Citation on Annual Report

State of Texas,
County of Donley.

To All Creditors, Heirs, Devisees and Legatees, and to All Others Interested in the Estate of Richard Walsh, Deceased:

You are hereby notified that in the Estate of Richard Walsh, deceased, Number 363, pending in the County Court of Donley county, Texas, W. H. Patrick, Executor of such estate, has on this the 5th day of July, 1923, filed his annual exhibit under oath as required by law, and that such exhibit will be examined by the Judge of said Court at the next regular term thereof opening on the third Monday in August, 1923, to wit: the 20th day of August, A. D. 1923, who shall approve the same, if found to be correct.

Witness, Lottie E. Lane, clerk of the County Court of Donley county, Texas.

Given under my hand and seal of office at Clarendon, this the 5th day of July, A. D. 1923

Lottie E. Lane, Clerk
[Seal] of the County Court of Donley County, Texas.

THE PANHANDLE BAPTIST ASSEMBLY

TWELVE MILES NORTHEAST OF HAPPY, TEXAS

The fourth annual session of the Assembly will be held this year July 24th to August 1st in the beautiful Ceta Canyon.

Through the wise business management of Rev. B. F. Fronabarger a section of land including a mile of canyon was bought and is being improved. Individual and Baptist churches all over the Panhandle have bought lease shares and have all the rights and privileges of camping on these grounds at any time. A fee of $1.50 for individuals or a maximum of $4.00 for a family for the period of the Assembly for faculty and speaker expenses, or 25c for one day the maximum of 75c for a family.

Roads from Amarillo, Canyon, Happy and Tulia are marked and the road down into the Canyon has been made. A big 90 feet square tabernacle has been built to accommodate all the classes and the biggest crowds that may come. A small Western Electric light plant lights up the tabernacle, guest house, restaurant and central grounds. Inexhaustible cool spring water flows out of the striped banks for everybody. Notice is needed. Two dams furnish long lakes of water for bathing and boating. The kiddies can play in the shallow water. Up on the plain are tennis courts and a baseball park. Abundant shade, wild scenery and a delightful climate make this an ideal place for a family to spend their vacation.

Bring your camp outfit and renew your youth and your spiritual strength during the session of the Assembly July 24th to August 1st.

Write Mgr. B. F. Fronabarger, Canyon, Texas, if you want him to provide a tent or other equipment.

Dr. and Mrs. L. L. McDougal and three sons, from Booneville, Miss., are here on a visit to the Doctor's brother, J. G. McDougal, and family.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

AT CROSS ROADS

CROSS roads are dangerous places. In the Great War allied and German soldiers alike shunned all points where roads crossed.

There was no hesitating and wavering, backing and filling. This was because it was just about as dangerous to stand at a crossroads in the combat zone as it is to stand on a railroad track.

The cross roads of life are just as dangerous as were the cross roads in Flanders and France.

When you come to a parting of the ways, make up your mind quickly which is the right way to go, and go.

Sooner or later you will come to a situation where you can save yourself a lot of trouble by departing from your usual rule of truthfulness and telling a lie.

That is a cross road. If you linger at it, wondering which way to turn, vacillating between the two courses, the chances are greater that you will take the wrong road—the road of the lie.

Your first impulse will be to take the course of truth. You will know it is the right road. Don't stand at the cross roads. Go full speed down the route you know is the right one.

And if you select the road of truth you will come to fewer quizzing corners than you will on the road to lies.

The same thing will be true of every road parting which you encounter. To linger there will be dangerous.

Do not think of a parting of the ways as a disaster. It is just like the soldier who stands at the cross roads until a shell reaches him out and its explosion destroys him.

The armies shelled all cross roads at frequent intervals because they knew that somebody was likely to be there, either because of congested traffic or because of indecision as to which way to go.

Chief among your enemies are your own weaknesses and habits. They will deliberately attack you while you are at the parting; of the ways.

Do not loiter there.

THE ROMANCE OF WORDS

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

DISCONTENT

THERE are those who are continually complaining about some mysterious power which is holding them back.

These are the individuals who pile upon the backs of humanity its heaviest burdens of unhappiness.

They would like to sit in the high places, give orders, read the law of department to subordinates; but they lack the spirit to make themselves capable, so they keep snuffling along their gloomy way and acquiring bearish dispositions.

It involves too much work, too many deprivations of things which they consider essential to their body-comfort.

When the awakening comes, as it eventually does, they find themselves so enslaved to pernicious habits that they are powerless to break away.

Study and books are a bore. Anything that calls for thought or fixed attention of the mind cannot be endured.

"MASTERS OF MEN"

by MORGAN ROBERTSON

The greatest story of the sea ever screened!

A thrilling film story of he-men whose veins run hot with red fighting blood!

A blunt, vigorous yarn of a boy's fight upward against overwhelming odds, where fierce, high courage and prime muscle, means a hard fist and a ready wallop!

Shanghaied! Drugged by crimps and fung insensible into the hell hole forward, where sweating, brow-beaten men live like beasts accorged to their tasks with curses and bawling pin.

The sea! The flavor of salt in the nostrils; the odor of pitch in the air, the snapping of wind-swept canvas crackling like a machine gun; the creaking, singing wood straining as she rides the high waves! All magic and lure of adventure, the Spanish Main and sailorman!

Love! A timid boy's unspoken dream of his heart's desire; a girl too old-fashioned to offer love unbidden; a lad's sacrifice of youth's dearest possession—honor—to protect her from the shame of another's crime; the confusion of bitter misunderstandings that threaten life-long broken hearts!

Uncle Sam's bluejackets! The fighting men of the greatest nation in the world, and what they think and how they live; their loyalty and cheer and youth, eternal, living, fighting youth! The careless devil-may-care "gob," incorrigible, loyal; impudent and lovable!

Romance! The sea spells romance. Red sunsets turn green waves to crashing mountains of blood; noon suns spread gold upon the bosom of the sea, gold that beckons and calls to youth to gather its riches; never-ending mirages of golden bowls at rainbows' ends. And, the sea gives no riches; only character and manhood, bitterly squeezed out of its cold, hard substance!

Wholesome, clean, adventure, free from tawdry conflicts and sex illusions, based on fact gathered by one who served among men, who loved men, who admired men and who wished young America to so live that he might become a man! The trash of silly, social temptations has no place in this screen story of a boy who became the master of the man.

Here is a story of the making of men; men who acted and argued later. Shifty-footed men, with a right and left punch and a keen eye and a high sense of honor and guts to go the limit!

Dick Halpin is the lad you wanted to be; and I dreamed to be! His fighting courage we envied. He's the boy that assumed another's petty crime and ran away to sea to live it down, that the girl he loved might not be shamed and humiliated by the revelation of her brother's weakness. He's the fellow you and I used to talk about; that lad of strength and honor we built with boyish imaginations up in the haymow, or while idling with a home-made fishing rod down by the creek. He's your kind and my kind and because we had fathers and mothers to make our way easier we never managed to be him; but we wanted to and we'll live it down, again with Dick Halpin in this vivid living motion picture, "Masters of Men."

A master of men wrote this great sea tale. A man whose life was as hard as the diamonds he cut and who never wrote a line until he had lived beyond an average man's age; a man who took a beating at the hands of a brutal second mate with a smile, and who administered a beating with equal cheerfulness; a man who knew the sea and a sailorman's life; who criticized Kipling rightfully and who wrote his first sea tale to prove that a man who knew the sea could write a better story of the sea; a man who earned little by his pen and who starred while he wrote; the greatest writer of sea stories in all literature.

Morgan Robertson, a master of men, wrote the last word in thrilling sea stories when he wrote "Masters of Men."

WINDY VALLEY CLUB NOTES

The Economics Club of Windy Valley met with Mrs. Ayers on July 21st to reorganize and have a talk on our work for the coming year.

Officers were elected as follows: Gladys Noble, president; Clara Mae Mann, vice president; Agnes Ayers, secretary and reporter.

After Mrs. Elise Williams, Home Demonstration Agent had given a talk on "Standards of Good Biscuits," we went into the kitchen and had a lesson on making biscuits.

There will be a contest on biscuit making at Mrs. Ayers' home Wednesday morning. The two winners of the Windy Valley Club will enter at Clarendon on the 15th of this month.

The following required sewing was turned in: Three cap towels, three can holders, one bag, two aprons, one hemmed patch, and one gown.

For the home improvement work the girls are finishing one pair pillow cases, one dresser scarf, one centerpiece, one towel and a pillow top.

The meeting was adjourned at 11:30 to meet again with Mrs. Ayers on the third Monday in July, to finish our sewing and get ready for our canning lessons.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

Now Recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Washington, D. C.—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation which a physician said would have to have for a very bad case of female trouble. My system was all run down for two years after my little girl was born. Then I read of your wonderful medicine and decided to try it. I could hardly drag one foot after the other, and after taking six bottles of the Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman. I now do all my housework, also washing and ironing, and do not know what real trouble is. My health is fine, and I weigh 140 pounds. When I started taking it I weighed 97 pounds. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to anyone who is suffering from female trouble or is run down. You may use the testimonial for I am only too glad to let suffering women know what the Vegetable Compound did for me."—Mrs. IDA HEWITT, 1529 Penna. Ave. S. E., Washington, D. C.

Such letters from women in every section of this country prove beyond question the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Billy Kneel
"Petrarch," said the history teacher at an Indianapolis school, "was a man of letters. Now, who can tell me what is meant by a 'man of letters'?"

Billy raised his hand.
"It means he went to college and graduated, and got a whole lot of letters after his name," he said.

Grandma—Sure, Bud. You like that so much, don't you?
Tommy Boy—Nope, but when I eat a lot of it I get a bellyache and then I don't have to go to school.

Child's Best Laxative To Clean the Bowels

Hurry, mother! A teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup" not only thoroughly cleans the little bowels and in a few hours you have a well, playful child again. ### Healthful Quarters for Hogs of Big Importance

If hog raising is to be a profitable business the animals must be kept healthy. This requires that sanitary quarters and equipment be provided. Hog houses can be designed and built of concrete block so as to satisfy every requirement. They possess all the advantages of houses built of other materials and, when properly built, have none of the disadvantages.

Swine House Made of Concrete Blocks.

Concrete block is the material used in constructing not only the walls of the house itself, but also in inclosing small runways at the front. The design shown is known as the half-monitor type. It is always built to face the south, so that sunlight may water through both the upper and lower tiers of windows. A passageway runs from one end to the other, which facilitates cleaning the bins, which are located at both sides of the passageway.

At one end some space is set off for feed storage and mixing. Provision is made here for the cooking of feed, which is especially advantageous in cold weather and for early spring litters.

The swine house should be kept comparatively warm, either with a small heater or by insulating the walls so that the animal heat is retained. Adequate ventilation is also very essential.

Dry Mash Is Excellent Feed All Year Around

Many poultry raisers are feeding cockerels to get in shape to sell as broilers. Purdue university recommends for this use a ration composed of two pounds of corn, one pound of shorts, one pound of ground oats, and eight pounds of buttermilk.

This should be mixed and allowed to stand and sour for 24 hours before feeding. Feed in a trough placed outside the crate in front of the birds. The birds should appear ravenous and eat greedily. If they do not, there is something wrong with them, and they should be removed from the coop. When the birds have eaten for 30 minutes the trough should be taken away, thoroughly cleaned and allowed to dry. Give the fowls all they will eat in 30 minutes and no more.

Water is not necessary except in hot weather. It is advisable to feed grit every few days. Two weeks is a good average length of time to feed. The greatest gain should be made during the first week, but it is profitable to continue in most cases for another week.

Give Little Pig Chance to Make Hog of Himself

Just as soon as the little pigs will eat they should be fed in addition to what they get from the sow. This will pay, according to L. A. Weaver of the Missouri College of Agriculture, even when the sow is a good milk producer, and on the best ration.

The pigs should be given access to a small pen where the sow cannot go, to receive their supplementary feed. Skim milk fed in a shallow pan is very good for them. The pigs may be taught to run into the creep for feed by allowing them some shelled or ear corn. As soon as they begin to eat well, a slop made of milk, some shorts, a little bran and some linseed oil meal or tankage fed along with the corn will make a ration which with proper exercise should satisfactorily meet the requirements for rapid growth.

This ration for the young pigs should include by weight: 4 parts shorts, 1 part bran and 1 part tankage. As the pigs become older the corn may be gradually increased until the amount has been doubled.

Critical Period of Pig.
It isn't the number of pigs that are farrowed so much as the number saved that counts. The first ten days in a pig's life are the most critical. Give both sow and her litter special attention then.

Purebred Live Stock.
Four per cent of the beef cattle and three and one-half per cent of the hogs in the United States are purebred. This does not indicate any great danger of overdoing the purebred business at a very early date.

EVIDENCE GIVEN BY MRS. WICKENS

Presents Convincing Proof of Tanlac's Power to Overcome Stomach Troubles.

"My very first bottle of Tanlac gave me an appetite, and by the time I had finished four bottles of the treatment my health was restored completely," declared Mrs. L. P. Wickens, residing at 1214 West Tenth St., Oklahoma City.

"Before taking Tanlac I was suffering with stomach trouble, and the little I managed to eat gave me indigestion and caused so much gas around my heart that I could hardly breathe. I had awful headaches and dizzy spells, and was so nervous I could never get a good night's sleep. I simply felt miserable, and was losing time every week from my work.

"Nothing helped me until I commenced taking Tanlac, but this medicine has restored my health so perfectly that I have a splendid appetite, sleep soundly every night, and never lose any time from my work. I feel splendid in every way, and can recommend Tanlac to anyone suffering like I did."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Take no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Baby Was Soon Playing With Daddy Again

"My baby cut two teeth at 4 1/2 months and cried so much I could hardly quiet her. Really I didn't know what to do till a friend said give her Teethingin, which I did, and in a day or two she was laughing and playing with Daddy again. She has cut several teeth since and they never gave her a bit of trouble," writes Mrs. Charles H. Partain, 211 Shell Road, Mobile, Ala.

Many a distracted mother would find comfort and relief if she would give her baby Teethingin all through its teething time. It soothes the inflamed gums and relieves every distressing symptom.

Teethingin is sold by leading druggists, or send 30¢ to the Moffett Laboratories, Columbus, Ga., and receive a full-size package and a free copy of Moffett's illustrated Baby Book.—Advertisement.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says, "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by parcel post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

EMPHASIZE LONG LINES;

KNITTED BATHING SUITS

LIFE, liberty, and the pursuit of splenderness are guaranteed rights and wraps are doing their utmost to see that women enjoy them. They take their direct, unswerving course from head to foot in a straight line, resorting to subterfuge if necessary, to make that line seem longer than the distance from cheek to ankle.

Ample collars, many of them of summer furs, capacious sleeves and unusual decorations distinguish the season's modes. In colors, black, beige, gray, sand and brown prevail by day suits, beach costumes and the whimsical trappings pertaining thereto precede in discussion and planning of one's vacation wardrobe.

After all is said and done, real "water fans" who enter into aquatic sports and sea bathing, for whole-hearted enjoyment and genuine benefit, concede that the knitted bathing suit is without peer not only from the viewpoint of withstanding the test of ocean wave, but in giving incomparable freedom of action to the body.

The supremacy of the knitted bath-and black is also a favorite for evening, but it is rivaled by many colors. Black and gold, or brown and gold brocade hold their own with more vivid shades in capes that dominate the evening styles, and they also affect fur in their collars. An example of a coat for general wear and a cape for evening appear in the illustration. Although the coat is the sort of wrap that will answer for many purposes, it is unusually chic and graceful. It is made of a gray wool twill, but crepe might be used, and it has a collar of Hudson seal. Graduated tucks at the back and front and on the sleeves, and ing suit being uncontested from a practical standpoint, the next question before the world of fashion is as to its merit from the aesthetic point of view. Let the handsome one-piece knitted bathing suit shown in this picture be the answer. In its styling, the designer adroitly introduces interesting detail set forth in charming color scheme. This bathing suit is knit of black wool, contrasted with long trunks in Copenhagen blue. Decorative armholes and neck are piped in gold. A tie cord sash of black and blue completes this unusual suit.

Many of the newer bathing suits sash ends that cleverly add to its length are style touches that distinguish it.

Gray and black are combined in the cape, which borrows its colorful embroidery from the valley of the Nile. White and colored silks applied to the upper part of the cape revive the colors and the figures of ancient Egyptian art, and black satin makes an unobtrusive but fittingly rich lower half. The collar of light gray and black fur is of a fluffy, feathery sort suited to summer.

In misummer fancy gayly turns toward the joys which sea, lake and river present to the water enthusiast. The time is upon us when outgling include knickers which come below the knee, are fitted and sometimes button at the sides.

Popular selection trends to choice of heavy knitted silk bathing suits either black or dark blue, banded in vivid colors. Black-blue with black is a favorite combination.

The fad for matching accessories to footwear has reached the bathing benches. The idea is carried out charmingly with a black or dark blue knit suit bordered in striking color. If bright red then the shoes are the same startling hue, and the color climax is attained in a scarlet knit beach cape, these long woolen wraps being in special favor this season.

With the knitted bathing costume, accessories play a decorative part. Caps, especially, have grown so ornate, they are worthy of classification as ocean millinery. Note the winsome cap shown in the inset, designed in marine blue with brilliant green trimmings. Lately the better shops are displaying beach sets consisting of wide rubber scarf and cap elaborately fashioned in riotous colorings.

SEA MOSS DISHES

Sea moss is found on the northeastern coast and is well known and enjoyed in the New England states. It is called carrageen, but is better known as sea moss. It is a whitish weed without flavor and with the odor of salt water. It may be purchased by the pound and is used in the place of sage, gelatin and rennet. It is especially valued as invalid diet.

The moss is washed carefully in several waters before cooking, then placed in a cheesecloth bag and dropped into the milk and cooked in a double boiler for twenty-five minutes to half an hour. One cupful, packed, will thicken four quarts of milk.

For a plain, smooth and delicate ice cream take one-fourth cupful of sea moss and cook ten minutes in a quart of rich milk, strain, add a cupful of cream and one-half cupful of sugar; flavor with a teaspoonful of vanilla and freeze as usual. If one desires the moss may be put without a cloth bag into the milk, then it must be carefully strained. Sugar may be omitted and honey of the same amount used or one cupful of any jam, like peach or strawberry.

Sea moss may be used for drinks. To one-fourth of a cupful of the moss add one quart of water, heat slowly and cook ten minutes. To one glassful of the strained sea-moss liquid add the juice of half a lemon and one tablespoonful of honey. Grape juice may be used in place of the lemon or with a teaspoonful of lemon juice added with it; cherry juice or cream with a grating of nutmeg.

Sea Breeze Pudding.—To one-quarter of a cupful of sea moss add one quart of milk. Cook in the top of the double boiler for twenty-five minutes, remove the moss and add the yolk of an egg well beaten with one-fourth of a cupful of sugar and a bit of salt. Add vanilla and the beaten egg white, heap in a glass dish and chill before serving.

No price is set for the lavish summer. June may be had by the poorest comer. —Lowell.

SPRING VEGETABLE DISHES

The tender young carrots, green peas, delicious asparagus and new green onions make a fine variety with the pretty radish and an occasional cucumber.

Asparagus and Eggs.—Make a white sauce, using three tablespoonfuls of butter, bubbling hot, and three tablespoonfuls of flour and when well-blended add three cupfuls of milk gradually. Season with salt, cayenne and white pepper and add one cupful of finely-diced Young American cheese. Stir until the cheese is melted, then add one-half cupful of thin cream. Have ready six hard-cooked eggs in the shell and cook a bunch of the tender portions of asparagus cut in inch-pieces. Slice the eggs and add to the asparagus; do not stir to destroy the shape; add the sauce and serve on slices of buttered toast.

June Salad.—Place white lettuce on a glass salad plate, radiate cooked asparagus stalks toward the edge, leaving space in the center of the mound for cooked, seasoned, green peas; surround with a ring of cooked carrots, sprinkle with French dressing and pipe thick mayonnaise in rings around the vegetables, putting a whirl in the center which is garnished with a few white lettuce leaves. Sprinkle the carrots with minced parsley and the peas and asparagus with finely-chopped red pepper.

Spiced Blackberries.—There is no more delicious pickle than that prepared from the wild blackberry. Take seven pounds of blackberries with three pounds of sugar and one pint of vinegar. Into the vinegar and sugar place a small cheese cloth bag of two teaspoonfuls each of cinnamon and cloves with a little nutmeg. Let the spices stand in the sugar and vinegar for several hours, then boil ten minutes, add the berries and when they are well scalded put them into a jar and pour over the boiling hot syrup. The syrup may be boiled down to half the quantity before adding, then the spice bag may be removed if too much spice is not liked.

Carrots With Peas.—Dice carrots fine and cook until tender in just enough water to keep them from scorching. Cook an equal quantity of new peas, drain both, saving the water for soup, add one-half teaspoonful of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt and one teaspoonful of finely-minced parsley or chives, a speck of grated nutmeg, and enough butter to season well. Stir until well absorbed, then add three tablespoonfuls of thick cream; boil up once and serve hot.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

DRAGON-FLIES

"It makes me very much annoyed," said Daddy Dragon-Fly, "when I am not appreciated. We eat up naughty little insects and people shouldn't be afraid of us."

"Well," said another Dragon-Fly, whose real name was Mr. Epiaeschna feros, "I wasn't very welcome the other day. I flew in a window of a house—and there was a little girl taking a bath. She was having a beautiful time, splashing and all, so I buzzed about and thought I'd make a noise, too. But she screamed at seeing me."

"That great, big, horrid thing," was the rude, cruel way in which she spoke of me.

"It grieved me sadly. And when I say that it grieved me sadly I mean that it made me feel quite unhappy. I was expecting to ask her many questions—why she used soap and a washing and a sponge. I thought those would be most interesting questions and though, perhaps, she wouldn't know how to answer me, I felt that by watching her I might find out."

"I thought it was a most interesting thing to see soap being used, and the soap did such strange things. I knew it was soap, because I had heard the little girl ask her mother for a fresh cake of soap and I saw what her mother gave her. The soap made bubbles and the soap was frothy and something like a bathtub variety of ocean foam. But, dear me, the way she did treat me! Screamed at me! And I wouldn't have hurt her."

"We often get into buildings and houses and we're not so very welcome. No, I must say, we're not so very welcome. If the little girl had known my name she might have been frightened by it. It is a very long name. But she just knew me as a Dragon-Fly and had no idea of the enormous and magnificent name which I always carry with me wherever I go. So there was no reason for her to be frightened. It was very sad, as I've said. I cannot see why people should be afraid of me. I cannot see, but then the ways of people are beyond a poor Dragon-Fly's understanding."

"You are the largest of all the Dragon-Flies," said Daddy Dragon-Fly. "At least I should say that your family belong to the species or kind of Dragon-Fly which is bigger than any other."

"Quite often you're taken for me and I'm sure taken for you. But you're much bigger than I am and you haven't the round spot in front of your eyes that I have. You have a T-shaped mark. Yes, your wings are big and outspread and your body is very long. My body isn't nearly so long. It is a shame not to be appreciated. Now, we

"She screamed at seeing me." —do a very good work and we're interesting-looking creatures. I lived in the water until I got my fine wings. That is the way we do as a family.

"You know that well enough. And when I was young I used to shoot forth my smart little jaws and grab up anything that passed my way that looked good to eat."

"Now I fly about and gather up my prey with my legs, holding it as though in a market basket. But, oh dear, I do wish people would stop gossiping about us biting them. We won't bite anything but our insect food! We're doing good and not harm and we're graceful and nice to look at, surely. So let's beg people to leave us alone and not to be frightened at us! We don't like to frighten them. We certainly don't like to do anything like that!"

"That's the Dragon-Fly truth!"

Least Damaging. "To be sure, I want my daughter to enjoy some kind of artistic education," said the father who had recently made his fortune. "I think I'll let her study singing."

"Why not art or literature?" questioned a friend.

"No. Art spoils canvas and literature wastes reams of paper. Singing merely produces a temporary disturbance of the atmosphere."—Chicago Daily News.

The Secret Adversary by Agatha Christie

A. CARTER

SYNOPSIS—Realizing that she has a possible chance of being saved, as the Lusitania is sinking, a stranger gives a young American girl a package which he asks her to deliver to the American ambassador in England. She is saved. In London, former Lieut. Tommy Beresford and Miss Prudence Cowley—Tuppence—discharged army nurse, form an organization, "The Young Adventurers, Ltd." They are both broke and consequently ready for unorthodox methods. They write out an advertisement. Tuppence makes a business appointment with a man, Edward Whittington, who offers her easy employment, but on giving her name as "Jane Finn," which she had heard on the street, Whittington shows agitation and Tuppence is told to return next day.

CHAPTER II—Continued.

"Thank you," faltered Tuppence. "I suppose you don't know Mr. Whittington's address?"

"Afraid I don't. They left rather suddenly."

"Thank you very much," said Tommy. "Come on, Tuppence."

They descended to the street, where they gazed at one another blankly.

"That's torn it," said Tommy at length. "Cheer up, old thing, it can't be helped."

"Can't it, though?" Tuppence's little chin shot out defiantly. "Do you think this is the end? If so, you're wrong. It's just the beginning!"

"The beginning of what?"

"Of our adventure! Tommy, don't you see, if they are scared enough to run away like this, it shows that there must be a lot in this Jane Finn business! Well, we'll get to the bottom of it. We'll run them down! We'll be sleuths in earnest!"

"Yes, but there's no one left to sleuth."

"No, that's why we'll have to start all over again. Lend me that bit of pencil. Thanks. Wait a minute—don't interrupt. There!" Tuppence handed back the pencil, and surveyed the piece of paper on which she had written with a satisfied eye.

"What's that?"

"Advertisement."

"You're not going to put that thing in after all?"

"No. It's a different one." She handed him the slip of paper.

Tommy read the words on it aloud: "Wanted—Any information respecting Jane Finn. Apply Y. A."

The day of disillusionment had been a Wednesday. On Thursday the advertisement had duly appeared. On Friday letters might be expected to arrive at Tommy's rooms.

He had been bound by an honorable promise not to open any such letters if they did arrive, but to repair to the National gallery, where his colleagues would meet him at ten o'clock.

Tuppence was first at the rendezvous. She ensconced herself on a red velvet seat until she saw the familiar figure enter the room.

"Well?"

"Well," returned Mr. Beresford provocatively. "Which is your favorite picture?"

"Aren't there any answers?"

Tommy shook his head with a deep and somewhat overcast melancholy. "I didn't want to disappoint you, old thing, by telling you right off. It's too bad. Good money wasted."

"Still, there it is. The advertisement has appeared, and—there are only two answers!"

Tuppence snatched the two precious envelopes from him unceremoniously, and scrutinized them carefully.

"Thick paper, this one. It looks rich. We'll keep it to the last and open the other first."

"Right you are. One, two, three, go!"

Tuppence's little thumb ripped open the envelope, and she extracted the contents.

"Dear Sir:

"Referring to your advertisement in this morning's paper, I may be able to be of some use to you. Perhaps you could call and see me at the above address at eleven o'clock tomorrow morning."

"Yours truly,

"A. CARTER."

"27 Carshalton Gardens," said Tuppence, referring to the address. "That's a long way. Now for the other letter. I'll read it:

"Dear Sir:

"Re your advertisement, I should be glad if you would call round somewhere about lunch-time."

"Yours truly,

"JULIUS F. HERSHEIMMER."

"Ha!" said Tommy. "Do I smell a Boche? Or only an American millionaire of unfortunate ancestry? At all events we'll call at lunch-time. It's a good time—frequently leads to free food for two."

Tuppence nodded an eager assent. "Now for Carter. We'll have to hurry."

Carshalton terrace proved to be an unimpeachable row of what Tuppence called "ladylike looking houses." They rang the bell at No. 27, and a neat maid answered the door. She looked so respectable that Tuppence's heart sank. Upon Tommy's request for Mr. Carter, she showed them into a small study on the ground floor, where she left them. Hardly a minute elapsed, however, before the door opened, and a tall man with a lean, hawklike face and a tired manner entered the room.

"Mr. Y. A.?" he said, and smiled. His smile was distinctly attractive. "Do sit down, both of you."

They obeyed. He himself took a chair opposite to Tuppence and smiled at her encouragingly. There was something in the quality of his smile that made the girl's usual readiness desert her.

As he did not seem inclined to open the conversation, Tuppence was forced to begin.

"We wanted to know—that is, would you be so kind as to tell us anything you know about Jane Finn?"

"Jane Finn? Ah!" Mr. Carter appeared to reflect. "Well, the question is, what do you yourself know about her?"

Tuppence drew herself up.

"I don't see that that's got anything to do with it."

"No? But it has, you know, really it has." He smiled again in his tired way, and continued reflectively. "So that brings us down to it again. What do you know about Jane Finn?"

"Come now," he continued, as Tuppence remained silent. "You must know something to have advertised as you did?" He leaned forward a little, his weary voice held a hint of persuasiveness. "Suppose you tell me."

"We couldn't do that, could we, Tommy?"

But, to her surprise, her companion did not back her up. His eyes were fixed on Mr. Carter, and his tone when he spoke held an unusual note of deference.

"I dare say the little we know won't be any good to you, sir. But such as it is, you're welcome to it."

Mr. Carter slevred round in his chair. His eyes asked a question.

Tommy nodded.

"Yes, sir, I recognized you at once. Saw you in France when I was with the Intelligence. As soon as you came into the room, I knew."

Mr. Carter held up his hand.

"No names, please. I'm known as Mr. Carter here. It's my cousin's house, by the way. She's willing to lend it to me sometimes when it's a case of working on strictly unofficial lines. Well, now—" he looked from one to the other—"who's going to tell me the story?"

"Fire ahead, Tuppence," directed Tommy. "It's your yarn."

And obediently Tuppence told it, telling the whole story from the forming of the Young Adventurers, Ltd., downwards.

Mr. Carter listened in silence with a resumption of his tired manner. Now and then he passed his hand across his lips as though to hide a smile. When she had finished he nodded gravely.

"Hal!" said Tommy. "Do I smell a Boche?"

"No one could have mistaken Julius P. Hersheimmer for anything but an American."

Change in Domestic Animals.

Changes in the habits and appearance of our domestic animals have become noticeable even within the last two centuries. These are due on the one hand to Nature, which is constantly adapting the animals to the altered conditions of the world they live in, and on the other to the efforts of scientific breeders who are deliberately trying to produce new strains. The horse of the sixteenth century was a heavier and stouter animal than the average horse of today. Roads and haulage have changed and Nature has done her part to fit the horse's frame for its altered duties. So it is with almost every animal in man's service. With byres and sheds provided, the ox has lost his warm shaggy coat. In the case of the sheep, on the contrary, Nature has been encouraged in every way to produce a thicker covering. How readily Nature responds to altered circumstances is seen even in the domestic pig which if left without winter shelter, develops a coat of curly hair in place of the usual scanty bristles.

"You may perhaps have heard or read that there is Bolshevist influence at work behind present labor unrest?" Tuppence nodded.

"That is the truth. Bolshevist gold is pouring into this country for the specific purpose of procuring a Revolution. And there is a certain man, a man whose real name is unknown to us, who is working in the dark for his own ends. The Bolsheviki are behind the labor unrest—but this man is BEHIND THE BOLSHEVIKI. Who is he? We do not know. He is always spoken of by the unassuming title of 'Mr. Brown.' But one thing is certain. He is the master criminal of this age. He controls a marvelous organization. Most of the peace propaganda during the war was originated and financed by him. His spies are everywhere."

"A naturalized German?" asked Tommy.

"On the contrary, I have every reason to believe he is an Englishman. He was pro-German, as he would have been pro-Boer. What he seeks to attain we do not know—probably supreme power for himself, or a kind unique in history. We have no clue as to his real personality. It is reported that even his own followers are ignorant of it. Where he has come across his tracks, he has always played a secondary part. Somebody else assumes the chief role. But afterward we always find that there has been some nonentity, a servant or a clerk, who has remained in the background unnoticed, and that the elusive Mr. Brown has escaped us once more."

"Oh!" Tuppence jumped. "I wonder—"

"Yes?"

"I remember in Mr. Whittington's office. The clerk—he called him Brown. You don't think—"

Carter nodded thoughtfully. "Can you describe him at all?"

"I really didn't notice. He was quite ordinary—just like anyone else."

Mr. Carter sighed in his tired manner.

"That is the invariable description of Mr. Brown! Brought a telephone message to the man Whittington, did he? Notice a telephone in the outer office?"

"No, I don't think I did."

"Exactly. That 'message' was Mr. Brown's way of giving an order to his subordinate. He overheard the whole conversation of course. Was it after that that Whittington handed you over the money, and told you to come the following day?"

Tuppence nodded.

"Yes, undoubtedly the hand of Mr. Brown!" Mr. Carter paused. "Well, there it is, you see what you are pitting yourselves against? Possibly the finest criminal brain of the age. I don't quite like it, you know. You're such young things, both of you. I shouldn't like anything to happen to you."

"It won't," Tuppence assured him positively.

"I'll look after her, sir," said Tommy.

"And I'll look after you," retorted Tuppence, resenting the manly assertion.

"Well, then, look after each other," said Mr. Carter, smiling. "Now let's get back to business. There's something mysterious about this draft treaty that we haven't fathomed yet. We've been threatened with it—in plain and unmistakable terms. The revolutionary element as good as declare it's in their hands, and that they intend to produce it at a given moment. On the other hand, they are clearly at fault about many of its provisions. The government considers it as mere bluff on their part, and, rightly or wrongly, have stuck to the policy of absolute denial. I'm not so sure. There have been hints, indiscreet allusions, that seem to indicate that the menace is a real one. The position is much as though they had got hold of an incriminating document, but couldn't read it because it was in cipher—but we know that the draft treaty wasn't in cipher—couldn't be, in the nature of things—so that won't wash. But there's something. Of course, Jane Finn may be doing for all we know—but I don't think so. The curious thing is that they're trying to get information about the girl from us."

"What?"

"Yes. One or two little things have cropped up. And your story, little lady confirms my idea. They know we're looking for Jane Finn. Well, they'll produce a Jane Finn of their own—say at a pensionnat in Paris." Tuppence gasped, and Mr. Carter smiled. "No one knows in the least what she looks like, so that's all right. She's primed with a trumped-up tale, and her real business is to get as much information as possible out of us. See the idea?"

"Then you think—" Tuppence paused to grasp the supposition fully—"that it was as Jane Finn that they wanted me to go to Paris?"

Mr. Carter smiled more wearily than ever.

"I believe in coincidences, you know," he said.

American Farm Bureau

America's champion canning club team sailed May 23 for France. A two-month's trip abroad is their reward for winning the canning contest held in Chicago last fall in connection with the first national boys' and girls' club congress.

Esther Bollbaugh, Katherine Bollbaugh and Beulah Rodgers, all three of Eddyville, Iowa, made up the first team. Bertha Boger and Elaine Hendricks of Burlington, Colorado, placed second.

Miss Josephine Arquist, state agent from Ames, Iowa, accompanied the first team and Miss Maude E. Sheridan, state club leader of Colorado, the second. The party visited Chicago for three days. While in Chicago they gave demonstrations before the extension directors of 12 northwestern states. From Chicago they went to Washington where they met President Harding and Department of Agricultural officials.

In France these American farm girls will give a series of demonstrations in canning methods. As guests of the American committee for devastated France they will visit all parts of France. They will also make a study of French cooking.

BIG BUSINESS IN LOUISIANA

Farm Bureau Federation Has Saved Members More Than $75,000 in Three Months.

The purchasing department of the Louisiana Farm Bureau federation through G. A. Foss, purchasing agent has done business totaling more than $200,000 for the first three months of 1923, and has saved farm bureau members in Louisiana more than $75,000.

The co-operative purchases made include 5,500 tons of acid phosphate

POTATO GROWERS IN BIG NATIONAL BODY

Co-operative Plan to Market Crops This Season.

Under the leadership of the co-operative marketing department of the American Farm Bureau federation, potato growers in all sections of the nation are organizing under the standard co-operative marketing plan to merchandise their crop collectively. It is expected that enough strong state potato marketing organizations will be established this season to form a powerful national body.

In addressing North Dakota potato growers, Walton Petzet, marketing director of the American farm bureau, said:

"We hope to have enough states organized so that we will have a strong national organization in time to have a marked influence on the marketing of this year's potato crop. We now have strong state or other unit organizations over practically the entire heavy potato-producing region of the United States. These organizations are grower-owned and grower-controlled. Standard potato marketing contracts, as prepared by our legal adviser, Aaron Sapiro, are being signed by the growers as the basis for improved merchandising of their tuber crop."

No less than ten states are organizing to market their potatoes under the Petzet-Sapiro plan. The Maine Potato Growers' exchange has completed its organization campaign under the direction of S. G. Rubinow and has signed up 60 per cent of its entire production on a five-year contract.

Mr. Rubinow is now in Minnesota, where he is in direct charge of the organization campaign which will reconstitute the Minnesota Potato exchange on the basis of 100 per cent pool for five years. Mr. Petzet spent May 4 and 5 in Minnesota to aid in the potato campaign.

In western New York the Empire State Potato Growers' Co-operative association, Inc., is being organized.

W. S. Hill, secretary of the Colorado state farm bureau, is in active charge of the potato organization work in that state and is conducting a campaign to enroll all the Colorado potato growers in a state co-operative association.

Seventeen local Irish potato selling associations in eight parishes are affiliated with the Louisiana Farm Bureau Irish Potato Growers' exchange.

In Wisconsin, plans for a state potato growers' exchange have been completely outlined under the direction of Mr. Petzet. The Wisconsin organization will center in Barron county.

Mr. Petzet and Mr. Sapiro have been in frequent conference with the directors and officials of the Michigan Potato exchange and there is no doubt but that the Michigan growers will be ready to join the national organization as soon as it is perfected.

The eastern shore of Virginia has an efficient potato marketing organization.

500 Cars for Iowa

Through the good offices of the transportation department of the American Farm Bureau Federation, 500 cars were delivered on the Rock Island lines in Iowa the last two weeks in April for relief of grain shippers in that territory.

Good Care Will Pay

A few chickens well cared for is better than a large flock made to care for themselves.

G. A. Foss, Purchasing Agent.

sold to the farmers at a price of $14.25 a ton f. o. b. New Orleans, against the general market price of $25 a ton; 2,500 tons of nitrate of soda at an average of almost $20 a ton; and 100 tons of nitrate of lime, saving not estimated.

Mr. Foss now has a deal on for several hundred thousand rice and potato bags for the use of Louisiana commodity associations, and it is expected that a considerable saving will be made over the general market price.

FRUIT GROWERS IN MOTION

Organization Formed in Michigan With Capital of $100,000—$25,000 Paid In.

Co-operative fruit growers' associations of western and southwestern Michigan have organized a state fruit exchange, to be known as the Michigan Fruit Growers, Inc. Its authorized capitalization is $100,000 with $25,000 paid in at the start. It proposes to affiliate with the National Federated Fruit Growers, Inc.

Headquarters of the exchange are to be in Benton Harbor, with branch offices at other points where the volume of business may warrant such oflice.

The exchange looks forward to affiliation with the Michigan state farm bureau under the farm bureau's commodity plan of control. Such affiliation will enable the exchange to secure for its members in a more direct way the seed, purchasing, traffic, publicity, legislative, wool and organization services of the state farm bureau and to co-operate with the other great commodity exchanges in exchanging sales services and in getting together on matters of common interest.

Wanted Full Information.

A nursery governess was demonstrating, by means of an orange and a lighted candle, the action of the sun's rays upon the revolving earth, causing alternate day and night. She concluded her discourse by saying: "So you see, my dear, it is now night in New Zealand." "Yes, yes," said her little pupil impatiently, "but what night—last night or tomorrow night?"

NEW RULES; FAIR WARNING

A Texas editor recently issued the following rules, which explain themselves:

"Fifty cents per line will be charged for all obituary notices of business men who get their job printing in another city; twenty five cents per line will be charged for like notices to all business men who do not advertise, while all delinquent subscribers will be charged fifteen cents per line in passing out to the New Jerusalem. Advertisers and cash subscribers will receive the best there is in the shop free gratis when they submit off."

"Those who extend the paper no support whatever, and go around knocking the editor, or the paper, or lambasting the community and its citizens drop banana peelings on the sidewalk, spit like a dime or try to sell us gold bricks, will be given the truth—which won't look well in print when they give up the ghost."

"Better send in your orders for job printing and advertising, pay your subscription, get to boosting this paper and its editor and speak in glowing terms of the town and its people, for an epidemic of hog cholera is said to be abroad in the adjoining community."
