HERBERT HOOVER IS ELECTED PRESIDENT

According to reports available this (Thursday) morning, Hoover is elected President by an overwhelming majority - the greatest of modern times, maybe of all time. He is given forty states with 414 electoral votes, against eight states and 87 electoral votes for Smith.

In Texas the latest tabulations give Hoover a majority of more than 16,000 - something never before dreamed of in this state. New York went for Hoover.

In Hedley the vote was light, but more than four to one for Hoover - 278 to 66. Donley county voted: Hoover 716, Smith 363. This was less than half the qualified voting strength.

Twenty six Panhandle counties went for Hoover, and only four for Smith.

COMING TO HEDLEY

5000 BALES COTTON GINNED IN HEDLEY

Up to Wednesday noon of this week 4983 bales of cotton had been ginned at this place. The ginnings at the local plants are as follows:

|--------------------|-------------|
| Farmers Equity Gin | 980 |
| McKnight Gin | 940 |
| Beaty Gin | 1573 |
| Westberry Gin | 1490 |
| Total | 4983 |

DISASTROUS FIRE AT THE BEATY GIN

The Beaty Gin caught on fire shortly after 2 o'clock last Saturday morning, and before the flames were brought under control the ginning house and the storage room had been destroyed. The fire department did fine work, but the fire had too much headway. In addition to the house and gin machinery, 20 to 25 bales of cotton were burned. Though we have no official information as to the loss, we hear that it will probably amount to $20,000. The origin of the fire is not known.

This fire is calamitous both to Mr. Beaty and to the community, occurring as it did right in the midst of the busy cotton season. But Mr. Beaty was right on the job, as usual, and before the fire was out he had ordered new machinery and had plans under way for rebuilding. That's the way "live" men do things.

As we go to press, things are humming over there, and unless something beyond their control prevents, the gin will resume operation in less than two weeks.

The First Lady of the Land

Though Dolly Madison was twenty-one years younger than her distinguished husband, they lived together happily for forty-two years. When he died at Montpelier, his widow returned to Washington and though then nearly seventy and in straitened circumstances, she made her little house opposite Lafayette square, now the home of the Cosmos club, a magnetic center of social life. Her death in 1849, when she was seventy-seven, was mourned by the entire capital.

Her immediate successors, though perhaps less well known, each left the stamp of her personality upon the social regime of the White House. There was Elizabeth Monroe, a quiet, intellectual woman of stately bearing, and Louisa Johnson Adams, who, though born abroad, educated in foreign courts and "a person far beyond the average of her generation," was prevented by ill health from continuing the festivities initiated by Dolly Madison. Though Rachel Jackson died, perhaps of a broken heart, some months before "Old Hickory" was inaugurated and though she was much maligned during the stormy campaign which preceded his election, his passionate devotion to her memory was responsible for momentous events during his administration, though social life at the White House was actually in the hands of her sister-in-law, Mrs. A. J. Donelson. And it was Angelica Singleton, his daughter-in-law and a charming belle of the South, who presided over official dinners for President Van Buren, a widower.

Lettitia Tyler, made First Lady of the Land by the death of President Harrison only a few months after his inauguration, died in the White House. President Tyler met the woman who was to be his second wife, Julia Gardner of New York, in story book fashion. They were brought together by the death of her father, who was killed in an explosion on the Potomac and whose body was brought to the White House immediately after the accident.

The brilliant activity with which the new Mrs. Tyler brought her husband's administration to a close ended abruptly with the entrance of Sarah Childress Polk, a beauty of the dark Spanish type with a regal manner, whose strict religious beliefs caused her to banish dancing and the serving of refreshments from White House functions. Margaret Smith Taylor undertook the duties of First Lady of the Land reluctantly, resenting the demands this new honor made upon the husband she had already seen through the hazards of a spectacular career as Indian fighter. Consequently, so it is said, she sat quietly knitting and smoking a favorite pipe while her daughter, Mrs. William Wallace Bliss, saw to the installation of new lighting fixtures and furniture in the Presidential mansion and entertained for her father.

Abigail Powers Fillmore, a self-educated woman and a school teacher before her marriage, was another who, this time because of lameness, put the burden of playing hostess on a daughter. And Jane Means Pierce entered the important role under a cloud of grief for the death of her thirteen-year-old son killed in a railroad accident, and though a competent if somewhat detached hostess, she had such a dislike of politics that they were never discussed in the President's home while she was around!

During the administration of the bachelor President, James Buchanan, his ravishing niece, Harriet Lane Johnston, one of the most beautiful and popular of the women who have held that position, played First Lady of the Land and brought to the historic mansion once again a period of high festivity. Then came Mary Todd Lincoln, "a pleasant-faced, cheerful woman, who would be satisfactory in her place," whose life at the Capital, darkened by the death of her son Willie and the President's assassination, could not have been a very happy one. Her successor, Eliza McCord Johnson, though she taught her husband to read and write, was an invalid while she lived in Washington and was forced to relinquish the duties of her exalted position to a daughter.

A new social era, as well as new furniture and decorations, entered the White House when Julia Dent Grant became its mistress. A talent for entertaining and unflinching energy enabled her to promote a continuous round of gala functions, among them the brilliant marriage of her daughter Nellie, one of her four children. Lucy Webb Hayes, also an excellent hostess, modified the nature of White House entertainment by banishing the serving of intoxicating liquors. And the custom of lavish and efficient entertainment established by these two was ably continued by Mrs. John E. McElroy, sister of President Arthur, and successor to Lucretia Garfield, whose term as First Lady was cut short by her husband's assassination.

Though President Cleveland entered office a bachelor, his marriage to Francis Folsom soon after gave Washington one of the most popular hostesses it has ever known. The young Mrs. Cleveland was the idol of the women of her generation, many of whom still remember the dresses she wore at her famous public receptions. Caroline Scott Harrison, an unusual woman, skilled in painting and music and the first president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, died in the White House, leaving her responsibilities to a daughter, Mrs. McKee.

At the close of a resident McKinley's administration, a quiet one socially, due to the ill health of his wife, Ida Saxton McKinley, Edith Carow Roosevelt, another woman still fondly remembered, became First Lady of the Land. She was an engaging, intelligent person, keenly interested in the activities of her famous husband and such a devoted mother to her five children that she has been called the "American Cornelia." The best remembered occasion of her life in the historic mansion is the marriage of Alice Roosevelt to Nicholas Longworth, present speaker of the house.

With Helen Herron Taft, the new interests of modern woman were introduced into the White House. Mrs. Taft was active in civic enterprises and was the founder of the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra. Her successor, Edith Anna Wilson, died during her husband's first term in office and was followed by Edith Galt Wilson, mistress of the nation's first home during the troublous times of the World War. Florence Kling Harding was again a modern woman with modern ideas, being the first President's wife with the power to vote.

To the demands of a most elaborate social program Grace Goodhue Coolidge, who after seven years as First Lady of the Land yields her position next March, has lent a charm and met that have endeared her to the American people. She is a graduate of the University of Vermont and before her marriage taught in a school for the deaf in Northampton. Through the death of one of her two sons, Clivia, Jr., the long illness of her mother and the death of her husband's father, through wearing years of continuous publicity, she has maintained a calm, gracious dignity, and been always a true First Lady of the Land.

ARE YOU SUPERSTITIOUS ???

By FRANK ELLIS, JR.

Virtues of Rings

THE rings and screws of coffins have long been supposed to possess certain virtues. There are two things in use to prevent the cramp, viz., a ring of sea-horse teeth worn upon the finger, and fillets of green periwinkle tied about the calf of the leg, or wherever the cramp usually comes. This seems the more strange because neither of them has any relaxing virtue. They are more likely to act upon the spirits in the nerves than upon the substance in the nerves themselves.

In England a man who had epileptic seizures was recommended to try a ring made of 20 sixpences collected from matrons, not necessarily of his own age. He outlived the fits, which he attributed to the magic power of the ring.

The superstitions connected with marriage rings are various. In order to secure protection against diabolical arts, a ring of cane or of straw, or one made from the nail of a horse shoe was placed on the finger of the fiancée. Sometimes the ring was blessed by passing it three times over water. As many as four or five blessed rings were placed upon the finger of the bride-to-be. Another custom was to place a ring under the feet of the couple during the marriage ceremony. The first few drops of a barrel of wine were often poured over the ring.

Amulets

THE Romans, the Greeks, the Egyptians and the Orientals all believed that if a precious stone, a piece of writing, a ring or an artificial production were tied around the neck or any part of the body it would ward off all evil. This belief exists to the present day.

The Danish women, before they put a newborn infant into the cradle place there or over the door, an amulet to prevent the evil spirits from hurting the child, salt, bread, garnet or steel, or some cutting instrument made from steel.

A toy with bells and a piece of coral attached to the end, suspended from the necks of infants, is supposed to assist them in cutting their teeth.

Pictures of religious subjects are considered as amulets or talismans throughout Russia. In Japan amulets and talismans are numerous, and the entrance-gates of private residences or the fronts of the houses of the townspeople are covered with numerous specimens.

Bird Bowers

The different types of bowerbirds found in Australia build various types of bowers which serve as a stage upon which the male may display his grace and activity before his feminine audience. Some build cabins with twigs in front, some an arched and others a sort of platform decked with mosses, flowers and bright berries. These bowers are entirely distinct from the nests.

Sinister Black Cap

The black cap, worn by a judge, has an ancient origin. In olden days when a man was tried by an ecclesiastical court the judge, who was usually a bishop, covered his forehead with a black cap when passing sentence of death to show that he was not acting in a secular capacity.

Dorothy's Mother Proves Claim

Children don't ordinarily take to medicines but here's one that all of them love. Perhaps it shouldn't be called a medicine at all. It's more like a rich, concentrated food. It's pure, wholesome, sweet to the taste and sweet in your child's little stomach. It builds up and strengthens weak, puny, underweight children, makes them eat heartily, brings the roses back to their cheeks, makes them playful, energetic, full of life. And no bilious, headachy, constipated, feverish, fretful baby or child ever failed to respond to the gentle influence of California Fig Syrup on their little bowels. It starts lazy bowels quick, cleans them out thoroughly, tones and strengthens them so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

Millions of mothers know about California Fig Syrup from experience. A Western mother, Mrs. J. G. Moore, 119 Cliff Ave., San Antonio, Texas, says: "California Fig Syrup is certainly all that's claimed for it. I have proved that with my little Dorothy. She was a bottle baby and very delicate. Her bowels were weak. I started her on Fig Syrup when she was a few months old and it regulated her, quick. I have used it with her ever since for colds and every little set-back and her wonderful condition tells better than words how it helps."

Don't be imposed on. See that the Fig Syrup you buy bears the name, "California" so you'll get the genuine, famous for 50 years.

Touches that Add Style to Dresses

By MAE MARTIN

It's amazing to see how faded, out-of-style dresses can be transformed by a few buttons, a little braid and the quick magic of home dyeing or tinting. You don't need any experience to tint or dye successfully if you are sure to use true, fadeless Diamond Dyes. Tinting with them is easy as bluing, and dyeing takes just a little more time to "set" the color. They never give things that re-dyed look which comes from using inferior dye. Insist on Diamond Dyes and save disappointment. Over 20 million packages used a year.

My new 64-page illustrated book, "Color Craft," gives hundreds of money-saving hints for renewing clothes and draperies. It's Free. Write for it, now, to Mae Martin, Dept. G-148, Diamond Dyes, Burlington Vermont.

THE BALES JURY IS UNABLE TO AGREE

The jury in the Bales case in the district court at Clarendon, after reporting two or more times their inability to reach an agreement, was discharged last Saturday by Judge Fires.

Judge Fires also entered an order changing the venue of this case to Childress county, and it is scheduled to come up for trial at the next term of district court there.

We are informed that the jury stood nine for conviction and three for acquittal.

A FAST GETAWAY to High Compression Performance

FIRST, a quick, easy start. Then, high-compression performance from any motor.

That's what happens when Conoco Ethyl goes through the carburetor. This super motor fuel gets the best from all types of motors in all kinds of weather.

By performing perfectly in the new high-compression motors, it releases the full power which these motors were designed to develop. By "turning carbon into power" it makes motors of lower compression deliver high-compression performance.

Conoco Ethyl is indeed the miracle motor fuel. It is giving thousands of motorists an added pleasure in car ownership. When you try it, you'll quickly understand what a difference Conoco Ethyl can make in the general operation of your car.

Get it at the familiar Conoco Ethyl Sign.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES

Sunday School and church were well attended Sunday considering the weather. In the afternoon another meeting was held in which several new deacons were ordained. Rev Miller of Memphis officiating. We are glad to see these given such duties. May God bless their lives and may they fulfil the duties of their new positions.

There will be no more "cold shoulders" in our church on chilly evenings, for with the new gas heaters installed the building is well heated.

The women of the church were "on the job" again Saturday with another sale. The results are pleasing and profitable.

Several of the classes from the basement were entertained with a Halloween social on Tuesday evening. The basement was decorated in the most spooky manner and those present not only had a weird old witch to tell their fortunes, but visited the dead man's cave. Eek! Eek!—by the way it must have been terrifying. Refreshments of salad, cocoa and cake were served before the witch bade all "goodnight."

R. E. L. Snodgrass and family left Tuesday for Fort Worth, where they will reside. Their friends here regret to see them leave, but wish them happiness in the new home.

When Food Sours

Lots of folks who think they have "indigestion" have only an acid condition which could be corrected in five or ten minutes. An effective anti-acid like Phillips Milk of Magnesia soon restores digestion to normal.

Phillips goes away with all that sourness and gas right after meals. It prevents the distress so apt to occur two hours after eating. What a pleasant preparation to take! And how good it is for the system! Unlike a burning dose of soda—which is but temporary relief at best—Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

Next time a hearty meal, or too rich a diet has brought on the least discomfort, try—

Electrical Contractor Gives Advice to Others

"I think Milks Emulsion should be advertised all over the world, so as to help all of the sick.

"In 1912 I had a great deal of trouble with my stomach and bowels. For several years I tried everything that I saw advertised, but I kept getting worse all the time. I got so bad that I was in bed for three months in 1916. While in Philadelphia in 1917 I happened to see one of your ads. I had tried everything that I thought was any good, but concluded to give Milks Emulsion a trial. It could not do any worse than the rest.

"To my surprise it regulated my bowels and I found I did not suffer any more after eating and had no pain at all. I continued the use of Milks Emulsion for six months, until I was in fine health and have been for the past eight years. When I think of the way I suffered night and day for six years, I feel that every person with stomach and bowel trouble should know about Milks Emulsion." Yours truly, S. B. WHAT A DOCTOR KNOWS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

There IS a way of overcoming the tendency to constipation. And here is how you can PROVE it.

The next time your bowels need any assistance, don't take the first laxative that comes to mind. Take one the druggist can assure you is made with CASCARA. Just as effective as using force, and it's good for the system. Indeed, it helps make good blood. For cascara is nothing but the bark of a tree. The Indians chew this bark, and live to an old age without a day's sickness.

What happens when you cascade the bowels? They will usually function well for SEVERAL DAYS. One more dose—no larger, and perhaps smaller than the first—and the bowels function of their own accord for a still longer time. Until you don't feel the need of any aid of any sort for weeks-on-end.

So, the only habit you get from cascara is that of natural and normal regularity. How different from things one must usually repeat on the morrow! Cascara is the ideal laxative; and the familiar little candy Cascaret is doubtless its ideal form. Children beg for these tasty tablets, and many men and women wouldn't think of taking ANYTHING else for the purpose. And EVERY drugstore has them.

The Red Road A Romance of Braddock's Defeat By Hugh Pendexter Illustrations by Irwin Myers

With the shattered army in a wild rout the Onondaga and I fell back to the wagons where I had left the girl. I stepped over a man dying from arrow wounds and would have left him had I not recognized him as Bushy, my old playmate. This was a sorry ending of all our boyish dreams, when we played at Indian fighting and all ways emerged the victors. For love of the old days, I caught him around the shoulders and yelled for the Onondaga to pick him up by the heels. The Indian had no desire to interrupt his fighting by helping one as good as dead. Yet he would not leave me and he did as I directed, and we managed to get Bushy to the first wagon. Bushy stared at me vacantly at first, then knew me, and tried to pull me down to him. I knelt and he faintly whispered: "What d—d fools we've been. Web. Tell Joe I'm sorry."

back of the crazed brute. Morgan motioned for me to mount. "Take her out of this! For God's sake lose no time!" I cried. "She sorter seems to like you—" he began, but I lifted him up and placed him behind her and struck the horse on the flank with my rifle-barrel. I knew she cried out although I could not hear what she said. She made a dismount, but young Morgan passed an arm around her slim waist and the horse plunged down the road toward the fort. But I shall never forget the expression of her small face as she started helplessly back at me and the Onondaga. During this brief bit of action the Indian had been wounded again. This time in the head. We fell back about ten to shoulder. An arrow whizzed into my arm and the Onondaga broke off the quivering shaft. Arrow or bolt let raked my forehead and threatened to fill my eyes with blood had I not snatched a neck-cloth from a dead man's neck and improvised a bandage. The savages were now overrunning the first division of wagons, surrounding them to their last for plunder. Only this carelessness saved those in the rear below the wagons from being exterminated. As it was, fifty of the Indians pursued us to the Monongahela and killed almost at every step. The regulars had thrown away arms, accoutrements and clothing and, when overtaken, died stupidly like oxen. The curk crack of the rifles on each side of the road marked the road retreat of our provincials. They were fighting steadily and composedly, and their resistance discouraged a final onslaught that might have cost the life of every Englishman on the fort side of the river. We were within a few rods of the river, which was filled with frantic fugitives, when five of the pursuing savages, closed in on Round Paw and me. I had the barrel of my rifle left and my ax. One man went down beneath the barrel. I slipped and fell on him. A knife stabbed through the calf of my left leg, but the man under me was dead. "Yo-hah! Tell his ghost I sent you!" yelled the Onondaga, and my assailant fell dead across me. I got to my feet and beheld the Onondaga in the clutches of two savages, the fifth having passed on to overtake other victims. Before I could reach a hand one of my friend's assailants, an Ottawa, choked and went limp with Round Paw's knife through his throat. "They say a brave man of the Wolf clan of the Onondaga will soon die!" painted Round Paw, and he essayed to sound his war-whoop as he and the remaining savage wound their arms about each other and fell. I pawed them apart and raised my ax, but the French Indian was dying, by the time I could yank him clear of my friend. He was a Mingo, one of the Senecas who had preferred the Ohio to the Genesee. "A brave man has killed me," he faintly said. The Onondaga propped himself up on one elbow and feebly waved his ax, but his voice rang out so strong I did not believe he was seriously hurt. He proudly proclaimed: "Yo-hah! A good fight! This man did me a very great honor. He fought well. But the Wolf has strong sharp teeth—Ha-hum-weh—Ha-hum-weh—Ha-hum-weh—" And he dropped dead across the body of the dead man who had killed him. I entered the river above the ford to escape the crowd of fugitives, some of whom were drowned in their mad haste to make the crossing. Bushy, Cromit and Round Paw had paid the price of a stubborn man's ignorance. Of all those who would never return from the fatal errand I would miss the Onondaga the most; and after him Cromit of the mighty hands. And there was another ache in my heart as I envisioned the fair Josephine, waiting in old Alexandria for her lover to return. Out of twenty-nine gallant men to ride from the old town, only four were to go back. My last backward glance at the ford beheld Colonel Washington's horse crumpling beneath him. At first I thought he, as well as his mount, was hit. But he was quickly up and catching a riderless horse and swinging into the saddle. Then, with his back to the ford, he rode through the trees, now vanishing, now appearing, and close in front of him was a fringe of his riflemen, fighting calmly and deliberately. This action of the rear guard was made up of many individual duels. The Virginians' trick of having two men behind a tree inveigled many a screaming savage into the path of a deadly bullet. A riflemen would fire, when sure of his target, and some painted warriors would rush to dispatch him before he could reload. His companion would fire and check the charge. This was repeatedly done, and none as calmly and coolly as a man would work in curing his tobacco. There was no pursuit beyond the ford, although only weariness, or their love of plunder, prevented them from killing us for many a long mile. Later the colonials learned that Dunbar's retreat was unexpected and the French hastened back to the fort, still believing they would be attacked. Those who had fled on horses were well on their way to the first crossing, or far beyond it. I suppose it was the evening of that same day that I came to a stunning halt at the edge of an opening and stared across a large cleared space. The spot was familiar, and with a shock I suddenly discovered it was on the Allegheny and about half a mile above Duquesne. I did not lose my wits again. From that moment on my memory is painfully exact. Savages were singing and dancing around some stakes. I counted twelve of the stakes, and to each was fastened an inert charred figure. From the red coats and other trophies he had displayed I knew the dead men had been regulars and that they had died by torture. I was glad they were through with all and were beyond all further misery. I must have been very weak when I came to my senses on the edge of the clearing, for I could not have tasted food during my blind wanderings. The shock of the twelve stakes, how ever, gave me something that answered for physical strength, and I fell back rapidly from the dangerous neighborhood. There were no Indians abroad in the forest, for none was willing to miss the feasting and drinking and tortures, let alone the distribution of the rich booty. Moving painfully and without sighting any human being I came to the rough country at the head of Turtle creek and forded and gained the army's camp on Rush creek. It did not seem possible that seventy odd hours before Braddock's army had halted here. That was far back among the old things, as the Indians would have expressed it. Then by slow stages I followed the Braddock road back to the Great Meadows. All along the road were muskets and accoutrements, discarded by those who had passed over the road ahead of me, and there was no need to be saying of powder and lead. It did seem as if all the buzzards in North America had come to western Pennsylvania, and never have I seen bears so plentiful. There is a story based on the Monongahela but the effect that the bears grew to have a contempt for human beings after eating the dead of Braddock's army. I never placed credence in the story, but I can catch that the brutes were not easily frightened by my approach. I shot several but depended upon rabbits, turkeys and a deer for food. More than once I had to fight my nerves before I could approach a huddled form in the road ahead, fearing it might be the girl. Just beyond the Meadows I came upon three men cooking deer-meat over a little fire. They were wild-looking creatures and at my approach sprang up and snatched for their guns. "Have any of you seen a wagoner on a horse, Dan Morgan by name?" I called to them. "And was he riding double with a fellow younger than he?" "Devil take your man Morgan and 'covey feller!" cried one of them. "Git out of sight afore I lose my patience. I promised my youngsters a French scalp. By the Eternal! Your hair might do just as well! Fit crops to and growing, and now we must quit 'em and fort ourselves. Curse the day we ever heard the name of Braddock." "We'll do our own fighting in our own way next time," bawled one of the other men. His words fell tidly on my ears yet I was to live to recall them, and to realize the fellow had unwittingly uttered the one great truth that the battle of the Monongahela taught us—self-dependence. From the beginning of the colonies, we had relied on England, and now that the best she could give us for our protection had miserably failed, we were to learn self-reliance, and the few long rifles that allowed a fragment of the army to escape across the second ford were in my day to increase to thousands. But that knowledge was all ahead of me; and disheartened at not finding some trace of Morgan and the Dinwiddie girl I left the sullen trio and continued my weary journey. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

Between You and Me "Common sense is the most uncommon kind of sense." By HAROLD BELL WRIGHT

Number One "Hit would sure be a God's blessin' if every feller would let everybody else do the things that he wants everybody else to let him do himself. At the same time there ain't no sort of sense in lettin' the other feller do to you what you wouldn't do to yourself."—Preachin' Bill. DID you ever notice how many of our old proverbs and sayings are born of a very human wish to justify an inhuman selfishness? By making excuses into proverbs we try to make selfishness respectable. Well, between you and me, most of these old saws need retiling. "If you don't look out for yourself no one will look out for you." I suppose that choice bit of devil's philosophy dates back to the time when Mr. Cave Man was first struck with the bright idea that it would be easier to steal his neighbor's stone hatchet than to find a good rock and make one for himself. To most of us, in this present generation of city-dwellers and hatched-men, this ancient proverb is the law of life and the gospel of success. By it we justify every crime we commit against our neighbors. To our children it is mother's milk. But consider those who have looked out for themselves so zealously that no one now would look out for them if they were walking blindfolded on the edge of the pit. By their selfishness they have forfeited right to the respect of their fellows, and enjoy the unselfish love and confidence of no man, woman, or child. Having never hesitated to betray others to their own self-interest, they are met on every side by eyes of suspicion, abhorrence and hate. Surrounded by self-seeking followers, but without real friends, they hear always as they pass, the warning cry of the people: "unclean, unclean!" "The Lord helps those who help themselves," says the cop as he clips his paw into the basket of the old penant vendor. And, "The Lord helps those who help themselves," says the banker who puts his soft, white fingers into the earnings of the workers, the little all of the widows, and the meager savings of the old. But some fine day a long suffering people will rise up and cry with righteous resolution and terrible meaning: "The Lord help those who dare to help themselves!" Yes, the philosophy of "give and take" is sound and good when it is written down exactly that way. But when one writes "give" in almost invisible letters, and spreads "take" in shouting capitals clear across the page, there is something wrong with the line. Give or you shall not take. When all is said and done no one may draw unlimited checks on the Bank of Life without occasionally making deposits. And, by the same token, that which one deposits one is permitted to take again because it is one's own. If we give hatred, we are hated. If we give friendship, we have friends. If we respect others, others respect us. If we trust no one, no one will trust us. If we give nothing, we receive nothing. If we refuse happiness and well-being to others, we cannot hope to take the like for ourselves. Do you remember what happened to the goose that laid the golden egg? Well, but did you ever ask what happened to the poor folk who killed the goose? He went fat broke, that's what happened to him. Yes, you see, he figured he could save all expense of caring for the goose and take all her gold by the same operation. He thought he could give nothing and take everything, and he found the error in his calculations too late. There is every reason to believe that if this person had given his goose some decent encouragement or shown some appreciation of her efforts in his behalf, he could have continued to profit. If he had given her the three square meals per day and the comfortable nest to which she was justly entitled, and had taken her out to a movie once in a while, or treated her to some sort of a sundae now and then between eggs, he would be enjoying golden omelets for breakfast even unto this day. By trying to take everything and give nothing, he lost his income and his goose, and proved himself one of the prize fools of history. "Live and let live," is only another way of saying: if you do not let live you will die. "No man liveth unto himself" is not a preachment; it is the plain statement of a scientific fact. Any one who ignores that fact dies. The death of such a person might not matter so much, perhaps, but for the equally scientific fact that "No man dieth unto himself." All of which leads to this: While no man can live without some consideration for others, each must do his own living. One can do much to help others live but, when all is said and done, no one can do the other fellow's living for him. The moment one discovers that the only thing of real importance in life is living, that moment one begins truly to live. The keystone in the arch of a well-lived life is this: To freely grant to others the privileges and rights one demands for one's self. And to firmly demand for one's self the privileges and rights one grants to others. The best way to do a particular and definite thing is to do it in a particular and definite way—a proposition which, I think, calls for no argument. To particularly and definitely make living the main issue of one's life, that is the thing. Most of us are so busy making a living that we have no time left in which to live. But to make a side issue of living in order to live, is not intelligent, to say the least. Side issues are all right as side issues—the same as pepper, salt and mustard. In fact, it is the side issues that give flavor to life's bill of fare. But can one make a full meal of pepper, salt and mustard without stirring up a revolution in the department of the interior? I think not. Well, business, politics, the sciences and art, religion, education, and whatever else we commonly bother about, are at best only side issues of living. Great souls have lived greatly without most of the things which we of these days call necessities and to which we give our lives. You see, it is when one puts one's life into one's business instead of putting one's business into one's life that one fails in living. We work at living like some folks farm. The farm is all right—broad fertile fields, wooded slopes, and well watered valleys—but the weeds have choked out the corn, taken possession of the potatoes, and overrun the garden. The hay lies unstacked, all sod den with the damp, and the wheat, full ripe, drops its good grains at each breath of passing breeze. The fences are down, the barn a shanty, the house a hovel, while pigs roam at will over the entire place. Six or seven round-up in the front porch, a collection of irreverent in the kitchen, coon skins and fox hides stretched on the south wall of the house, and a well-defined odor of potato pervading the atmosphere of the home tell the story. Hunting is a pleasant and profitable side issue to farm life, but one does not plow corn nor cultivate potatoes with coon dogs. Neither does one harvest wheat with shotguns or rifles. Never, perhaps, in human history were the opportunities for living so great as they are today. Certainly our farm is as large as when "the sower went forth to sow." And the need for great lives is as pressing today as when the Master said: "This do and thou shalt live." Souls have not, depreciated in value since Calvary, but the art of growing great souls is fast becoming a lost art. Our trouble is the weeds of life are getting the start. The grain of life is being wasted. Our fences are down and all the hogs in creation have full right of way in our fields and gardens. And this is so because the side issues of modern life take too much of our time, thought and energy. With a full pack of orders, clubs, circles and interests, and with guns of public oratory, the press and polite conversation, we hunt the coons, foxes, possums and polecats of personal publicity, social prestige, or public favor, satisfied with a few skins to tack up on the south side of the house. Go to, friends! Let us hoe our corn, dig our potatoes and harvest our wheat. But don't forget the farmer in the parable who was all for bigger and better barns. He also died. "Look out for number one," is in reality a solemn warning, the same as a railway crossing sign. "Look out for the cars." It means: nothing that others can do to you is to be compared with the evil that you can do to yourself. "Preaching? Sure! What did you think I was doing?" (© 1925 by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.) Real News A bunch of reporters and photographers from the Los Angeles paper were trying to get into a certain room at the Hollywood hospital when Dr. George Martyn happened along. "What is there so extraordinary about the accident that has made it so interesting?" he inquired of the head nurse. "Why, haven't you heard?" she claimed the nurse. "The poor fellow was knocked down and run over by a horse-drawn vehicle!"—Los Angeles Times.

It May Be Urgent When your Children Cry for It Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctor's word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it. Petition to Heaven Out of the Ordinary "Bob" Edwards, a Canadian member of parliament, who founded a little paper called the Calgary Eye Opener among the Northwest Mounted Police about a quarter of a century ago, composed at the time a little prayer, perhaps in emulation of that of Robert Louis Stevenson. Quoth Bob: "Lord, let me keep a straight jaw in the path of honor—and a straight face in the presence of solemn asses. "Let me not truckle to the high, nor outdoze the low; let me frolic with the jack and the joker and win the game. "Lead me into Truth and Beauty—and tell me her name. "Keep me sane, but not too sane. Let me not take the world or myself too seriously, and grant more people to laugh with and fewer to laugh at. "Let me condemn no man because of his grammar and no woman on account of her morals, neither being responsible for either. "Preserve my sense of humor and of values and proportions. Let me be helpful while I live, but not live too long. Which is about all to say, Lord Amen." Should Have Been Tanned "Her smile was so irresistible," said a resourceful husband in speaking of "the other woman" in a recent divorce suit, "that I couldn't stay away from her." He basked in the sunshine of her smile until he got sunburnt.—Farm and Fireside. Automobile Note It doesn't help much to tell the nurse you had the right of way.—The Toledo Blade.

NOTICE OF ROAD BOND ELECTION

THE STATE OF TEXAS) COUNTY OF DONLEY)

TO THE RESIDENT PROPERTY TAX-PAYING VOTERS OF DONLEY COUNTY, TEXAS:

TAKE NOTICE That an election will be held on the 21st day of November, 1928, within Donley County, Texas, to determine if said County shall issue bonds and if ad valorem taxes shall be levied in payment thereof in obedience to an election order entered by the Commissioners Court on the 25th day of October, 1928, which order is as follows:

On this, the 20th day of October, the Commissioners Court of Donley County, Texas, convened in recessed regular Session, at the regular meeting place thereof in the Court house at Clarendon, Texas, all members of the Court, to-wit:

J. K. Porter, County Judge,
Edwin Baley, Commissioner Precinct
No. 1,
J. H. Hurn, Commissioner Precinct No. 2,
J. F. Stiles, Commissioner Precinct No. 3,
J. R. Bain, Commissioner Precinct No. 4,
Lottie E. Lane, County Clerk and ex-officio Clerk Commissioners Court, being present, came on to be considered the petition of J.
T. Patman and one hundred (100) other persons, praying that bonds be issued by said Donley County, Texas, in the sum of One Million ($1,000,000.00) Dollars, bearing four and three fourths (4 3/4) per cent rate of interest, and maturing at such times as may be fixed by the Commissioners Court, serially or otherwise, not later than thirty (30) years from their date, for the purpose of the construction, maintenance and operation of macadamized, graveled or paved roads and turnpikes, or in the aid thereof, and whether or not ad valorem taxes shall be levied on all taxable property within said County, for the purpose of paying the interest on said bonds and to provide a sinking fund for the redemption thereof at maturity; and

It appearing to said Court that said petition is signed by more than fifty (50) of the resident qualified property tax paying voters of said Donley County; and

It further appearing that the amount of bonds to be issued will not exceed one fourth of the assessed valuation of the real property of said Donley County;

IT IS THEREFORE CONSIDERED AND ORDERED BY THE COURT that an election be held in said County on the 21st day of November, 1928, which is not less than thirty (30) days from the date of this order, to determine whether or not the bonds of said County shall be issued in the amount of One Million ($1,000,000.00) Dollars, bearing four and three fourths (4 3/4) per cent of interest and maturing at such times as may be fixed by the Commissioners Court, serially or otherwise, not later than thirty (30) years from their date, for the purpose of the construction, maintenance and operation of macadamized, graveled or paved roads and turnpikes, or in aid thereof; and whether or not ad valorem taxes shall be levied upon all the property in said County subject to taxation, for the purpose of paying the interest on said bonds and to provide a sinking fund for the redemption thereof at maturity.

The said election shall be held under the provisions of Chapter 16, Acts of 29th Legislature, First Called Session, 1925.

All persons who are legally qualified voters of this State and of this County, and who are resident property taxpayers in Donley County shall be entitled to vote at said election, and all voters desiring to support the proposition to issue the bonds shall have written or printed on their ballots the words:

"FOR THE ISSUANCE OF BONDS AND
THE LEVYING OF AD VALOREM TAXES
IN PAYMENT THEREOF."

And those opposed shall have written or printed on their ballots the words:

"AGAINST THE ISSUANCE OF BONDS AND THE LEVYING OF AD VALOREM TAXES IN PAYMENT THEREOF."

The polling places and presiding officers of said election shall be respectively as follows:

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Italy Also Rejects Anglo-French Navy Agreement—Smith Invades South.

BY EDWARD W. PICKARD

ITALY, like the United States, has rejected the Anglo-French agreement as a basis for future naval limitation. Premier Mussolini's note is not so abrupt as Secretary Kellogg's, but is just as specific in its objections to naval limitation by categories, and undoubtedly completes the destruction of the agreement.

The note reaffirms Premier Mussolini's declaration in the Italian senate last June, when he said, "Italy is ready to accept as the limit of armaments any figure, even the lowest, provided it is not exceeded by any other continental European power, meaning, of course, France. It insists, however, on consideration of all branches of arms, land, naval, and air, in any discussion for disarmament."

The Fascist note launches into a lengthy explanation of why it favors limitation of global tonnage for navies instead of limitation by categories. The argument is identical with that advanced by the American delegation at the tripartite naval conference at Geneva a year ago, and repeated in the American reply to the French-British memorandum.

"Each state must be left free to use its tonnage quota the way it believes it best answers its particular needs, both as regards the type of ships and its armament," Mussolini explains.

France, which admittedly would be the chief beneficiary of the agreement with England, is mighty touchy on the subject. Last week the authorities in Paris seized the person of Harold Horan, correspondent of the Universal Service, because he had cabled to New York a letter Foreign Minister Briand had sent to French ambassadors regarding the interpretation of the pact, and compelled him to agree to leave the country. Mr. Horan's explanation was that his employer, William Randolph Hearst, had handed him the document with instructions to send it to America.

The British cabinet voted to make public all the documents and correspondence in connection with the agreement "as soon as practicable." It was necessary first to get the consent of all the nations concerned. Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, who is now in California in search of health and a rest, declined to discuss this subject or any other affairs of state. He is suffering from neuritis in his left arm but is said to be getting better and gaining weight.

GEN. CHIANG KAI-SHEK, generalissimo of the Chinese Nationalist armies, was elected first President of the Nationalist government of the country, including Manchuria, and was inaugurated on the seventeenth anniversary of the revolt against the emperor on October 10, 1923. Chiang, who is only forty-one years old, actually is only President of the government state council, but as he is also chairman of the Kuomintang central executive committee, which controls the government, he is the dominant figure in China. The United States, Germany, France and the Netherlands were the only foreign governments that sent congratulations to General Chiang.

Dr. S. Parkes Cudman, chairman of the China famine relief organization in New York, has received from a mission in Kansu a letter telling of terrible conditions in that remote province. Last year's earthquake killed 20,000 and reduced 100,000 to dire poverty; this year's crops were ruined by drought and famine conditions prevail already; and to cap it all the Moslems, who form the majority of the population are in revolt and have sacrificed at least 200,000 people.

GOV. AL SMITH was almost quiescent the first part of last week, so far as the campaign was concerned, but Wednesday night he left New York for a visit to the solid South. He passed through part of North Carolina and Tennessee, making no set speeches but appearing frequently on the rear platform of his car and stopping at Chattanooga for a conference with party leaders. Then he proceeded to Louisville, where he delivered an address on Saturday. His schedule called for a week of campaigning from Missouri to Ohio with a speech in Chicago October 19; then a brief rest in Albany followed by a final tour of two weeks in Atlantic seaboard cities. Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland opened the Democratic campaign in Chicago with a rousing speech, most of which was devoted to the religious issue and a vigorous attack on intolerance. The rest of the time he spoke on prohibition, which he doesn't like. Ritchie was followed in Chicago by Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York.

Herbert Hoover, whose appearance in Elizabethton, Tenn., was declared by his supporters to have been a great success in the way of winning votes, put in much time preparing for his Boston address. He also conferred with New York state Republican leaders and told them the result there was up to them. They appeared fairly confident but do not underestimate the battle that confronts them.

H. O. Hansbrough, once a Republican senator from North Dakota and now a supporter of Al Smith, put forth the charge last week in a Minneapolis speech that Hoover "is credited" with owning oil and mining properties in Colombia and Mexico, and demanded that he withdraw from the campaign and permit the selection of a Republican candidate "who cannot be haled around in handling our foreign relations." Henry J. Allen, director of Republican publicity, learning that Hansbrough was to make the accusation, wired him that there was no foundation for the statement and that it could only be uttered for the purpose of gaining votes by deliberate lies. Hansbrough, however, delivered his address and made the charges, which he insisted were "based on facts."

SAN ANTONIO surrendered absolutely to the American Legion and its former service men had a fine time at their convention in the Texas city. General Pershing delivered an address on the opening day devoted mainly to a plea to the Legion to create an interest in good government that would impel voters to go to the polls on election day. Lord Allenby of England was given a great ovation when he was presented with the Legion's distinguished service cross. Wednesday the big parade was staged, with about 10,000 members of the Legion and its auxiliary in line and numerous bands filling the air with melody. The procession was more than four hours passing the Alamo where it was reviewed by various dignitaries. Louis Cille was awarded next year's convention, and Paul V. McNutt, dean of Indiana university law school, was elected national commander.

UNITED SPANISH WAR VETERANS held their annual convention in Havana, Cuba, where more than 7,000 members and their friends were welcomed by President Machado. Col. William L. Grayson of Savannah, Ga., was elected commander in chief almost unanimously; and Otto Cille of Minnesota senior vice commander and Frank E. Shea of Connecticut junior vice commander. The parade, which was held on the anniversary of Cuba's ten-year revolt, was participated in by Cuban army contingents and officers and men from the battleship Texas. The Maine memorial was officially dedicated with impressive ceremonies.

THE American navy's big dirigible Los Angeles successfully made the round trip from Lakehurst to San Antonio and back for the purpose of visiting the Texas city at the time of the American Legion convention. One night air mail flyer made complaint that he narrowly escaped collision with the airship because of its lack of lights.

COMMANDER RICHARD E. BYRD is finally on his way to the Antarctic, for, with members of his party, he set sail from San Pedro, Calif., in the whaler C. A. Larsen, the flagship of his expedition. The other three vessels will be met in New Zealand and the expedition will go thence to Ross sea. Byrd expects to make an airplane flight over the South pole, but this will be only an incident, for the commander's chief purpose is to make a long and intensive study of the Antarctic regions.

CLEGGY and lay members of the Episcopal church in large numbers gathered in Washington for the forty-ninth triennial general convention of the church. The opening service was held in the natural amphitheater on Mount St. Alban, and President Coolidge delivered an address in which he emphasized religion as the underpinning of all government and of all society. In the first session of the house of deputies Dr. Ze Barney Phillips of Washington was elected chairman.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE learned the other day that a score of ministers to foreign countries who graduated to their present positions from the foreign service of the Department of State had tentatively agreed to try to hold on to their jobs by withholding their resignations when Mr. Coolidge retires next March. The President thereupon made it known that the future of these "career" diplomats would rest wholly in the hands of his successor who will have full power to remove them.

President Coolidge has appointed an unusually large number of career men to the highest diplomatic posts. While sympathetic toward as permanent a foreign service as it is possible to attain, the President fears the present reported move on the part of the ministers is simply another manifestation of a disposition by some government services to attempt to organize themselves into self-perpetuating bodies.

EVIDENCE against dry law offenders obtained by tapping wires is still admissible in federal courts regardless of state laws making wire tapping a crime, for the United States Supreme court has refused to review its decision so holding. Justice Holmes dissented in the original case, denouncing the government for wilfully breaking one law to enforce another. New York was aroused by the discovery that about thirty persons had died there within a few days supposedly from drinking alcohol that had been poisoned by government agents to make it nonpotable. The police promptly closed a lot of speakeries in the lower East side section where most of the alcohol was obtained.

FOR the second consecutive time the New York Yankees of the American league won the world series, defeating the St. Louis Cardinals of the National league in four straight games. The final game was remarkable for the number of home runs. Babe Ruth closed the season in a blaze of glory by making three. As their share of the gate receipts the Yanks received $5,831 each, and the Cards $4,197 each.

TEXTILE workers of New Bedford, Mass., have called off their strike that had lasted 25 weeks and accepted a compromise under which wages will be reduced 5 per cent instead of 10, and the manufacturers will hereafter give the workers 30 days' notice of any proposed wage cut.

GRAF ZEPPELIN, the huge German dirigible, the first to cross the Atlantic carrying paid passengers, started from Friedrichshafen Thursday morning on its memorable flight and landed at Lakehurst, N. J., where the navy air station had made all preparations to ground and house the airship. There were but three paying passengers, two of whom were Americans. Press representatives numbered four. The official guests included Commander Charles E. Rosen Dahl of the United States navy, representatives of the German and Spanish governments, Lady Grace Drummond Hay and Count Brandenstein-Zeppelein, the inventor's son-in-law. Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the dirigible, was also its chief pilot. A large quantity of mail was brought over on the airship.

It was expected the Graf Zeppelin would remain in the United States about ten days and then return to Germany.

IMPORTANT
UNDERWEIGHT
CHILDREN

"Two Tablespoons of Karo in a Glass of Milk doubles its Food Value!"

THIS statement is made by one of America's greatest child specialists.

"Karo", says this physician, "is not only a delicious sweet, but the ideal food for the underweight child. Karo can be added to the diet without spoiling the appetite for other foods—and it improves the taste of milk."

Karo has a high energy value—there are 120 calories per ounce in it—almost twice the energy value of eggs and lean beef, weight for weight.

Further—Karo is easily digested—giving children muscular energy immediately.

Serve the kiddies plenty of Karo in milk, on cereals, on sliced bread—and watch their weight improve.

Economy—compare Karo, pound for pound, with the price of other staple foods. Isn't Karo economical?

NEW DRUG STORE OPENS IN HEDLEY

The Wilson Drug Co. is Hedley's newest business concern, their location being the P. C. Johnson building recently vacated by the Hedley Drug Co. A drug store has occupied this site so long that it wouldn't seem natural otherwise.
Fixtures and stock are being moved in, and E. P. Wilson tells us that he hopes to be ready for business by the latter part of this week.

J. D. "Doc" Tumlison, well known and popular druggist, is associated with Mr. Wilson and will have charge of the prescription department, which is a guarantee of efficiency in this line.
Our readers are requested to watch for the doors to open and pay the Wilson Drug Co. a visit.

COMMUNITY HOUSE BENEFITS STAGED

Hedley's proposed Community House was boosted last week by two benefit performances that were "worth the money."

Friday evening the Hedley Rural Demonstration Club staged "The Rummage Sale at Hickory Hollow" at the school auditorium. It was a most excellent comedy and enjoyed by a full house.

Saturday evening the Boys and Girls Glee Club rendered a fine program in the auditorium, followed by a Carnival at the tabernacle. This was a riot of fun and attracted a large crowd.

We hope these two programs will be followed by others as good—they could hardly be any better.

TURKEYS WANTED!

The Thanksgiving market is now in full swing, and we will be buying until about the 12th to 17th of November on Thanksgiving market.
