MORE FACTS ABOUT WATER AND LIGHTS

There has been some talk on the streets about the water and light proposition mentioned in this paper last week—enough to encourage us to try again.

McLean, Pampa and Texline are three Panhandle towns in Hedley's class that have "seen the light" and have installed waterworks and light systems for their benefit and protection. These towns are about the same size as Hedley, and not one of them has the natural advantages that we have. A while ago they were small communities, with very ordinary outlook, but the community spirit came to life, the water and lights problem was solved, and these three communities passed up into the ranks of progressive, wide awake towns. Ask any of their representative citizens what value they'd place on their water and light plants, and we have no doubt you would be told that money couldn't buy them.

Do you know of a good, solid, growing town, larger than Hedley, that has no water and lights? If so, tell us about it. We don't know of a single one.

Which shall it be—forward or backward?

The columns of this paper are open to any citizen who has a plan or suggestion to offer for the good of this town and countryside.

Many people have splendid ideas in their heads, but are timid about letting them out. They should not be backward in this respect.

The people need those ideas for development, for it is an established fact that development seldom results from idle and indifferent street talk or home dreams.

The people will be glad to listen if you have something to say. Let's hear it.

LELIA LAKE FAIR IS A DECIDED SUCCESS

The Fair held at Lelia Lake last Friday was a great success in every detail. The crowd in attendance was large and enthusiastic, and the exhibits were all that could be desired.

On account of a rush of work the editor was unable to attend, but we saw the pick of the agricultural exhibits Monday at Clarendon (from which place they were taken to the Amarillo Fair) and can testify that they are A 1.

Homer Simmons of Hedley walked off with first honors on cotton, winning a trip to A. & M. College. He is a member of Hedley Boys Club.

We made an unsuccessful effort to get the full list of prizewinners. This was no doubt due to the fact that County Agent Harris had to take the exhibit to Amarillo and is still there with it. We may publish the list in next week's paper.

A good many Hedley people attended the fair and enjoyed it.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

SMILES BENEFICENT

THEY are like the beaming beacons, blazing through the night over snarling waters hiding perilous reefs. The pilot of a soul may be momentarily undecided as to the course that should be taken, but when a kindly smile sends its radiant ray across the somber sky, all doubt flees before it. What is more touching and cheering than the smile of a child? Who does not feel its uplifting influence? Observe the careworn as they move slowly down the street! See them turn their heads, or sometimes pause in the presence of a face illuminated with a beautiful smile. How quickly their burdens are lifted! How wonderfully bright becomes the arch of the heavens under the magic touch of the wand that summons sweet smiles. In a moment everything in nature is supremely glad. The winds cease their growlings and pipe up merry tunes; people step more considerately to avoid jostling those near them, impelled suddenly to be on their best behavior; jangling noises become melodious under the spell of a soul alight with love, mirrored in sparkling eyes, dimpled cheeks and winsome lips.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

HARD LUCK

"I HAVE had," says Benvenuto Cellini, recounting his benefits, "many inestimable evils." Cellini as you know was a talented goldsmith, with such a high opinion of himself that nothing daunted him. He quarreled with everybody around him, fought valiantly in as many of the wars of his time as he could get into, and all the while toiled unflinchingly at his trade. He narrowly escaped being one of the great artists of his day. In the autumn of his life he wrote his reminiscences, in which he tells of the evils he encountered, and rightly characterizes them as inestimable. Hard luck is nearly always a blessing. It is always very successfully disguised, but after it has passed the disguise falls away and we can calculate its true value. The intrigues of his fellow craftsmen who sought to supplant him in the favor of the pope, infuriated Cellini at the time. He was constantly in fear that they would succeed and he would lose much valuable work. But he toiled all the harder to establish himself, and soon discovered that the intrigues had really benefited him. Often he laid aside his goldsmith's tools to take up the sword, and complained bitterly about it at the time. But his heroic fighting disposition won him new and powerful friends, and through them more work. Constantly in fear that he might be thrust aside by other craftsmen who

GOOD-BY

By GRACE E. HALL

WE MEET and pass and speak one word unheeding, Though any hour may rob us of our friend; The voice that now in merry tones is speeding, With the eternal echoes soon may blend; We clasp today a hand that's warm and living, And gaze in eyes that hold a merry gleam; Tomorrow, the farewell look we may be giving, And hear a blithe "good-by" as in a dream.

We hope and plan and play, and part with laughter, Unthinkingly, we use one word all ways; And give no thought to what may follow after, As though we were assured of end less days; Too oft we part when hearts are sad and aching, And speak in tones that cause a smothered sigh; Oh, let us but remember we are taking, What, anytime, may be our last good by!

Cuba's Fresh-Water Fish.

The fresh waters of Cuba are inhabited by fishes unlike those found in the fresh waters in the United States. Some of these are evidently indigenous, derived in the waters they now inhabit directly from marine forms. Two of these are eyeless species, inhabiting streams in caverns. They have no relatives in the fresh waters of any other region, the blind fishes in American caves being of a wholly different type. Some of the Cuban fishes are common to the fresh waters of the other West Indies. Of northern types, only one, the alligator gar, is found in Cuba, and this is evidently a filibuster immigrant from the coast of Florida.

Chivalry.

Knitted Togs for Kiddies;

School Hats Are Jaunty

SINCE "comfort first" is baby's plea, small wonder is it that the softest and daintiest of knitted garments occupy the place of honor in childhood's realm. It is generally conceded that for baby's tender skin there is nothing so "comfy" as knitted wool, lacking, as it does, the irritating qualities of the harder woven fabrics. Then, too, with knitted art responding so generously to childhood's needs, one readily appreciates why doting mothers, others with storm collar which can be worn down or up. Both ribbed and brushed effects continue in favor, while plain coats with brushed trimmings are greatly featured.

Combining utility with good looks, the new styles in school hats have made their appearance and it should be a simple matter, considering their variety, to choose a smart and becoming model for every little miss who must return to the classroom with the ers acquired the habit of planning their little one's outfits along the lines of the myriads of pretty things created from supple yarns and zephyrs. For babies' wear, white naturally holds sway with pink or blue trimmings. An attractive yoke distinguished from the ordinary, the little crocheted sacque here pictured and the fact that it is a dainty pastel shade with lower ripple flare in pure white, adds to its loveliness. Contrary to expectation this adorable little garment fastens in the back with two pearl buttons, while a little pink (or blue if occasion demands) bow adorns the front. The cap is crocheted in astrakhan stitch and, in the language of baby fashion lore, this loolpke-beginning of September. School hats, of course, should be severely plain and the hats shown in this group demonstrate that they may be designed with this idea in mind and still have a jaunty charm that is all their own.

For the high school girl the hat shown at the top is made of braided ribbon with a ribbon trimming in the form of rosette and cascade at the right side. Below at the left is shown a little model of picot-edged ribbon sewed row on row and trimmed with a flat rosette of the same ribbon in a lighter tone.

The two hats shown at the right and below reflect the popularity of knitted goods in junior outfits. These are of knitted brushed wool in contrasting stitch is particularly the mode this season.

Proof against wind and weather are the cunning knitted suits which shield little five-year-olds, perhaps older, perhaps younger, from head to foot, just as this picture sets forth. The lovable little "Snow Sprite" of our illustration is clad in a particularly handsome white wool knitted infant's set.

The legnettes have a slip-cord at the waist, with tassels. The sweater coat boasts belt and collar and, pride of prizes, two patch pockets. There are pious pearl buttons, two of them finding their way to the cap, posed one on each side flap.

One may take choice of double-breasted and single-breasted coats in these sets, some with turn-down colors and provide the ideal headwear for use with the sweater and skirt combinations that are at present so popular, or they may be had in hat and scarf sets to be worn with school frocks or suits. The hat shown below combines the knitted crown with a brim of angora.

Materials used in making hats for very little girls include camel's hair fabric, beauvette, broadcloth and fine chinchilla. It is quite the last word to have the hat match the coat in material, color and trimming.

BATHING SUIT AND SILK HAT

Mayor of English Town Stages Novel Ceremony in Dedicating New Bathing Pool.

A unique ceremony of inauguration recently took place at Grimsby, Lincolnshire, England, when the lord mayor was requested to preside at the dedication of a municipal bathing pool.

His honor appeared at the head of an impressive procession clad in official frock coat and silk hat. Everybody naturally expected the usual dedicatory oration inseparable from such functions. What, then, was the general astonishment when the mayor, standing beside the pool, doffed first hat, then frock coat, vest, trousers, shirt, shoes and socks and appeared arrayed solely in a rather ordinary bathing suit, in which garb he plunged bravely into the pool.

This unexpected dedication was hailed with resounding cheers which greeted the sporting executive when he emerged spluttering from the water.

SUMMER SOUPS

COLD soups of various kinds are very popular for a beginning at luncheons this season.

Jellied Chicken Bouillon.

Take a pint of hot chicken soup well seasoned. Soak one tablespoonful of gelatin in one-fourth of a cupful of cold water and then add to the hot soup. Add a fourth of a cupful of boiling water and when cool add chopped parsley. Chill. Beat slightly with a fork and serve in bouillon cups with wafers.

Cherry Soup.

Cook two tablespoonfuls of sago in one cupful of boiling water until tender, adding more water as needed until the sago is perfectly clear. Cook one quart of pitted cherries in one quart of water and lemon finely sliced and three or four inches of stick cinnamon. Boil fifteen minutes; add the cooked sago and boil up; pour slowly over two well-beaten egg yolks and chill before serving.

Any berry may be used for this soup, following the above directions.

A soup that is very popular is Mushroom Soup.

Put a quart of milk and one cupful of cream in a double boiler, add two bay leaves, and a tablespoonful of flour mixed with some of the cold

FOR THE MAN WHO CARES

TOURING IN A FORD

Dear Mr. Editor:

Last Friday morning we "started" ourselves early. At 6 we were out at a cafe drinking coffee, and then by special arrangement we went for our last bath. Then to the sanitarium for our release. We dined and left "Southward" at 12:15 p. m. Roads were good but clouds admonished us to "make time," the same we were forward to do.

The night found us at La Grange, just 35 miles from home. We very much disliked to stop, but learning of a rain ahead, we turked in. Well that we did, for the heaviest mud encountered on the entire trip was met next morning. But at 10 a. m we landed home—ahead of our calculations.

Our people were looking for us. A fine dinner awaited our coming and that afternoon a big pounding was administered—just such as always finds a welcome at a preacher's home.

We are now "at home" without a scratch, but with many happy memories of things enjoyed on our "tour."

Sincerely yours,
J. M. Mizell.

Mrs. Bettie Wilson, wife of J. F. Wilson, died at the family home in this city about 10:30 p. m. Wednesday, Sept 26. She had been ill from pneumonia poisoning for nearly four months and had spent some time in the Adair Hospital at Clarendon, but all that could be done for her proved of no avail.

Funeral services were held at the Church of Christ yesterday at 2 p. m., conducted by Minister R. R. Price of Clarendon. The stores closed, school was dismissed, and a large crowd attended the services.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Wilson is survived by one son, Earl, a daughter, Bernice, her mother, Mrs. M. E. Ables, of Hollis, Okla., three sisters and one brother. Mrs. Green, Long Beach, Calif.; Mrs. Crosul, Cotton, Calif.; Mrs. Bennett Hollis, Okla., and J. F. Ables, of Hollis. All of these except the two sisters in California were present at the funeral.

Many Uses for Milk.
It is said that in France 1000 quarts of skimmed milk a day is used for making substitutes for horn, ivory, amber and such things. The casein in the milk is precipitated by a chemical process and then mixed with formalin. This produces gallinoli, or pebble milk, a hard, elastic, insoluble substance that is easily worked. The French dairy experts think that the demand for skimmed milk for this purpose will be great enough to increase profit in the butter-making business by producing a ready market for the by-products.—Washington Star.

A SCHOOL GIRL'S SUCCESS

Everything Depends upon her Health

Mrs. George E. Whitacre Tells of her Daughter's Breakdown and How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her a Healthy, Happy, Strong Girl

Every mother possesses information of vital importance to her young daughter, and the responsibility for her future is largely in her hands. When a school girl's thoughts become sluggish, when she suffers the consequences of wet feet, pains, headaches, fainting spells, loss of sleep and appetite, and is irregular, her mother should have a thought for her physical condition and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which has proved a reliable aid to nature for such conditions in so many cases.

This Mother Writes:
Mahoningtown, Pa.—"I would like to say a few words about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. About a year ago I thought it would be necessary for me to take my daughter out of school. She was losing weight, was nervous, and when she would come home from school she would drop into a chair and cry, and say, 'Mamma, I don't believe I can go to school another day!' I gave her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now she is a healthy, happy, hearty, strong girl and weighs 120 pounds. She has no difficulty in doing her 'gym' work, and she works at home every night and morning, too. I am a mother who can certainly praise your medicine, and if it will be of any benefit you may use this letter as a reference."—Mrs. GEORGE E. WHITACRE, 321 W. Madison Avenue, Mahoningtown, Pa.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble. Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions. Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Trunks, wraps and traveling bags may furnish a means of transporting bedbugs into the house. Not infrequently they gain access to impeccably clean premises in the laundry basket. Sometimes they migrate from one house to another, or from one apartment to another along heating or water pipes. The only odium attaching to the discovery of a bedbug is failure to take immediate steps to eradicate it, with all its possible progeny.

Outside of the question of personal discomfort caused by their bites, bedbugs are possible carriers of disease and therefore are dangerous house-mates. Bedbugs hide in the daytime in cracks in the wall or wood trim of the room, under wall paper, in joints of the bedstead or spring, in the tufts or binding of the mattress. They come out at night in search of food, which is human blood. The same bedbug, it is believed, bites only once in from six to ten days, retiring to digest its enormous meal in quiet; more bites indicate a serious infestation which should be promptly dealt with.

Fumigation is Effective.
Fumigation of a badly infested house or room with hydrocyanic-acid gas is the most efficient remedy, but owing to the deadly poisonous nature of the gas this method must be used only by careful and well-informed persons. Farmers' Bulletin 690 gives directions for this kind of fumigation. Farmers' Bulletin 754 describes the life history, habits and means of control of the bedbug. Both bulletins are available upon application to the United States Department of Agriculture as long as the supply lasts.

The fumes of burning sulphur are recommended as a remedy under some conditions. They readily destroy the insect in all stages, including the egg. There is, however, some risk of injury to hangings, wall papers and fabrics from the strong bleaching quality of sulphur fumes. Formalin gas and the vapors of benzene, naphthalene and camphor, which are sometimes used, are of little value and insect powders are not effective because they do not get into crevices.

Best Simple Control Method.
The best simple method of control is a liberal application of benzene, kerosene or gasoline, introduced with small feathers or brushes or injected with syringes into all crevices of beds, furniture or walls where the insects might be concealed. The baseboard and picture molding of the room should be given attention and also the backs of pictures. Corrosive sublimate and oil of turpentine may also be used in this way. Many of the commercial remedies offered for sale contain one or another of these ingredients. Hot water will destroy both bugs and eggs if it can be used without damaging the furniture.

The most important part of the campaign against the pest is a daily inspection of beds, bedding, seams, binding and tufts of mattresses, and all parts of the spring and bedstead, wall and room where the vermin might be concealed.

EXCELLENT WAYS TO USE LEFT-OVER MEAT

Suggestions Offered for Utilizing Small Pieces.
(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Cold roast lamb and mutton sliced is excellent, but the family may be tired of having the remains of the roast served that way, or the pieces may be too small to slice. In either event, these suggestions for utilizing this kind of left-over meat, offered by food specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture, will be appreciated by the one who prepares the family's meals.

Minced Lamb.
Chop pieces of cold roast lamb fine. A pint of chopped meat will serve a family of five or six. Rub one tablespoonful each of butter and flour to cover; add one-half pint of milk, stir until boiling; add tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley, one-half teaspoonful of salt and a dash of cayenne. Add the meat and stand over hot water until served. If served on toast trim the toast and butter and cover with a thick layer of the mince, making a little hollow in the center. Into this hollow (if you have plenty of eggs and want a heartier dish) put a poached egg. Six will be required for this quantity of meat.

Cutlets of Cold Mutton.
From a leg of mutton, cooked rare, cut pieces about the size of an ordinary loin chop. These may be fried in a little fat, or egged, crumbed and fried in deep fat, or they may be brushed over with fat and broiled. The result is more like meat cooked for the first time than the ordinary warmed-over meat. Cutlets so prepared may be served with any of the sauces served with chops.

Steamed Mutton and Rice.
4 cupfuls cooked rice. Few drops onion juice. 1 tablespoonful chopped parsley. 2 cupfuls cooked mutton cut into small pieces. 1/4 cupful bread crumbs. 1 teaspoonful salt. 1 egg. Pepper. Stock or water.

Grease a mold or a bowl of about 1 1/2 quarts capacity and line with cooked rice. Heat the meat with the other ingredients, using enough stock to make a mixture that is moist, but will hold its shape. Pack the meat in the center of the mold and cover with the remaining rice, grease the cover of the mold (if a bowl is used, a plate will serve for a cover), steam or cook in water enough partly to cover the mold until the contents are thoroughly heated through.

West Indies' News Service Is American

Lord Burnham (portrait herewith) recently in the house of lords, broached the subject of the Americanization of the West Indies. According to present means, all the news published in West Indian newspapers is supplied by American news agencies. Discussion in the house of lords was held on the subject and the government was asked whether the West Indian colonies would be represented at the forthcoming imperial conference and whether the question of maritime and telegraphic communication with that part of the British empire would be considered.

England gets quite excited every now and then over the idea that the United States may get possession of the British West Indies. American statesmen have talked a good deal on the subject, their idea being that America should have them in order to protect the Panama canal.

The imperial conference is to be held in London in October. There are three main subjects to come before the gathering—imperial defense, imperial preference, and better means of perfecting communication between Great Britain and the dominions. The dominions seem to regard the third subject of great importance.

Bride's Ten Commandments Don't Work

Mrs. Melville Thompson, wife of a Chicago attorney, before her marriage was Miss Elsa Miller, organist and heiress of Seattle, Wash. She went before her marriage to courts of domestic relation with her fiancé to study the reasons for divorce. After making this study she wrote the "Bride's Ten Commandments." They follow:

1. Let your husband control the home. When you lose your respect for his ability you are losing your love for him.
2. Be a good cook. If you cannot cook, make it your business to hire a good cook and see that the meals are served on time.
3. Keep your home attractive and cozy. If you are a musician play and sing for him in the evening.
4. Study his disposition and act accordingly.
5. Do not blame all of the troubles on the man. Many times the woman is to blame. I learned this in court.
6. Learn to trust your husband. Accept his explanation of why he was out late. If you could not trust him you should not have married him.
7. Do not nag. Most men have plenty of troubles of their own.
8. Take an interest in his business affairs. If he is a lawyer talk with him; if he is in politics talk politics.
9. Exercise your right to vote and he'll be proud of you.
10. Show him a little affection and attention. Make love to him. Men like that rather than being expected to make all the advances in the show of affection.

Mr. Melville has won a divorce and custody of one of their two children. He said she struck him and threw things at him.

Rescue Ship Starts for Wrangel Island

An expedition to rescue Allan Crawford of Toronto and his little band of British explorers who raised the British flag on Wrangel Island in 1920, has sailed from Nome, Alaska, in the Donaldson, a refitted trading vessel, under command of Harold Noize (portrait herewith). The first stop is to be in Kotzebue sound, where a crack dog team will be obtained. From there a direct course to Wrangel Island will be steered. If the Donaldson is blocked by ice, Mr. Noize plans to proceed with a party of four Eskimos over the ice pack to Wrangel Island.

In 1921 Vilhjalmur Stefansson, who long had recognized the value of Wrangel Island, an uninhabited island 75 miles long and 30 wide, lying 90 miles off the coast of Siberia, in the Arctic ocean, as a base for airplane and radio work as well as for fur trapping, sent a party of four white men to establish a colony upon the island and thereby reinstate British claims of ownership. Crawford's companions are Loren Knight of McMinville, Ore., Frederick Maurer of New Philadelphia, O., and Milton Gall of New Braunfels, Tex.

A supply vessel in 1922, meeting massed ice floes about 100 miles from Wrangel, returned to Nome. Another year has passed, with no news from Wrangel.

Hunters Must Cut Their Bags in Half

The 5,500,000 hunters in the United States must cut their bags in half or this will be a gameless continent, is the warning of William T. Hornaday, director of the Bronx Zoological park.

Dr. Hornaday, as trustee of the Permanent Wild Life Protective fund, has launched a campaign to interest the federal government, state legislatures, civic bodies and sportsmen in efforts to restrict hunters' kills and to establish shorter open seasons. By cutting the volume of slaughtered game in two, Dr. Hornaday believes that wild life may be placed on a continuing basis. In addition, he advocates the passage of state laws, similar to the Pennsylvania game laws, where 32 sanctuaries have been established. In answer to arguments that certain species of game are inexhaustible, Dr. Hornaday asks what has become of the buffalo, passenger pigeon and heath hen. The woodcock and quail, he says, are fast disappearing.

Dr. Hornaday makes out a good case, but neglects to state that the national parks are all game sanctuaries.

All Around the House

Gasoline is an excellent germicide for plumbing pipes.

Good gored aprons can be made from old skirts, especially white linen ones.

Put a teaspoonful of powdered borax in cold starch; it gives extra stiffness to linen.

Be certain the children's lunch box contains nourishing food as well as appetizing.

Turn the mattresses daily, at least an hour before making the beds; they will last much longer.

Scraped raw potato is soothing to a burn, and is very good to bind to a swelling or infected sore where there is inflammation. A good home remedy for children's sore feet.

CHAPTER X—Continued.

That evening Tommy sat on the bed, and cogitated deeply. Would Conrad again accompany the girl? If he did not, should he risk trying to make an ally of her? He decided that he must leave no stone unturned. His position was desperate.

At eight o'clock the familiar sound of the key turning made him spring to his feet. The girl was alone.

"Shut the door," he commanded. "I want to speak to you."

"Look here, Annette, I want you to help me get out of this."

"Impossible. There are three of them on the floor below."

"Oh!" Tommy was secretly grateful for the information. "But you would help me if you could?"

"No, monsieur."

"Why not?"

"I dare not, monsieur; I am afraid of them."

"She turned away."

"Wouldn't you do anything to help another girl?" cried Tommy. "She's from your age, too. Won't you save her from their clutches?"

"You mean Jane Finn?"

"Yes."

"It is her you came here to look for? Yes?"

"That's it."

The girl looked at him, then passed her hand across her forehead.

"Jane Finn. Always I hear that name. It is familiar."

Tommy came forward eagerly.

"You must know something about her?"

But the girl turned away abruptly.

"I know nothing—only the name." She walked towards the door. Suddenly she uttered a cry. Tommy stared. She had caught sight of the picture he had laid against the wall the night before. For a moment he caught a look of terror in her eyes. As inexplicably it changed to relief. Then abruptly she went out of the room. Tommy could make nothing of it. Did she fancy that he had meant to attack her with it? Surely not. He rebung the picture on the wall thoughtfully.

Three more days went by in dreary inaction. Tommy felt the strain telling on his nerves. He saw no one but Conrad and Annette, and the girl had become dumb. He gathered from Conrad that they were waiting for orders from "Mr. Brown." Perhaps, thought Tommy, he was abroad or away, and they were obliged to wait for his return.

But the evening of the third day brought a rude awakening.

It was barely seven o'clock when he heard the tramp of footsteps outside in the passage. In another minute the door was flung open. Conrad en-

The night passed slowly. Tommy lived through an eternity of hours, but at last he heard footsteps. He stood upright, drew a deep breath, and watched the picture wobble.

The door opened. A faint light streamed in from outside. Number 14 followed. As he stepped across the threshold, Tommy brought the picture down with terrific force on his head. Number 14 went down amidst a stupendous crash of broken glass. In a minute Tommy had slipped out and pulled to the door. The key was in the lock. He turned it and withdrew it just as Conrad hurried himself against the door from the inside with a volley of curses.

For a moment Tommy hesitated. There was the sound of some one stirring on the floor below. Then the German's voice came up the stairs.

"Gott im Himmel! Conrad, what is it?"

Tommy felt a small hand thrust into his. Beside him stood Annette. She pointed up a rickety ladder that apparently led to some attics.

"Quick—up here!" She dragged him after her up the ladder. In another moment they were standing in a dusty garret littered with lumber. Tommy looked round.

"This won't do. It's a regular trap. There's no way out."

"Hush! Wait." The girl put her finger to her lips. She crept to the top of the ladder and listened.

The banging and beating on the door was terrific. The German and another were trying to force the door in. Annette explained in a whisper:

"They will think you are still inside. They cannot hear what Conrad says. The door is too thick."

"Yes—but look here—"

"Leave it to me." She bent down. To his amazement, Tommy saw that she was fastening the end of a long piece of string to the handle of a big rickety jug. She arranged it carefully, then turned to Tommy.

"Have you the key of the door?"

"Yes."

"Give it to me."

He handed it to her.

"I am going down. Do you think you can go halfway, and then swing yourself down behind the ladder, so that they will not see you?"

Tommy nodded.

"There's a big cupboard in the shadow of the landing. Stand behind it. Take the end of this string in your hand. When I've let the others out—pull!"

Before he had time to ask her anything more, she had flitted lightly down the ladder and was in the midst of the group with a loud cry.

The German turned on her with an oath.

"Get out of this. Go to your room!"

Very cautiously Tommy swung himself down the back of the ladder. So long as they did not turn round . . . all was well. He crouched behind the cupboard. They were still between him and the stairs.

"Ah!" Annette appeared to stumble over something. She stooped. "Mon Dieu, viola la clef!"

The German snatched it from her. He unlocked the door. Conrad stumbled out, swearing.

"He's got away."

"Impossible. He would have passed us."

At that moment, with an ecstatic smile Tommy pulled the string. A crash of crockery came from the attic above. In a trice the men were pushing each other up the rickety ladder and had disappeared into the darkness above.

Quick as a flash Tommy leaped from his hiding place and dashed down the stairs, pulling the girl with him. There was no one in the hall. He fumbled over the bolts and chains. At last they yielded, the door swung open. He turned. Annette had disappeared.

Tommy stood spell-bound. Had she run upstairs again? What madness possessed her! He fumed with impatience, but he stood his ground. He would not go without her.

And suddenly there was an outcry overhead, an exclamation from the German, and then Annette's voice, clear and high:

"Ma foi, he has escaped! And quickly! Who would have thought it?"

Tommy still stood rooted to the ground. Was that a command to him to go? He fancied it was.

American Farm Bureau

The championship farm bureau "barnyard golf" team of Illinois, Harry and Walter Torbert of DeWitt county, aged fifteen and seventeen. They emerged winners after defeating Logan county in the final game of the tournament by the score of 51 to 18. Twenty teams participated in the contest held at the fourth annual Illinois Agricultural association picnic at Urbana, June 29.

The Torbert boys are the sons of Ed Torbert, who, with Joe Heskett of DeWitt county, had captured the championship of the state during the last three years. When Ed was ineligible to compete again this year, he trained his two sons to uphold the honors of DeWitt county in 1923. You see the result!

EUROPE CATCHES UP IN FOOD PRODUCTION

Farm Economists Find Foreign Demand Weak.

Meeting upon the invitation of Secretary of Agriculture Henry C. Wallace in Washington, a committee of economists issued an important statement as to the agricultural outlook. H. W. Moorehouse, director of research, represented the American Farm Bureau federation in the conference. The statement follows:

From the point of view of American agriculture, foreign demand is practically identical with European demand. European countries constitute the only significant markets for American agricultural products.

It needs to be emphasized at the outset that demand is not measured solely by the volume of exports. Since the year 1920 Europe has purchased very large quantities of American wheat and meat, but this does not mean that the European demand for such commodities has been an intense demand, regardless of price. The truth is that Europe would and could take large quantities of American wheat only provided the price was relatively low. In studying demand we are therefore concerned both with European requirements for food and European ability to purchase the food required at prices satisfactory to American producers.

Three primary factors will determine European demand: (1) the essential food requirements, which depend in part upon crop conditions in Europe; (2) the competition of other food-producing areas with the United States; and (3) the purchasing power of Europe.

The European production of foodstuffs, the situation looks even less promising. We received less gold net in the first five months of 1923 than in the first five months of 1922. The balance on shipping moved moderately in Europe's favor. Passports issued to tourists in the first six months of 1922 were 94,494, but only 80,787 were issued in the corresponding months of 1923. There is no evidence that immigrants' remittances have increased in 1923. Various other minor items show no gain for Europe. Moreover, the total of foreign loans placed in the American market in 1923 to date is very decidedly less than the total for the corresponding period in 1922 and this item is of such great importance as to more than offset any gains Europe might have elsewhere.

An additional factor adverse to European buying power is of course the necessity which the British government is under of making large remittances to meet interest and amortize the principal of her debt to the United States government—a factor which did not exist during the calendar year 1922.

Unless the Ruhr situation is very speedily cleared up and a definite turn for the better takes place in Europe, it appears highly probable that Europe will have less buying power in our markets during the next crop year than she had during the last.

Growing Pigs Fast.

Growing pigs as fast as possible is the most economical in feed, time and labor used. It also helps us to handle more hogs each year, thus giving us a profit on a greater number.

Clean Water for Stock.

See that springs and water holes are clean, so that live stock will have pure water during the hot weeks of summer. Place covered salt boxes in the pasture.

There is here evident a shifting from bread to potatoes. The extent of this shift is greater than the figures indicate, since less potatoes are fed to hogs and more are reserved for human consumption. A similar shift is being made in many other countries of Europe.

Europe's purchasing power will depend upon the volume of her exports; the amount of her earnings on investments abroad, on shipping and other services and upon credits extended to her export and import account. The United States continues to have a favorable balance with Europe, i. e., we export more goods to Europe than we receive from her. Our unfavorable balance of trade in recent months has grown out of an excess of imports from countries other than Europe.

The balance against Europe, however, has diminished moderately. Imports from France, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands and the United Kingdom were $25,700,000 in the first four months of 1923 against $212,700,000 in the first four months of 1922. The first four months of 1922, however, were months of great dullness in business while the first four months of 1923 were months of very intense business activity. A comparison of the first four months of 1923 with the last four months of 1922 shows a gain in imports from Europe of only $33,000,000.

In view of the probability that the current recession in business in the United States will diminish imports from Europe somewhat, and in view of the acute Ruhr situation, it is not probable that the rest of the year 1923 will show any gain for Europe in goods shipped to the United States. The increase manifest in the figures given above is in considerable part due to rising prices rather than to increased quantities. The difficulty appears to be quite as much in the shortage in European production of manufactured goods as it is in our own reluctance, manifested in our tariff laws, to receive European imports.

When other means of making payments for American foodstuffs are considered, the situation looks even less promising. We received less gold net in the first five months of 1923 than in the first five months of 1922. The balance on shipping moved moderately in Europe's favor. Passports issued to tourists in the first six months of 1922 were 94,494, but only 80,787 were issued in the corresponding months of 1923. New World's Record for Butterfat Production

A new world's record for production of butterfat in one year over all breeds has been established by a Holstein cow owned by Raymondale farm at Vaudrouil, Quebec. DeKol Plus Segis Dixie freshening at the age of nine years and three months, and weighing 1,050 pounds, produced 33,464.1 pounds of milk containing 1,349.35 pounds of butterfat in 365 consecutive days. This amount of butterfat is equal to 1,686.69 pounds of butter. This production surpasses the former world record held by another Canadian Holstein cow by 5 pounds of butter.

Because of her previous high records of production, "Dixie" was placed on strictly official test, supervised by both the Holstein-Friesian Association of America and the Dominion department of agriculture of Canada, which supervises record of performance tests for all breeds of dairy cattle in Canada.

The new champion was fed a grain ration consisting of equal parts of bran, hominy, dried distillers' grains, gluten meal, oil cake and cracked oats. To 100 pounds of this mixture was added one pound of salt, one pound of charcoal and one-fourth-pound of bone-meal. She was fed at the rate of one pound of grain mixture to each four pounds of milk produced. Her roughage consisted mainly of mixed hay and some corn silage and beets. All of last summer she was let out to pasture two hours a day.

A four-year-old son of the new champion recently sold at public auction for $4,100 at the National Holstein sale.

Production of Fat Is Affected by Age of Cow

Fat production by the average dairy cow increases till she has passed her seventh year, reaches its peak before the end of her eighth year and then gradually declines. This fundamental truth in farming science was discovered recently by C. W. Turner, a teacher in the dairy department of the Missouri College of Agriculture.

This conclusion was reached only after Turner had worked out the relation between the age and the yearly fat production of more than 46,000 dairy cows. The data included all the yearly fat records available of pure bred dairy cows in the United States. This is the first time an intensive compilation of this sort has been carried out.

The value of this information lies in knowing what production may be expected of a cow at a certain age. For example, if a farmer knows the present production of a two-year-old cow and wishes to estimate what she will be worth to him in five years, he will have an authoritative table which he may consult.

A yearling produces 64.6 per cent compared to a cow at maturity; a two-year-old, 73.6 per cent; a three-year-old, 84 per cent; a four-year-old, 90 per cent; a five-year-old, 95 per cent, and a six-year-old, 99 per cent. After seven years the decline in production is gradual.

Of the total number of records examined, 13,723 were Jersey cows; 13,590 Guernseys; 12,504 Holsteins; 5,162 Ayrshires, and 1,014 Milking Short-horns.

Increase of Butterfat Is Not Made by Feeding

According to experimental work that has been done, the percentage of fat in milk cannot be increased by feeding. The milk of each individual cow seems to have a fixed composition that is natural to her. True, the richness of the milk may be increased or decreased for a short time if the cow's digestive system is disturbed by sickness or improper feeding, but will return to the normal test in a short time. The quantity of milk may easily vary with feeding, consequently the total pounds of butterfat would be increased without a variation in the test. By having a cow in high flesh at the time of freshening, the test may be raised for a time, the supposition being that the body fat is drawn upon, but it only lasts for a short time, when the test returns to the point peculiar to the individual.

Pointers for Selection of Improved Dairy Cow

One or two signs tell a good cow. In a poor cow the thigh runs down straight, so there is no place between the thigh and the udder on one side and the tail on the other. There should be plenty of daylight between the udder and the tail. One of the best ways to tell what kind of a cow you have is by her temperament. A good dairy type has a sharp spine, and sharp hip bones. A good cow has a large wedge-shaped stomach.

Could See Big Change in Baby From the First

"I could see a big change for the better in baby right from the first when I began giving him Teethina; he grew quieter, his stomach pains left off and now he is as fat and healthy a child as you please," writes Mrs. Maude Neighbors, 1633 W. 4th St., Texarkana, Texas.

When baby is restless and fretful from teething or a disordered stomach nothing will bring such quick relief as Teethina. It contains nothing that can harm the most delicate child, but soothes and allays distress incident to teething and colicky conditions.

Teethina is sold by leading druggists or send 30c to the Moffett Laboratories, Columbus, Ga., and receive a full size package and a free copy of Moffett's Illustrated Baby Book.—(Advertisement.)

MRS. T. L. MILLER

Mrs. T. L. Miller, for many years a resident of Clarendon, died Wednesday evening about 7:45 at her home in that city.

She had been in poor health the past year or more, and her death was doubtless hastened by an accident a short while ago in which she fell and broke her hip.

Mrs. Miller was the mother of Mrs. T. R. Mereman of this city, and has visited here many times.

In her death the Informer family feel a deep personal loss, as she was our near neighbor when we lived in Clarendon, and it is our pleasure to testify that she was one of the best women and most lovable characters it has ever been our privilege to know.
