REBEKAHS HOLD "GET TOGETHER" MEETING

The Hedley Rebekah Lodge held a "Get Together" meeting last Friday evening which proved a most enjoyable affair to the twenty five or thirty members who attended.

A number of good talks were made, and Mrs Frank Kendall gave her report from the Grand Lodge recently held at Dallas, which she attended as a delegate from the Hedley lodge.

Mrs Dallas Milner was nominated for District Deputy.

Mrs. Kendall was named Captain of the Team.

Delegates were elected to the Panhandle District Association in Amarillo April 24 and 25

Delightful refreshments were served.

FOR SALE—Coco No. Eleven LONG STAPLE COTTON SEED $1.50 per bushel.

SCHOOL CENSUS TAKEN

Clyde Bridges has completed the taking of the School Census for Hedley Independent School District. The list shows a total of 416 scholastics, which is an increase of 17 over this time last year, if the editor's memory is working right.

FOR SALE—Safety Hatch 116 egg Incubator Good as new. Bargain. See it at R. S. Smith's produce house.

APRIL FOOL PARTY

In the afternoon of the 27th of March Mrs Cl de Bridges entertained quite a number of friends at her home with an April Fool and Easter party.

Many games were played, each guest with some definite part. After the games were over, little individual menu cards were passed and each one selected some relish from these; then came such wonderful refreshments as only our hostess could serve.

The favors, were little Easter chickens. The most "favored favor" was won in a contest by Mrs. F. M. Acord, this being—well, just a favor.

All departed at a late hour, each declaring Mrs. Bridges a fine entertainer.

Mrs. L. E. Thompson's mother and Mr Thompson's sister, of Memphis, visited them one day this week.

Hooper Shelton of Rotan, who is attending Clarendon College, visited at the W. E. Reeves home one day the past week.

Miss Blanche Temple spent her week end in Memphis.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES ELECTED SATURDAY

In the School Trustee Election held here last Saturday, the following were elected:

Dr J. C. Coffey
D. C. Moore
Fred Bidwell
J. B. Pickett.

These, together with the three holdovers, W. A. Armstrong, J. W. Noel and C. O. Cooper, now comprise the Board of the Hedley Independent School District. Mr. Armstrong is president and Mr. Noel secretary.

CLASS MEETING and SHOWER

The T. E. L. Class met on Friday, April 6, for their regular monthly meeting, at the home of Mrs. Van Boone. Decorations were in the class colors, white and Nile green. Hostesses, Mrs. C. L. Goin and Mrs. J. E. Blankenship.

The business hour was interesting and very instructive. We have set aside the fourth Sunday in each month for "Visitation Day"—visits to absentees, newcomers, and in the behalf of the church.

After the business session closed, many were the fine talks that were made in appreciation of our T. E. L. "mother," Mrs. Y. F. Walker. Great is our sorrow and regret at losing her, and in the midst of tears and sobs, in marched two small girls carrying a large basket which they presented to Sister Walker. It contained many beautiful and useful gifts, given as a small reminder of our love for her.

Faithfully and loyally she has stood by us. She has been to us as the great oasis in the desert. She has helped us over many rough places, and taught us that strength and self reliance are produced by hardships; the sparkling beauty of the diamond is developed by the roughness of the lapidary's stone; the seabird strengthens her pinions by buffeting the tempests and battling the storms; and so the human life is made nobler, stronger and greater by the many obstacles it meets and overcomes. Thus our Class has been led on by her guiding hand.

These two years have been pleasantly as well as profitably spent. We pray God's blessings upon her and family as they go from us to a new field.

Delicious refreshments were served to seventeen members and two visitors. Place of next meeting will be announced later. Reporters.

J. S. Perrine returned to Hedley last week from Fort Worth where he spent the winter. Mrs. Perrine is expected to arrive within the next few days.

THE CHURCH OF CHRIST

R. R. Price will preach for us, at the Presbyterian church, on the first and third Sundays in each month, at 11 a. m. and 3:30 p. m.

Brother C. H. Kennedy will preach on the fourth Sunday at the same hours

Everybody invited to attend.

G. R. Cash and family have returned from Weslaco, in the Rio Grande valley, where they spent several months. Mr Cash says the climate down there is ideal in winter, and recommends it as a fine place to spend that season of the year.

Mrs. E. W. Alley and children were here the past week from Iowa Park for a visit with Mr. Alley. We understand they will move to Hedley at the end of the present school term.

ACCESSORIES FOR HATS; LATEST IN SPRING WEAR

SO LARGE a majority of spring hats are made of fabrics that there never has been better opportunity for making accessories to match them. Hat and bag, hat and scarf, hat and parasol and hat and blouse sets have all put in an appearance in the displays of new millinery and there is much good style in this matching up of two or three items in the toilette. Occasionally a bag is added to two-piece matched sets but two pieces are more popular than three.

The most interesting, because the most novel, of the matched sets are

However strong a resemblance some spring coats may have to their forbears of the winter, they must radiate a flavor of spring and use one or two tricks of adornment that are new, to be all that our hearts could wish. They come along this spring bearing summer furs in collars and sometimes in cuffs, and with varied new adornments of tucks and stitching. One of them, as shown at the left of the illustration, is a straight-line, double-breasted, cozy-looking model, fashioned of the same character of materials that have been used in winter coats. the hat and blouse pieces. These are usually developed with a blouse of printed silk and a hat of straw or plain fabric trimmed with a scarf of silk like the blouse. Or the entire hat is made of the printed silk, as shown in the picture and bandings like it are placed on a blouse of plain fabric. These sets belong to sports types.

At the left of the group pictured a hat and bag of dyed chamolis are shown, decorated with fruits and flowers made of the chamolis mingled with lacquered fruits and wooden beads. A similar set is made of navy blue kid and trimmed with lacquered fruits and flowers in high vivid colors. These are dressy sets for formal wear.

As the season advances the hat and parasol sets will take precedence—parasols covered with the sheer fabrics of midsummer frocks or banded or particulars it bears the earmarks of the new season. Its sash, of heavy ribbon, slipping through slashes at each side, is looped over and hangs in straight ends. These ends are finished with long silk fringe. Its collar, apparently of squirrel fur, takes up the idea of ribbon ties and slashes that allow them to slip through at each side with bows and ends at the front. This is new and pretty, besides carrying a suggesotherwise decorated by figured materials on a plain ground. In the sets already displayed, the parasol takes its cue from the hat and shows its kinship in its covering or its decoration. These hat and parasol sets are shown in both sports and dress types, but the hat and blouse sets hold the center of the stage and will for awhile.

There are at least two kinds of spring wraps that are sure of success. They are the conservative models in coats, cut on familiar lines that always appeal to the majority of women, and the novelties that please the more imaginative and more daring. If this impelling charm of novelty is coupled with beauty, or chic style, the garment possessing it may face the future with assurance.

tion of springtime—always a be-ribboned season.

What are called the "wrappy" styles have many devotees and at the right a spring model is shown in one of the several heavy knitted crepes that are so well adapted to outer garments. It is a drop-stitch weave, achieving a striped effect, and the garment is something of a cape, something of a coat and much of a novelty. It is graceful, very generally useful and will please the smart woman.

Grip Left You a Bad Back?

DOES your back ache day after day with a dull, unceasing throb? Are you worn out, and discouraged—ready to "give up?" Then why not look to your kidneys? Chances are a cold or a chill has weakened your kidneys? Poisons have accumulated that well kidneys would filter off. It's little wonder, then, you have constant backache, headaches, dizzy spells, annoying bladder irregularities, and sharp rheumatic twinges—that you feel nervous, "blue" and irritable. Don't wait for serious kidney trouble. Get back your health while you can. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Grateful Folks:

Melvin Weems, E. 2nd St., Cameron, Tex., says: "Whenever I took cold or there was a change in the weather, my kidneys acted too freely. There was a sediment in the secretions and they burned in passage. My back got lame and sore. I had taken all kinds of medicine but didn't get any help at all. The doctor advised me to take Doan's Kidney Pills. I took his advice and Doan's cured me."

Mrs. A. Phillips, W. Main St., Cuero, Tex., says: "I am glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills for I know that they are good. A cold seemed to settle in my kidneys and caused them to act irregularly. I had a dull ache in my back, across my kidneys continually and at times I was dizzy and my head ached. I used three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and they rid me of the trouble. I owe my present good health to Doan's Kidney Pills."

Maybe Flying Too High.

Desiring a position as kindergarten teacher, a pretty young miss went to a member of the school board in her city and told him of her modest ambition. He listened to the request in a fatherly way and no doubt considered that it was up to him to put a few general questions. So he asked: "What are your views on transcendentalism?" The girl hesitated for a while and then faltered: "Maybe I hadn't better try as high as kindergarten work."

MORE LEGUMES MEAN MONEY

Cornell Specialists Say There is No Better Feed Than Clover, Alfalfa and Corn Silage.

The best reason why dairymen could use more legumes in feeding their cattle is because it puts money in their pockets, say the specialists at Cornell. They say there is no better basis for a dairy ration than clover or alfalfa hay, and corn silage. The greater the capacity of the cows for high-quality roughage, the cheaper can milk be produced, since the quantity of concentrates can be reduced.

Where low protein roughage is fed, the grain mixture will require 60 per cent of high-protein and 40 per cent of low-protein feeding stuffs. With high-protein roughage, the extra cost of 20 per cent of high-protein feeds is necessary by low-quality roughage is saved.

Under favorable conditions the use of legume roughage ought to reduce the cost of production from 17 to 25 per cent.

By "feeding" the soil calcium and phosphorus, the mineral content of the roughage may be doubled. Through the use of legumes it is possible to maintain the mineral reserves of cows and young stock, and through variety and abundance of proteins other elements thus supplied, further the cheapest and most efficient means for both growth and production.

GENETICS IS IMPORTANT FACTOR

Many Dairymen Are Inclined to Think Money Spent for Sire is Expense.

The bull is the all-important factor in herd improvement. Too many dairymen consider the money spent for a sire as an expense. That is the wrong point. The bull represents an investment which will yield returns in proportion to the intelligence in selecting the bull and the development of his offspring. There is investment which a dairyman

GERMS IN CONTAINERS

Dairymen Handles Milk With Care in Milking and in Barn—Avoid Damp Cans.

Experiments conducted by the New York State Experiment Stations at a very small percentage of the germs found in milk on delivery from the barn. The average number of today handles his milk in milking and while in the further investigations showed that most of the germs came from containers that had been previously used for milk. Milk placed in cans that had been sterilized, but remained open, was found to contain many more bacteria than milk placed in cans that had been thoroughly cleaned and kept in a cool place for germs.

You're bilious! Your liver is sluggish! You feel lazy, dizzy and knocked out. Your head is dull, your tongue is coated; breath bad; stomach sour and bowels constipated. But don't take salivating calomel. It makes you sick, you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bone. Calomel crashes into sour bile like dynamite, breaking it up. That's when you feel that awful nausea and cramping.

If you want to enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone.

Try the way you are doing work, observing as you go whether there are any motions made which could be eliminated, or if any phases are the process could be shortened. House of instance, those who possess dishes or plating machines expect to leave silk like dishes to dry themselves after they are made washed and rinsed with very hot water. This principle can be applied perfectly well to dishes draining. These baskets if a kettleful of clean, rinsing water is poured over them are entirely eliminated, except possibly for the glass and silver. Fewer towels are thus used, and the amount of blue kid washing of tea-towels is reduced. Look at the details in the picture and see how many times these are motion saving suggestions in con-

Interesting Group of Hats PREPARE GELATIN IN A VARIETY OF DISHES Attractive Desserts Are Relished by Young and Old.

Succulent Fruits and Fruit Icees Particularly Acceptable After Comparatively Heavy Meals—Recipe for Pudding.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Gelatin can be used in the preparation of a great variety of attractive desserts which are liked by you as well as by old and are for this reason convenient for occasional use in places where adults and children both are provided for. Gelatin used in such small amounts that cannot be relied upon to furnish much nourishment. It takes a large amount of water, however, forms bulky or light desserts, desserts, which include also succulent fruits and fruit icees, are particularly acceptable after a comparatively heavy meal. Gelatin is a good source of introducing fruit juices, and some extent also vegetable juices, those of tomatoes and cucumbers into the diet. These juices, some of which are destroyed by heat, so that it is to know a variety of ways of setting them raw. One of these ways is in the form of gelatin desserts. The following recipe is recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Snow Pudding. 1 tablespoonful granulated gelatin. 1/2 cup sugar. 1/2 cup cold water. Whites of three 1 cup boiling water. eggs. Soak gelatin in the cold water and then dissolve it in hot water. After adding the sugar and lemon juice, strain and set aside to cool, stirring occasionally. When it is quite thick, beat with an egg beater. Add the well-beaten egg whites and continue to beat until it is stiff enough to hold its shape. Mold or pile by spoonfuls on a glass dish. Serve with a soft custard made with the egg yolks. Variety can be obtained in this dish by substituting fruit juices for all or part of the water. Fruit juices like those of grapes and berries that are not injured in flavor by heat can be used in place of the water for dissolving the gelatin, though this may destroy some of the vitamins.

HEALTH FOR WORKING WOMEN

Let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Help You to Become Well.

Thousands of girls have to work in homes, offices, stores, mills or factories who are physically unfit for work, with often an aged or invalid father or mother dependent upon them for support. Standing all day week in and week out, or sitting in cramped positions a girl often contracts some deranged condition of her organic system which calls a halt to her progress and demands restoration to health before she can be of use to herself or anyone else. For these distressing weaknesses and derangements these girls have found health to do their work in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Brooklyn, N.Y.—"Like many girls, I had troubles every month," says Carolyn Mangels. "and they interfered with my work as I could never be sure of my time. My mother often suggested that I take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, but I never did until lately. I have had very good results, and am now a private secretary and do my work without missing a day. I recommend your medicine to every girl who speaks of having troubles like I have had."—CAROLYN MANGELS, 407 14th St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Office Worker Helped. Milwaukee, Wis.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine for three and a half years, and they have improved my health wonderfully. My mother also has taken the Vegetable Compound and we recommend it to our friends. I am working in an office now and can always do my work as I do not have the troubles I had at first. I read of your Vegetable Compound in the newspaper and you may use my letter in that way if you wish to do so."—ELEANOR SHELAK, 637 36th St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Pains and Headache. Webster, Mass.—"I was all run-down, had a bad complexion, and suffered with pains and backache, and was dazed at times and felt weak. I worked in a mill and my girl chum told me about your wonderful medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am feeling much better since taking it."—MARY FLAZA, 13 West Street, Webster, Mass.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited to those who are in need of it. A prominent druggist says, "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism. You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by parcel post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. DADLY DAIRY

Cornell Specialists Say There is No Better Feed Than Clover, Alfalfa and Corn Silage.

The best reason why dairymen should use more legumes in feeding their cattle is because it puts money in their pockets, say the specialists on animal feeding at Cornell. They say there is no better basis for a dairy ration than clover or alfalfa hay, and good corn silage. The greater the capacity of the cows for high-quality roughage, the cheaper can milk be produced, since the quantity of concentrates can be reduced.

Where low protein roughage is fed, the grain mixture will require 60 per cent of high-protein and 40 per cent of low-protein feeding stuffs. With high-protein roughage, the extra cost on 20 per cent of high-protein feeds made necessary by low-quality roughage is saved.

Under favorable conditions the use of legume roughage ought to reduce the cost of production from 17 to 25 per cent.

By "feeding" the soil calcium and phosphorus, the mineral content of pasture and forage may be doubled. Through the use of legumes it is possible to maintain the mineral reserves of cows and young stock, and through the variety and abundance of proteins and other elements thus supplied, furnish the cheapest and most efficient rations for both growth and production.

BULL IS IMPORTANT FACTOR

Too Many Dairymen Are Inclined to Think Money Spent for Sire Is Expense.

The bull is the all-important factor in herd improvement. Too many dairymen consider the money spent for a bull as an expense. That is the wrong viewpoint. The bull represents an investment which will yield returns in direct proportion to the intelligence used in selecting the bull and the development of his offspring. There is no investment which a dairyman makes that has so far reaching influence or that is capable of showing greater profits than the money spent for a good bull.

FIND GERMS IN CONTAINERS

Average Dairyman Handles Milk With Care in Milking and in Barn—Avoid Damp Cans.

Experiments conducted by the New York and Illinois experiment stations show that a very small percentage of the germs found in milk on delivery come from the barn. The average dairyman of today handles his milk with care in milking and while in the barn. Further investigations showed that most of the germs came from the containers that had been previously used for milk. Milk placed in cans that had been sterilized, but remained damp was found to contain many times more bacteria than milk placed in cans that had been thoroughly dried. A damp can is an ideal breeding place for germs.

PREPARATION OF COW FEEDS

Dairymen Should Give Special Attention to Curing of Forage—Grain is Needed.

Special attention should be given by the dairyman to the preparation and combination of his feeds and especially to the curing of his forage. When giving a large flow of milk on dry feed, cows generally require considerable grain to maintain the milk yield. The amount of grain given with the ration should be gauged by the milk flow.

SCALD VESSELS WITH STEAM

Best for Use When Obtainable, but Boiling Water Does Well, Though Cools Quickly.

In scalding cans and vessels, steam is best when obtainable, but boiling water does very well. However, it should be borne in mind that water cools very rapidly when poured into a cold can and loses almost all of its effectiveness when poured from one can to another.

IF BILIOUS, SICK! TAKE NO CALOMEL

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Straightens You Up Better Than Salivating, Dangerous Calomel and Doesn't Upset You—Don't

WAS THE FIRST AERIALIST

Flying Squirrel May Be Said to Have Been Forerunner of Parachute and Machine.

No, we are not referring to birds, we mean that shy creature, the flying squirrel. He was the first aerialist and was the forerunner of the parachute and the flying machine, asserts a writer in Our Dumb Animals. It is probable that he taught early experimenters as much about flying as did birds. Do you know any other four-footed animal that flies? This squirrel is by nature a fly-by-night, as he does most of his flying after dark, although he will fly in the daytime if occasion arises. Woodsmen sawing down trees have seen them appear from a hole in a dead limb and fly out to safety before the tree fell. This little animal uses his tail as a rudder to guide him in his flight. He is able to fly because of membranes connecting feet and legs on either side. Some flying squirrels are reddish colored, while others are gray. They are said to make good pets.

Betrayed by Pores.

Pores are more important than finger prints to the crime investigator. The science of "poroscopy" is now called in when Bertillon methods fail. The new science, discovered by Dr. Edmond Locard in 1902, has taken eleven years to develop to perfection. The shape of the pores, not easily recognizable in the case of finger prints obtained by printers' ink, on account of the roughness of these records, is found to be very varied when colorless prints or those revealed by a method employed by Dr. Locard are examined.

"PARTNER!"

SYNOPSIS.—Disliking the prospect of a month's visit to her austere aunt, Lady Erythea Lambe, at Jervaux abbey, and her cousin, Alexander Lambe, Almee, vivacious daughter of the Very Reverend Viscount Scroope, wanders into the park, there encountering a strange youth. He laughingly introduces himself as "Billy," American. The two ride on his motorcycle, the "Flying Sphinx," and part. With Georgina Horner, her cousin, Almee sets out for Jervaux. She decides that Georgina shall impersonate her at Jervaux, while she goes on a holiday. Georgina's horrified protest is unavailing. Almee again meets "Billy." He tells her his name is Spencer, and she gives her as Amy Snooks, at present "out of a job." Billy offers to take her into partnership in selling the Sphinx. In a spirit of madcap adventure, she accepts. The pair proceed to the town of Stanhoe, taking separate lodgings in Ivy cottage. That night Almee visits Georgina and learns that the deception has not been discovered. She compels Georgina to continue the subterfuge. On a trial spin, with Billy, Almee almost collides with a carriage in which are her aunt, Georgina and Alexander. The pair escape unrecognized. Georgina learns that Lord Scroope is coming to visit Lady Erythea and is in hopeless bewilderment. While Almee is secretly visiting Georgina at Jervaux, the place is burglarized. Almee escapes. Police decide the thieves are "Jack the Climber" and "Calamity Kate," who travel on a motorcycle. Billy, who has shadowed Almee to Jervaux, follows the thieves. He is knocked out, but finds he has some costly emeralds. Realizing they must be part of the loot from Jervaux, he starts for the abbey. He meets Almee, with the police in pursuit.

"Close call, partner," he observed. "I thought it must be they," said Almee breathlessly. "I wonder they haven't called out the military as well. All the countryside seems to be chasing me! Billy!" she said, with a suspicious tremble in her voice, "you'll help me, won't you? I'll tell you about it. I—I've kept it from you, but I won't any longer. I—"

Billy laid a hand on her arm. "Amy," he said quietly, "just repeat this piece to yourself. Say: 'I'm safe, my partner's lookin' after me.' Got that? I'll see you through; you've mothin' to worry for at all. But we can't talk here. We've got to beat it." He picked up the Sphinx.

"Follow close after me, an' keep quiet."

He wheeled the machine along the field path at a run, passed through another gate, crossed a stretch of heathery common-land, and made for a small copse at the foot of the slope. Almee trotted behind silently, with an odd sense of relief and security. Billy would see it through. He had said so. He halted by the copse, and looked round to make sure of his bearings.

"It ought to be close handy here," he said. "Yes—I've got it."

He pushed on to a small bosky dell which led into a series of old crag-pits, masked with brambles. Almee wondered how he could find his way so confidently in the dark; she had not the remotest idea where she was.

"Wait here a minute. I'll come back for you," said Billy.

He wheeled the Sphinx away along a scarcely visible path, and presently returned without it.

"I was fooling around here on an off day, first time I came to Stanhoe," he said, "an' I lit on something that's goin' to be mighty useful. The old Sphinx has got to disappear for a bit, an' you'll soon understand why. Follow behind; there's only room for one at a time."

He led the way through the brambles and, pressing ahead, turned on the light of his pocket torch cautiously. Almee, close at his heels, presently found herself in the entrance of a sandy cave with a very small mouth, screened by rough creper and brush.

"There's several of these around here," said Billy, "but this is one you don't find unless you hunt for it with a sounding pole. It's a heap quieter spot than the high roads tonight. Suppose we sit down."

They seated themselves on the powdered crag in the cave's mouth.

"It's time to show down our hands, partner," said Billy. "Do you mind putting me wise? Don't leave anything out. I want the facts."

Almee was silent some moments. She found it difficult to begin.

"It was like this, Billy."

She plunged into the tale, and went through it from beginning to end—leaving out nothing. It took some time. She could hardly see Billy in the gloom. He made no comments; he was so silent that sometimes she wondered if he was there. Billy was, for a time, too flabbergasted to speak.

At the finish, she heard a stifled, grunting noise, a sense of something shaking. It seemed to touch a spring in Almee. She bowed her head on her knees and laughed till her cheeks were wet.

"Haven't I torn it!" she moaned. "And I downed Cousin Alexander—" and the butler's got yards of my skirt!"

Billy wiped his eyes with his sleeves. "An' you can laugh," he said, with intense delight, "after all that! Gee, but you're the stuff! Sand right through. You're all right. As long as you can laugh, the Red Gods'll stand by you! An' so will I. I'm one of 'em."

"Billy! There's nothing but you between me and those beastly police. But I'll bet it's enough. What's to be done?"

"Hear my side of it!" said Billy, dropping on his knees and producing the jewel case. "Here's the first item!"

He opened the case and shone the torch upon it. Almee gave a little cry. Billy explained briefly how he had come by the gems. He said little about the struggle; that point was as sore as the side of his head. The best of us have our pride.

"One of them knocked me out for a spell, and like a fool I let 'em get away," he said. "I guess I didn't get all the goods, but this looks like an ace flush to me."

"How splendid you are!" cried Almee, a catch in her voice. "Why, those will be the Lambe emeralds. I've heard of them—everybody has. They belong to my Aunt Erythea!"

"Then I shouldn't wonder if they scooped the Jack-pot. But there's some high cards out against us. See here. We had to run for it. Here's the police prancin' over the country after a man and a woman on a motor-cycle—for I guess they must be wise to it. Here's me with the stuff in my pocket, and you with a dress sample in the hands of the sleuth-hounds. Behn the station-house for ours, if they'd got us just now—an' there'd be too much explaining to do. We'd have hit the cells for the night, sure. No place for you, partner. And all the newspapers spreading themselves over it."

"I know. It's f-fearful!"

"Not a bit!" cried Billy. "For now you can get in ahead of the cops. Don't you see? Put your folks wise to it—lay down all your cards. You're Lord Scroope's daughter—you ain't a burglar. Give it them straight. I'll stand an' see you through."

"But—I can't, Billy! I'll all have to come out, then. Every bit of it," said Almee with a gasp.

"Why, of course it will! It was bound to come out anyway, soon or late. You didn't think you could keep up this Jervaux racket? I don't see any way you could do that. But you can keep it in the family. You've got to face the music."

There was a long pause.

"I—can't," said Almee, scarcely audibly.

Billy was amazed. If it had not been so dark—and an incredible supposition in any case—he would have supposed from her voice that she was crying.

"You aren't afraid?" he said wonderingly.

"Of a row? No! It isn't that."

Billy sat down beside her.

"What is it then, partner?" he said gently.

"I never thought of it—till Georgie told me," said Almee in stifled tones. "Told you what?" he answered quietly. "What's the trouble?"

"About staying there. I—Ivy cottage!"

Billy moved slightly.

"I—I don't quite get you," he said. "I can't tell Dad!" Almee put her hands over her eyes and burst into tears. "I daren't! Billy, what am I to do!"

CHAPTER XII

A Gambler's Chance.

Billy stared straight before him. When at last he found his voice, it had so dazed a tone that Almee hardly recognized it. He laid a hand on her shoulder.

"This thing's got me guessing," said Billy slowly. "I—I don't know what—"

"Of course, you never thought twice about it. And no more did I!" said Almee. "I didn't care! And I don't care now! Or I wouldn't if it wasn't for Dad. But people—it's all this miserable sentiment—that's what's wrong."

"Yes?" said Billy dizzily. "Well—"

"And now—why, the police are looking for a man and woman on a motor-cycle, and they'll find out we were at Ivy cottage. They'll get my description. And even when they find out—"

"She'll have to stay here, too. There's a bit of risk to that—but very little. We can't help it. In the parer-case, you'll find iron rations, a 3-opener, biscuits, an' chocolate. I vays carry those. Down the pit nder, just by the alder bush, is a ring of water. That settles supes."

"Now, the first deal is to keep you ht out of the way. For a few irs, perhaps for a day or more— an't say how long. But we've got put up a bluff. And you'll be at it as safe here as anywhere in the ish isles."

Our best chance is that the police v get the bracelets onto the real ves right away. I'm not much ck on that chance. Police, wher- on you strike 'em, are—well, they're just police. We're in a lot more danger from them than that dead-beat who broke into Jervaux, and the female rattlesnake he had along. The police mustn't get you, at any price. And—they mustn't get me either. Only there's more to it than that. Half a hundred things. There's a mighty tangled deal in front of me."

"Now, I'm going to sail right in. All you've got to do is lie here in this cache till about seven or eight o'clock. I'll be back here by then. If I'm not," said Billy quietly, "it'll be because I've fallen through. You bet your life I won't. But—if I don't get here by then, you must throw your hand in, just get straight to your father, best way you can. Do you promise that?"

"Yes! But tell me what you're going to do, Billy!" she said breathlessly.

"I can't tell you anything. I'll have to play the hand as it's dealt me; it just depends how the cards fall. And don't you worry any," he said earnestly. "If you get doubtful or scary, just wash it right out of your mind, an' say this: 'Billy's running the thing for me, an' he'll see me through!' I'm off. Shake!"

With a sudden gesture Almee put both her hands in his. He gave them a crushing grip, and broke into the sunniest smile.

"We sure are seein' life, partner!" he chuckled.

Almee replied with a rather tremulous laugh. The next moment Billy had dropped her hands, and was gone. Once clear of the crag-pits, Billy made for the road by another route. While climbing a gate he glanced at the luminous dial of his wrist watch.

He flashed the torch round the walls of the cave.

"What'd you think of this place?"

"It's—snug."

"Snug!" echoed Billy admiringly. "That's you! It would give some women fits. But you've said. Do you think," he added diffidently, "that you could make out here for a bit? Could you sleep here?"

"Certainly I could. Why, they'll never find me—!"

"Come up here," said Billy, leading the way along the cave, which turned in a long curve, narrowing to a very small space. At the end stood the hinx.

"She'll have to stay here, too. There's a bit of risk to that—but very little. We can't help it. In the parer-case, you'll find iron rations, a 3-opener, biscuits, an' chocolate. I vays carry those. Down the pit nder, just by the alder bush, is a ring of water. That settles supes."

"Now, the first deal is to keep you ht out of the way. For a few irs, perhaps for a day or more— an't say how long. But we've got put up a bluff. And you'll be at it as safe here as anywhere in the ish isles."

Our best chance is that the police v get the bracelets onto the real ves right away. I'm not much ck on that chance. Police, wher- on you strike 'em, are—well, they're just police. Almee replied with a rather tremulous laugh. The next moment Billy had dropped her hands, and was gone. Once clear of the crag-pits, Billy made for the road by another route. While climbing a gate he glanced at the luminous dial of his wrist watch.

Billy Laid Before Her the Lambe Emeralds.

and emitted a whistle of consternation. Almee's account of herself was absorbing, but he did not realize till now what an unconscionable time they had spent in the cave. The night was nearing its close.

Billy avoided the roads. He struck right across country and reached Ivy cottage with as little loss of time as possible. But the eastern sky was rapidly lightening when he arrived. Entering the garden with extreme caution, Billy found everything quiet. He climbed the trellis deftly, and heaved himself through Almee's window.

With a certain sense of embarrassment Billy swept the walls with his torch, unhooked the blue dust-cloak that hung on the door, folded it small, and packed it inside his jacket. That was the main object of the expedition.

He also annexed a cake of soap, a towel and a brush and comb—these latter he had himself bought for Almee at Syderford on the first morning. Billy again descended the trellis, raked over his footprints carefully, and with all possible speed shook the mud of Ivy cottage from his feet.

It was broad daylight when he had crossed the fields and came within sight of Jervaux abbey. He hid the cloak and its accessories under a thorn bush, glanced at his watch again, seated himself under the hedge, and lit a cigarette.

He drew the jewel case from his pocket and examined the necklace, thoughtfully emitting puffs of smoke. Then he replaced the case in his pocket and finished his cigarette, his smooth forehead wrinkling into tiny lines. Finally he rose and walked briskly towards the entrance lodge of Jervaux.

There was no electric bell in the great porch. He pulled a pendant handle of wrought iron, and was answered by an archaic clanging inside. After a brief pause the doors were thrown open by Tarbeaux the butler. He looked at Billy inquiringly.

"I want to see the proprietor—on urgent business," said Billy. "Is he up yet?"

"If you mean Lady Erythea Lambe," said Mr. Tarbeaux with dignity, "her ladyship has not yet risen."

"I am a stranger here," said Billy. "But what I want you to do is get a message to her ladyship that it will be worth her while to see me as soon as convenient. Say I've important news about some property that's missing from here."

Mr. Tarbeaux became more alert. "Come this way," he said, and Billy followed him.

In less than ten minutes Lady Erythea arrived, pallid after her night of stress, but unconquerable, clad in a purple wrap. Billy turned to face that tremendous presence.

"What do you want to see me about?" she said sternly.

With his sunniest smile, Billy opened the leather case and laid before her the Lambe emeralds.

CHAPTER XIII

"Very Good, My Lady."

"Do these interest you, madame?" said Billy simply.

Lady Erythea stared as though the green gems hypnotized her. Then, with a little gasp of joy, she lifted them from the case with trembling fingers. It was one of the rare occasions of her life when Lady Erythea exhibited emotion.

She laid down the necklace and looked at Billy as one might regard a materialized angel. Before she could speak, however, Mr. Alexander Lambe entered the room.

It has been said that Mr. Lambe's eyes were large. They expanded indescribably when he saw the Lambe necklace lying on the table. He closed the door softly behind him, and approached the table in an awestruck manner.

He glanced from the emeralds to Lady Erythea's face, and then, somewhat sternly, at Billy.

"How did you come by these?" said Lady Erythea, pointing to the emeralds. Suddenly she presented the ear-trumpet at Billy. "Explain!"

The ear-trumpet startled Billy a little. He felt—so he declared to Almee afterward—as if Lady Erythea had the drop on him. But his face, as he answered, was ingenious as a baby's.

"I was passing by your park gates early this morning, on my way to Syderford. It was past one, an' the house was dark. When I got to the place where the lane turns into the road I heard a motorcycle coming up behind, h—I for—coming mighty quick," said Billy, turning pink. "It came right by me, pretty near out of control. It hadn't any lights, there was a bend just ahead, an' I heard it crash."

Billy delivered this with a beautiful fluency into the ear-trumpet.

"I just ran in on them," pursued Billy, "for I didn't have to stop an' figure it out that an outfit traveling that way with lights out at one in the morning was up to any good. They were just picking themselves up when I arrived, and they went for me—"

"Was it a man and a woman?" exclaimed Mr. Lambe.

"You've hit it, sir."

"My dear aunt!" cried Alexander. "The inspector told me, after you retired, that he suspected a man and a woman, on a motorcycle, of being the thieves! They can be no other than those people who ran into us yesterday on the Syderford road—"

"Hold your tongue, Alexander," interrupted Lady Erythea impatiently, "and allow this amazing young man to continue!"

"There was some scrap," said Billy diffidently, "maybe if there'd been two men I'd have done better, but the lady hampered me, and somehow I took the count. They knocked me out, and got away. But they left this behind them," he pointed to the case of emeralds, "and it looks like they never knew they'd lost it. I don't know, madam, if there was anything else of yours they got. If so, I'm very sorry I didn't attach it, and rope the two thieves for you as well. But with the pair of them, it was rather a roughhouse. I did my best."

There was a flush of admiration on Lady Erythea's high cheek-bones.

"Yes, there were other jewels stolen," she said, "but their value is the merest trifle compared to what you have restored to me. These emeralds are my most priceless family possession. They are historic—nothing could have recompensed me for the loss of them. Your conduct has been not only intelligent, but extraordinarily gallant. May I ask your name?"

"Spencer, William Spencer."

"Mr. Spencer, it is impossible for me to express my gratitude in words. I thank you most heartily for what you have done; it is fortunate for me the emeralds fell into such good hands. Let me say that I was about to offer a reward for information leading to the recovery of the jewels; a reward of—"

Lady Erythea hesitated, and achieved an inward struggle—"one hundred pounds. But I must really ask you to accept a hundred and fifty."

Lady Erythea unlocked a desk, and produced a check-book. Billy flushed red.

"Madam," he said quietly, "the service I did you cost me nothing. I'm glad you have your jewels back. I'm a man who earns his living, but I don't accept gratuities. And people very scarcely ever offer them to me."

Lady Erythea turned somewhat pink in her turn. She slid the check-book aside.

"I beg your pardon," she said, with some embarrassment, mingled with relief and a touch almost of annoyance. "It was the least I could do. You will accept no recompense?"

"None, madam. Anyway not in money."

"You are not English, are you?"

"American. And a Westerner, at that."

"Ah! You have done me a great service. Is there nothing I can do for you?"

Before Billy could reply, Mr. Tarbeaux opened the door.

"M'lady, Inspector Panke—"

Mr. Tarbeaux's gaze fell on the emeralds. He was very human for a butler, and it took him a fraction of a second to recover himself.

"Inspector Panke urgently desires to see your ladyship at once."

"Show him in here," said Lady Erythea grimly.

Billy did not move an eyelid. It seemed to him that Mr. Lambe's solemn eyes were watching him rather intently. Inspector Panke appeared. It was a great day in the Lambe emeralds' history. The inspector was the fifth person in whom they caused intense emotion.

"Well, have you caught the thieves?" inquired Lady Erythea, acidly.

"No-n-n, my lady," stammered Inspector Panke, gazing at the necklace.

"Perhaps you had better enlist the services of Mr. Spencer," said her ladyship, with a wave of her hand toward Billy. "This young man has already found the emeralds and restored them to me."

"Then," said Panke, with a searching glance at Billy, "I should like a full account, at once, of how you came by the jewels."

"Sure," said Billy genially.

Mr. Lambe set chairs for them both. All four seated themselves; Lady Erythea, with an avid determination to keep abreast of affairs, held her ear-trumpet close to Billy and the policeman.

Billy repeated his tale with fuller detail this time, and described, not without a twinge of embarrassment, his downfall at the hands of Calamity Kate. Lady Erythea's lips tightened grimly, the description did not surprise her. The inspector had his book before him and made careful notes. At the conclusion he regarded Billy pensively, and with a touch of envy.

"It's a pity you didn't hang on to them, when you'd got them in hand," said Panke. "But, of course, we know what Calamity Kate is."

"Who?" echoed Billy.

"Panke described briefly the popular names of the two thieves, and what little was known about them.

"And now, Mr. Spencer, I have some questions to put to you—for the information of the police. This happened between one and two o'clock. It is now seven. What became of you in the meantime?"

Billy turned to the light and allowed Panke to inspect the wound on the side of his head, only partially concealed by his hair.

"If you'd had that," said Billy, "I guess you'd be lyin' on the grass yonder now."

"A severe cut," said the inspector, impressed.

"And you lay unconscious there till daybreak?" exclaimed Lady Erythea, with intense sympathy.

"It might have been a week, for all I knew when I woke up. When I'd got my senses back, an' made up my mind what to do," said Billy calmly, "I came along here."

"Didn't it occur to you," said Panke, "that the right thing to do was to go to the police?"

"No. It occurred to me the first thing to do was to get the stuff straight back to its owner."

"And perfectly right, too!" said Lady Erythea sharply.

"How did you know," persisted Panke, "that the necklace belonged here?"

Billy turned over the necklace and pointed to the little gold-enamel pendant that bore the Lambe arms in a lozenge.

"Those three sheepskins—" he began.

"Fleeces—fleeces, argent," murmured Mr. Lambe.

"—are the same brand as those on the shields over the lodge gates here, which I noticed as I came by. And the thieves were coming from this direction when I struck them."

"What do you think of it, Billy?" she said. "Aren't the complete Amy Snooks?"

EGG HUNT

Promptly at 2 o'clock, March 30th, the entire High School marched in formation from the building to the "cuts" below town for a jolly good Easter egg hunt.

As the eggs had already been hid, the hunt began immediately on our arrival. Pupils scattered in every direction and soon all the eggs had been found.

Dame Ramor says the local doctors would have received much practice on the night of March 30 had it not been for mothers' remedies for "egg sick chillans."

HONOR ROLL

The following pupils in the Primary and Intermediate departments of school have won their places on the Honor Roll by making A on all subjects:

Ware's Baby Powder Relieved His Baby of Intestinal Indigestion in 48 Hours Cured in a Few Days

Geo. W. Thomas, prominent citizen of Shreveport, La., wrote us July 23, 1919, of this experience with his baby boy: "Eight years ago my baby boy, then three months old, was in constant pain, crying continuously, suffering from intestinal indigestion, and after spending $750.00 with the doctors, I got a box of Ware's Baby Powder, and in 48 hours my baby was relieved and in a few days was entirely well."

What a Housa, La., Mother Says About It

Mrs. Aledore Picou, 803 East Park Ave., Houma, La., writes us March 30, 1922, as follows: "Please send me twenty (20) boxes of your Ware's Baby Powder by parcel post, c. o. d. I have used your baby powder in my own home and many of my friends want your Ware's Baby Powder because they have seen what it did in my home. One of my children weighed 134 pounds before he began using your Baby Powder, before two months had passed he had gained nine pounds, and today he weighs 294 pounds and is in perfect health."

For over forty years, Ware's Baby Powder—the prescription of Dr. James Ware, famous old Southern physician—has been a healing boon to babies for bowel troubles, teething and summer complaints, etc. Keep the stomach and bowels in a healthy condition and you need have no fear of these distressing troubles so general among babies especially during the teething period. Perfectly harmless, mixed according to directions, a teaspoonful of Ware's Baby Powder, a half teaspoonful of sugar, add enough water to make four doses, children love to take it. At your drug store, in 50c and $1.00 packages. Prepared in the laboratories of The Ware Chemical Co., Dallas, Texas. Adv. No. 3

ENGLISH AIM

English has made us shed many a tear, Till for our grades we have a fear; Our teacher then patiently tries to explain While we try to "catch on" with might and main.

Sometimes we get a very great fall And don't make a passing grade at all Yet we do not give up, but think of the line:

"Not failure, but low aim, is crime."

So we're determined to study to the last, Till we learn that in English we pass, Then we'll keep on climbing and never stop Until we arrive at the very top.

A PREP STUDENT'S VERSION OF TWO OLD POEMS

I tell you now in mournful numbers History is one awful dream, For most of the characters in it slumber And things aren't such as they seem.

Life is real! Life is earnest! But histories are bygone dreams, And I tell you folk in earnest That it's as useless as it seems.

Art is long and time is fleeting, And our hearts, tho' stout and brave, Still like muffled drums are beating, English is marching us to the grave.

When the hours of day are numbered And the gong sounds down the hall, I awake to find I've slumbered And don't know my Math at all.
