Home

"CHRISTMAS comes but once a year," but oh me, oh my, is it not astonishing how often that once-a-year season for getting gifts ready comes around? Here it is time to figure out just what we will give to our nearest and dearest, plus friends galore. If these presents are to be made by hand and not bought at the last minute, it is high time that actual work is commenced.

Perhaps this group of pretty things that can be made at home, will prove of inspiration. Just imagine this beautiful floral-basket piece with its wonderfully artistic candlesticks gracing the center of one's dearest friend's dining table. Could any gift be lovelier? Or perhaps the sandwich tray appeals as being more practical.

At any rate crepe paper "rope work" as it is called is most fascinating. Best of all, while the expense is minimum, the result is maximum.

Of course, if one has never tried the work, it is best to begin on some simple article. As one becomes more proficient, elaborate designs may be achieved as per illustrations.

For a basket of 4-inch diameter, 8 inches high and a handle 8 inches long, materials are necessary as follows: Two hanks of 3/8-inch crepe paper rope, 12 wires for foundation, two extra long wires for the handle, one spool covered wire for holding wires together when starting, one fold crepe paper to match rope for winding wires, one tube glue, one tube paste.

It is also necessary to have a wire cutter and pair of pointed pliers. Shellac is essential for the finishing touch.

The first step is to wrap each of the 12 wires with a strip of crepe paper. Cut it 3/4 inches wide off the end of the roll of crepe paper through the more strands of paper rope. These strands with the one of the basket (making four), are clamped with the short ends of the big wires, throwing the two strands in braided fashion to cover each wire. Thus is a heavy coil formed at the top of the basket.

The handle wires are carefully wrapped with paper, then caught with spool wire (all wrapped in paper) beginning at each side of basket at the base. Shellac the basket with one or more coats.

The dolls can be dressed for pincushions or electric bulb shades. Notice the crepe paper costumes.

A bit of lace is a wondrous thing. Within its patterned meshes of immaculate daintiness, is indelibly stamped the "message of feminine charm. Fine lace and rare embroideries proclaim the presence of the gentleman.

There is no dress or suit so plain or unattractive but that it is amenable to the transforming power of beautiful neckwear. No wonder so many of us through the hookwear section of our favorite dry goods store on Saturday-afternoon. It is the eleventh-hour rush to add the "touch that tells" to our costume for the morrow, for we all realize that exquisite neckwear will ever be recognized as the essence of good dressing.

Even sweaters have succumbed to the lure. That is, young girls are venturing within the V-shaped necks of their gay colored slip-on sweaters, collars and frills of fine net and lace. The picture herewith shows the infinite attractiveness of fine lace accented against a heavy wool-knit background.

Perhaps no accessory performs a greater mission than the lace vestee or sleeveless guimpe with its broad collar attached. It lends a helping hand to the Tuxedo sweater, while in entire thickness. Fold one end of strip over end of wire and then twirl it around the entire length of wire without a gap. Paste securely at the last end.

Next separate the 12 wires into two groups of six wires each. Lay one group over the other at right angles, center to center. Fasten with spool wire. Then radiate the wires two by two like spokes to a wheel. Caution must be taken to keep all wires flat on the table else they will jumble at the center.

It is now time for the paper rope. Fasten one end at the center with glue. Then weave in and out starting with a single wire and then continuing two by two and when it comes to the single wire at completion of first circle, clip it out, as it is necessary for even weaving to have an odd number of wires. Upon completion of a base four inches in diameter, with pliers bend each wire up vertical to form the side of basket. From now on weave in and out of single wires evenly spaced. When the side is woven six inches tall, fasten in three connection with the tailored suit coat it completes the ensemble.

Every well appointed wardrobe should include various versions of lace with net guimpes or vestees. In selecting, it is well to know that venise lace is again in favor. It is used in combination with valenciennes or filet lace and net. For its effectiveness, refer to the vestee illustrated herewith.

Irish crochet lace is at a high pitch of popularity, so is filet. Soft crepe tinting is preferred, and plectious fine tuckered net is used in connection with all lace and sheer embroidery.

Deft fingers are fashioning the loveliest sort of collar and cuffs out of scraps of lace, transparent organdie embroidery, medallions and point d'esprit net.

Gifted with artistry of designing, one can produce exquisite results.

Man Who Had Been There Knew There Would Be Only One Distinctive College Color.

They were talking of their absent sons, and the fact that each of the fathers had a boy in a different college did not prevent them from amicably discussing their prospects.

"It won't be long," said one of the fathers, "before the athletic season opens, and then I think we'll hear something from the Orange and Blue."

"Yes," said another, "and there'll be some shouting done by the Blue and Gray."

"Of course," said the third father, "and as my boy has gone to Princeton, I'll have to put in a word for the Black and Orange; but it doesn't make such a great deal of difference. The boys are bound to come under the same colors in the end."

"No," said one. "Can't be arranged," said the other. "Oh, yes, it can!" "To which colors do you refer?" "Black and Blue."—Philadelphia Ledger.

FRANCES E. WILLARD MUSEUM

Little Schoolhouse Near Janesville, Wis., Dedicated to Memory of Great Temperance Leader.

Log cabins and marble palaces, courthouses and round towers are now and again turned into museums in the memory of some historic person. More rarely the building is a schoolhouse, but such is the case with the new Frances E. Willard museum. The little country schoolhouse near Janesville, Wis., has recently been dedicated by followers of the American temperance leader, among them former pupils of Miss Willard's in Wesleyan seminary and at Northwestern university, and national officers of the Woman's Christian Temperance union. The schoolhouse is far from imposing. Miss Willard referred to it once as "a sort of big round-out," but it symbolizes the progress of a child who came into a wilderness with her pioneer family, and through her good work gained a place for herself in the Hall of Fame at Washington, the only woman so honored.

This little bit of advice may help you regain your Health, Strength and Vitality

Thousands of people suffer from nervousness. They are run down and miserable without knowing the reason why.

They do not stop to think that much of their trouble may be caused by drinking tea and coffee which contain the drugs, thein and caffeine. When you over-stimulate the system for any period of time, the result may be nervousness with its many accompanying ills. You may fail to sleep properly and your sleep does not refresh you as it should.

Postum, made from scientifically roasted cereals, will help you to overcome all these conditions. For it contains only healthful substances, instead of drugs, as are found in tea and coffee.

Postum helps build sound nerve structure, by letting you get sound, restful sleep.

In flavor, Postum is much like high-grade coffee. In fact there are many people who prefer Postum for its savory flavor alone.

Order Postum from your grocer today. Serve this rich, fragrant beverage for the family. See how the children will like it, and how much better everybody will sleep at night.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

Postum for Health "There's a Reason."

THIS WOMAN'S EXPERIENCE

Brings a Ray of Hope to Childless Women

Lowell, Mass.—"I had anemia from the time I was sixteen years old and was very irregular. If I did any housecleaning or washing I would faint and have to be put to bed, my husband thinking every minute was my last. After reading your text-book for women I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sanative Wash, and have never felt better than I have the last two years. I can work, eat, sleep, and feel as strong as can be. Doctors told me I could never have children—I was too weak—but after taking Vegetable Compound it strengthened me so I gave birth to an eight pound boy. I was well all the time, did all my work up to the last day, and had a natural birth. Everybody who knew me was surprised, and when they ask me what made me strong I tell them with great pleasure, 'I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and never felt better in my life.' Use this testimonial at any time."—Mrs. ELIZABETH SMART, 142 W. Sixth St., Lowell, Mass.

This experience of Mrs. Smart is surely a strong recommendation for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is only one of a great many similar cases.

DAIRY

LEGUMINOUS HAYS FOR COWS

Corn Silage is Excellent Feed, but Not a Balanced One—Legumes Furnish Protein.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) The best kinds of dry roughage for feeding dairy cows in connection with corn silage or roots are leguminous hays, such as alfalfa, red, crimson, or alsike clover, and soy bean or cowpea hay, in the opinion of experts of the United States Department of Agriculture. While corn silage is an excellent feed, it is not a balanced one, as it does not contain sufficient protein and mineral matter to meet fully the requirements of the cow. The leguminous hays, in addition to being very palatable, tend to correct this deficiency. They are also among the best and cheapest sources of protein.

One or more of these hays can be grown on practically any farm. In addition to their value for feeding purposes, they improve the soil in which they grow. Hay from Canada field peas, sown with oats to prevent the peas from lodging, also makes an excellent roughage.

Corn stover, sorghum, etc., also find a good market through the dairy cow. This class of roughage is low in protein, however, and when it is used the grain ration must be richer in this element.

No positive rule can be laid down as to the quantity of dry roughage that should be fed, but from 6 to 12 pounds a day for each cow, in addition to silage, will be found satisfactory in most cases.

When the dry roughage is of poor quality, such as coarse, woody hay or a poor grade of cornstalks, a large portion can often be given to advantage, allowing the cow to pick out the best and using the rejected part for bedding. With this quantity of dry roughage the cow will take, according to her size, from 25 to 50 pounds of silage. This may be considered as a guide for feeding, to apply when the roughage is grown on the farm. Where everything has to be purchased, it is often more economical to limit the quantity of roughage fed and increase the grain ration.

RUNTY ANIMAL UNPROFITABLE

Under-sized and Undeveloped Animals Usually Caused by Improper Care and Poor Feed.

Niggardly methods of feeding and caring for farm live stock are unprofitable. This is one conclusion resulting from an inquiry conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture into the causes and prevention of runtness among farm animals. Seventy-five per cent of under-sized and undeveloped animals, according to a summary of more than 700 opinions advanced by live-stock owners, are due to inferior breeding, inadequate or unsuitable feed, and pests, such as parasites and insects. The remedy is the better care of better stock, and the cost of this remedy, in the opinion of practical farmers, is much cheaper than the expense of continuing to raise under-sized and slow-maturing domestic animals. "Better raise one good cow than two poor ones—a runt is nothing but expense all its life." This opinion, which is typical of many others, is from a Michigan dairyman. A thrifty New Englander sums up sentiment on this topic with the remark, "I find I cannot cheat the animal without cheating myself."

HIGH-PRODUCING DAIRY COWS

To Increase Productiveness of Herd it is Necessary to Begin With Individuals.

Increasing the productiveness of a dairy herd through selection must begin with the individual as a unit. Cows with the best performance records are mated to a bull backed by a line of high-producing ancestors. Even this will not guarantee offspring equal to their parents in productiveness, since the law of chance operates to make results uncertain. However, the average will be as good as their parents' and some will exceed their dam's record. The best producers are further bred for further improvement.

Ex-Sheriff of Dallas County Strongly Endorses Ware's Black Powder

Dallas, Texas, November 29, 1919.

The Ware Chemical Company, Dallas, Texas.

Gentlemen: In 1906 my mother was suffering with a bad case of stomach and bowel trouble and could not eat or retain any kind of food in her stomach. Some of the best doctors in this country were called in and diagnosed her affliction as incurable, and told me that my mother would live but a short time, and that they could do nothing for her. She was then 75 years old. About this time someone suggested that we try Ware's Black Powder. We did so, and soon she began to improve and finally got in good health for a lady of her age. She lived until she was 85 years old. Since that time I have been strong in my commendation of Ware's Black Powder; I am convinced that there is no better remedy for stomach and bowel trouble.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION

THE STATE OF TEXAS.
To the Sheriff or Any Constable of Donley County—Greeting:
You are hereby commanded to summon Ulyses Jefferson, by making publication of this Citation once in each week for four consecutive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your County, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in any newspaper published in the 47th Judicial District; to appear at the next regular term of the District Court of Donley County, Texas, to be held at the Court House thereof, in Clarendon, on the 2nd Monday in January, A. D. 1922, the same being the 9th day of January, A. D. 1922, then and there to answer a petition filed in said Court on the 12th day of November, A. D. 1921, in a suit numbered on the docket of said Court, No 1177, wherein Mary Jefferson is plaintiff and Ulyses Jefferson is defendant; the nature of plaintiff's demand being as follows:

Suit for divorce, plaintiff alleging that she and defendant were duly and legally married in Amarillo, Potter county, Texas, on July 16th, 1920; that they continued to live together as husband and wife until the month of March, 1921, when defendant deserted and abandoned plaintiff; that plaintiff fully and faithfully discharged all her marital obligation towards the defendant, but that the defendant was generally shiftless and lazy and failed and refused to support plaintiff; that plaintiff was forced to and did seek and find employment and with the money she earned support herself and also supported the defendant, buying for him both food and clothing; that defendant spent his time in drinking, gambling and associating with women of loose character and reputation; that defendant was guilty of adultery and indecent conduct with divers and sundry other colored women; that defendant would, without cause or provocation, become insanely enraged at plaintiff, and beat and strike her in the face with his hand and fist, blacking her eyes and bruising and wounding her flesh and inflicting great physical pain and mental anguish; that such conduct continued through all the time they lived together as husband and wife; that on one occasion, while plaintiff and defendant were living in Amarillo, Texas, and plaintiff was working for Mrs. W. T. Coble, defendant fiercely shook plaintiff and beat her in the face with his hand and fist; that on another occasion while they were living at 1700 Polk street, Amarillo, Texas, at the residence of one Mrs. Thomas, defendant drew and levelled a loaded pistol at plaintiff and threatened to take her life, and was prevented from doing so by plaintiff knocking the pistol from the hands of the defendant; that in the struggle that followed plaintiff knocking the pistol from the hands of defendant, defendant several times struck the plaintiff in the face with his hands and fist, inflicting great physical injury and mental anguish upon her; that there are no property rights to be settled, and that there were no children born of said marriage.

Plaintiff prays for an absolute decree of divorce from the defendant; for the restoration of her maiden name "Mary Thompson;" for costs of suit herein.
Herein fail not, but have you before said Court, on the first day of the next term thereof this Writ, with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.
Witness my hand and official seal at my office in Clarendon, Texas, this 12th day of November, A. D. 1921.

This unique proceeding on Cookie's part necessarily awoke the interest both of the recovered Cuthbert Vane, just emerging after his prolonged slumbers, and of the trio who had at that moment returned from the woods. Imperturbed for an explanation, Cookie arose from his devotional posture and put the portentous query:

"Mist'ob Vane, sah, be dey any prop'ah coffin-wed on dis yere island?"

Instantly connecting my absence with this terrible question, Aunt Jane shrieked and fell into the arms of Aunt Jane Shrieked and Fell into the Arms of Mr. Tubbs.

Mr. Tubbs. I got the story from Cuthbert Vane, and I must say I was unpleasantly struck by the facility with which my aunt seemed to have fallen into Mr. Tubbs' embrace—as if with the ease of habit. Mr. Tubbs, it appeared, had staggered a little under his fair burden, which was not to be wondered at, for Aunt Jane is of an overflowing style of figure and Mr. Tubbs more remarkable for brain than brawn. Violet, however, remained admirably calm, and exhorted Aunt Jane to remember that whatever happened it was all for the best.

"Poor Violet," I commented. "To think that, after all, it didn't happen!"

A slow flush rose to the cheeks of the beautiful youth. He was sitting beside the hammock, where I was supposed to be recuperating.

"It would have happened, though," said the Honorable Cuthbert solemnly. "If it hadn't been for old Shaw. I can't get over it, Vir—Miss Virginia, that I wasn't on deck myself, you know. Here's old Dugald been doing the heroic all his life, and now he gets his chance again while I'm sleeping off those bally coconuts. It's hard on a chap, I—I wish it had been me."

However dubious his grammar, there was no mistaking the look that brightened like the dawn in the depths of his clear eyes. My breath went from me suddenly.

"Oh," I cried excitedly, "isn't that—yes, I thought it was the dinner gong!"

For, as if in response to my dire need, the clang of Cookie's gong echoed through the island silences.

CHAPTER IX.

What Crusoë and I Found.

When after those poignant moments on the boat I met Dugald Shaw in commonplace fashion at the table, a sudden, queer, altogether unprecedented shyness seized me. I sat looking down at my plate with the gaucherie of a silly child.

During the meal Mr. Shaw asked Captain Magnus if he had had good sport on the other side of the island. Captain Magnus, as usual, had seemed to feel that time consecrated to eating was wasted in conversation. At this point-blank question he started confusedly, stuttered, and finally explained that though he had taken a rifle he had carried along pistol cartridges, so had come home with an empty bag.

At this moment I happened to be looking at Cookie, who was setting down a dish before Mr. Tubbs. The negro started visibly, and rolled his eyes at Captain Magnus with astonishment depicted in every dusky feature. He said nothing, although went to take part in our conversation as it suited him, but I saw him shake his great grizzled head in a disturbed and puzzled fashion as he turned away.

After this a chill settled on the table. You felt a disturbance in the air, as though wireless currents were crossing and recrossing in general confusion.

As I passed Cookie at his dishpan, after dinner, a sudden thought struck me.

"Cookie," I remarked, "you had a frightfully queer look just now when Captain Magnus told about having taken the wrong cartridges. What was the matter?"

Cookie took his hands out of the water and wiped off the suds, casting about stealthily and mysteriously glances. Then he rolled a dubious eye at me.

"What was it, Cookie?" I urged.

"War am Cap'a now?"

"Down on the beach; he can't possibly hear you."

"You won't say nothin' to git Cookie in a rumpus?"

"Cross my heart to die, Cookie."

"Well, den"—Cookie spoke in a hoarse whisper—"Cap'n say he forgit to take his gun ca'rtridges. Miss Jinny, when he come back, I see him empty his gun ca'rtridges out'n his belt and put back his pistol cartridges. So dere now!"

I turned on Cookie, too surprised to speak. Why had Captain Magnus been at pains to invent a lie about so trivial a matter? I recalled, too, that Mr. Shaw's question had confused him, that he had hesitated and stammered before answering it. Why? Was he a bad shot and ashamed of it? Had he preferred to say that he had taken the wrong ammunition rather than admit that he could get no bag? That must be the explanation, because there was no other. Certainly no imaginable errand but the one assigned could have taken the captain to the other side of the island.

Several days went by, and still the treasure was unfound. Of course, as the unexplored space in the cave contracted, so daily the probability grew stronger that Fortune would shed her golden smile upon us before night. Nevertheless, it seemed to me that the optimistic spirits of most were beginning to flag a little. Only Mr. Shaw, though banished as a confirmed doubter and pessimist, now by the exercise of will kept the others to their task. As for Captain Magnus, his restlessness was manifest. Several times he had suggested blowing the lid off the island with dynamite as the shortest, method of getting at the gold. He was always vanishing on solitary excursions inland.

Mr. Tubbs remarked, scornfully, that a man with a nose for money ought to have smelled out the chest before this, but if his own nasal powers were of that character he did not offer to employ them in the service of the expedition. Miss Higgesby-Browne, however, had taken to retiring to the hut for long private sessions with herself. My aunt reverentially explained their purpose. The hiding-place of the chest being of course known to the Universal Wisdom, all Violet had to do was to put herself in harmony and the knowledge would be hers. The difficulty was that you had first to overcome your Mundane Consciousness. To accomplish this Violet was struggling in the hut.

After my meeting with Captain Magnus in the forest, Lookout ridge was barred to me. Crusoë and I must do our rambling in other directions. This being so, I bethought me again of the wrecked sloop lying under the cliffs on the north shore of the cove. I remembered that there had seemed to be a way down the cliffs. I resolved to visit the sloop again. The terrible practicability of the beautiful youth made it difficult to indulge in romantic musings in his presence. And to me a derelict brings a keener tang of romance than any other relic of man's multitudinous and futile strivings.

The descent of the gully proved an easy matter, and soon I was on the sand beside the derelict. Sand had heaped up around her hull, and filled her cockpit level with the rail, and drifted down the companion, stuffing the little cabin nearly to the roof. Only the bow rose free from the white smother of sand. Whatever wounds there were in her buried sides were hidden. You felt that some wild caprice of the storm had lifted her and set her down here, not too roughly, then whirled away and left her to the sand.

Crusoë slipped into the narrow space under the roof of the cabin, and I leaned idly down to watch him through a warped seam between the planks. Then I found that I was looking, not at Crusoë, but into a little dim enclosure like a locker, in which some small object faintly caught the light. With a revived hope of finding relics, I got out my knife—a present from Cuthbert Vane—and set briskly to work widening the seam.

I penetrated finally into a small locker or cubby-hole, set in the angle under the roof of the cabin, and, as subsequent investigation showed, so placed as to attract no notice from the casual eye. I ascertained this by lying down and wriggling my head and shoulders into the cabin. In other words, I had happened on a little private depository, in which the owner of the sloop might stow away certain small matters that concerned him intimately. Yet the contents of the locker at first seemed trifling. They were an old-fashioned chased silver shoe-buckle, and a brown-covered manuscript book.

The book had suffered much from dampness, whether of rains or the wash of the sea. I seated myself on the cabin roof, extracted a hairpin, and began carefully separating the close-written pages. The first three or four were quite illegible, the ink having run. Then the writing became clearer. I made out a word here and there:

"...directions vague...my grandfather—man a ruffian but...no motive...police of Havana...frightful den...grandfather made sure...registry...Bonny Lass..."

And at that I gave a small excited shriek which brought Crusoë to me in a hurry. What had he to do, the writer of this journal, what had he to do with the Bonny Lass?

Breathlessly I read on:

"...thought captain still living but not sure...lost...Benito Bon..."

I closed the book. Now, while the coast was clear, I must get back to camp. It would take hours, perhaps days, to decipher the journal which had suddenly become of such supreme importance. I must smuggle it unobserved into my own quarters, where I could read at my leisure. As I set out I dropped the silver shoe-buckle into my pocket, smiling to think that it was I who had discovered the first bit of precious metal on the island. Yet the book in my hand, I felt instinctively, was of more value than many shoe-buckles.

Safely in my hammock, with a pillow under which I could slip the book in case of interruption, I resumed the reading. From this point on, although the writing was somewhat faded, it was all, with a little effort, legible.

THE DIARY.

"If Sampson did live to tell his secret, then any day there may be a sail in the offing. And still I cannot find it! Oh, if my grandfather had been more worldly wise! If he hadn't been too intent on the eternal welfare of the man he rescued from the Havana tavern brawl to question him about his story. A cave on Leeward island—nearly a stone marked with the letters B. H. and a cross-bones—I told the captain, said the poor dying wretch, 'we wouldn't have no luck after playing it that low down on Bill!' So I presume Bill lies under the stone."

"Well, all I have is in this venture. The old farm paid for the Island Queen—or will, if I don't get back in time to prevent foreclosure. All my staid New England relatives think me mad. A copra gatherer! A fine career for a minister's son! Well, when I get home with my Spanish doubloons there will be another story to tell. I won't be poor crazy Peter then. And Helen—oh, how often I wish I had told her everything! It was too much to ask her to trust me blindly as I did. But from that moment I came across the story in grandfather's old, half-forgotten diary—by the way, the diary habit seems to run in the family—a very passion of secrecy has possessed me. If I had told Helen, I should have had to dread that even in her sweet sleep she might whisper something to put that fright, her stepmother, on the scent. Oh, Helen, trust me, trust me!"

"December 25. I have a calendar with me, so I am not reduced to notching a stick to keep track of the days. I mark off each carefully in the calendar. If I were to forget to do this, even for a day or two, I believe I should quite lose track. The days are so terribly alike!

"My predecessor here in the copra-gathering business, old Helntz, really left me a very snug establishment. It was odd that I should have run across him at Panama that way."

"Christmas Day! I wonder what they are all doing at home?"

Cleaning Marble.

To clean marble mix with water five parts of soda, two and a half parts of powdered chalk and two and a half parts of pumice stone (powdered); spread on the marble and wash off with soap and water. The consistency of the mixture when applied should be that of a thin paste.

The June Rise Ends a Suit

By FREDERICK HART.

© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

The little river that divided the Montgomery property from the Trenholm estate was a peaceful enough stream to all appearances; it wound lazily through the flat land of the valley, apparently taking always the longest, laziest course to get where it was going and not very particular as to when it got there. But the stream, innocent enough to all appearances, could make trouble when it chose. Once it did choose, during a late spring following a hard winter. On this occasion, swollen by the melted snows from the surrounding hills, it rose in its might and carved out a new channel for itself, making a straight cut where formerly it had made a wide bend.

There was no loss of life entailed in this whim of the river's; but it caused much trouble for the two families who lived on opposite sides of it. The title deeds to the land gave the boundaries as the river—no more, no less; and the new channel added 20 acres of land to the Montgomery estate and subtracted an equal number from the Trenholm holding—good farming land, too, enriched by the deposit from the stream.

The Trenholms went to law about it; the Montgomerys defended their newly acquired estate with vigor; and, as is the way of lawsuits, the case dragged on and on, arriving at no particular conclusion except to cause much bad blood where there was but little before and to make enemies out of former friends.

Margaret Trenholm, blonde, pretty and just turned twenty, came in for her share of the family feud. Her father, hard and stern ever, instilled or tried to instill into her mind his animosity for his neighbors; and it is likely that he would have succeeded had not fate taken a hand and decreed that one day when Margaret was riding her favorite horse near the boundaries of her estate she should meet young Davis Montgomery, just home from the college where he was studying law. The two strangers greeted each other as strangers do who are obviously bound by the fraternity of horsemen and passed on their ways; but fate was indefatigable.

Three more meetings cemented their friendship before either found out who the other was. When the names were disclosed it was too late. Those two young people had progressed past the point where inherited differences of opinion have any weight. If they had not fallen in love at first sight they had at least accomplished that desirable thing at third or fourth sight, and that amounts to much the same thing. They did not dare to broach the matter to their respective families, but they met occasionally, and each meeting cemented the bond of affection more firmly.

Thus it came about that one showery day in early June Davis Montgomery received a note with his morning mail which he read in private and which gave him apparently a great deal of satisfaction. After breakfast he announced to his father that he was going to take a turn down by the river to look at the banks. The floods of spring were still on, there was a report of high water from up the valley and he wanted to assure himself that all was well in the lower fields. His father seemed a bit surprised at his son's determination to get a wetting, but made no objection.

Down to the river bank rode young Davis Montgomery, and in a moment there came to the opposite bank a vision in a riding habit—a vision not less lovely to his eyes because she was soaked with the rain. Neither of the young people, bred as they were to the outdoors, minded a wetting when it was a question of seeing each other. Margaret waved gayly to him and he returned the signal. Then he glanced at the river.

It was very different from the usual placid stream. Bank high it roiled, a sullen brown flood, with here and there a piece of driftwood. The June rise was on indeed, and the river had risen in its might.

"Davis!" Margaret called to him. "Good morning, dear!"

Davis Montgomery forgot about the June rise and concentrated his thoughts on the fact that across that river was waiting the girl he loved. "Good morning, darling!" he called in return. Margaret, the better to speak to him, urged her horse to the edge of the bank where it overhung the stream. "Be careful!" shouted Davis. "The bank's undercut there!"

But his warning came too late. The bank, dug under by the ceaseless worrying of the river, crumbled and gave way under the weight of the girl and horse. In an instant Margaret was struggling in the swift stream, clinging to the bridge of her frightened mount; but in another instant Davis had leaped his horse into the stream and the two of them were making the best time possible out to where the brown head of Margaret could be seen beside the black head of her horse.

The struggle was brief but violent. Davis Dandy was used to the water and kept his head magnificently. After what seemed ages of battle, but which really took only a few moments, Davis and Dandy succeeded in dragging the almost unconscious girl up a fortunately shelving bank, safe on dry land. Fifty yards further downstream they could see Margaret's horse, which she had abandoned in the effort to save her own life, struggling ashore, frightened but safe.

"Oh! I'm so glad!" were Margaret's first words. "Poor Black Beauty! If he had drowned I couldn't ever have forgiven myself."

"Thank goodness he's safe!" breathed Davis. "And thank the Lord that you're all right," he added in an unguarded tone.

Margaret heard his voice, tense with anxiety, and saw the look in his eyes; and in another moment she was in his arms, laughing and crying at once, glad after the tension of her escape to be able to lean on some one whom she loved.

Then suddenly the thought of her stern father and Davis' equally stern parent intruded.

"Oh, Davis, dearest, why can't our families be friends? If only that stupid lawsuit could be settled—we could get married and everything would be all right; but my daddy won't give in, and yours won't either, so—so—" Tears choked her.

But Davis seemed unconscious of her grief. "Look! Look! The river!" he shouted.

Margaret looked as directed. Before her eyes she saw the water gnawing at the thin bank that divided it from the old channel. The June rise had done its work. Even as the two watched the earth gave way, there was a great roar and a tumbling of foamy brown water, and the river, so long diverted, had found its original course again. The new channel lay muddy but empty before them, and the lawsuit that had so long divided the houses of Montgomery and Trenholm was settled out of court.

It was too very happy young people who went up to the Trenholm house an hour later.

"You see," said Margaret to Davis, "we have to tell them that the river has brought the families together again—and so that we are going to tie the knot so tight that it can't ever come untied!"

GIGANTIC YEW IN ENGLAND

That Some Trees in That Country Attain a Record Growth, is Fact Not Generally Known.

England's proud old parks and forests hold many a storied tree, but most people would not suppose that certain trees, for height, attain their maximum growth in the island country. Our redwood skyscrapers stand alone, but could our ashes compete with England?

Prof. Augustine Henry, in an article in London Country Life, says that on the continent of Europe, at least, there do not appear to be any ash trees as tall as those in the old heronry at Cobham hall, Kent, some of which are 150 feet high. The tallest hornbeam on record anywhere grew near West Wycombe, and measured 100 feet, while the field maple, usually small attains in Kent and Sussex a height of 75 feet. In England and Scotland the wild cherry grows to an enormous size and no measurement of this species in England or abroad, surpasses for height that of the 90-foot wild cherry at Beaconsfield.

Heredity's Deadly Work.

"Strange case of heredity in that family!"

"How come?"

"One of the boys has a golden tenor voice, one is in the prize ring and has a tin ear, one is a press agent with all the brass in the world, one is a silver-tongued orator, one an aluminum ware canvasser, one a steel puddler, one a copper."

"Well, where does the heredity come in?"

"Why, their father was one of those mercurial men who ruled their sons with an iron hand."—Retail Ledger, Philadelphia.

Professional Decision.

"You don't take any interest in the Bacon-Shakespeare controversy?"

"No," replied Mr. Stormington Barnes. "Whoever wrote the plays, Shakespeare's got the reputation, and you couldn't interest the people by putting another man's name on the billboards."

YOU CAN'T TRUST CALOMEL AT ALL

It's Quicksilver, Salivates, Causes Rheumatism and Bone Decay.

The next dose of calomel you take may salivate you. It may shock your liver or start bone necrosis. Calomel is dangerous. It is mercury, quicksilver. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It can not be trusted any more than a leopard or a wild-cat. Take Dodson's Liver Tonic which straightens you right up and makes you feel fine. No suits necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate.—Advertisement.

Childish sports may satisfy the children, but annoy the neighbors.

MOTHER!

Move Child's Bowels with "California Fig Syrup"

Hurry, mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on the bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup. Advertisement.

SENSATIONAL ANNOUNCEMENT!

Fort Worth Record Yearly Bargain Offer

Daily and Sunday
ONE YEAR

$6.75

SAVES YOU
$3.25

Daily Without
Sunday
ONE YEAR

$2.40

This enormous saving to our friends in the face of a 25% increase in postage rates and the same high cost of labor and still paying 100% more for newsprint, shows our desire to help our friends.

MORE MONEY FOR A GREATER FORT WORTH RECORD

Then, too, remember that The Record is spending more money than ever before for features that will please you and for wire services to give you all the latest news.

The Record is the Only Fort Worth paper carrying morning Associated Press service. Any other newspaper where a morning edition is made and carrying Associated Press stories is news carried over from before 4 o'clock the day previous.

Leave your subscription at this office, give it to local agent or postmaster, regardless of the way you subscribe.

DO IT NOW!

Special Offer good only in Texas and Oklahoma.

Expires Midnight, Dec. 31, 1921

THANK YOU

Come again! We will have a Special Sale on some article every Saturday.

Yours to Serve,

Hedley Equity Union

YOUR KODAK FINISHING

Will be properly done if sent to us. Prices reduced 25 per cent less than last year.
