MORE FACTS ABOUT WATER AND LIGHTS

The lesson in "Civic Progress" for this week will be short. As much water as has fallen around these parts of late, it is difficult to summon sufficient inspiration and enthusiasm for a forceful exhortation on waterworks.

We notice in last week's issue of the Journal that Knox City, a Knox county town of Hedley's size, is now putting the finishing touches on her new water and light plant. You can tell by reading the article that the Journal editor is proud to chronicle this fact. And well he may be. It means the difference between comfort and inconvenience; between fire protection and constant worry; between high and low insurance rates; between sanitation and epidemic risks; between healthful progress and stagnation.

How long will Hedley be content to remain on the wrong side of this proposition?

POSTED NOTICE!—This is to notify the public that my place, four miles north of Hedley, is posted according to law: No hunting or fishing. Trespassers will be prosecuted.

NAZARENE CHURCH

Rev. Allie Irick, our District Superintendent, will be in Hedley next Sunday, Oct. 14th, and will conduct the services at the Nazarene church.

A cordial invitation is extended to everybody to come out and hear him.

I. J. Spurlin, Pastor.

AT METHODIST CHURCH

At eleven o'clock next Sunday, October 14th, the Laymen will have full charge of the service. Their program will consist of some special music and some spicy speeches for the "Good of the Order."

Let me as your pastor give you an urgent invitation to be present at that hour. Come and let's make the service the best of the year.

S. H. Young.

J. E. Dishman of Mexico, Mo., is here looking after his property interests and visiting his sister, Mrs. W. A. Kinslow.

American Farm Bureau

Here is the boys' state champion club demonstration team of Kentucky—winners in competition with nine others. They chose the poultry project and made good. As a result of their efforts they have been called to perform before chambers of commerce, Kiwanis and Rotary clubs and other organizations. These boys are some of the "toppers" among Kentucky's 20,000 club members.

MILLION-DOLLAR CUT IN FARMERS' BILLS

Reduction Secured by Farm Bureau and Allied Interests.

A $1,000,000 cut in the farmers' freight bill has been secured by the farm bureau and allied interests in obtaining from the Interstate Commerce commission a final ruling on the charges upon mixed carloads of live stock.

The mixed carload case was first submitted to the Interstate Commerce commission about three years ago.

Last year the commission rendered a decision. The case was later reopened upon a petition from the carriers.

The rule which had previously applied provided that charges should be assessed upon a basis of minimum weight which was the highest applicable upon any kind of stock in the car and that the rate should be the highest applicable upon any kind of stock in the car. This made the charges for a mixed carload of hogs and cattle considerably higher than the charges for a straight carload of either.

The farm bureau, together with the others interested called attention to the fact that this method of making charges seriously discriminated against co-operative organizations, and was not in accordance with the spirit of fair play. It was insisted that while such a rule might be proper for dead freight which ordinarily loads much in excess of the minimum weight, it was not at all proper upon a commodity like live stock. The Interstate Commerce commission apparently felt that the farm bureau argument was justified. The rule now prescribed to be put in effect on or before September 18, 1923, is as follows:

(a) "When cattle, calves, hogs, sheep, lambs, goats, kids, horses, and (or) mules are shipped in mixed carloads, charges shall be based on the carload rate and minimum weight for that kind of stock which on a straight carload basis produces the highest charge, subject to the exceptions in (b) and (c) below.

(b) "In no case, except as provided in paragraph (c) shall the charges per car be less than on a straight carload of the highest rated kind at actual weight of the mixed shipment.

(c) "Charges on mixed carload shipments of cattle and calves shall not exceed charges computed on basis of the cattle rate at actual weight of the entire shipment or at the cattle minimum weight if greater."

About 25 per cent of the receipts at the large markets consists of mixed cars. The present ruling will mean a freight saving of from $3 to $5 a car.

Experience that is given away is seldom appreciated.

BOYS RAISE PIGS FOR MARKET

"These little pigs went to market," they were too good, so the boys took them back home and used them for breeding purposes. They were four of the "400" shown recently at the Lee county, Va., Hampshire Swine Breeders' club picnic.

GOOD CORN CRIB PAYS DIVIDENDS

Grain Should Be Properly Housed to Prevent Waste.

THIS BUILDING IS UP TO DATE

Provides Adequate Protection Against the Weather and Rats—Also is Great Saver of Labor on Farm.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 127 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

The 1923 corn crib will be worth, providing present prices hold until the crop is harvested, something like three billions of dollars. With the drop in the price of wheat, the corn crop will go far toward maintaining

As will be seen by the floor plan that accompanies the exterior view, the building has a 10-foot driveway through the center with cribs on either side. In the center on the right side is space for the power elevator. A pit in the floor opposite the elevator houses the endless belt conveyor that takes the corn to the swiveled spout in the cupola. This spout may be turned so that the corn will be carried to any one of the five cribs shown on the plan. The cribs are each 8 feet wide and extend to the roof of the building.

Over the driveway are the grain bins, which are formed by the tight floor, tight outside walls and tight walls on the sides facing the crib. These bins also may be filled by the elevator that is used to carry the corn. The side walls of the cribs are so constructed that there is a free circulation of air through the corn. At the same time the slope of the boards keeps out the weather. The concrete floor and concrete foundation walls keep out the rats.

Besides being a fine addition to the farm building group and a safe place in which to store corn and grain, such a building as this saves labor on farms where hogs are a principal crop. By locating the crib alongside a feeding lot and extending the floor so as to provide a concrete feeding platform, it is an easy matter to feed the swine their corn rations. The corn is thrown to the floor of the building and then whatever prosperity American farmers are enjoying.

Corn this year is too valuable to be wasted. On the average farm much of this grain does go to waste through inadequate housing space. Cribs that give the corn little protection from weather and rats are used to house the corn; much of it is spoiled or eaten and the quality of the stock suffers.

Successful corn growers look upon a tight, well-ventilated corn crib as being as necessary to the farm building group as the barn, or hog house or any of the buildings used to house live stock. The corn in such a crib seasons well; it does not mold, neither do the rats have access to it. The United States Department of Agriculture is the authority for the statement that it costs $2 a year to feed a rat, and that rats do many millions of dollars' worth of damage to the corn crop each year.

Compared with the value of the corn crop that is grown on most farms in the corn belt states, the cost of a modern crib is small. The building is of frame, set on a concrete foundation and when its cost is spread over the onto the feeding floor. Many farmers use the floor of the building itself for this purpose, by barring the front entrance and allowing the hogs access to the building.

It soon will be time to harvest and store the corn crop. Farmers whose farms are not equipped with a safe, weather-tight storage house will find such a building a profitable investment, both this year and in the years to come.

Exerciser for Eyes.

A New York optometrist has invented a machine for exercising the muscles of the eye. His theory is that the human eyeball is pulled out of shape by the tugging of strong muscles against weaker ones, thus interfering with the focusing of light rays and causing nearsight, farsight and astigmatism. Therefore he considers that these defects can be cured and that normal eyes can be kept in good condition by regular exercises that bring all the muscles of the eye into play. The exerciser consists of a ball on the end of a bent rod which is revolved by means of a small crank. The eyes are exercised by following the motions of the ball. For near sight the ball first is moved horizontally before the eyes, bringing into play the muscles that move each eye toward or away from the nose. Then the ball is moved perpendicularly. This exercises the muscles that move the eye up or down. For far sight the oblique muscles are brought into play by operating the ball in circles both left and right. Astigmatism is corrected by either one or the other of the foregoing methods, or a combination of the two.

What the "Prof" Thought of Him.

A professor noted among his students for his caustic wit had in one of his classes one year a young man who was both ignorant and conceited. One morning he made a specially self-satisfied display of both these characteristics, and the professor said he would like to see him at the end of the hour.

When he came up after the lecture, the professor asked: "You are Mr. Junkins?"
"Yes, sir."
"Have you a visiting card?"
"I—l—yes, sir," stammered the puzzled student.
"Then, Mr. Junkins," the professor said drily, "write down on your visiting card all that you know, and bring it to me tomorrow."—Exchange.

What Puzzled Him.

A Scotch professor was advocating the advantages of athletic exercises. "The Roman youth," he declared, "used to swim three times across the Tiber before breakfast." Observing a smile on the face of one of his students, the professor demanded:
"Mr. McAllister, why do you smile? We shall be glad to share your amusement."
"I was just thinking, sir," the student replied, "wasn't the Roman youth puzzled to get their clothes at the end of the swim?"

Iowa Testing Law Aids Fight on Tuberculosis

One of the most encouraging factors in the fight against cattle tuberculosis, according to those in charge of the eradication work for the United States Department of Agriculture, is the activity of state legislatures in passing laws to facilitate the widespread testing of cattle in specified areas, a branch of the work which in the last few years has become of greater importance than the testing of individual herds at random. A state law which contains many points of excellence is that passed last spring by the Iowa legislature.

Briefly, this Iowa law provides that on petition of 51 per cent of the owners of breeding cattle in a county, the livestock sanitary authority of the state must proceed to eradicate tuberculosis from the county as provided in the law. Or the same result may be accomplished in another way: Upon petition of 15 per cent of the voters a proposal to eradicate the disease must be submitted at the next general election to levy a 3-mill tax upon all property to help supply funds for the purpose. These funds, together with those from the state and federal governments, to be used largely for paying for animals slaughtered. When 75 per cent of the owners of breeding cattle petition for county testing, all of the herds in the county must be tested and a fine and jail sentence are provided as penalty for those who refuse to submit their animals to the test.

In case the county 3-mill levy and the state and federal funds are insufficient to pay indemnities, the law provides for a tax of 25 cents a head on all cattle and 5 cents a head on all hogs in the county.

University Farm Tests Rations for Baby Beef

About two hundred Minnesota cattle raisers at University farm recently had an opportunity to see six lots of pure bred Shorthorn steer calves, ten calves to each lot, which had been fed different rations for 217 days. They were also given the records in gains made by the various lots of calves. Farmers everywhere will be interested in the results of the experiments. The rations fed were as follows:

Lot 1—Shelled corn, 60 per cent; whole oats, 30 per cent; linseed oil meal, 10 per cent; corn silage and clover hay.

Lot 2—Ground shelled corn, 60 per cent; ground oats, 30 per cent; linseed oil meal, 10 per cent; corn silage and clover hay.

Lot 3—Limited grain ration for the first half of the feeding period, corn silage and clover hay.

Lot 4—Ground ear corn, 90 per cent; linseed oil meal, 10 per cent; corn silage and clover hay.

Lot 5—Ground shelled corn, 66 2-3 per cent; ground oats, 33 1-3 per cent; corn silage and clover hay. (No protein supplement.)

Lot 6—Ground shelled corn, 66 2-3 per cent; ground oats, 33 1-3 per cent; clover hay. (No silage and no protein supplement.)

Crediting at $6.30 per hundred the gains on hogs which were kept in the lots with cattle, the profits shown by the feeding experiment were: Lot 1, $18.92 per head; lot 2, $15.97; lot 3, $5.69; lot 4, $18.30; lot 5, $13.61; lot 6, $13.10.

No Difference Between Lard and Bacon Types

Little difference between lard and bacon types of swine was noted in a test recently conducted at the Manitoba Agricultural college in Canada in which Poland Chinas and Yorkshires were compared as to gains and production costs. Pigs of each breed were fed a ration of equal parts of barley, oats and shorts for a period of 140 days. Corn was substituted for barley during part of the test.

The Poland Chinas made 100 pounds of gain on 415 pounds of feed and the Yorkshires made 100 pounds on 428 pounds of feed. On the Canadian market, which pays a premium for choice bacon hogs, the Yorkshires sold for $9.90 per hundred pounds and the Poland Chinas brought $9.

It is a good plan to place oil in a hog oiler so that the animals may grease themselves.

The first few weeks after weaning is a critical time in a pig's life. Proper care and management will mean profit.

The age at which to wean depends upon the size and vigor of the pigs, and the feeds and their amounts available.

SUFFERED MANY YEARS WITH FEMALE TROUBLE PE-RU-NA LIKE A GIFT FROM HEAVEN

Mrs. Katie Scheffel, R. F. D. No. 5, Lowell, Ohio

"I have been suffering for years with female trouble. Was operated on five years ago. It relieved me some but I did not regain my strength. Two years later was taken sick and bedfast several months. I treated a long while without much relief. I was discouraged, my mind affected, so nervous I could neither eat or sleep and unable to do anything.

We tried several doctors but one after another gave up my case as hopeless. Finally a good friend advised me to try Pe-ru-na. I did. It relieved me almost immediately. Your medical department said I was suffering from chronic catarrh of the system. I began taking your medicine in March, 1914, and continued until August. I took ten bottles of Pe-ru-na and three bottles of Man-a-lin and felt like a new person. Your medicine seemed like a gift from Heaven. It was like coming from darkness into light.

We have used your medicine since for coughs, colds and grip with good results. We will always keep it on hand. I weigh twenty-five pounds more than I ever did, eat and sleep well and can do a good day's work. Everybody says I look fine. Even the doctors are surprised. I cannot thank you enough and will always recommend Pe-ru-na to sufferers from catarrh."

MRS. KATIE SCHEFFEL, R. F. D. No. 5, Lowell, O.

Mrs. Scheffel is only one of many thousand women in the world, who owe their present health to Pe-ru-na. The record of this medicine is a proud one as Pe-ru-na has held the confidence of both sexes for fifty years or more.

If your trouble is due to a catarrhal inflammation in any organ or part of the body, do like Mrs. Scheffel. Try Pe-ru-na. Insist upon having the original and reliable remedy for catarrhal conditions. You won't be sorry.

ADAMSON-LANE POST HAS ANNUAL MEETING

The Annual Meeting of the Adamson Lane Post American Legion was held in their hall on Monday evening, Oct. 8th, Commander Lieut. Louie E. Thompson presiding. Eleven members and two visiting legionaires from Wellington Post were present.

Several snappy talks were made by members on the legion as an asset to the community and the men who are soldiers. The Post's plans for a better legion, both financial and otherwise were fully discussed by the entire body present.

This being the time for the election of new officers, the following were selected:

F. O. Doherty, Post Commander; P. L. Dishman, Vice Commander; W. H. Stroud, Adjutant; P. T. Boston, Post Finance Officer; Alva Simmons, Historian; W. H. Hoffman, Chaplain; Clifford Johnson, Sergeant at Arms; Executive Committee: Louie E. Thompson, C. H. Dean, Arthur Greer, Ed Kinslow, and Lucian Barnett.

The retiring officers have much credit due them for the progress made under many difficulties. Lieut. Thompson, as Commander, has been a great asset to us in the activities of the Post, and always avert to the Post's welfare. The same may be said of his associate officers.

Business having been disposed of, the meeting came to a close at 10:30 p. m. Those present were L. E. Thompson, P. L. Dishman, Ray Doherty, Ed Kinslow, W. H. Stroud, P. T. Boston, Paul Crozier, Chas. Dean, Bud Greer, Clifford Johnson, and Crisler Visitors, Joe Fuller and E. R. Hooker.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

MORE CHARITY

EVEN though we openly declare that we are mere dependents on one another, there are times in our lives when our moods are so monstrously ugly that we view the matter in quite a different light.

About our worthy selves, our qualifications and special privileges, there can be no question.

We stand upon a pedestal of our own making, sure of its unshakable magnificence and enduring strength. Being vigorously rational, we are on speaking terms with our neighbors, but we have little time at our disposal to cultivate their friendship for which in truth we do not care.

So with a self-made rule, a questionable scale, a curiously contrived level and plumb line, we proceed to measure and to determine their worthiness.

There is a fascination in the exacting performance of such work that appeals to our nature. Every blemish we discover gives us a thrill and adds another tale to our precious store of gossip.

The habitual equivocator and the truthful fellow, the laborer and the capitalist, the quibbler and scientist must be weighed and apportioned with pitiless regularity, so that in the morning we may rip our coffee with customary complacency.

To step upon the scale ourselves is unthinkable, but to insist that others shall do so is a dutiful obligation which must be discharged without failure.

Our measured hand must not touch the calloused palm of the blacksmith; our daughter must not marry poor men, nor must we be censured for falsifying our hearts. We are the elect.

In any movement for the public weal, we prefer to plod alone rather than with the commonalty.

Our ideas are so bound up with the one master thought of self, we cannot think of cooperating with our neighbors; it is not at all agreeable to our uncharitable souls.

To this prevalent selfishness of ours may be assigned the present wretched condition of the world.

There is no clearly defined inclination to put together; no charitable, nobly planned purpose to join hands in friendship, and step out from semi-darkness into the light of heaven aflame with saving faith.

The Young Lady Across the Way

The young lady across the way says the war has been over for more than four years and in her opinion the time has come for the government to grant espionage to the poor misguided men who were thrown into prison under the amnesty law.

Accessories Are Important;

Hat and Scarf Sets Stay

STYLES in clothes may come and go, making transitions from one extreme to another, but accessories of dress—the fans, combs, earrings, and jewels that tone up dress for women, and harmonize it with different backgrounds, seem to be less susceptible to change than other things. Novelties that appear in accessories are added to the store of feminine knick-knacks that every woman appears to gather about her and cherishes whether their money value is great or small.

Hence the ostrich fan, tortoise shell comb and drop earrings of an earlier shall be, but fine white crystal and good strands of pearls are worn with everything.

A number of novelty fabrics more or less furry and cozy looking have been brought out this fall; to be used in making the popular hat-and-scarf sets that appear to have come to stay. The familiar angora, chinchilla and astrakhan cloths are supplemented by these new weaves and give opportunity for much greater diversity in these matched sets. It will widen their sales. Every woman appears to want "something different"—that is, just a little different from the belong-day are still fashionable in the present year of grace. In fact, old-fashioned jewelry of all descriptions is staging a spectacular comeback—if it is sufficiently old. Many old designs have reappeared in modern jewelry and the effect they give is quaint and charming. This is particularly true of the combination of diamonds with jet, in brooches, chains and earrings, which has reappeared in rhinestone and onyx.

The young lady in the picture is wearing earrings of an old design. Her comb is golden shell, to match the blonde of her hair. The ostrich

At the right of the illustration given here one of the prettiest of these novelty fabrics appears in a hat and scarf that are sure to make a conquest wherever they are shown. The fabric is woven with a square mesh having a crossbar in contrasting color, and it invites decorations of yarn. Quaint yarn flowers in several colors appear on the hat and scarf and the latter is finished with a deep fringe of yarn. Every needlewoman will appreciate the possibilities of adornment which fan is also in a color that harmonizes with the color of her gown and bracelet shown is of white vegetable ivory. It is very prettily set with brilliants.

In accessories for less formal wear there is a fad for "tinkle bracelets" of thin glass made in all sorts of brilliant colors. Several of these are worn on the wrist at the same time and the faint music of their clashing gives them their name. A brand new idea in swagger sticks has recently come out. These sticks are made of a composition resembling celluloid and come in all colors. Generally they have tips and heads of gold or silver, or they may be finished with the same substance in a different color.

Bead necklaces are still the most popular item in costume jewelry and just now topaz-colored glass heads appear to be in every woman's mind as more to be desired than any others. These red-brown tones harmonize with all the colors most fashionable for dresses and suits, and lighter tones ranging into amber, share their popularity. The color of the costume dictates what that of the necklaces this particular cloth offers and the opportunity for the display of individual taste in the matter of embellishments.

A hat of chinchilla cloth with wing trimming of angora is shown at the left, and scarfs to match either of these fabrics are made. But one of the new knitted scarfs is shown—a smart and comfortable affair having knitted ornaments and yarn tassels at the gathered ends. It bears a plain tweed tailored suit company and together they proclaim their fitness for crisp autumn days. All street clothes are so flavored with sports styles that these matched sets belong as much in the street as in the sports class. They have a cheerful aspect and we shall meet them everywhere.

Women who are adept at knitting and crocheting, make the scarf-and-hat or sweater-and-hat sets for themselves.

Has Anyone Laughed At You Because—

By ETHEL R. PEYSEP

You avoid jazz?

Now it is a well-known fact that we avoid things for two big reasons: (1) that we like them too well; (2) or that we dislike them thoroughly. You, of course know your reason for avoiding jazz. It may be because it stirs you the wrong way and makes you unfit to settle down to sterner rhythms of life. It may be that the melody in popular jazz is so lacking that it bores you. Then it may be that you like it so well you feel that you must avoid it or that it will take up too much of your time, or that you get carried away by the frivolous crowds who haunt the jazz hatcheries—or you may hate the saxophone—or you may have tons of other good reasons.

SO

Your get-away here is:

You get your jazz rhythms plus fine melodies and tunes in concert and classical compositions.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

"SHOW THEM!"

"I'll show them," says the village boy as he leaves town where, like the prophet in his own country, he has been without honor.

"I'll show them," says the struggling clerk, stung by the contempt of his jeering companions.

Perhaps the desire to "show them" is not the highest motive for achievement. But it is a very real—a very human motive. And very often it carries a man to real success.

When, after ten or fifteen years the village boy comes back to "show them" the people that despised him do not question his motives. He has succeeded. They may be amazed, but they are filled with admiration, and nothing is sweeter than compelling the admiration of those who once looked down on you.

The clerk who made that early vow to "show them" often does show them, when he has climbed to the head of the business. By that time his anger at being underestimated has departed. But he still takes a secret pleasure in having so greatly altered their opinion. If this were an ideal world—if the desire to succeed sprang only from the loftiest purpose, we should say that the "show them" motive was unworthy.

But with the world as it is, and with men as they are, it is at least an important driving force, and often it carries men to heights they could never otherwise attain.

You will find that it has been all the inspiration that ever came to many men who have reached high places. If you doubt that, notice how many successful men return, for a time at least, to the little towns that gave them birth. Why do they return? To "show them," that is all.

Vanity allowed at large soon destroys the usefulness of its possessor. But like all forces it can be harnessed and made valuable.

The spirit of "I'll show them" is only tamed and harnessed vanity. Make the right use of it, and it will help you.

"Show them" if you can!

I'VE PRAYED FOR YOU

By GRACE E. HALL

Oh, I have prayed—yes, I have prayed for you! Not long-drawn prayers as some might pray—

'Tis not my way; Not words on words sent up to God That He would please to do My will towards you; No words at all, because He knows The current of each thought that flows, And where it goes.

But I have prayed—oh, I have prayed for you! In silent tenacity of prayer That you be given strength to bear, That you be given sight to see, That you be prospered bounteously; That health might bless your daily round.

That peace within your heart abound; No gift within His ample store Have I withheld. Aye, even more.

Voters Are Like That, Too.

"Stretch a rope across a country path, about a foot and a half from the ground. Then drive a herd of sheep over. When the leader has jumped that elevated rope, lower it to the ground and note what happens. Every sheep in the flock that follows will jump a foot and a half in the air over that same rope, though it is now lying slack on the ground. They follow the leader blindly, unreasonably, without regard to changed conditions. They don't jump for the same reason the leader jumped, but just because they saw another sheep jump a given height, at a given spot."—Caryle.

ODD SENTENCE FOR THIEF

Given Ninety Days in Jail for Stealing Ninety Ladies' Night Gowns From Clotheslines.

Police of a Detroit station are kept busy explaining to persons who wander into the back room there and find it looking like a Monday morning in the back yard of a young woman's seminary. Draped from chairs, tables, doorknobs and ropes are sixty dainty, filmy silk nighties of all hues and sizes and conditions of servitude.

They are, so the explanation goes, the results of the labors of Joseph Labeled, who is a fancier of these garments. Labeled has been in Detroit four months, having come from Chicago. In that time he has collected ninety silk nighties from various back yards in the north end, he admits.

He was arrested when Mrs. Sydney O. Mills missed three of the dainty garments from her washline. Police were notified. They arrested Labeled. He was wearing all three of the nighties as underwear.

Labeled pleaded guilty before Judge Charles L. Bartlett in Recorder's court. He was sentenced to ninety days in the house of correction, one for each nightie.

The Secret Adversary

CHAPTER XI—Continued.

By AGATHA CHRISTIE

Copyright Dodd, Mead & Company

"Wait a moment." He ran back to the station and tackled the porter.

"Look here, do you remember a young lady who arrived by an earlier train, the 12:50 from London? She'd probably ask you the way to the Moat house."

He described Tuppence as well as he could, but the porter shook his head. Several people had arrived by the train in question. He could not call to mind one young lady in particular.

Tommy rejoined Julius, and explained. Depression was settling down on him like a leaden weight. He felt convinced that their quest was going to be unsuccessful. The enemy had over three hours' start. Three hours was more than enough for Mr. Brown. He would not ignore the possibility of the telegram having been found.

The way seemed endless. It was past seven o'clock when a small boy told them that "the Moat house" was just past the next corner.

A rusty iron gate swinging dully on its hinges! An overgrown drive thick with leaves. There was something about the place that struck a chill to both their hearts.

A turn of the drive brought them in sight of the house. That, too, seemed empty and deserted. Was it indeed to this desolate spot that Tuppence had been decoyed? It seemed hard to believe that a human footstep had passed this way for months. Julius jerked the rusty bell handle. A jangling peal rang discordantly, echoing through the emptiness within. No one came. They rang again and again—but there was no sign of life. Then they walked completely round the house. Everywhere silence, and shuttered windows.

"Nothing doing," said Julius. They retraced their steps slowly to the gate.

"There must be a village handy," continued the young American. "We'd better make inquiries there. They'll know something about the place, and whether there's been any one there lately."

"Yes, that's not a bad idea." Proceeding up the road, they soon came to a little hamlet. On the outskirts of it, they met a workman swinging his bag of tools, and Tommy stopped him with a question.

"The Moat house? It's empty. Been empty for years. Mrs. Sweeney's got the key if you want to go over it—next to the post office."

Tommy thanked him. They soon found the post office, and knocked at the door of the cottage next to it. A clean, wholesome-looking woman opened it. She readily produced the key of the Moat house.

"Though I doubt if it's the kind of place to suit you, sir. In a terrible state of repair. Ceilings leaking and all. 'Twould need a lot of money spent on it."

"That's all right. We'll have a look around this evening, anyway. By the way, you've not had a young lady here asking for this key today?"

The woman shook her head. "No one's been over the place for a long time."

"Thanks very much." They retraced their steps to the Moat house. As the front door swung back on its hinges, protesting loudly, Julius struck a match and examined the floor carefully. Then he shook his head.

"I'd swear no one's passed this way. Look at the dust. Thick. Not a sign of a footmark."

They wandered round the deserted house. Everywhere the same tale. Thick layers of dust apparently undisturbed.

"We'll go over it again tomorrow," said Tommy. "Perhaps we'll see more in the daylight."

On the morrow they took up the search once more, and were reluctantly forced to the conclusion that the house had not been invaded for some considerable time. They might have left the village altogether but for a fortunate discovery of Tommy's. As they were retracing their steps to the gate, he gave a sudden cry, and stooping, picked something up from among the leaves, and held it out to Julius. It was a small gold brooch.

"That's Tuppence's!"

"Are you sure?"

"Absolutely. I've often seen her wear it."

Julius drew a deep breath. "I guess that settles it. She came as far as here, anyway. We'll make that pub our headquarters, and raise hell round here until we find her. Somebody must have seen her."

Forthwith the campaign began. Julius wired to town for his car, and they scoured the neighborhood daily with unflagging zeal. Julius was like a hound on the leash. He followed up the slenderest clue, but, as day succeeded day, they were no nearer to discovering Tuppence's whereabouts. So well had the abduction been planned that the girl seemed literally to have vanished into thin air.

And another preoccupation was weighing on Tommy's mind. "Do you know how long we've been here?" he asked one morning as they sat facing each other at breakfast. "A week! We're no nearer to finding Tuppence, and next Sunday is the 23rd! Today's the 23rd, and time's getting short. If we're ever going to get hold of her at all, we must do it before the 23rd—her life won't be worth an hour's purchase afterward. The hostage game will be played out by then. We've wasted time and we're no farther."

"I'm with you there. We've been a couple of mutts, who've bitten off a bigger bit than they can chew. I'm going right back to London to put the case in the hands of your British police. Scotland Yard for me! I guess the professional always scores over the amateur in the end. Are you coming along with me?"

Tommy shook his head. "What's the good? One of us is enough. I might as well stay here and nose round a bit longer. Something might turn up. One never knows."

"Sure thing. Well, so long. I'll be back in a couple of shakes with a few inspectors along. I shall tell them to pick out their brightest and best."

But the course of events was not to follow the plan Julius had laid down. Later in the day Tommy received a wire:

"Join me Manchester Midland hotel. Important news—Julius."

At 7:30 that night Tommy alighted from a slow cross-country train. Julius was on the platform.

Tommy grasped him by the arm. "What is it? Is Tuppence found?"

Julius shook his head. "No. But I found this waiting in London. Just arrived."

He handed the telegraph form to the other. Tommy's eyes opened as he read:

"Jane Finn found. Come Manchester Midland hotel immediately—Peel Edgerton."

Julius took the form back and folded it up. "Queer," he said thoughtfully. "I thought that lawyer chap had quit."

CHAPTER XII

Jane Finn

"My train got in half an hour ago," explained Julius, as he led the way out of the station. "I reckoned you'd come by this before I left London, and wired accordingly to Sir James. He's booked rooms for us, and will be round to dine at eight."

Sir James arrived punctually at eight o'clock, and Julius introduced Tommy. Sir James shook hands with him warmly.

Immediately the first greetings were over Julius broke out into a flood of eager questions. How had Sir James managed to track the girl? Why had he not let them know that he was still working on the case? And so on.

Sir James stroked his chin and smiled. At last he said:

"Just so, just so. Well, she's found. And that's the great thing, isn't it? Eh! Come now, that's the great thing?"

"Sure it is. But just how did you strike her trail? Miss Tuppence and I thought you'd quit for good and all. But I guess I can take it we were wrong."

"Well, I don't know that I should go so far as to say that. But it's certainly fortunate for all parties that we've managed to find the young lady."

"But where is she?" demanded Julius, his thoughts flying off on another tack. "I thought you'd be sure to bring her along?"

"That would hardly be possible," said Sir James gravely.

"Why?"

"Because the young lady was knocked down in a street accident, and has sustained slight injuries to the head. She was taken to the infirmary, and on recovering consciousness gave her name as Jane Finn."

"She's not seriously hurt?"

"Oh, a bruise and a cut or two. Her state is probably to be attributed to the mental shock consequent on recovering her memory."

"It's come back?" cried Julius excitedly.

"Undoubtedly. Mr. Hersheltmer, since she was able to give her real name. I thought you had appreciated that point."

"And you just happened to be on the spot," said Tommy. "Seems quite like a fairy tale."

Nevertheless Tommy was now certain of what he had before only suspected. Sir James' presence in Manchester was not accidental. Far from abandoning the case, as Julius supposed, he had by some means of his own successfully run the missing girl to earth. The only thing that puzzled Tommy was the reason for all this secrecy.

Julius was speaking. "After dinner," he announced, "I shall go right away and see Jane."

"That will be impossible, I fear," said Sir James. "It is very unlikely they would allow her to see visitors at this time of night. I should suggest tomorrow morning about ten o'clock."

Julius flushed. There was something in Sir James which always stirred him to antagonism.

"All the same, I reckon I'll go round there tonight and see if I can't ginger them up to break through their silly rules."

"It will be quite useless, Mr. Hersheltmer."

The words came out like the crack of a pistol, and Tommy looked up with a start. Julius was nervous and excited. The hand with which he raised his glass to his lips shook slightly, but his eyes held Sir James' defiantly. For a moment the hostility between the two seemed likely to burst into flame, but in the end Julius lowered his eyes, defeated.

"For the moment, I reckon you're the boss."

"Thank you," said the other. "We will say ten o'clock then?" With consummate ease of manner he turned to Tommy. "I must confess, Mr. Beresford, that it was something of a surprise to me to see you here this evening. The last I heard of you was that your friends were in grave anxiety on your behalf. Nothing had been heard of you for some days, and Miss Tuppence was inclined to think you had got into difficulties."

"I had, sir," Tommy grinned reminiscently. "I was never in a tighter place in my life."

Helped out by questions from Sir James, he gave an abbreviated account of his adventures. The lawyer looked at him with renewed interest as he brought the tale to a close.

"You got yourself out of a tight place very well," he said gravely. "I congratulate you. You displayed a great deal of ingenuity and carried your part through well."

Tommy blushed, his face assuming a pained-like hue at the praise.

"And since then? What have you been doing?"

For a moment, Tommy stared at him. Then it dawned on him that of course the lawyer did not know.

"I forgot that you didn't know about Tuppence," he said slowly.

The lawyer laid down his knife and fork sharply.

"Has anything happened to Miss Tuppence?" His voice was keen-edged.

"She's disappeared," said Julius.

"When?"

"A week ago."

"How?"

Sir James' questions fairly shot out. Between them Tommy and Julius gave the history of the last week and their futile search.

Sir James went at once to the root of the matter.

"A wire signed with your name? They knew enough of you both for that. They weren't sure of how much you had learnt in that house. Their kidnapping of Miss Tuppence is the counter-move to your escape. If necessary they could seal your lips with a threat of what might happen to her."

"That's just what I thought, sir."

Sir James looked at him keenly. "You had worked that out, had you? Not bad—not at all bad. The curious thing is that they certainly did not know anything about you when they first held you prisoner. You are sure that you did not in any way disclose your identity?"

Tommy shook his head.

"That's so," said Julius with a nod. "Therefore I reckon some one put them wise—and not earlier than Sunday afternoon."

"Yes, but who?"

"That almighty omniscient Mr. Brown, of course!"

There was a faint note of derision in the American's voice which made Sir James look up sharply.

"You don't believe in Mr. Brown, Mr. Hersheltmer?"

alone appeared unexcited. He introduced them to the doctor.

"Mr. Hersheltmer—Mr. Beresford—Dr. Roylance. How's the patient?"

"Going on well. Evidently no idea of the flight of time. Asked this morning how many had been saved from the Lusitania. She seems to have something on her mind, though."

"I think we can relieve her anxiety. May we go up?"

"Certainly."

Tommy's heart beat sensibly faster as they followed the doctor upstairs. Jane Finn at last! The long-sought, the mysterious, the elusive Jane Finn! How wildly improbable success had seemed! And here in this house, her memory almost miraculously restored, lay the girl who held the future of England in her hands. A half groan broke from Tommy's lips. If only Tuppence could have been at his side to share in the triumphant conclusion of their joint venture! Then he put the thought of Tuppence resolutely aside. His confidence in Sir James was growing. There was a man who would unerringly ferret out Tuppence's whereabouts. In the meantime Jane Finn! And suddenly a dread clutched at his heart. It seemed too easy. . . . Suppose they should find her dead. . . . Stricken down by the hand of Mr. Brown?

In another minute he was laughing at these melodramatic fancies. The doctor held open the door of a room and they passed in. On the white bed, bandages round her head, lay the girl. Somehow the whole scene seemed unreal. It was so exactly what one expected that it gave the effect of being beautifully staged.

"How Do, Cousin Jane?" He Said Lightly.

The girl looked from one to the other of them with large wondering eyes. Sir James spoke first.

"Miss Finn," he said, "this is your cousin, Mr. Julius P. Hersheltmer."

A faint flush flitted over the girl's face, as Julius stepped forward and took her hand.

"How do, Cousin Jane?" he said lightly.

But Tommy caught the tremor in his voice.

"Are you really Uncle Hiram's son?" she asked wonderingly.

Her voice seemed vaguely familiar to Tommy, but he thrust the impression aside as impossible.

"Sure thing."

A shadow passed over the girl's face. "They've been telling me things—dreadful things—that my memory went, and that there are years I shall never know about—years lost out of my life. It seems to me as though it were no time since we were being hustled into those boats. I can see it all now." She closed her eyes with a shudder.

Julius looked across at Sir James, who nodded.

"Don't worry any. It isn't worth it. Now, see here, Jane, there's something we want to know about. There was a man aboard that boat with some mighty important papers on him, and the big guns in this country have got a notion that he passed on the goods to you. Is that so?"

The girl hesitated, her glance shifting to the other two. Julius understood.

"Mr. Beresford is commissioned by the British government to get those papers back. Sir James Peel Edgerton is an English member of parliament, and might be the big gun in the cabinet if he liked. It's owing to him that we've ferreted you out at last. So you can go right ahead and tell us the whole story. Did Danvers give you the papers?"

"Yes. He said they'd have a better chance with me, because they would save the women and children first."

"Just as we thought," said Sir James.

Best Plan to Get Good Cows Is to Raise Them

Profitable dairy cows may be secured in two ways. First, they may be purchased. This is, no doubt, the most expensive way, but necessary in many cases in order to get a start. In purchasing cows you take chances on getting individuals not as good as they look, for often the best judges of dairy animals are fooled in the value of cows. Then, also, there is the chance of bringing in diseases such as tuberculosis, contagious abortion, and udder troubles, says J. P. LaMaster, chief of the dairy division of Clemson college.

The second and best way to get good profitable cows is to raise them on your farm. All dairy cows depend for their value on the inherent tendency to convert feed into milk and on their proper growth and development. That is, they must have well-bred ancestry. Although the cows you now own may be grades and poor grades at that, you can insure the value of your future herd by breeding these cows to well-bred pure bred bulls.

A well-bred bull is not only a registered bull, but one having a sire coming from a line of high butterfat and milk producers, and out of a dam with a good butterfat record, nothing less than 400 pounds in one year, she also having come from a line of high producing ancestry.

The tendency of the normal cow is to revert to the original wild cow which gave only enough milk for her calf; so unless by selection you increase the ability to produce, you will soon have only boarder cows which will not pay you for the feed they eat or the labor necessary to manage them.

The most profitable system of dairy farming is to have the most of the cows freshen in the fall. In order to do this it is necessary to breed the cows during November, December and January. If you do not have a good bull or do not live near a farmer who owns a good bull to which you can breed your cows, begin now to locate one for your own use. The dairy division of Clemson college will assist you in locating a good bull.

Plan Outlined to Avoid Grassy Flavor in Milk

When the herd is first placed on pasture or is turned into clover or alfalfa, a grassy taste is often caused in the milk for a short time, not only making the milk objectionable to trade, but affecting the butter taste as well. This can usually be eliminated by starting the herd on a change of pasture, or a pasture from confinement, gradually.

Do not leave the herd on the new pasture too long the first day—a few hours in the morning or afternoon, supplementing this with some grain and a dry roughage such as silage. The silage can best be saved during the time of good pasture, after the cows have gradually been allowed more time in the pasture, as it will make a good supplement for poor pastures later in the summer. After a week or ten days, cows producing twenty pounds of milk a day or less will need little if any grain on good pasture. For heavier producers, feed a pound of grain for each six or eight pounds of milk produced per day.

A mixture of 400 pounds of ground corn, 200 pounds ground oats, or bran, and 100 pounds of cotton seed meal is recommended by the Purdue dairy department. Cottonseed meal is especially good at this time, to produce a firm butter with better quality, as well as to tend to check the laxative effects of a fresh pasture. A liberal supply of salt should be available to herds on pasture at all times.

Ohio Cow Makes Record of Five Sets of Twins

The Ohio Station Bulletin 7 makes note of a cow in the station herd that is reported to have dropped five sets of twins out of seven times calving. Twinning has also been rather common in other closely related cows in the herd. The possibility of establishing a family of cows which would produce a high percentage of twins is suggested, but it is pointed out that of the nine sets of twins recorded six sets were male and freemartin and three were males.

Good Cows Will Always Pay Biggest Dividend

Just because a poor milk-producing cow pays you a return, do not conclude that scrubs pay. This is an unusually productive year for dairy cows, and with cheap feed you should make money on any sort of animal. Good cows will pay you a still greater return.

Watch Cream Separator to Conserve Butterfat

Many farmers are losing considerable butterfat because their separators fail to skim clean, say dairy experts at Iowa State college. Reports received from over the state show that skim milk often has from one-sixth to one-fourth per cent fat in it. This could be saved by adjusting the cream screw on the separator. Cream that tests high will keep longer and grade higher than that which contains considerable skim milk.

Stop their pain in one minute!

For quick lasting relief from corns, Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads stop the pain in one minute by removing the cause—friction and pressure.

Zino-pads are safe, antiseptic, healing, waterproof and cannot produce infection or any other effects. Three sizes—for corns, calluses and bunions. Cost but a few cents. Get a box today at your druggist or shoe dealer's.

Put one on - the pain is gone

It is easy enough to practice diplomacy when the other man is doing the same thing. But when he frankly insists, what?

FRECKLES!

POSITIVELY REMOVED

For every forty years human skin has been exposed to the sun's rays, and from that time on, freckles are bound to appear. Freckles are not a disease, but a sign of age. They are caused by the sun's rays, and can be removed by Freckles Remover. It is a powerful antiseptic and disinfectant, and is recommended by skin specialists.

How Many Dollars Had She?

A lady found two dollars, and then had five times as many as she would have had, had she lost two dollars, instead. The first ten young people sending in the correct solution will receive one dozen beautifully pen written calling cards free. Be sure to write your name exactly as you wish it on the cards, also giving your age. Those who can't solve it, write for the solution.

Did you know that the Busi-

Alabama Mayor Out With Strong Facts

Judge G. W. Thomason, Mayor of Tarrant City, Alabama, widely known and highly esteemed pioneer citizen, recently gave his unqualified endorsement to the Tanlac treatment.

"Chronic indigestion brought me to the verge of a general breakdown three years ago," said Judge Thomason, "and nothing seemed to afford much relief. I was eating scarcely enough to keep going on, and food stayed in my stomach like a rock, causing pain and extreme nervousness. Sleep was often impossible, and I gradually weakened so I could hardly attend to my office duties.

"The first bottle of Tanlac improved me wonderfully, and each successive bottle gave added impetus to my returning strength. I felt ten years younger when I finished the sixth bottle a short time later. Tanlac gave me new zest in life that still remains with me."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists.

Substitute for Flax.
Linen, heretofore made exclusively from flax, has been growing dearer and dearer in proportion as the flax plant has become rarer and more difficult to cultivate. Now, it is said, a satisfactory substitute has been found in the flax lily, which grows in abundance in New Zealand. The plant will grow admirably in many parts of Europe and America. It is far easier to cultivate than flax itself, and it has a yield of 2,240 pounds to the acre.

This Little One Had Colic for Three Months

"My baby suffered from colic for three months and I was afraid I was going to lose her," writes Mrs. A. J. Tolbert, of Holley, Fla., "but she soon got over it when I gave her Teethina, and now I will never be without it, for I give it to both my little ones and it keeps them well."

Colic is a very common complaint with babies and if not corrected in time often leads to more serious disturbances. Teethina corrects baby's indigestion, relieves distress due to an overloaded stomach, cleans out the bowels and regulates the system.

Teethina can be had at any drug store or send 30c to the Moffett Laboratories, Columbus, Ga., and receive a large package and a free copy of Moffett's Illustrated Baby Book.—(Advertisement.)

Breach of Etiquette.
"So there was a gap in the conversation?"
"Yes, we were all yawning."

His Opinion.
Mother—Helen needs new clothes, John Young Dubbleigh is beginning to attract her attention. Father (examining bills)—Huh! An expensive lot of bait for a poor fish.—Boston Transcript.

MANY WOMEN AVOID OPERATIONS

Through the Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Two Interesting Cases

Some female troubles may through neglect reach a stage when an operation is necessary. But most of the common ailments are not the surgical ones; they are not caused by serious displacements, tumors or growths, although the symptoms may appear the same. When disturbing ailments first appear, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve the present distress and prevent more serious troubles. Many letters have been received from women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after operations have been advised by attending physicians.

Mrs. Edwards Avoids Operation
Wilson, N. C.—"For about a year I was not able to do anything, not even my housework, because of the pains in my sides and the bearing-down pains. I could only lie around the house. The doctor said nothing but an operation would help me, but I tried different medicines which did me no good, until my sister insisted on my trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I saw that she was right, for I began to improve with the first bottle and have done me more good than anything else. I am able now to do anything on the farm or in my home and I recommend it to my friends."—LILLIE EDWARDS, E.F.D. 3, Box 44, Wilson, N. C.

Another Operation Avoided
Akron, O.—"I can never praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly for what it has done for me. I had such pains and weakness that the doctor told me nothing but an operation would help me. But my mother had taken the Vegetable Compound and she told me what it had done for her, and so I took it and I am glad to tell every one that it made me a strong woman, and I have had two children since then."—Mrs. R. G. W. WILSON, 325 Grant Street, Akron, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book Peculiar to Women will be sent you free upon request. Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lowell, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

Differently Expressed.
They used to call him a lousehead. That was before he succeeded. Now they say he is a man of hard, old sense.—Boston Transcript.

A man may be brilliant or he may be useful, but the brilliant man doesn't seem to work so hard.

A dreamy, imaginative nature, even though that of a genius, doesn't care a rap for "opportunities."

Important Qualification.
"You go far as to admit the possibility of defeat for your party?"
"Yes," replied Senator Sorghum; "but you will observe that I observe the rule of the game and I am always mighty careful to say nothing that will be a disadvantage to my own side."

Regarding Her Talent.
Ethel—What that handsome young man taught you to swim yet?
Madge—Yes, but he doesn't know it.

CHEVROLET

for Economical Transportation OF Farm Products

Modern, progressive farmers, being also business men, now depend on fast economical motor transportation to save time, save products and get the money.

Chevrolet Superior Light Delivery, with four post body was built especially for farm needs. It has the space and power for a big load, which it moves fast at a very low cost per mile.

For heavy work, Chevrolet Utility Express Truck at only $550 chassis only, offers a remarkable value. Fits any standard truck body.

Alabama Mayor Out With Strong Facts

Judge G. W. Thomason, Mayor of Tarrant City, Alabama, widely known and highly esteemed pioneer citizen, recently gave his unqualified endorsement to the Tanlac treatment.

"Chronic indigestion brought me to the verge of a general breakdown three years ago," said Judge Thomason, "and nothing seemed to afford much relief. I was eating scarcely enough to keep going on, and food stayed in my stomach like a rock, causing pain and extreme nervousness.

Sleep was often impossible, and I gradually weakened so I could hardly attend to my office duties.

"The first bottle of Tanlac improved me wonderfully, and each successive bottle gave added impetus to my returning strength. I felt ten years younger when I finished the sixth bottle a short time later. Tanlac gave me new zest in life that still remains with me."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists.

Substitute for Flax.

Linen, heretofore made exclusively from flax, has been growing dearer and dearer in proportion as the flax plant has become rarer and more difficult to cultivate. Now, it is said, a satisfactory substitute has been found in the flax lily, which grows in abundance in New Zealand. The plant will grow admirably in many parts of Europe and America. It is far easier to cultivate than flax itself, and it has a yield of 2,240 pounds to the acre.

This Little One Had Colic for Three Months

"My baby suffered from colic for three months and I was afraid I was going to lose her," writes Mrs. A. J. Tolbert, of Holley, Fla. "but she soon got over it when I gave her Teethina, and now I will never be without it, for I give it to both my little ones and it keeps them well."

Colic is a very common complaint with babies and if not corrected in time often leads to more serious disturbances. Teethina corrects baby's indigestion, relieves distress due to an overloaded stomach, cleans out the bowels and regulates the system.

Teethina can be had at any drug store or send 30c to the Moffett Laboratories, Columbus, Ga., and receive a large package and a free copy of Moffett's Illustrated Baby Book.—(Advertisement.)

Breach of Etiquette.

"So there was a gap in the conversation?"

"Yes, we were all yawning."

Differently Expressed.

"They used to call him a bonehead."

"That was before he succeeded."

"Now they say he is a man of hard, old sense."—Boston Transcript.

Important Qualification.

"You go far as to admit the possibility of defeat for your party?"

"Yes."

"but you will observe that I observe the rule of gentlemen who lift a warning voice."

"I am always mighty careful to say 'no'."

Akron, O.—"I can never praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly for what it has done for me. I had such pains and weakness that my doctor told me nothing but an operation would help me. But my mother had taken the Vegetable Compound and she told me what it had done for her, and so I took it and I am glad to tell every one that it made me a strong woman, and I have had two children since then."—Mrs. R. MANY WOMEN AVOID OPERATIONS

Through the Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Two Interesting Cases

Some female troubles may through neglect reach a stage when an operation is necessary. But most of the common ailments are not the surgical ones; they are not caused by serious displacements, tumors or growths, although the symptoms may appear the same. When disturbing ailments first appear, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve the present distress and prevent more serious troubles. Many letters have been received from women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after operations have been advised by attending physicians.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION

The State of Texas.
To the Sheriff or Any Constable of Donley County—Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to cause to be published, once a week for ten days, exclusive of the first day of publication, before the return day hereof, in some newspaper of general circulation published in said county, which has been continuously published in said county for a period of not less than one year, the following notice:

The State of Texas.
To All Persons Interested in the Estate of S. G. Chesnutt, Deceased.

You are hereby notified that W. E. Hodges has filed in the County Court of Donley County, Texas, an application for letters of administration upon the Estate of said S. G. Chesnutt, deceased, which will be heard at the next regular term of said court, commencing on the third Monday in October, A. D. 1923, the same being the 15th day of October, A. D. 1923, at the court house thereof in Clarendon, Texas, at which time all persons interested in said Estate are hereby directed to appear and contest said application, if they so desire.

Herein fail not, but have you then and there before said court on the first day of the next term thereof this writ, with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and seal of said court, at office in Clarendon, Texas, this the 2nd day of October, A. D. 1923

Lottie E. Lane,
Clerk County Court,
Donley County, Texas.

CITATION

The State of Texas.
To the Sheriff or Any Constable of Donley County—Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to summon L. M. Crowley to be and appear before the next regular term of the District Court of Donley county, to be held at the court house at Clarendon, Texas, on the 22nd day of October, A. D. 1923, to answer the plaintiff's petition in a suit in said Court filed September 19th, A. D. 1923, in cause numbered No 1335 wherein Ran Kendall is plaintiff and J. M. Johnston, L. M. Crowley and The First National Bank of Wichita Falls, Texas, are defendants, in which plaintiff sues J. M. Johnston for principal, interest and attorney's fees upon six notes for $1300 00 each, and to foreclose the vendor's lien securing payment of said notes against all Survey 14, Block 21 H. & G. N. Ry. Co. survey in Donley county, Texas, and for title and possession of said land, and other defendants for foreclosure of vendors lien and to bar their claim to said land, and alleging that claim of said other defendants creates a cloud on plaintiff's interest in said land.

And you will summon said defendant, L. M. Crowley, by making publication of this citation once each week for four consecutive weeks previous to the return day hereof in some newspaper of general circulation published in your county for more than one year consecutively prior to the date hereof.

Herein fail not, but have you before said Court on the first day of the next term thereof this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and seal of office at Clarendon, Texas, this September 19th, A. D. 1923.
