The Key to Success Is Work-There Is no Substitute for It!

In order to do your best work, you must be healthy. You must sleep soundly at night, your nerves must be strong, steady and under perfect control.

If you are accustomed to drinking tea or coffee with your meals or between meals, you may be loading yourself with a very great handicap. Your nervous system may be stimulated beyond what is natural for you.

For tea and coffee contain thein and caffeine. These are drugs as any doctor can tell you. They are known to irritate the nervous system by their action and to cause restlessness and insomnia, which prevent the proper recuperation of the vital forces.

If you want to be at your best, capable of doing the very best work that lies in you, why not stop drinking tea and coffee? Drink Postum, the rich, satisfying beverage made from scientifically roasted cereals.

Postum contains absolutely no drugs of any kind, but in flavor tastes much like rich coffee. It helps nerve and brain structure by letting you get sound restful sleep.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

AS YOU THINK.

THE lovely or homely lines on your face, the expression in your eyes, the curvature of your lips and In fact every visible lineament on your features, is but an outward sign of your thoughts-your hidden self.

"For as he thinketh within himself, so is he," says the Biblical proverb.

Whether you suspect it or not, you carry with you at all times in the tracings on your countenance, all the good and the evil thoughts that control your impulses and shape your destiny.

Some psychologists there are who can with a wonderful degree of accuracy read your face as they would read a printed book and determine after much observation the quality of your character.

A little child is often adept in reading at first glance the cast and build of the telltale marks on a face hardened by crime, and will shrink from it in abject fear, even when there is an attempted smile.

Through the lip-smile a child Through the lip-smile a child a glimpses the soul and senses the soul's deceit and wickedness,

A thoroughbred dog has the same innate instinct.

The thoughts that are yours, those that predominate, shape and compel your acts, govern your words and the intonation of your voice, light your eyes and color your cheeks, slowly and surely trace their indelible lines on your face, that wise creatures may read them with unerring certainty. If thoughts be ugly, the face will be ugly, and you, yourself, will be as you think, in spite of artifice and diligently polished manners.

Upon the other hand, if thoughts be sweet, pure, charitable, kindly and noble, there will be perpetually shin-

MARKET REPORTS AID TRADE Government Helps Farmer by Giving Out Information Regarding Supplies and Prices.

LIVE

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) In a strict sense there can be no such thing as a "fair trade" when either party has the advantage of vastly superior information. Up to the time the bureau of markets and crop estimates of the United States De-partment of Agriculture was established most transactions in the marketing of farm products were, in this sense, unfair. This was due to the fact that the buying side almost invariably had vastly better information regarding supplies, both available and prospective, future production, prices current throughout the country, and probable movements of the prod-

Placing the farmer on the same footing with the buyer, so far as information is concerned, so that the element of chance applies equally to both, is the aim of the Department of Agriculture. For this, it gathers every available scrap of information re-lating to supplies, current quotations, and other fundamental conditions influencing markets, arranges the information in readable form, and makes it readily available to everyone having use of it.

Before the department took up this work, the farmer was not wholly without market reports. Newspapers, trade journals, telegraph companies, and many other organizations, as well as districts reports that purported to be market information. Unfortunately for the farmer, however, many of these produce, or from sources controlled or dominated by such interests. Under these circumstances it was but natural that they redounded to the advantage of the buyer and almost invariably worked to the financial handicap of the farmer and producer.

The department's reports are now being made use of by practically all classes of people-farmers, commission merchants, boards of trade, brokers, chambers of commerce, retail dealers, and consumers. Most persons who have come in touch with the work of the department realize that it neither buys nor sells any commodity and has no interest to serve except that of accuracy. The whole purpose of its work is to hold a mirror before the markets of the country and to hold it at such an angle that all the people may see what is taking place at the moment.

KEEP HORSES IN CONDITION

Farmer Makes a Mistake in Not Using Animals Off and On During the Winter.

It is a shame to take a good horse from pasture and put him into the collar before a plow, mower, reaper, or other heavy draft implements without his having been hardened to it first. In the main this is the reason for so many sore necks, added of course to the poor-fitting collars. Horses that are to do the heavy work should be used off and on all winter so as to keep their shoulders in shape and the skin toughened. At any rate they should be used before a wagon, manure spreader, or at some light work for some time before hard work starts Be sure the collar fits. No collar pad is needed if the collar fits. Especially is this true with colts.

Pumpkins can be grown at a small cost and form a valuable addition to the rations of hogs. They may be grown in the corn fields, especially

The value does not lie entirely in their nutritive composition, but is due largely to the beneficial effects on the digestive tract, as they tend to regulate bowels. It is asserted that the

Sea Otter Always Eagerly Sought

The sea otter's story is dark with strife, tragedy and adventure. Fiercely hunted prizes, they are gone today from the shores of California, and the whole northwestern ocean seems to hold no more than could be counted on one's fingers. As the quest of the clove spurred the merchant adven-turers of Venice and of London to the conquest of the East, so it was the Chatak. The monument was an obepursuit of the sea otter rather than lisk of brick, coated with plaster, a longing to correct the world's geographies that led old Vitus Bering feet square at the base. About sixty into the North, out upon the sea which bears his name, and at last to a lonely thrown to the south, and nine feet death on a desert island. Modern Dairy Barn Is Good Investment for Farmer.

SPLENDID TYPE OF BUILDING

Substantial Frame Structure With Accommodations for 18 Cows-Efficlent Labor-Saving Equipment Installed.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manuracturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Low prices which grains are bringing on the market bring to our minds more forcibly than ever the good busi- and stalls. In short, a carrier is loadness wisdom of each farmer having a herd of dairy cattle. In times like along without much exertion. Anthese he can feed his grain to the other overhead track runs along the stock rather than sacrifice it at a low litter alley out into the yard to the price and get increased returns from manure pit. With this type of equiping cups and mangers. The barn noor is concrete contoured to take care of the gutters in the rear of the stall and the manger pits in front. There are also three stalls for breeding cows.

The ventilation system & well worth attention. Fresh air inters at the side along the window ledge draw in a supply of fresh air continuously. A ventilator on the roof insures a constant supply of fresh air and aids in drawing off the poisonous gases which accumulate around the stalls. Adaquate lightning protection has been installed on the high points to protect the building from fire by light-

Important, however, is the equipment that has been used to make the work of the hired help easier and lighter. Drudgery in the dairy barn has long been the bugaboo for the farmer because it has been the stufnbling block in the way of getting and keeping help. This barn is built to keep help and make them more efficient.

The labor-saving equipment in mind is the special overhead track for hauling feed and litter carriers. By this method work with wheelbarrows is eliminated.

This overhead track runs from the feed mixing room, which is at the end of the building next to the two 10-foot hollow tile silos to the various pens ed up with silage or grain and pushed dairy products which are always in | ment installed, it is easy to underdemand and which bring a satisfactory stand how the jobs of feeding and price. The one-crop farm is gradually losing out because in most cases it is economically unsound. If the crop fails, the farmer has nothing to fall back upon. But if he raises in addition to his regular crop, dairy cows and livestock, he can always depend upon them for a living.

The dairy herd is the farmer's best friend. Day in and day out the cows go on quietly but persistently producing milk which finds a ready market. As long as these cows are well housed and well fed they will produce. But put them in a ramshackle barn with chill, the animals will react unfavorably. They are like humans-they must be comfortable or they cannot work. The more contented the cow, the greater the output.

Suitable housing is the solutionthe short cut to regular return and large income. In short, a real barn is needed to make a herd a profitable proposition. And a real barn is needed to keep the farm organization in smooth working order. The success of a farmer with his help often depends upon the way he handles his herd.

herd of dairy cattle the barn shown of mosaic in variegated colors, in the accompanying illustration is just what is needed. Here we have a well-constructed building, firm con-crete foundation, staunch timbers supporting high gambrel roof allowing plenty of unobstructed space for a big hay mow. Dairy barns of this type are instrumental in a large way in keeping the boys satisfied and not so eager to try out the cities. They find work under such conditions quite pleasant. And it is inevitable that the success of the good barn will convince the farmer that his house should be just as modern. The result is a modern farm home with conveniences.

Golden Mosaic Discovered.

A young American, Harry Sternfeld yawning cracks through which biting of Pittsburgh, winner of the Prix de winds can blow and draughts can Paris and student of the American academy there, has discovered a masterpiece of Cosmodi mosaics. They embellish a great facade of a medieval cathedral, several miles from Rome, at Civta Castellana, a place for centuries forgotten, where the genius of Cosmodi and his sons is commonplace because of familiarity.

The design was executed in the year 1210, and shows the influences of the Byzantine school. The whole of the facade is rich in color and glitters with golden fragments of stone. The immense detail in the design staggers one as he proceeds to examine it close-For the average farm with a small | ly. The top of the loggia is one mass

Treatment of Children's Colds

The fact that the child is taking cold or has developed one is in itself cause for alarm. It is proof that the organs of the human body are not functioning.

First a purgative; castor oil or a laxative advised by the doctor. Put the child to bed and use Nash's Salve as for croup. Carefully apply wet, hot towels for possibly five minutes to throat and chest to open the pores. Then follow with Nash's Salve thickly. Cover this with warm white flannel and arrange bed clothes in a sort of a tunnel around neck to allow vapors to be breathed freely. Don't forget to apply a little of the salve up each nostril.

Morning will find the cold completely broken and the child in usual spirits. Convalescense will follow quickly and naturally. The same treatment is equally effective for adults.

Indications Point To Public Awakening

It is a common thing to hear a man say after a violent sneeze, "I have taken cold."

This is not so. He is taking cold. The sneeze is his system's effort to shake it off and to warn him to use a preventive.

So, mother, when your child sneezes, run and get the bottle of Nash's Croup-Pneumonia Salve. Heed Nature's warning. Apply a little with finger way up in the little nose; have the child close mouth and breathe deeply; repeat at intervals until cold gets discouraged and withdraws its attacks.

Children like the Nash treatment; it is pleasant and does not moke them sick. Doctors like it, too, because it does not interfere with their prarents the dangers of a common cold and how to relieve it.

Oh, how easy, comfortable and calm would be a life with Cuthbert Vane? I wasn't thinking about the title now-Cuthbert would be quite worth while for himself. For a moment I almost saw with Aunt Jane's eyes. Fancy trotting him out before the girls! stole insidiously into my mind. How much more dazzling than a plain Scotch sallor-

I turned in bitterness and yearning from the silent figure by the fire. I think in an earlier lifetime I must have been a huntress and loved to pursue the game that fled.

CHAPTER XI.

The Island Queen's Freight. I woke next morning with a great thrill of exhibaration. Perhaps before the sun went down again I should know the secret of the Island.

The two divisions of our party, which were designated by me private ly the Land and Sea Forces, went their separate ways directly after breakfast, which we ate in the cool of earliest morning. I could retire to the perusal of the fournal which I had recovered from the wrecked sloop without fear of interruption.

I resumed my reading with the entry of February 10.

"This morning, having grown very tired of fish, of which I get plenty every time I go out in the boat, by dragging a line behind, I decided to stay ashore and hunt pig. I set out across the base of the point, nearly due south-whereas I had been working along the coast to the north of the cove. I reached the edge of the cliffs and found that on my right hand the mountain dropped in a sheer precipice from hundreds of feet above me straight into the sea. I considered, and made up my mind that by striking back some distance one might by a very rough climb gain the top of the precipice, and so swing around the shoulder of the mountain. I did not feel inclined to attempt it. The cliffs at this point offered no means of descent, and the few yards of sand which the receding tide had left hare at their foot led nowhere, "I turned to go back, and at that moment I heard an outcry in the bushes and Benjy came tearing out at the heels of a fine young porker. I threw up my gun to fire, but the evolutions of Benjy and the pig were such that I was as likely to hit one as the other. The pig. of course, made desperate efforts to escape from the cul-de-sac hope was to get back into the woods on the point. Benjy kept him headed off successfully, and I began to edge up, watching my chance for a shot. by surprise, I fired-and missed. The pig shot between my knees, Benjy after aim. I withstood the shock of

"I got to my feet quickly, dragging the whole mass of vines up with me. Then I saw that they had covered a curiously regular little patch of ground, outlined at intervals with small stones. At one end was a larger

"The patch was narrow, about six feet long-instantly suggestive of a grave. But swift beyond all process of reason was the certainty that flashed into my mind. I fell on my knees beside the stone and pulled away the torn vine-tendrils. I saw the letters B. H. and an attempt at cross-bones rudely cut into the surface of the stone.

"I closed my eyes and tried to steady myself. I thought, 'I am seeing things. This is the mere projection of the vision which has been in my mind so long.'

"I opened my eyes, and to, the fantasy, if fantasy it were, remained. note with my fist upon the stone. The stone was solid-it bruised the flesh. And as I saw the blood run, I screamed aloud like a madman, 'It's real, real, real!"

"Under the stone lay the guardian of the treasure of the Bonny Lass-And his secret was within my grasp.
"I don't know how long I crouched beside the stone, as drunk with joy as any hasheesh toper with his drug. I roused at last to find Benjy at my shoulder, thrusting his cool nose against my feverish cheek. I suppose he didn't understand my ignoring him so, or thought I scorned him for losing out in his race with the pig. Yet when I think of what I owe that pig I could swear never to taste pork haifd was the mouth of the cave-but where? The cliffs, as I have already were too steep for descent. Nothing but a fly could have crawled paltry silver piece among them! And down them. I turned to the craggy face of the mountain. There, surely, must be the entrance to the cave! For hours I clambered among the playing with my gold, running it rocks, risking mangled limbs and sunstroke-and found no cave. I came together in my palm. Benjy came and back at last, wearily, to the grave. There lay the dust of the brain that had known all-and a wild impulse He thrust his nose into my face and came to me to tear away the earth barked, and said as clearly as with with my bare hands, to dig deep, deep-and then with listening ear wait for a whispered word.

"I put the delirious fancy from me and moved away to the edge of the rich, old boy, rich, rich!" cliffs. Looking down, I saw a narrow fore, of course, but it had carried no lowed it to its end in the angle of the each coin, for the sake of even figures, to have gone back to the hut and got matches and a lantern and a rope before I set foot in the darkness of that unknown place. But what had I layers of bags, a silver crucifix about to do today with prudence-Fortune had me by the hand! In I went boldin which he found himself. His only ly, Benjy at my heels. The passage turned sharply, and for a little way we walked in blackness. Then it veered again, and a faint and far-off light seemed to filter its way to us Suddenly the pig came dashing through a web woven of the very stuff straight toward me oblivious, I supof night. The floor sloped a little pose, to everything but the white downward. I felt my way with my snapping terror at his heels. Taken | feet, and came to a step-another. I was going along a descending passage, cut at its steepest into rough, irregular stairs. With either hand I could pig, but not of Benjy. I fell, touch the walks. All the while the clawing wildly, into a matted mass of light grew clearer. Presently, by an-

from the top of the cliffs. "The roof is high, with an effect of clothic arches. Near the mouth is a tiny spring of ice-cold water, which has worn a clean rock channel for itself to the sea. Otherwise the cave is perfectly dry. There is no doubt to my mind that in the great buccaneering days of the Seventeenth century, and probably much later, the place was the haunt of pirates. One fancies that Captain Sampson of the Bonny Lass may have known of it before he brought the treasure to the island. There were queer folk to be met with in those days in the western ocean. Yes, the cave has seen many a flerce, sea-tanned face and tarry pigtall, and echoed to strange and wild sea-songs. Men had carved those steps in the passagethirty-two of them. In the sand of the floor, as I kicked it up with my feet, hoping rather childishly to strike the corner of the chest, I found the hilt and part of the blade of a rusty cutlass, and a chased silver nckle. I shall take the buckle home Helen—and yet how trivial it will seem, with all else that I have to offer her! Nevertheless she will prize from the place to which some kind angel led me for her sake. "I left the cave and hurrled back to the cabin for a spade, walking on air, breaking with snatches of song the terrible stillness of the woods, where one hears only the high fitful sighing of the wind, or the eternal mutter of it as my gift, and because it comes

"Back in the cave, I set to work At the end of half an hour, at a point close to the angle of the wall my spade struck a hard surface. It lay, I should judge, under about two feet of sand. Soon I had laid bare a patch of dark wood which rang under my more, and I had cleared away the and from the top of a large chest

"Furlously I flung the sand aside depth-which is roughly three feet. It has handles at the ends, great handwrought loops of metal. I tugged my hardest, but the chest seemed fast in its place as the native rock. I laughed exultantly. The weight meant gold—gold. I had hammer and chisel with me, and with these I forced the massive ancient locks. There were three of them, one for each strip of brass which bound the chest. Then I flung up the lid.

"No glittering treasure dazzled me. I saw only a surface of mained canvas, tucked in carefully around the edges. This I tore off and flung saide -eclipsing poor Benjy, who was most interested spectator of my strange proceedings, Still no gleam of gold, merely demure rows of plump brown bags. With both hands I reached for them. Oh, to grasp them all! I had to be content with two, because they were so heavy, so blessedly heavy!

"I spread the square of canvas on the sand, cut the strings from the bags and poured out-gold, gold! All fair shining golden coins they were, not a they made a soft golden music as they fell in a glorious yellow heap.

"I don't know how long I sat there, through my fingers, clinking the coins understand his master's preoccupation, words, 'Come, bunt pig!'

"Besides the coin, I found, rather surprisingly, laid between the upper nine inches long. It is of very quaint old workmanship, and badly tarnished, Its money value must be very trifling, compared to the same bulk of golden coins. I think it must have had some special character of sacredness which tists, proves reliable and led to its preservation here. It is strange to find such a relic among a treasure so stained by blood and

SUCCULENT FEED FOR COWS

Dried Apple Pomace Does Not Cause Decrease in Milk Flow Nor Yield of Butterfat.

Dried or "evaporated" apple pomace as a succulent feed for the dairy cow is the subject of a preliminary report from the bureau of chemistry and animal industry of the United States Deexperiment to determine the feeding value of dried-apple pomace, especially its suitability as food for cows in lactation. Preliminary results are reported because of a large number of inquiries on the subject.

The text of the report follows: It appears there is a belief among dairymen that the dried product has a tendency to cut down the milk flow or even cause cows to go dry, although apple pomace fresh from the cider press is generally recognized as being a good succulent feed for milk cows. To test the soundness of this belief a feeding trial has been carried out by the department. Only one cow was used in this test, and the total quantity of dried pomace fed was less than 400 pounds; therefore it must be borne in mind that the results obtained, while indicative, cannot be accepted as conclusive.

In this feeding trial the dried-apple pomace was fed wet and its feeding value compared with that of corn silage, since it is intended to be a suc culent feed. The pomace was prepared by adding to the dry material three times its weight of water several hours before feeding, thus producing a feed similar in water content to that of corn sile ze.

For a period of 30 days the cow re ceived a balance ration consisting of grain, hay, and corn silage. The silage was then replaced by the apple poniace for a similar length of time following a ten-day transition period for the change in diet, and after a like feverishly, making the light sand fly. transition period at the end of 30 days the original ration containing silage was resumed and continued for a third 30-day period.

The quantity fed-36 pounds of wet pomace per day-was such that the knuckles almost like iron. A little equalled the weight of dry matter in the silage replaced. The quantities of grain and hay fed remained practicalwith a convex lid, heavily bound in ly constant throughout the whole exentions are that no bad effects follow the feeding of dried-apple pomace There was no decrease in the milk flow nor in the yield of butterfat,

When fed as described the dried pomace appeared to be equal, pound for pound of dry matter, to good corn silage as a succulent food for this sniffed at them indifferently, unable to dairy cow. Owing to the property which it possesses of absorbing large quantities of water and swelling, it should never be fed dry, but should be allowed to soak in water for an hour or so before feeding. The pomace appears to be a palatable feeding stuff.

Caution is advised in feeding dried apple pomace, as there is a possibility that the feeding of large quantities, or quantities containing excessive amounts of apple seeds, might prove injurious. It appears to be safe, however, to feed as much soaked pomace by weight (one part dried pomace to three parts water) as it would be to feed the same amount of pomace fresh from the cider press.

HEDLEY SCHOOL NOTES

This is the week for mid term xams. Here's hoping we go "over the top."

In the past two weeks several pupils— Duren Estes, Pauline, Edna, Belva Alexander. Loyer Kennedy— have moved away We regret very much to have lest these good pupils.

Tuesday of last week the boys basket ball team went to Estel line for a game. Upon their return they were met and served refreshments of sandwiches, hot chocolate and pie at Marvins Cafe. We enjoyed the pleasant diversion of relating reminiscences over the 'teacups " Miss Allison read, in a very pleasing manner, The Fashionable School Girl. The party then went to the railway station and as the trains came in gave yells and songs which assured the passen gers that Hedley schools are full of pep. Those present: Misses Gertrude Noel, Ruby Bales, Lor raine Simmons, Stella Mae Adamson, Ruth Coffey. Gladys Speddy, Naomi Allison, Willie Merie Trapp; Messrs James Richey, Homer Pool, Harvey Shaw, Marion Shaw, Leslie Clif ton, Bill Johnson, H A Jackson. VICTORS DECIDED! SCORE 26 to 18!

Game at Estelline Indecisive! Hedley team met the Estelline basket ball boys on home court F iday, 12th. Coach Burton, of Clarendon College, came own to referee the game. The game was very interesting. At the close of the first half the score was 10 to 9 in favor of Hedley. hard fought and the scores were close. Marion Shaw was plainly the star player, making six scores and holding his opponent to none. The other boys played fine, but allowed their opponents to score.
