CLARENDON PEOPLE AT HUNNEWELL, KANS.

A party consisting of W. J. Parsons, O. D. Liesburg and wife, Mrs. J. R. Douthitt and Mrs. W. Geldston have returned recently from Hunnewell, Kansas, where they attended a debate, Dr. John W. Tyndall of Atlanta, Ga., having challenged Rev. A. O. Colley of Dallas, Texas, to meet him there at the Christian Church on the 9th and 10th, and before going on the floor for the first session Dr. Tyndall challenged Rev. Colley again on the same propositions, to meet him in Dallas in ninety days.

Rev. Colley accepted, but later as the debate progressed came on the floor with a revised proposition, asking for a change, which Dr. Tyndall granted and accepted without hesitation.

The debate was in every way an eminent success, from the Bible standpoint. The ardent speakers, as students, had studied much and long in order to give to those in attendance the things God said about what was, should be, and is.

The delegation was received by Dr. Tyndall, and later in the evening was given a wonderful reception by all members of the Christian Church, and each and every one in the party regretted very much when time came to leave, and hope to again be the guests of the good people of Hunnewell.

On the morning after the debate, and as time had come to start on the homeward journey, the party were guests of Dr. Taylor and wife, of Braman, Okla. Dr. Tyndall came that far on the return trip in order to be with the people from Clarendon as long as possible, and while in Braman sought Rev. Colley, in furtherance of the coming event at Dallas, Dr. Tyndall requesting that the speakers have a stenographer to take down the debate in full, Rev. Colley not desiring to do so.

However, Dr. Tyndall will have the entire proceedings taken, and then it can be published in its entirety. Dr. Tyndall is affirmative, though he is compelled to follow the negative, and not as before stated, which is in error. Said debate will be well advertised, and people will be there from 'most every State in the Union. Many from Clarendon are already making plans to attend.

Marcelle Vanishing Cream

relieve the dry, parched condition of the skin which comes with exposure to the weather.

The cold cream is a cleansing and healing cream and leaves the skin soft. To do the most good it should be applied at night. On dry skins it may be used as a foundation for powder.

Marcelle Vanishing Cream is the better cream for daytime use and as a foundation for face powder, as it is greasy and cannot reappear through the powder in a shine.

The creams are on sale in both tubes and jars.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

FROM THE SHADOWS

THE man or woman who smiles upon us from the lowly cottage door, ever ready to offer a helping hand to the unfortunate and to give cheerful encouragement to the weary, has, through tenderness and love, found the way to a sunshine that grows brighter and brighter until the end of life.

The dismal panorama of dark clouds has drifted away from the sky and nothing remains but the crystal depths of benevolent blue.

Despair has yielded to confidence, but not without first marking its exit with sorrows and tears, and perhaps also rugged dishonor, thus fitting the soul for the comforting change.

Fearing, thoughtless, selfish, untrue, and living in the valleys of darkness while the beauties of Nature were striving for mastery, the shadowed soul found it difficult to rise to the glorious heights where the atmosphere was sweet and pure.

If, when you are in the shadows, you expect an angel from heaven to come to earth and lead you away to a blissful elysium, you will find that you are still living among shadowy delusions.

To break away from the somberous shade lurking everywhere about us is extremely difficult, but with a heart filled with a struggling radiance of faith, sustained by qualities which only faith can give us, we can do it, and reach the state of tranquil content which comes quietly to the earnest and sincere, like the sunshine of morning after a night of storm.

We may clap our hands to the heights but we cannot reach them except by our own unceasing endeavor.

We must expect tired, bruised feet, we must anticipate slips and falls and a sickening sense of our own infirmities, but we must keep climbing—keep holding fast all the while to the hand of shining-eyed Faith, who, in spite of our unworthiness, will lead us hour by hour to higher ground.

There are many ways in which we may help ourselves, but not until our hearts have been properly attuned to the dominant key and kept in tune.

Hard work, high thinking and a charitable attitude towards others will be found helpful attendants, for without their first aids no man or woman however accomplished or exalted, can hope to emerge from the shadows and write an acceptable record of a well-spent life.

SMILE AND HUSTLE

WHEN your plans go all awry, Smile and hustle. Not a bit of use to cry, Smile and hustle. Waste of time to fret and scold; Brace, and get another hold; Meet the future brave and bold— Smile and hustle.

Some big scheme wound up in wreck? Smile and hustle. Bad luck smite you in the neck? Smile and hustle. Be a man among big men. Grab a hold and try again. Spit upon your hands, and then Smile and hustle.

When a brave man hits the bumps— Smile and hustle. Then is when he up and humps. Smile and hustle. Waste of time to weep and wail, Just forget that small word "fail." Don't moon 'round till you go stale— Smile and hustle.

Everybody has had luck. Smile and hustle. That's the time to show your pluck. Smile and hustle. Say, "Hard luck, good-by to you." Start off on a tack that's new. Keep straight on with purpose true. Smile and hustle.

MODERN DAIRY BARN EFFECT

Health of Animals and Cleanliness of Product Provided For.

IT ALSO MAKES FOR ECONOMY

Study and Experience Have Brought the Modern Dairy Barn to the Point of Perfection—Latest Type Shown.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

So important is it that milk be produced in clean barns and by clean animals that several of the states have rather stringent laws on the subject. For instance, in Michigan no dairyman is allowed to house his cows and horses in the same building unless there is a tight wall between the two stables. The health departments of practically all municipalities inspect and exercise supervision over the sources of the milk that is supplied to the consumers.

Milk, undoubtedly, is the most easily contaminated of human foods.

It is to secure cleanliness and health for the cows that the modern dairy barn has been designed. This type of barn was not made standard overnight—it is the result of study and experience. But now it is considered as near ideal as can be. A dairy barn of this design is shown in the accompanying illustration.

If the reader will closely study the illustration he will see that there are almost continuous rows of windows in the walls of the stable floor. These windows are of the proper height to admit sunshine during a greater part of the day to the litter alleys in the rear of the stalls. Sunshine is a germ killer; also it is a dispeller of moisture. The greater amount of sunshine that can be admitted the more sanitary will be the stable.

On the ridge of the roof of the barn are suction ventilators. These connect with four-air shafts that lead from the stable. The action of the air in passing the ventilators creates a vacuum which draws the foul air out of the stable at the same time drawing in fresh air. This continuous circulation keeps the air of the stable sweet and clean, which means healthy cows, and better milk.

The floor plans which accompany the exterior view of the building show how the interior of the barn is arranged. There are stalls for 43 cows, each cow having at the manger a bowl which is constantly filled with fresh water. Cows consume enormous quantities of water by taking small drinks frequently. A cow which is watered three or four times a day is not following her natural inclination; she wants a little at a time and that often.

The stable is so equipped that the work of caring for the cows may be done with the smallest possible

FREEDOM FROM LAXATIVES. Discovery by Scientists Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent medical authority.

Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Medical authorities have found that the gentle lubricating action of Nujol most closely resembles that of Nature's own lubricant. As Nujol is not a laxative it cannot gripe. It is in no sense a medicine. And like pure water it is harmless and pleasant.

Nujol is prescribed by physicians; used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today.—Advertisement.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

HONESTY

A TEN-DOLLAR bill is either good or bad. A man is either honest or dishonest.

If he is honest he will not cheat or steal, or take undue advantage of another man, under any circumstances.

If he is dishonest, his cheating and stealing will be limited only by his opportunity or his timidity.

The difference between big thieves and little crooks is sometimes a difference of opportunity—more often a difference of courage.

The little thief doesn't steal continually because he is afraid to. The big thief has less timidity—or less imagination, and steals whenever he has a chance.

But one is just as dishonest as the other. And often the little fellow is the worse, for he adds cowardice to his crookedness.

A full-grown man or woman, trained in life who does a dishonest action, will do another under the same circumstances.

A boy or girl, lacking this training will sometimes become straight with the growth of intelligence.

For the ancient adage about honesty being the best policy is so apparent to common sense that even people who are mentally crooked often turn honest and remain honest, merely because no more profit can be had in that manner of life.

It is well to apply the honesty test to yourself, and change your method if you find that under certain circumstances you would take advantage of a fellow creature—legally or illegally.

It is well to drop friends that you catch cheating at cards or at golf, or in business. For the cheat is a particularly despicable form of crook, and deserves no friends whatever.

Never think that a man or a woman is a little dishonest, or dishonest about some things and honest about others.

They are 100 per cent honest or not honest at all. They are honest in everything or honest in nothing.

If they are honest, as we believe most people are, they are worthy to be trusted. If they are dishonest, knowing what dishonesty means, the wider berth you give them the better it will be for you.

The Friendly Path

By WALTER I. ROBINSON

SIN AND CITIES

DON'T blame sin on the cities. No community is ever better than the people within it. If the people are honest, God-fearing, law-abiding and live up to the teachings of their churches, regardless of denomination, they'll find little cause for complaint no matter where they live. But when they know what is right and don't do it or don't insist on others following the best pathway, they are likely to be disgruntled with conditions which they bring upon themselves.

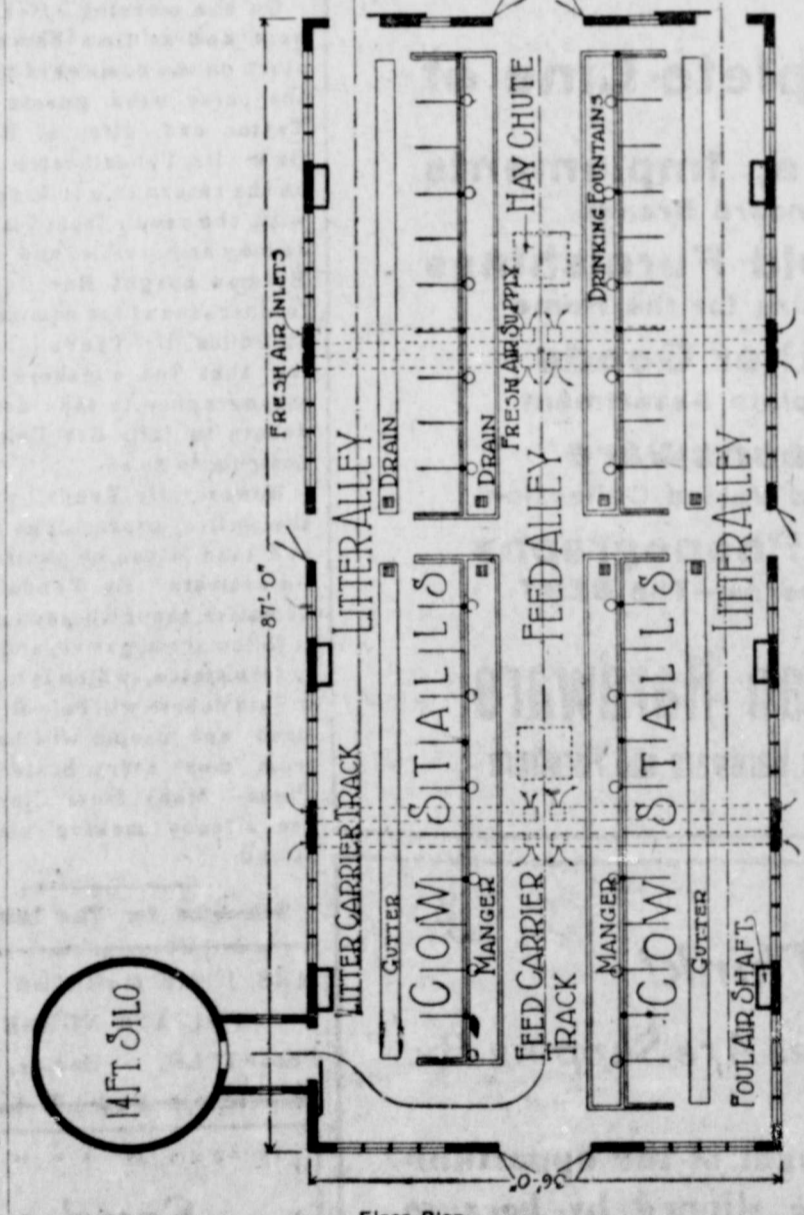

We know a great deal about most of the big cities, but we know just as much of the small towns and open country, and proportionately, we believe, there is no difference in the volume of wrong-doing. And we confidently believe that if people hailing from the small towns and country would be as devout to the cause of right as they claim to be when they come into large communities, the blotches on cities' reputations would be much fewer than they are.

It is true that there are many more amusements and inducements in big towns which are likely to divert newcomers' attention from church work and home life. But none of these will lead people from the proper pathway unless they are willing to be led. Even commercialized amusements, on the Sabbath will have no harmful effects on those who know they are wrong, if they wish conscientiously to follow the safe pathway.

Remove from every big city the sinners who rush in from small places, for hiding and the police and uplift workers would find little work necessary in order to preserve the standards of morality and honesty which are so greatly to be desired.

Able ministers, fine churches, educational opportunities, science invention and commercial and industrial progress of the cities are the kind of inspirations which should make the world in general more happy, comfortable and thankful to God.

(Copyright by the Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

Milk, too, is the principal article of diet of children, whose delicate bodies and digestive apparatus are especially susceptible to disease germs. For these reasons, as well as for the protection of the community against germ diseases, city health departments pay particular attention to the quality of milk distributed within their limits.

Aside from care in handling milk after it is drawn from the cow—sterilization of containers, immediate cooling to take out the animal heat, and keeping the milk at a low temperature to prevent the ever present bacteria from multiplying—the stable in which the cow is maintained is an important consideration. The stable must be well ventilated; it must have as much sunshine within it as possible, and it must be kept clean, so that particles of dirt that may permeate the air will not get into the milk pail. This cannot be accomplished in a poorly constructed, ramshackle barn.

IT WILL PAY YOU TO GET THE FACTS ABOUT YOUR EYES

The practice of Optometry as it exists today may be said to date from the discovery that bad vision is not the only nor even the main symptom indicating the need of glasses. On the contrary, it has been found that keen vision often is associated with greatocular discomfort and with headaches, nausea and other distressing symptoms, due to a strained condition of the eyes, but admitting of unimpaired vision. Suitable lenses in such cases do not necessarily make the sight better—only more comfortable, but may add great-

CASSOWARY BIRD WAYS

"Yes," said the Cassowary, "It is true that I am a curious looking bird. In fact you might not even call me a bird when you first looked at me for I'm walking about the ground and I'm not flying above the ground."

"But I am a bird just as the Ostrich family and others are birds, though they are to be seen on the ground, and not flying about in the air."

"I have been here in the zoo quite a while and I get along very well. I ate some sand just now, but I often eat sand. In fact, I enjoy a certain amount of sand in my food. Just as I have heard some people say that they like to have their food seasoned with salt so does the cassowary like to eat a certain amount of sand."

"Just what that amount is I couldn't tell you. I never measured the amount of sand I ate. But, then, I don't suppose people measure the amount of salt they eat, so that is fair enough."

"My home used to be in an island known as the Cassowary Island. An excellent name it was for the island, too."

"That island is one of the islands of New Britain, east of New Guinea. I couldn't point that out to you on the map, but that is where they say I came from, so I suppose they know."

"Anyway, there were lots of cassowaries in the home island, and there is only one other here. That is a young cassowary child."

"You'll see him down yonder. He is only eighteen months old. He wasn't born here, but was brought here as a young cassowary child."

"Cassowaries aren't born in the zoo. It is enough of an honor to a zoo that they will be brought here and will lend interest to the zoo by their presence."

"A bit conceited, eh? Well, now and again I feel a little superior and a little like showing that I'm not going to be taken advantage of—I'm not."

"My home was in a great, thick jungle. Doesn't that sound interesting? There we lived in the wonderful underbrush."

"You will notice that I have a horny, hard kind of a helmet upon my head?"

"It protects our heads from injury or harm, as we go through the underbrush."

"Our helmets never grow out of fashion. We're not like people in that way who're always changing hats with the styles."

"And people's hats look shabby after a bit or faded by the sun. But

DAIRY

IMPORTANT POINTS IN COWS

Missouri Expert Tells Just What to Look for in Buying High Producing Cattle.

"The man does not live who can pick the good cows from the poor ones without ever making a mistake," says W. W. Sweet, of the Missouri College of Agriculture. "Even the best judges sometimes make a mistake. But there are certain points about the dairy cow that are almost always associated with high production."

The udder should be deep, wide and long with good attachments. It should be evenly developed, level on the floor and equipped with teats of good and uniform size, symmetrically placed. It should also be soft and pliable, indicating that it consists of secreting cells rather than flesh.

A good set of milk veins indicates that the udder is well supplied with blood. Long, crooked milk veins entering large wells or openings through the body wall are usually associated with high production.

A cow cannot be a maximum and continuous producer unless she has a strong constitution. Vitality and strength of constitution are indicated by broad, open nostrils, and a chest which is deep and broad.

Feed capacity is essential. In order to produce heavily a cow must consume large quantities of feed and water. A barrel which is long, broad and deep indicates a large capacity and good production. A large cow nearly always has the advantage in production, provided she is not deficient in other points.

Alertness in temperament is an asset, and a sluggish cow is seldom a high producer. Dairy temperament includes those characteristics which indicate that the cow's feed is used for the production of milk rather than for body fat. Angularity, prominent points, lack of heaviness and flesh, and the presence of the triple wedges are good indications.

Quality refers to the handling or pliability of the hide, the refinement of bone, and the character of the animal, which cannot be described but which have to be seen to be appreciated.

HERDS TESTED DURING JUNE

Of a Total of 250,886 Examined 8,810 Reacted, Disclosing 3 1/2 Per Cent Tuberculous Cattle.

Cattle officially tested during June, 1922, for tuberculosis numbered 250,886, according to a summary issued by the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture. This figure exceeds the normal amount of tuberculin testing by several thousand. Of all the cattle tested, 8,810 reacted, thus disclosing about 3 1/2 per cent of tuberculous cattle.

The removal of such animals from herds otherwise healthy is gradually bringing about better health among farm live stock, safer milk supplies, and many economic benefits. The popularity of tuberculosis eradication is evidenced by the length of the list of herds waiting to be tested. At the end of June there were applications on file for the testing of 35,239 herds, containing more than half a million cattle.

SKIM CREAM MORE CLOSELY

Keeps Better During Hot Weather and Makes Better Butter—Keep Skim Milk on Farm.

If it's to keep best during the warm weather and to make the highest quality butter, cream needs to be skimmed closely. Better butter is made from heavier cream as the fine, sandlike grains that are precipitated in churning are more solid than the butter resulting from thin cream. Also it will pay to ship the heavier cream, as there is no use in paying shipping charges on skim milk. It will make better feed on the farm.

Tester is Big Aid.

Nothing compares to a good cow-feeder in helping get the herd in the way of bringing profits.

Get Rid of Poor Cows.

Dairymen are now realizing more keenly than ever the necessity of getting rid of the cows that are scarcely paying their board. These cows place too heavy a tax upon the herd to make the dairying go as it should.

Cows to Keep Up Fertility.

Ten cows to milk would be about the logical number to keep up the fertility on a 100-acre farm where commercial fertilizers are used, and where there are three dry cows, some young stock, and some horses

Rheumatism and Dyspepsia Are Soon Ended

Victims of stomach trouble and rheumatism often find that when their stomach is set in order, the rheumatism disappears. Thousands of people everywhere have testified that Tanlac has freed them of both troubles simultaneously. Mr. Robert Trotter, 148 State St., St. Paul, Minn., says:

"About a year ago I began to go down hill. Sour stomach and rheumatism in my arms and shoulders kept me in misery all the time. Since taking Tanlac all my aches and pains have gone, and my stomach is in fine shape. I'm glad to endorse such a fine medicine."

Badly digested food fills the whole system with poisons. Rheumatism and many other complaints not generally recognized as having their origin in the stomach quickly respond to the right treatment. Get a bottle today at any good druggist.—Advertisement.

MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS

Read This Letter from Mrs. W. S. Hughes

Greenville, Del.—"I was under the impression that my eldest daughter had some internal trouble as ever since the first time her sickness appeared she had to go to bed and even had to quit school once for a week. I always take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound myself so I gave it to her and she has received great benefit from it. You can use this letter for a testimonial if you wish, as I cannot say too much about what your medicine has done for me and for my daughter."—Mrs. W. S. HUGHES, Greenville, Delaware.

Mothers and oftentimes grandmothers have taken and have learned the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. So they recommend the medicine to others.

The best test of any medicine is what it has done for others. For nearly fifty years we have published letters from mothers, daughters, and women, young and old, recommending the Vegetable Compound. They know what it did for them and are glad to tell others. In your own neighborhood are women who know of its great value.

Mothers—daughters, why not try it?

FORMAL SUITS FOR FALL; NEW FUR TRIMMED COATS

EVERY woman who is about to buy a fall suit should first review the new fall fabrics, especially if she has in mind a dressy or formal suit. For this particular class of suits we have matelasse, cloke, blistered cloths, wool brocades and new varieties of velvets. Moreover, the lightweight fur fabrics—not much used heretofore in suits—find themselves among these hand-some rivals and able to hold their own in point of beauty of style. Such rich stuffs are the pride of matrons—they have not a youthful look—but the art of the tailor sees to it that suits made of them are spirited, and colors help to make them brilliant.

Speaking of colors, a long range of browns deserves to be mentioned first, progressing through many shades, all the way from seal-brown to light, cold tones that lead into beige. There are warm and cold browns and this color hennette, with long blouse and flaring skirt, or the straight-line, capelle coat that pays no attention to the waistline. Some very smart short coats of fur, or of rich, novelty fabrics, find place in the wardrobe of the women who provide themselves with several wraps. She who makes one coat answer for many purposes is better served than ever, this fall, for the few coats for general wear are triumphs of handsome materials and fine designing.

Nearly all the new coats round out their full quota of good points with collar and cuffs of fur, and occasionally they have trimmings of fur. There are some models in which fur and cloth are combined in the body of the coat. This unstinted use of fur suggests that an old fur coat may begin life all over again by joining hands with one of the new cloth coat-

's the season's favorite. Bottle-green has some representation, rosewood is promising and black has many devotees in the restrained choice of colors for suits. The range of colors for dresses is much wider.

So much distinction lies in these new fabrics that they need little in the way of embellishment. For street wear fur measures up to their quality and is universally used. It appears in narrow bands, used as a grille on afternoon dresses, and provides the collar and cuffs for suits which often comprise a coat and frock instead of a ings and becoming a part of an up-to-date new wrap.

The two coats illustrated are good exponents of the mode in coats which are unusually becoming. This year's models surpass all their forerunners in this quality of becomingness. The coat at the left has the low blouse and flaring skirt line which we have borrowed from Russia. Its wide sleeves are enriched with a braid embroidery and opossum fur contributes a collar, cuffs and finish for the loose side panels. It is made of a pile-fabric in dark brown with embroidcoat and skirt. A handsome example of a formal suit made of a fur fabric appears in the illustration. It is a close imitation of broadtail, with long coat fastened with two buttons covered with material. It has a band of fox fur about the bottom of the coat as well as a luxurious collar and cuffs of this sumptuous fur.

In wraps fashion countenances the cape as well as the coat, especially when a garment matching the costume is required. In coats one may choose between the Russian stil-ery in brown and beige and fur to the natural color.

The coat at the right, also made of a deep pile-fabric, is a dark reddish brown and hangs from a deep yoke. Black skunk or black wolf fur serves equally well for the collar and for cuffs which take the place of a muff.

FARM STOCK

STOMACH WORMS DISASTROUS

One Per Cent of Copper Sulphate Recommended as Remedy—Rotate Pastures.

"Of all the internal parasites affecting animals, there is probably none more disastrous than the stomach worms," says Geo. H. Glover of the Colorado Agricultural College. "This is especially true of sheep. The first symptoms are dullness and lack of thrift. These bloodsucking parasites soon cause anemia which is manifested by paleness of the mucous membranes, such as the mouth. Sheep that are affected may have a swelling under the jaw, which is commonly known as 'bottle-jaw.'"

"A satisfactory remedy, endorsed by the United States Department of Agriculture, is a 1 per cent solution of copper sulphate. It is made by dissolving one-fourth pound of copper sulphate in a pint of boiling water and adding enough cold water to make three gallons. This will make enough to treat 100 adult sheep. The dose is three ounces for adult sheep and half that amount for lambs. Pastures which have been used by infested sheep are dangerous for healthy sheep. Well sheep should be immediately separated from those that show symptoms of the disease.

"To keep down stomach worms, pastures should be rotated. Sheep may safely follow horses and hogs, but not cattle and goats, since the latter will transmit stomach worms to sheep."

DON'T NEGLECT VACCINATION

On Account of Virulence of Cholera Attack Last Year It is Best to Use Preventive.

In many states hog cholera was the most active last year that it has been for some time. The demand for veterinarians' time in vaccination and for serum from the serum plants became so great that many were unable to get attention to their herds in time.

On account of the extent and virulence of the attack last year it is recommended that no chances be taken by neglecting to vaccinate this year's pig crop. Serum is a preventive agent, not a cure, so it is poor policy to put off vaccinating until the disease appears.

BREED ADAPTED FOR MUTTON

Southdown Excels for Quality of Meat, Maturity and for High Standard of Wool.

No breed excels the little Southdown for quality of mutton, early maturity, folding qualities (for it dresses the lamb evenly and well), or for the high standard of its wool, which is nearest the merino of any of our breeds. It is a hardy, healthy constitutioned little sheep, able to withstand heat or cold, and wherever it has gone—and it is to be found in most of the sheep-breeding countries of the world—the Southdown has gained golden opinions.

FLUSHING WILL HELP LAMBS

Generous Feeding of Ewes During Breeding Season Will Increase Number of Young.

Flushing, in the language of sheep raisers, means the generous feeding of the ewes during the breeding season, to reduce the number of lambless ewes and to increase the number of twins. In a government experiment, covering 802 lambings of 143 different ewes, the flushing system increased the number of lambs dropped by 18.1 per cent.

Castrate Young Boars.

Most hog raisers hold their surplus young boars too long before castration. The best time to castrate young boar pigs is between six and eight weeks of age, before weaning. By performing the operation at this age the young pig is still sucking its dam and is small enough to be handled conveniently and the testicles large enough to render the operation quite simple. The objects of castration are to prevent reproduction, increase fattening propensity, better the quality of the meat and help insure docility.

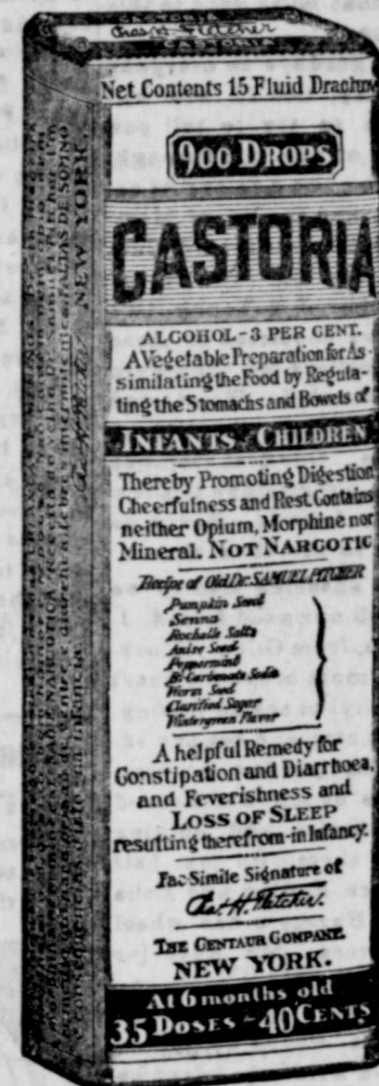

Some More Truths.

WOULD you use a steam shovel to move a pebble? Certainly not. Implements are built according to the work they have to do.

Would you use a grown-up's remedy for your baby's ills? Certainly not. Remedies are prepared according to the work THEY have to do.

All this is preliminary to reminding you that Fletcher's Castoria was sought out, found and is prepared solely as a remedy for Infants and Children. And let this be a warning against Substitutes, Counterfeits and the Just-as-good stuff that may be all right for you in all your strength, but dangerous for the little babe.

All the mother-love that lies within your heart cries out to you: Be true to Baby. And being true to Baby you will keep in the house remedies specially prepared for babies as you would a baby's food, hairbrush, toothbrush or sponge.

Children Cry For

Are You Prepared?

A doctor in the house all the time would be a good idea. Yet you can't afford to keep a doctor in the family to keep baby well or prevent sickness. But you can do almost the same thing by having at hand a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria, because it is a wonderful remedy for indigestion, colic, feverishness, fretfulness and all the other disorders that result from common ailments that babies have.

Fletcher's Castoria is perfectly safe to use. It is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. Children cry for Fletcher's Castoria, and mothers recommend it because they have found it a comfort to children and a mother's friend.

If you love your baby, you know how sweet it is to be able to help baby when trouble comes. You cannot always call upon a doctor. But doctors have nothing but good to say of Fletcher's Castoria, because they know that it can only do good—that it can't do any harm—and they wouldn't want you to use for baby a remedy that you would use for yourself.

CALOMEL GOOD BUT TREACHEROUS

Next Dose May Salivate, Shock Liver or Attack Your Bones.

You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tonic straightens you right up and you feel great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate.—Advertisement.

MRS. BUSH WRITES FROM NEW MEXICO

Mealla Park, N. M., Oct. 22nd, 1929

Dear Informer and Everybody:

To comply with a promise I made when I left dear old Donley, I will take this first opportunity to send a few lines to your little old paper. First, I will say it was no desire of mine to leave Texas and dear ones, to move to New Mexico, but perhaps it's for the best I hope so anyway. But as yet I can't see anything that looks good to this "Texas guy."

We bade goodbye to everyone on Thursday, Oct. 12, and will now begin to try to tell you something of our trip through. There were quite a colony of us: Mr. Bursay and family of Memphis, U. G. Bush and wife from Lakeview, and our own family and my father, J. S. Young. Our conveyances consisted of three cars, and believe me they were pretty well loaded. We started from home, on the Crow farm, about 1 p. m. Our first stop was in Giles, to bid goodbye to a few of our dear friends. Sorry we didn't get to see them all.

Then on entering Hedley we met up with our good friend, J. D. McCants, from Giles. It looked like it 'most broke his heart (if he had any) to see us leaving. I wanted to stop and see our editor and family a few minutes, but, no, the bunch was headed for New Mexico and nothing could stop them—till just half way between Hedley and Lella Lake, Mr. Bursay's car wheel went to pieces. Mr. Bush (or should I say "Sid") took our family and the broken wheel on to Clarendon, where we met his brother and wife who joined us there.

Must say right here that at Clarendon we had our last "home hospitality" extended to us in a way we shall always remember, and we want to extend our thanks and appreciation to our good friends, J. T. Patman, J. H. Rutherford and W. E. Bray. We shall always remember your kindness in making our last night in Donley so pleasant.

Our crippled car got into Clarendon about 9 that night. Next morning we left early and made it into Amarillo by 11, but the car was still bad and we were delayed at Amarillo six hours with it. Leaving there at 8 p. m. we went into Hereford by dark and camped there our second night. As we started out early the next morning, my brother-in-law's car went to the bad, so there we were delayed again till 12:30 p. m. We made it on to Portales, N. M. the third night. Sunday morning we traveled along very nicely, with the exception of one or two punctures on the other cars, got to Roswell at 3 p. m., ate lunch there, and went on up in the mountains and camped for the night. Gee! we almost froze.

Next day we traveled 'most all day in the mountains, the folks having all kinds of trouble with punctures and blowouts, and as Sid got tired of being delayed so much, we traveled about twenty miles ahead of the crowd. But we all camped at Alamogordo our last night.

Next day, leaving the crowd at Alamogordo with a sick car in the garage, we traveled at a lively speed. We went by way of El Paso (and, say, I'm crazy about that town). In leaving El Paso we had to quit the main highway, on account of bad roads, so we got lost, and wandered around for two hours before we found ourselves. Finally, on Tuesday evening, we drove up to the home of our brother, who had been looking for us for three days. In about an hour after our arrival, the others drove up.

Now, I have told you all along about the others having car trouble, and never mentioned our own trouble, but we had such a little it's hardly worth mentioning. We had one puncture at Lella Lake, another one near Goodnight, and the second day we had to exchange tires. Of course we were in a Ford, and the others had "sure enough cars"—a Dart and an Overland.

Oh, by the way, I 'most forgot to mention that while we were in Lella Lake, getting the puncture fixed, we met and chatted for a while with that "awful man" from Hedley, St. Richardson. Poor old St. tried to make us believe we were headed the wrong way, and he may be right about it. While being delayed at Amarillo, I had the pleasure of meeting another good Hedleyite and a long time friend of mine, Mrs. O. M. Culwell, and her daughter, Jewell.

Well, as to this country, I will not try to tell you anything about it at this writing. Will write again next week and tell you something of the country, climate and people. Will say today is cloudy, cold and rainy, and the most pleasant place I find is in the house by the fire.

Love to every one.
Mrs. S. M. Bush.

And while I read the letter, I just knew he would do it. Why, I could even see the sparkle of the ring on my finger. But in five minutes after the letter was folded and put away, I knew, with equal certitude—that he wouldn't.

I had been at home exactly eight hours when a telegram from Jerry asked permission to come at once. As gently as I could I broke the news to Father and Mother. He was Helen's brother. They must have heard me mention him. I knew him well, very well, indeed. In fact, the purpose of this visit was to ask them for the hand of their daughter.

Father frowned and scolded, and said, "Tut, tut!" and that I was meddling but a child. But Mother smiled and shook her head, even while she sighed, and reminded him that I was twenty-two whole years older than she was when she married him; though in the same breath she admitted that I was young, and she certainly hoped I'd be willing to wait before I married, even if the young man was all that they could ask him to be.

Father was still a little rebellious, I think, but Mother—bless her dear sympathetic heart—soon convinced him that they must at least consent to see this bright young man. So I sent the wire inviting him to come.

Jerry came—and he had not been five minutes in the house before it might easily have seemed that he had always been there. He did know about stars; at least, he talked with Father about them, and so as to hold Father's interest, too. And he knew a lot about innumerable things in which Mother was interested. He stayed four days; and all the while he was there, I never so much as thought of ceremonious dress and dinners, and liveried butlers and footmen; nor did it once occur to me that our simple kitchen Nora, and Old John's son at the wheel of our one motorcar, were not beautifully and entirely adequate, so unassumingly and so perfectly did Jerry unmistakably "fit in." (There are no other words that so exactly express what I mean.) And in the end, even his charm and his triumph were so unobtrusively complete that I never thought of being surprised at the prompt capitulation of both Father and Mother.

Jerry had brought the ring. (Jerry always brings his "rings"—and he never fails to "put them on.") And he went back to New York with Mother's promise that I should visit them in June at their cottage in Newport.

They seemed like a dream—those four days—after he had gone; and I should have been tempted to doubt the whole thing had there not been the sparkle of the ring on my finger, and the frequent reference to Jerry on the lips of both Father and Mother.

They loved Jerry, both of them. Father said he was a fine, manly young fellow; and Mother said he was a dear boy, a very dear boy. Neither of them spoke much of his painting. Jerry himself had scarcely mentioned it to them, as I remember, after he had gone.

I went to Newport in July. "The cottage," as I suspected, was twice as large and twice as pretentious as the New York residence; and it sported twice the number of servants. Once again I was caught in the whirl of dinners and dances and motoring, with the addition of tennis and bathing. And always, at my side, was Jerry, seemingly living only upon my lightest whim and fancy. He wished to paint my portrait; but there was no time, especially as my visit, in accordance with Mother's inexorable decision, was of only one week's duration.

But what a wonderful week that was! I seemed to be under a kind of spell. It was as if I were in a new world—a world such as no one had ever been in before. Oh, I knew, of course, that others had loved—but not as we loved. I was sure that no one had ever loved as we loved. And it was so much more wonderful than anything I had ever dreamed of—this love of ours. Yet all my life since my early teens I had been thinking and planning and waiting for it—love. And now it had come—the real thing. The others—all the others had been shams and make-believes and counterfeit.

At Newport Jerry decided that he wanted to be married right away. He didn't want to wait two more endless years until I was graduated. The idea of waiting all that valuable time when we might be together! And when there was really no reason for it, either—no reason at all!

I smiled to myself, even as I thrilled at his sweet insistence. I was pretty sure I knew two reasons—two very good reasons—why I could not marry before graduation. One reason was Father; the other reason was Mother. I hinted as much.

"No! Is that all?" He laughed and kissed me. "I'll run down and see them about it," he said jauntily. I smiled again. I had no more idea what anything he could say would—

But I didn't know Jerry—then. I had not been home from Newport a week when Jerry kept his promise and "ran down." And he had not been there two days before Father and Mother admitted that, perhaps, after all, it would not be so bad an idea if I shouldn't graduate, but should be married instead.

And so I was married. (Didn't I tell you that Jerry always brought rings and put them on?)

And again I say, and so we were married. But what did we know of each other—the real other? True, we had danced together, been swimming together, dined together, played tennis together. But what did we really know of each other's whims and prejudices, opinions and personal habits and tastes? I knew, to a word, what Jerry would say about a sunset; and he knew, I fancy, what I would say about a dreamy waltz song. But we didn't know of each other what the other would say to a dinnerless home with the cook gone. We were leaving a good deal to be learned later on; but we didn't think of that. Love that is to last must be built upon the realization that troubles and trials and sorrows are sure to come, and that they must be borne together—if one back is not to break under the load. We were entering into a contract, not for a week, but, presumably, for a lifetime—and a good deal may come to one in a lifetime—not all of it pleasant. We had been brought up in two distinctly different social environments, but we didn't stop to think of that. We liked the same sunsets, and the same make of car, and the same kind of ice-cream; and we looked into each other's eyes and thought we knew each other—whereas we were really only seeing the mirrored reflection of ourselves.

And so we were married. It was everything that was blissful and delightful, of course, at first. We were still eating the ice-cream and admiring the sunsets. I had forgotten that there were things other than sunsets and ice-cream, I suspect. I was not twenty-one, remember, and my feet fairly ached to dance. The whole world was a show. Music, lights, laughter—how I loved them all!

Then came the baby, Eunice, my little girl; and with one touch of her tiny, clinging fingers, the whole world of music and the lights and music and glare and glitter just faded all away into nothingness, where it belonged. As if anything counted, with her on the other side of the scales!

I found out then—oh, I found out lots of things. You see, it wasn't that way at all with Jerry. The lights and music and the glitter and the sham didn't fade away a mite, to him, when Eunice came. In fact, sometimes it seemed to me they just grew stronger, if anything.

He didn't like it because I couldn't go with him any more—to dances and things, I mean. He said the nurse could take care of Eunice. As if I'd leave my baby with any nurse that ever lived, for any old dance! The idea! But Jerry went. At first he stayed with me; but the baby cried, and Jerry didn't like that. It made him irritable and nervous, until I was glad to have him go.

I think it was about this time that Jerry took up his painting again. I guess I have forgotten to mention that all through the first two years of our marriage, before the baby came, he just tended to me. He never painted a single picture. But after Eunice came—

But, after all, what is the use of going over these last miserable years like this? Eunice is five now. Her father is the most popular portrait painter in the country. I am almost tempted to say that he is the most popular man, as well. All the old charm and magnetism are there. Sometimes I watch him (for, of course, I do go out with him once in a while), and always I think of that first day when I saw him at college. Brilliant, polished, witty—he still dominates every group of which he is a member. Men and women alike bow to his charm. After all, I suspect that it's just that Jerry still loves the ice-cream and sunsets, and I don't. That's all. To me there's something more to life than that—something higher, deeper, more worth while. We haven't a taste in common, a thought in unison, an aspiration in harmony. I suspect—in fact I know—that I get on his nerves just as raspably as he does on mine. For that reason I'm sure he'll be glad when he gets my letter.

But, some way, I dread to tell Mother. Well, it's finished. I've been about four days bringing this autobiography of Mary Marie's to an end. I've enjoyed doing it. In a way, though I'll have to admit I can't see as it's made clear the way. It's so sorry I can't help Mother before I go. And I'm sure she'll be glad to see her life. But Father is so dear, and I'm so fond of college, on the years ago one and this year for him it. She'll be so glad to see it. Well, row, of TOMORROW.

I will come I mourn must be I had begin, right in I mean, that Mother told me. But I Marie o tell wh I was ing, and to begin not to g sudden thing al Mother: "Yes, I forts me you are—

I have feared some— Jerry; that you might separate. But I know, on account of Eunice, that you never will."

"But, Mother, that's the very reason—I mean, it would be the reason." I stammered. Then I stopped. My tongue just wouldn't move, my throat and lips were so dry.

But Mother was speaking again. "Eunice—yes. You mean that you never would make her go through what you went through when you were her age?"

"Why, Mother, I—I—" And then I stopped again. And I was so angry and indignant with myself because I had to stop, when there were so many, many things that I wanted to say, if only my dry lips could articulate the words.

Mother drew her breath in with a little catch. She had grown rather white.

"I wonder if you remember—if you ever think of—your childhood," she said.

"Why, yes, of—of course—sometimes." It was my turn to stammer. I was thinking of that diary that I had just read—and added to.

Mother drew in her breath again, this time with a catch that was almost a sob. And then she began to talk—at first haltingly, with half-finished sentences; then hurriedly, with a rush of words that seemed not able to utter themselves fast enough to keep up with the thoughts behind them.

She told of her youth and marriage, and of my coming. She told of her life with Father, and of the mistakes she made. She told much, of course, that was in Mary Marie's diary; but she told, oh, so much more, until like a panorama the whole thing lay before me.

Movements of the Tides. The spring tides, or tides having the greatest range, occur near the times of new moon and full moon. The neap tides, or tides having the lowest range, occur near the times of first and last quarters of the moon. The highest of the spring tides is from one to two days after new or full moon. At this time, also, the low waters will be lower than usual.

COOK GOOD MEAL WITH SLOW FIRE

Fireless Cooker Eliminates Necessity of Hot Stove.

ADAPTABLE TO TOUGH MEATS

Principle of Device is Retention of Heat Long Enough to Complete Cooking of Food—Plan of Construction Outlined.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Now that summer is at hand the housewife turns her thought to meals which require as little heat as possible to prepare, or to those devices by which a good meal can be cooked without staying constantly in a hot kitchen while doing it. A fireless cooker is one of the means by which this latter may be accomplished. Meats and fowl may be prepared in it, and particularly it is adaptable to the tougher cuts of meat and to beans and cereals, because of the long, slow cooking which it affords.

The principle of home-made and fireless cookers is the retention of the heat in the food long or it to be sufficiently cooked, accomplished by first heating thoroughly over the stove in a fireless cooker and then placing it in a fireless cooker which is so constructed that the heat will be retained long enough to complete the cooking. The cooking is materialized by the use of a hot stone, and sometimes also an asbestos fireless cooker may be made of a wooden box or pall of size. A wooden candy pail, 7 in. in diameter, standing 15 in. high, has been made into a cooker by the United States Department of Agriculture. The accompanying diagram shows the outer structure of the wooden pall, a cross section, and the asbestos fireless cooker which is placed inside of it. This gives it a finished appearance, it is smooth to handle, and clean. The inside of the cooker is lined with six thicknesses of heavy brown paper and then with several inches of excelsior. A tin can, with a well-fitting lid, such as can be purchased to keep sugar or flour in, forms the center well. This must be large enough to hold a cooking utensil of practical size.

Asbestos is Essential. Directly around and under the center well, and between it and the excelsior is placed asbestos sheeting at least 1/2 inch thick. This is the most essential because it not only aids materially in retaining the heat within the well but also it is a means of protection from fire. Without the asbestos there is great danger of the excelsior taking fire from the hot soapstone. The excelsior and asbestos extend nearly up to the lid of the well and are then covered with a layer of cement which holds the material and the well in place.

A round cushion filled with excelsior is stuffed between the cover of the well and the wooden cover of the cooker, and then it is ready for use. Soapstones of various sizes may be purchased at hardware stores. Flat stones, such as are picked up in some sections of the country, may be used. Farmers' Bulletin 771, "Home-made Fireless Cookers and Their Use," may be had without cost upon application to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Inexpensive Variety of Foods. It is worth remembering, the United States Department of Agriculture reminds the housekeeper, that bread and milk, meats and milk, and crackers and milk all have much the same food value as breakfast foods and milk, and often furnish a convenient and inexpensive variety.

MISTAKES TO AVOID WITH POTATO SALAD

Overcooking or Too Much Stirring Is Harmful.

Evenly Cut Small Dice Are More Attractive Than Large Chunks—Introduce Onion Flavor by Squeezing Juice Out.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In making potato salad it is well to avoid overcooking the potatoes, also to avoid too much stirring, or the salad will be mushy and unappetizing. Small, evenly cut dice are more attractive than large chunks of potato, advises the United States Department of Agriculture. Cold boiled potatoes can be used when on hand, or the potatoes may be cut up raw and freshly cooked until just done. Onion flavor may be introduced by squeezing the juice over the cooked hot potatoes. This is more acceptable to many persons than bits of chopped onions occurring in the salad. The potato may be mixed with French mayonnaise, or boiled dressing, while still hot. Care should be taken to avoid using too much vinegar in the salad. A tablespoonful of chopped parsley or diced cucumber is a pleasing addition, while chopped celery or radish, diced hard-boiled egg, canned sardines, capers, sour pickles may all be used with good results.

A well-flavored potato salad may be made by cooking a tablespoonful of finely chopped onion in bacon fat until tender, then adding a tablespoonful of chopped celery and two cupfuls of sliced raw potatoes. All should be covered with water in a skillet and cooked down till the potatoes are done. Use French salad dressing and mix in about two chopped hard-boiled eggs. Sardines may be added if liked. Serve hot or cold.

HIGHER FUEL VALUE OF FATS

Butter and Cream Are Most Important in Diet of Growing Children—Nuts Are Good.

Fats and fat foods, such as butter, lard, suet, tallow and cooking fats, oil, bacon, salt pork, pork sausages, chocolate, cream, and all nuts, except the chestnut, have a higher fuel value as a class than any other group of foods. Fats add flavor and richness to the diet, but since they are such concentrated fuel foods, are often used in excess of the amount needed. Milk fat is a particularly rich source of vitamin A. Butter and cream are therefore far more important than most other fats in the diet of growing children. Some of these fat foods, for example, chocolate and nuts, contain generous proportions of protein and mineral substances.

Roast Pork With Pudding.

A dish corresponding to the Yorkshire pudding, which is frequently served with roast beef, can be made out of corn meal to serve with roast pork, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

1/2 cup corn meal, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 2 eggs.

Place the milk, corn meal and salt in the top of a double boiler and cook them about ten minutes, or until the meal has expanded to form a thorough mixture. After the mixture has cooled add the eggs well beaten. Grease cooking tins thoroughly, allowing to each about one teaspoonful of fat from the roast pork. Bake in a moderate oven, basting occasionally with the drippings of the pork.
