IN MEMORY OF MRS. M. H. WISE

As loved ones 'round her wept
Their pleading prayer seemed all denied
Then Jesus closely to her slept—
Forever at her side.

Loved ones drew near,
But Christ drew nearer;
Loved ones were dear,
But God was dearer.

Her Savior's step, it was so light
No mortal ear could hear it,
Oh, the beam of light it grew so bright
As her happy soul drew near it.

I would to God you all could behold
That grand and glorious sight
As Mrs. Wise walks the Streets of Gold
In robes of spotless white.

For Mrs. Wise is no stranger there,
As she walks midst Heavenly bowers,
Where she can breathe the fragrant air—
Sweet odor of those flowers.

For well we know that she will wait,
For soon the time she knows 'twill be,
She stands beside the pearly gate,
Our homeward coming she will see.

Then, Oh, the bliss and joy
Of the saved and happy soul
Of your own loved mother
As each face she will behold.

Written in memory of Mrs. Wise. Not dead, but just a departed sister in Christ. We are going up sometime to see Mrs. Wise in her happy home. We are traveling on that way. It may be just one by one, but we will all get home by and by. This I dedicate to her husband, children, grandchildren, and other loved ones. She has left behind a loving, trusting prayer for her loved ones in their sad hour:

"O, thou God of mercy and tender love, heal their bruised and bleeding hearts. Let them lean their weary, aching heads upon thy loving, tender breast."
A Friend and Sister in Christ.

TWO FIRE LOSSES IN HEDLEY THIS WEEK

The "fire demon" has taken its toll at two Hedley homes this week, once on Monday and again on Tuesday.

About 10 a. m. Monday the pretty bungalow home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Swafford, in east Hedley, was completely destroyed. A part of the household goods was saved, but it was impossible to check the fire, which started from an oil stove. The loss was heavy, and only partially covered by insurance.

Tuesday the wash house and windmill at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Richerson, in north Hedley, burned to the ground, caused by a fire which had been built under the boiler in the wash house. A brisk wind made it impossible to save either the wash house or windmill with the facilities at hand, but that same wind was probably what saved the house, as it blew the fire away from it. Some insurance was carried.

YOUNG MAN LOSES ARM IN ACCIDENT

On last Saturday afternoon at about 3 o'clock, a young man by the name of R. E. Elier, whose home is at Fruitland, Montague county, happened to a distressful accident which resulted in the loss of his right arm.

It seems that the young man, who has been picking cotton for Leonard Wall, was suffering from toothache, and had come to town with the intention of going on to Clarendon to see a dentist. He failed to get a private conveyance, but there was a freight train in the yards just starting that way, so he decided this was his opportunity. He ran for it, but as he reached it and undertook to pull himself aboard, he made a misstep and was thrown in such a way that his right arm was run over and crushed horribly.

Local doctors rendered him temporary relief, after which he was placed on the train and taken to the hospital at Clarendon, where his arm was amputated just below the shoulder.

A report from him Wednesday was to the effect that his condition is improving satisfactorily.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Smith are the parents of a fine boy baby, born Tuesday, Aug. 19th. M. J. is so tickled about that boy he gave the editor a big subscription check this week.

FOUND—Bed roll; small cotton mattress, wrapped in black waterproof and fastened with safety pins. Owner call at this office and pay for this notice.

Mrs. Barber, of Terrell, Okla., is here on a visit to her daughter, Mrs. L. T. Hullum.

THE VAUGHAN QUARTETTE

The Vaughan Quartette, with headquarters at Fort Worth, were in Hedley the first of the week and gave a concert at the Methodist church Tuesday evening. They are excellent singers and the large audience was delighted with the splendid program they gave.

These young men represent a music publishing house, and are also teachers of singing. We understand they may later teach a class in singing somewhere in this neighborhood. Hope they do; we could stand a lot of their kind of singing.

Marcelle Vanishing Cream

relieve the dry, parched condition of the skin which comes with exposure to the weather.

The cold cream is a cleansing and healing cream and leaves the skin soft. To do the most good it should be applied at night.

On dry skin it may be used as a foundation for powder.

Marcelle Vanishing Cream is the better cream for daytime use and as a foundation for face powder, as it is greasy and cannot disappear through the powder in a shine.

The creams are on sale in both tubes and jars.

FORMULA USED IS IMPORTANT

Where Recipe Calls for Shortening, Sugar and Compressed Yeast Expense is Greater—Cheaper Way of Baking is Outlined.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

An efficient remedy for household
ants, according to the bureau of entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture, is sirup poisoned with arsenate of soda, if it can be used safely. The greatest precautions should be taken in preparing this sirup and in safeguarding it afterwards from human beings or domestic animals.
Ants will carry the mixture to their nests, so that not only they but the stay-at-homes are reached by the poison.

The formula for the preparation of the poisoned sirup is as follows: One pound of sugar dissolved in a quart of water, to which should be added 125
grains of arsenate of soda. The mixture should be boiled and strained and,
on cooling, used on sponges. The addition of a small amount of honey is said to add to the attractiveness. This method of control has been tested by the bureau of entomology for three years and has given very satisfactory results. Persons professionally engaged in insect extermination also report success with it.

There are several common species of ants that get into houses if they find attractive food, as well as the distinct house-inhabiting ants, such as the little red, or Pharaoh's ant. Some of these are naturally lawn ants and have a colony or nest out-of-doors near the house.

The first step, therefore, in the control of ants in the house, is the removal of all attractive substances wherever practical. Ants like sweet, starchy food materials, especially cake, bread, sugar, preserves, sirups, and even meat. By cleaning up promptly all food crumbs scattered by children, keeping all shelves and corners clean, and storing food supplies in ant-proof glass or tin containers, or in tightly closed ice-boxes, the ant nuisance may be largely limited. Daily supplies only of foods likely to attract ants should be purchased.

Entomologists of the department
have found that most of the repellents considered effective, such as camphor and naphthalene flakes or powdered mothballs, are of little benefit. If the nest of the ants can be located by following the workers back to their point of disappearance, a number of the ants in the nest may sometimes be reached by injecting a little disulphid or carbon, kerosene or gasoline into the opening by means of an oil can or small syringe. These substances are inflammable and should never be used near fire. If food and other conditions continue to attract ants and favor their continued breeding in the house,
such control measures are of only temporary avail.

The collection of ants by the use of attractive baits is frequently recommended, but unless the bait is poisoned, as previously described, it is of doubtful benefit. Small sponges moistened with sweetened water will attract many ants. The sponges can be collected several times a day and the ants swarming on them destroyed by immersion in hot water. The use of sponges moistened with borax and sugar dissolved in boiling water to poison the ants is also sometimes recommended, but has not been found effective. The distribution of sweet baits which do not actually kill the ants often results in increasing their numbers.

Use of Milk in Baking Bread Increases
Final Cost.

prices were purchased to better advantage. "Strong" flour which gives a high bread yield was selected, and it was bought by the barrel, as the farm woman would be likely to buy it.
Dried yeast was used, shortening was omitted, and the baking was done in a kerosene range. Under these conditions the cost of a one-pound loaf was found to be only four and one-fifth cents. The details and figures obtained in these tests are available upon application to the department.

ICELESS REFRIGERATOR PLAN

Developed as Home Convenience for Use in Hot, Dry Climates Where Ice is Scarce.

The iceless refrigerator was developed by extension workers as a home convenience for use in hot, dry climates where it is difficult to secure ice. A report has been received by the United States Department of Agriculture showing how the principle of the iceless refrigerator has been successfully applied by a Wyoming woman florist to keeping cut flowers in good condition.

SHEARS NEEDED IN KITCHEN

More Efficient for Shredding Lettuce, Peppers or Celery Than Ordinary Knife.

A pair of shears of medium size, not necessarily new, have a very definite place in the kitchen. For shredding lettuce, peppers, or celery, shears do the work better and more quickly than a knife. For mincing parsley, mint, or the tender inner leaves of celery for seasoning, shears are invaluable.—
Farmers' Bulletin 927.

CEMENT FOR MENDING CHINA

Teaspoonful Each of Alum and Hot Water Applied to Pieces Will Prove Satisfactory.

A cement for mending china may be made from a teaspoonful alum and one tablespoon hot water. Place in hot oven until transparent. Have pieces clean and dry. Place in oven until warm. Coat the edges thinly and quickly press together. It dries immediately.

Economize With Mush.

A way to economize cereal mushes
is to add hot water to any mush left over so as to make it very thin, says
the United States Department of Agriculture. It can then easily be added to a new supply.

For Nourishment.

Home-made ice cream made entirely of cream and whites of eggs is nourishing.

ANTS IN HOUSEHOLD CAN BE ERADICATED

Poisoned Sirup Is Recommended

SUGARLESS CANNING

All fruits may be canned successfully for future use without the use of sugar, by adding hot water, or better still, hot fruit juice instead of hot sirups, the United States Department of Agriculture finds. Hot-water products can hardly be expected to be as good, either in texture or in flavor, as are those canned in sirup. But fruits canned in their own juices are often highly satisfactory for jelly making,
pie filling, salads and other uses,
particularly if they are very ripe
and sweet. For instance, peaches, naturally high in sugar
content, may seem as sweet when canned without sugar as do acid peaches canned in a 40 per cent sirup.

Dull files are sharpened when laid in dilute sulphuric acid.

When cutting cheese straws, make a few rings and put a half dozen straws through each ring.

If a pan of cold water is placed under cake when baking in the gas oven
it will never burn on the bottom.

Let water run for a few minutes before filling the kettle in the morning, as the water in the pipes is unwholesome.

HARD WORK

IT is easy to sit and watch others work. But we know of no employer who will pay you wages for doing it, unless you know how to do the work yourself, and are working hard at the job of supervising it.

It is easy to travel about the world on steamships and parlor cars, very pleasant and profitable to the man with an inquiring mind.

But that is a vacation occupation,
and unless you have earned the money
to do it by hard work, you will get little out of it.

It is easiest of all to feel sorry for yourself, and to think that you haven't had a fair chance in life, and that you would have been a big success if you hadn't met with so much injustice and bad treatment.

But that will get you only unhappiness, which is the least desirable
thing in all the world.

There are many things in life that are well worth doing, but none of them are easy.

MY DESIRE
I ask not wealth.
To pile in golden store.
I ask but health
That I may toil the more
For those I love that I may give Them daily comfort while they live.

I ask not fame
To blazon 'round the earth.
I hope my name
Will stand for honest worth
So that my children proudly wear
The humble name their parents bear.

I ask not place
To wield official power.
I ask for grace
Upon me every hour
So I may ample time employ
To scatter smiles and hope and joy.

I ask not length
Of idle days to live.
I ask for strength
To help me gladly give
A helping hand to those downcast
Beside my way as I walk past.

I ask not ease
While others suffer loss
I ask to seize
And help them bear the cross
So they, too, stand erect a while
And look about with face illumined
with smile.

I ask not days
To spend in selfish gain.
I ask but ways
To banish grief and pain,
So that at close of ev'ry day
"He helped me on," some soul will say.

I ask no prize
That earth may hold in store.
I ask mine eyes
May see you fairer shore;
That I may bear at life's descending
sun
The final verdict passed: "Well done."

IN SLUMBERLAND

ONLY a relatively small number of this world are really mentally awake, capable of finding their way through the labyrinth of professional and business avenues to a place of secure independence.

When the long shadows cross their paths and they discover to their dismay that the western sky is darkening, they rub their sleepy eyes and renewly regret the years they have misspent in groping from pillar to post without worthy accomplishment.

They were in slumberland when the church bells rang of a Sunday morning; they were in slumberland when in the brilliantly illuminated ballrooms
they danced to luring music with fair partners till the east was rosy, and another day came gleaming over the gorgeous hillsides and smiled benignly
on pale faces and broken promises.

They wasted drifting days which drifted into wasted years.
Again and again they rubbed their meancholy eyes and saw in their last supine effort to reclaim themselves that they were on the hazy borderland of old age, with forty or fifty years behind them.
Some there were, even at that late

Yet people are doing it right along, and you seldom hear of any of them killing themselves in the effort.

If you have made up your mind to do something unusual or to be somebody of importance, learn how to work twice as hard as you ever did before. That is only a first step. The second is to think hard. If you can do both, and keep them up long enough, you may land, but remember
you will have a lot of competition.
Even hard work finds plenty of men to believe in and practice it, and most of them get what they are after.

Mother's Cook Book

As the rosy beams of morning herald
childhood's happy days,
And the shielding clouds of noontide
guard its youth from folly's ways:
So the grander clouds of evening, with their lights and shades sublime,

Speak a broader, deeper knowledge, and
a manhood's nobler prime;
Then the twilight of life's seasons calmly
come and calmly go;
Happy they for whom its storm clouds
can a silver lining show.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS

THIS is the time to prepare relishes,
preserves, jellies and conserves.

White Relish.

Chop four quarts of cabbage, a quart of celery, one quart of white stringless beans cut in bits, one quart
of silver-skinned onions chopped.
Sprinkle all the vegetables with salt,
except the onions, using a cupful of cold water to cover. Let stand overnight. In the morning drain, add the onions and put over the fire; add one cupful of fresh-grated horseradish, one ounce each of mustard seed and celery seed; three cupfuls of sugar and a piece of white ginger root. Cover with good vinegar and cook until the vegetables are tender, then put into jars.

Sweet Cider.

Any surplus apples may be put through the meat grinder, the juice squeezed out through a bag, then if boiled and bottled hot will never ferment. This is especially good for mince-meat, adding a little to the pie
when they are being made.

ROMANCE OF WORDS

"PECUNIARY"

IF, AFTER being promised a "pecuniary reward" for the performance of a certain service, a person were to receive a sheep, he would probably feel that he had been deceived or that the one who had made the promise had gone back on his word. But, in its primary meaning, "pecuniary" means
"relating to sheep," being taken verbatim from the Latin pecunia which, in turn, is derived from pecus, sheep.

The transformation grew out of the custom of the Romans of measuring a man's wealth by the number of sheep which grazed over his pastures. A "man of many sheep" was the equivalent of a wealthy citizen,
for sheep were valuable not only for their wool but also as an article of diet. Gradually, the root-word pecus was lengthened to pecunia, the equivalent of
"money" or "worldly possessions," and its pastoral origin
was almost completely obscured
when transplanted into English.

Should a restaurant, therefore,
advertise a "pecuniary stew" it would not necessarily mean that dollar bills and gold pieces appear in the dish, but it would merely be an etymologically allowable synonym for the old standby, "mutton stew."

"There's no fool like an old fool," of course. A week or two ago one of our members of the Leg-in-the-Grave lasted until the small hours. He was not much concerned about it since his good wife, once parked for the night, sleeps on through, or, at least, has the grace not to ask when he got in. However, merely as a matter of habit he turned the key softly and was snipping quietly to his room, when the childish voice of his small granddaughter piped up through the open door of her bedroom:

a job as night watchman?"—Indianap-

Not What He Asked.

"So you go to school, do you, Bob-

year-old hopeful of the Brigly house-

"Yes, sir," answered Bobby.
"Let me hear how you spell 'bread.'"
"B-r-e-a-d."
"The dictionary spells it with an 'a,' Bobby."
"Yes, sir, but you didn't ask me how the dictionary spells it. You asked me how I spell it."—Philadelphia Ledger.

She had been reading "The Life and had been enjoying, to the full, ac-

Sherlock and the faithful Watson
were strolling down Piccadilly.
"There's a woman in very short skirts just behind us, my dear doctor," murmured the great detective.
"Marvelous!" enthused Watson, af-

by a glance behind. "How in the

I merely observed the faces of the people who are walking toward us."—

Past and Present.

The late Mrs. George Gould hated divorce.
At a Lakewood dinner party a young divorcee was admiring Mrs.
Gould's splendid jewels.
"Oh, that's your wedding ring, isn't it?" she said. "How old-fashioned it looks, doesn't it? In the past they made them so much wider and heavier than they do now."
"In the past, you see," said Mrs.
Gould, "they expected them to last a lifetime."

On Wednesday evening of last week quite a host of members and friends of the First Baptist Church gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Johnson, preparatory to making a surprise
visit to the Baptist Pastor's home. When all had arrived with their packages, and at the appointed time, they formed quite a large procession that led through the front door of the Pastor's home and ended in the kitchen, where the numerous offerings were deposited.

About a hundred and twenty-five people were present, who made themselves at home and found seats on the floor of the living room.

Then "speeches" were called for, and many responded with expressions of appreciation for the Pastor and his family. They in turn gave words of love and appreciation of their friends and this expression of esteem.

On Friday, August 15th, the
T. E. L. Class of the First Baptist Sunday School met in regu-

with Mrs. M. W. Mosley.

Instead of meeting in the af-

Class, together with the Sunday School teachers and officers,
were invited to spend the day
with the hostess.

At the noon hour we were invited into the dining room where upon beholding the festive board
one would think this the most prosperous year the Panhandle has ever known. In addition to all these good things, a watermelon feast was in readiness
later in the day.

At 3 o'clock the Class was called to order. After the transaction of business, a number of good talks were made relative to more efficient Sunday School and Kingdom work for the coming year.

If you miss the hospitality and the fellowship of these meetings, you miss much; but great-

SPLENDID WINTER HOME FOR HOGS

Well-Built House Earns Profits for Swine Raisers.

SAVES LIVES OF LITTLE PIGS

Sunlight Ventilation and Protection From Cold, Essentials in Successful Raising of Pigs, Are Well Provided For.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 187 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only include two-cent stamp for reply.

Breeding sows maintained by successful swine raisers will be having their fall litters of pigs within a short time. Seven or eight months from the time they are farrowed these pigs will weigh around 200 pounds and will get to market at the time when prices are at the top for the year and their size will make them "market toppers." In the meantime the sows will be bred again and will farrow in the late winter or early spring, thus keeping up their production to the top notch and earning big profits for their owners.

There is a paragraph in the secret of success with hogs—two litters of pigs a year—that coupled with having only purebred animals and housing and feeding them so that they will make the greater growth for the least amount of feed and care.

In the corn belt states, where hog raising has been brought up to its present state of efficiency, the winters are long and the weather is cold—in some of the states extremely so. Before it was learned that hogs need more than a loosely constructed shack, having a dirty and filthy floor, two litters of pigs were unknown. Sows were bred so that they would farrow in the late spring and early summer, because little pigs cannot stand cold, especially if the cold is accompanied by dampness. One chill and that was the end of the pigs. When the sows farrowed late in the spring, a second litter was out of the question, as the pigs came along so late in the fall that they had no chance to become strong enough to withstand the winter. Thus production was only half what nature intended it should be, with a resultant halving of income.

*Study of the needs of the sows and their pigs in the first few weeks of their lives has developed a standard design for hog houses. These houses may be built of any of the standard building materials, but all of them have in common several features that sows and pigs need. Weather-tight buildings to keep out the cold and dampness; good floors that are raised from the ground so that the pigs will not become chilled by contact with the earth; plenty of sunlight to prevent disease and help warm the buildings in winter; a supply of fresh air brought in by ventilation, which also carries away the foul air.

Hog houses are constructed from two general designs. One is known as the saw-tooth roof, which has a half-monitor-shaped roof line, with windows set in the side of the wall. These windows, supplemented by windows in the side wall of the building proper, permit sunlight to strike the pens on both sides of the interior. The other type of hog house is known as the gable house, a good example of which is shown in the accompanying illustration.

This house is of standard frame construction, a good grade of lumber being used to make it weather-tight. The building is set on a concrete foundation, and has a concrete floor. The building is 41 feet long and 24 feet wide, which provides room for twelve pens, six on each side. Through the center of the building runs a feeding alley, wide enough to run a feed truck, thus distributing the feed to the troughs with the least amount of labor.

FOR AFTERNOON WEAR;

STYLES IN STREET CLOTHES

A FROCK of canton crepe and one of crepe-satin, among the first contributions to the autumn modes for the afternoon, find themselves now representing styles that are assured. They could hardly help making a success, having done so well with the new points in the mode which they chose to include in their make-up.

The dress at the left takes advantage of the fine draping qualities of changes overnight, it seems, from ocean to ocean. Women, from Paris to Honolulu, wake up some fine morning all inspired by a determination to wear larger hats or longer skirts or earrings and lace mits. Maybe it is mental telepathy broadcasting the ideas of the powerful French and American designers.

This change of heart is apparent in clothes for the street, in the dresses, suits and hats that promenade fashion-canton crepe, and uses it in black, combined with crepe de chine in a light color, to form the lower part of the flaring sleeves. The skirt slopes to points at the left side and is slashed there. Having bestowed this daring and telling touch to it, the designer centered his thoughts on the girle and bodice and accomplished something new in each of them.

Three strands of silk cord form a belt across the sides and back and fall in long ends at the front, finished with slender silk tassels. The bodice blouses over the girle at a low waist line. An applique of black silk braid over the lower part of the sleeves is immensely effective. The round neck with a little "V" shaped slash at the front is faced back with crepe de

Taking the most important items in our wardrobes, as a starting point we consider the suit, and find that its several types are developed on lines that are dignified. The simplest suit and the most formal one have been taken seriously and their designers do their utmost to make them all that suits can be.

Very handsome fabrics and rich embroideries inspire the designer and make it easy sailing for the creators of formal suits. One of them is shown at the right of the illustration and the picture tells its pleasing story perfectly. The coat is long, with a deep border of embroidery at the bottom, the sleeves flare and are also embroidered, the wide shawl collar is of chine, which forms a piping for it, and the two silk buttons and loops finish it perfectly.

An afternoon dress which will do double duty if one chooses to wear it for evening, is made of crepe satin, as shown at the right of the picture. All the emphasis in this gown is placed on the sleeves of beaded georgette and a long, full panel of georgette that is placed over the skirt at the left side and hangs below the hem line. The bodice blouses over a sash of the crepe satin.

Some things are mysterious and perhaps they always will be. Among them is the mood of the mode which

The attractive street dress, at the left, is made of Sorrento blue novelty fabric, resembling kasha cloth, and has wide front and back panels, with a square neck. Braid and buttons are artfully used in its decoration, the three-quarter length sleeves flare at the elbow and are split, revealing a satin facing. The belt is of leather and silver.

His Handicaps. "Well, no; I reckon not," replied Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, to the appeal of the able editor of the Tumbler Torch of Liberty. "I'm taking a paper now that one of my kin over in Oklahoma sends me, and it's darn nigh working me to death. What with being puny now and agin getting down in the back every once in a while, and having more or less work to do, I ain't kept ketching up with my reading no way I can fix it. As 'tis, I just sorter pile up the papers as they come, and read from the bottom of the stack as I get time. But at that, I'm just to the middle of last March, and the outlook ain't specially promising for my ever arriving up even."—Kansas City Star.

Wine Trade Through Music. A music dealer on East Forty-second street, New York city, has a novel scheme of attracting attention to his photograph and record display, reports the New York Sun. In the front window he placed a phonograph with the horn flush against the window. In a coal chute cover on the sidewalk he bored several holes and concealed another machine beneath the walk. Records are played on the machine underneath the sidewalk. Passersby are mystified by the sounds coming from beneath their feet. Naturally they turn to the phonograph store for a solution.

Fulton, Arkansas.—"I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a soreness in my side. I would suffer so badly every month from my waist down that I could not be on my feet half the time. I was not able to do my work without help. I saw your Vegetable Compound advertised in a newspaper and gave it a fair trial. Now I am able to do my work and don't even have a backache every month. I cannot praise your Vegetable Compound enough and highly recommend it to those who have troubles like mine. I am willing for these facts to be used as a testimonial to lead all who suffer with female troubles, as I did, to the right road to health."—Mrs. LULA VANN, Box 43, Fulton, Arkansas.

It is this sort of praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, given by word of mouth and by letter, one woman to another, that should cause you to consider taking this well-known medicine, if you are troubled with such symptoms as painful periods, weak, nervous feelings, miserable pains in your back, and cannot work at certain times.

Here is a woman who is so grateful and glad to be relieved from a painful and nerve racking physical condition that she wishes to tell all sick women.

"Was she so awfully pretty, Father?" I could feel the little thrills tingling all over me. Now I was getting a love story!

"She was, my dear. She was very lovely. But it wasn't just that—it was a joyous something that I could not describe. It was as if she were a bird, poised for flight. I know it now for what it was—the very incarnation of the spirit of youth. And she was young. Why, Mary, she was not so many years older than you yourself, now. You aren't sixteen yet. And your mother—I suspect she was too young. If she hadn't been quite so young—"

He stopped, and stared again straight ahead at the dancers—without seeing one of them, I knew. Then he drew a great deep sigh that seemed to come from the very bottom of his boots.

"But it was my fault, my fault, every bit of it," he muttered, still staring straight ahead. "If I hadn't been so thoughtless—As if I could imprison that bright spirit of youth in a great dull cage of conventionality, and not expect it to beat its wings by fluttering against the bars!"

And right there and then it came to me that Mother said it was her fault, too; and that if only she could live it over again, she'd do differently. And here was Father saying the same thing. And all of a sudden I thought, well, why can't they try it over again, if they both want to, and if each says it was their—no, his, no, hers—well, his and her fault. (How does the thing go? I hate grammar!) But I mean, if she says it's her fault, and he says it's his, that's what I thought, anyway. And I determined right then and there to give them the chance to try again, if speaking would do it.

I looked up at Father. He was still talking half under his breath, his eyes looking straight ahead. He had forgotten all about me. That was plain to be seen. If I'd been a cup of coffee without any coffee in it, he'd have been stirring me. I know he would. He was like that.

"Father, Father!" I had to speak twice, before he heard me. "Do you really mean that you would like to try again?" I asked.

"Eh? What?" And just the way he turned and looked at me showed how many miles he'd been away from me.

"Try it again, you know—what you said," I reminded him.

"Oh, that!" Such a funny look came to his face, half ashamed, half vexed. "I'm afraid I have been—talking, my dear."

"Yes, but would you?" I persisted.

He shook his head; then, with such an oh-that-it-could-be! smile, he said: "Of course—we all wish that we could go back and do it over again—differently. But we never can."

"Yes, but, Father, you can go back, in this case, and so can Mother, 'cause you both want to," I hurried on, almost choking in my anxiety to get it all out quickly. "And Mother said it was her fault. I heard her."

"Her fault?" I could see that Father did not quite understand, even yet.

"Yes, yes, just as you said it was yours—about all those things at the first, you know, when—when she was a spirit of youth beating against the bars."

Father turned square around and faced me.

"Mary, what are you talking about?" he asked then. And I'd have been scared of his voice if it hadn't been for the great light that was shining in his eyes.

But I looked into his eyes, and wasn't scared; and I told him everything, every single thing—all about how Mother had cried over the little blue dress that day in the trunk-room, and how she had shown the tarnished lace and said that she had tarnished the happiness of him and of herself and of me; and that it was all her fault; that she was thoughtless and willful and exacting and a spoiled child; and, oh, if she could only try it over again, how differently she would do! And there was a lot more. I told everything—everything I could remember. Some way, I didn't believe that Mother would mind now, after what Father had said. And I just knew she wouldn't mind if she could see the look in Father's eyes as I talked.

He didn't interrupt me—not long interruptions. He did speak out a quick little word now and then, at some of the parts; and once I know I saw him wipe a tear from his eyes. After that he put up his hand and sat with his eyes covered all the rest of the time I was talking. And he didn't take it down till I said:

"And so, Father, that's why I told you; 'cause it seemed to me that if you wanted to try again, and she wanted to try again, why can't you do it? Oh, Father, think how perfectly lovely it would be if you did, and if it worked!"

"Why, I wouldn't care whether I was Mary or Marie, or what I was. I'd have you and Mother both together, and, oh, how I should love it!"

It was here that Father's arm came out and slipped around me in a great big hug.

"Bless your heart! But, Mary, my dear, how are we going to—bring this about?" Then is when my second great idea came to me.

"Oh, Father!" I cried, "couldn't you come courting her again—calls and flowers and candy, and all the rest? Oh, Father, couldn't you? Why, Father, of course you could!"

This last I added in my most persuasive voice, for I could see the "no" on his face even before he began to shake his head.

"I'm afraid not, my dear," he said, then. "It would take more than a flower or a bonbon to—win your mother back now, I fear."

"But you could try," I urged. "I'll shake his head again."

"She wouldn't see me—if I called, my dear," he answered.

He sighed as he said it, and I sighed, too. And for a minute I didn't say anything. Of course, if she wouldn't see him—

Then another idea came to me.

"But, Father, if she would see you—I mean, if you got a chance, you would tell her what you told me just now; about its being your fault, I mean, and the spirit of youth beating against the bars, and all that. You would, wouldn't you?"

He didn't say anything, not anything, for such a long time I thought he hadn't heard me. Then, with a queer, quick drawing in of his breath, he said:

"I think—little girl—if—if I ever got the chance I would say—a great deal more than I said to you tonight."

"Good!" I just crowed the word, and I think I clapped my hands; but right away I straightened up and was very fine and dignified, for I saw Aunt Hattie looking at me from across the room, as I said:

"Very good, then. You shall have the chance."

He turned and smiled a little, but he shook his head.

"Thank you, child; but I don't think you know quite what you're promising," he said.

"Yes, I do."

Then I told him my idea. At first he said no, and it couldn't be, and he was very sure she wouldn't see him, even if he called. But I said she would if he called. And that's the way it is with them all the time. They're too funny and lovely together for anything. (Aunt Hattie says they're too silly for anything; but nobody minds Aunt Hattie.)

And, as I said before, it is all perfectly wonderful.

So it's all settled, and they're going right away on this trip and call it a wedding trip. And, of course, Grandfather had to go out of a joke about how he thought it was a pretty dangerous business; at 1 to see that this honeymoon didn't go into an eclipse while they were watching the other one. But nobody minds Grandfather.

I'm to stay here and finish school. Then, in the spring, when Father and Mother come back, we are all to go to Andersonville and begin to live in the old house again.

Won't it be lovely? It just seems too good to be true. Why, I don't care a bit now whether I'm Mary or Marie. But, then, nobody else does, either. In fact, both of them call me the whole name now, Mary Marie. I don't think they ever said they would. They just began to do it. That's all.

How about this being a love story now? Oh, I'm so excited!

CHAPTER IX.
Which is the Test.

ANDERSONVILLE. TWELVE YEARS LATER

Twelve years—yes. And I'm twenty-eight years old. Pretty old, little Mary Marie of the long ago would think. And, well, perhaps today I feel just as old as she would put it.

I came up into the attic this morning to pack away some things I shall no longer need, now that I am going to leave Jerry. (Jerry is my husband.) And in the bottom of my little trunk I found this manuscript. I had forgotten that such a thing existed; but with its laboriously written pages before me, it all came back to me; and I began to read; here a sentence; there a paragraph; somewhere else a page. Then, with a little half laugh and a half sob, I carried it to an old rocking chair by the cobwebby dormer window, and settled myself to read it straight through.

And I have read it.

Poor little Mary Marie! Dear little Mary Marie! To meet you like this, to share with you your joys and sorrows, hopes and despairs, of those years, long ago, is like sitting hand in hand on a sofa with a childhood's friend, each listening to an eager "And do you remember?" falling constantly from delighted lips that cannot seem to talk half fast enough.

The Plimsoll Line.

By the Plimsoll line is meant the mark on a ship, which, by the British merchant shipping act of 1876, forced through parliament by Samuel Plimsoll, must be visible above water, thus preventing overloading.

DAIRY POINTS

IMPORTANCE OF ICING MILK

Product Delivered at Night Often in Greater Need of Ice Than During Day Time.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Some milk distributors who would not think of sending out loads of milk during the day without icing do not ice the milk delivered by their wagons to the consumer's doorstep at night, giving as their reason that night delivery is more rapid. The United States Department of Agriculture, in a recent statement, calls attention to the fact that milk delivered to the consumer's home at night often is in greater need of icing than that which is delivered during the day.

The important consideration, says the department, is the time elapsing between taking the milk from the plant until it is placed in the consumer's refrigerator. The fact that the dealer delivers it quickly does not mean that it will reach the refrigerator quickly. Bottles delivered at the door usually are not taken in until after the sun has been up for some time.

During the summer months it is very important that milk on delivery wagons be well iced. When milk is liable not to be taken in at once, it should arrive at the doorstep at a temperature of 50 degrees F. or lower. If the ordinary open-bottom cases are used and stacked not more than two high, it is necessary to ice only the top row, as the cold air will pass down to the others. Ordinances, says the department, may well prohibit the delivery of milk at a temperature higher than 50 degrees F.

Consumers may help by placing a properly insulated container on the doorstep, in which the milkman may put the bottles of milk.

SIMPLE WATER SYSTEM PLAN

Time and Water Saved by Constructing Drinking Tank in Pasture to Supply Cattle.

In order to save time and work I figured out a plan whereby I was able to eliminate the necessity of bringing the cattle from the pasture field into the barnyard where the water-supply tank was located each time they needed a drink.

I bored a 1 1/4-inch hole near the bottom of the large tank, putting a nipple through it; then I connected the nipple on the outside of the tank with a coupling to a pipe which ran a distance of 200 feet to the pasture field where I had placed a small drinking tank, the water running into the small tank through a goose neck on the end of the pipe. Inside the large tank I placed a globe valve so when shut off there was no chance for the water to freeze if the supply tank were kept full. The goose neck was laid over flat by pivoting at the lower elbow, thus draining the entire pipe.

A 3/4-inch pipe would have been just as satisfactory for this system but as I had the 1 1/4-inch size on hand I used it.

Of course, this system naturally requires an incline in the distance between the two tanks.—D. G. Beatty, in Power Farming.

KEEPING RECORD OF LAYERS

By Means of Contest It Is Hoped to Gain Facts for Selection of Better Stock.

The first one-year egg-laying contest in Indiana began March 1 in Clay county, the United States Department of Agriculture has been advised. One hundred hens of several of the Mediterranean, American and English breeds from several farms in the county have been assembled at one farm. Before establishing the hens in their new home a record was made of all their characteristics. As the contest progresses the records of the hens as layers will be compared monthly with their physical characteristics. It is hoped by this means to obtain facts for the selection of more profitable stock.

Must Feed Cow Liberally.

To be a good performer a cow needs a generous ration of hay and grain, and the excess over mere maintenance measures the capacity of milk production.

Go Back in Production.

Cows milked by the calf from year to year go back in their producing capacity instead of improving it.

Reusage for Calf.

Provide all the good clover or alfalfa hay the calf will eat up clean.

LIVE STOCK FACTS

SHEEP RID LAWN OF WEEDS

Dandelions and Other Plants on Courthouse Square Eagerly Devoured by Animals.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The courthouse lawn in Elbert county, Colo., like many other lawns, was badly infested with dandelions. The county agent suggested killing them by pasturing rather than plowing under the sod. According to reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture, the test was approved by the commissioners. Sufficient hog wire to fence the lawn was purchased and two pastures 100 feet long and 80 feet wide were made. A farmer living near town furnished six old ewes, which were placed in one pasture May 14, when the dandelions were at their best. A week later four more were added to the flock.

The ewes were changed from one pasture to the other at one-week intervals. They soon had the dandelions, and grass eaten down and kept it down. They ate blossoms and buds readily, and the hearts out of the dandelion plants close to the ground. Better results would have been obtained had the sheep been put in earlier, but the experiment proved quite effective in ridding the lawn of dandelions.

PREVENTION IS BEST REMEDY

White Scours in Calves and Pigs is Caused by Infection—Treatment Not Promising.

White scours in calves and pigs is caused by infection; virulent colon bacilli are mostly responsible. Treatment of infected pigs is not promising; the main thing is prevention. Do not feed too heavy a grain ration for a period of two weeks before farrowing. Feed bran, roots and alfalfa, with a light ration of corn or barley, and be sure to provide opportunity for exercise. However, these things are of little consequence after infection appears. Keep your sows with little pigs on the ground, in individual hog houses. This will be safer than keeping them in the same old pens, which may still be infected. These hog houses should be kept out in a field and well scattered. This gives opportunity for exercise and lessens the danger of infection. Provide a small amount of litter or bedding for each house. Use disinfectants freely.—Veterinary Department, Colorado Agricultural College.

SHEEP REQUIRE GOOD SHADE

Plenty of Right Kind Returns Big Dividends—One Tree is Much Worse Than None.

Plenty of the right kind of shade for sheep returns big dividends, farmers and sheep raisers say. Only one or two shade trees in a pasture are worse than none at all since a place to which the sheep come day after day soon becomes a hotbed of parasites, they add. The construction of small shades which can be moved from place to place is solving the difficulty for many farmers.

ARTIFICIAL SHADE FOR HOGS

Protection of Some Kind Should Be Provided in Pasture Where Trees Are Lacking.

Where there are no trees in the hog pasture to provide the much-needed shade during the summer months, an artificial shade is a most important part of the summer equipment. A good shelter may be constructed by setting short posts in the ground and building a roof of light boards over these. Windstorms should be guarded against by nailing the boards securely.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Do not lose sight of the good high-grade coal-tar dips, which are certainly valuable when applied according to directions.

Shade and a wallow for hot weather, and wood ashes, charcoal and other stomach rectifiers, are necessary if the hogs are expected to do their best.

Golden Wedding Anniversary

Last Friday, Sept 22nd, at the home of Mr and Mrs A N Wood, several friends met and celebrated the fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs J. M. Plaster.

Mr Plaster was born in Franklin county, Ill., in 1846, and lived there until he was married in 1872 to Miss Martha Williams. They started to Texas the day they were married, and came to Montague county, that being as far west as it was safe to come on account of the Indians. They lived there 12 years, then moved to Jack county where they lived many years, coming to Donley county in 1912. They have been very successful at farming and stock raising.

Five children were born to this union, all living but one, the oldest. Their son, Charley Plaster, lives at Canyon, Mrs H T Clapp and Mrs C L Kinder at Fredrick, Oklahoma, and Mrs A. N. Wood at Hedley. They have 18 grandchildren and 2 great grandchildren.

Those present were: Mr and Mrs A G Nioper, Mr and Mrs T. F. Heath, Mr and Mrs R. E. Newman, Mr and Mrs F M. Acord, J. W. Blankenship, Mr Neely, Miss Lois Nipper, Miss Velma Newman, Miss Rich, Mr and Mrs A. N. Wood, Maume, Maurine, Garland and Oleta Wood.

Some good talks were made and good wishes expressed, especially by J. W. Blankenship and F M Acord.

This affair was a great surprise to Mr and Mrs Plaster. They received a gold coin each and many other presents. All enjoyed the nice dinner and the good day we spent together, and all wished the happy couple many more good days like that.

Eighty-Six Years of Arkansas

BEAR STATE RECOUNTS ITS PROGRESS SINCE ADMISSION TO UNION IN 1836

PROBABLY you know that Arkansas is pronounced Ark-an-saw, with the accent on the first syllable—by virtue of an act of the state legislature. And maybe you have heard the famous old tune, "The Arkansas Traveler," with its accompanying dialogue. But do you know that the people of Arkansas have named it the "Wonder State of the Union"? Do you know that it produces genuine diamonds, hydrotitanite and chert? Do you know that an Arkansas concern prints admission tickets for all the big circuses and play houses? Do you know that John Pearson, an Arkansan, was the inventor of the Colt's revolver?

Well, anyway, Representative Jacobway of Arkansas got up in the house the other day and spoke about like this:

Arkansas has now been incorporated into the Federal Union for a period of 58 years. During that time she has wrought wondrously and well. She has achieved those things of which all Arkansans are justly proud, and the history of this achievement we want to publish to the world at large. It is destined that her status will be equal to the greatest in every respect and which will serve as a national model worthy of the emulation by each of her sister states and second to none. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks in the Congressional Record by making certain observations and detailing in part a portion of the wonderful history of that state from which I come and which in part I have the great honor to represent in the halls of national legislation. In things undertaken and carried to a successful consummation the name of Arkansas ranks high on the scroll, yet when all the facts relative to this proud state are known and appreciated for their full, just, and honest worth convinced will be the minds of all that Arkansas has been rightly named—the "Wonder State of the Union."

Mr. Speaker, this data, based largely on government statistics, was compiled by the Arkansas Advancement association, an organization of the foremost business men of the state, and not operated for commercial purposes. It is with pleasurable pride that I make certain recitals about my native state and to commend the patriotism and state pride of those compiling this wonderful data about a wonderful state, to the end that those who essay to speak of her except in terms most worthy, she will prove by the record that over all criticism an eternal traverse has been written. Only two classes of people speak of Arkansas except in praise. These two classes are those who are densely ignorant or morbidly envious. The "certain recitals" occupied about four pages of the Congressional Record and contained about 12,000 words, and included the following statements in evidence that Arkansas is the "Wonder State of the Union":

Arkansas grows two crops of Irish potatoes annually, usually on the same ground.

Arkansas has originated and named

28 varieties of apples, and stands fifth in the production of barreled apples. Farmers in the rice belt of Arkansas paid more income tax than farmers of any similar area in the United States in 1919.

Mammoth Springs has a flow of 864,000,000 gallons daily. It supplies water for the operation of manufacturing enterprises and lighting several small cities, and is the source of picturesque Spring river. This spring flows 600,000 gallons of water a minute—more than Chicago uses for all purposes. The flow never varies, and the temperature is the same winter and summer.

Arkansas had the first national reserve—Hot Springs. This is the only self-supporting government reservation. It is the world's most noted resort. What Paul Said.
St. Paul, the apostle and not the city, is only an ordinary mortal in the eyes of Billy, age ten. A group of young boys was assembled in a park, on one of the overnight camping trips conducted every week by the Y. M. C. A., relates the Indianapolis News. Before the campfire was put out for the night the Y. secretary conducted devotions as usual, reading the passage in Acts where Paul warned his companions of approaching danger and later said: "Sirs, ye should have hearkened to me," when the storm burst on them.
"Shucks!" said Billy. "Paul's just like the rest of us."
"What do you mean?" asked the leader.
"He said, 'I told you so!'"

EVEN CAREFUL CALOMEL USERS ARE SALIVATED

Next Dose of Treacherous Drug May Start Misery for You.

Calomel is dangerous. It may salivate you and make you suffer fearfully from soreness of gums, tenderness of jaws and teeth, swollen tongue and excessive saliva dribbling from the mouth. Don't trust calomel. It is mercury; quicksilver.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate.—Advertisement.

MERE MATTER OF AMUSEMENT

Arkansan Could Easily Afford to Treat Such Amateur Shooting With the Contempt Deserved.

"What's that?" cried a tourist to whom a resident of Straddle Ridge, Ark., was showing the scenery of the region.

"Aw, just Tug Bald or his brother-in-law taking a shot at me from over across the hollow," was the nonchalant reply. "Them fellers have been cutting that caper off and on for six weeks or such a matter."

"Great grief! What do you do about it?"

"Nuth'g in particular. They're the poorest shots on the Ridge and never come nigher to me than ten feet or so. It sorter amuses me to see grown men doing such childish tricks and never 'complishin' anything at it."—Kansas City Star.

Unfair Advantage.
"You don't care to sleep in a handsome mausoleum?"

"Not if I have to pay for it myself," replied Senator Snorthworthy. "A simple tombstone, just to keep the record straight, will satisfy me. The man who builds his own monument often robs posterity of the privilege it would like to exercise of forgetting him."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Various Spots May Have Particular Application, but There is Variety for Every Visitor.

Any Youngster Will Understand That Poor Boy Was Deeply Appreciative of Tommy's Gift.

The fairy tale of Paris belongs to all of us, in whatever terms it may be told. For some it is Marie Antoinette and the Petit Trianon; and, curiously, by comparison with a rather worthless queen, the great war pales. For some it is Napoleon in his cocked hat and white breeches, and his great tomb, one of the fingertips of Paris. For still more it is the Bois and the elegance and luxury and beautiful women; and for the rest there is always the particular application—the house where Balzac had his printing press, or perhaps only a great stone wall, symbol of the centuries over which a fruit tree blooms, symbol of centuries continually renewed, writes Muriel Harris in the North American Review.

Only now and again do we realize that Roman and Frank and Gaul; Catholic and Huguenot; artist, priest and warrior; saint, martyr, philosopher, midwife, have really our energies in their grip.

Maybe that hill is not there, after all—

VERY often the hill we seem to be climbing is made out of the common mistakes of diet which starve tissues and nerves and slow down energies.

How smooth and level the path seemed to be when we were younger.

Simple, natural food may level that hill to a smooth path again.

Why not try it?

Keep on with this crisp, delicious, strengthening food in place of heavy, ill-assorted, starchy breakfasts and lunches—and see if the old-time zest and speed on the old-time level path doesn't come back again.

Her Golf Lesson

Daughter had been out for the evening, presumably to a moving picture show. Her mother heard them come home rather early, but daughter was nearly an hour on the front porch before coming in. The next morning her mother took her to task.

"What took you so long on the porch last night?" she asked.

"Why, Fred was giving me a golf lesson."

"Nonsense, you can't play golf after dark."
"Oh, but you see, mother, he was showing me how to hold my hands and my mouth so I could play properly."
Had it All Figured Out.
Little John had been promised a sister, and to the consternation of the three-year-old boy, the stork left a baby brother. He was keenly disappointed, because, apparently, he had absolutely depended on a sister, and could not break himself of using the pronoun "she" when speaking of the baby.

When his mother reprimanded him for it he replied airily: "Oh, I am going to call him 'she' until he hasn't any more dresses on, then I'll call him 'he.'"
Tommy's Object.
"Tommy Jones! Does your mother know you are learning to smoke?"
"No; I want it to be a surprise."—Boston Transcript.
