Painted Hats for Paris

Some fashionable Parisiennes have decided to wear painted hats this winter and to dispense with all such trimmings as buckles and feathers. This mode is not expected to be popular with the milliners, for, with a few deft strokes, it is said, an artist can transform a shabby velvet or felt hat into something chic and seemingly brand new. Some women probably will want to possess hat masterpieces, decorated and signed by fashionable painters at usual fashionable prices.

BASKET BALL CHAMPS

Hedley has one of the fastest basket ball teams in this section of the state. In the recent game in the county they have not lost a game. They defeated Clarendon 31 to 11; also Lelia Lake in two games, 28 to 9 and 43 to 15. As Lelia Lake had defeated Clarendon, this gives Hedley the county championship.

This is two years in succession that Hedley has won the county championship. Last year won the tri county championship of Wheeler, Gray and Donley counties and represented them in the district meet at Canyon. The boys have a faster team this year and expect to give a good account of themselves.

This year, before winning the county crown, Hedley defeated Clarendon College, Memphis and Wellington. They also beat Estelline, a team that went to the state tournament last year.

Rectangular Plan... Maximum Space and Construction

First Floor Plan.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give ADVICE FREE OF COST on all problems pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on the subject. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Did you ever think of it that the typical colonial house is rectangular in shape, closely approaching the square? Our colonial fathers possessed a keen sense of architectural values and were also highly practical in matters of home building. There are undoubtedly many decided advantages to the rectangular shape for houses. In the first place such a house, if its lines are good, is not only substantial looking but never goes out of style and one does not weary of it as is likely to be the case with novel shapes.

The practical advantages are even more distinct. This shape is most easily and inexpensively heated, gives the greatest utilization of space, is most simple to plan conveniently and its construction cost is low. All these things should be considered by the home builder who wishes to have a permanent home and get the most for his investment. One home of this type is illustrated here. It is a fine example of a well-planned floor space and the exterior presents a most attractive appearance as well.

Outwardly this house is simple and without adornment, but its good lines make it architecturally effective. The brick chimney, most evidently serving a fireplace within, and the screened porch at the side carry the impression of home comfort and the many wide windows assure one that the rooms will be well lighted.

The simple entrance admits one to a central reception hall from which a stairway leads to the second floor and which passes on back with a door into the kitchen. At the left an arched door opens into the dining room, back of which is the kitchen. The latter is conveniently arranged according to the best modern ideas and is provided with an ample pantry which is lighted by an outside window. The ice box is so placed that it can be supplied from a hall without entering the kitchen. This hall gives access to the basement stairs, a breakfast room and the washroom. Off the latter there is a handy toilet and the rear entrance also opens into this room. The breakfast room also connects with the living room but can be shut off by a door. The main entrance to the living room is an arched doorway from the reception hall.

The living room is large and comfortable with a broad fireplace and built-in bookcase at one side of it. At the other side of the fireplace is the door which opens onto the screened porch.

Above stairs the arrangement is equally good. The stairs rise to a central hall about which are grouped three bedrooms and a sewing room. In the four corners of the building. The sewing room is large enough to be used for a bedroom if the requirements of the family are such as to make this arrangement more desirable. It is supplied with a built-in case, the space for which could be used for a closet if the room was devoted to sleeping purposes.

The three bedrooms are equipped with large closets and it is in the provision of ample closet space that one of the advantages of the rectangular plan is most apparent. There is also a linen closet in the hall and at the front of the hall is a bathroom, convenient to all of the bedrooms.

Window Glass Made Same Way as 2,500 Years Ago

Few persons are aware that the reason for distorted images which one oftentimes gets when looking through a window is due to the way the glass is made. No such distortion and bending is to be noticed when looking through a plate glass in a store.

Glass is still being made as it was 2,500 years ago when Phoenician sailors, cooking their dinner on the sands, discovered the transparent substance. Of course, the quantity made has been increased several million-fold, but the method is still the same.

Common window glass is made by pouring the molten glass into forms and then blown into cylinders forty or more feet long. These are then cut into short lengths, reheated, and flattened. This allows for imperfections which are noticed because of irregular vision produced.

Windshields and glass for automobiles and store windows, however, requiring more accurate vision, the molten glass is poured on huge tables where large rollers flatten it, after which the sheets are polished and refined until the finished product which we know is brought out.

In America alone the glass industry now employs 80,000 men and its product is valued at $400,000,000 annually.

Electricity Is Better Than House Servants

"Electricity in the home gives the modern woman more freedom than half a dozen servants," says Frances Richmond, who has directed public welfare work in New York, Boston and a number of other cities.

"Electricity," she states, "has revolutionized housekeeping and done away with drudgery in the modern home of a family of ordinary circumstances."

"Electric appliances have done more to elevate living standards and bring better home conditions than any other single agency. The woman of today has shown her gratitude by her increasing use of electricity and the labor-saving appliances which it has made possible."

Color in Mortar

Unless you have seen it you may not realize what beautiful effects can be obtained through the judicious use of color in mortar. Proper coloring often makes all the difference between an ordinary house and a distinctive one.

Shingle Siding

Shingles laid in imitation of wide siding and painted white are now used in place of boards for many houses in all parts of the country and are effective as well as economical.

ARM STOCK

PROPER FEEDS FOR FATTENING CATTLE

Cottonseed meal may be used profitably in the fattening of beef cattle for market, and only fat cattle will pay returns to the feeder.

"In feeding beef cattle, we must take advantage of certain facts, then give attention to the details," says Prof. R. S. Curtis of the animal husbandry department at the North Carolina State college. "One of these facts is that the staple fattening food for beef cattle is a nitrogenous one which normally produces growth rather than fat. But this cottonseed meal is a good fat producer if fed properly, and from 75 to 85 per cent of its fertilizing value is incorporated in the manure. The other fact is that to sell beef cattle profitably, they must be fat."

Professor Curtis states that people do not like fat beef and sometimes compel the butcher to trim off part of the fat; yet, the fact remains that to properly condition a beef animal, he must be fat, and naturally there is some surplus deposited in certain places, as over the back, the loins, ribs and intestines. This is nature's way.

A steer may be put in condition by using cottonseed meal as the concentrate. The steer must never be allowed to get off feed but should be started off on one pound of cottonseed meal per day, supplemented by all the roughage he will consume. Professor Curtis points out that cattle have four stomachs, and if they are to get everything out of their feed, there must be a sufficient amount of roughage to fill the paunch reasonably full each day.

Professor Curtis suggests that one pound of cottonseed meal be used with five pounds of hulls or more to start with. Gradually increase this amount of cottonseed meal during a 30-day period until each animal is getting one pound of the meal to each 100 pounds of live weight. This can easily be figured out and the increase made gradually about two or three times each week until the full amount is being fed. Steers should be fed twice each day and the troughs kept clean and sweet.

Science of Animal Feed Promises Some Changes

In addition to the question of vitamins, there is still another recent discovery in the science of animal feeding which promises to bring about just as radical changes in our feed practices. It has been known for many years that the feeding of cereal grains and other substances low in mineral matter or ash was not only uneconomical but in many cases was dangerous. Very little thought was given to this question, but of late years the conclusion has been reached by the leading nutrition experts that this was due to the low mineral matter as ash content of such feeds. Practically all grains and carbohydrate feeds are low in mineral matter or ash, while the protein feeds are unusually rich in them. This accounts for the fact that protein feeds have met with such universal success in the usual feeding rations.

Corn Meal Found to Be Satisfactory for Calf

Corn meal has been found to be a satisfactory grain to use in raising skim-milk calves. As the calves approach weaning time this should be changed to a mixture of corn, oats and bran. Some oil meal can be added, if more protein is needed. The change of grains is to supply the protein which was supplied by the skim milk. Calves will begin to eat hay about as soon as they begin to eat grain. Care must be taken in feeding clover or alfalfa that it does not produce scours. If any indication of scours appears, the amount should be limited. Some prefer to feed calves on timothy or some other hay of that character.

Live Stock Items

Sheep require some kind of a succulent food more than other stock.

The older the hog gets the more it costs to put a pound of meat on it.

Proper attention to sanitation with farm animals will prevent many losses.

English hogs tend more to the bacon type than do those raised in America.

The growing pig should be fed at least 2 per cent its own weight in grain, daily.

One of the easiest ways to stiffen a horse is to compel him to stand on a plank floor when not at work.

Get a start with pure breeds now. They may cost a little more, but they're worth it, and then some.

Lambs should be docked when they are seven to fourteen days of age. Some use docking pliers which are heated to blue heat and the tail is seared off. The argument in favor of this method of docking is that there is no loss of blood.

BEETS OF GAY SPRING WASH GO

TO MOTHERS who feel the urge of spring sewing comes the message of plaids, both lightweight woolen and gingham, for little girls' dresses—and a third fabric is added, namely plaided taffeta. Here is a further word of advice: be sure to look into the matter of gay colored leather belts, for little daughter will be sure to insist on having her pretty plaid frock belted just to keep up with the vogue.

It matters not if the dress be made in straightline one-piece effect, as the picture shows, or in jumper and skirt, be sure not to omit the leather belt, else little daughter may ask the rea-

Seems as if the displays of spring wash goods were never so alluring. Such lovely cotton reps, broadcloths and imported satens! Washable crepes there are by the score, also cotton and rayon mixtures, the newest among which is tub-rayon alpaca. To the aspiring home dress-maker they surely must whisper in unmistakable accents, "Do it now." And why not? Later the great outdoors will be calling to golf, tennis and springtime strolls.

The frock in the picture is a true exponent of a sweet simplicity frock, such as can so successfully be made son why, for most of her school companions are sure to smilingly display a cunning belt of some sort this season.

Fine woolen plaid was the chosen medium for the fashionable frock here pictured. This same model could be effectively reproduced in French gingham. That is such a pretty idea of using a solid color for the revers, the vestee, cuffs and pocket flappings.

This model could be exquisitely copied in plaid taffeta and at this time of the year remnants are picked up at enticing reductions.

The little highland lassie in the picture is thrice blest, in that her frock is plaid, boasts a sure-enough leather belt with a big square buckle, and crowning joy of all, the socks are striped in accord with fashion's latest edict.

ham at home. In choosing materials for home dressmaking let thoughts of pastel colorings guide you. Pastel blendings will especially find expression. In such ways, for instance, as bordering or piping a lively tone with another complementary shade. For the pretty dress here illustrated old rose cotton broadcloth is suggested, using buttons of lavender tinted pearl, matching it with wee velvet ribbon.

Pretty pastel harmonies are accomplished by using wide borderings of a different shade. There is also every indication that we are also to enjoy a season of bordered patterns. Initial showings of spring cottons stress fascinating 54-inch bordered volles. There is economy in the use of these wide materials, and patterns are available which call for the manipulation of the fabric without underarm seams.

ham jumper frocks will be quite the thing. These are so easily made at home, and the gingham now on display are so very attractive. Why not make two blouses to the one plaided skirt? Sleeves and collars so easily and economy suggests several waists as a simple solving of the problem.

Stripes are also greatly featured this season. One can buy nowadays such clever striped saten or cotton broadcloth. The striped blouse with skirt in solid color bespeaks a favored mode rayon mixed crepes with borders blocked in tapestry effect carried out in light and deeper pastel tones. Hand-blocked linen showing colorful Chinese patterning is among the season's novelties.

It is said that considerable lace will be used on simple daytime wash dresses. The ochre tinted lace is most popular. Girlish collars and deep cuffs, together with jabots of ochre lace, are rendered even a greater attractiveness by the addition of tiny ribbon bows and ties. JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

Bird of the Arctic

The snow goose is an Arctic goose in the United States during its migration, sometimes in vast numbers.
It is pure white except in the black wing quills, washed on the head with reddish; the beak, which is strongly hooked, is pink and the feet reddish.
An adult male measures 27 inches long and weighs 5 1/2 pounds. Ross' snow goose is a miniature of the other and is known all over Hudson Bay country as the "horned waway."

When You Catch Cold Rub on Musterole

Musterole is easy to apply with the fingers and works right away. Often it prevents a cold from turning into "flu" or pneumonia. It does all the good work of grandmother's mustard plaster without the blister.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment,
made of oil of mustard and other home simples. It is recommended by many doctors and nurses. Try Musterole for sore throat, cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back and joints,
sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frost-bitten feet—colds of all sorts.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children.

DANGER AHEAD FOR CATARRH SUFFERERS

Catarrh, Even in Mild Form, Often Leads to Distressing Complications.

Here is a Simple, Safe, Inexpensive and Pleasant Method
That Will Rid the Head, Nose and Throat of Catarrh.

There is no disease more offensive or disagreeable, or no disease that will lead to as much serious trouble as catarrh, often producing chronic headaches and deafness, affecting the eyes and voice, and frequently weakening the lungs. You can now get rid of catarrh by a simple, safe, pleasant home remedy, discovered by Dr. Blosser, a catarrh specialist.

Dr. Blosser's
Remedy is composed of medical herbs, berries
and flowers,
which you smoke
in a dainty pipe
or cigarette. The smoke vapour is
inhaled into the air passages of
the nose, head,
throat and lungs,
and carries medicines, douches and
ointments impossibly reach. Its effect is soothing and healing, and as it contains no tobacco or cubebs is perfectly harmless, and may be used by women and children as well as men.

If you suffer from catarrh, asthma, catarrhal deafness, or if subject to frequent colds, you should try Dr. Blosser's Remedy which may be had at any drug store; or if you desire proof of its beneficial and pleasant effect, send ten cents (coin or stamps)
to The Blosser Co., 73 G H, Atlanta, Ga., for a trial package.

BEST MANAGEMENT OF AN INCUBATOR

The incubator should be placed in a room to itself when possible. A good cellar or basement is the best place.
The machine should be set perfectly level, then run for at least two days and nights before the eggs are placed in
it. It is a good plan to place a paper over the egg tray when testing out the machine. When the incubator is empty, the thermometer will read a little lower than it would if the machine were full, for when the eggs become warmed they raise the temperature slightly. By using the paper over the tray a fairer test will be secured.

The temperature in the egg chamber should be brought up to 103 degrees and the regulator adjusted so that it will automatically control the temperature and maintain it. A sort of balance is thus obtained between the adjustment of the regulator and the lamp. The damper should stand an eighth of an inch above the flue, allowing the temperature in the room to vary somewhat without extra adjustment of the lamp.

Do not attempt to refill the lamp while it is attached or lighted. Fill the lamp at about the same hours each morning. Leave about a quarter of an inch in the lamp bowl not filled with oil. Trim the wick with a pair of shears, cutting off the corners to prevent the flame spreading to sides of chimney and sooting it. See that the burner is firmly clasped, and the chimney set straight on the burner and into heater flue.

When the machine has been working properly for 24 hours, fill the tray with eggs, but never place eggs on top of each other. Use eggs of uniform size, good shell, and not more than ten days old—the fresher the better.

Morning is a good time to fill the tray and start the hatch so the machine may be watched. It must be remembered that it requires several hours for the eggs to become warmed and for the machine to regain the proper temperature.

Visit the machine three times daily and often if convenient. Before retiring at night see that the lamp is burning and the temperature is right.
The eggs should be turned twice daily after the first 24 hours. These turnings should be as nearly the same time apart as possible and should continue until the nineteenth day.

The testing should be done in a darkened room or after night, as a better view of the condition of the eggs can be obtained. Do not test the eggs in a cold room. The eggs should be tested on the eighth day, or if you are not experienced in testing it is better to wait until the tenth day.
By this time the development of the chick should be far enough advanced that the fertile eggs can be distinguished readily from the infertile ones.
An infertile egg will be perfectly clear and should be removed from the machine. The fertile will show a spider-like formation, a center with crooked threads, and this will float as the egg is turned.

Test again on the fourteenth day.
Sometimes the egg will show fertile but the germ may die and can be discovered on the second test. If the black spot shows red lines coming together in a circle (blood ring), the germ is dead. All eggs showing this will not hatch so should be removed.

All the chicks should hatch within 24 hours. If the machine has been running properly, the hatch should be complete on the morning of the twenty-second day. Only weaklings hatch after that. The hatch may be delayed by accident or by low temperature.
In such cases, the hatch may be 24 to 36 hours late. While delayed hatches are not total loss, they seldom produce strong chicks.

The egg chamber should be disinfected thoroughly between hatches and a new wick for the lamp should be provided for each hatch.—T. W. Noland, Director of the Missouri State Poultry Experiment Station, Mountain Grove.

POULTRY FACTS

Do not crowd young stock, as it may lead to colds and roup at this time of the year.

The critical period in the young turkey is usually at an end when six weeks old.

July-hatched turkeys can be grown to marketable size for the Christmas and New Year trade.

A young turkey does not readily fatten until nearly matured, the food being converted into bone and muscle.

There is nothing that predisposes birds to disease, especially respiratory troubles, like overcrowding in poorly ventilated coops.

Don't take your sick chickens to market. They soon die in the fattening crates after exposing hundreds of others to the disease.

Whether or not electric lights are used to increase egg production, sunlight still ranks first as the cheapest disinfectant that can be used in the poultry house.

THE GIBBON MOTHER

"Ah," said Gerald Gibbon, "you were a real Gibbon mother, and I'll never forget the time I had been off for a hunt and came back to find you had saved young George Gibbon." Gibbons belong to the family of monkeys.

They are thin and rather long, with especially long arms.
They usually spend the time high up in their cages in the zoo, because when they are free they live in the forests of Asia.

There they spend all their time in the trees, never going to the ground.
If danger is near they jump from tree to tree, actually leaving a tree to land upon another one, catching hold by their feet.

They are very quick and very quiet in their movements.
"Yes," continued Gerald Gibbon, "I came home to our forest tree.
"And I found you had risked great great dangers and had almost been killed in saving George's life.

"You had finally succeeded in getting away yourself, but you had only thought of George, and not of yourself, or of your own life at all."

"You have always admired me for saving George's life and risking my own."

"But it was nothing for me to do, really."

"Ah yes, it was," said Gerald Gibbon.
"Gibbons are known to be very much afraid of things. Of course here in the zoo we are far more nervous than when we are free.

"We are very shy and don't make friends quickly or easily.

"But it was a brave act for you to save George's life and at such a risk to your own.

"You forgot about yourself entirely."

"Any Gibbon mother would have done the same," said Mother Gibbon.
"We may be timid and shy and nervous but when our children are in danger we forget everything and have no fear.

"We think only of them.
"No creature who cares for another can help but forget herself or himself if that other is in danger."

"It is true," said Gerald Gibbon.
"That every Mother Gibbon is the same.

"But still it was a fine thing for you to do. A very fine thing.

"You lived up to the ideals of a Mother Gibbon, of a true Mother Gibbon."

"Oh thank you, thank you, thank you, dear mother, for saving my life," said George from his cage.

"It was a beautiful, wonderful, mother-loving act for you to perform."

"Ah, my Gibbon son," said Mother Gibbon, "I would forget about the whole world again and all my fears and nervousness and shyness if ever you were in danger.

"The secret of it is because I love you.
"And my love, Gibbon son, is greater and stronger and more powerful than my fear.

"That is the secret."

Reason for Affection
Horace is an affectionate baby.
One day he ran to mother, asking:
"Mom, ain't I your sweet little baby?"
"Why, certainly," mother assured him, taking him into her arms.
"Oh, mom," he smiled, caressing her,
"your sweet little baby broke a dish."

Padlocking Against Liquor Sales.

When the government's plan of pad-
locking places that persist in violating the liquor laws becomes more general
there will be better
observance of the laws. The prohibition enforcement officers, after notifying owners of hotels and other places, where liquor is sold, that their houses are being used for unlawful purposes, have been pad-locking some places that pay no attention to the notices. Bell boys in hotels will bootleg liquor to guests so long as the proprietors wink at it and perhaps share profits. Intoxicants will be sold at cold drink stands, or at some of them, as long as the owners of the buildings and proprietors of the stands permit it. The law will be respected when law-breaking hotels are closed, when drug stores operated principally as liquor houses are locked, and when liquor prescribing physicians have their licenses revoked after it is shown that they are law-breakers.

Keeping the Farmers Puzzled.

If the farmer could know with some degree of certainty that when he grows anything he can find a market for it at a fairly remunerative price, farming would be a more attractive business. He has to gamble with the markets to sell it. He is urged to make his acres produce more and in the same breath is told that if he produces more he will ruin the market. He must use all his land or his working capital will be idle, but if he works it industriously and scientifically and "busts his barns," he is likely not to realize enough to repair the barns, while the crop gamblers will enrich themselves at his expense.
Before the farmer is encouraged to produce more crops he should in some way be assured that he can market them at a price above production costs. Give the farmer a market and he will find some way to make the crops.

Marketing a National Problem.

The farm marketing problem may be helped, but it can not be solved, by community action alone. Except where the acreage is very restricted, as with the Laredo onion crop, communities or districts can not fix prices. Texas, with all its cotton crop, can not stabilize the price of cotton, with all the other cotton growing states in competition. No state is strong enough to establish a price for wheat, corn, potatoes or other staple crops. Only the national government can do it. Railroads lost money until they were placed under government control and protection.
This was justified on the ground that they were public utilities and that government prosperity depended on their success. Farming is the very backbone of government prosperity, but is allowed to fight its own way against all the organized finance of the world. Repulsive as the thought may be to those of us reared to oppose any kind of price-fixing, and inoculated from before birth with opposition to every thing that looks like centralization of power, we are being forced to admit that if farming is to continue profitable, some centralized effort must be made to improve marketing of farm products.

To Build a Woolen Mill.

Kerrville has a committee looking into the advisability of building a $1-000,000 woolen mill. Why not? Ker-ville is right in the heart of the leading wool and mohair producing country of the United States, and Eastern manufacturers are growing rich making that wool into clothing.
Kerrville has all the facilities for making the clothing at a much less cost than it can be made in the East, except the mill. It has enough idle money to build the mill and operate it. With splendid climate, excellent water, cheap labor, and money, all going to waste, Kerrville should build that mill. The same thing applies with equal force to the cotton mill project being considered for Center Point, in the same county.

The World Progressing.

San Antonio is having a great radio exposition at which scores of kinds of radios are being shown. Radio broadcasting and reception are being improved every week and it will not be long until it will be as easy to hear Hong Kong as to talk to your neighbor on the telephone. Ten years ago what is now being done would have been thought impossible. When we can hear around the world at a cost within reach of all, and will come to know the world; and knowing, hatred and war will end. War comes from ignorance. Misunderstanding is largely lack of understanding. The radio is likely to become the great educator of nations.

From 25 to 36.

Nine years is not too long a time in which to make ready for a great Centennial Exposition, such as is now proposed for Texas. It would only be too much time if the time is wasted instead of being used. There is a general inclination to put off doing a thing until so late that it has to be rushed to such an extent that it is poorly done. That is the danger that is now confronting the Texas Centennial movement. There is so much to be done in an educational way even before a start is made toward the centennial itself that there is danger that it may not be done well.

AT THE AGE OF 63

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Montecello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

To him, it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to "regulate" the bowels of old folks.
Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but each dose helps to strengthen the Automatic Incubators and Brooders can be had at a reasonable price. Broad, local representation.

These Incubators and Brooders, after being investigated by the Government Veterans Bureau at Washington, D. This Automatic Incubator will surely bear investigation if you intend to put your eggs into an incubator for eggs cost money, and an incubator of poor regulating qualities soon ruins your hatch, loses your money and your time, so why not get the best by test?

LABRADOR.

—Traveling by canoe Mississippi, on his way to the early days of the Louisiana, William a Frenchman, known to the settlers as the "Indian," sees a Natchez post a declaration of war the French. For his own he hastens to Biloxi to the news to Biloxi. Governor Brampton meets friend, Joe Labrador, in a friendly way, who warns him he has threatened to hang a spy. Brampton refuses to back. He falls in with and Bastie Mator on their to Biloxi to secure wives a ship, the Mator bringing from France. At Biloxi Brampton protects a woman from a man's brutality. She tells him she is Claire Dahisgarde, picked up in a raid in Paris. Evidently well bred and educated, she is a mystery to Brampton. He intervenes to prevent a man, English, known as "Old Six Fingers," following her to New Orleans. A Frenchman, Francois Narbonne, slightly denoted by stories he has heard of the riches of the New World, introduces himself. Biloxi accuses Brampton of treachery, but the latter secures a receipt from death by revealing the Natchez declaration of war. He is to await the arrival of a former companion, Darnon the Fox, who will exonerate or condemn him. Darnon has documents proving Brampton an English spy. Brampton receives a message from Claire, begging him to help her reach the English settlements. Brampton treats Narbonne with a note to Claire promising to meet her at New Orleans. He plans his escape. After a struggle Brampton wrests the incriminating papers from Darnon and escapes from Biloxi.

CHAPTER V—Continued

I dipped into it and found the parched corn excellent and the bear's fat fresh. After my hard travel it was most palatable. I sat down and began eating. The Choctaw squatted on his heels before me, an expression almost indicating amusement lighting his eyes.

"What is your mark?" I asked, meaning his clan.

He stared over my head at the green branches for fully a minute; then answered.

"Long Claw comes from the Panthers. You are the White Indian from Biloxi."

This startled me, and put me on my guard, although I gave no sign as I nodded a careless affirmative. It would appear that the news of my flight had kept up with me.

"You also come from Biloxi?" I asked. He shook his head, saying:

"From a hunter's camp north of Biloxi. Two of my brothers live here with the Bread-Eaters."

He pointed in the direction of the Pascagoula's village.

"Did you see the Frenchman they call the Fox pass your village on his way to Biloxi yesterday?"

There was an almost imperceptible flicker in his small eyes; and without waiting for the proper pause he immediately shook his head.

"I have eaten nearly all your corn, and now I must pay for it," I insisted.

"There will be a big feast tonight and I shall have much to eat," he answered, teetering back and forth on his heels.

With a Claim a Panther Might Have Sounded He Leaped Forward With His Ax.

answered, teetering back and forth on his heels.

He was a clumsy liar. It is a characteristic of many red men I have met to be as obvious as children when they try to deceive. Why should he carry a pouch full of corn if his journey from Biloxi was to end with a feast at Pascagoula bay? When he filled his pouch with corn and bear's fat he had expected to follow a trail which might take him to Pensacola.

I abruptly said:

"My medicine tells me you stand in the shadow of death. Is there any one to make a Last Cry for you?"

His eyes nearly closed and the powerful chest rose and fell quickly. What he spoke, however, his voice was compressed, and he quietly said:

"I am of the Panther clan. I am a hunter. When I die my spirit will be very happy. My people plant corn and melons. I live by hunting, and the white man is spoiling the hunting. My ghost will be happy even if I have no wife to make the last cry. Does the White Indian's medicine tell him any more?"

"It tells that the path to Pensacola is very bad for you. I must cross the bay and take the path to the Spaniards," I said, rising to my feet.

His lips tightened. My departure was hurrying his plans and he did not like it. Suddenly he raised a hand for silence; it was a squirrel scampering through the foliage overhead.

"The White Indian shall take a little meat with him," he whispered, starting up into the green branches while he plucked his bow from his shoulder and strung it.

Without removing his gaze from the leafy canopy he drew a reed arrow from the quiver and placed it on the string. Then he commenced circling the tree, his head tilted far back. I could trace the movements of the squirrel by the slight stirring of the leaves. It began descending the trunk, and as it did so the Indian's head slowly reverted to a more normal position, and his outstretched hands holding the drawn bow gradually ceased pointing toward the zenith and swept forward to follow the teltite rustling down the tree trunk. Triumph flashed in his eyes, and my medicine warned me I was a fool to stand there and be butchered, that the squirrel had given Sharp Claw his chance to strike.

He gave a quick low cry, and shifted his aim, and I went down on my face and felt my fur cap snatched from my head by the passing arrow. With a scream a panther might have sounded he leaped forward with his ax, while I tugged at my pistol. Had it missed fire, as it sometimes did, my chances would have been practically worthless. Down he went with both hands outstretched and necky teaching me, and for a bit we two lay there, the quick and the dead.

My first thought was to make the shore of the bay and signal for the packet to take me off. Common sense stepped in and told me to hide the dead man, as it might be the greater part of the day before the Mators came inshore.

I cast about and found a hole, where the roots of an upturned oak had lifted the soil; and therein I placed the man of the Panther clan, who died because of treachery; also because he was a clumsy liar. Working swiftly I carefully obliterated all signs of the killing. Fortunately we had not grappled and disturbed the turf. A cunning rearrangement of moss and forest mold hid the dark stains left by the Claw when he fell on his face with the heavy pistol ball through his heart.

Making north from the scene of the fight I bent over a branch of a bay-bush to mark direction. I repeated this sign several times, knowing the Fox or his Indian allies would accept it as a token from the dead man.

Having done this much to mislead the enemy, I stole back to the shore and concealed myself. I dared not make a smoke for fear those on my track, or some of the Pascagoula, would investigate it.

Now that I had a breathing spell I made myself comfortable in the underbrush at the edge of the timber and opened up the package of papers Darnon the Fox had carried inside his hunting-shirt. The first one I opened was my Canadian report, the data I had so foolishly entrusted to Darnon for delivery. Putting it in my pocket I gave my attention to the other papers. There were three of them, all from men high in the affairs of the colonies, and each directing my attention to a different branch of inquiry.

Any one of the four papers would have proved my occupation beyond a shadow of doubt and sent me to dangle in a noose. How Darnon had ingratiated himself into the good graces of my correspondents to the extent of making them believe he was a firm friend of mine and could be trusted to bring me instructions was a mystery. Had he delivered my Canadian report that act alone would have gone far to establish him as a good friend of the colonies. But he had obtained his evidence without surrendering my report.

I went over the list of inquiries, mentally checking off those I already had made, and memorized the others. Then I dug a hole deep under the bole of a white oak and buried all but my report on the French north of the Ohio. That document I risked on my person for a while longer. And, accustomed to snatching my rest when I could, I stretched out and went to sleep.

Voices were sounding close by when I opened my eyes. The sun hung low. Three progues had put in to allow four Pascagoula to land. Nearly a dozen Indians remained in the dugouts, up to their knees in fish. What the four coming ashore were after puzzled me until I saw two of them carrying a net, and making for a sand-pit directly below my position, while the other two made for the grove with their bows and arrows in their hands. Their companions pushed off. The two on the beach emptied a quantity of clams on the sand and began gathering dry driftwood.

The men disappearing in the timber were after squirrels, or any other small game. Roasted clams and broiled squirrels! My mouth watered and I watched them enviously as they built their fire. Gradually a wisp of smoke climbed into the brassy heavens, increasing in volume as the clams wrapped in seaweed were thrown on the coals. What at first I took to be a gull, caught in the level submains, became a sail. The boat drew nearer, practically running before the wind.

Here was an unforeseen dilemma. The Mators had observed the smoke and had accepted it as my signal, and were coming in to take me off. Did I fall to show myself they would become frightened and put back to open sea and go about their business. If I showed myself I would startle the Pascagoula, who would at once report the incident, and Biloxi would soon learn the truth. While I was willing the whole coast should think me safe in Pensacola I did not wish to bring punishment on the Mators.

The boat lost the wind as it drew inside the bay and made slow progress toward the shore. While scouring my wits for a way to avoid the clam-broilers and make the packet, a shrill cry rang out in the oaks behind me. It was a yelp of astonishment, possibly fear. The Indians on the sand leaped to their feet and started wildly toward the timber. The cry was repeated, this time in a signal, and the men below me gave an answering whoop and rushed for the grove. This second cry was one of discovery, and I believed the hunters had found the body of Sharp Claw.

Dismay was quickly replaced by a sense of satisfaction; the dead man had drawn the Pascagoula from the shore. I only asked that Darnon and his red allies had found my signs and had hurried on toward Pensacola while I was asleep. Should they be at hand to witness the exhumation of the Choctaw they would know my signs were deceits and that I was not bound for the Spanish settlement.

The packet was now near enough for me to recognize the two Mators. I had expected to swim for it, and if not for my musket it would have been simple enough. But before taking to the water I glanced up and down the shore and discovered a small progue. Running the risk of being seen I ran to this and pushed it into the water and paddled for the boat.

"Feet of the devil! Why did you not wait!" groaned Mator pere, as I climbed aboard and kicked the progue free to drift ashore with the incoming tide.

I threw myself flat in the boat and Bastie growled:

"The eyes of the world are watching us."

"Enough talk!" I commanded.

"There is no one on shore but some Indians. You must work the boat between Isle au Aigle and the Dauphine and sail for Pensacola."

"For Pensacola!" exclaimed Jules.

"When the sun goes down we'll change our course for Pontchartrain. There you will drop me and I will pick up a canoe. I have the pistoles I promised you."

"Monsieur is a gentleman. It is right we should help him," declared Bastie. "Ho! ho! See how red the sun is!"

Mator the elder crossed himself, and I heard him muttering: "There is blood on it!"

I wondered if it were an ill omen for me. I hoped it was the blood of Sharp Claw, the Choctaw.

CHAPTER VI

I Keep an Appointment.

Without incidents of interest the packet anchored at sundown in the mouth of the little Bayou St. Jean, or Tchoupie, as it still was known to many settlers. The Mators had completed their bargain, but so happy were they over earning their pistoles without being brought to book by Sieur de Bienville they were loath to leave me in the swamps and marshes without canoe; and Jules Mator frankly said:

"It not only would offend my heart to leave you stranded in this muck, monsieur, but it would endanger my head. Without a canoe you will be found; then his excellency would surely ask how you got here. You did not swim here. He would know ours was the only boat to come this way since you escaped from Biloxi. Enough, Bastie, have the kind heart to find a log canoe for monsieur."

Bastie was gone but a short time when he returned with a small progue, which he said he had "borrowed" from some of Le Page du Pratz's people. Entering this with my gun and a bag of smoked meat, I paddled into the swamp growth, while the Mators lost no time in putting about and working the packet into a light breeze and sailing south, doubtless to hide up in Lake Borgne for a while. Their alibi, if I were discovered by my enemies, would be of a geographical nature.

Keeping close to the bank and under shelter of the overhanging willows, I worked along slowly until the splash of a paddle ahead sent me into hiding. It was quite dark under the arching trees and I could not have told whether it was a white, red or black man approaching had not the fellow started a song popular on the St. Lawrence. As he drew abreast of my hiding-place I softly called:

"Joe Labrador!"

"The good saints!" he ejaculated, swerving his canoe with a swirl of his paddle and making toward me. "Hail! Who calls to me from the dark in the voice of a white man?"

"The White Indian," I cautiously replied.

"Diable! Monsieur Brampton! What terrible folly! With the whole Gulf-Pensacola-the-upper-river, to travel you come here?" he growled. "And monsieur did me the honor to call me tete de bols! Are you indeed mad, my friend?"

"Why shouldn't I come here?" I asked as his canoe slid against mine and we grasped hands.

"Because word has been brought to la Nouvelle Orleans this very morning for the people to watch out for you, to take you prisoner and return you to Biloxi."

"We waste words. Why are you paddling down the bayou to the lake at the edge of night?"

"Oh, I go to the mouth of the bayou each night. Perhaps I am curious to know who enters the bayou."

"You have been watching for me to come!"

"Such is my weakness, my friend. Yes. Now we have met you must paddle back to the lake and up the Iberville. If you lack anything you shall stay here until I can bring it."

"What I lack must come from la Nouvelle Orleans," I whispered. "We will go there together. No one will see us. I will stop outside the settlement. You shall go inside and find a certain person and say a word from me. The person will come with you to me, I think."

He laughed without any amusement.

"Oh, there are quite a few persons who would be glad to come with me to you. It is impossible, monsieur."

"Then I must push on alone. Good-by."

"Hold! I turn my canoe about, and I followed him. When he halted within the village the straggling lights of New Orleans—that la Nouvelle Orleans which so many immigrants had been led to believe was another Paris—seemed very near.

From just beyond a warehouse came the thin sweet notes of a flute.

"Are Rouze and his people still here? There were six in his family two years ago. One of them played the flute," I said.

"Some will be here now, but their cabin is farther down. And they are all devoted to his excellency's interests," was the significant reply.

The girl is about to come back into the picture. Who is she and what is she after?

DAIRY FACTS

CARRY BUTTERMILK IN SEPARATE CAN

"Sour, moldy, and off-flavor cream can often be traced to the practice of carrying buttermilk in cream cans from the creamery to the home," says Harold Macy of the division of dairy husbandry, University of Minnesota. Cream cans, he believes, should be used only for the transportation of cream.

"With the facilities available at the average creamery, it is a difficult task at best to clean and sterilize the cream cans properly. The process is much more difficult where the buttermilk is transported in the cans.

"It is exceedingly hard to keep the buttermilk tank in such condition that the product does not sour or decompose, particularly in the flush of the summer season. Such buttermilk has a high bacterial and moldy content of many undesirable types which contaminate the cream so badly that one cannot expect to get a good product from the patron who fails to wash or sterilize his cans after they are emptied.

"On many farms the cream can never receive the attention which it deserves. Many times the buttermilk is simply poured into the barrel in the hog pen and the can rinsed out in cold water. In this condition the can remains until it is stuck under the separator sput. This sort of thing goes on from day to day, so that one marvels that much of the cream is as good as it is.

"The best way to solve the buttermilk problem is to contract with the individual for the whole batch. This takes it off the operator's hands and makes cream grading much easier. The powdering of the sweet cream buttermilk is also another outlet and often very profitable. If the farmers insist upon having their buttermilk, it is well for the operator to influence his board to require the use of other cans for the purpose.

"Eliminate this practice of placing buttermilk in cream cans and creamery operators will be one more long step nearer the standard which they wish to reach—all first-class cream."

Improvement of Flavor and Quality of Butter

M. Mortensen of the Iowa experiment station made a comparison of the effect of the pasteurization temperature and acidity of sour cream on the flavor and keeping quality of butter made from cream; samples of cream were pasteurized at 145 degrees Fahrenheit for 30 minutes and at 170 degrees and 180 degrees for 20 minutes. The butter was scored on arrival at the market and after from 2 to 9 months' storage at 0 degree.

The results of 17 comparisons indicated that a pasteurization temperature of 170 degrees produced a slightly superior product to that resulting when the cream was pasteurized at 145 degrees; but butter pasteurized at the higher temperature did not appear to keep as well over a nine months' storage period. Pasteurization at 180 degrees did not give quite as satisfactory results as at 170 degrees in nine experiments.

The neutralization of sour cream was also found to improve the quality and reduce the amount of deterioration occurring in the butter.

Calves Fed for Spring Market Most Profitable

There is less risk and greater profit in feeding calves for the late spring or early summer market than in feeding any other class of live stock, according to Dr. C. W. McCampbell of the Kansas State Agricultural college. "In feeding calves for the market," Doctor McCampbell points out, "it is important to remember that a calf should be prime to sell at a profit. No other class of cattle is discriminated against so severely as the half-fed calf.

"A heavy feed of grain is necessary to put the calf in condition to sell at advantage. We find that it requires approximately 180 days as a minimum feeding period and about 40 bushels of corn to put the calf in best market condition."

Dairy Hints

Never feed more than 1½ pounds of cottonseed meal a day for any length of time to a cow.

It's surprising how a scrub cow can reach into your pocket and take money.

Milk the cow as rapidly as possible, and continue the milking without cessation until the cow is milked clean.

To produce good butter, it is important that milk pails, cans and separator be well cleaned and well sterilized after each using.

Clean cows with fluffy white switches may not make any more milk, but they are much more pleasant to care for.

This is the time of the year when the dairy cow appreciates a bucket of water in her stall. Driving her out in a blizzard to drink ice water means a decrease in the flow of her milk.

 I have lived in Donley county nearly fifteen years and feel that I am qualified to fill the office

CHRISTIE ANNOUNCES FOR COMMISSIONER
 The Informer is authorized to announce W. E. Christie as a candidate for County Commissioner, Precinct 3, Donley county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary in July.
 Mr. Christie is a successful farmer of Windy Valley community, and has been a citizen of this county for seventeen years.
 He is known as a just and honorable man of sound judgment, and his friends believe he would make an excellent commissioner.
 Mr. Christie feels that he is qualified to discharge the duties of the office in a capable manner, with justice to all alike, and says that if elected he will do the best he knows and can.
 He will appreciate your vote and influence.

BEACH FOR COMMISSIONER
 The Informer is authorized to announce J. S. Beach as a candidate for County Commissioner, Precinct No. 3, Donley county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary in July.
 Mr. Beach has been a prominent citizen of Hedley for too long a time to need any introduction to the people hereabouts.
 Nobody will question the statement that he is capable and dependable and has a thorough knowledge of the needs of this community and county. He is making the race on his merits, and there is no doubt that he will make a good Commissioner if elected.
 He asks that you give him fair consideration.

 The Informer is pleased to announce Miss Lottie E. Lane's candidacy for re election to the office of County Clerk. Miss Lane's excellent work in the office makes any introduction useless. She is asking for the office solely on her merits and ability to attend all its responsibilities with dispatch. Her friends are delighted that she has consented to ask for this office, as they are in position to know, and modesty will not forbid their saying, as it does Miss Lane, that every duty of the office has been promptly and capably discharged; and her capable administration has met recognition throughout the state, resulting in her election as Secretary Treasurer of the State Clerks Association. The correct keeping of the county's records is of utmost importance to its citizens, and the friends of Miss Lane know that this work will be in competent hands when left to her; because her broad legal experience before going into this office is a qualification that equips her to perform all the duties of this office in the way that such office should be filled.

First Baptist Church Notes
 Last Sunday came up to our expectations as a big day in our church. There were nearly a hundred cars parked around the church house. Conservative estimates placed the number who ate lunch at around four hundred. The numbers on the program were all filled with spiritual and intellectual addresses.
 The address of Dr. McDonald, President of Wayland College, was great, and will be remembered as long as we live. The "pep" meeting took on the nature of a contest between the B Y P U delegations which indicated considerable rivalry and much life and energy. The next session was voted to Memphis.
 Next Sunday we hope to meet all the officers and teachers of our Sunday School at 9:45 for a few minutes before the crowds come in. This is very important.
 Don't fail to come. Also, we should have a good attendance at the Worker's Council at three in the afternoon. The monthly conference session of the church will be held as usual immediately following the council. The subject for the morning sermon is,
 "Receive not the grace of God in vain." Text 2 Cor. 6:10. Why should not we let the Lord get dividends on his investment of grace in us? Read the 13th verse.
 The whole of the chapter is an argument that we should not be come "tightwads" nor be unequally yoked to people who are not charitable and missionary in spirit and in deeds. The church at Corinth evidently had some members, usually very prosperous, but "straitened" in great financial stress when Paul asked for a collection. Human nature is wonderfully uniform. In reading this chapter many of us feel fellowship with the dear church at Corinth. There will be a service at the evening hour in charge of our B. Y. P. U. The young people of other organizations might attend with profit to see what our young people can do.
 Everybody is always welcome.
 We invite the rich and the poor, the good and the bad, the wise and the unwise, the old and the young, the weak and the strong, all and all alike. God is no respecter of persons. God's churches should treat all alike and on an equal welcome to worship.
 J. H. McCauley, Pastor.

METHODIST REVIVAL DATE
 After finding out from proper authorities in each of the other churches as to dates that have been fixed for meetings this year, and finding the last two Sundays in August not to conflict with any set dates, the Pastor and the official board of the Methodist church have selected that date for the Methodist Revival. We are expecting very efficient help, which will be announced later. We shall be glad to have the cooperation of all Christian people. Date: August 22 to September 5.

 Miss Faye Culwell is a guest stopped in Clarendon a day to visit her sister, Miss Nita.

 dren have returned from a two

 Preaching at 11:00
 S. S. Workers Council at 3:00
 Intermediate League at 4:30 Senior League at 6:15
 Preaching at 7:15
 At the morning preaching service I have in mind to use as text
 "For the carnal mind is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be." I think there is a lesson in that for every child of God, yes for every one who has any interest in his or her eternal welfare.
 At the evening hour I have made plans for Bro. Hamblen, pastor at Clarendon, to preach for us. He had an opportunity to get off at that time and I am very glad to have him to preach for us. I hope he may have a full house to preach to.
 A cordial invitation is extended to all to be with us in any or all of these services Sunday.
 J. W. Hawkins, Pastor.

 An Irish Potato started to cry
 When an Onion hit him in the eye.
 Sweet Potatoes rolling over the floor,
 Howling and growling "We're the dogs of war."
 Then a couple of Vienna Rolls Shot the Cheese all full of holes.
