SCHOOL TAX NOTICE

We are advising every tax payer in the Hedley Independent School District to call at First State Bank, Hedley, and find if they owe any delinquent school taxes. Many do, and doubtless some of them are not aware of the fact. We don't want to sue on these delinquents without first giving due warning. Hence this notice. The school needs the money, and must have it.

By order of the Board.

Miss Gladys Snoddy spent the week end with the R E Mann family.

Mrs. J. W. Noel and little daughter, Martha Sue, spent the day with Mrs. R E Mann Monday.

TACKY PARTY

Mrs O B Crawford entertained the I W's and guests with an old fashion Tacky Party Thursday evening, Jan. 26.

After getting acquainted with the odd, the quaint and the new, we enjoyed several very original contests and games.

Miss Ruth Coffey was awarded the prize for being the tackiest, but the judges had to admit that Miss Imogene Moreman ran her a close race.

Refreshments of red beans on lettuce, onion, corn bread, gingerbread and water were served to the following: Misses Faye Moreman, Gladys Parmley, Cloteal Moreman, M-s Brooks, Misses Odie Watkins, Elizabeth Wimberly, Imogene Moreman, Ruth Coffey, Mary Harris, Alma Anderson, Myrtle Reeves, and Blanche Temple.

CLASS MEETING

The Glad Girls' Class of the Baptist Sunday School met in regular class meeting last Tuesday night, and a profitable hour was enjoyed. The study of the New Testament was begun, and great interest in the work was shown.

On last Sunday we were able to report a one hundred per cent attendance, and two visitors. Everyone is manifesting great interest in the class work.

Come and join us.

THIS C. & O. CONDUCTOR GAINS 35 LBS.

"I enjoyed Christmas this time with more pleasure than I had in years," remarked W. L. Mahone, 410 Charlottesville, Va., the other day, in telling of the benefits he has derived from the use of Tanlac. Mr. Mahone has been a railroad conductor for nineteen years. He runs on the Chesapeake & Ohio from Charlottesville to Washington, D. C., and Richmond, Va.

"My stomach and digestion had been bad so long that I can hardly remember the time I could eat without suffering afterwards. I gradually grew weaker until I was often having to lay off from my run. In this run-down condition I contracted pneumonia in both lungs and came near losing my life.

"After this spell my stomach troubled me worse than ever and I remained almost as weak and helpless as a baby. While sitting around reading the papers I was attracted by the statements about Tanlac, which had such a sincere ring that I was led to believe the medicine might help me up the hill, and it pulled me clean up to the top. My appetite never fails, stomach misery is all gone, and I have gained thirty-five pounds in weight. Tanlac keeps me feeling 'spick and span,' too, so I can make my runs and still feel fine."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists. Over 35 million bottles sold.—Advertisement.

PRETTY BUNGALOW ON MODERN LINES

Makes an Attractive Home for Either Farm or Suburbs.

IS PLANNED TO HAVE STEPS

Contains Five Good Rooms, Conveniently Arranged and Comfortable—Exterior Has Individuality That Appeals.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 187 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

The old-time idea that a home in city, town or rural community should contain a number of rooms that are set aside for unusual occasions, has been discarded as uneconomical. The old-time "parlor" which got an airing probably once a week, and was used less frequently than that, is a thing of the past. It was waste space, and in modern homes has been combined with the "sitting room" of former days into a comfortable, large room, which is called the "living room."

While few home builders think of it, every bit of added space to a home costs real money. Architects and building contractors make rough estiterior, but containing five good rooms, conveniently arranged and comfortable. As will be seen by the picture, the bungalow is of frame, set on a foundation wall of brick. The brick used in the porch pillars harmonize with the foundation walls, making a pleasing effect. The extension of the porch permits plenty of light in the living room, and adds to the appearance of the house. The exterior walls are covered with shingles.

The entrance door leads directly into the living room. This is of good size, 12 by 17 feet, and has an open fireplace on one side and a seat on the other. Back of the living room, connected with it by a double arch opening, is the dining room, another good-sized room, 12 by 13 feet 6 inches. At the rear of the dining room is the kitchen, and, while its dimensions are rather large, the wall space is utilized for the many built-in kitchen conveniences.

An opening off the dining room leads to a short hall, at either end of which is a bedroom, with the bathroom between. Both of these bedrooms are corner rooms and of an equal size, 12 by 13 feet.

The floor plan of the home, which is also shown, gives an idea of the many good features that are included in this home design. Adjoining the back porch is a wash room, with a toilet adjoining. There are closets in plenty, both off the kitchen and hall and the bedrooms. There is a buffet in the dining room.

Stairs adjoining the dining room lead to the basement which extends under the whole of the house. Here is plenty of room for the heating plant, the laundry equipment, space for the storage of fruits and vegetables and the lawn and garden equipment that usually are placed there.

Considered from all angles this is mates of the cost of homes by computing the cubic footage and by multiplying by an average figure.

Getting all the space that is needed for comfort and the well being of the family that is to occupy the house and eliminating waste space is the goal of all modern architects and building contractors.

It was when these modern ideas of home designing and home construction came into general practice that the bungalow was adopted. In the bungalow on the one floor were included the number of rooms and amount of space that the family would need. Then these rooms were laid out so that the work of caring for them could be done with the least possible effort—so that "steps would be saved." At the same time the rooms were made comfortable by many windows, built-in labor-saving and comfort-bringing features and by their size. Even the wall space for the furniture was computed.

Shown in the accompanying illustration is a small bungalow that includes the features mentioned. Here is a small house, attractive from the a very good bungalow design. The five rooms provide for all the home activities, while from the standpoint of the housekeeper, the arrangement is excellent. Any portion of the house can be reached by the least amount of travel from any other portion, thus saving steps and time in the performance of the household duties.

Because of the materials used this is an economical home to build. Its cost, or a rough estimate of its cost, can be secured from the local building contractor or material dealer. Costs of building vary in different localities, so figures on it are purposely omitted.

Expert Advice.

The new golfer had acquired all the paraphernalia and started off. After a painful exhibition over the first few holes, he decided on taking counsel with his caddy.

"What 'cub do I take here?" he asked the diminutive archer.

"I should take me brassie," was the calm reply, "but then, of course, all we caddies play a swell game."—Boston Transcript.

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Is Winter Time Your Backache Time? Does Your Back Foretell Every Change of the Weather? Do You Feel Old and Stiff and Suffer Sharp, Rheumatic Pains? Then Look to Your Kidneys!

ARE winter months your backache months? Does every cold, chill or attack of grip leave you lame, achy and all worn out? Does your back throb and ache until it seems you just can't keep going another day?

Then look to your kidneys! Grip, colds and chills throw a heavy strain on the kidneys. They overload the blood with poisons and impurities that the kidneys have to filter off. The kidneys weaken under this rush of new work; become congested and inflamed.

It's little wonder, then, that every cold finds you suffering with torturing backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying bladder irregularities.

Don't wait! Delay may lead to serious or chronic kidney sickness. Realize that your kidneys have weakened in fighting the cold-created poisons and give them the help they need. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills today. Doan's have helped thousands at such times and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Good Folks:

P. FAIN, stationary engineer, 77 E. Sycamore St., Denton, Texas, says: "Some years ago I had a lot of trouble with my back. I caught cold and it settled in the small of my back, making my back lame and sore. I tried several kidney remedies but got no relief until I took Doan's Kidney Pills. A couple of boxes of Doan's cured me up in fine shape and I have had no trouble since. I very gladly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills for what they have done for me."

MRS. JOHN VANNERBERG, El Campo, Texas, says: "My kidneys were weak and when I caught cold it always settled in my kidneys. I felt tired and worn out all the time and had no ambition to do anything. My kidneys didn't act right at all. My back pained me day and night and I had sharp knife-like pains through my kidneys. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills in the paper and got a box. The one box cured me. My back is as strong as iron and my kidneys act like clockwork."

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased. Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

MOTHER, MOVE CHILD'S BOWELS WITH "CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP"

Even Cross, Feverish, Sick Children Love its Taste and it Never Fails to Empty Little Bowels

When constipated, bilious, irritable, listless, or full of cold, your little one needs a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup" to quickly start liver and bowel action. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works the sour bile and undigested food right out and you have a well, playful child again. Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. It never cramps or overacts. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother, you must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

SENIOR NOTES

Florence Curd has been compelled to miss school this week on account of her eyes.

The Seniors all look blue and despondent this week, for mid-term examinations are here and work just insists on stacking up right before our eyes while we work with might and main.

There is something very mysterious happening to the Juniors this week. They will not allow us to stay in our room when they can possibly push us off into the laboratory. We just cannot help being a tiny bit curious.

The Seniors certainly enjoyed the singing rendered by "Happy Jim" Monday afternoon and also that night. It was rather amusing to see bashful little Mary Pearle Noel play his accompaniments and endure the funny jokes that he fold on her.

JUNIOR JOYS

Tuesday was Junior moving day. Miss Trapp took charge of Mr. Biggers' room and rearranged the Juniors to her own liking.

Long faces and dreary frowns are seen in all the classes this week. Mid-term exams, you know.

Miss Cannedy: "Who can name one important thing we have now that we did not have one hundred years ago?"
J. R.: "Me?"

People, you may
Look out for a fuss,
For the Cicero class
Is learning to cuss.

Last Friday afternoon was very exciting. Cecil Key was out to visit the Juniors. Alms was trying to read Latin, but Miss Cannedy found her reading words she had never heard. She gave it up—a hopeless case.

SOPH SPECIALS

We are made to wonder why Beulah Kippatrick is so interested in the northwest corner of the ninth grade room.

What pupil is it that likes to be with Miss Trapp so much?

Why does Alice seem so sad?

We are wondering why Dick and Lois are so chummy of late.

Leonard: "Why do you put your gasses to your mouth every time you take them?"

Miss Trapp: "I don't know."

Laona-d: "I thought perhaps it was so your eye teeth could see."

Mr. Biggers, forgetting that the Hedley school is able to afford steam heat, leaned against the radiator and burnt his coat so badly that he quit wearing it.

FRESHMAN NEWS

The school has missed hearing the "radio from Bay" the last few days, as "old Kl" has moved to a new location.

Lucile Neely is absent from school on account of an attack of appendicitis.

We regret very much to lose our Class President, Weldon Wadley, who is moving to Oklahoma. We wish him success in his work there.

Sambo served as office boy and porter. The other day an attractive young lady called and asked to see Mr. Bill Pool. Sambo went into the private office and delivered the message.

"I can't see her now; I'm engaged," snapped Bill.

Sambo came back, all sympathizing. "I'm sorry, Miss Ruby, but de boss done say he's already engaged. I guess it won't do us any good comin' around here no mo' 'til after he's maried.

Mr. Bill Pool was engaged in painting signs.

The Freshmen are doing good work in school now, as it is getting toward the time to take the mid-term exams.

THINK IT OVER

Is your child's digestion bad?
Blame the schools!
Is he sick, morose or sad,
Blame the schools!

Do your children learn to fight,
Do they lie awake at night,
Do they fail to do what's right?
Blame the schools!

Do your boys smoke cigarettes?
Blame the schools!
Are your girls all suffragets?
Blame the schools!

Do your children's shoes wear out—
That's the school board's fault, no doubt;
Are your children getting stout?
Blame the schools!

Are your children getting thin?
Blame the schools.
Do they choose the path of sin?
Blame the schools.

Do your children work too hard;
Are they playing round your yard;
Do they play the wicked card?
Blame the schools!

Is the noon recess too short—
Blame the schools.
Do they need more time for sport—
Blame the schools.

Is the noon recess too long—
Oh, that plan is surely wrong,
They should spend the time in song;
Blame the schools!

Is your child a nervous wreck—
Blame the schools.
Are there pimples on her neck—
Blame the schools.

Blame the schools for what they do,
And for what they don't do, too,
They should seek advice from you!
Blame the schools!

Do your children's teeth decay—
Blame the schools.
For the tax you have to pay,
Blame the schools.

For the teachers they have hired,
And the ones that they have fired,
Tell the board they make you tired;
Blame the schools.

Is your daughter's eyesight bad—
Blame the schools.
Is your son a little cad—
Blame the schools.

Do your children learn to swear,
Is there something in their hair,
Is there trouble anywhere?
Blame the schools!

If your daughters are too bold,
Blame the schools.
If the winters are too cold,
Blame the schools.

If you feel like being witty,
Here's a title for your ditty:
"Blame that Stupid School Committee
And the Schools!"

CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

DON'T FUSS WITH MUSTARD PLASTERS!

Musterole Works Without the Blister—Easier, Quicker

There's no sense in mixing a mess of mustard, flour and water when you can easily relieve pain, soreness or stiffness with a little clean, white Musterole.

Musterole is made of pure oil of mustard and other helpful ingredients, combined in the form of the present white ointment. It takes the place of mustard plasters, and will not blister.

Musterole usually gives prompt relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia). 35c and 65c, jars and tubes.

EASY TO MAKE SELF-FEEDERS

Devices May Be Constructed of Any Size Desired and With Any Number of Compartments.

In response to requests for instructions for making self-feeders for hogs W. H. Underwood, in Farm and Ranch, gives the following directions, the illustration giving a general idea of what the feeder looks like:

The illustration shows a hinged lid made of 1 by 8-inch boards, one lid being on each side of the top of the feeder. The dotted lines show the four compartments, three of the compartments being used for feed and the other for a mineral mixture. The outside of the feeder is covered with common siding such as is used in house building, the siding being nailed on the outside of the frame and the end boards nailed on the outside. The frame is made of 2 by 4-inch material. One by 8-inch boards hinged at ends swing free from about 1 1/2 inches from the bottom of the trough. The hogs root these boards when the feed is not coming fast enough or when feed is lodged on the side of the feeder. The troughs are made of heavy boards. A trough is on each side with a partition in the center. The platform is made of 2 by 4 pieces and heavy plank. The feeder is 12 feet long, 5 feet high and 3 feet wide at the top of the compartments.

One farmer wants to know if the feeder should be made on a concrete foundation. No, that is not necessary. But build it on a good, solid, firm wood foundation, and then when you want to move it from one place to another you can easily do so with a horse or mule. About 16 average size hogs can eat at the same time at the feeder shown in the accompanying sketch. Of course feeders may be made any size desired and with any number of compartments. When you have finished making a feeder give it a good coat of paint. It pays to keep such things around the farm well painted.

DEVELOPING HIGHWAYS SLOW

For Many Years Only Paved Roads Were in Cities—Government Finally Took Hold.

County and state governments took years to get momentum. For years the only paved highways were in the cities. Then ribbons of concrete and brick were extended through rural districts to other centers.

County and state governments took up the cause and then the nation got back of the movement with energy and funds.

In 1921 approximately 5,000 miles of concrete highways were completed and put into service in the United States. Pennsylvania alone built 640 miles; New York state 530 miles; Illinois 450 miles; Michigan and Wisconsin each about 340 miles; Ohio 200 miles, and other states have accomplished almost as much.

PROTEIN FOR YOUNG ANIMALS

One of Three Elements Necessary in Order That They May Thrive—Proportion Varies.

Protein is one of the three elements in feeds that are necessary in order that animals may thrive. The proportion of protein in feeds necessary for best results varies with the age and character of the animal being fed. For young and growing animals, and those bearing young or producing milk, an average of one pound of protein to five or six pounds of other constituents is about right.

SHEEP ARE EASY TO DOCTOR

Hundreds Die Each Year That Might Have Been Saved if Owner Had Taken Little Pains.

Sheep are easiest doctored of all our domestic animals. Hundreds of sheep die each year that might easily have been saved if the owner had gone to a little trouble. A sheep is very easy to drench. Why lose one? However, the best of all medicines is that given for prevention.

GOOD CARE AND REPAIR PROLONG LIFE OF EXPENSIVE FOOTWEAR

A Treatment of Petroleum Jelly and Beeswax Will Greatly Prolong the Life of Shoes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Shoes, even more than most other articles of clothing, need to be aired after wearing in order to prevent the perspiration from rotting the lining. It is a good plan, suggests the United States Department of Agriculture, in connection with its home economics work, to keep them on shoe-trees or stuffed with tissue paper, because in this way the wrinkles are forced out and the original shape is preserved. Wetting tends to spoil the appearance of shoes and to shorten their period of service; therefore overshoes should be worn in bad weather to protect the shoes. If shoes do get wet, they should be very slowly and carefully dried, for heat tends to crack the leather. It is especially important to restore the shape of wet shoes by shoe-trees or paper stuffing. Even with the most careful drying, moisture tends to rot the threads with which a shoe is sewn, and "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Arctics Afford Protection. For walking in snow or deep mud, arctics with rubber soles and waterproof cloth tops afford excellent protection, as do also rubber boots. When only a little protection is needed, the slip-on, or sandal, is comfortable and economical, for it covers the sole of the shoe but leaves the heel free. All types of rubber overshoes are now so expensive that they should be treated as carefully as the shoes they protect. They should be kept away from great heat, and set "right side up with care" to prevent their losing shape. They should also be washed, or brushed so that the grit on them may not wear down the surface.

It is economy to keep two pairs of shoes in use and wear them on alternate days; the thorough airing on shoe-trees or stuffed with paper keeps them fresher and more shapely so that each pair gives longer service. All shoes should be kept clean and well brushed. Leather shoes may be rubbed with vaseline to keep them soft, and also to keep moisture from passing so quickly through the leather. Only good polishes should be used. In using paste polishes, a brush is preferable to a cloth, as it will force the paste into all crevices. The shoes should stand a few minutes after the paste is applied; then they should be brushed with a flat, stiff brush and polished with a cloth or a buffer, a brush made of layers of cloth having a napped surface. A glove made of sheepskin with the wool on, such as is used for rubbing furniture, is also very good for polishing shoes.

Clean Canvas Shoes. White canvas shoes are usually cleaned with one of the commercial preparations for this purpose. If water is used, no more than necessary should be applied on the shoes and they must be cleaned on shoe-trees or stuffed with paper to prevent the canvas from shrinking. If they are badly soiled, they may be washed with soap that contains whitening, dried, and if necessary treated with a commercial cleaner. All traces of the cleaner should be carefully wiped from the edges of a canvas shoe's appearance. White suede and buckskin shoes are cleaned in much the same general way, but with special cleaners made for the purpose.

If there is sufficient space, a small chest for holding shoes may be added to the furnishings of the bedroom; or shoe bags hung on the inside of the closet door are good. Pairs of bags in different colors are very useful for packing shoes when traveling; they keep the shoes from being scratched, prevent them from soiling other articles, and make it possible to sort out a particular pair quickly.

Good Care of Shoes. Run-down heels spoil the shape of shoes and should be leveled at once. If the shoes are of good leather, well-shapely, and well made, it is worth while to have full soles hand-sewed on them and new heels put on when the first set wears through. Shoes thus mended will outwear those repaired with ordinary half soles, and also have a much better appearance. Brass rather than iron nails in the heels make less noise in walking. Rubber heels prevent jarring in walking and for this reason are very comfortable; for some persons they seem to wear longer than leather heels.

HONEY CAKES USEFUL FOR CHANGE IN DIET

One Especially Adapted for Use in Emergencies.

Will Become Hard on Cooling and Will Not Be Soft Enough for Use for Several Weeks—It Will Keep for Long Period.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Honey can be used to advantage in making cakes and cookies and make a pleasing change in the diet. Here is a cake recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture, especially adapted to keeping on hand for emergencies.

Hard Honey Cake.
 1/2 cupful honey 1/2 teaspoonful cloves
 1/2 cupful sugar 1/2 cupful flour
 1 egg Speck white pepper
 1/2 teaspoonful ginger 1/2 teaspoonful soda
 1 teaspoonful cinnamon 1 tablespoonful water
 1/2 teaspoonful ground cardamom 2 ounces blanched almonds chopped fine

Sift together the flour and spices, dissolve the soda in the water, beat the egg and combine all the ingredients. Beat or knead the mixture thoroughly. Cook a small sample. If it does not rise sufficiently, add a little more soda and honey; if it falls, add a little more flour. Roll out the dough to the thickness of about three-fourths of an inch and bake in a hot oven. When the cake is done, glaze it with a thick sirup of sugar and water and allow it to dry in a slow oven or in some other warm place. While it is still warm, cut it into long strips. Or it may be left in one large cake, to be cut into very thin slices when served. This cake will become very hard on cooling and will not be soft enough to eat for several weeks, but will keep in good condition for an indefinite length of time.

The children will like these cookies:

Honey Bran Cookies.
 1 cupful bran 1/2 teaspoonful ginger
 1/2 cupful sugar 1/2 cupful honey
 1/2 cupful flour Speck white pepper
 1 egg Speck salt
 1/2 teaspoonful cinnamon 1/2 cupful milk
 1/2 teaspoonful cardamom 1/2 cupful melted butter

Mix the sugar, cinnamon, ginger and soda with the bran and add the other ingredients. Drop from a spoon upon a buttered pan and bake about fifteen minutes.

Household Questions

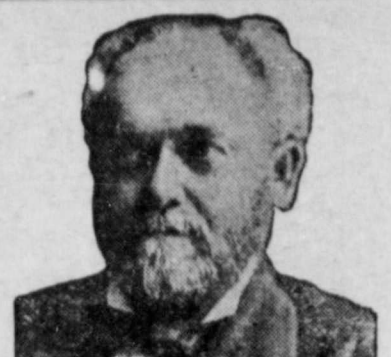

Iron colored things while still damp. To clean stains from steel knives rub them with powdered bath brick.

Worn tablecloths may be cut into squares and hemstitched to make extra napkins.

Oilcloth aprons are work savers. They are wiped with a damp cloth when soiled in place of being sent to the laundry.

Zinc utensils can be cleaned with soda water, afterwards polishing them with a cloth dipped in turpentine and bath brick.

Eggs covered with boiling water and allowed to stand seven minutes are more nourishing and easier digested than eggs placed in boiling water and allowed to boil furiously for three and a half minutes.

A MAN WHO BECAME FAMOUS

Doctor R. V. Pierce, whose picture appears above, was not only a successful physician, but also a profound student of the medicinal qualities of Nature's remedies, roots and herbs, and by close observation of the methods used by the Indians, he discovered their great remedial qualities, especially for weaknesses of women, and after careful preparation succeeded in giving to the world a remedy which has been used by women with the best results for half a century. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is still in great demand, while many other so-called "cure-alls" have come and gone. The reason for its phenomenal success is because of its absolute purity, and Dr. Pierce's high standing as an honored citizen of Buffalo is a guarantee of all that is claimed for the Favorite Prescription as a regulator for the ill-peculiar to women.

VERY WEAK

Mississippi Lady Says Her Case Was Stubborn, But She Kept Taking Cardui Till She Was Well.

Kokomo, Miss.—In telling how she regained her health by taking Cardui, the woman's tonic, Mrs. B. D. Stephens, of R. F. D. 1, here, said:

"I was in a very weakened state. I would suffer so I would get upon my knees in bed and hold to the posts to get up."

"I was in a very bad fix. . . and I took different medicines, yet I wasted away, nervous, thin and weak—just a shadow."

"I knew Cardui had helped others, so I decided to use it. I sent for it at once and began taking. My case was stubborn and at first I didn't see any change. But after a couple of bottles I began to feel stronger. I kept on until I was well, and Cardui did it. It is the best tonic I ever saw for womanly weakness."

Presage Styles for Spring;

Styles for the Little Ones

FOR the younger girls, the last coats for winter are very simple in line and becoming to their slim, youthful figures, and those for spring show no radical departure in styles. In colors, beige, sand, pheasant, castor and golden brown shades are favored, and these soft tones make a lovely background for embroideries in colored wool, on coats for little girls. Besides these colors, certain green shades are shown, with the usual order of colors used, reversed; for these are often decorated with beige-colored braid or narrow borders of gazelle fur, or both.

It is good business to buy coats for the younger girls at the after Christmas sales, providing conservative colors and designs are chosen. A coat like that pictured, in dark gray velours, with collar of squirrel fur, will be good style for several seasons, at least until it is outgrown. It has deep armholes and wide sleeves, smartly trimmed with rows of flat silk braid and finished with turn-back cuffs. It is finished over a plain belt at a low waistline and fastens with large buttons in groups of two at the neck and belt line.

Judging from recent French importations, Paris is inclined to feature the sleeves in coats for the younger girls. One model has a wing sleeve—a cape-like portion cut in one with the coat sleeve. Another, of light beige velours has deep armholes and sleeves split along the top, where plaited crepe is set in. One side of the split is decorated with a row of round buttons and the other with simulated buttonholes. A model for a little girl—from Lanvin—is covered with latticework embroidery and Patou sponsors a short jacket, open down the front and bloused over a hip band.

Its attractive bit in round collars and cuffs. In lines the new dresses differ very little from those of last year; sleeves are usually a little shorter than elbow length, and sometimes very short, amounting to a puff or cap at the top of the arm. The majority of the dresses are straight-line models like the two pictured, but there are some quaint affairs with "baby" waists and puffed sleeves.

Plain voile, batiste, or other fine, sturdy cottons make the dressier frocks of the littlest girls, like those shown in the picture, with embroidery of colored cotton floss. For similar wear there are especially printed silks

Applique of solid color fabric on bright printed sateen, in triangles and other figures is new and odd.

DAIRY

TO INCREASE DAIRY PROFITS

Wideawake Dairy Farmers Have Seen Larger Demand and Are Acting Accordingly.

Campaigns by large dairy companies urging the public to drink more milk increase trade channels from the farm to the city immeasurably. With this increased demand, however, has come an increased vigilance by health societies to safeguard the consumer.

Accordingly, wideawake dairy farmers have foreseen this condition and have provided for marketing their milk in a sanitary manner. Milk is probably more readily susceptible to contamination than any other food product.

In order that milk may be delivered in a sweet, clean sanitary condition, it is essential that it be isolated in a cool, modernly equipped building in its progression from the cow to the market.

A good milk house is an invaluable aid in the production of high-quality milk. Concrete construction, either monolithic or block, is ideal because it is permanent, vermin-proof and highly sanitary. Such a structure should be located with regard to convenience, but it is better that it be separated from the stables to prevent the milk from being tainted by stable odors.

A very serviceable milk house is a type that can be constructed with the use of circular monolithic silo forms, similar to the one shown in the illustration. A foundation which extends two or three feet into the ground or to the limit of frost is the first step. The silo forms are used just as in making a silo, except that boards must be set in the forms to cut out portions of the wall which are to form doorways or windows. Heavy reinforcement is not necessary, 3/4-inch rods 20 inches on the center extending in both directions being amply sufficient. A conical roof can also be constructed similar to the type that is employed in silo construction. A small ventilator in the peak of the roof with a damper that can be opened or closed, is a desirable aid in getting a good circulation of fresh air.

Every milk house should be provided with a concrete cooling tank, the depth of which is governed by the height of the cans; it is desirable to have the cans stand submerged as much as possible. Circulating water through the tank and around the cans will keep the milk cool. To lighten the labor of lifting and moving cans in and out of the tank, part of its depth should be below floor level, and for the same reason, the width of the tank should be limited to convenient arm's reach, which is about that of the diameter of two cans. The remainder of the floor should be covered with concrete made in a single layer four inches thick and troweled to a smooth surface that will not harbor dirt.

The concrete used throughout should be of a mixture of one part of cement to two parts of well-graded sand to four parts of pebbles or broken stone, with the exception of the cooling tank which has a 1:1 1/2:3 mixture to insure its being watertight.

For Better Dairying.

1. Use purebred sires.
2. Test all of the cows and eliminate the poor ones.
3. Keep only the heifers from the best cows.
4. Feed well so as to secure economical results.
5. Test for tuberculosis.
6. Produce a clean product.

8. Talk consumption of dairy products.
9. Be up to date.
10. Work.—Harold R. Lacey, Fieldman, Colorado State Dairy Commission.

Plans to Eliminate Slackers. The policy being adopted by many is to eliminate slackers and then feed the better cows a ration that will enable them to produce greater profits.

Cow's Life is Arduous. People in general regard the dairy cow's life as one of ease, whereas it is a fact that she works harder than other domestic animals.

Best Milk Producers. Cows that freshen in the fall are the best milk producers.

TAKE NO CALOMEL

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Straightens You Up Better Than Salivating, Dangerous Calomel and Doesn't Upset You—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Read Guarantee

I discovered a vegetable compound that does the work of dangerous, sickening calomel and I want every reader of this paper to buy a bottle for a few cents and if it doesn't straighten you up better and quicker than salivating calomel just go back to the store and get your money back.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your thirty feet of bowels of the sour bile and constipation poison which is making you feel miserable.

I guarantee that one spoonful of this harmless liquid liver medicine will relieve the headache, biliousness, coated tongue, ague, malaria, sour stomach or any other distress caused by a torpid liver as quickly as a dose of vile, nauseating calomel, besides it will not make you sick or keep you from a day's work.

Calomel is poison—it's mercury—it attacks the bones often causing rheumatism. Calomel is dangerous. It sickens—while my Dodson's Liver Tone is safe, pleasant and harmless. Eat anything afterwards, because it can not salivate. Give it to the children because it doesn't upset the stomach or shock the liver. Take a spoonful tonight and wake up feeling fine and ready for a full day's work.

Moses Really Not Entirely to Blame for His Lapse From the Path of Virtue.

Moses was before the court for stealing a turkey. The judge kindly asked him: "Moses, why did you steal a turkey?"

"I don't know, yo' honeh."
"That is strange, Moses, that you don't know why. But do you know if it tasted good?"
"It shu did, yo' honeh."

"Now, Moses, how can a man enjoy stolen turkey?"
Moses in humility bowed his head. The judge continued: "Remember the commandment, 'Thou shalt not steal.' Don't you know, Moses, you have two spirits watching you every day—the good spirit to your right, the evil spirit to your left? Tell me, how could you offend your good spirit?"

"Yo' makes it clear, yo' honeh. I see now de real cause, fo' I is left-handed."—Judge.

MADE HER SOMEWHAT WEARY

Disillusioned Manicurist Open in Her Criticism of Certain Peculiarities of Her Sex.

The Woman was having a manicure and the little, young manicurist was telling of a second romance which had ended in a most disillusioning way.

"I don't know whether I'll ever trust another man again," she said. "I don't think I ever want to marry. And yet I see these middle-aged women come in here and make such fools of themselves with our men hairdressers. They love to have their heads massaged and their hair combed and to be made a fuss over—and then pay a lot, including a big tip, for the attention! They get foreigners for this work, because the women feel foreigners 'understand' that all this isn't foolish, whereas American workers would be too apt to make fun of them. But they make such fools of themselves—draw the curtain and say, 'Dear Mr. Alphonse, the nerves of my head must be soothed.' And almost all of them are unmarried, warped old maids. Oh, dear, I'd hate to be the way they are. Maybe I'll not say that I'll never marry!"—Chicago Journal.

Absent-Minded Man's Ingenious Reason for Making Use of Profane Combination for Safe.

E. Fornier d'Albe is the inventor of the optophone, a machine which, by transforming print into light rays and thence into musical sounds, permits the blind to read.

Professor d'Albe said, modestly in an interview in New York:

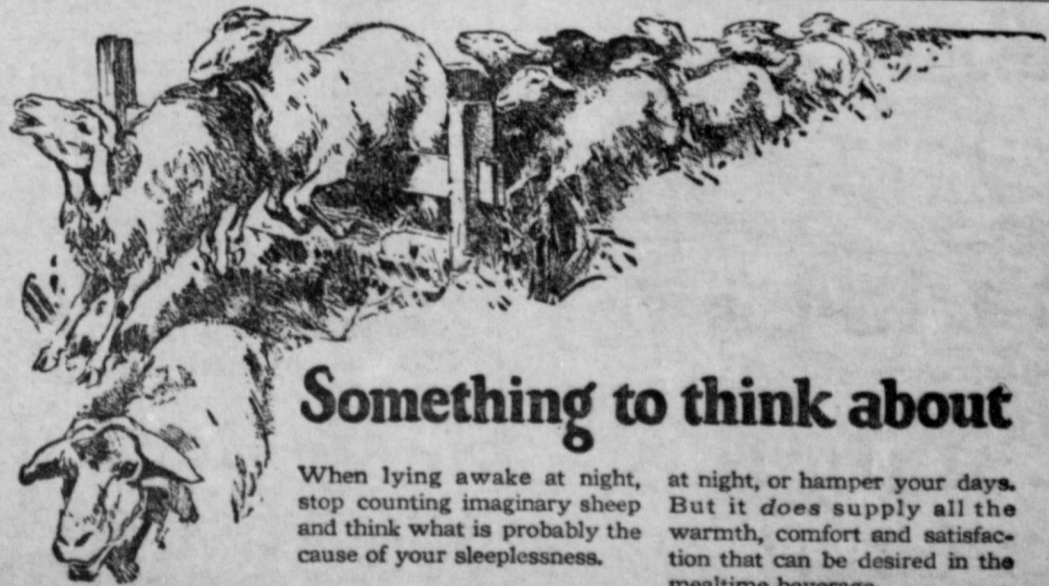

"Yes, my optophone is rather ingenious. It is almost as ingenious as your American business man who used for the combination of his safe the queer words, 'Oh, hell!'"

"A lady asked him why he used such a queer combination as that. He answered:

"I have a very poor memory, and so, you see, ma'am, whenever I forget the combination it comes to me."

Truth is single and naked and needs not inventive to apparel her comeliness.

It doesn't follow that, if you have a good opinion of yourself, you should have a poor one of others.

MISS LULU BETT

By ZONA GALE
Copyright by D. Appleton & Company

VI—Continued.

Next day there came a message from that woman who had brought up Dwight—"made him what he was," he often complacently accused her. It was a note on a postal card—she had often written a few lines on a postal card to say that she had sent the maple sugar, or could Ina get her some samples. Now she wrote a few lines on a postal card to say that she was going to die with cancer. Could Dwight and Ina come to her while she was still able to visit? If he was not too busy. . . .

Nobody saw the pity and the terror of that postal card. They struck it up by the kitchen clock to read over from time to time, and before they left, Dwight lifted the griddle of the cooking-stove and burned the postal card. And before they left Lulu said: "Dwight—you can't tell how long you'll be gone?"

"Of course not. How should I tell?"

"No. And that letter might come while you're away."

"Conceivably. Letters do come while a man's away!"

"Dwight—I thought if you wouldn't mind if I opened it—"

"Opened it?"

"Yes. You see, it'll be about me mostly—"

"I should have said that it'll be about my brother mostly."

"But you know what I mean. You wouldn't mind if I did open it?"

"But you say you know what'll be in it."

"So I did know—(I'll you—I've got to see that letter, Dwight.)"

"And so you shall. But not till I show it to you. My dear Lulu, you know how I hate having my mail interfered with."

"She might have said: 'Small souls always make a point of that.' She said nothing. She watched them set off, and kept her mind on Ina's thousand injunctions.

"Don't let Di see much of Bobby Larkin. And Lulu—if it occurs to her to have Mr. Cornish come up to sing, of course you ask him. You might ask him to supper. And don't let mother overdo. And Lulu, now do watch Monona's handkerchief—the child will never take a clean one if I'm not here to tell her. . . ."

She breathed injunctions to the very step of the bus.

In the bus Dwight leaned forward: "See that you play post office squarely, Lulu!" he called, and threw back his head and lifted his eyebrows.

In the train he turned tragic eyes to his wife.

"Ina," he said. "It's ma. And she's going to die. It can't be. . ."

Ina said: "But you're going to help her, Dwight, just being there with her."

It was true that the mere presence of the man would bring a kind of fresh life to that worn frame. Tact and wisdom and love would speak through him and minister.

Toward the end of their week's absence the letter from Ninian came.

Lulu took it from the post office when she went for the mail that evening, dressed in her dark red gown. There was no other letter, and she carried that one letter in her hand all through the streets. She passed those who were surmising what her story might be, who were telling one another what they had heard. But she knew hardly more than they. She passed Cornish in the doorway of his little music shop, and spoke with him; and there was the letter. It was so that Dwight's foster mother's postal card might have looked on its way to be mailed.

Cornish stepped down and overtook her.

"Oh, Miss Lulu, I've got a new song or two—"

She said abstractedly: "Do. Any night. Tomorrow night—could you—"

It was as if Lulu were too preoccupied to remember to be ill at ease.

Cornish flushed with pleasure, said that he could indeed.

"Come for supper," Lulu said.

Oh, could he? Wouldn't that be. . . . Well, say! Such was his acceptance.

He came for supper. And Di was not at home. She had gone off in the country with Jenny and Bobby, and they merely did not return.

Mrs. Bett and Lulu and Cornish and Monona supped alone. All were at ease, now that they were alone. Especially Mrs. Bett was at ease. It became one of her young nights, her alive and lucid nights. She was there. She sat in Dwight's chair and Lulu sat in Ina's chair. Lulu had picked flowers for the table—a task coveted by her but usually performed by Ina. Lulu had now picked Sweet William and had filled a vase of silver gilt taken from the parlor. Also, Lulu had made ice cream.

"I don't see what Di can be thinking of," Lulu said. "It seems like asking you under false—"

She was afraid of "pretenses" and ended without it.

Cornish savored his steaming beef pie, with sage. "Oh, well," he said, contentedly.

"Kind of a relief, I think, to have her gone," said Mrs. Bett, from the fullness of something or other.

"Mother!" Lulu said, twisting her smile.

"Why, my land, I love her," Mrs. Bett explained, "but she wiggles and chatters."

Cornish never made the slightest effort, at any time, to keep a straight face. The honest fellow now laughed loudly.

"Well!" Lulu thought. "He can't be so very much in love." And again she thought: "He doesn't know anything about the letter. He thinks Ninian got tired of me." Deep down in her heart there abode her certainty that this was not so.

By some etiquette of consent, Mrs. Bett cleared the table and Lulu and Cornish went into the parlor. There lay the letter on the drop-leaf side-table, among the shells. Lulu had carried it there, where she need not see it at her work. The letter looked no more than the advertisement of dental office furniture beneath it. Monona stood indifferently fingering both.

"Monona," Lulu said sharply, "leave them be!"

Cornish was displaying his music. "Got up quite attractive," he said—it was his formula of praise for his music.

"But we can't try it over," Lulu said, "if Di doesn't come."

"Well, say," said Cornish shyly, "you know I left that Album of Old Favorites here. Some of them we know by heart."

Lulu looked. "I'll tell you something," she said; "there's some of these I can play with one hand—by ear. Maybe—"

"Why, sure!" said Cornish.

Lulu sat at the piano. She had on the wool chally, long sacred to the nights when she must combine her servant's estate with the quality of being Ina's sister. She wore her coral beads and her cameo cross. In her absence she had caught the trick of dressing her hair so that it looked even more abundant—but she had not dared to try it so until tonight, when Dwight was gone. Her long wrist was curved high, her thin hand pressed and fingered awkwardly, and at her mistakes her head dipped and strove to make all right. Her foot continuously touched the loud pedal—the blurred sound seemed to accomplish more. So she played "How Can I Leave Thee," and they managed to sing it. So she played "Long, Long Ago," and "Little Nell of Narragansett Bay." Beyond open doors, Mrs. Bett listened, sang, it may be, with them; for when the singers ceased, her voice might be heard still humming a loud closing bar.

"Well!" Cornish cried to Lulu; and then, in the formal village phrase: "You're quite a musician."

"Oh, no!" Lulu disclaimed it. She looked up, flushed, smiling. "I've never done this in front of anybody," she owned. "I don't know what Dwight and Ina'd say. . . . She drooped.

They rested and, miraculously, the air of the place had stirred and quickened, as if the crippled, halting melody had some power of its own, and poured this forth, even thus trampled.

"I guess you could do 'most anything you set your hand to," said Cornish.

"Oh, no," Lulu said again. "Sing and play and cook—"

"But I can't earn anything. I'd like to earn something." But this she had not meant to say. She stopped, rather frightened.

"You would! Why, you have it fine here, I thought."

"Oh, fine, yes. Dwight gives me what I have. And I do their work."

"I see," said Cornish. "I never thought of that," he added. She caught his speculative look—he had heard a tale or two concerning her return, as who in Warbleton had not heard?

"You're wondering why I didn't stay with him!" Lulu said recklessly. This was no less than wrung from her, but its utterance occasioned in her an unspeakable relief.

"Oh, no," Cornish disclaimed, and colored and rocked.

"Yes, you are," she swept on. "The whole town's wondering. Well, I'd like 'em to know, but Dwight won't let me tell."

Cornish frowned, trying to understand.

"Won't let you?" he repeated. "I should say that was your own affair."

"No. Not when Dwight gives me all I have."

"Oh, that—" said Cornish. "That's not right."

"No. But there it is. It puts me—you see what it does to me. They think—they all think my—husband left me."

It was curious to hear her bring out that word—tentatively, deprecatingly, like some one darning a foreign phrase without warrant.

Cornish said feebly: "Oh, well. . . ."

Before she willed it, she was telling him:

"He didn't. He didn't leave me," she cried with passion. "He had another wife." Incredibly it was as if she were defending both him and herself.

"Lord sakes!" said Cornish.

She poured it out, in her passion to tell some one, to share her news of her state where there would be neither hardness nor censure.

"We were in Savannah, Georgia," she said. "We were going to leave for Oregon—going to go through California. We were in the hotel, and he was going out to get the tickets. He started to go. Then he came back. I was sitting the same as there. He opened the door again—the same as here. I saw he looked different—and he said quick: 'There's something you ought to know before we go.'"

And, of course, I said, 'What? And he said it right out—how he was married eighteen years ago and in two years she ran away and she must be dead, but he wasn't sure. He hadn't the proofs. So, of course, I came home. But it wasn't him left me."

"No, no. Of course he didn't," Cornish said earnestly. "But, Lord's sakes—" he said again. He rose to walk about, found it impracticable and sat down.

"That's what Dwight don't want me to tell—he thinks it isn't true. He thinks he didn't have any other wife. He thinks he wanted—"

Lulu looked up at him. "You see," she said, "Dwight thinks he didn't want me."

"But why don't you make your husband—I mean, why doesn't he write to Mr. Deacon here, and tell him the truth—"

Cornish burst out.

Under this implied belief, she relaxed and into her face came its rare sweetness.

"He has written," she said. "The letter's there."

He followed her look, scowled at the two letters.

"What'd he say?"

"Dwight don't like me to touch his mail. I'll have to wait till he comes back."

"Lord sakes!" said Cornish.

This time he did rise and walk about. He wanted to say something, wanted it with passion. He paused beside Lulu and stammered:

"You—you—you're too nice a girl to get a deal like this. Darned if you aren't."

To her own complete surprise Lulu's eyes filled with tears, and she could not speak. She was by no means above self-sympathy.

"And there ain't," said Cornish sorrowfully, "there ain't a thing I can do."

And yet he was doing much. He was gentle, he was listening, and on his face a frown of concern. His face continually surprised her, it was so fine and alive and near, by comparison with Ninian's loose-lipped, ruddy, impersonal look and Dwight's thin, impish hardness. All the time Cornish gave her something, instead of drawing upon her. Above all, he was there, and she could talk to him.

"It's—it's funny," Lulu said. "I'd be awful glad if I just could know for sure that the other woman was alive—if I couldn't know she's dead."

This surprising admission Cornish seemed to understand.

"Sure you would," he said briefly. "Cora Waters," Lulu said. "Cora Waters, of San Diego, California. And she never heard of me."

"No," Cornish admitted. They stared at each other as across some abyss.

In the doorway Mrs. Bett appeared. "I scraped up everything," she remarked, "and left the dishes set."

"That's right, mamma," Lulu said. "Come and sit down."

Mrs. Bett entered with a leisurely air of doing the thing next expected of her.

"I don't hear any more play'n and singin'," she remarked. "It sounded real nice."

"We—we sung all I knew how to play, I guess, mamma."

"I use to play on the melodeon," Mrs. Bett volunteered, and spread and examined her right hand.

"Well!" said Cornish.

She now told them about her log-house in a New England clearing, when she was a bride. All her store of drama and life came from her. She rehearsed it with far eyes. She laughed at old delusions, drooped at old fears. She told about her little daughter who had died at sixteen—a tragedy such as once would have been renewed in a vital ballad. At the end she yawned frankly as if, in some terrible sophistication, she had been telling the story of some one else.

"Give us one more piece," she said.

"Can we?" Cornish asked.

"I can play 'I Think When I Read That Sweet Story of Old,'" Lulu said. "That's the ticket!" said Cornish. They sang it to Lulu's right hand.

"That's the one you picked out when you was a little girl, Lulu," cried Mrs. Bett.

Choosing a Man for Husband

By H. IRVING KING

(©, 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Peter Hampden was thirty-five and looked ten years older, for his had been a busy life, from which he had cut out all superfluous like yachting, golfing and marriage. When barely of age he had been known in the street as "the old young man." How a man of thirty-five came to be trustee of a young lady approaching twenty-five was this way. Candice Minturn's grandfather had, by will, appointed Peter's father trustee of the estate of his orphaned granddaughter, with power to appoint his successor, and Peter's father had bequeathed the trust to Peter. After Candice had done with her finishing school Peter had seen a great deal of her, for John Randall and he had many business interests together, and it was with Mr. and Mrs. Randall that Candice made her home, Mrs. Randall being Candice's aunt.

In summer Peter was constantly running down to the Randall country place for the week-end, reconciling himself to such an indulgence by the fact that there he could talk shop with John without fear of interference by other business men. But if Peter saw a great deal of Candice he also saw a great deal of a certain antique sideboard he had in his bachelor lodgings. He admired them both and was watchful that nothing untoward happened to either—but to Peter a sideboard was only a sideboard and a girl was only a girl. They were all (except the sideboard) down at the Randall country place on Long Island.

The house was full of guests, as usual, for Mrs. Randall was fond of entertaining, and, moreover, was determined that Candice should have an opportunity to select a first-class article in the way of a husband. Candice was horribly hard to suit, her aunt thought, but she nevertheless went on displaying her wares and discoursing on the texture and quality of each exhibit like a good saleslady.

She had considerable hope of making a sale this season. Willie Anstruthers and Calvin George were paying fast and furious court to Candice, and for a wonder Candice appeared to be encouraging them. Peter, who had just arrived, was sitting with Mrs. Randall on the piazza when Candice, with a young man in attendance, came strolling from the direction of Peter, I am so glad to catch you alone. I have been watching for an opportunity to ask your advice." She always called him Mr. Peter. It was a compromise between Peter and Mr. Hampden.

"My dear Candice," replied the man of business, "as your trustee, to give you advice is of course my duty—as well as pleasure—yes, pleasure, I am sure. What is it? Your investments are—"

"Oh, it isn't money," cried Candice a trifle petulantly. "It's about—well about getting married."

"Mrs. Randall said something on the subject to me this afternoon," replied Peter. "There are two young men under consideration, I understand. The matter is entirely outside my jurisdiction. I am merely trustee of your property. But since you consult me I must say that I don't see why you need be married at all."

"But it is rather expected of one—isn't it?" replied Candice demurely.

"Well, yes—of women I suppose it is rather expected," admitted Peter reluctantly.

"Willie Anstruthers is a very nice young man," ventured Candice.

"Humph! Don't fancy him," growled Peter.

"And Calvin George is considered a great catch," she went on.

"No business ability whatever," said Peter, emphatically. "But of course if you are really in love with either of these young men—but this is entirely outside of my jurisdiction."

"But suppose," said Candice, "that I wasn't in love with either of them, but with some one else?"

"Oh, in that case—what sort of business man is this other?"

"An excellent one," replied Candice, with a little giggle.

"And of a suitable age?"

"Just ten years older than myself," shyly.

"Correct in his habits?"

"Oh, remarkably so."

"These things are important," went on Peter, "for when my trusteeship terminates your husband would naturally be the one to look after your business matters. He will find everything in order and that your fortune has considerably increased under my care—which reminds me that the time is fast approaching when by the terms of your grandfather's will, I must relinquish the supervision of your affairs."

"And you say that my husband would naturally be the person to look after them?" asked Candice.

"Yes, when I give them up," replied Peter.

"But I don't want you to give them up."

"Why?" asked Peter.

"You are too stupid for anything," cried Candice angrily as she arose and hurried away. Outside of business Peter could not see an inch beyond his nose—and it was a remarkably short nose, too. Candice's angry parting outburst had left him utterly bewildered—but it set his mind at work thinking of the young lady, her ways, her looks and her mental qualities in an analytical manner which heretofore he had never employed with regard to them. At last he said to himself: "Well, she will be a prize for somebody," and with a sigh arose and went to bed. But his sleep was broken and his dreams were all of Candice. By morning his mind was made up; the true state of his heart had been revealed to him—but he felt like saying all the time: "This is so sudden." And it was Candice scarcely spoke to him all day; avoided him openly and ostentatiously went out for a long morning's walk with Willie Anstruthers. But in the evening Peter caught her alone for a minute and said: "Candice, I would like to continue the management of your estate—as your husband."

"Oh, thanks, awfully," replied Candice perily. "But I accepted Willie Anstruthers for the job this morning."

At this Peter let himself go. Was he, indeed, too late? All the love and passion which had been lying dormant for years came to life and turned to burning words of pleading upon his lips.

"I am afraid," said Candice interrupting him, "that you were a trifle slow at—there is aunt calling me," and she ran swiftly away.

Peter strolled moodily out to the grove and there, in the dark shadows of the trees, came across Willie Anstruthers walking pensively. "Mr. Anstruthers," said Peter, "I understand that Miss Minturn has accepted your suit. As her trustee—"

"I'm not," cried Willie. "The estate! She gave me the mitred benefit of clergy this fore-

Although barbers are not often expressly mentioned, yet from the constant mention of shaving and the incident of Deillah sending for a man to shave Samson, there can be no doubt that his class existed among the ancients. The Hebrews were particularly careful of their heads and beards, and all seem to have applied the razor except the Nazirites, who were untouched by it from their birth. The Egyptian barbers were called khak or shavers, and they are represented at work in a tomb of Beni-Hassan, of the Twelfth dynasty, holding their razors in the hand, which have a short cylindrical handle, with a broad, flat blade of bronze on a line with the axis of the handle.

Added Things. Prosperity, enjoyment, happiness, comfort, peace, whatever be the name by which we designate that state in which life is to our own selves pleasant and delightful, as long as they are sought or prized as things essential, so far they have a tendency to disengage our nature, and are a sign that we are still in servitude to selfishness. Only when they lie outside us, as ornaments merely to be worn or laid aside as God pleases—only then may such things be possessed with impunity.—Froude.

Pigeons Die Where They Roost.

"During my 25 years' experience as a steeplejack," an Englishman writes, "climbing city spires and other lofty structures, I have seen hundreds of dead pigeons. They die where they roost, in the belfries, on beams or any projections inside the spires; often on their nests. On each occasion that I have climbed the Nelson column I have found scores of pigeons' skeletons on top behind the capitol."

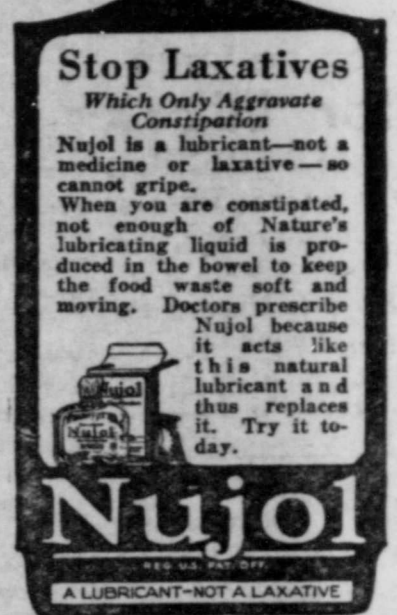

MRS. G. W. HALL SICK FOR YEARS

Wants Women to Know How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lima, Ohio.—"Indeed, your medicine is all you say it is! I had very severe troubles such as women often have, and could do no heavy work. I was sick for several years, and from reading your ads. I finally decided to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now doing my own washing, which I haven't done for several years, and can walk long distances without those dragging pains and weak feelings. The Vegetable Compound is fine, and I never forget to say a good word for it to other women when they say they need something."—Mrs. G. W. HALL, 639 Hazel Avenue, Lima, Ohio.

There are many women who find their household duties almost unbearable owing to some weakness or derangement. The trouble may be slight, yet cause such annoying symptoms as dragging pains, weakness and a run-down feeling.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for such conditions. It has in many cases relieved those symptoms by removing the cause of them. Mrs. Hall's experience is but one of many.

Belated Enjoyment.

She—I see by the paper that the concert we went to last night was a tremendous success.

He—Yes, I had no idea we enjoyed it half so much at the time.

"HAPPY JIM" HERE

Baron James V. Auriemma, representing the Salvation Army, was in Hedley Tuesday in the interest of his work. During the day he visited and entertained the pupils of the school, and at night gave a concert to a crowded house at the Methodist church. He was assisted by Robt. Watkins, Misses Imogere Moreman, Mary Noel and Pope Walker.

"Happy Jim," as he is known over the country, is an Italian nobleman, a great singer, and a man of most pleasing personality. His Hedley visit netted the Army about $50.

SPENT $750.00 TO NO AVAIL WITH DOCTORS

Ware's Baby Powder Relieved His Baby of Intestinal Indigestion in 48 Hours Cured in a Few Days

Geo. W. Thomas, prominent citizen of Shreveport, La., wrote us July 23, 1919, of this experience with his baby boy: "Eight years ago my baby boy, then three months old, was in constant pain, crying continuously, suffering from intestinal indigestion, and after spending $750.00 with the doctors, I got a box of Ware's Baby Powder, and in 48 hours my baby was relieved and in a few days was entirely well."

What a Housa, La., Mother Says About It

Mrs. Aledore Picou, 803 East Park Ave., Housa, La., writes us March 30, 1922, as follows: "Please send me twenty (20) boxes of your Ware's Baby Powder by parcel post, c. o. d. I have used your baby powder in my own home and many of my friends want your Ware's Baby Powder because they have seen what it did in my home. One of my children weighed 13 1/2 pounds before he began using your Baby Powder, before two months had passed he had gained nine pounds; and today he weighs 29 1/2 pounds and is in perfect health."

For over forty years, Ware's Baby Powder—the prescription of Dr. James Ware, famous old Southern physician—has been a healing boon to babies for bowel troubles, teething and summer complaints, etc. Keep the stomach and bowels in a healthy condition and you need have no fear of these distressing troubles so general among babies especially during the teething period. Perfectly harmless, mixed according to directions, in a teaspoonful of Ware's Baby Powder, a half teaspoonful of sugar, add enough water to make four doses, children love to take it. At your drug store, in 50c and $1.00 packages. Prepared in the laboratories of The Ware Chemical Co., Dallas, Texas. Adv. No. 4

AMERICAN LEGION

NOTES

ATTENTION! EX SERVICE MEN

Adams Lane Post No 287 have called a special meeting for Friday evening, February 2nd, at 8 o'clock. This meeting will be open to Ex Service Men only.

Our purpose for this meeting is to discuss some issues that have arisen in and outside of this Post. Also to open our Club Room.

A CORRECTION

It has come to our notice that the pool table installed in our club room has been designated "A Private Pool Hall in a Public Place." This is an error. It is merely a private pool table in the American Legion club rooms.

CONSTITUTION PREAMBLE

For God and Country, we associate ourselves together for the following purposes: To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a one hundred per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the Great War; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy, to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness.—Preamble to the Constitution of the American Legion.

Executive Committee.

THE DORCAS GLASS

Mrs. T. B. Berry was hostess to the Dorcas Class at the regular monthly meeting last Friday. Some business was attended to, including the election of a Treasurer to take the place of Mrs. Conner, who has moved to Lella Lake. Mrs. Gl. de Bridges was elected to this office.

The following interesting program was given:

The Progress of our Sunday School in 1922. Mrs. Mobley.

Progress of the Dorcas Class—Mrs. Bridges.

How We as a Class Can Strive to Make Our New Year, 1923, a Bigger, Better Year than 1922 Has Been—Mrs. Clements.

The Class is glad to know that our President, Mrs. Peninger, who is in the hospital at Clarendon, is now getting along nicely.

Dainty refreshments were served to several members and two guests.

BRAY ITEMS

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Bain and family of Naylor were guests in the J. C. Hill home Saturday night and Sunday.

Last Sunday was a very busy day for the Bray community. Rev. and Mrs. John Crow and Will Allen, Jewell Everett and Presiding Elder John Henson were here during the day. Rev. Henson had charge of the 11 o'clock services. His sermon at that hour was greatly enjoyed by all who were privileged to hear him.

After Sunday school, at two o'clock in the afternoon, the people were again privileged to hear the Elder, this time on the subject of the Sunday school lesson, "The Rich Man and Lazarus." After this short talk, he held the first quarterly conference of the year with the Bray Methodist church.

Naylor was well represented at Bray Sunday. Quite a number came from Hedley, too. Welcome; come again.

Little Henry Cooper, better known as "Snooks," has been very sick with appendicitis, and was taken to the hospital at Clarendon for an operation. However, it is now thought he will not be compelled to undergo an operation, but may return home soon, for which everyone is very thankful and glad.

On Tuesday night many of the community met at the school house, each bringing things for distribution to a family in need. An estimate of the amount collected was about $40.00, which was turned over to Fletcher Bannister to be given to the family. The gifts were gladly received and very much appreciated by the recipients.
