Five Cows vs. The Grocery Bill

On an average, five cows will take care of the annual grocery bill with a margin to spare, with good management, to say nothing of home consumption and the beneficial effects of plenty of good milk and butter.

Would you like to try it? Come in, let's see if we can't arrange it.

OPENING OF HEDLEY PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Hedley Public School opened at 9:00 o'clock Sept. 8, with the largest representation of pupils, parents and friends in its history.

Pupils were in their rooms from 9 until 10 o'clock, getting books, lesson assignments, etc., but at 10 o'clock the entire student body and faculty assembled in the auditorium with the visitors.

The program opened with the introducing of the Faculty and Board of Trustees by Supt. R. L. Snider.

Following that was an interesting talk by Elder F. S. Vance, then readings given by Little Miss Evelyn Alexander and Miss Deilah Teddie and a piano solo given by Miss Gertrude Rascoe.

Mayor D. C. Moore represented the Board of Trustees with a brief talk, and Supt. R. L. Snider represented the Faculty.

Benediction was rendered by Elder F. S. Vance.

STOP AND READ

Every one who is interested in the Parent Teachers Association, get busy! We are beginning a new membership campaign and we want to put it across successfully, and in order to do this we must have the co-operation and support of every true "Hedleyite." The time for you to begin is at our next meeting in the school auditorium Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Sept. 12.

At this meeting we are going to reorganize the competition between the "Reds" and the "Blues," and plan for a free stunt program to be given by these two sides on the evening of Sept. 19.

We want to thank Mrs. E. W. Alley, Mrs. J. W. Noel and Mrs. P. U. Johnson for the splendid work they did at the opening of school in securing fifty new members.

Come on; let's keep the good work going.

ATTENTION ATTENTION

To the People of This Trade Territory, and Members of the Equity Union in Particular

Having resigned my position with the Grocery department of the Equity to accept the weighing and bookkeeping position at the New Gin, I wish to make this statement.

I surely do appreciate all that you have done to help me to make the Equity what it is today, and thank you for the courtesies you have shown me in this work.

The directors have employed Mr. C. O. Cooper to take my place at the store and will assure you that you will get the same courteous treatment, if not better, with Mr. Cooper at the wheel. I surely do hope that you will give Mr. Cooper your support and co-operation, as you have in the past. And if you will, the Equity cannot help but be a success.

The Fall run will soon commence, and let each individual worker help the boys at the store to make it a success.

I will endeavor to give you as good treatment at the gin as I know how, and think we have as good a gin as there is in the Panhandle. So, come ahead, let us all work and cooperate together, and then just watch the Equity Union grow and succeed.

Do You Teach the Youngsters to Face the Facts?

School bells ringing for the new term call tomorrow's men and women—the leaders and workers of a few years hence. Billions could not equal the wealth of this nation in its boys and girls. Added billions could not pay what school days will be worth to them.

Train them to meet each test as best they can, and to cheer the comrade along the way. And teach them that thrift and a knowledge of how to save are big stepping stones to success.

SCREENED FOOD CHEST WILL CHECK FLIES

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

At any time of the year it is important to protect food from flying dust in the kitchen, pantry, or wherever it may be stored, but after fly season begins it is dangerous not to provide some convenient way of preventing flies from alighting on the food, either in the course of preparation, or between one meal and the next. Cooked dishes waiting to be cooled before being put in the refrigerator, and warm food left after a meal, to be stored later in the icebox, can be cared for by putting them into a screened food chest like the one illustrated. Such a chest, placed in a porch near the kitchen or in some other place where there is a good circulation of air, will protect the food from contamination by flies or mice, and the legs can also be constructed, when necessary, so that ants could not get into it. In hot weather it is not recommended that foods liable to spoil be stored anywhere but in the refrigerator; but one may have need to cool a pudding or cake, or to set aside odds and ends of vegetables for short periods of time until they are cool enough to put in the ice box. In winter, and during part of the spring and fall in northern climates, a capacious screened closet, well ventilated, enables one to do without ice.

The screened chest shown was homemade. Ordinary window screening was used. It was made during the kitchen improvement contest among farm women in Wythe county, Va. The woman who made it used it in a large pantry.

POLISH WAX FLOORS WITH HEAVY BRUSH

Should Be Cleaned Thoroughly Once Every Week.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Waxed floors should be swept with a soft brush or mop entirely free from oil. Oil softens wax and should never be used on it in any way. About once a week a waxed floor should be given a more thorough cleaning with a cloth wrung out of warm soapy water, or better still, moistened with turpentine or gasoline. Water dulls and whitens a waxed floor and though the color and luster may be restored by polishing, labor may be saved by using turpentine or gasoline, for they dissolve the films of dirty wax on the surface and leave it bright. Both these liquids, however, are very inflammable and are not to be used in a room where there is an open flame of any kind; also, they should be kept in a tightly-corked bottle from which little is poured onto the cloth as needed. Parts of the floor that have the heaviest wear should be finished with a thin coating of wax and then polished; or occasionally after cleaning, the entire floor may be given a very thin coat of wax and polished with a weighted brush or wooden cloth.

Under moderate use, however, a floor needs waxing only two or three times a year. Applying too much wax is a common mistake; the surplus simply lies on the surface in a soft coat that collects dust and is easily marred. White spots made by water will generally disappear if they are rubbed with a wooden cloth or weighted brush; if necessary, a little wax may be applied.

Oiled floors should be swept with a soft brush and dusted with an oiled cloth or mop. Occasionally they need a more thorough cleaning with a cloth wrung out of warm, soapy water, followed by polishing with a cloth moistened with kerosene or a good floor oil. Water and soap should be used very sparingly on oiled floors, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

OKRA IS EXCELLENT FOR SOUP FLAVORS

May Be Grown Throughout Greater Part of Country.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Okra, or "gumbo," commonly used in the South, may be grown throughout the greater portion of the United States, except the extreme northern part. The pods are excellent dried and canned, and as these may be obtained in every large market, its use is not confined to any season.

The principal use of okra is in soups and in various dishes in which meats form an important part. The young pods impart an excellent flavor, besides giving a pleasant mucilaginous consistency.

No copper, brass, or iron cooking vessel should be employed in preparing okra, as the metal will be absorbed and the pods discolored, or even rendered poisonous, warns the United States Department of Agriculture. The cooking should be done in enameled, porcelain, or earthenware utensils.

Try these recipes:

Baked Okra.

Place a thin layer of rice in a baking dish, add a layer of sliced okra, then a layer of tomatoes; add salt, pepper, a little curry powder, and a small lump of butter. Repeat with alternate layers of rice, okra and tomatoes until the dish is filled. Cover and bake in the oven until the rice is thoroughly cooked. Remove cover and brown on top. Serve in the baking dish. The rice should be washed in cold water before using, and the okra pods and tomatoes washed and sliced rather thinly.

Winter Okra Soup.

1 can of good New Orleans okra.	1 dozen oysters.
1 can of tomatoes.	2 tablespoonfuls of rice.
2 tablespoonfuls of butter.	A small dried red pepper pod, without the seeds or a dash of cayenne.
2 small onions.

Chop the onions and fry them in the butter. Wash the rice well, then stew the onions, tomatoes and pepper together in about 3 quarts of water and 1 pint of oyster water for about three hours, stirring frequently. Ten minutes before serving add the okra and let it come to a boil. Then drop in the oysters, boil up once, and serve.

Chicken Gumbo.

1 chicken, weighing 2 or 4 pounds.	1 large slice of ham.
1 onion.	1 bay leaf.
1/2 pod of dried red pepper, without seeds.	1 sprig of parsley.
2 pint of okra, or about 50 pods.	1 tablespoonful each of lard and butter.
	Salt and cayenne to taste.

Clean and cut up the chicken. Cut the ham into small squares or dice and chop the onion and the parsley or thyme. Wash and stem the okra and slice into thin layers of one-half inch each. Put the lard and butter into the soup kettle, and when hot add the chicken and the ham. Cover closely and let it simmer for about ten minutes. Then add the chopped onions, parsley, and tomatoes, stirring frequently to prevent scorching. Then add the okra, and when well browned add the juice of the tomatoes, which imparts a superior flavor. The okra is delicate and may scorch if not stirred frequently. For this reason many Creole cooks fry the okra pods separately in a frying pan, seasoning with the pepper, cayenne, and salt.

BLOUSE IS NOW PARAMOUNT; CLOTH DRESS FOR AUTUMN

"THIS is a reckless mood in which we find Dame Fashion, in regard to the separate blouse. 'The more the merrier,' says she, a blouse for every occasion if you will. It may be as gay as gay can be, none too bizarre striped, plaid or otherwise, sleeveless or sleeved to the wrist, severely tailored or superelaborated, thus are we given latitude in the choice of a separate blouse.

Nevertheless, there are many definite style points which indicate the course this is an exaggerated type, but it goes to prove the extremes to which the modern blouse trends. For fall the outlook is for the long tunic blouse, fanciful and colorful.

Already in matters of dress are we anticipating autumn. If we are wise, in times of midsummer we prepare for coming fall weather. The stylish striped cloth frock in the picture answers the problem of what to choose for forthcoming cool days. It is just such a costume as gives fashion trend. A leading trend is expressed in straightline silhouettes. The model here pictured illustrates the idea. Again striped flannels and crepes are quite the newest fabrics for blouse fashioning, just such as the type here shown. And again, flowing ties and scarf effects mark the majority of sportswear blouse types.

It is apropos that the fanciful tie on the blouse in the picture be embroidered with tennis racket designs, which no doubt settles the matter that this particular blouse is designed to be worn especially at tennis court.

Speaking of smart tie effects, the slotted tie model is the last word in a smart appearance at the office, for shopping or for any practical daytime affair. If it is good to look upon in newspaper print, it is infinitely more so in the original of its rich brown, half-lined with white. The straight tube-like silhouette is maintained, for fashion decries long slender lines for the street coat dress. The collar and frill are of white crepe, the latter piped with brown satin. Long tight sleeves here give warning of their vogue for the immediate future.

The beltless silhouette dominates the fall showings of cloth and flannel street dresses. For practical everyday wear, flannel in solid bright colors or fancifully striped is one of the smartest among advance materials. Strict simplicity is adhered to in the fashioning of the one-piece flannel or cloth dress. Wool, rep and heavy bengaline silk are also featured.

A novelty touch is the capelet, which is usually fitted into the shoulder lines. Glimpsing advance models, one notes interesting trimming details such as stenciled leather collar and cuffs, and buttons sewed on fancifully.

Many of the early dress models reflect the dir, toile trend.

Very fetching are the new gold leather belts, which appear on some of the imported cloth dresses. Gold kid, trimming a navy cloth rep, suggests fashions in store for autumn.

CARE AND FEED FOR BROOD SOW AND PIGS

After the pigs are born the sow should not have anything but water for the first twenty-four to thirty-six hours. For the first feed a handful of bran in a little lukewarm water is good. A mixture of bran 10 pounds, shorts 25 pounds, ground grain 55 pounds, and tankage 10 pounds, makes a suitable ration for a sow in milk. In feeding a brood sow in milk it should be kept in mind that her requirements are the same as for a dairy cow in milk. At first only a light feed should be given, as a heavy feed will unduly stimulate the milk flow, making it more than the pigs can use at first. The ration should be increased gradually so that the sow will be getting a full feed at about the end of two weeks after farrowing. The appetite of the sow suckling a good healthy litter is a pretty safe guide to follow. She will usually lose weight with the best of feeding.

As soon as the pigs are a day or two old they should be out in the sunshine, as it is well known that sunshine has a very beneficial effect on the little pigs. Because of the exercise as well as the feed which they get there is no better place for them than an alfalfa pasture. The sow and litter should be moved on the alfalfa as soon as it is up three or four inches; they should also be provided with a colony house for sleeping quarters.

If an examination is made at the time of birth it will be found that the pigs have on each side small short black tusks called needle teeth, with which they often injure each other as well as the sow's teats. These should be cut off with a small pair of forceps, care being taken not to lacerate the gums.

When the pigs are three or four days old it will be noticed that they are taking an interest in their mother's feed, and this should be encouraged by fixing a creep for them, so that they can be given feed which will not be disturbed by the sow. Pigs handled in this way will be very easy to wean. If it is the plan to raise two litters a year the pigs should be weaned at about eight weeks of age. Where only one litter a year is the practice the pigs need not be weaned until ten weeks of age. If properly fed they will usually wean themselves by this time.—H. H. Smith, Assistant Professor, Animal Husbandry, Colorado Agricultural College.

Filthy Quarters Cause of Disease in Swine

There is a very prevalent idea that the hog is naturally a filthy animal and that it is more hardy if allowed to roll in a mud wallow and eat its feed from unsanitary troughs; but modern methods have clearly demonstrated that hogs are more healthful when they do not have access to stagnant pools and filthy mud wallows. It has also been proved that unsanitary troughs are responsible for a large percentage of the ailments of swine. Digestive troubles, especially, can frequently be traced to filthy feeding quarters, points out L. V. Starkey, chief of the animal husbandry division at Clemson college.

Fresh water, shade, feed and shelter are all essential, but they can be had with sanitation.

Perhaps the best way to keep swine healthy and clean is to have them where they have the run of a fairly large pasture. If such a pasture has running water the hogs will thrive.

It is true that hogs love to wallow in the mud, but it is not necessary for them to do so. It is a part of the job of the modern hog raiser to see to it that hogs have quarters which are as sanitary as are those for the other classes of live stock.

To Control Round Worms Keep Sanitary Quarters

The best way to control round worms in hogs is to keep sanitary quarters and prevent the spread of this parasite when it is once found. Veterinarians do not have any real successful treatment when round worms once become serious. These worms cause the disease known as ascariasis and infection is internal and hard to treat. Santonin and camolol or oil of chenopodium and castor oil are about as satisfactory as any treatment.

When round worms are discovered move the infested hogs to clean quarters and do not let any stock get into the lots where the hogs have been. Plow up the infested hog lot and sow it down to rye or rape. The disease is most serious if the small pigs become infested. Clean farrowing pens, clean pasture hog lots and plenty of exercise will prevent most of these troubles.

Lambs on Rape Pasture

Allow the lambs to pasture on rape after the dew is off for one hour the first day, two hours the second day, three hours the third day, four hours the fourth day and five hours the fifth day. In the morning the lambs should be on bluegrass pasture before being placed on rape. Experience has shown that it is best to allow lambs to graze in the afternoon on the rape and on bluegrass pasture in the forenoon. A saving of the rape pasture is thereby made.

DAIRY FACTS

CARE AND FEED FOR COWS WHEN CALVING

Cows that are to calve should be provided with a comfortable and well-bedded box stall. It is imperative that the bowels are moving freely before calving time. Laxative feeds such as a mixture of two parts bran and one part linseed meal should be fed. If the cow still remains more or less constipated give a drench of epsom salts, or a dose of one quart of linseed oil. A number of troubles which usually occur about calving time can be prevented by proper feeding and care before freshening.

During calving time the cow should not be disturbed except in the case of abnormal birth. During the first days after calving she must be protected from cold and her drinking water should be given at a lukewarm temperature. The vitality of the cow is very low at this time, and careful and thorough herdsmanship is necessary. The feed must be rather limited in amount. Good quality legume hay, a little silage, and bran makes a satisfactory ration at this time. Watch the high producing cow for milk fever, and if it occurs resort to the air treatment.

A little time is all that it takes to figure out a good balanced ration. It will be found to be a good investment of time when the increased milk flow is measured. Cows in milk need plenty of protein and mineral matter. These can be obtained within the limits of economic production.

A good cow is a good worker, and a good worker needs plenty to eat. Alfalfa hay at will, silage, and grain in accordance with the amount of milk given should be fed. Each cow should be fed individually. A herdsman can estimate the amount of milk and the condition of the cow. The grain can be increased as long as the milk flow increases. If the cow starts to put on flesh, it is an indication of too much feed.

Succession is necessary. This can be obtained by corn silage in winter and a permanent pasture in the summer.

If the grain mixture is too heavy a bulky feed like wheat bran or dried beet pulp should be added.—B. W. Fairbanks, Colorado Agricultural College.

Warning Against Buying Inferior Dairy Cattle

From many states there are now coming warnings against buying inferior dairy cattle from unreliable parties. The good price of dairy products, coming at a time when farm prices in general were depressed, has been largely responsible for the increased demand for dairy cows. The work of testing for tuberculosis is also responsible for considerable demand to replace animals reacting to the test. In Illinois approximately 1,000 dairy cattle are being tested every day, of which some 58 head react and have to be killed. Other states report similar progress.

Unscrupulous cattle dealers, in order to profit by the brisk trade, are buying culls in the stock yards and shipping them back to the farmers. According to M. H. Peterson, head of the tuberculosis eradication department of the Illinois Agricultural association, "many unsuspecting farmers have bought diseased animals 'plugged' so full of tuberculin that when they are tested for importation into the state, there is no apparent reaction."

Nebraska recently issued a warning signed by prominent farmers and agricultural authorities against the crooked dealer, Fred Ferguson, dairy expert of Iowa, not long ago sent a similar warning to be posted in every bank of Iowa. Closer contact with farmers and local breeders' associations will help. Those entering the dairy business for the first time can well afford to pay a neighbor or friend they know is reliable and is acquainted with the business, to help them buy animals. And by all means, make sure of the reliability of all parties selling cattle before buying.

High Temperature Tends to Encourage Bacteria

Even with reasonable precautions to exclude bacteria from cream, a considerable number will always be present. If the cream is left uncooled these multiply rapidly, soon spoiling the cream. Dr. H. W. Conn of Connecticut has found that one bacterium in milk kept at a temperature of 50 degrees Fahrenheit for 24 hours will multiply to seven, while one bacterium in milk kept at a temperature of 70 degrees for 24 hours will multiply to 700. At higher temperatures the increase is correspondingly greater.

Oats for Dairy Cows

Oats are considered, especially when mixed with other grain, good feed for dairy cows. Grain alone is not good feed. A good grain ration to feed dairy cows consists of 200 pounds ground corn, 200 pounds ground oats, 200 pounds bran and 100 pounds oil-meal. Give each animal 1 pound of the mixture for every 3 1/2 pounds of milk produced. Oats alone will not dry up a cow, in fact a cow fed oats will do better than she would if not so fed.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION

The State of Texas.
In the District Court, October Term, A. D. 1924

To the Sheriff or Any Constable of Donley County—Greeting:

You are hereby commanded, That by making publication of this Citation in some newspaper published in the County of Donley, if there be a newspaper published in said county (but if not, then in the nearest county where a newspaper is published), for four weeks previous to the return day hereof, you summon Spaulding Manufacturing Company, composed of E. Hawkes & Company, a corporation, whose residence is unknown, to be and appear before the District Court, to be holden in and for the County of Donley, at the court house thereof in Clarendon, on the third Monday in October, same being the 20th day of October, 1924, File Number being 1371, then and there to answer the petition of T. J. Carter, Mrs. Ora Bray and her husband, W. E. Bray, filed in said Court on the 9th day of September, A. D. 1924, against the said Spaulding Manufacturing Company, composed of E. H. Spaulding, F. E. Spaulding and H. W. Spaulding; Platter Tobacco Company, a corporation; Chattanooga Medicine Company, a corporation; Ballard Snow Liniment Company, a corporation; H. G. Ganse & Bros., a corporation; F. W. DeVoe and C. T. Reynolds & Company, a corporation, and A. K. Hawkes & Company, a corporation, and alleging in substance as follows:

Being a suit in trespass to try title, ordinary form, brought by the plaintiff, T. J. Carter, alleging that on the first of July, 1924, he was lawfully seized and possessed of the following described tract of land situate in the town of Clarendon, Donley county, Texas, being all of the south one half of Block 16, Grant's Addition to said town, and that the defendants unlawfully entered upon and dispossessed said Carter therefrom; that the rental value of said premises is $200 per year; and also alleging that all of the defendants have caused to be abstracted in Donley county, Texas, certain judgments held by them against the plaintiff, W. E. Bray, in his individual capacity; that the said lands above described were owned by the plaintiff, Ora Bray, as her separate estate prior to the sale of the same of the plaintiff Carter, that the abstracting of said judgments by the defendants against W. E. Bray, the husband of the plaintiff Ora Bray, has cast a cloud upon the title to said property. Plaintiff Carter sues for the title and possession of said property and all plaintiffs sue for a cancellation of all liens or rights claimed by the defendants or either of them against the above described property.

Herin fail not, but have you then and there before said Court this writ, with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same

A substantial home which will mark the owner as a progressive citizen in his community should be one of the primary ambitions of every good American.

It long has been recognized that the square, or approximately square, type of residence offers the best opportunity for the economical utilization of floor space...

Seasoned Lumber Insures Quality and Long Life

Economic factors play a part in determining what kinds of wood are most useful and economical in your community.

Important it is, however, to the man or woman who is preparing to invest thousands of dollars in a home to protect that investment by two things:

1. Select the architect or contractor who builds the most substantial construction—his fee is the best "insurance" you can take out on your home as an investment.

2. Choose lumber that is accurately manufactured, thoroughly seasoned, of uniform high quality.

These two precautions are the means of preventing the thing most feared by home owners—undue depreciation.

Decorating the Wall of Child's Room or Nursery

There is no room in the home that so well repays us for thoughtful care in the details of its decoration than the nursery or the children's room.

Any student of child psychology, no matter how superficial his observations may be, knows the extreme sensitiveness of the child mind to impressions from without—and the effects of the visual impressions are perhaps the strongest.

We must then realize the necessity of making a bright and cheerful atmosphere in the children's room. More than this, wise parents endeavor to create surroundings which will draw the attention and interest of the childish mind away from itself.

Remembering that we must keep the room where children live and sleep as free as possible from anything which will tend to gather and hold dust and germs—and that every available space must be left free for play space—we find ourselves turning to the walls as the logical areas on which most profitably we may spend our effort and our money.

Before discussing the better ways of wall treatment for the room by which we wish to create the right impressions on the child mind, let us think back to our own childhood to find what we must avoid. How many of us remember walls covered with sad colored papers, or even walls of pretty color, but with designs which, as we now know, tired us and made us nervous.

Fireplace Adds to Beauty of Apartment

A ready-built fireplace which can be installed without the inconvenience of tearing up the floor and the building of a strong foundation to support its weight is now on the market and is recommended by architects and builders for apartments and homes.

The fireplace is much lighter than brick or cement and is built to look like a brick structure, although it is portable and ready for installation.

Trees

In the care of one's yard caution should be taken against irregular growth of trees and means adopted to rectifying any fault in the tree's growth at the start.

Something to Think About By F. A. WALKER

ALWAYS SHINING

IN THE hearts of the humble, the sun is always shining. If you will pause a moment to look into the faces of such mortals, you will catch a glimpse of celestial fire whose intensity cannot be measured.

With humility, these souls have patience and faith. They often pass us by unheeded, for they are not given to show or vaunting.

Their eyes are mild, their lips are set in a smile. They go upon their way as softly as do the stars of night, mindful of their course and keeping steadfastly upon it, in all sorts of weather.

Only rarely do we worldlings know such souls when we meet them, yet we are conscious of their magnetic influence. The light that shines from their faces soothes and encourages us.

It may be the face of a child, but we catch the thrill of a new emotion and go soaring off into another realm, wondering what subtle spirit has touched us and left us so sublimely thrilled.

This feeling of exaltation, when once experienced, is never forgotten. It clings to us through all the seasons and years of our life, cheering us in sorrow, strengthening us when we are weak, and easing our burdens when we feel that we cannot bear them a day longer.

It forms a pleasing background to our existence, a sort of refuge where we may go and find rest when we are unnerved, exhausted and discouraged.

Riches, honor and fame lose their luster when in the presence of the soul that is humble, patient and faithful.

Earthly prizes such as these are but the dress of a precious substance from which such a soul is made—made to endure forever, where the light is always shining and life discovers itself in its true sphere.

And certainly, whatever it may be with regard to the persons who are now skeptical about such matters, the day will come when they, too, shall see the light, and as likely as not find it shining within their own breasts, in a moment when they least suspect its divine presence.

Hidden somewhere within us such a light is always burning, ready at the touch of the right word to flare up into a beneficent blaze!

A FOUR-BASE BLOW By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I THOUGHT of all the things that come To man to make him merrilome, And gold is good, and fame is fine, And praise is sweet, and love divine;

But, for a joy to make a man A whirling dervish, nothing can Exceeding one, and that is this. The very altitude of bliss. Pure stuff, Al, yard wide, all wool— A home run with the bases full.

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl By HELEN ROWLAND

OF COURSE, every married man knows that there are no infallible rules for ruling a woman.

But every bachelor thinks he knows a few, and never hesitates to whisper them confidently into the poor innocent bridegroom's ear.

Here they are—as far as I have been able to gather them:

1. Start right. Guard your independence with your life! Never humor a wife by explaining why you are going out or when you are coming back. After she has spent a few hours trying to keep the dinner hot, and picturing you mangled by a taxicab, think what a thrill it will give her to see you come in well and cheerful, instead of on a stretcher.

2. Don't flatter her. When you are tempted to compliment her on her looks or her cooking, control yourself. Be strong. A little flattery may go to her head, and make her so dizzy that she'll wonder why she wasted herself on you.

3. Assert yourself, from the start. Now, is your appointed hour. Every woman loves a "master." Show her that she is, after all, only your Rib—and that you are IT.

4. When your wife talks, never listen. She will probably not say anything worth hearing. And besides, it is much more important that you should finish reading the sporting sheet, than that you should try to be companionable with one so mentally inferior.

5. Remember that she is an ignorant, unsophisticated little thing, and that you must keep tabs on her and remodel her. Never hesitate to criticize her clothes, to laugh at her ideas, and to disapprove of her friends. This will make her love you like an "uplifter."

6. Don't be too devoted to her in public. Let her catch you looking admiringly at OTHER women, now and then. She will soon learn to appreciate your good taste and broad-mindedness.

7. Always keep an eye on the weekly bills, and make her account to you for the money you dole out to her. Every woman needs a guardian, and loves to feel like an object of charity, and no woman knows the real value of money, even when she has had to earn it.

8. Never forget that marriage is a monarchy—not a democracy—and that there can be only one throne, one scepter, and one set of opinions in the house. Grab 'em, first!

These are a bachelor's rules for ruling a woman. Any bridegroom who will follow them, can make a complete wreck of marriage, without committing a single solitary sin.

TOOTHSSOME DISHES

A DELICIOUS dessert which will delight the children is: Figs and Lemon Jelly Custard.

Four boiling water over a pound of figs and boil rapidly until the figs are tender. Add one-fourth of a cupful of sugar and simmer to form a sirup. Set aside to chill. Soften a package of lemon gelatin or prepare the gelatin and lemon juice, if preferred, adding sugar to taste. Pour into a pan to make a sheet about three-fourths of an inch thick. When chilled, cut into cubes. Set the figs with the sirup in sherbet cups, arrange around them cubes of jelly and pour over all a cold cooked custard.

Caramel Marshmallow Parfait.

Cut twenty marshmallows into four pieces each; add one-third of a cupful of maraschino cherries cut into thin slices; cover with the sirup and let them stand for an hour. Cook two-thirds of a cupful of sugar to a caramel, adding two-thirds of a cupful of water; cook until the caramel is well-melted and add two tablespoonfuls of sugar; pour, when dissolved and still hot, over a stiffly-beaten egg; beat until cold. Fold in the marshmallows and cherries and one and one-half cupfuls of cream, beaten stiff. Turn into a melon mold, cover with paper and pack in ice and salt, using equal measures. Let stand for three hours.

Scotch Shortbread.

Beat one cupful of butter to a cream; add one-half cupful of light brown sugar, then work in four cupfuls of pastry flour. If the flour is warmed slightly it will work better. Form the mixture into cakes seven inches in diameter. Prick with a fork and crimp the edges with the thumb and finger. Sprinkle the top with chopped cherries, caraway candies or chip-served citron. Bake in a slow oven

ZEN of the Y. D.

A Novel of the Foothills

By ROBERT STEAD

Author of "The Cow Patcher," "The Home-headers," "Neighbors," etc.

"SAY YES NOW!"

SYNOPSIS.—Transley's hay-cutting outfit, after stacking 2,000 tons, is on its way to the big Y. D. ranch headquarters. Transley is a master of men and circumstances. Linder, foreman, is substantial, but not self-assertive. George Drazk one of the men is an irresponsible chap who proposes to every woman he meets. Transley and Linder dine with Y. D. and his wife and daughter Zen. Transley resolves to marry Zen. Y. D. instructs Transley to cut the South Y. D., "spite of hell and high water" and a fellow named Landson. Drazk proposes to Zen and is nearly rebuffed. Transley pitches camp on the South Y. D. and finds Landson's outfit cutting hay. Dennison Grant, Landson's manager, notifies Transley that he is working under a lease from the legal owners and warns Transley off. All of which means war. Y. D. and Zen ride to the South Y. D. Zen is a natural vamp, not yet halter-broke and ripe for mating. Y. D. has taken a liking to Transley. Zen holds Transley off and encourages Linder. Zen enjoys the prospect of a race between Transley and Linder for her favor, but secretly laughs at both. She has another and more serious encounter with Drazk. Y. D. mowing machines are ruined by iron stakes set in the grass. Zen prevents open war with Landson. Transley half-way proposes and is turned off. Drazk sets a fire that attacks the Landson stacks. The Y. D. outfit hastens to aid the enemy. Zen rides off alone to help. The wind changes and the Y. D. people now have to fight the prairie fire. Zen rides into the river to escape flames. Drazk tries to abduct her. She drowns him—or thinks she has. Grant overtakes her. In trying to ride through fire Zen is thrown and knocked senseless. Zen comes to after several hours of unconsciousness to find herself in the dark with Grant. She has a sprained ankle and both horses have run away. So she and Grant sit on a rock and tell their past lives. Grant, it appears, is a rich man's son who scorns wealth in order to live his own life. Y. D. and his men arrive after daylight. Naturally, in the circumstances, having been abandoned, Grant rides off. Transley goes to the nearest town.

Up to this time Transley had not thought seriously of matrimony. A wife and children he regarded as desirable appendages for declining years—for the quiet and shade of that evening toward which every active man looks with such irrational confidence. But for the heat of the day—for the climb up the hill—they would be unnecessary encumbrances. Transley always took a practical view of these matters. It need hardly be stated that he had never been in love; in fact, Transley would have scouted the idea of any passion which would throw the practical to the winds. That was a thing for weaklings, and, possibly, for women.

But his attachment for Zen was a very practical matter. Zen was the only heir to the Y. D. wealth. She would bring to her husband capital and credit which Transley could use to good advantage in his business. She would also bring personality—a delightful individuality—of which any man might be proud. She had that fine combination of attractions which is expressed in the word charm. She had health, constitution, beauty. She had courage and sympathy. She had qualities of leadership. She would bring to him not only the material means to build a house, but the spiritual qualities which make a home. She would make him the envy of all his acquaintances. And a jealous man loves to be envied.

So after the work on the excavations had been properly started Transley turned over the detail to the always dependable Linder, and remarking that he had not had a final settlement with Y. D., set out for the ranch in the foothills. While spending the long autumn day alone in the buggy he was able to turn over and develop plans on an even more ambitious scale than had occurred to him amid the bustle of his men and horses.

The valley was lying very warm and beautiful in yellow light, and the setting sun was just capping the mountains with gold and painting great splashes of copper and bronze on the few clouds becalmed in the heavens, when Transley's tired team jogged in among the cluster of buildings known as the Y. D. The rancher met him at the bunk-house. He greeted Transley with a firm grip of his great palm, and with jaws open in suggestion of a sort of carnivorous hospitality.

"Come up to the house, Transley," he said, turning the horses over to the attention of a ranch hand. "Supper is just ready, and the women will be glad to see you."

Zen, walking with a limp, met them at the gate. Transley's eyes reassured him that he had not been led astray by any process of idealization; Zen was all his mind had been picturing her. She was worth the effort. Indeed, a strange sensation of tenderness suffused him as he walked by her side to the door, supporting her a little with his hand. There they were ushered in by the rancher's wife, and Zen herself showed Transley to a cool room where were white towels and soft water from the river and quiet and restful furnishings. Transley congratulated himself that he could hardly hope to be better received.

After supper he had a social drink with Y. D., and then the two sat on the veranda and smoked and discussed business. Transley found Y. D. more liberal in the adjustment than he had expected. He had not yet realized to what an extent he had won the old rancher's confidence, and Y. D. was a man who, when his confidence had been won, never haggled over details. He was willing to compromise the loss on the operations on the South Y. D. on a scale that was not merely just, but generous.

This settled, Transley proceeded to interest Y. D. in the work in which he was now engaged. He drew a picture of activities in the little metropolis such as stirred the rancher's incredulity.

"Well, well," Y. D. would say. "Transley, I've known that little hole for about thirty years, and never seen it as you've good except to get drunk in. . . I've seen more things there than is down in the Looks."

"You wouldn't know the change that has come about in a few months," said Transley, with enthusiasm. "Double shifts working by electric light, Y. D.! What do you think of that? Men with rolls of money that would choke a cow sleeping out in tents because they can't get a roof over their heads. Why, man, I didn't have to hunt a job there; the job hunted me. I could have had a dozen jobs at my own price if I could have handled them. It's just as if prosperity was a river which had been trickling through that town for thirty years, and all of a sudden the dam up in the foothills gives away and down she comes with a rush. Lots which sold a year ago for a hundred dollars are selling now for five hundred—sometimes more. Old ranchers living on the bald-headed for five years ago find themselves today the owners of city property worth millions, and are dressing uncomfortably, in keeping with their wealth, or vainly trying to drink up the surplus. So far sense and brains has had nothing to do with it, Y. D., absolutely nothing. It has been fool luck. But the brains are coming in now, and the brains will get the money, in the long run."

Transley paused and lit another cigar. Y. D. rolled his lips, reflectively.

"I mind some doin's in that burg," he said, as though the memory of them was of greater importance than all that might be happening now.

Transley switched back to business. "We ought to be in on it, Y. D.," he said. "Not on the fly-by-night stuff; I don't mean that. But I could take twice the contracts if I had twice the outfit."

Y. D. brought his chair down on to all four legs and removed his cigar.

"You mean we should hit her together?" he demanded.

"It would be a great compliment to me, if you had that confidence in me, and I'm sure it would make some good money for you."

"How'd you work it?"

"You have a bunch of horses running here on the ranch, eating their heads off. Many of them are broke, and the others would soon tame down with a scraper behind them. Let me put them to work. I'd have to have equipment, too. Your name on the back of my note would get it, and you wouldn't actually have to put up a dollar. Then we'd make an inventory of what you put into the firm and what I put into it, and we'd divide the earnings in proportion."

"After payin' you a salary as manager, of course," suggested Y. D.

"That's immaterial. With a bigger outfit and more capital I can make so much more money out of the earnings that I don't care whether I get a salary or not. But I wouldn't figure on going on contracting all the time for other people. We might as well have the cream as the skimmed milk. This is the way it's done. We go to the owner of a block of lots somewhere where there's no building going on. He's anxious to start something, because as soon as building starts in that district the lots will sell for two or three times what they do now. We say to him, 'Give us every second lot in your block and we'll put a house on it.' In this way we get the lots for a trifle; perhaps for nothing. Then we build a lot of houses, more or less to the same plan. We put 'em up quick and cheap. We build 'em to sell, not to live in. Then we mortgage 'em for the last cent we can get. Then we put the price up to twice what the mortgage is and sell them as fast as we can build them, getting our equity out and leaving the purchasers to settle with the mortgage company. It's good for from 30 to 40 per cent profit, not per annum, but per transaction."

"It sounds interesting," said Y. D., "and I suppose I might as well put my spare horses an' credit to work. I don't mind drivin' down with you tomorrow an' looking her over first hand."

This was all Transley had hoped for, and the talk turned to less material matters. After a while Zen joined them, and a little later Y. D. left to attend to some business at the bunk-house.

"Your father and I may go into partnership, Zen," Transley said to her, when they were alone together. He explained in a general way the venture that was afoot.

"That will be very interesting," she agreed.

"Will you be interested?"
"Of course, I am interested in everything that Dad undertakes."
"And are you not—will you not be—just a little interested in the things that I undertake?"

She paused a moment before replying. The dusk had settled about them, and he could not see the contour of her face, but he knew that she had realized the significance of his question.

"Why yes," she said at length, "I will be interested in what you undertake. You will be Dad's partner."

Her evasion nettled him.
"Zen," he said, "why shouldn't we understand each other?"

"Don't we?" She had turned slightly toward him, and he could feel the laughing mockery in her eyes.

"I rather think we do," he answered, "only we—at least, you—won't admit it."

"Oh!"
"Seriously, Zen, do you imagine I came over here today simply to make a deal with your father?"

"Wasn't that worth while?"
"Of course it was. But it wasn't the whole purpose—it wasn't half the purpose. I wanted to see Y. D., it is true, but more, very much more, I wanted to see you."

She did not answer, and he could only guess what was the trend of her thoughts. After a silence he continued:

"You may think I am precipitate. You intimated as much to me once. I am. I know of no reason why an honest man should go beating about the bush. When I want something I want it, and I make a bee-line for it. If it is a contract—if it is a business matter—I go right after it, with all the energy that's in me. When I'm looking for a contract I don't start by talking about the weather. Well—that is my first experience in love, and perhaps my methods are all wrong, but it seems to me they should apply. At any rate a girl of your intelligence will understand."

"Applying your business principles," she interrupted, "I suppose if you wanted a wife and there was none in sight you would advertise for her?"

He defended his position. "I don't see why not," he declared. "I can't understand the general attitude of levity toward matrimonial advertisements. Apparently they are too open and above-board. Matrimony should not be committed in a round-about, indirect, hit-or-miss manner. A young man sees a girl whom he thinks he would like to marry. Does he go to her house and say, 'Miss So-and-So, I think I would like to marry you.' Will you allow me to call on you so that we may get better acquainted, with that object in view? He does not. Such honesty would be considered almost brutal. He calls on her and pretends he would like to take her to the theater, if it is in town, or for a ride, if it is in the country. She pretends she would like to go. Both of them know what the real purpose is, and both of them pretend they don't. They start the farce by pretending a deceit which deceives nobody. They wait for nature to set up an attraction which shall overrule their judgment, rather than act by judgment first and leave it to nature to take care of herself. How much better it would be to be perfectly frank—to boldly announce the purpose—to come as I now come to you and say, 'Zen, I want to marry you. My reason, my judgment, tells me that you would be an ideal mate. I shall be proud of you, and I will try to make you proud of me. I will gratify your desires in every way that my means will permit. I pledge you my fidelity in return for yours. I—I—Zen, will you say yes? Can you believe that there is in my simple words more sincerity than there could be in any mad ravings about love? You are young, Zen, younger than I, but you must have observed some things. One of them is that marriage, founded on mutual respect, which increases with the years, is a much safer and wiser business than marriage founded on a passion which quickly burns itself out and leaves the victims cold, unresponsive, with nothing in common. You may not feel that you know me well enough for a decision. I will give you every opportunity to know me better—I will do nothing to deceive you—I will put on no veneer—I will let you know me as I really am. Will you say yes?"

He had left his seat and approached her; he was leaning close over her chair. While his words had suggested marriage on a purely intellectual basis he did not hesitate to bring his physical presence into the scale. He was accustomed to having his way—he had always had it—never did he want it more than he did now. . . . And although he had made his plea from the intellectual angle he was sure, he was very, very sure there was more than that. This girl, whose very presence delighted him—intoxicated him—would have made him mad—

"Will you say yes?" he repeated, and his hands found hers and drew her with his great strength up from her chair. She did not resist, but when she was on her feet she avoided his embrace.

"You must not hurry me," she whispered. "I must have time to think. I did not realize what you were saying until—"

"Say yes now," he urged. Transley was a man very hard to resist. She felt as though she were in the grip of a powerful machine; it was as though she were being swept along by a stream against which her feeble strength was as nothing. Zen was as nearly frightened as she ever had been in her vigorous young life. And yet there was something delightful. It would have been so easy to surrender—it was so hard to resist.

"Say yes now," he repeated, drawing her close at last and breathing the question into her ear. "You shall have time to think—you shall ask your own heart, and if it does not confirm your words you will be released from your promise."

They heard the footsteps of her father approaching, and Transley waited no longer for an answer. He turned her face to his; he pressed his lips against hers.

CHAPTER VIII

Zen thought over the events of that evening until they became a blur in her memory. Her principal recollection was that she had been quite swept off her feet. Transley had interpreted her submission as assent, and she had not corrected him in the vital moment when they stood before her father that night in the deep shadow of the veranda.

"Y. D.," Transley had said, "your consent and your blessing! Zen and I are to be married as soon as she can be ready."

That was the moment at which she should have spoken, but she did not. She, who had prided herself that she would make a race of it—she, who had always been able to slip out of a predicament in the nick of time—stood mute by and let Transley and her father interpret her silence as consent. She was not sure that she was sorry; she was not sure but she would have consented anyway; but Transley had taken the matter quite out of her hands. And yet she could not bring herself to feel resentment toward him; that was the strangest part of it. It seemed that she had come under his domination; that she even had to think as he would have her think.

In the darkness she could not see her father's face, for which she was sorry; and he could not see hers, for which she was glad. There was a long moment of tense silence before she heard him say:

"Well, well! I had a hunch it might come to that, but I didn't reckon you youngsters would work so fast."
"This was a stake worth working fast for," Transley was saying, as he shook Y. D.'s hand. "I wouldn't trade places with any man alive." And Zen was sure he meant exactly what he said.

"She's a good girl, Transley," her father commented; "a good girl, even if a bit obstreperous at times. She's got spirit, Transley, an' you'll have to handle her with sense. She's a—a thoroughbred!"

Y. D. had reached his arms toward his daughter, and at these words he closed them about her. Zen had never known her father to be emotional; she had known him to face matters of life and death without the quiver of an eyelid, but as he held her there in his arms that night she felt his big frame tremble. Suddenly she had a powerful desire to cry. She broke from his embrace and ran upstairs to her room.

Zen, though she has let silence give consent, is busy thinking of Grant. Will she make up her mind to speak out?

Birds Sing Again in Ancient Pompeii Garden

In the last days of Pompeii a picturesque garden with marble mountains and frescoed niches was one of the adornments of the city.

One entered through a carriage pavilion, the high entrance surmounted by a bell. Across the threshold a court in white and gold between two rows of pillars led to the spacious, sloping terraces, watered by a drowsy brook. The twitter of a thousand birds completed the pastoral landscape.

Excavators have resurrected this garden. The lawns are green again, as they were when Vesuvius erupted, A. D. 79. A silvery bell again peeps to visitors; the murmuring brook wanders in through new conduits, and songsters, descendants of the birds who were singing about Pompeii more than 1,800 years ago, carol as their forbears did in the days made famous by Bulwer-Lytton.

"Hey," yelled the motorist to the pedestrian whom he had just knocked down and run over. "Take a look at my brakes and see if they're dragging, will you?"

Somewhat overdrawn possibly, but any pedestrian will tell you that he wouldn't put it above an automobile driver to do such a thing. And the motorist, himself, would say: "Why don't those birds watch their step? Do they think that we are mind readers?" Right here is the whole situation—lack of courtesy.

Does the pedestrian thank the motorist who throws on his brakes and allows him to cross safely from curb and catch a trolley that is to get him to the train on time. Yes, we have no bananas! Does the automobile driver wave acknowledgment to the pedestrian who goes out of his way to make things easier when the car driver is trying to steer through a congested street? No, he does not! Consequently both driver and pedestrian are to blame and a little courtesy would aid them to shield the public from preventable traffic accidents.

Jay-Walker Inexcusable.
But there is no excuse for the jay-walker. A large percentage of accidents in the congested shopping districts are directly traceable to the disregard of the public at cross street corners.

My advice to pedestrians is to look up and down and behind, before crossing any street. Avoid dodging in front of machines, realize that the longest line of traffic seldom takes more than thirty seconds to pass, and that it is better to lose thirty seconds than a leg. Even the habitually-careless automobile driver will have trouble in harming you if you take the slight amount of care necessary to protect yourself.

Try Golden Rule.
Just plumb your faith of humanity with the old Golden Rule and see how it works out. Take a chance and give the other fellow the right of way, even when it doesn't belong to him, or give him the "go-ahead" signal. Its a 100-to-1 shot that he'll grin and wave for you to go first. But the moral effect will cause him to watch out for the next driver and offer some little courtesy that will make this other chap feel good. Once such a system is started there won't be any end to it and the roads will be a wonderful place to ride on until along comes some bird who has no place to go and wants to get there in a hurry, and then it is all off. All off, unless you realize that sooner or later this bird will run up against a snag which will necessitate some extra yards of gauze and a couple of doctors. In other words, do your best to make driving safer and the law of averages will take care of the rest.

Burned Fuse in Country Is Quite Inconvenient

A burned-out fuse on one's car in the country is very inconvenient if there are no spares with which to replace it, but if the motorist will carry a little tinfoil in his box of odds and ends he can make a serviceable temporary repair in a minute. As a matter of fact, any one who smokes cigarettes or chews gum or eats candy on the road usually has some tinfoil on his person, and so it is not necessary to make a special point of including it with the tools.

To rehabilitate the burned fuse it is wrapped with one or two layers of the foil and reinserted in the fuse box. Care should be taken not to wrap the fuse too heavily, as if this is done damage is liable to result to the wiring if it is suddenly stressed with an overload.

Motors Move Millions

Fourteen armored motorcars, each guarded by six armed men and equipped with a machine gun capable of hurling 20 bullets a second, were used recently in New York city in transporting $200,000,000 in securities and cash from the vaults of one bank to another.

Speed Up as You Stop

Twice as much traffic could be handled by the average city if speed could be doubled—with safety. This would obviate the necessity of straining the imagination for fanciful solutions to the present traffic problem. There is no doubt traffic could move faster than it does, but such extra speed is not going to be sanctioned until there is assurance that cars can stop twice as promptly as they do at present. The paradox offered to motorists is that they will be permitted to travel faster just as soon as they can stop quicker.

Magnetic Coil Controls Air Supply for Motors

Automatic control of the air that should be mixed with fuel to produce maximum efficiency for the automobile motor is achieved by an ingenious magnetic coil device attached to the generator of the car, and containing an air intake that leads through a pipe to the intake manifold.

The air intake is regulated by a valve attached to the magnet armature.

Magnetic Coil, Connected With Generator and Manifold, Controls Air Supply.

ture that works against an adjustable spring.

When the engine speeds up, the generator increases the power of the magnet, opens the valve, and admits more air into the intake. Similarly the valve closes as the motor slows down. This apparatus, it is claimed will increase gasoline mileage from 10 to 30 per cent.—Popular Science Monthly.

Examination of Brakes Frequently Important

Next to the tires on a car its brakes are subjected to the greatest wear and tear. It is well to remember this and to watch them carefully.

Brakes require readjustment from time to time. Both the service brake bands and the emergency brake shoes, in operating against the brake drums, must form true circles or they will not take hold evenly all the way round and will drag when released.

The one fault reduces the effectiveness of the brake, the other the speed and economy of the car's performance.

It is well to have the brakes examined regularly by competent mechanics to make sure their adjustment is exact.

They may need new brake linings. The brake bands and shoes are covered with a wire-woven asbestos fabric which comes in direct contact with the brake drums and has to withstand the violent friction which stops the car. These linings, naturally, wear out in time and unless they are replaced make sudden stops or slow-downs impossible.

In many states it is a penal offense to drive a car with worn brake linings. They endanger not only the driver, the passengers and car, but the public as well.

Their replacement is an immediate duty. It is a simple operation, performed quickly, at slight expense by a reliable service station.

Dust Is Easily Removed by Using Homemade Tool

After a drive along hot, dusty roads, the depressions of the auto cushions, as well as the folds of the back and sides, will be found packed with dust. A tool which can be made in a minute is made by cutting off most of the handle of an old shaving brush and, in the center of the cut just made, driving an ordinary behead-ed nail. This should be centered as near as possible. Place the end of the nail in the jaws of a hand drill, and with this dust out the depressions as fast as you come to them. Due to the high speed of the drill the dust is easily removed.—Automobile Digest.

HOW THIS WOMAN GOT STRENGTH

Put Up 300 Quarts Fruit, 500 Glasses Jelly and Took Care of Four Children

Norwalk, Iowa.—"I have been meaning for some time to write and tell you how much good your medicine has done me. When I started to take it I was almost bed fast and would have been in bed all the time if I had had any one to care for my children. There was so much swelling and pain that I could hardly take a step. I took seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, and found that so healing. I am not entirely well yet for I was in bad shape when I started your medicine, but I am so much better that I am not afraid to recommend it, and I think if I keep on taking it, it will cure me. I have done my work all alone this summer, caring for four children, and I canned 300 quarts of fruit and made 500 glasses of jelly, so you see I must be better. I feel pretty good all the time and I am glad to tell others about the medicine."—Mrs. C. J. WENNER-MARK, Box 141, Norwalk, Iowa.

Women can depend upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve them from female troubles. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Summer Find You Miserable?
It's hard to do one's work when every day brings morning lameness, throbbing backache, and a dull, tired feeling. If you suffer thus, why not find the cause? Likely it's your kidneys. Headaches, dizziness and kidney irregularities may give further proof that your kidneys need help. Don't risk neglect! Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Thousands have been helped by Doan's. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

A Texas Case
Chas. F. Horton, barber, 409 N. Myrtle Ave., Denton, Texas, says: "I had an ache in my back and I could hardly stoop. My back was so lame and stiff I had to go around on crutches most of the time. My kidneys were disordered, too. Several boxes of Doan's Pills, however, cured me."

Felix Was Good to Him, But—

SUFFERED TWELVE YEARS WITH STOMACH TROUBLE

"My recovery has been a surprise to myself and all my friends," recently declared Jacob Ferdinand, R. F. D. 2, Fond Du Lac, Wis., a prominent citizen of this city, in relating his remarkable experience with Tanlac.

"The suffering I went through from stomach trouble for 12 or 13 years simply can't be described. In my efforts to find relief I spent over one thousand dollars, but kept getting worse instead of better. A large part of two years I was laid up in bed and for four months of that time I couldn't get up at all.

"Finally I sent my daughter for a bottle of Tanlac with the result that I found immediate relief, and seven bottles made a well and happy man of me. I will gladly talk to anyone personally and answer all letters regarding my experience with Tanlac. It was a godsend to me."

Amazing Mental Feats
An Indian student who visited London recently is a human calculating machine. He performs the most intricate sums without resorting to pencil and paper, and can name immediately the day of the week for any date in the past or future.

At a test, two numbers, each of forty figures, were chalked on a blackboard. The Indian was told to multiply one by the other. After less than half an hour's mental arithmetic he gave the correct answer.

Pine Tree Money
The silver money coined in Massachusetts in the second half of the Seventeenth century was called "pine tree" money from the device which it bore, a pine tree. It was also known as "Boston" or "Bay" money.

Takes Time to Read Bible
Thirty students at Seattle, Wash., read the whole Bible without stopping, and found that it required 59 hours and 20 minutes for a cover-to-cover careful out-loud enunciation of it with no stop-over to eat or sleep. The experimenters worked in relays, two at a time, one reading a chapter, the other the next without a pause. Each kept at it two hours, then was relieved.

Important to All Women Readers of This Paper

Swamp-Root a Fine Medicine

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition.

Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by parcel post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

The McLean "Fair boosters" visited our city Wednesday, as announced. They proved themselves a live wire bunch, and did some effective advertising for their Fair, Sept. 19 and 20. The Informer was favored with a visit by our friend, T. A. Landers, the ever genial and wide awake News man of that city. Come again, neighbors.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Smith returned last Friday from Dallas and Ellis counties, where they visited relatives—Mrs. Smith for several weeks, Mr. Smith only a few days. They were accompanied home by Mrs. Smith's mother, Mrs. S. C. Justice, of Forrester.

FOR SALE—One "Almetal" Washing Machine, practical new—only used five or six times, well worth the money. L. A. Stroud, Hedley, Texas.

We are glad to hear that Fred Bidwell continues to improve. His many friends are anxious to see him out again.

Miss Gertrude Noel left this week for Stephenville, where she will attend John Tarleton College this year.

Miss Cloetel Moreman will again teach in the Goodlett school this year, and left for that place last Sunday.

Mrs. G. H. Lucas of McKinney was a visitor in the home of her nephew, Dr. J. C. Coffey, Monday and Tuesday. She was en route home from Claude, where she had visited her daughter.

W. B. Franklin and family, former Hedleyans, visited here and attended the meeting at the Church of Christ the past week. They now live in the north end of Donley county, near Alanreed.

Attorney John H. Wood and family, of Seymour, were here this week on a combined business and pleasure trip.

J. W. Adamson and family, of Plainview, were recent Hedley visitors. Mr. Adamson is one of our former citizens, and his many friends were delighted to see him again.

Grady Judd and family left Wednesday for Clarendon, where they will reside. We regret to see them leave Hedley.

Miss Melba Johnson has resumed her studies in Clarendon College.

Miss Bernice Bell, a graduate of Hedley High School the past year, is now attending Clarendon College.

J. W. Bond has returned from a tour of the South Plains in the interest of his nursery stock, his visit including Rails, Lamesa, Lubbock, Floydada and other places. He reports good row crops, and cotton not so good. Mr. Bond says they have some fine country down there, but Donley county "still looks good" to him.

Miss Ruth Coffey left Friday of last week for Amarillo, where she will again teach in that city's public schools.

Miss Mary Noel left the past week for Fort Worth, where she will resume her studies in Texas Woman's College.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Roach, of Granite, Okla., and Mrs. B. A. Boatwright, of Mangum, visited the M. C. Raney family this week. The ladies are sisters of Mr. Raney. We understand they are planning a family reunion one day soon.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Hooker spent the past week end in Wellington. They were accompanied home by their sister, Miss Gwen Dolyn Hooper, who will remain a week.
