SECURITY STATE BANK HEDLEY, TEXAS "Where your business is appreciated"

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

T WAS named for Augustus Caesar. Roman emperor and great military leader, because it had been a lucky month for him, this month which we now know as August. Although the United States has never prided itself upon imperialism as did this ancient conqueror-the name itself means "imperial"-the fact remains that August has been an important month in American military history. It is doubtful if there have been in any other single month in the year as many important engagements with the enemy as there have during this one. Heitman's "Historical Register and Dictionary of the United States Army-1789-1903" lists no less than 296 major battles, skirmishes and other actions in which troops of our regular army have been engaged during August. Add to this number the record of important engagements during our colonial history and it is easy to see why the characterization "August, Month of Battles" is an apt one. Every day in the month is the anniversary of some stirring military event, as witness:

August 1 .- In 1813 this day saw an army of 1,200 British and Indians, led by General Proctor. surround Ft. Stephenson or Lower Sandusky, on the present site of Fremont, Ohio. It was defended by 160 men of the Seventeenth and Twenty-fourth infantries, commanded by Capt. George Crogan who had just passed his twenty-first birthday, and six of his subordinates as youthful as himself. They held the fort against repeated assaults on this day and the next and when Proctor's army finally retreated, the state of Ohio was delivered from the fear of a British conquest. On August 1 and 2, 1832, away up in the northwestern corner of Illinois, an army commanded by Gen. Henry Atkinson fought the engagement known as the Battle of Bad Axe river, with the Sac and Fox warriors of Chief Black Hawk, and virtually ended the Black Hawk war.

August 2 .- Out on the plains of Wyoming, near Ft. Phil Kearny of tragic memory, in the year the steady stream of rifle fire which wreathed the improvised corral with a cloud of smoke. When the battle was over, the 32 defenders had lost 2 killed and 2 wounded. The loss of the Indians in killed and wounded was 1,137. No wonder the Wagon-Box fight has come down in history as "an account that reads like a story of Cortez"!

1867, 32 white men, command-

August 3 .- On this day in 1869 Companies E and F of the Twenty-second infantry and a group of Indian scouts fought an engagement near Ft. Stevenson, in North Dakota, with the hostile Sloux who were and impatience of Herkimer's officers and men, who demanded to be led against the foe immediately. And so they fell into the ambush and on the bloody field of Oriskany August 6, 1777, they won a victory, but at the fearful price of onefourth of all their number.

August 7 .- In the fastnesses of the Sierra Madre mountains in Sonora, Mexico, on this day, in 1885, detachments of troops G, H.

I, and K, of the Fourth cavalry, accompanied by a party of Indian scouts, killed 5 hostile Chiricahua Apache Indians and captured 15 women and children. This may not sound like an important victory, but to anyone who knows of the hardships suffered by American soldiers in their campaigns against these "human tigers," the warriers of the notorious Geronimo, it was a victory of no mean

Joseph Brant. proportions. It proved that the American soldier COULD run to earth these elusive enemies and it sounded the knell to the last important Indian uprising in the West.

August 8 .- On this date began a campaign by a detachment of Company A of the Twenty-third infantry and a group of Indian scouts in the Juniper mountains in Idaho which did not end for nearly a month. But when it did end the soldiers had rounded up the last stragglers of the hostile Piutes upon whom General Crook had inflicted the crushing defeat earlier in the year.

August 9 .- Fifty years ago, August 9, 1877, the Big Hole river in Montana was the scene of one of the hardest fought engamements in the history of the West, Chief Joseph, the matchless leader of the Nez Perces during his epic flight from his home in Oregon to Canada, was attacked at this place by Gen. John Gibbon and his troops of the Second cavalry and Seventh infantry. Despite the surprise of the attack, Joseph quickly rallied his warriors, handled them so skillfully that he beat off Gibbon's attack and continued

Chief Joseph. his flight. It was here that this Indian leader proved once more how well he deserved the title of "The Indian Napoleon."

August 10 .- This is the anniversary of the Battle of Wilson's Creek in Missouri, one of the few important Civil war battles fought in that state. It was both a victory and a defeat for the Union army. They drove the Confederates from the field, but could not hold it and were forced to retreat. They lost their leader, Gen. Nathaniel Lyon, who was shot from his horse, near the close of the battle. But they won a moral victory, for after this battle thousands of Missourians who had been wavering decided to stand by the Union.

August 11 .- This is the anniversary of two important Indian battles in the West. In 1823 Col

Henry Leavenworth ascended the Missouri river with a force of 400 soldiers and trappers and 700 Sioux allies to punish

August 17 .- This is the anniversary of the one occasion when the Indian won a victory over his enemy the "Iron Horse," On this date, in 1867, a war party of Cheyennes wrecked a train near Plum Creek, Neb., and plundered the contents of the cars. But in the midst of their exultant dance a force of the famous Pawnee scouts led by Maj. Frank North and his brother, Capt. Luther North, appeared on the scene and put an end to their rejoicing.

August 18 .- The streets of the sleepy old town of Santa Anthony Wayne Fe, N. M., resounded to the hoof beats of American cavalry on August 18, 1846. Gen. Stephen W. Kearney and his dragoons entered the city and raised the Stars and Stripes, proclaiming the Southwest American territory.

August 19 .- This is the anniversary of two famous engagements. In 1782 it saw Daniel Boone and his Kentucklans disastrously defeated by the Indians and a few British at the Battle of Blue Licks, Ky., a defeat caused by the same rashness upon the part of headstrong men that brought disaster to General Herkimer's army at Oriskany, five years earlier. In 1812, it saw one of the greatest victories ever won by the Constitution when her guns humbled the British ship Guerriere. August 20 .- "He put the horse's hoof on the moccasin," and at the Battle of Fallen Timbers, in Ohio, on August 20, 1794, Gen. Anthony Wayne, the "Mad Anthony" Wayne of Stony Point fame, inflicted a crushing defeat upon the warriors of the confederated tribes in the Old Northwest and brought peace at last to the harried frontier. August 21 .- Of all the individuals whom the title of guerilla has made famousor rather infamous-the name of Charles Quantrill leads all the rest. During the Civil war Kansas suffered from the scourge of war in many ways, but its most appalling disaster was Quantrill's raid on Lawrence on August 21, 1853, when 150 citizens fell victims to his ferocity, making 80 widows and 250 orphans.

August 22 .- The last great uprising of the Indian tribes of the Southwest took place in 1874. Op

August 22 of that year there was a hot engagement at the Wichita agency participated in by troops C, F, H, and L, Tenth cavalry and I, Fifth Infantry. Eventually, however, the uprising was quelled by Gen. Nelson A. Miles and his "foot cavalry," the Fifth infantry, in a brilliant campaign in the staked plains of Texas.

Quantrill,

August 23 .- One of the most serious Indian uprisings in American history was that which occurred among the Sloux of Minnesota under the leadership of Chief Little Crow in 1862. Hundreds of citizens were killed before the Indians were defeated and one of the high spots of this war was the attack upon New Ulm, August 23, 1862.

SLEEVELESS BLOUSE POPULAR: ALSO THE GINGHAM ENSEMBLE

N OT one or two but many a blouse will the woman of smart fashion be buying in the months to come. The blouse theme includes many versions from the sports type to the costume blouse, the latter so essential to the jacket and skirt ensemble.

Being summer, when the game of golf and tennis are the sports of the hour, interest centers to a great extent around the sleeveless blouse. Such cunning types as one sees these days! Perhaps none are of a more Impelling chic than those fastioned of two-piece and three-piece ginghams at once struck a note of popularity, for they were just what were needed in the summer wardrobe.

All the fashionable world is color struck this season, which is another "reason why" stylists recognize in gingham a medium directly adaptable to current modes. Always cool and fresh looking, never lose color in the tub, never lose color in the sun, no wonder gingham has become a favorite for fashionable midsummer wear. The gingham ensemble in the pio

Any woman can see the advantage of this. There is only a rivalry just now between the sleeveless jacket and the sleeveless dress. As pictured, the sleeveless frock wins, the coat being sleeved-which is a thor-swarming about that post. From its founding Ft. Stevenson was in an almost perpetual state of siege, and the white man who ventured out from its walls went to certain death. The only exception to this rule was the case of the famous scout "Yellowstone" Kelly, who acted as mail carrier between the Missouri river posts in those days, whose hairbreath escapes were more thrilling than anything which can come from the imagination of a Wild West dime novelist.

August 4 .- One hundred and fifty years ago on this date an army of British, Tories and Indians,

If St. Leger captured the fort he could sweep down the Mohawk valley and ravage this "Granary of the Revolution," join Burgoyne at Albany and with him march south to join General Howe

in the stroke that would put an end to the Revolution. But Ft. Schuyler held out throughout the slege and the patriot cause was saved.

August 5 .- Out in the wilds of western Pennsylvania one hot summer night in 1763 a little army of British regulars and Colonials, commanded by Col. Henry Bouquet, a Swiss soldier of fortune, found themselves in a desperate predicament. They were marching to the relief of Ft. Pitt, a frontler outpost which was besleged by Indians. A large force of warriors had been sent to intercept Bouquet's troops. They were surrounded and there was no hope for relief. They must fight their way out. Defeat meant mas-

they did. The next morning by a brilliant stroke of strategy, which should give Bouquet a place with the great captains of American history, the Indians were overwheimingly defeated, and his soldiers continued their triumphant march to Ft. Pitt. The battle of Bushy Run was one of the most decisive ever scored by white man over red. On this day also, August 5, in the year 1864, Admiral David Farragut won his great victory at the Battle of Mobile bay during the Civil war.

August 6 .- While Col. Barry St. Leger was laying siege to Ft. Schuyler, an army of New York militia was marching to its relief. It was commanded by Gen. Nicholas Herkimer who had arranged with Colonel Gansevoort for a sortle from the fort at the same time that Herkimer advanced with his troops to attack St. Leger. Unfortunately the well-laid plans were upset by the rashness the Arikaras for their treacherous behavior toward representatives of the Rocky Mountain Fur company. The campaign ended on August 11, when a treaty of peace was signed. Fifty years later the banks of the Yellowstone river, in Montana, saw a war party of Sloux attacking Lieut, Col. George A. Custer's Tom Custer, Seventh cavalry, Custer with a small detachment was far in advance of the regiment when the Indians attacked, and only the speed of his horse and the quick wit of his brother, Capt. Tom Custer, saved him from the fate which overtook him less than three years later on the Big Little Horn in Montana.

August 12 .- On this date in 1676 the first great Indian war in America came to an end, when King Philip, the Indian leader, was shot down by a man of his own race who had led Capt. Benjamin Church to Philip's hiding place in a swamp near his old home, Mt. Hope, Massachusetts.

August 13 .- New England has reason to remember this date because in 1776 Lieut. James Burnham, a Maine veteran of the French and Indian Wars with 16 of his comrades, armed only with flintlock muskets, opened fire upon a British warship off Goat island with such deadly effect that 17 sailors were killed before the British commander gave orders to weigh anchor and sail away.

August 14 .- On this date in 1900 the Allied armies entered Paking, China, and when the Stars and Stripes was carrled through the gates of that city with the flags of other nations it meant the end of the Boxer uprising and safety for the whites who had been in such deadly peril for so long.

August 15 .- In 1812 on this day a little army of whites was marching along what is now Michigan avenue in Chicago. Out of the sand hills along the lake shore dashed a war party of fierce Pottawatomies, who opened fire upon the column. There was a short, sharp struggle, and when it ended more than half of the whites had been killed. The remainder were prisoners and the Ft. Dearborn massacre was history.

King Philip.

August 16 .- Up in the hills of Vermont, 150 years ago, on this date, August 16, 1777,

Frank North. Gen. John Stark won a brilliant victory over the force of British and Hessians, led by Colonel Baume, a victory which contributed to the downfall of General Burgoyne. Three years later, near Camden, S. C., General Gates, who had conquered Burgoyne, suffered defeat at the hands of the British Lord Cornwallis. Thus did Gates' "northern willows turn into southern weeds."

August 24 .- Once in history the capitol of our country was captured by the enemy. This occurred on August 24, 1814, when a British army entered Washington, close upon the heels of the fleeing President and other high government officials. The invaders applied the torch and flames consumed the capitol, the President's house and other public buildings.

August 25 .- This is the date of a fight known to history as the "Four Men Battle" when four privates of Company M of the Twenty-third infantry fought a sharp skirmish with a force of insurrectos near Cebu in the Philippines, and defeated them. August 26 .- This date is the anniversary of a number of engagements in American history. Perhaps the most important was the fight at Valley Grove, Long Island, in 1776, preliminary to the great battle of Long Island which began on:

August 27.-Gen. Israel Putnam was in command of the Continental forces on Brooklyn Heights and it was the attempt of the British to drive him from this position which led to the Battle of Long Island. The British captured General Sullivan and would have captured the whole army, if it had not been for Washington getting them across the river that night.

August 28 .- On August 28, 1854, the garrison at Ft. Laramie Wyo, one of the most famous posts, was forced to defend itself against an attack by the Sioux Indians. This was an aftermath of the massacre of Lleutenant Grattan, on August 19 of that year, a disaster which that impetuous young officer brought upon himself by his highhanded methods in dealing with the Indians during a dispute over a cow that had been abandoned by a passing emigrant train.

John Sullivan.

August 29 .- The Battle of Newton, or Chemung, on this Stonewall Jackson date in 1779, hear the present site of Elmira, N. Y., is one of the high spots in the campaign of Gen. John Sullivan against the Iroquois Indians which broke the power of that great confederacy. Here Lleut. Thomas Boyd was killed, a most tragic incident of the Revolution.

August 30 .- This date is the anniversary of two historic events. On August 30, 1813, the commander of Ft. Mimms, Ala., paid a fearful price for his carelessness when a war party of Creeks led by the famous Chief Weatherford, swept down upon the fort and massacred most of the garrison. On August 30, 1862, the military genius of Stone wall Jackson was again demonstrated when he defeated the Union army, commanded by Gen. John Pope, at the second battle of Bull Run.

August 31 .- The end of the month! And it marked, too, the end of the siege of Ft. Erie in Upper Canada during the War of 1812, which by gan on August 1, 1814, and ended August 21. 14

A foreword as to fall fashions predicts not only metal cloth and novelty blouses but a possibility of beaded blouses again being favored by the mode.

What a thrill the smart set is getting out of cotton goods these days. Imagine Paris indorsing the gingham ensemble for street and sportswear. Well, that is just what has happened and we in America are ouite taken with the idea, too. These gives an excellent opportunity for self-trim. In this instance the reverse of the fabric forms a clever trim for the collar, revers, cuffs and other details with the dress made up accenting the blue, while the coat emphasizes the yellow. The whole is finished with a piping in one-tone blue gingham to match the check and adds to it's beauty.

Here's an interesting item to remember when buying gingham for the new ensemble you are planning-for every designed gingham there comes a one-tone weave for trimming.

WATCH IN SUMMER

The summer and fail seasons are the ones in which the producer of man ket eggs must be most particular about the quality of his product if he expects to receive the top market price. "At that time of the year." says the poultry department of the state experiment station at New Brunswick, "the spread in price between the two top grades of eggs may be as high as 12 to 15 cents per dozen as compared with a spread of 2 or 3 cents in the spring, which indicates that the producer's net profit at the end of the year may depend to a very large extent upon the quality of his summer and fall eggs."

There are several factors entering into the cause of this wide spread in price at the seasons mentioned, but probably the most important is the fact that the interior quality deteriorates very rapidly, and the eggs reach the market very loose and watery. To overcome this trouble, the producer should collect his eggs two or three times daily and keep them in a cool place previous to shipment.

A cave or cellar makes a very good place to hold eggs, but care must be taken to see that the place is clean and sweet, as eggs are very prone to absorb any foul or musty odors. Shipments should be made as soon as possible after the eggs are laid, and never should be less frequent than twice a week The eggs should not be excessively handled, since this aggravates the condition, causing the egg to become extremely loose. The aim should be to handle the eggs as a perishable product, which in reality they are. Speed and care in handling are the two prime regulaites where the producer is be ing paid on a quality basis.

Faulty Rations Cause

Faulty rations cause vast numbers of chicks to die every year. A pullet once stunted with improper or spoiled feed will never get back to successfully compete with those who were healthy from the start.

The feed the chicks get from the beginning should be directed toward the eggs the pullets are expected to lay when they mature, says an Ohio specialist.

The all-mash method of feeding chicks that has been perfected by the Ohio, Indiana and Wisconsin agricultural experiment stations makes it possible to feed the flock with more exactness. It also takes less time to care for them. It does not differ greatly from the scratch grain and mash method of feeding. The grain hat is ordinarily fed whole or cracked is ground and mixed with the mash

It has become common practice for the majority of chick mashes to contain some charcoal. Experiments show that it is beneficial as a preventive of trouble. It does not have any particular food value. Because a coal-burning brooder stove keeps a colony house very dry, there is a tendency for some poultry. men to neglect sanitation until the conditions are very bad.

Usually chicks should be three weeks old before giving them freedom to mash all day.

Let the sun in the brooder house, having it shine directly on the chicks without going through ordinary window glass. . . .

More incubator chicks die from bowel trouble due to chilling than perhaps any other cause. Chicks with hen mothers are seldom affected, and thrive in severe weather, if they can run to their mother when cool. . . .

Turkeys do better on free range than in confinement as it is their nature to roam.

Hens need plenty of water. During periods of heavy production they cansume more water than during the winter. Eggs contain 70 per cent of water. . . .

Three very fundamental things necessary for you to furnish your chicks to make chick raising highly successful are proper feeding, necessary wermth, and healthful sanitation.

STORY FROM THE START

Garth Guthrie, Canadian war veteran, having to live in the open on account of weakened lungs, is factor of a Hudson's Bay post at Elkwan. He came back from the conflict with permanently scarred face, which he realizes cost him the love of his flancee, Edith Falconer. Charles Guthrie, his brother, is a millionaire war profiteer. With Etienne Savanne, halfbreed, his firm friend, Garth meets Doctor Quarrier, geologist, and his sister Joan. Their schooner has drifted ashore. Quarrier com-plains he has been robbed by a man known as "Laughing Me-Donald." At Elkwan an Indian whom Garth has befriended, is dying.

Then the man, whose intimate knowledge of the inanimate had seemingly taught him little of men. laughed rawly:

"Your duty? Yes, I suppose when you fur people get yourselves into a mess of this kind," he nodded toward the door, "you feel you have to see it through."

Joan Quarrier rose from her chair. stunned by the stupid brutality of the remark-fearful of the retribution it deserved. Eyes black with anger. Guthrie glared at his guest, who, sensible of his mistake, grinned sheep ishly, then flushed to the roots of his stiff hair. The muscles in the face of the factor knotted, the veins in the brown neck above the flannel shirt swelled with blood in his efforts at self-control.

"I-I went too far." Quarrier mumbled, "I dian't mean, of course-" But he was cut off short with:

"Your bed is in the trade-house You know the way!" The long arm of Guthrie pointed to

Then, outside, in the cool dusk of the clearing rose a wall, mournful, unearthly, followed by another' and another.

Joan Quarrier's face appeared in the doorway of the living room. "It's too ghastly," she said with a shiver. "How do they know?"

"They always know-always wail for the dead." And he went out to quiet the dogs.

At the gate of the stockade stood the airedale, joining the huskies in their threnody under the fading stars. At Guthrie's command, the dog stopped and trotting up, with a muffled whine thrust his moist nose into his master's hand.

"Ninda's gone, Shot."

CHAPTER III

Daylight found man and dog on the high river shore. At times the man spoke to the airedale, who, sensing his master's mood, repeatedly returned from short excursions to nuzzle Guthrie's hand. Again and again, before the light came, the whimpering huskies had taken up their wailing. to be checked by the man on guard, whose thoughts traversed the swift weeks of the summer.

Out of the silent places, this doomed child of the valiant heart had come, and now-into the silence had gone. What must have been her despair, he thought, to have left her people and sought sanctuary among strangers. But it had been friends she had found.

But what a miracle to have had that schooner driven on Akimiski with the girl who had shared the watch with him! What a solace and rock she had been-those fine, straightgazing dark eyes, and capable hands. It was because she had understoodhad resented his thinking it necessary to explain the situation at Elkwan he caught, at intervals, on the moist air, scents vague, illusive, enticing. "You are losing valuable time from your goose hunt by taking us to Albany in your boat." suggested Joan Quarrier to Guthrie, who had found a seat beside her.

"After what you've done, I could not send you off in that ship's boat. You might have been days making Albany-had serious trouble getting ashore to make camp if the wind changed. It's a tricky coast. You're not much like your dignified brother," he answered, his face lighting in amusement as he glanced toward the sulking Quarrier. "He's hardly worrying about our goose supply for the winter."

The clean-cut mouth of the man beside her curled in the smile she had come to associate with the factor of Elkwan. Then her eyes, shifting to the dim ribbon of spruce edging the marshes, saw the face of the girl of the photograph at the post, and she wondered what was behind it all.

He studied the profile of Joan Quarrier, the musing eyes with the strongly marked brows, the half-parted lips, the frame of chestnut hair shot with gold. Fine, it was, he thought with the beauty of expression; but above its comeliness of line and skin-the stamp of strength, the essence of character. The absent look faded from her eves. "I can understand on a day like this," she said, "what you mean by this gray coast holding you. It's so untouched-so primeval. It seems almost as if we were the first to see it." "It's like this for a thousand miles-

Meats are our expensive foods and they may be extended, or pieced out, by using vegetables, cereals, well-seasoned noodles as well as dumplings and stuffings, to make the meat go farther and lessen expense. It really is the meat flavor (the extractives in the meat), that makes it palatable. This flavor is added to other foods when cooked with them, thus making all well flavored.

A wholesome dish to serve for luncheon or supper is potatoes with bacon. Put a layer of thinly sliced potatoes in a buttered baking dish and pour over them a thin white sauce. Lay over the top a few slices of bacon, season the potatoes well and bake until they are tneedr in a slow oven.

When whole wheat, right from the farm, can be bought for a few cents, a pound, why buy cereals that are not as good and cost six times as much? "You'll hear from this-this conduct of yours. I'll report this to your superiors," protested Quarrier, as he stormed out of the room.

Guthrie turned to the girl, who was visibly swept by shame-stirred by an emotion which left her weak, clouded eyes fixed on the man who said in a voice still thick with anger:

"I'm sorry, Miss Quarrier-so sorry. He-went-too far."

"You were right-he was impos sible," she agreed in a voice raw with disgust, with a slow nod of the dark head. "He has always blunderedalways failed to understand."

"I want to tell you about her." She turned on him almost fiercely "Do you think I, also, do not under stand?" she demanded.

For a space he searched her tense white face; then replied, cryptically "You have served with the wounded It is enough."

He went to the door and whispered to old Anne. Then he began :

"She came here in June with some Ojibwas, from far beyond the Elkwan headwaters, for this is a Cree country. They were not her own people, I am convinced, but one of the men claimed to be her father. She was not sure, for she had grown up with them-didn't even know her age, but she can't be more than eighteen. Old Anne found her sick in a tipl-half fed-neglected. We took her in, and for a time the canned milk and the broth worked a miracle. She was happy-too; that helped.

"When the trade was over and the Indians started for their summer camps, they demanded her-and she could hardly walk a hundred yards without resting. Of course, they didn't really want her; their purpose was to hold me up. They asked for everything in the store. They always do when such a thing happens-an Indian girl stays behind, at the factor's quarters.

"You see they thought this was the old situation-so did the Crees-in spite of what Anne told them. They couldn't understand. Well, I finally got rid of her people-kicked them out, For weeks she was so happy." Guthrie tiptoed to the sickroom door, looked in, and returned. "In her last conversation with the Indian who called himself her father, I heard her repeatedly say 'Nin da, nin da !' She was so earnest about it, I asked Etlenne what it meant, and he told me it was Ojibwa for 'I stay

The heavy lids slowly drooped. Through the slow hours of the night they sat beside the walf, who, out of the wilderness had come to Elkwan, and was now-returning. And in the intervals between her ministrations to the life which was slipping away, the guest of Guthrie learned much of the man with whom she shared the night watch.

In the candor of his explanation of the presence of the Indian girl at Elkwan, he had unconsciously revealed to the curious woman who studied him, intimate glimpses of heart. The emblem of the Distinguished Service order which he wore in the photograph in his bedroom vouched for his caliber as a soldier. But why, she mused, did the brother of the rich Charles Guthrie linger in the wilderness of the west coast when a girl of such loveliness as her three photographs suggested walted for his return? For the nature of their relations was established beyond doubt by the written sentiment on the photographs. Yet, his health returned, he seemed to be deliberately staying on in the north. What was behind it all, wondered Joan Quarrier; not plty for this poor child, who, in the manner of her kind, had given him worship for the only kindness life had vouchsafed her. That, clearly, would have anchored Guthrie at Elkwan while Ninda lived, but in face of the fact that the girl was desperately illcould not live into the autumn, he had

Why? So, together, they kept their watch, where, through the halting hours, the spirit of the waif of the forests hovered, awaiting release. Once, after a paroxysm of coughing, the veil of delirium lifted and there was a moment of consciousness. He leaned to her and the fear which looked from the groping eyes faded as she recognized the scarred cheek. The wraith of a smile touched the drawn mouth. As the stars paled above the purple tundra of Akimiski, again she recognized the face of Guthrie. Her lips moved. 'His straining ears caught a faint "Bo-jo," the Ojibwa farewell. . . . that he had been able to talk so freely of Ninda. She had proved her mettle -she, too, was a soldier. He pictured Ethel, with her horror of the ugly, thrown into the situation which Joan Quarrier had calmly met with delicacy and skill.

That afternoon Etlenne and Guthrie erected a spruce cross over the fresh grave in the little post cemetery and on the white wood of the arm, Guthrie burned with a hot iron the inscription: "In Memory of Ninda-A Soldier." which for years was to be the cause of much shaking of puzzled heads among the whites and the Crees who saw it.

At dawn the following morning, Guthrie's York boat with a Peterboro canoe in tow, slowly picked its way through the river mist of the Elkwan delta. In the stern, steering with a sweep hewn from a spruce sapling, stood the wiry Etienne, who knew the channels of the river mouths and the depths of the shoal coast from the Raft to Albany. That the belief in mermaids should | legs, lacked a tongue and teeth, but have survived all these years is extraordinary; but there is another curious side to the matter-that each successive mermaid seen through the centuries seems to have been uglier than its predecessor.

Of this there can be no doubt if one contrasts the description of the "mermaid" of the ancient Greeks with those of more recent times.

In an account of a "mermaid" captured off the coast of Natal, a writer describes it as having screamed like a woman when caught, and goes on to state that it had seven ribs on each side, lungs, kidneys and a heart about the size of an ox heart. According to the writer, the "mermald" was 11 feet long, had a huge tail instead of

Eskimos Eat Bird Raw

The Greenland auk or dove-kie is a greatly relished food among the Eskimos, who eat the bird raw, biting through the clean feathers into the firm meat of the breast. A hungry Eskimo, it is said, will eat as many as 100 little anks at one sitting. This would be more than could be crowded into four frying pans. The little auks live mainly on shrimp, and their mean is said to be very palatable. They lay their eggs among the rocks, to protec them from enemies.

water add two cupfuls of tart currant jelly or sweetened currant juice. Boil until the jelly is dissolved, add the juice of three lemons and three oranges. Serve very cold with a slice of orange and cracked ice to chill in each glass.

Cherry Mousse .- To one pint of double cream add three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, one cupful of cherry juice and a drop or two of almond extract. Chill and whip the cream until stiff. Turn into a mold, cover closely and pack in ice and salt. Serve in glasses.

Baked Alaska .-- Place a brick of ice cream on an inch-thick sponge cake, cover with a meringue, place on a board and brown quickly in a bot oven. Serve sliced.

Pears Gateaux .-- Cook six whole pears in a heavy sirup until tender without loosing their shape. Lift out chill and fill the cored cavity with chopped figs and walnuts with a pinch of salt. Set on ice and when serving time comes place each on a round of cake, pour over the sirup and serve.

Devonshire Cream .--- Place a quart or two of fresh milk in a shallow pan and keep in a cool place for twentyfour hours. Then place over slow heat and bring to the scalding point. Set away to chill, then serve the clotted cream with strawberries or other fresh fruit.

Strawberry Ice Cream -- To one quart of cream, take one cupful of sugar and one quart of crushed berries. Scald one-half pint of cream, add the sugar and stir until dissolved. Cool and add the remainder of the cream and the strained berries. Pack in freezer and freeze until stiff. Remove dasher and pack cream to riper for three hours or more.

United States and Japan Oppose British Cruiser Demands.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

BRITTANIA rules the waves, and she intends to go on ruling them, if the efforts and arguments of her representatives at the Geneva naval limitation conference are a true indication of the national spirit. Last week the conferees devoted themselves to the subject of cruisers, earnestly discussing the conclusions reached by the naval experts and, at this writing, having reached nothing like an agreement. As was explained a week ago, the British demanded a minmum of 600,000 tons of cruisers, most of them preferably below 7,500 tons each, on the ground that their world-wide commerce lanes and their need of protecting the home food supply required this, and evidently because their innumerable naval bases would enable the vessels of restricted cruising radius to operate anywhere. America wanted the limit put at 250,-000 tons and said the United States needed vessels of 10,000 tonnage, not having adequate naval bases abroad. Her delegates, however, in the effort to make the conference a success, offered tentatively to make the maximum limit 400,000 tons.

classes-coast defense craft of about 600 tons and fleet submersibles capable of going to sea with a combat squadron approximating 1,600 tons. were abandoned. The experts decided merely to limit the size of the largest submarines and set 1,800 tons as the tentative maximum.

China's voice was heard in the conference for the first time when Chao Hsin-chu, representative in the council of the League of Nations, made this announcement:

"It is repeatedly reported in the press of the Far East that the naval conference may also consider questions relating to China. I therefore have been requested by the Chinese national government and the people to state that the republic will refuse to recognize any decision affecting Chine which may be arrived at by the present, or any other conference in which China is not represented, participating equally in the deliberations."

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE had a lot of fun last week, mixed up with business. In the first place he celebrated his fifty-fifth birthday on the birthday of the nation, receiving innumerable messages of congratulation, eating a wonderful cake and receiving the mounted boy scout troop from Custer. The lads presented to the President a beautiful bay mare and a complete cowboy outfit of clothing, and he promptly donned the elaborate regalia. Next day, still wearing his cowboy hat, he attended the Tri-State Roundup at Bellefourche, Mrs. Coolidge acompanied him. and they enjoyed hugely the doings of the wild riders, Indians in war dress, cowboys and trick riders gathered from all parts of the West. The Chief Executive had ignored protests from organized sentimentalists against what they called the "commercialized cruelty" of the rodeo. Wednesday Mr. Coolidge put on his chaps and took a long ride on his new mare. Most important of the week's visitors at the summer White House was Ambassador Sheffield, who conferred with the President on the Mexican situation, reporting fully on conditions in the neighboring republic, and presumably also discussing the question of his resignation. He has been wanting for a year to give up his post and the time may be considered opportune. John J. Garrett of Maryland and Silas Strawn have been mentioned as successor to Mr. Sheffield. C OMMANDER BYRD and the other members of the crew of the transatlantic plane America were the recipients of many honors in Paris, and the commander was awarded the cross of the Legion of Honor. The aviators booked passage for return to the United States starting July 12. Byrd says he plans to lead a twoplane expedition to the Antarctic in the fall which will spend perhaps a year and a half in procuring information about the continent at the South pole. Clarence Chamberlin also planned immediate return to the United States by steamer, having declined to pilot the Columbia back, but Charles A. Levine said he was hunting for a French pilot who would bring him home on the big plane.

| tions between Egypt and Great Britain for years to come. This plan, however, was opposed by Lord Lloyd, British commissioner in Egypt, who believes the parliamentary regime there will collapse before long and that the British will then have to revive the protectorate. King Fuad is entirely subservient to the British, but Sarwat Pasha is said to be under the influence of Zaghloul Pasha, the Nationalist leader, who opposes the surrender of Egyptian claims to independence.

THOUGH stories of counter-revolu-tionary movements in Russia are often not trustworthy, those coming now are too numerous and too detailed to be ignored. The revival of the Red terror by the Soviet rulers has failed to terrify their opponents and the anti-British campaign conducted by the government does not distract the attention of the population from domestic to foreign questions. In secret meetings held in central Europe the couriers of the counter-revolution reported a tremendous increase in the dissensions among the Bolshevik leaders, with a new man rising in the background as a lieutenant of M. Stalin, present dictator of Moscow policies. He is M. Eliawa, formerly a quiet member of the party but steadily gaining influence over M Stalin, since he, too, is a former south Russian peasant. Meanwhile 50,000 counter-revolutionists have succeeded in smuggling themselves into Russian factories.

A T LAST D. C. Stephenson, former ruler of the Indiana Ku Klux klan and now a life convict, has told to the authorities his story of alleged corruption in Hoosier politics, and the people of the state are awaiting a grand explosion. Stephenson made his revelations to Prosecuting Attorney W. H. Remy of Indianapolis, and that official declined to tell what he heard until he is ready for action. Indianapolis newspapers asserted that Stephenson "told all"; that he hit high and low officialdom; that he revealed how he managed and paid for the campaign of Gov. Ed Jackson: that he told of ruling the legislature, dictating which bills should pass and which should die; that he played a stellar role in the election of Mayor John L Duvall of Indianapolis; that he dabbled in the election of a United States senator, and much more along that line. On the other hand, Stephenson's attorney declared that his client's only charges had to do with the pending prosecution of Mayor Duvall. The exgrand dragon himself said in part: "There's a little seat in the chair shop next to me that is vacant, and 1 expect to have company before long. I have not blown the entire lid off the Indiana situation. Remy did not insist that I do so. The rest will come later, and I promise that when the entire truth is told there will be a clean-up in this state that will startle the country and will benefit the state immeasurably."

Then the Japanese, who previously had supported the British desire to have the battleship program revised, surprised every one by coming out strongly against the British cruiser demands. Having received cabled instructions from Tokyo, Admiral Saito announced that the original minimum American figures of 250,000 tons as the maximum cruiser tonnage for America and Britain were quite acceptable to Japan. At the same time he declared the British figures, totaling approximately 600,000 tons, are out of the question so far as the Tokyo government is concerned.

"Japan is anxious to achieve a real reduction and limitation of armaments." Admiral Saito said. "We find the figures in the American plan most reasonable. Japan believes the minimum American figures should be adopted father than the higher tonnage, which, by promoting construction, would increase armaments. The other suggestions of vastly larger tonnage, which would require the other interested powers to build up to these high levels, would defeat the purpose of the conference."

"We would never dare get off the boat in Japan if we accepted the British scheme," one Japanese delegate said.

Much taken aback, the British delegates said they would look over their figures again to see what possible alterations could be made with a view to further discussions.

Observers in Geneva and official Washington see in the British demand for at least 550,000 tons of cruisers a manifestation of the British Insistence on preserving the mastery of the seas. Lord Robert Cecil and his colleagues, they say, are convinced that, though America would be granted parity with England, our congress would not permit the building of so large an American navy for reasons of economy and because the United States has no fear of war with Great Britain. Indeed. Viscount Cecil said as much last week.

"America does not fear us; America knows there is no possibility of war with Great Britain-then why does Washington insist on limiting our navy below the strength the admiralty states we require?" he said. "We must have he cruisers we demand. The admiralty insists they are essential to our defense." Concerning the United States' demand for 10,000-ton cruisers he asked: "But why does America need these boats? What possible potential enemy can she have in mind for such weapons?" In the experts' sessions concerning submarines the United States won when Great Britain's efforts to have 21-inch caliber torpedoes reduced were rejected and the Anglo-Japanese proposals to divide submarines into two

G ENERAL CHEN and a large part of his Chinese army went over to the Nationalists and as a result the southerners gained possession of most of Shantung province and at last reports were but a few miles from Tsingtao. The northern forces were still holding Tsinanfu, the capital, and a narrow strip north of the Yellow river. Conditions in Shantung were such that Japan decided to send two thousand more Japanese troops from Dairen to Tsingtao, and a hundred military railway men and telegraphers also were hurried into that region. This movement further enraged the Chinese against the Japanese and caused them to forget their animosity against the British.
