JUNIOR KU KLUX KLAN REPORTED ORGANIZED

Formation of a "Junior Ku Klux Klan" is announced in a letter signed "Imperial Advisory Master" which has been addressed to the press in Texas cities. The organization already is three months old, the announcement states, and includes in its membership boys between the ages of 17 and 20, both inclusive.

The purpose of the organization is "to make better citizens of our young men and to instill into their characters high ideals of the purity of womanhood and the sanctity of the home," it is declared. It stands for "constituted law and order and the sovereignty of our flag and country." Its members "owe allegiance, first, to God; second, to our country and flag, third to our homes."

This organization is "first, last and all the time, a one hundred per cent American" body, the announcement reads.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The ladies of the First Baptist Church will serve dinner Saturday, July 22nd.

Children under 12 years old 25c; all others, 50c.

The dinner will be served in the Boston building. Proceeds go to the Buckner Orphans Home.

THE TOMATO FRUIT WORM

Many people over the county seem to have had considerable trouble with the tomato worm, or sometimes called the corner worm. This worm is extremely destructive to corn and equally so to tomatoes, as it bores into the tomato and feeds on the pulp which causes the tomato to decay. For the benefit of those who are bothered with this pest I am offering the following control measures which in many cases have been used effectively.

The remedy consists in poisoning the worms with a mixture of corn meal and dry arsenate of lead, using a teaspoonful of the arsenate of lead to 1 qt. of meal. Dust this over the plant and to matoes thoroughly. If fruit is used within ten days of the application it should be thoroughly washed. This will not kill those worms which are already in the tomato, but will greatly check further destructiveness.

REPRESENTATIVE HILL SHOULD BE RE-ELECTED

The Texan takes pleasure in announcing that H. B. Hill will be a candidate to succeed himself as Representative of the 144th Representative District of the State of Texas.

No one can deny the fact that Mr. Hill has made an excellent representative of the people.

He has carefully protected the interests of his constituents, and it is to be doubted if he has overlooked any item that has been brought to his attention which would tend to benefit any or all the people of the District. According to those who've seen the House of Representatives "in action," Mr. Hill is the outstanding figure in that organization and his opinion in all matters is highly regarded. Mr. Hill is young in years, and with his most enviable record as a legislator, the Texan firmly believes that the future holds much in store for him in a political way.

While in Austin a few weeks ago this editor was informed by many of the State officials and others that Mr. Hill's chances as to the office of the Speaker of the House were exceedingly bright, and each of these informants stated that he was the most highly qualified man in the House for this important office.

The Texan is indeed glad to present the name of H. B. Hill again before the voters, with the belief that he will receive more votes in the coming election than ever before.—Wheeler County Texan.

ANNOUNCEMENT

TIME-TABLE FOR COOKING FRESH VEGETABLES IN BOILING WATER

Spinach and Tender-Leaf Vegetables Can Be Cooked Without Water.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Boiling vegetables, although so common and usual a method, is only one of a variety of ways in which they may be prepared for the table. Each vegetable has certain characteristics for which it is liked, and the endeavor in serving should be to emphasize the best qualities. If it is served because of its crisp texture, or its attractive color, or its distinctive flavor, or because it contains some particular nutritious substance, special care should be taken to preserve that characteristic.

Methods of Cooking Vary.

The method of cooking selected depends somewhat on the place of the vegetable in the menu. A fried vegetable or one baked in combination with a protein-rich material may be in texture and flavor an excellent substitute for meat.

Young green peas have a delicacy of flavor and freshness of color that should be preserved by gentle, rather than violent, cooking. Many persons eat raw celery for its crispness; therefore, after it is washed it should be put in a cold place so that it will have that texture. Since spinach is often recommended for children because of its vitamins and its high proportion of iron, every effort should be made to preserve these. Moreover, the method that brings out the good points of a vegetable generally conserves the food value.

In general, vegetables should be cooked in small quantities of water to which salt has been added in the proportion of about one teaspoonful to a quart of water. Cabbage, onions and other strong-flavored kinds are sometimes exceptions of this rule and are cooked either in large quantities of water or even in two or three waters, so that the flavor will be milder. If the cooking water is saved to flavor soups or sauces, there is no loss of minerals.

Spinach, lettuce and other tender-leaf vegetables can be cooked without the addition of any water. They are succulent enough themselves and have enough water clinging to them after being washed so that they will not stick to the kettle if stirred carefully and not placed over too hot a fire at first.

Some of the delicately flavored vegetables may be cooked by what has been called the "conservation" method. They are cooked slowly and gently in just enough water to prevent them from burning, and all this water is absorbed during the process. This is recommended for green peas, string beans and young carrots.

Should Be Cooked Whole.

Whenever possible, vegetables should be cooked whole and without peeling. This applies particularly to the root and tuber kinds. If they must be cut, they lose less of their nutritious substances when cut lengthwise rather than crosswise.

The water for cooking vegetables should be boiling when they are put into it. This helps to set the color of some kinds and shortens the time of cooking, so that a smaller proportion of the minerals is extracted than when cold water is used.

Starchy vegetables should be boiled gently in a covered kettle; green vegetables hold their attractive color better if cooked in an open vessel.

All boiled vegetables should be drained as soon as they are tender. Overcooking is one of the most common mistakes in preparing vegetables for the table.

The time of cooking varies greatly with the quantity of water used and the kind, size and age of the vegetables. The following time-table is recommended by the experimental kitchen of the United States Department of Agriculture to be used as a general guide:

Time-Table for Cooking Fresh Vegetables in Boiling Water.

Asparagus	15-20 minutes
Beans, Lima (green)	45-60 minutes
Beans, string	1-2 hours
Beets, old	3-4 hours
Beets, young	45-60 minutes
Cabbage	20-30 minutes
Carrots	20-30 minutes
Cauliflower	20-30 minutes
Corn, green	10-15 minutes
Onions	20-30 minutes
Parsnips	45-60 minutes
Peas, green	20-30 minutes
Potatoes	20-40 minutes
Spinach	15-30 minutes
Squash	20-30 minutes
Turnips	30-45 minutes

RIPE STRAWBERRIES TEMPT IN DESSERTS

Splendid Recipe for the Experimental Kitchen.

Seasonable Variation Suggested of Old-Fashioned "Hard Sauce," So Useful With Puddings, Cakes and Other Dishes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A seasonable variation of old-fashioned "hard sauce" that is so useful with cottage pudding, boiled rice, cornstarch, blanc-mange, sponge cake, and other desserts which need a little dressing up is made by using ripe strawberries. The following recipe is from the experimental kitchen of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Strawberry Sauce.

1 cupful powdered 1-3 cupful butter, sugar. 11-3 cupfuls strawberries. White 1 egg.

Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually, the egg white beaten stiff, and the strawberries, and beat until the fruit is mashed.

Strawberry Charlotte.

Another very attractive and more elaborate dessert can be easily and quickly made with sponge cake as a basis. Bake the cake in a sheet and cut into strips to line the sides of a glass dish, fill the center with strawberries that have been lightly mixed with whipped cream slightly sweetened and seasoned with a pinch of salt, and serve at once.

Berries combined with whipped cream in this way may also be used without the cake, and to many persons are more delicious than when served with cream in the usual way.

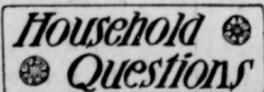

The berries should be kept whole so far as possible, so that the cream forms a coating on each one.

Frozen strawberry desserts are also delicious and easy to make.

Strawberry Sherbet.

1/2 tablespoonful lemon juice. 1 quart ripe hulled berries. White 1 egg. 1 1/4 cupfuls sugar. 1 cupful water.

Cover the berries with the sugar and let stand for one hour, then crush and squeeze them through double thickness of cheesecloth. There should be about one pint of sweetened juice. To this add the water, lemon juice, and freeze the sherbet in the usual way. After it is frozen, remove the dasher, stir in the well-beaten egg white, pack with salt and ice, and allow the sherbet to stand a while before serving.

Vinegar brightens brass and copper ware.

Keep tea in an airtight tin in a cool place.

Vinegar made hot removes paint stains.

Eggs should stand on end in a box of dry bran.

Flour sprinkled on burning oil will immediately extinguish it.

Use two level teaspoonfuls baking powder to one cupful of flour for muffins.

To boil a suet pudding, allow two to four hours, according to the amount of fruit.

LINGERIE FOR SUMMER; LOVELY GOWNS OF CREPE

THE spring displays of lingerie were so colorful that the time-honored white seemed to be distanced by its gay rivals, but the arrival of the summer has brought a demand for white undergarments. However, manufacturers have not turned their backs upon color; they are using it, especially in cool blues and greens, in the decoration of white garments, in several novel ways. Applique figures, pipings, and simple embroideries, or cord covered with silk, puffed over it, used in scroll designs.

Simplicity strikes one of the high notes of fashion this season, heading another, in harmony with the first, and these conspire together to promote the cause of crepe fabrics for afternoon and evening gowns. The preference for these favorites is explained by many beautiful but unpretentious frocks, graceful and comfortable. One such gown is portrayed here.

LINGERIE SHOWS TOUCHES OF COLOR

many stitching are the mediums chosen for introducing a little color in white lingerie.

Chain stitching, fagoting and feather stitching find themselves featured in the newest lingerie, each of them serving to introduce color, where it is desired to use it sparingly, on cotton, silk or linen underthings. The styles show a preponderance of tailored ideas but summer has brought, along with white, fancier undergarments and lace trimmings that presage an increasing demand for this style. Underwear must be cut with reference to the types and styles of outer garments. It also borrows many of its trimmings made of white crepe de chine, decorated with an embroidery of black beads. Its lines are the simplest possible—a straight chemise dress with a wide bead-embroidered belt of the material. The sleeves are split down the top and the edges tacked together midway between the shoulder and elbow.

Other members of the crepe family are dowered with charms that are peculiar to themselves, and sometimes two of them unite to form enticing gowns. Printed georgette crepe makes long-waisted blouses with mandarin sleeves that are joined to plaited skirts of canton crepe. Handsome metallic and jeweled girdles find ones from them, which accounts for the appearance of peasant embroideries and colored stitchery among the newly arrived undergarments.

In nightdresses the choice lies between those with round neckline and built-up shoulders and the square type as illustrated here. Embroidered swiss organdie and narrow lace insertions and edging form the yoke for this gown of crepe de chine in light pink. Narrow ribbons fagoted together make the yoke of some of the new gowns and combinations, and another novel decoration appears in themselves in the right: company on these aristocratic gowns.

The story of evening gowns is a recital of colored crepes and the glitter of beads. Nearly all the models shown are straight-line frocks, but each strives for distinction by the adoption of separate panels, or a little draping of the material, or an uneven hem line. The dominant feature of the mode is found in bead trimmings.

SAYS CALOMEL SALIVATES AND LOOSENS TEETH

The Very Next Dose of This Treacherous Drug May Start Trouble.

You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into your bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tonic straightens you right up and you feel great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate.—Advertisement.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

FORWARD, BACKWARD

EVERYTHING in nature is moving toward a great purpose. There is no inactivity in the atoms or in the spheres; no turning backward, no indecision, but a constant movement in a forward direction, carrying us away from the yesterdays to new dawnings and new days.

The winds, the tides, the spinning of the earth in its prescribed orbit, the rising and the setting of the sun, the coming and the going of the seasons, the blooming and the fading of verdure and flowers, all bear evidence of progress, and eternal life.

Being a minute part of nature, performing your little role in the great scheme of creation, reciting your lines, do you ever pause to ask yourself whether you are moving forward or backward?

In spite of any thought you may entertain in the matter, you are going ahead or drifting behind, just as surely as the roses bloom in summer and the snows blanket the ground in winter.

You are better equipped for your life-work today than you were yesterday, or less efficient.

Your mental and physical forces have undergone an imperceptible change and you have changed with them.

You are a trifle more dexterous in your work or slightly more clumsy.

In the last 24 hours you have not remained in a quiescent state, for the laws of motion have been silently at work, carrying you a step or two forward or backward, setting you down at the threshold of a new day a slightly changed being for better or worse.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

WHAT A WOMAN DID

IT SEEMS probable that cancer, one of the most deadly of the enemies of mankind, will soon be conquered by the use of radium.

Since the beginning of time this element has existed in nature. For the last score or more of years the presence of some unseen but powerful force has been suspected. Scientists sought to discover what it was, but sought in vain, till a quiet little Polish woman, after years of laborious experiment, discovered it.

That a woman should have made this discovery—one of the most notable in all history—is highly important. It disproves forever the old contention that there is any difference between the brain of a man and that of a woman.

The highest concentration, the greatest reasoning power, the most indomitable determination were required for the years of work which had to be done before this discovery could be made.

A man stumbles on a gold mine or a diamond deposit by accident. But to find a metal which exists in the most minute quantities, and which must be extracted by infinite pains from the surrounding elements, has to be located which you may or may not observe as you take hold of today's duties.

Before night, however, you may become conscious of a new-born power, or a lack of it, and wonder what the transformation means.

Its significance is clear. You are going forward or backward, keeping in accord with the eternal motion of things of which you are a part.

If you would move forward, keep step with the men and women who are laboring and achieving in the great purpose, you must watch your every thought, impulse and act, and ask yourself at the beginning of each day whether you are pressing toward victory or turning toward defeat.

"Forward or backward?" ought to be your initial question at dawn, and your final query at night. Let this self-examination become a habit, and in a little while you will be glad that you acquired it. (Copyright.)

first, and laboriously separated afterward.

Countless experiments entered into Mme. Curie's work, and only a remarkable human being could have brought it to a successful conclusion.

Much is yet to be done before the power of radium over cancer can be thoroughly tested.

But this can be left to others, as the consolidation of a captured position in war can be left to subordinates after a brilliant general has won an engagement.

Mme. Curie has set an example, not only for her own sex, but for all the searchers for truth in the world.

Her achievement is an inspiration, and probably to the end of time, will be an inspiration to the whole world. (Copyright.)

AS STALE bread will accumulate, a little care is needed to keep ahead of the growth. If dry bread is put through the meat chopper it may then be used for croquettes, meat balls and any number of dishes. Keep the crumbs in a glass jar, sealed from the air.

Tip-Top Omelet.

Boil one-half cupful of milk, add one tablespoonful of butter and one cupful of bread crumbs, seasoning to taste. Beat the yolks of three eggs and add them, then stir in the stiffly beaten whites. Pour into a buttered omelet pan and cook until well browned.

Ham Patties.

Take two cupfuls of ham chopped fine, three cupfuls of bread crumbs, three eggs and enough sweet milk to make a soft batter. Mix well, drop into gem pans, drop a piece of butter in each and bake until brown.

Fruit Betty.

Put a layer of crumbs in a well-buttered baking dish, cover with blueberries, canned or fresh, then add another layer of bread with a bit of butter and sugar if needed. Bake until well heated through. Serve with cream and sugar.

Brown Bread.

Take two cupfuls of stale bread crumbs, one and one-half pints of cold water, mix and soak over night, then rub through a sieve one and one-fourth cupfuls of molasses, one and one-half cupfuls each of graham flour, cornmeal and rye meal, two teaspoonfuls of salt, three and one-half teaspoonfuls of soda and one and three-fourths cupfuls of cold water. Mix well and steam three hours.

Stuffed Apples for Tea.

Take five large apples, core and fill with one-half cupful each of bread crumbs and chopped roast beef, one tablespoonful of melted butter, one teaspoonful of onion juice, one-quarter teaspoonful of celery salt, half teaspoonful of parsley chopped and a dash of red pepper. Mix well and press into the apples. Bake in a little hot water from half to three-quarters of an hour.

Half City, Half Desert.

On the Gulf of Aden is a spot of barren sand where a city springs up every winter and almost disappears in the summer. This place is called Berbera. A market is held there every winter and during the height of trading it becomes a city of rude huts and tents with a population of over 20,000. During the summer the place is deserted.

Green, White and Black.

Two men passed each other in Washington street. "Hello, Green," said one. "How are you, White?" said the other. "How are you, Black?" said the other. And they both are black.

BRACE UP

WHEN you're feeling rather blue And the sledding's hard for you; When your schemes go up the spout And you're feeling down and out; When you've shot and scored a miss— Brace up and remember this: Those who win are those who try. So brace up and don't say die.

Swell your chest and try again; Grit your teeth and smile at pain. Tackle trouble with a laugh And you'll cut the dose in half. Look the world square in the eye; Buck the line and don't say die. Laying down is all the shame— Sit straight up and play the game. Don't dodge trouble—if you do It will doubly trouble you. Meet each task with grit and vim, Do the square thing, sink or swim. If you see hard luck draw high Laugh again and don't say die. Keep your face turned to the light, Do your best and you're all right. (Copyright.)

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE MUSIC SCHOOL

"I want to tell you this evening," said daddy, "of a music school in a big city.

"There is a little girl in that city who loves the extra hour of daylight. In the city people cannot have all the daylight as they can in the country, so it makes it nice for them to have all they can. In the country it is different. The work done in the city and in the country is so different, too.

"An extra hour of daylight means to this little girl that she can practice more. And she dearly loves to practice. And she is the sort to take music lessons, for I don't think people who hate music should practice. Music should be for those who love it.

"You see gas light means money, while daylight is free and money is a very real consideration in this little girl's family. They can only afford a very little gas.

"This little girl is one of over a hundred children who study music in the music school of this big city. Here the children come every week of every month in the year with the exception of one month for holiday time. Here they study the violin, piano, cello, and singing and the history of music.

"She Can Practice More."

Here, too, they have an orchestra composed of the pupils and a stringed quartette.

Twice a month the neighborhood attends a concert which is given by the pupils in the main hall. In this way the parents see what the children are doing and the children become accustomed to playing before others, and lose any feeling of stage fright which they might otherwise have to overcome when they were much older and when it would be much harder.

"And many of these children later will become famous violinists and singers, for here are children with great musical talent who're given an opportunity to learn how to play.

"They pay very, very little for their lessons, and sometimes not at all. And they have the best of teachers, who practically give their time.

"Scholarships are given. And the school is like a club, for there are magazines and books about and the children read before and after lesson time.

"Many are on the waiting list for the school isn't big enough to hold all who want to go there.

"There are children of twelve different nationalities in the school.

"There is a little boy named Benny there who has his beloved violin, which he won as a prize. He has great talent—almost genius. He is working for the day when he can help support his family with the aid of his beloved fiddle.

"Then there are two little girls named Rose and Mary and their playing is marvelous.

"There is a little girl named Julia who is paralyzed from her waist down.

"But she doesn't complain for she thinks she is very fortunate. Her face shows her happiness and when I asked her what she did with herself, she said,

"I have my piano lessons!"

"At the end of the season there is a prize given for the one who has made the most progress during the year.

"From all parts of the school, and out even to the river which lies beyond, one can hear the sound of music—violins, pianos, cellos—all being played—and from this medley of sounds one can hear the expressive souls who have found in the music school of this city what they most deeply love.

"For here they can follow their talents and they are given wonderful opportunities by those who are eager to help little music lovers.

"And as I know you love to hear what other children are doing I thought I would tell you about this music school where poor children who love music better than anything in the world learn to play.

"And when you grow up and go to big concerts, I'm sure you will hear among the fine players some of these little children from this city music school.

"For music is the great ambition of all these children who go to the music school and they all dream of the day when they will perform upon great concert hall stages. And their dreams are going to be realized, and are being realized all the time.

"For one man who loved to think of dreams coming true started this school and it is being carried on by others who believe, too, in helping to make dreams come true!"

JUST DRAGGED SO WEAKENED

Florida Lady Was in a Miserable Condition, But Says She Found Cardul Helpful, and Got Well.

Blountstown, Fla.—In explaining how she found Cardul so helpful during change of life, Mrs. Ella M. Bailey, of this place, said:

"I became so weakened it was an effort for me to get around. I knew what was the matter, but I felt like I couldn't give up. "I just dragged, and I certainly was nervous. I was so restless I could not sit down long—yet so weak I couldn't get about. It is a most miserable and such a helpless feeling.

"I would get depressed and out of heart.

"I began to feel, after awhile, there was no use to try to get well. This is all wrong, for it makes a person worse.

"I had heard of Cardul, and thought it might strengthen me. A neighbor had used it with good results.

"I took one bottle (of Cardul), then I saw I wasn't so nervous, so kept it up.

"Gradually the nervousness left me. I began to eat and sleep better. Was soon well, and all right.

"Cardul did wonders for me, and I certainly do recommend it."

Baked Monkey a Delicacy.

A hunter's paradise is Mexico, and almost within sight of the capital are forests that abound with wild game, offered at all seasons in the Mexico City markets.

Venison is a staple and wild ducks and geese may be purchased for a few centavos. Live quail as well as varieties of pheasants and pigeons are sold on the streets by peddlers. Indians from the hills frequently truck to the city with a wild boar, and turkeys may be had for the price of a paltry tip to a native hunter.

If one is so inclined, a tender monkey may be procured for Sunday baking, a dish that Mexican epicures, especially of the tropical regions, relish above all others.

MARY AT SCHOOL

SYNOPSIS.—In a preface Mary Marie explains her apparent "double personality" and just why it is a "cross-current and a contradiction"; she also tells her reasons for writing the diary—later to be a novel. The diary is commenced at Andersonville. Mary begins with Nurse Sarah's account of her (Mary's) birth, which seemingly interested her father, who is a famous astronomer, less than a new star which was discovered the same night. Her name is a compromise; her mother wanted to call her Viola and her father insisted on Abigail Jane. The child quickly learned that her home was in some way different from those of her small friends, and was puzzled thereat. Nurse Sarah tells her of her mother's arrival at Andersonville as a bride and how astonished they all were at the sight of the dainty eighteen-year-old girl whom the sedate professor had chosen for a wife. Nurse Sarah makes it plain why the household seemed a strange one to the child and how her father and mother drifted apart through misunderstanding, each too proud in any way to attempt to smooth over the situation. Mary tells of the time spent "out West" where the "perfectly all right and genteel and respectable" divorce was being arranged for, and her mother's (to her) unaccountable behavior. By the court's order the child is to spend six months of the year with her mother and six months with her father. Boston is Mother's home. Mary describes her life as Marie with her mother in Boston and about her mother's "prospective suitors." Then Mary goes to her other home, to visit her father. He is the same queer stick. Mary goes to school.

TWO WEEKS LATER

Well, I don't know as I have anything very special to say. Still, I suppose I ought to write something; so I'll put down what little there is. I can't see as Father has changed much if any these last two weeks. He still doesn't pay much of any attention to me, though I do find him looking at me sometimes, just as if he was trying to make up his mind about something. He doesn't say hardly anything to me, only once or twice when he got to asking questions again about Boston and Mother.

Well, I guess there's nothing more to write. Things at school are just the same, only more so. The girls are getting so they rest almost as bad as those down to Boston in the school where I went before I changed. Of course, maybe it's the divorce here, same as it was there. But I don't see how it can be that here. Why, they've known it from the very first!

Oh, dear Suzie! How I do wish I could see Mother tonight and have her take me in her arms and kiss me.

Do Find Him Looking at Me Sometimes, Just as if He Was Trying to Make Up His Mind About Something.

I'm so tired of being Mary 'way off up here where nobody cares or wants me. Even Father doesn't want me, not really want me. I know he doesn't. I don't see why he keeps me, only I suppose he'd be ashamed not to take me his six months as long as the court gave me to him for that time.

ANOTHER TWO WEEKS LATER.

I'm so angry I can hardly write, and at the same time I'm so angry I've just got to write. I can't talk. There isn't anybody to talk to; and I've got to tell somebody. So I'm going to tell it here.

That I should tell Aunt Jane that tomorrow morning. There isn't any other school here, so they can't send me anywhere else. But it's most time for school to close, anyway. There are only two weeks more.

ONE DAY LATER.

And, dear, dear, what a day it has been!

I told her this morning. She was very angry. She said at first: "Nonsense, Mary, don't be impertinent. Of course you'll go to school!" and all that kind of talk. But I kept my temper. I did not act angry. I was simply firm and dignified. And when she saw I really meant what I said, and that I would not step my foot inside that schoolroom again—that it was a matter of conscience with me—that I did not think it was right for me to do it, she simply stared for a minute, as if she couldn't believe her eyes and ears. Then she gasped:

"Mary, what do you mean by such talk to me? Do you think I shall permit this sort of thing to go on for a moment?"

I thought then she was going to send me home. Oh, I did so hope she was. But she didn't. She sent me to my room.

"You will stay there until your father comes home this noon," she said. "This is a matter for him to settle."

Father! And I never even thought of her going to him with it. She was always telling me never to bother Father with anything, and I knew she didn't usually ask him anything about me. She settled everything herself. But this—and the very thing I didn't want her to ask him, too. But of course I couldn't help myself. That's the trouble. Youth is so helpless in the clutches of old age.

Well, I went to my room. Aunt Jane told me to meditate on my sins. But I didn't. I meditated on other people's sins. I didn't have any to meditate on. Was it a sin, pray, for me to stand up for my mother and refuse to associate with people who wouldn't associate with me on account of her? I guess not!

But even with all this to meditate on, it was an awfully long time coming noon; and they didn't call me down to dinner even then. Aunt Jane sent up two pieces of bread without any butter and a glass of water. How like Aunt Jane—making even my dinner a sin to meditate on! Only she would call it my sin, and I would call it hers.

Well, after dinner Father sent for me to come down to the library. So I knew then, of course, that Aunt Jane had told him. I didn't know but she would wait until night. Father usually spends his hour after dinner reading in the library and mustn't be disturbed. But evidently today Aunt Jane thought I was more consequent than his reading. Anyhow, she told him, and he sent for me.

My! but I hated to go! Fathers and Aunt Jane are two different propositions. Fathers have more rights and privileges, of course. Everybody knows that.

Well, I went into the library. Father stood with his back to the fireplace and his hands in his pockets. He was plainly angry at being disturbed. Anybody could see that. He began speaking at once, the minute I got into the room—very cold and dignified.

"Mary, your aunt tells me you have been disobedient and disrespectful to her. Have you anything to say?"

I shook my head and said, "No, sir."

What could I say? Old folks ask such senseless questions, sometimes. Naturally I wasn't going to say I had been disrespectful and disobedient when I hadn't; and of course, I couldn't say I hadn't been when Aunt Jane said I had. That would be just like saying Aunt Jane lied. No, of course, I had nothing to say. And I said so.

"So your mother is thinking of getting married," he said.

Fate in an Ash Can

By A. W. PEACH

Mary turned her back upon him and looked out of the window into the dusk-filled street. Her fingers picked at the curtain, but her mind was busy. She was almost ready to turn and fly into his arms—why did his mere presence stir her so? But she kept herself in hand and listened.

"Tomorrow I go to New York. In the morning I am sailing for London. If you love me, ask me to come back as soon as I complete my business for the firm. If you do not, I may not come back for years. I can stay as the firm's agent—I will have nothing to come back for, you know," he said, his voice ending with a light note of amusement.

She turned upon him and looked at him thoughtfully. Tall and slim, he stood before her, his dark blue eyes resting tenderly upon her. But that note in his voice—

"Stanley, I do think so much of you—so much—but something always holds me back. You are so—so inclined to take things lightly, and I don't want to be taken lightly—never, never! No—please don't touch me! There seems to be so little you regard seriously—many things that I do; and I don't want to intrust my life to you—and yet"—her voice broke—"I do!"

She stayed his quick effort to fold her in his arms.

"Please give me time, I'll write you—to your hotel in New York—my final decision. I'll write if I will marry you; if I don't write, then you'll know."

He nodded. "Yes, I will know," he added easily, completing her unfinished sentence. "But, remember, if you write, the letter must go out tonight."

Into the Ash Can She Hurried the Letter.

If you do not write, my dear one, you will never be bothered by me again—though I know I shall never forget you!"

When he had gone, she went slowly to her room, face to face with the decision that meant more than any other decision she would ever make. She sat down at the desk and mused. His easy ways of disposing of matters of right and wrong, his offhand decisions, his careless attitude toward much that she thought deserved care—all had combined to make her wonder.

A knock on the door was followed by the appearance of one of the girls in the house.

"Hello, Mary, Mary, and what are you doing—being contrary? Say, I saw Stanley here. He is one bonny specimen of a man. But, honest, honey, I hope you won't marry him! I feel guilty for introducing him to you," Bertha said sobberly.

Mary looked keenly at her old friend. "Well, I am to decide in the next half hour—"

"No!" Bertha's face was pale. "Yes!"

"I—I wish you wouldn't!"

Mary smiled. "Bert, have you something you want to tell me and yet won't?"

The other sat in silence, the laughter gone from her eyes and face. Then, after a little, she spoke:

"He is attractive, but there is something—but I can't tell you."

Mary's hands grew cold on the desk. She knew the stanch little comrade of years would not mention gossip. "Bert, this is serious. I am doubtful about Stanley, but only a little, and if you know anything tell me. I do want to be happy with him—or without him!"

"I know this," Bertha answered, her face pale. "He writes letters every now and then to a girl in his old home, and I know he has gone to see her. He doesn't dictate them to me—but I happened to glance at one on his desk, and it was a loving affair."

Mary's comment was a little cry—"It would be better—it would!"

"But, oh, honey, I can't talk about it any more—I hope—well—good-by!" Mary turned to the desk once more. Out of the minutes of thought came the final decision. He was trusted and liked in the great importing firm; he had the respect of strong men; surely he would be true to her if he was to them.

She wrote the letter, slipped on a coat and went out to the mail box. On her way she passed a house where rumor had told of scandal and heart-break, and she paused, the cold question rising in her heart: "Suppose that might happen to me? Must I run the risk?" Her imagination loomed. She knew she could love one man and one only. The risk! No, she would not take it. Into the ashen that stood beside the post, ready for the night collectors of refuse, she hurled the letter and rushed back home. She passed a belated errand boy and a tall man who stared at her curiously.

In the seclusion of her room she fought the old, old battle of the human heart torn between longing for happiness and fear of it. Sleep came in the end if peace did not.

The next morning dragged with weary feet. She could picture Stanley watching for his mail and her familiar notepaper. Then, hope gone, standing in silence and despair—perhaps. For she suddenly realized that he was strong—strong in the way of men who take life lightly because they do not fear it.

At noon, sharp with climax, her world turned over. First, Bertha, with tears in her eyes, explained that she had found out that Stanley's girl at home was a maiden aunt, who had cared for him in his youth, whose personal business he looked after and whom he had called in his boyhood "Dearest," as he called her so in his manhood. One of the girls in the office had taken his dictation when he was very busy, and had solved the mystery.

Then came a gray messenger boy with a word that left her dazed. The letter that she had dropped in the ash-can must have reached him. Over the ocean waters the steamship's wireless had thrust his brief word of love into the air, and the silent space had winged it to the city and to her door.

Then a tall man had stopped at the house, called for her, and explained that the night before he had seen her drop something into the ash-can, which a boy ahead of him had taken out and dropped into the mail box. "The unpardonable act of a mischievous boy," he called it.

Mary's reply left him mystified—her reply and the tears in her eyes. "He rescued my happiness from that ash-can."

Cats Not Mentioned in Bible. The cat is not mentioned in the Bible, although the Israelites were long dwellers in Egypt and must have seen and known it in its most favorable habitat.

Shakespeare knew well the value of the cat, for he refers to it many times in his plays. He makes Antonio in "The Tempest" say of the proletariat that "they take suggestion as a cat laps up milk." He makes Claudio say that if Benedek had just a little more mettle than a cat he could kill care. Shylock makes reference to the cat in the trial scene, to the effect that as there is no firm reason to be rendered in the case of the "harmless necessary cat" as to why people get mad at it and hate it, so he will give no reason why he hates Antonio. Hamlet says, "Let Hercules himself do what he may, the cat will mew, the dog will have his day."

New Idea for Lighthouses. It has been suggested that lighthouses should have warning bells under as well as above water, because in a storm sound travels farther under water than through the air. Experiments, both in England and this country, have proved that a bell struck under water can be heard at a long distance in the hold of a ship. One investigator, who has been exploring the air, has made some interesting observations on the best methods of signaling by sound. By applying a parabolic reflector to a speaking trumpet, he is able to send the waves of sound in a straight, compact beam, resembling in its directness a ray of light.

Brain Work. Hard thinking—concentrated brain work—makes more drain on the body than hard, physical labor. It is more unnatural and less healthful.

At my club, a medical friend was telling of an experience in Philadelphia, where he formerly lived. An inventor had been offered $1,500 by a manufacturer, to perfect a new device. The inventor worked from 6 p. m. to 6 a. m., and accomplished his task. He found that during those twelve hours he had lost twelve pounds in weight.

Brain workers should get some regular physical work. Also plenty of sleep.—Los Angeles Times.

The Idealistic Attitude. "Are you sure your ideas about politics are practical?"

"I'm not supposed to be practical," replied Senator Sorghum. "My part of the proceedings is to tell people that if they will be good they will be happy, and leave the practical details to my campaign managers."

Singing the Old Songs. "Ah, for the old days!" sighed the old-fashioned young man. "The girls of today are not at all like our mothers used to be! I'll bet you don't know what needles are for!"

He glanced with admiration at the modern girl.

"I do, too!" she flashed. "They're for phonographs!"—Wayside Tales.

GAINS 8 POUNDS IN TWO WEEKS' TIME

Dyspepsia Entirely Overcome and She Eats, Sleeps and Feels Better Than in Years, Says Boston Resident.

"I have actually gained eight pounds in two weeks' time and am now eating better, sleeping better and feeling better than I have in three or four years," said Mrs. Celesta Fell, 32 Prince street, Boston, Mass., recently, in telling of the great benefits she has derived from the use of Tanlac.

"My stomach was in such a bad fix before I took Tanlac that I did not dare eat much of anything, for if I did I would have so much pain and distress from indigestion that I felt like I was going to die. I was so run down and weak from lack of nourishment that I could not do my housework."

"I was so nervous I couldn't keep still during the day nor sleep at night. I can see now if it had not been for Tanlac I would have had to give up entirely. I am now feeling strong and healthy and all the credit belongs to Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

Improvement Goes On.

The Informer Is Badly In Need of Some New Equipment

SOME PEOPLE THINK HEDLEY OUGHT TO HAVE A BETTER PAPER. THE INFORMER MAN THINKS SO, TOO. We can publish a better paper as soon as we get some better equipment. We can get better equipment any old time we get the money to pay for it. Which reminds us of what we started to say in first place, to-wit:

IF EVERY INFORMER SUBSCRIBER would pay up his subscription -- and then pay a year in advance -- we feel pretty sure that we'd be able to have that new equipment on the road to Hedley within thirty days. We believe the improvement would be worth the money to all of us.

Let's Try It; and Don't Wait Too Long

Home Town Helps

MAKE HOME A BEAUTY SPOT
Matter is More One of Careful Thought Than Mere Expenditure of Actual Cash.

The "brightening up" process ought to start with the lot line. Invest in some fertilizer for the lawn—you'll be surprised at the good it will do. Then, over in one corner may be a spot where a spruce, or a climbing rose could work wonders in transformation. Perhaps the sidewalk entrances may need repairing, or the porches have to be painted, and surely every two or three years a house needs a coat or two of good paint, remembering the slogan that when you "save the surface, you save all." Then the garage and the flower garden come in for their share of new things. Perhaps there's a cracked window pane somewhere that needs replacing, or a cupboard to build.

Inside the home, most folks clear away the dirt and the grime and the smoke of winter hours with a vigorous application of the scrub brush, plus the services of a good decorator. A few dollars invested in matters like these aids the inmates of any dwelling, no matter how modest or pretentious, to get a new grip on life.

But just a word of caution before you do anything. Consider well what should be done, make your plans, then go to dealers you can trust and make your purchases, keeping in mind the fact that those who advertise their wares, who are unafraid to speak of the merits of their merchandise publicly, through newspaper columns, are the ones to turn to both for advice and for the actual investment of the dollars you have planned to spend for the little things that help make a home a home.

After dark the Careless Cit throws the paper off the bread out the kitchen window of his apartment to his neighbor's lawn, to save himself ten steps to the incinerator, and when he sees small boys throwing a milk bottle or a dead electric bulb on the pavement, spraying glass in the path of vulnerable tires, Careless Cit laughs and says boys will be boys.

Home doesn't begin at the front door and end at the back. It goes from the curb to the alley fence. It takes in the clothesline and the green shutter and every bough of the apple-tree. Poets may rave of the old oaken, moss-covered bucket, but they don't drink out of it. The inconveniences of the summer hotel are all right when you're on a vacation.

The time of home regeneration is here, however, and it doesn't end until the blackness cast up by the radiator is cleaned from the wall and the indoor nicks of winter have disappeared under the application of elbow-grease.

The City Beautiful

We can't have too many pretty towns, or too many pretty homes in town and country. Progress along this line is being made annually and with increasing interest among progressive town builders and home owners. There is no use for shabbiness. Shabbiness connotes indolence and indifference. A house or a town which indicates careless occupants, citizens concerned only for primitive necessities, is not one to attract the sort of people that energetic people want to know. Poverty is no excuse for shabbiness. The humblest dwelling does not need to be shabby. Shabbiness is carelessness, not filminess. Many a flimsy little cottage or cabin exhibits a quality that is far superior to shabbiness. It is the careless, unattended, dilapidated, apathetic look to a man's home, a man's town, or a man's clothing that gives it shabbiness. One needn't be shabby in overall any more than in a tailor-made suit.—Dallas (Tex.) News.

Lion's Meal of Porcupine Fatal

The victim of its own rapacity, a dead mountain lion is on exhibition in Stevensville, Mont. Two local hunters "bagged" the beast with so little trouble that they were puzzled, until an examination of the lion's mouth showed it had attempted to feast upon a porcupine. Aggravating darts had become imbedded in the membrane, preventing the animal from partaking of food. Spikes of the "quill pig" had been known to kill beasts in a similar manner. The lion on exhibition is of unusual size.

FARM ANIMALS

BLACK COLOR IS HEREDITARY

Feeding and Management of Sheep Have Nothing to Do With Appearance of Black Lambs.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The appearance of black lambs in a flock made up entirely of white sheep has been for ages, and is still, a cause for wonder and the basis of superstitions. But the study of the laws of breeding and heredity has explained the reasons for the sporadic appearance of these off-color specimens. In a letter to a farmer who reported 25 black lambs from a flock of 175 purebred Shropshire ewes, all white, and who considered certain feeds the cause, the United States Department of Agriculture gives a clear statement of the principles involved.

Feeding and management of sheep, says Dr. Sewall Wright, specialist in animal genetics, have nothing to do with the appearance of black lambs. The black color is hereditary even though it may be transmitted by ordinary white sheep. The black color in such a case is what is called a recessive character. White sheep which transmit this character at all transmit black in 50 per cent of their reproductive cells (ova in the case of ewes and spermatozoa in the case of rams) and white in the remaining 50 per cent. Thus, such white sheep mated with blacks (which can only transmit black) produce 50 per cent black lambs and 50 per cent white. All of these white lambs can transmit black.

White sheep which transmit only white, mated with blacks, produce only white lambs, but all of these lambs can transmit black. When both ewe and ram are white, but both transmit black, about 25 per cent of the lambs are black, 50 per cent are white, which transmit black, while the remaining 25 per cent are true-breeding whites. In this case it is an even chance that a given ovum will transmit black and an even chance that it will be fertilized by a male cell which transmits black, making an even chance in four that both transmit black, which is necessary for the production of a black lamb.

With 25 black lambs appearing in the flock, it is indicated that about 100 of the 175 ewes transmit black, assuming that all of the rams used transmit it. If not all the rams transmit this color, then it is probable that an even larger number of ewes transmit it.

Department of Agriculture Bulletin 905, Principles of Live Stock Breeding, contains a detailed discussion of this problem. It may be obtained from the superintendent of public documents, government printing office, Washington, D. C., for 15 cents.

DRY BRAN GOOD FOR HORSES

Better for Animals Easily Purged Than Warm Mash—Easy on Digestive Apparatus.

In cases of horses that are easily purged, it is better to give dry bran than a warm mash, and good clean bran may, with benefit, always form a portion of the dry food of all sorts of young horses, as the mineral constituents will be available as bone-forming material. In most cases of illness a bran mash may with safety and benefit be given, as it does not overtax the digestive apparatus, but when there is evident irritability of the bowels, as in diarrhea, etc., it is better to give bran in a dry state than in the form of a mash.

A warm bran mash is, however, of great service to horses that are working hard and receiving a large amount of grain. It should be given on the Saturday night, or any other time when the horses are resting the following day, as it has a decidedly laxative effect on the bowels. Bran in a dry state is an astringent, but in the form of a mash it is a laxative. If given once a week it will counteract the feverish symptoms which are supposed to result from high feeding, but this should not follow if a proper system of feeding is adopted.

EXCELLENT FOR YOUNG PIGS

Pasture Supplemented by Limited Grain Allowance is Fine—Animals Kept Thrifty.

Good pasture supplemented by a limited grain allowance is an excellent ration for young pigs. The pigs on pasture not only make cheaper gains, but the succulent feed and exercise they obtain aids in keeping them thrifty.

DADDY THE DAIRY

CO-OPERATIVE BULL SOCIETY

Saunders County, Nebraska, Winner of Offer by Breeder of Purebred Cattle.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The bull offered by a breeder of purebred cattle near Lincoln to the first co-operative bull association to be organized in Nebraska was won by Saunders county, where an association has been formed, through the efforts of the county agent and a state dairy extension specialist, assisted by a field man of the United States Department of Agriculture.

As in other associations of this character, the members will be arranged in several groups or blocks, those in each block having about the same total number of cows and all using the same bull. This association has five blocks to start with, and as many more are planned. The separate blocks do not own the bulls, but the animals are joint property of the association, and every two years they are shifted from one block to another.

It is planned to have a novel feature in this association. The blocks will be arranged in two or more circuits, each circuit made up of three or more blocks, and paying for the bulls it uses and owning them; the biennial exchange of bulls will also be confined to the circuit; but there will be one set of officers and board of directors for the whole association, the secretary-treasurer keeping record of the receipts and obligations of each circuit. The circuit system seems to combine the advantages of small associations and a large association all in one.

When the Saunders County Bull association is ready for business, it will be given the prize bull. The association will have to pay for its other bulls, but it can well afford to do so, for this method of co-operation has been found highly profitable in many other parts of the country. Its advantages are: (1) Providing high-class bulls at low expense, and thus proving the character of the dairy herds; (2) keeping proved bulls in service for many years; and (3) making financial interest and public sentiment combine to sweep a community entirely clean of inferior sties.

The United States Department of Agriculture has given a good deal of effort to the introduction of co-operative bull associations, and stands ready to supply information thereon to anyone desiring it.

ABNORMAL TASTES IN MILK

There Are Several Factors That Impart Peculiar Flavor Besides Grazing Crops.

There are a number of plants which when eaten by the dairy cow, will transmit an unusual taste to her milk. Some of them are fed to her injudiciously by the dairymen, and others are eaten by the animal while grazing. Plants known to possess such properties are beet and turnip tops when fed in large quantities; excessive feeding of chopped roots; garlic, rape, lupines, orchids, kale, rutabagas, chicory, sorrel and pasturage on areas which have been inundated.

There are many other factors sometimes responsible for a peculiar taste in milk, such as improper sterilization of utensils, spoiled foods, brewers' grains, potato slops, fish meal, rape cake, flaxseed meal, poor straw, and, occasionally, medicinal agents administered to the animal.

CARING FOR SPRING CALVES

Necessary That Youngsters Be Kept Thrifty and Free From Disease and Sickness.

The good dairy calves born this spring are needed as milk cows two years from now, so the dairymen should do his part by giving these animals a chance to live and develop. Spring calves are usually harder to raise than fall calves, and since the dairymen has less time usually during this busy season to care for the calves, it is very necessary that the attention given be that most needed to keep them thrifty and free from disease and sickness.

Salt Improves Appetite.

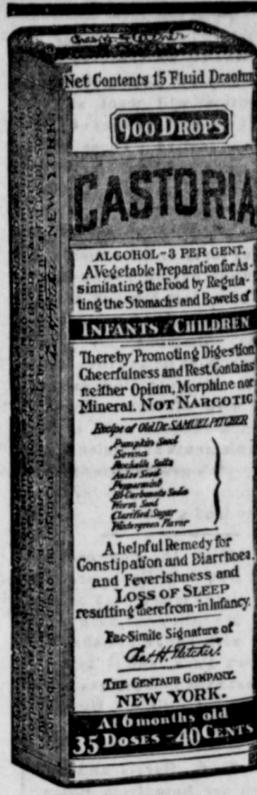

Salt improves the calf's appetite, so keep a box with clean salt in a sheltered place where the calf may eat of it freely.

Keep Youngsters Separated.

Never allow the calves or yearlings to run with the herd.

Satisfactory Cow Ration.

It is quite difficult to make a really satisfactory ration for dairy cows without using either clover or alfalfa hay.

Fletcher's CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

SORRY SHE DIDN'T LIKE IT

But Anyway, That Particular Hat Wasn't for Sale, and It Made Little Difference.

In and out of department stores and millinery shops went the Woman and her friend, trying on hats trimmed with ribbon, hats smothered in feathers and hats where bloomed flowers that never were on sea or land. The Woman's friend was as hard to suit as the little girl in the "Three Bears." They were all "too" something. The Woman was growing weary, and spying an attractive black hat with some spidery white feathers in a heap before another fussy shopper, she pointed it out to her friend.

"Try to get a chance at that unusual hat. It has a great deal of distinction," she whispered.

The friend sidled up to the showcase, and when the fussy shopper was trying on a yellow-flowered creation, she seized the hat and viewed the effect in the glass, exclaiming: "Ugh! I don't like this one a little bit."

"Excuse me, madam," jolly said the fussy shopper, "that is my own hat I bought in Kenosha. Sorry you don't admire it."—Chicago Journal.

SINGING CONVENTION

The Donley County Singing Convention will meet at Mc Knight the fifth Sunday of July. Everyone invited. Those wishing to come on the train, write to Gordon Gatewood, Hedley, Texas.

About forty or fifty men and boys went out to Frank Simmons' home last Monday morning and put in the day cleaning out Mr. Simmons' 120 acre cotton crop, as he has been confined to his room for several weeks with sickness. Several went back Tuesday with teams and implements and finished up the job. It's great to live among good people who are always ready to lend a hand.

E. W. Alley, the new cashier of the First State Bank, arrived in Hedley the latter part of last week. Mr. Alley has been connected with banks at Lakeview and Iowa Park, and is said to be a most capable business man and excellent citizen. We welcome him to our town.

Mrs. E. C. Harris and two children are here from Retan, visiting at the home of her parents, Mayor and Mrs. W. E. Reeves.

Herbert Jones of Queen City is here on a visit to his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Jones.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC

Mrs. F. M. Acord took her Sunday School class out picnic-ing on July 4th. She was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Rains and Mrs. Mosley. The following account of the event was sent to the Informer:

On the Fourth, Mrs. F. M. Acord had the mules hitched to a gentle wagon and took her Sunday School class over on Lake Creek and spent the day. The boys played in the water and engaged in other sports to their hearts content. At 12 o'clock we made an old camp fire, fried ham and made coffee, and dinner was spread. We had everything good you could think of. The boys were tired and hungry, and all enjoyed it very much.

After playing throughout the afternoon we ate supper and started home, all wishing that the Fourth would come oftener than once a year.

The boys who attended were: T. J. Findly, Clarence Davis, Charles Rains, Raymond Mosley, Brice Webb, Weldon Webb, Ruel Cook, Hollis Stogner, Ernest Myers, and Glenn Acord, driver.

Mrs. E. C. Harris, Mrs. Josie McBride, Mrs. Clara Bartlett and Mrs. Clyde Adams chaperoned a crowd of thirteen young ladies out to the brakes Wednesday morning, where they enjoyed a "sunrise breakfast."

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Adams left yesterday for Childress to make their home. Clyde has accepted a position with the Denver Road at that place.

Mrs. T. P. Shelton and two children, Mrs. Clara Bartlett and Miss Juanita Blair, of Ft. Worth, are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Jones.

Ted Allen and wife, who spent the past week with his folks, A. L. Allen and family have returned to their home in Kansas City, Kansas.

CANDIDATES WILL SPEAK

The Informer is asked to announce that the various County candidates will speak in Hedley next Thursday afternoon, July 20th, beginning at 4 o'clock. Everybody come out and hear them.

ANNOUNCEMENT

It is the sentiment of the leading breeders of the Nation that the future of the Big Type Poland China business never looked brighter.

It is plain to be seen that established value in everything is now an actuality. It is a survival of the fit, and the man with the better class of stock will reap his reward in the future as he has in the past.

I have without doubt the best offering that I have ever mated to The Jayhawker. Never was there a better time to enrich your herd, to build up and build right: don't leave a weak spot anywhere.

Believe me when I say I have the goods at your figure.

Attend my sale of Big Bone Poland Chinas on Monday, July 31st.

Frank M. Clark.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ewen of Memphis were here Tuesday to attend the funeral of Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Adamson's baby.

B. W. M. U.

Our society will discontinue its meetings until the first of September.

Mrs. Watson of Van Alstyne has been visiting in Hedley the past week, a guest of her niece, Mrs. J. C. Coffey.

Mrs. A. N. Wood and children and Mrs. Josie Adamson went to Amarillo Wednesday to visit relatives.

Mrs. Oscar Alexander and son, J. B., and Miss Lois Masterson visited in McLean last week.

A GREAT MEETING

The revival meeting which began last Sunday morning at the Methodist church has gotten under good headway. The pastor, Rev. J. M. Fuller, is preaching to audiences that overflow the church building, and interest has reached a high pitch.

Bro Fuller is preaching some Gospel truths that we have long needed to hear. He hits straight from the shoulder, and the visible results are already considerable. This is the sort of meeting that leads to cleaner individual living, and proves a great blessing to the community.

Late Monday afternoon the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Adamson, died. Loving hands gently laid it to rest in the Rowe cemetery. Rev. J. M. Fuller conducted the funeral services.

The Informer extends its sympathy to the bereaved parents.

Born, June 20, to Mr. and Mrs. Roy W. Hendrix, at Clarendon, a fine girl baby. Mr. Hendrix is our capable County Farm Agent. Congratulations.
