Saturday Market March 3 LISTEN! LOOK! HEED!

The teachers of the Primary Department of the Methodist Sunday School held their regular meeting Tuesday afternoon. Under the wise counsel of our wide awake Superintendent, Mrs. U. J. Boston, we are certainly making progress.

Bro. Young, Mr. Neely and Mr. McDaniel are doing some neat work for us, and we will soon be in good shape for visitors and new members.

To help pay for material we agreed that on Saturday, March 3rd, we would have a Market in town. Every one who is interested come and buy Cakes, Pies, etc., for your Sunday dinner.

ECONOMICS CLUB HAS INTERESTING MEETING

The Hedley Home Economics Club held its regular monthly meeting in the Methodist church basement Wednesday afternoon, but owing to considerable sickness and the inclemency of the weather only a few members were present.

'Soups' was the subject for discussion, and the demonstrations given by Mrs. P. T. Boston and Mrs. Frank Kendall were much enjoyed by all the members.

Miss Richmond, the County Agent, was with us and gave some helpful hints on the elimination of waste in food.

The 1923 Year Books have been completed and were distributed to those who attended this meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Johnson have returned from Snyder, Okla., where they went in answer to a message stating that Mrs. Johnson's mother, Mrs. O. R. Ivie, was dangerously ill of pneumonia. We regret to learn that she died on Monday, the 12th inst., and was buried the following day at Humphreys, Okla. Mrs. Ivie was 43 years old, and is survived by her husband and four daughters. Our sincere sympathy is extended to them in this great sorrow.

MISSION NOTES

The W. M. Auxiliary plan to make the 4th Monday in each month a social and business meeting.

Next Monday Mrs. Crow and Mrs. Culwell will be hostesses at the home of Mrs. Culwell. Be sure to be present at 8 o'clock and enjoy the fun.

Our Bible lesson last Monday was interesting and instructive. Pledge cards were given out and the eight members present enjoyed the meeting.

Learning From Experience.
 Experience is not only the best of teachers, it is in reality the only teacher, for we must learn either from our own experience or from the experience of others.—Charles E. Carpenter.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promise of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited to those who are in need of it. A prominent druggist says, "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism. You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by parcel post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

Where Real Courage is Required.
 It is not our wrong actions which it requires courage to confess, so much as those which are ridiculous and foolish.—Rousseau.

Mothers Ruin Babies' Health by Harsh Drugs

There are thousands of children and grown-ups whose health has been wrecked simply because they were given strong laxative cathartics when a baby.

Baby often needs something to clean out the little bowels of clogged waste, but for goodness sake give him a medicine made especially for a baby. Give him Teethina. It's perfectly harmless and yet brings quick relief without hurting the tender little intestines like the strong drugs you use for yourself do when given to the little folks.

Teethina is indorsed by physicians and has been used for fifty years. Get it at your druggist, or send 30c to the Moffett Laboratories, Columbus, Ga., for a package and the valuable Baby book.—Advertisement.

Beware of Interference.
 In private life I never knew anyone interfere with other people's disputes but that he heartily repented of it.—Carlyle.

The war has made table linen very valuable. The use of Red Cross Ball Blue will add to its wearing qualities. Use it and see. All grocers.—Advertisement.

Mr. Wagg Had Progressed.
 "I understand," said Mrs. Kawler, "that one can learn different languages from the gramophone." "Well, I don't know," responded Mrs. Wagg, "but I do know that since our neighbors got theirs, Mr. Wagg has used language I never heard him use before."

Try not have opinions; and you'll find it practically isn't necessary to talk.

IF BILIOUS, SICK! TAKE NO CALOMEL

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Straightens You Up Better Than Salivating, Dangerous Calomel and Doesn't Upset You—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Read Guarantee

You're bilious! Your liver is sluggish! You feel lazy, dizzy and all knocked out. Your head is dull, your tongue is coated; breath bad; stomach sour and bowels constipated. But don't take salivating calomel. It makes you sick; you may lose a day's work. Calomel is mercury or quicksilver, which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel crashes into sour bile like dynamite, breaking it up. That's when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you want to enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight. Your druggist or dealer sells you a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents under my personal money-back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick. Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working, your headache and dizziness gone, your stomach will be sweet and your bowels regular. You will feel like working; you'll be cheerful; full of vigor and ambition. Dodson's Liver Tone is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless and can not saltate. Give it to your children.

Paradoxical. "All we can get is soft coal." "That's hard."—Boston Evening Transcript.
Filippant Signs Seen. "If your feet ache bring them in." "Our sodas are the best—soda all say."—Boston Transcript.

MOTHER, CLEAN CHILD'S BOWELS WITH "CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP"

Even Cross, Feverish, Sick Children Love its Taste and it Never Fails to Empty Little Bowels

A teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup" now will quickly start liver and bowel action and in a few hours you have a well, playful child again. Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Fig Syrup" because it never fails to work the sour bile and constipation poison right out of the little stomach and bowels without cramping or overacting. Tell your druggist you want only the genuine "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother, you must say "California." Refuse any imitation.

COLDS

"Pape's Cold Compound" Breaks a Cold in Few Hours

Don't stay stuffed up! Quit blowing and snuffling! Take "Pape's Cold Compound" every two hours until three doses are taken. The first dose opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages of head; stops nose running; relieves headache, dullness, feverishness, sneezing. The second and third doses usually break up the cold completely and end all gripe misery. "Pape's Cold Compound" is the quickest, surest relief known and costs only a few cents at drug stores. Taste nice. Contains no quinine. Insist upon Pape's.

PREP PARAGRAPHS

P--is for the pluck we possess,
R--for the rules we willingly obey,
E--for enthusiasm we show every day,
P--for perseverance in our subjects,
each one,
S--for the smiles in the work well done.

Queries the wondering Preps want answered:

Why does Alice Noel look continuously toward the southeast corner of the room?

Why did Miss Cannedy's head look so flat last Tuesday?

Why do Oleta Mann and Theopal Hefner look so wise these days?

Why does a certain girl wait in town until a certain boy starts home?

Did Miss Cannedy move Dick Sadler to the front because she wanted something to look at for amusement?

Mr. Weaver: "Jim, wipe that smile off your face until after class."

Jim was seen wiping his face very industriously.

The Preps have been under a strain since the mid-term, because Mr. Weaver has kindly promised another test soon.

Look out for the Preps; we're becoming bloodthirsty. In English we are on the hunt for the gold in a certain "Treasure Island." In history we are trying to settle the differences that arose between the sections of the country before the Civil War. We have decided Miss Cannedy would have made a great debator for the South. However, we are about to be forced to put an end to our arguments and debates,--and plunge headlong into war.

PREP POEM

They used to call us sixth graders,
And made all manner of fun,
But now those taunts and jeers are gone
Since our high school life we've begun.
We've placed behind all things light,
And tackled our work with zeal and pep,
If you want to find a class that's right,
Just look for--the Preps.

SENIOR NOTES

Class Spirit

Class spirit is the spirit that is in the heart of every loyal pupil in the school. It is the desire to accomplish things, not for selfish motives, but for the common good of the class. Truthfulness, honesty, loyalty and cooperation are embodied in and essential to class spirit. Unless each individual member of the class possesses this spirit there can be no real success in any class.

Class spirit expands into a broader spirit which includes patron, teachers and pupils. This is known as school spirit. With out cooperation between the patrons, teachers and pupils, each to each, a school as a whole cannot be a success. So, let's all work together to make our separate classes and our school, as a whole, what they could and should be.

We are glad to have James Hays back in school after a long absence caused by the flu.

Mal Johnson is welcomed back to school after an absence caused by sickness.

Gladys Cloninger is kept from school this week on account of sickness in the family.

JUNIOR JOTS

We are mighty glad to have so many pupils present this week. It seems as though we are about to master the flu.

A poem handed in by a Junior poet:

Juniors! Juniors!
Good and true,
Study their lessons
Till they're black and blue.

Miss Trapp just came right out and said the Juniors had a good history lesson one day this week. We feel that "day by day in every way we're getting better and better."

The geometry class has completed examination without any failures, and said to be the banner class in math. We're not boasting that we're smart; it was merely hearsay.

Miss Trapp: "How far have you studied your history lesson, Leonard?"

Leonard: "Just as far as the book is dirty."

Pat: "Mr. Biggers, I thought this proposition was simply awful, but now I have found it awfully simple."

Watch for the announcements of our class.

FEAST DAY

Of all surprises--the Juniors experienced the greatest Tuesday, Feb. 20th. The bell rang for the entire school to march out of the building at noon, and just before Mr. Biggers dismissed them he told the Juniors to march back upstairs. We retraced our steps with much care and precaution, declaring that we neither skipped steps nor pushed. Some seemed in an awful hurry to rush home, but in another instant the minds were changed as well as the environment. We were ushered into the laboratory which was beautifully decorated with the Junior and Senior class colors.

Here a delicious luncheon was served, cafeteria style. After some toasts to the Seniors--one of which was very unique because of the fact that Mr. Biggers gave it for Mr. Weaver--we marched downstairs to take kodak pictures.

We were indeed grateful to the Seniors for this pleasant surprise. Such occasions of good fellowship will long be referred to as the "good old times."

Seniors, we thank you

Each, one and all,
For the great feast you gave us
And not at our call.

It was an occasion
That we'll not soon forget,
For the Seniors we'll yell--
On that you can bet.

The cakes were the finest
We ever did see,
Even on each was written
High School and Faculty.

SOPH SPECIALS

Ila Acord was absent Tuesday morning on account of the illness of her father.

Leland Pickett was absent a few days this week.

Ray Moreman has failed to be seen at school for quite a while.

Miss Trapp was giving our English mid term exam papers back to us the other day, and Bill Mobley said if he had known that she wanted it written in red ink, he could have done that.

Do You Know--

Who sits on the radiator?
Who is so fond of chewing gum?

Who is always getting caught when skipping a step?

What girl occupies the teacher's desk in the 9th grade room?

What teacher is hard boiled?

The girl who is in "love?"

Who has lost his mind since he quit the habit of smoking?

FRESH "KNUZ"

Mary Boston, Alice Bishop, and Bill Pool are back in school, locking very well after their "flight."

Glenn: "Miss Trapp, what do you all do if the teachers are 'at'?"

R. F.: "Oh, that's all right."

Glenn: "Well, when the girls are late you don't make them stay in; but you sure do make

McKNIGHT ITEMS

Dear Editor:

Somewhat like Rip Van Winkle of old after taking a long slumber I will take up my old rusty firelock (the pen) and give you a few random shots from this place.

Health in the community is generally good; there are, however, some cases of flu yet, but they all are on the mend.

Our schools are progressing nicely, notwithstanding we are now crowded to overflowing. We hope to have another house and one more teacher another year.

Miss Rosalie Hickey left last week for Hereford, where she will assist in waiting on her aunt who is very sick at present. Don't cry, Haskell, she will come back by and by.

Mrs. Daisy Watkins entertained quite a crowd of young people last Sunday. They all reported a good time, and we guess they had it, as they never came to church until it was almost over.

The Sanhedrin has been in session almost daily since Uncle Bill Crow has returned to the promised land, except when the weather was too bad for the High Priest to get out.

The McKnight school boys went to Bray last Friday evening and played baseball with the boys over there. The game resulted in a score of 8 to 10 in favor of Bray.

County Commissioner T. N. Messer motored to Clarendon Monday in the interest of the county.

WOMAN SO ILL COULD NOT WORK

Gained Strength, Weight and Now Doing Own Work, by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Marion, Ind.—"I was all run-down, nervous and bent over. I could hardly drag around, let alone do my work. I read some letters in the papers telling what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others and I thought I would try it. Then a man told my husband about his wife and what good it had done her and wanted him to have me try it. I took one bottle and could see what it did for me in a week's time, and when I had taken three bottles I had gained both in strength and weight and was doing my own work. I took it before my last baby was born and it helped me so much. I am glad to recommend the Vegetable Compound to any woman who suffers from female ailments, for I know by experience what it can do. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, also the Liver Pills, too, and think them fine."—Mrs. Wm. Eldridge, 620 E. Grant Street, Marion, Indiana.

A record of nearly fifty years service should convince you of the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Mrs. Gross Praises Tanlac for Overcoming Stomach Trouble—Says Results Are Priceless.

"Before I took Tanlac I only weighed ninety-four pounds and scarcely had strength to sweep the floor; but now I weigh one hundred and thirty-two and am as healthy and happy as can be." This remarkable statement was made, recently, by Mrs. Mabel Gross, 1137 Aldrich St., N., Minneapolis, Minn.

"For nearly two years I had been in a seriously weakened condition and suffered nearly all the time from headache and backache. My nerves were beyond my control and I was terribly dizzy. I couldn't half sleep and my stomach was so out of order that even the sight of food nauseated me.

"The benefits I have received from Tanlac are priceless. I am now a perfectly well woman and my friends often speak of how healthy I look. Health is worth everything, and that is what Tanlac has meant to me."

"All 'right,' hisped the darling. 'I want 'est a toy store.'

Endangers Fur Animals.

According to Dr. William T. Hornaday it takes 80 skins to make the average mink wrap, 200 for a squirrel coat and 280 for a black mole coat, 90 skins may go to the making of a striped skunk jacket, and 300 to a Siberian ermine wrap. Before many years, if the present rate of slaughter continues, many of our most interesting animals will be practically extinct; even now the trapper is forced rather selfishly, and skins once unmarketable are being used to supply the deficiency.—Scientific American.

A curious and informative accident was observed on Randolph street yesterday evening. A girl in short skirts and high Russian boots, wide-flaring at the top, was strolling down the sidewalk. A young man, passing her, casually threw away his lighted cigarette. The girl took five steps and then started kicking the left leg. In another moment she was dancing in a hysterical circle.

The volunteer fire department helped her off with the left boot and removed the cigarette, with what was left of a charred silk stocking.—Chicago Post.

Well Arranged Home for Family That Is Larger Than Average—Unusual Type of Colonial House That Will Please.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

There is just about sufficient time to plan that new home before spring, when building operations in most sections of the country begin. "Plan to build and build from a plan" is a sage bit of advice among professional builders and one which every prospective home owner may heed with profit.

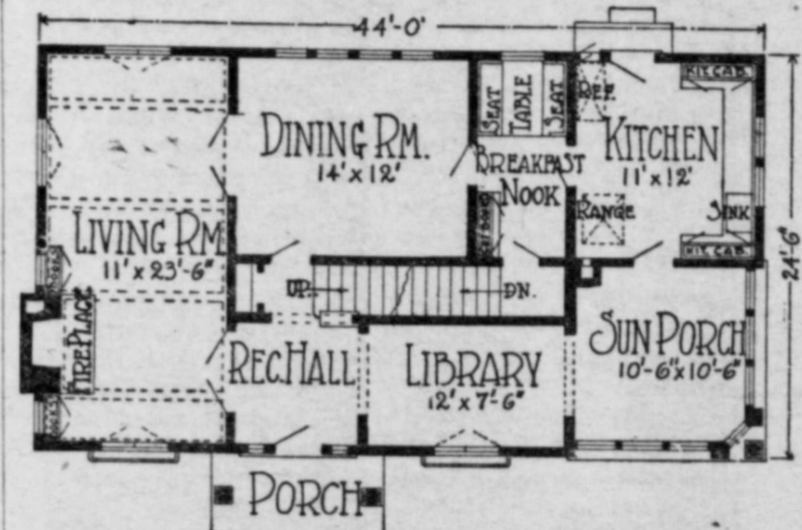

Planning the new home is an interesting experience. Every member of the family joins in and out of the mass of suggestions grow the plans from which the house will be built. Father wants a den, mother a sewing room, daughter a bedroom that will be really her own, and son has his ideas of what his room should be. All are and it is certain that there will be no tearing out and rebuilding necessary during the course of construction. That is why it is recommended that prospective home owners "plan to build and build from a plan."

The home building suggestion given herewith is an unusual type of colonial house. While the entrance door and terrace porch suggest the colonial style of architecture, at first glance the lack of balance of the exterior appearance would lead the experienced to decide that this design is not a true colonial. But the floor plans that accompany the exterior view show that it is a colonial, with additions, such as the sun parlor in the corner at one end, with the kitchen at the back.

This home is good, especially if the family that is to occupy it is slightly larger than the average, or if the owner desires to have plenty of additional bedrooms.

The entrance hall is rather large and has the stairs leading to the second floor running out of it. To the left and running the depth of the house is the living room, with the open fire-place and book cases. The dotted lines on the plan indicate a beam ceiling, which may or may not be put in according to the desires of the owner. This room is large, being 11 feet wide and 23 feet 6 inches long. It is well lighted, having windows at the front, on the side and at the rear. Double doors lead to the dining room, which also may be reached from the entrance hall. This room also is large, 12 by 14 feet. Between the dining room and kitchen is a breakfast nook and butler's pantry. The kitchen, a corner room, is 11 by 12 feet and is equipped with the modern built-in kitchen conveniences. At the right of the entrance hall, connected with it by a double glass opening, is a library, 12 by 7 feet 6 inches in size, while at the interested, for the new home is going to be something that will mean comfort and satisfaction for the family for many years to come.

It is in connection with this stage of home acquisition that a warning is deemed necessary. While the family is deciding what each member desires in the new home, there is danger that the plans will either be too elaborate or will not be practical. Mistakes are costly and easy to make, especially when those who are doing the planning have had no practical experience in building construction. Suggestions are good; in fact, the members of the family should have a right to plan the house, but they should be guided by the advice of the architect, the contractor and the material dealer. These men are experienced, and are experts in building construction. Their advice is based on a practical knowledge and does not cost the owner a cent.

By consulting with these experts, the plans as finally drawn will be reproduced exactly by the contractor corner is the sun parlor, a room 14 feet 6 inches square. This is unusually attractive, and will be found one of the most popular rooms in the house, either in winter or summer.

On the second floor are shown four bedrooms, a good-sized sleeping porch, a sewing room and two bathrooms. Three of the bedrooms are corner rooms, while the sewing room is in the center of the house at the front. The sleeping porch is connected with the larger of the bedrooms. This room is exceptionally attractive, as it contains a fireplace, is larger, 14 by 15 feet, and has a private bathroom.

Variations of this plan may be secured from the architect to suit the ideas of the prospective builder and his need of room. But taken as it is it is a very attractive and popular design.

"Oh," she said, "we have a little secret. Can't we have a secret if we want one?"

"Upon my word," Dwight commented, "she has a beautiful secret. I don't know about your secrets, Lulu. Every time that he did this, that fleet, lifted look of Lulu's seemed to bleed.

"I'm glad for my dinner," remarked Monona at last. "Please excuse me." On that they all rose. Lulu stayed in the kitchen and did her best to make her tasks indefinitely last. She had nearly finished when Di burst in.

"Aunt Lulu, Aunt Lulu!" she cried. "Come in there—come. I can't stand it. What am I going to do?"

"Di, dear," said Lulu. "Tell your mother—you must tell her."

"She'll cry," Di sobbed. "Then she'll tell papa—and he'll never stop talking about it. I know him—every day he'll keep it going. After he scolds me it'll be a joke for months. I'll die—I'll die, Aunt Lulu."

Ina's voice sounded in the kitchen. "What are you two whispering about? I declare, mamma's hurt, Di, at the way you're acting . . ."

"Let's go out on the porch," said Lulu, and when Di would have escaped, Ina drew her with them.

It was a warm dusk, moonless, windless. The sounds of the village street came in—laughter, a touch at a piano, a chiming clock. Lights starred and quickened in the blurred houses. Footsteps echoed on the board walks. The gate opened. The gloom yielded up Cornish.

Lulu was inordinately glad to see him. To have the strain of the time broken by him was like hearing, on a lonely winter evening, the clock strike reassuring dawn.

Cornish, in his gentle way, asked about the journey, about the sick woman—and Dwight talked of her again, and this time his voice broke. Di was curiously silent. When Cornish addressed her, she replied simply and directly—the rarest of Di's manners—in fact, not Di's manner at all. Lulu spoke not at all—it was enough to have this respite.

After a little the gate opened again. It was Bobby. In the besetting fear that he was leaving Di to face something alone, Bobby had arrived.

And now Di's spirits rose. To her presence meant repentance, recapitulation. Her laugh rang out, her replies came archly. But Bobby was plainly not playing up. Bobby was, in fact, hardly less than grim. It was Dwight, the irrepressible fellow, who kept the talk going.

"Mamma!" Monona shouted from her room. "Come and hear me say my prayers!"

Monona entered this request with precision on Ina's nastiest moments, but she always rose, unabashed, and went, motherly and dutiful, to hear devotions, as if that function and the process of living ran their two divided channels.

She had dispatched this errand and was returning when Mrs. Bett crossed the lawn from Grandma Gates', where the old lady had taken comfort in Mrs. Bett's ministrations for an hour.

"Don't you help me," Mrs. Bett warned them away sharply. "I guess I can help myself yet awhile."

She gained her chair. And still in her momentary rule of attention, she said clearly:

"I got a joke, Grandma Gates says it's all over town Di and Bobby Larkin eloped off together today. He!" The last was a single note of laughter, high and brief.

The silence fell.

"What nonsense!" Dwight Herbert said angrily.

But Ina said tensely: "Is it nonsense? Haven't I been trying and trying to find out where the black satchel went? Di!"

Di's laughter rose, but it sounded thin and false.

"Listen to that, Bobby," she said.

"Listen!"

"That won't do, Di," said Ina. "You can't deceive mamma and don't you try!" Her voice trembled, she was frantic with loving and authentic anxiety, but she was without power, she overshadowed the real gravity of the moment by her indignation.

"Mrs. Deacon—" began Bobby, and stood up, very straight and manly before them all.

But Dwight intervened. Dwight, the father, the master of his house. Here was something requiring him to act. So the father set his face like a mask and brought down his hand on the ruff of the porch. It was as if the sound shattered a thousand filaments—where?

"Diana!" his voice was terrible, demanded a response, ravaged among them.

"Yes, papa," said Di, very small.

"Answer your mother. Answer me, is there anything to this absurd tale?"

"No, papa," said Di, trembling.

"You Opened the Letter?" He inquired incredulously.

tonight—"He spoke his code almost beautifully. "I'd rather," he said, "if he'd never let us see each other than to lose you the way I've lost you now."

"Bobby!"

"It's true. We mustn't talk about it."

"Bobby! I'll go back and tell them all."

"You can't go back," said Bobby. "Not out of a thing like that."

She stood staring after him. She heard some one coming and she turned toward the house, and met Cornish leaving.

"Miss Di," he cried, "if you're going to elope with anybody, remember it's with me!"

Her defense was ready—her laughter rang out so that the departing Bobby might hear.

When Di had gone upstairs, Ina said to Lulu in a manner of cajoling confidence:

"Sister,—she rarely called her that—"why did you and Di leave the black bag?"

So that after all it was a relief to Lulu to hear Dwight ask casually:

"By the way, Lulu, haven't I got some mail somewhere about?"

"There are two letters on the parlor table," Lulu answered. "To Ina she added: 'Let's go in the parlor.'" Dwight lit the gas. "Better turn down the gas just a little," said he, tiredly.

Lulu handed him the two letters. He saw Ninian's writing and looked up, said "A-ha!" and held it while he leisurely read the advertisement of dental furniture, his Ina reading over his shoulder. "A-ha!" he said again, and with designed deliberation ran ad to Ninian's letter. "An apistle from my dear brother Ninian." The words failed, as he saw the unsealed flap.

"You opened the letter?" he inquired incredulously. Fortunately he had no climaxes of furious calm for high occasions. All had been used on small occasions. "You opened the letter" came in a tone of no deeper horror than "You picked the flower"—once put to Lulu.

She said nothing. As it is impossible to continue looking indignantly at some one who is not looking at you, Dwight turned to Ina, who was horror and sympathy, a nice half and half.

"Your sister has been opening my mail," he said.

"But, Dwight, if it's from Ninian—"

"It is my mail," he reminded her. "She had asked me if she might open it. Of course I told her no."

"Well," said Ina practically, "what does he say?"

"I shall open the letter in my own time. My present concern is this disregard of my wishes. Why did you do it?"

Lulu smiled faintly and shook her head.

"Dwight," said Ina, reasonably, "she knows what's in it and we don't. Hurry up."

"She is," said Dwight, after a pause, "an ungrateful woman."

He opened the letter, saw the clipping, the avowal, with its facts.

"A-ha!" said he. "So after having been absent with my brother for a month, you find that you were not married to him."

Lulu spoke her exceeding triumph.

"You see, Dwight," she said, "he told the truth. He had another wife. He didn't just leave me."

Dwight instantly cried: "But this seems to me to make you considerably worse off than if he had."

"Oh, no," Lulu said serenely. "No. Why," she said, "you know how it all came about. He—was used to thinking of his wife as dead. If he hadn't—hadn't liked me, he wouldn't have told me. You see that, don't you?"

Dwight laughed. "That your apology?" he asked.

She said nothing.

"Look here, Lulu," he went on, "this is a bad business. The less you say about it the better, for all our sakes—you see that, don't you?"

"I want the people to know the truth," Lulu said.

"But it's nobody's business but our business! I take it you don't intend to sue Ninian?"

"Sue him? Oh no!"

"Then, for all our sakes, let's drop the matter. Tell you, Lulu, here are three of us. Our interests are the same in this thing—only Ninian is our relative and he's nothing to you now, is he?"

"Why, no," said Lulu in surprise.

"Very well. Let's have a vote. Your snap judgment is to tell this disgraceful fact broadcast. Mine is, least said, soonest mended. What do you say, Ina—considering Di and all?"

"My poor, poor sister!" Ina said. She struck together her little plump hands. "Oh, Dwight—when I think of it: What have I done—what have we done that I should have a good, kind, loving husband—be so protected, so loved, when other women . . . Darling!" she sobbed, and drew near to Lulu. "You know how sorry I am—we all are . . ."

Lulu stood up. Her white shawl slipped to the floor. Her hands were stiffly joined.

"Then," she said, "give me the only thing I've got—that's my pride. My pride—that he didn't want to get rid of me."

They stared at her. "What about my pride?" Dwight called to her, as across great distances. "Do you think I want everybody to know my brother did a thing like that?"

"You can't help that," said Lulu.

"But I want you to help it. I want you to promise me that you won't shame us like this before all our friends."

"You want me to promise what?"

"I want you—I ask you," Dwight said with an effort, "to promise me that you will keep this, with us—a family secret."

"No!" Lulu cried. "No, I won't do it! I won't do it! I won't do it!"

It was like some crude chant, knowing only two tones. She threw out her hands, her wrists long and dark on her blue skirt.

"Can't you understand anything?" she asked. "I've lived here all my life—on your money. I've not been strong enough to work, they say—well, but I've been strong enough to be a hired girl in your house—and I've been glad to pay for my keep. . . . Well, then I got a little something, same as other folks. I thought I was married and I went off on the train and he bought me things and I saw the different towns. And then it was all a mistake. I didn't have any of it. I came back here and went in to your kitchen again—I don't know why I came back. I s'pose because I'm most thirty-four and new things ain't so easy any more—but what have I got or what'll I ever have? And now you want to put on to me having folks look at me and think he run off and left me, and having 'em all wonder. . . . I can't stand it. I can't stand it. I can't. . . ."

"You'd rather they'd know he fooled you, when he had another wife?" Dwight sneered.

"Yes! Because he wanted me. How do I know—maybe he wanted me only just because he was a waneome, the way I was, I don't care why! And I won't have folks think he was and left me."

DAIRY FACTS

TANK HEATERS ARE FAVORED

When Milk Cows Are Watered Frequently It Is Poor Policy to Supply Ice Water.

When a cow drinks water, her body at once sets to work raising it, if necessary, to the same temperature as exists normally in the body. In order to warm the water taken in, heat is just as necessary as it is to warm a kettle of water on the stove.

To provide the heat necessary, the blood and internal organs give up a portion of their supply until more is supplied from food previously consumed. As the milk cow is a heavy consumer of water, much heat is required to warm it. Consequently when cows are allowed to drink water that is very cold, a high percentage of the feed eaten is required to heat it. If it is true that some heat is being given off from the body all the time and when the amount of water taken in at one time is small the loss is unimportant. But when the cows are watered only once or twice daily, and then get near ice water, they are likely to suffer injury and more feed is necessary. Stated briefly, it is a question of balancing good feed and the cow's time digesting it, against the cost of a good tank heater and a few pails of coals or coal. The man interested in getting the most out of his cows and in their comfort will not expect them to be their own tank heaters.

SILAGE READY WHEN NEEDED

Mistaken Idea to Think That Certain Time Must Elapse Before Feeding to Stock.

What is the best time to begin feeding silage, is a question which is interesting many dairy farmers.

The specialists on live stock feeding say that the time to begin using silage is when the dairyman needs it; they feel there is no justification for the idea that a certain time must elapse between the filling of the silo and opening it for use.

Experiments made at the state colleges of the country indicate that fermentation starts almost as soon as the corn is placed in the silo, and that the greatest change takes place during the first five days after filling. After 12 days, fermentation is practically complete, and the silage undergoes very little modification after two weeks.

Some farmers do not know that silage will keep for a long time. Experiments indicate that silage is as palatable after several years as that which has been kept only a few months.

Although moldy silage apparently does not injure mature cows, it has been found to affect the health of calves and horses. To be on the safe side, careful farmers discard the moldy silage from the top of the silo.

REAL VALUE OF DAIRY COW

Most Reliable Method is to Figure Her Actual Butterfat Production by Weight.

The most reliable way of getting at the real value of a dairy cow is to figure her actual butterfat production. This can be done by weighing the milk produced by each cow and by determining the per cent of butterfat through occasional tests of the milk with a Babcock tester.

COMPARATIVE COST OF COWS

Cheaper to Milk and Feed One Animal Giving Large Yield Than It Is for Three Scrubs.

It is much cheaper to milk and care for one cow giving 300 pounds of butterfat in a year than it is to milk and care for three cows giving 100 pounds of butterfat each, and if the 300-pound cow is heavily fed she will not eat as much as the three 100-pound cows.

Drawback to Dairying.

Perhaps the greatest drawback to the dairy business is that a cow will produce a little milk, no matter what she is fed. Too many dairymen are satisfied with that little bit.

Beware of Lazy Bull.

Beware of the undersized, lazy, dull-eyed bull; he is never a money maker for his owner.

Success in Dairying.

To be successful in dairying, have good cows and feed them properly.

VARIETIES OF SWEET POTATOES AND THEIR USES IN HOUSEHOLD

Sweet Potatoes May Be Served in Some Form in Almost Any Course in a Menu.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Sweet potatoes, although of tropical origin, are now grown in large quantities in the United States. According to figures for 1921, more than 98,000,000 bushels, valued at over $80,000,000, were produced in this country.

The United States Department of Agriculture has recently made a study of the different varieties of sweet potatoes now grown in the United States, and has classified them in eight groups.

Sweet potatoes vary in shape and size from slender banana-shaped roots to those so large and thick as to merit the nickname of "underground squashes."

The texture, flavor and color of the flesh of sweet potatoes range from dry, mealy ones of whitish color and low sugar content, to juicy, pumpkin-colored kinds from which sweet sirup oozes during the baking.

Sweet potatoes, prepared in one form or another, may be served satisfactorily in almost any course in a menu. To take the place of white potatoes, or to combine with left-over meat, the mealy varieties should be chosen.

MARKETING METHODS IMPROVED IN SOUTH

Women Ship in Weekly Eggs Graded and Guaranteed.

No One Thinks of Shipping Poultry Without First Fattening It—Much Money Made in Selling Preserves and Jelly.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Acting upon the advice of extension workers, South Carolina women have made steady advances in standardizing the products they offer for sale and in increasing their output. For example, in Charleston county, starting with one woman two years ago, there are now over 70 women shipping in weekly their graded and guaranteed eggs.

In the state last year approximately 5,000 containers of such standardized products as Dixie burgoon, pine bark fish stew, Brunswick stew, soup mixture, blackberry jam, fig preserves, plum jelly, grape juice, artichoke relish, and butter were put on the market through the South Carolina Home Producers' association.

The following recipes have been selected as typical:

Sweet Potato Puff.

2 pounds of sweet potatoes, Whites of 2 eggs, 2 teaspoonfuls of butter, 1/2 teaspoonful of salt.

Boil and mash sweet potatoes. Add butter, salt and stiffly beaten whites of eggs. Pour into buttered baking dish or custard cups. Bake in a medium oven 25 to 30 minutes.

Baked Sweet Potatoes (Special).

Bake six medium-sized sweet potatoes and cut them in halves lengthwise. Scoop out the inside and season it with salt, pepper and butter, and moisten with milk. Mash them and beat until light. Refill the skins with the seasoned potatoes and brown in the oven.

Escaloped Sweet Potatoes and Meat.

Cover the bottom of a buttered baking dish with cooked sliced sweet potatoes, cover with a layer of cold meat, either ground or chopped; add another layer of sweet potatoes; season with salt, pepper and butter, or meat fryings. Moisten with gravy or water. Bake in a moderate oven until brown. Sweet Potato Souffle With Marshmallows.

To two cups of hot riced sweet potatoes add three tablespoonfuls of butter, one-half teaspoonful of salt, pepper to taste, and one-half cupful of hot milk. Beat the mixture well. Then beat two eggs separately, add yolks to the potato mixture, cut and fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Place the mixture in a buttered baking dish and place a layer of marshmallows close together over the top and brown in a slow oven.

Grapefruit Jelly.

Grapefruit jelly is made by following the directions for making bitter orange jelly, with the exception that for each pound of fruit taken three-quarters pound of sugar is added. These directions are given by the United States Department of Agriculture.

MANY GARMENTS REMODELED

Old Articles of Wearing Apparel to Number of 55,000 Made Over by Farm Women.

Old garments were remodeled by farm women last year, as a result of demonstrations by county extension agents, into 55,000 up-to-date articles of apparel, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. Under similar instruction 105,000 new garments were made.

NOT THAT KIND OF A BAT

Humanitarian Needlessly Alarmed Over Action Which He Thought Savored of Cruelty.

The man was a vegetarian and believed that his mission was to safeguard every animal, bird and fish which required protection. One day he came upon a group of boys throwing stones up into a tree. He decided to protest.

"What are you doing, boys?" he asked.

"They stopped and stared at him.

"Come! Is it a squirrel, or a bird."

"No, sir," replied one of the boys.

"It's a bat."

"Poor bat!" cried the man. "And why do you molest it? Has a bat no right to live? Has it not the same right to existence as yourself? What has the bat done that you should hurl stones at it?"

"Please, sir," interrupted the boy, "this is a baseball bat we were throwing at the nuts."—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

Got Old Gentlemen's "Goat"

College Boy's Expression Made Him Fear Money Had Been Wasted on His Education.

Whenever old Eben Toothaker doesn't understand what you say he says, "What say?" So do his neighbors. It is not strange that he doesn't understand his college boy son's way of asking the same question.

Old Eben's wife noticed that he was somewhat depressed the evening after the boy had got back to the farm from his first year at college.

"What's the matter, Eben?" she asked.

"Mary, I've spent $900 on that boy's education, and I'm afraid it's wasted," said Eben. "He don't know as much as he did when he went to college."

"Why, what do you mean, father?"

"Well, tonight I said to him that it looked to me 'sif it might rain tomorrow, and what do ye s'pose he said?"

"Why, I don't know. What did he say?"

"Well, sir, he begged my pardon!"—Youth's Companion.

Appearances Sometimes Lie.

Geneva, three and one-half years old, has a baby brother seven months old and is, therefore, "wise" as to the articles required to provide for all the needs and comforts of an infant.

She was in a store the other day when a woman, a stranger to both Geneva and her aunt, entered. The newcomer was nicely dressed and carried a commodious leather handbag, closed at the top by a drawstring.

Walking up to the woman, Geneva asked: "Have you a baby?"

"No," said the surprised woman.

"Then," asked the little girl, "why have you this?" laying her hand on the bag that the woman carried.

Boiled Loon Recipe.

Uncle Augustus, the sage of the village, was engaged in conversation with one of the young hunters who was enjoying the good lucking.

The young hunter wanted to know something about a loon.

"Ye never see a loon?" asked Uncle Augustus in amazement.

"No," replied the young man. "I never did. Are they good to eat?"

"Yes, they're good to eat, if you know how to cook 'em. You see, you put the loon in a kettle of boiling water and set it on the stove. Then you drop a fatiron on it, and when the fatiron is done th' loon is ready ter eat."—Judge.

IF YOU WANT WATER READ THIS

I have some on my water line who pay promptly by the month. And some who pay promptly by the quarter. And some that I guess will pay away off yonder somewhere in the future.

Now, listen! I don't want to furnish water to anyone—not even for the cash—much less on long time, for I have all the long distance accounts that I want.

Now if you get water you must pay up. I am willing to carry you for the first two months in each quarter, but no longer.

Now, except those that pay by the month, the first quarter expires April 1st, 1923. So if you want water you must pay up in full by the first of next month—March.
