ARM CRUSHED IN GIN MACHINERY

Marvin Jackson was seriously injured at the Beaty Gin last Saturday night when his hand was caught in the round bale machine, badly crushing that member and his arm up to or above the elbow.

He was rushed to a Memphis hospital, those accompanying him believing that his arm would have to be amputated. However he is resting well and we are told that his doctor expects to save the arm. We sincerely hope so. It was, at best, a rotten Christmas present for this fine and dandy old boy.

THE HEDLEY RURAL DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Hedley Rural Demonstration Club gave their Christmas party and tree in the basement of the Baptist church on December 11th. Each member invited a guest. The Christmas program was very interesting and enjoyed by all present. After the program, the entertaining committee took charge and various games were played, the first being a snowball contest which created quite a bit of fun. Mrs. P. C. Johnson and Mrs. Culwell won the prizes. The next was a biography written of each one on the left of the other. It was hard for the judges to decide between the biographies written by Mrs. Landreth and Brooks. The prize was finally given to Mrs. Brooks, after which she presented it to Mrs. Landreth.

Refreshments of chicken salad, potato chips, pickles, sandwiches, fruited jello with whipped cream, fruit and plain white cakes were served to forty ladies and several children. Everyone enjoyed the afternoon very much and several of the guests are anxious to become members.

The tree was laden with many beautiful and useful Christmas gifts. Our love notes were also revealed.

The club will meet the second Tuesday in January in the home of the president, Mrs. W. C. Bridges. She is giving the club a big turkey dinner.

WHAT TO EAT

There are few who do not enjoy a well cooked piece of ham. There are so many ways of preparing it that one need never find it monotonous.

Fried Ham.

Caramelize one tablespoonful of sugar in the frying pan, add a slice of ham about one-half inch thick and brown on both sides. Cover with milk and cook covered for ten minutes. Cook slowly. Thicken the milk for gravy and serve with mashed potatoes.

Ham Souffle.

Prepare a white sauce using three tablespoonfuls each of flour and butter with two cupfuls of milk and one-half teaspoonful of salt, then add one-third of a cupful of bread crumbs. Remove from the heat, add two cupfuls of cooked ham, ground, the beaten yolks of three eggs, and when well blended fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Spread buttered crumbs over the top, sprinkle with cheese and bake half an hour in a moderate oven.

Baked Sliced Ham.

Take a center cut two to two and one-half inches thick. Usually the best ham does not need parboiling. Place in a deep baking dish, cover with two tablespoonfuls of brown sugar mixed with a teaspoonful of mustard, a clove of garlic, and pour around it enough milk to just reach the top of the ham. Bake until tender.

Boiled Shank of Ham.

Cover a shank of ham with cold water, then simmer until tender—about thirty minutes to the pound. One hour before the ham is done add a small head of cabbage, four carrots, three small onions and one cup of parboiled lima beans. String beans may be added in season. Serve the ham in the center of a hot platter with the vegetables arranged around it.

Ham, put through the meat grinder, may be used for other good dishes. Add a few tablespoonfuls of any scalloped dish of potatoes or cabbage or onion. Mixed with salad dressing it is most delicious sandwich filling for Sunday night supper.

WITHOUT YOU

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I GUESS I got along all right
Before you ever came in sight.
But now, because I know about you,
I just can't get along without you!
Say, isn't life a funny thing?
I guess I used to dance and sing,
But now, unless you're here to share it,
Whatever life is, I can't bear it.

I guess I used to like the moon,
I guess I liked the sun at noon,
But what's the moonlight now, I wonder,
And what's a sky that you're not under?
Say, isn't earth a funny place?
We roam around, we meet a face;
A clasp of hands, some pleasant chatter,
Then what do all the others matter?

I guess I got along, but now
I just can't get along somehow
Without your voice. Unless I hear it,
Life isn't life—it's nothing near it.
Say, isn't life a funny mess?
I used to get along, I guess,
But now, because I know about you,
I just can't get along without you!

Why We Do What We Do

by M. K. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE GET ANGRY

WE GET angry when we are threatened with harm. The effect of anger is to remove the cause of danger by destroying it. Anger is like an order for quick mobilization of all the resources of the organism for immediate use.

The angry person breathes deeply and fast. His heart rate is increased and the blood flows more swiftly through his veins which stand out like small ropes in the neck and face. Increase of activity here is offset by decrease of activity elsewhere in the body very much as troops are shifted around on the field of battle from the quiet sections to where the emergency is greatest. The churning movements of the stomach, for example, stop immediately and the whole digestive process comes to a standstill. What is the use of wasting energy on digesting food that may never be needed. It is more important to use that energy in helping the individual survive the emergency. There will be plenty of time later for the digesting of food.

The adrenal glands work overtime discharging their juices into the blood stream and causing the liver to liberate quantities of sugar which is excellent muscle food. This energizing substance is carried to the parts of the body that need to be re-energized for war. This is why the angry person is stronger for the time being. He is more completely mobilized and alive.

It is very bad to get up all this steam unless you do something with it. Every time you are angry you should engage in some strenuous physical activity to work off the excess energy in the muscles. Otherwise you poison the whole system. It is a lot better to keep from getting angry in the first place. If you can't keep from getting "mad" you should walk it off or chop wood or something else that is a lot safer than striking the person who made you angry.

All Not Nature Lovers

Reuben Halley says: "The love for mountains and wild nature is of recent growth. One writer in the Seventeenth century considered the Alps as so much rubbish swept together by the broom of nature to clear the plains of Italy. A Seventeenth century traveler thought the Welsh mountains better than the Alps because the former would pasture goats. Doctor Johnson asked, 'Who can like the Highlands?'"

'SHORT SALES' OF FUEL FOR MOTORS

Only Eight States Have Taken Action to Protect Car Owners.

"Although motorists spent $2,350,000,000 for gasoline and oil in 1927, only eight states have taken action to protect car owners from short measures," Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club announces.

"A recent survey by the American Automobile association revealed that the motoring public is fleeced of approximately $20,000,000 a year through 'short sales' of motor fuels," Mr. Hayes pointed out. "It is deplorable that so few states have made provision for checking the sales of 317,000 gas stations and 604,000 pumps that were in operation last year.

States Check Sales.

"The eight states that check these sales are California, Indiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, New York and Ohio. Illinois is one of twenty-five commonwealths which have passed protective legislation but are without sufficient appropriations with which to enforce those laws.

"The states in need of such legislation are: Arkansas, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico and North Dakota. Thomas P. Henry, president of the American Automobile association, urged in a bulletin addressed to 1,065 motor clubs affiliated with the A. A. A., that a program be launched immediately to check the losses sustained by motorists in purchasing gasoline and oil.

Recommendations Made.

"The principal recommendations of the national motoring body are, first, immediate adoption of new legislation on weights and measures by those states wherein there is no law of this sort or the existing legislation is inadequate; secondly, the creation of state and local enforcement organizations with an efficient personnel; thirdly, sufficient appropriations by the legislatures to enable the organizations to operate efficiently every day of the year.

"It is expected that the National Conference on Weights and Measures, the United States bureau of standards, and responsible gas and oil companies and filling station owners, will lend their maximum co-operation in a determined drive to rid the highways of dishonest proprietors and pilfering pump attendants."

Painting Often Causes Trouble to Automobile

The idea of having a mechanical trouble following the painting of the car does not occur to the average motorist, yet such trouble frequently develops.

This is because the painters must remove certain trimmings of the car, particularly the lights. This means disturbing electrical wiring.

Batteries may run down and occasion starting and ignition trouble if the painters have been careless. Sometimes paint gets into places for which it was not intended.

Since the popular method of refinishing cars today is by spraying on lacquer, it is customary to strip a car even to the point of taking off the door lock. Speed being the big asset of this process, it is apt to be carried too far and to the point of giving the motorist some mechanical or electrical troubles when the job is completed.

Adjust Steering Column to Suit Whole Family

New cars that have the advantage of adjustable steering columns are falling into the hands of thousands of automobile buyers at this season. If more than one member of the family is to drive the car, it is an excellent idea to have the steering wheel set at an average adjustment, usually the middle position of the three available. Here it will be found to be approximately right for the smallest as well as the tallest member of the family driving force.

Gauge for Gravity-Feed Type of Gasoline Supply

A number of automotive vehicles are fitted with gravity systems for fuel supply, particularly trucks and cars used for commercial purposes. The drawing shows an installation which provides the driver with a gas gauge on the instrument board, and a clean-out pipe to enable clearing the fuel line in case it is clogged. A T-fitting is inserted at the point indicated, and a 100-pound pressure water gauge is attached here so that its bottom is level with that of the gasoline tank and the gas in both will reach the same height. Turn cocks are provided at the tank and at the carburetor. A tire valve is fitted to the top of the gauge, which is graduated in gallons by starting with an empty tank and adding one gallon at a time until the tank is full. A file can be used to make the marks on the gauge. To clean out the fuel line, attach the pump above the gauge and alternately open and close the turn cocks. The air pressure supplied will then force out the obstruction.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Billions Spent Yearly for Automobile Service

Motorists of the nation spend over $5,000,000,000 annually with service stations and repair shops, according to Richard Harfst, manager of the Detroit Automobile club.

Mr. Harfst bases his statement on figures furnished by the research department of the American Automobile association, which show that in 1927 more than $5,250,000,000 was spent with service stations and repair shops by automobile owners.

"This staggering sum," Mr. Harfst points out, "was divided as follows: Parts and service supplies, $950,000,000; tires for replacement, $925,000,000; fuels and lubricants, $2,350,000,000; and service labor, $1,025,000,000. In 1919 the total amount spent was $2,125,000,000, while in 1926 it had increased to $4,815,000,000."

AUTOMOBILE HINTS

Automobile production is now France's greatest industry.

Does anyone know a centenarian who attributes the fact to insisting on the right of way?

Since motorization, the old-fashioned sign "Look Out for the Cars" has taken on considerable territory.

Cars today cost 29 per cent less than before the war. Commodities in general cost 67 per cent more.

The automobile industry ranks first among all United States manufactures, rated according to wholesale value of production.

"Well," said the motorist, as he parked the car at the home place, "I haven't killed anybody today—that is, not that I know of."

The reckless auto speeders are more careful now at the railroad crossings. They've transferred the most of the tragedies to the city streets.

Honey can be used in the auto radiator as an anti-freeze mixture. Mix with an equal volume of water, boil half an hour, and skim. It is safe down to 25 below zero.

MOTOR CYCLE WITH COMFORTS OF AN AUTO

Mr. A. V. Roe, the famous airplane designer and pilot, seated in his unique motor cycle which has all the comforts of an automobile. It has a three-horse-power Villiers engine, is shaft driven and can attain a speed of 60 miles per hour. The steering is similar to that of an automobile and the driver sits on an upholstered seat and back.

GUESSING IN COOKERY

Most cooks have had much trouble making over recipes that have been handed down for generations in their families. The hit-or-miss methods of measuring, by long experience seemed to be a perfect system, but when asked to pass along proportions, trouble began. The old blue cup held more than the ordinary cups; there was no standard of cups. The piece of butter the size of an egg varied as to our idea of eggs. A pinch of this might mean anything from a teaspoonful to a saltspoonful; pinches varied in a marked degree.

There will always be born cooks who measure with the eye, who in some intuitive way know when proportions are correct and how much should go into the mixing bowl. We who must be exact will do well to let those who are successful go on in their unmeasured way.

Anyone who can read, understands simple fractions, and has ordinary common sense can learn to cook.

In accurate measurements lies half the secret of good cooking. The right kind of temperature in cooking or baking is another important matter.

The days are over when the handleless cup, the cracked bowl, the heaping teaspoonful and the rounding tablespoonful can be used. It has taken time to standardize cups, to have uniform spoons for measuring. Even now one must use care in buying such utensils as often the measuring cup lacks a tablespoonful of the standard size.

A measuring cup should contain sixteen tablespoonfuls of liquid (level, of course); even liquids will heap up in a spoon.

A standard measuring cup should also be divided into thirds, and into quarters for convenience of measurement, and one of each should be in the equipment.

Be sure when buying a measuring cup that it is full eight fluid ounces or sixteen level tablespoonfuls.

Measures should always be level. Do not dip the cup into flour and shake it, but heap sifted flour lightly into the cup.

Small Tea Good Things.

Very small sandwiches and cakes which may be eaten in two or three bits are appropriate for afternoon teas.

Rolls Asparagus Sandwiches.—Spread thinly sliced bread—rather fresh is better to roll. Place on each slice two or three stalks of cooked asparagus, dipped in mayonnaise. Roll up and wrap in a dampened napkin and place in the ice chest for several hours.

Creole Sandwiches.—Soften four tablespoonfuls of butter, add one cupful of finely flaked sardines, two tablespoonfuls of tomato catsup, one tablespoonful of lemon juice and six stuffed olives chopped fine. Spread on crisp whole wheat crackers and serve.

Buttered Crackers.—Arrange small round crackers in a baking pan, and just before serving pour over them melted butter until entirely covered. Place in a hot oven to brown. Cheese finely grated may be added if desired.

Domino Sandwiches.—Cut brown bread and white into one-eighth-inch slices and spread with softened butter. Season one cupful of finely chopped tongue with two dill pickles also chopped, then add three tablespoonfuls of mayonnaise dressing. Spread this mixture on the slices of white bread. Over the tongue put buttered brown bread slices, and over the brown bread a piece of thinly sliced Swiss cheese. Repeat, having four layers. Trim off and put under weight and let stand several hours in a cool place. Cut crosswise into thin slices and serve.

Gingerbread With Cheese.—Slice very thin small squares of gingerbread and put together with either cottage or cream cheese softened with cream.

The open sandwiches, cut round or in various forms, are most attractive. They offer a wide latitude for the hostess' taste to express itself. Spread round sandwiches with creamed butter, cross off into quarters with very thinly sliced green pepper. In each quarter arrange finely minced vegetable such as parsley or nuts, pimento in another, cottage cheese or nuts in the other sections. Just start to make them and new combinations will occur to you.

Mayonnaise piped over sandwiches sprinkled with chopped chives or red and green pepper makes a most attractive sandwich. The red of cooked beets with the green of green pepper makes another most attractive color scheme.

The Methodist Y. P. M. S. met Monday evening, Dec 10th, in the home of Mrs. J. B. Masterson for their Christmas party. There were seventeen girls present.

The evening was spent in various Christmas games. We also had a grab box.

The hostess carried out the Y. P. M. S. color scheme in the refreshments consisting of orange ice box cake with gold whipped cream topped with green whipped cream and clear punch with tubes of gold and green ice in each glass. Everyone enjoyed the evening very much.

The next meeting was Monday the 17th, with ten members present. Had a very interesting voice lesson. We voted to pipe gas in the church.

There will be no more meetings until the Monday that the schools take up. All girls are invited to come.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Hoover's Good Will Message Delivered to People of Central America.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

HERBERT HOOVER began delivering his message of friendship and good will to the Latin Americans when, after plowing through a gale and rough seas, the battleship Maryland entered the Gulf of Fonseca and landed its distinguished passenger first at Ampala, Honduras. There, at the foot of an old volcano, were assembled President-Elect Vicente Colindres and his cabinet and several thousands of his countrymen, and to them Mr. Hoover extended the friendly greeting of the United States and urged a closer relationship among the republics of the Western world. Crossing the bay after luncheon, he was met in La Union by high officials of Salvador, and again told of the desire of North Americans for amicable relations and mutual understanding with their Latin American neighbors.

Corinto, Nicaragua, was the next port of call and it was reached at 11 next morning. The little city was gay with bunting and flags and thronged with people in holiday attire. President Adolfo Diaz, President-Elect Moncada and former President Chamorro all were there to welcome the visitor. The cabinet was there, too, and so were leaders of the factions that have quarreled so desperately over the rule of Nicaragua, except naturally the Sandino rebels. Everything seemed peaceful and lovely. The American marines from Managua had joined those stationed in Corinto and, commanded by Gen. Logan Feland, they made a brave parade. Incidentally, 65 of those marines were taken aboard the Maryland to serve as escort to Mr. Hoover thenceforward. In greeting Mr. Hoover as he stepped ashore, Moncada, Diaz and Chamorro all declared their confidence that he would be a real friend to their country at this time which is so critical. The visitor responded only informally, but after the colorful demonstration in the town he took the most prominent of the Nicaraguans aboard the Maryland for luncheon and then spoke more at length. Diaz and Moncada both strongly advocated the building of the Nicaraguan canal, declaring its construction would be economically advantageous and also a bulwark to the liberty of the American republics. To the correspondents General Moncada said the American marine forces in Nicaragua should be reduced gradually to about 1,000, but that it was necessary to keep that many there while the national guard was being formed and trained. Altogether, it was an auspicious day for Nicaragua.

Next day the Maryland reached Punta Arenas, Costa Rica. All ships in the harbor were dressed, the shore batteries exchanged salutes with the battleship, the bands played and the inhabitants cheered. The Hoover party left almost immediately for San Jose, the capital, where it was received by President Cleto Viquez and most of the other distinguished Costa Ricans and all the natives that could make their way to the city.

CONFIRMED pacifists will not like the annual report of Maj. Gen. C. F. Summell, chief of staff of the army. It says that the regular army is unfit for immediate action in the event of war, because of the skeletonizing of units in past years. The general efficiency of the army, says the general, is unusually high, but he gives warning that the country must face the fact that the regular army and National Guard divisions are in complete fighting organizations, and that considerable time must elapse, in event of a national emergency, before they can be completed and trained for satisfactory operations on the battle field.

Included in the report was the announcement that the War department has adopted a new plan designed to speed up mobilization.

KING GEORGE'S illness, developing from a cold into inflammation of the lungs, caused grave alarm throughout the British empire and was watched with sympathetic interest by the whole world. His majesty was making a brave and cheerful fight for his life but the seriousness of his condition was not concealed by his physicians. The prince of Wales and his brother, the duke of Gloucester, were hunting in East Africa and the prince, who was in daily communication with London, decided that they should return as speedily as possible to England. Wales hastened to Dodoma with only one companion, leaving his party far behind in the bush, and took train to Dar-es-Salaam, to which port a fast cruiser was sent which was to carry him home. It was said in official circles in London that the prince was not recalled but acted on his own initiative. The duke of York was at his father's bedside daily. The king's youngest son, Prince George, was in the West Indies.

Business men in London, especially department store owners and stock brokers, insured themselves heavily against the king's death, for that calamity would be serious for them, more particularly as the Christmas season was approaching. They paid rates of 21 per cent for last week and 31½ per cent for the ensuing month.

PRESIDENT AND MRS COOLIDGE spent their Thanksgiving holidays in Virginia, making their headquarters for several days at the Swannanoa Country club, a short distance from Waynesboro. On Thursday they attended Thanksgiving services in Charlottesville, afterward being the guests at luncheon of President Alderman of the University of Virginia. Their Thanksgiving dinner was at the country club. They made no social engagements for the remainder of the week, and returned to Washington Sunday.

CONGRESSMAN FRED BRITTEN of Chicago pushed himself onto the front page when, in his capacity of chairman of the house committee on naval affairs, he cabled to Prime Minister Baldwin of Great Britain a suggestion that Mr. Britten's committee and a select committee of parliament meet in a conference in Canada next March to discuss the application of the 5-5-3 Washington treaty ratio to all classes of fighting vessels. The committees would then report their recommendations, if any, to their respective governments, after the fashion of the inter-parliamentary union, to which all members of the house naval committee belong. Mr. Britten said to the press that the failure of past limitations conferences had been attributed to military men and that, while he personally did not think they were responsible, he would prefer to see both committees composed of non-military men. He declared that this country's naval policy had never been competitive but had always been defensive.

FATHER NEPTUNE has been in a horrible temper of late and has stirred up terrific storms on the Atlantic and other waters. The worst effects were felt on the coasts of Europe and on the Black sea. Many vessels were sunk or driven ashore and the loss of life undoubtedly was considerable. The gales did not stop at the coasts but swept over the land, being especially severe in England and France. On the other side of the world, a great typhoon devastated part of the Philippine islands and it was believed at least 200 lives were lost. The damage to property was up in the millions. Red Cross workers and relief supplies were sent from Manila on warships.

To be classed among minor disasters is the influenza outbreak in and about Los Angeles. Several thousand cases were reported, with about two score deaths. The motion picture colony in Hollywood was especially hard hit. The veteran actor Edward Connelly and Mrs. Sadie Miller, mother of Fay Ruth Miller, were among the dead there, and many of the stars and directors were on the sick list. Many of the public schools in the region were closed.

EXTRADITION of H. M. Blackmer, the missing Teapot Dome witness wanted on an indictment for making false returns at Denver, has been refused by France. Blackmer's attorney made a fervent plea in the Paris court and that tribunal decided there was no reason why, under the French law, the request for extradition should be granted. The defendant was given complete liberty and the case was closed so far as France is concerned.

ONE of those odd tales of imposture that crop up in Europe every once in a while came to its climax when a dairy maid on the farm of the former crown prince of Germany was sentenced in Berlin to two years in prison. For months she had posed as "Princess Margarete of Prussia," morganatic wife of the ex-crown prince, and many gullible persons, making no investigation, loaded her with hospitality, money and other gifts. "I was forced to act the part, for I looked so distinguished when I was dressed up everybody insisted I was a princess in disguise," the forty-year-old and rather unattractive dairy maid pleaded.

SIGRID UNSET, the Norwegian novelist who was awarded the Nobel prize of $42,000 for literature, announces that she will devote the entire sum to charity. Already she has given $20,000 of it to provide for parents who are obliged to maintain mentally deficient children in their homes.

REOPENING of the question of American adherence to the World court has been practically decided on by the Coolidge administration. The President told a group of senators who breakfasted at the White House that he hoped the difference between the United States and other nations, on the reservations added by the senate in voting for adherence, could be reconciled and the reservations made acceptable. While Mr. Coolidge did not so state, the impression was gained that negotiations already were in progress. Before going to Virginia for the holiday, the President conferred with Secretary of State Kellogg on the method of procedure to be followed. Mr. Kellogg refused to state whether developments had occurred within the last few weeks which indicated that the chances of American entrance into the court were any better than they were at the time the nations rejected the senate reservations.

WILLIAM R. DAWES, Chicago financier, was elected president of the Mississippi Valley association at its tenth convention in St. Louis. He succeeds James E. Smith of St. Louis who resigned after 20 years of activity in the inland waterway movement. The association adopted a resolution asking congress for the early completion of the Mississippi valley waterway system, pointing out that $452,270,217 already had been expended or allotted for completion of various waterway projects and calling on congress to make available annually whatever money is needed to complete the projects.

The association held that the system should be standardized as to channel depths, locks, terminals and floating equipment, and that the main trunk lines should have channels nine feet deep. The main trunk lines were specified as the Mississippi, Missouri, and Ohio rivers, the Illinois waterway and the Intracoastal canal in Louisiana and Texas.

The right to divert water from Lake Michigan for the Illinois waterway was upheld. The association praised the Denison barge line bill, and requested congress to appropriate $10,000,000 for added equipment and barges for the Inland Waterway corporation. The sum already has been authorized.

CHANNING Tripp of Flint, Mich., thirty-seven years old, was sentenced in that city to life imprisonment following his conviction of a fourth violation of the prohibition law. Sentence was pronounced by Circuit Judge Fred W. Brennan under the new state criminal code which makes a life sentence mandatory for a fourth felony conviction and which classifies violations of the dry law as felonies. Another opportunity for vigorous comment by the foes of the Eighteenth amendment.

Something Reminded Her of Her Duty

"Today I am reminded of a duty that I have neglected, and that is to let you know how wonderful have been the results I obtained from the use of Milks Emulsion. Nothing could have been more beneficial to me than your Emulsion.

"In the winter of 1917 and 1918 I had a severe case of pneumonia, and in the spring of 1919 I took a cough. I was doing some summer work to prepare myself for a college, but by the time school opened I was too ill to attend. I finally went to bed for the rest cure. I gained a little in strength and got up by Christmas, but my cough never left me, and I caught cold very easily and it would take a month to get over it.

"Finally, in September, 1920, I got a bottle of Milks Emulsion and wrote you for instructions to which you replied promptly and for which I thank you. I followed the instructions carefully and soon my cough began to disappear. I was able to sleep better than ever before and my appetite was fierce. I could not eat enough. I gained in weight slowly but surely, but continued to use Milks Emulsion, until I am a well girl today.

"I went through the entire season without a cold or a cough, and I came back into the society circle and played all the big affairs without any ill effects. About a month ago I neglected myself and took a dreadful summer cold and, being at a house party, I could not care for myself properly. But as soon as I reached home I flew in on my old standby, Milks Emulsion, and within a week I was well.

"I have recommended it to many and if at any time I can be of any help to your company by telling what it did for me, let me know. Sincerely, MISS KATY WALLER, 401 Argyle Ave., San Antonio, Tex."

Electric Transportation

Because an average automobile uses up 100 times as much air as a human being and emits 400 times as much carbon dioxide, it is prophesied that in the future congested population centers will bar them in the interest of public health and all transportation will be by electric power instead.

Between You and Me

"Common sense is the most uncommon kind of sense."

By HAROLD BELL WRIGHT

A Safe Bet

"Whatever a fellow thinks about himself hit mostly ain't so; that's why the man what does a lot of thinkin' about other folks is most generally a man you can tie to."—Preachin' Bill.

THINK it over and you will see that words are very much like people.

There are weak words, strong words, tricky, sly, mischievous, shifty words. There are soft, mushy, fat, flabby, hard, hot and cold words. There are words that pretend to mean one thing when they actually mean the very opposite. There are downright vicious, quarrelsome, fighting words, killing words, and words that are kind, hearty, true, honest, steadfast and reliable. There are a great many big words that are very showy and impressive, but really do not amount to much, and there are some little unpretentious fellows that don't take up much room but are of tremendous importance.

I sometimes think that words are spirits, good or evil, moving in and through all things to ends both good and evil. I am quite sure that they are just as much alive as you or I. Of course, though, some words are much more alive than others—just like human beings again. Consider such words as childhood, comrade, son, daughter, sweetheart, friend—how alive they are; what wealth of humanity is in them! The word death, how alive it is! No word is more instinct with feeling. It is vital with sorrow and weeping. It is so charged with mystery and awfulness and finality that its appearance in any company is invariably greeted with a solemn hush.

By universal consent our most beautiful word is mother. But the biggest, broadest, tallest, strongest, most comprehensive, most inspiring word in any language, I think, is the word WE.

And the meanest, most contemptible, vicious, poisonous and deadly word in any tongue is that little two-letter arrangement: ME.

Without question, ME is at the bottom of 90 per cent of all the trouble and sorrow and wretchedness and woe that human beings experience. It has wrecked more characters, ruined more happiness, caused more untimely deaths than any other thing in the world. It is the chief cause of all the wrongs we human beings suffer.

You remember the man who said "Me and God"? And you remember what inconceivable agony what incalculable loss of life, what incredible torment of pain and starvation and disease followed.

No, I do not mean to say that the simple phrase "Me and God" caused the World War. But I do say most emphatically that the spirit which puts the individual self first before any consideration of others, the spirit which puts self-interests before the welfare and happiness of all other fellow beings, the spirit which would even put itself first before God—that spirit, I say, has caused all the wars that have ever been fought since human wars began.

Yes, and that ME spirit will continue to cause untold suffering, sorrow and death. If we could drive that spirit of ME out of life and out of our affairs, we would insure the peace, well-being, and happiness of the world. And the only power in the universe which can banish this destructive spirit of ME is the spirit of WE.

It is often said that life is a gamble. This makes us all gamblers, with the odds in favor of our losing. But we go right on taking chances just the same.

There are no safe bets, no sure things. The surest thing—the one safest bet—is to stake your all on the man who has the WE habit—who always says WE, and always thinks WE. Ninety-eight times out of a hundred you will come out winner if you bet on the WE man.

Homes where the WE spirit is a member of the family are never wrecked. Husbands and wives who think and say WE, and who live WE, continue in their happy oneness even unto the end of their days. Fathers who have the WE habit are rarely dishonored by their children. Mothers who are WE mothers are never forgotten or overlooked or neglected by their sons and daughters.

Business enterprises in which the WE spirit is the head of the firm seldom fail. People who think and say WE—who have the WE habit—seldom double-cross their associates. Such people never take selfish advantage of another's generosity. They never cash in for themselves on the confidence which their friends have in them. They never betray or rob or short-change those who trust them.

Between you and me, a friendship can long endure without the spirit of WE. And the WE spirit must be actively manifested in everyday thought and speech. It is not enough to have the WE spirit theoretically. There is no such thing as a theoretical WE. The WE spirit is actual, spontaneous, operative, always evident in thought and word and deed, or it does not exist.

When any one of two or more persons who profess friendship and whose interests are held in common, begins to discriminate in the use of ME and WE, that friendship is headed toward the rocks.

To illustrate what I mean by discriminating in the use of ME and WE: Two friends were hunting deer. They were sitting on the side of a hill when there was a movement in a quaking asp thicket below and they caught sight of an animal half hidden among the trees. One of the men instantly fired.

"We got him, we got him!" shouted the other friend as they were hurrying down the hill to see the result of the shot.

"Where do you get that we stuff? I shot that deer. You didn't even raise your rifle to your shoulder!"

But when they reached the thicket of quaking asp and found a fine yelling heifer dead, the man who had fired the fatal bullet turned to his friend with "We sure played h—l this time, didn't we?"

There are people who seem to have learned only one letter in the alphabet: I. The only grammar they ever took seriously was the first person singular. You need to look out for them; they are dangerously ill, and it's catching.

This I trouble is insidious and little noticed. I like some other diseases which are contracted and developed to the danger point before the sufferer is aware of their existence.

Don't bet on these I people in the gamble of life. And what is more, watch yourself that you do not unconsciously develop that I disease. It will cause no end of pain and unhappiness if not checked in time.

The man who thinks ME instead of WE always defeats himself in the end. It is disastrous to consider any kind of an enterprise or business undertaking from the ME point of view because such a view is not comprehensive enough. It leaves out too many factors. There is no such thing as an individual interest in life. A person can do nothing which does not include other people. To consider any human relationship, business or social, friendly or domestic, from the ME point of view is like trying to arrive at the sum of a column of figures by leaving out all the figures but one. It simply can't be done.

My farmer neighbor says: "I raised a bumper crop of corn this year." Did you, neighbor? You might have helped a little, but as a matter of fact, you yourself raised nothing.

The men—many of them dead and gone—who invented and improved farm machinery—they helped raise that crop of corn. The men who labored in the mines, the lumber camp, and the smelters to produce the iron and steel and wood, and the men who labored in factory and foundry to make your plows and planters and cultivators and harvesters—they helped. The merchants who sold these implements to you, and the banker who financed the manufacture, the merchant and you—they all helped. The farm hands who worked in the field—they certainly had a hand in making this crop. "ou did not plow a furrow; you did not plant a seed; you did not cultivate a row; and did not gather an ear—how can you say: "I raised a bumper crop of corn?"

Your education? I beg your pardon—your education is not your education at all. What you call your education, my friend, in reality belongs to a great many people. It belongs to the taxpayers and donors who build the schools, equip, maintain and run them. Did you think these great educational institutions were established and are operated for your own personal benefit? Indeed they are not. Your fellow citizens merely entrusted this education to you in order that you might use it for all.

Education which is not in the spirit of WE is a dangerous education. The educated ME person who does not acknowledge a real indebtedness to teachers and to those who make schools possible is, after all, not well educated. We would do well to write over the entrance of every school in the land this wonderful little word WE.

Consider what the WE spirit would do in the affairs of our government! If our politicians were to seek office in the spirit of WE rather than in the spirit of ME, our election campaigns would at least be raised to a level of decency more becoming to the dignity of our nation—if you can read much of our legislative doings and still feel that such a thing as national dignity is possible.

The ME type of office seeker and job hunter is the shame of our country—professional politicians whose conception of public office is that it exists for the personal and individual advantage and prosperity of whoever is lucky enough, or clever enough, or unscrupulous enough to win it. These ME people never think WE in connection with their public duties except insofar as WE includes their financial obligation to their campaign managers and party committees. They have no feeling of WE in their relation to the people in whose service they have to take the oath of office. From street sweepers to post office club it is I—what I can get out of it—and the people go hang.

Nevertheless this nation was brought into being by the spirit of WE. The spirit of WE is written in every line of its early history. Only in that spirit can it endure.

Yes, indeed, WE is a great little word. In business, in religion, in education, in the home and in friendship you can safely bet on the man who thinks WE, says WE—who, in short, has the WE habit.

Heligoland, the high, rocky North sea island that was the Gibraltar of pre-war Germany, once counted nothing but new guns or submarine mines as valuable additions to its equipment. Now it boasts of a new aquarium where German naturalists and their guests may observe the ways of North sea fish and watch the technique of diving seals and sea birds. One of the special features of the new building is an arena tank large enough to accommodate a large number of mackerel or other swarming fish and permit observations of their behavior when swimming as a school.

STOP THAT ITCHING

Insisted "Well-Paid" Dominic Should Work

Bishop Lawrence of Boston, who has just been appointed bishop in charge of the American Episcopal churches of Europe, was the head of the church pension fund that raised over $10,000,000 in 1916, and naturally, therefore, he takes a keen interest in the payment of clergymen. He said one evening at a Boston dinner party: "There are still too many people like the old Highlander. "A minister in a Highland parish found on reaching church one stormy Sunday morning that only one worshiper, an old Highlander, was present. The minister went up into the pulpit and he and the old fellow sang the opening hymn together. Then the minister prayed. Then he spread the manuscript of his sermon out on the lectern before him and looked at the Highlander and said: "Shall I give you the sermon in Gaelic or in English, Dugald? "Give it to us in Gaelic," said the old Highlander. "Ye're well paid for't wi' yer ten pun a year."

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

At the Warren ranch, the "Three Bar," on the fringe of the "cow country," a stranger applied for work as a rider...

He stood so close as almost to touch her but she failed to lift a hand or move back an inch, and Slade knew that he faced one whose spirit matched his own...

give him his half interest if he would stay off the place; his weak insinuations that there was some reason why he must spend two years on the Three Bar...

"What was the reason for your first idea—of coming here under another name?" she demanded.

"I thought maybe others knew I'd been left a part interest," he said.

She Knew That He Was Harmless to Her.

"and it might be embarrassing. The way it is, with only the two of us knowing the inside, I can stay on as a regular hand until the time is up."

"You're so plausible," she said. "You put it as a favor to me. Did it ever strike you that if the truth were known it might also be uncomfortable for you?"

He smiled across at her and once more she frowned as she discovered that he was likable for all his underhandedness.

"Worse than that—suicidal," he admitted. "If you mentioned what you think of me, that I've framed to rob you by law, you wouldn't be bothered with me for long."

"You probably thought to overcome that by reaching the point the whole thing so patently aims for," she said. "And you calculated well—arriving at a time when we'd be alone for a week. The whole scheme was based on that idea and I've been patiently wondering why you don't rush matters and invite me to marry you."

He rose and flicked the ash from his cigarette into the fireplace.

"I do invite you—right now," he said, and in her surprise she left her chair and stood facing him.

"That's the final proof," she said. "I'm surprised that you didn't tell me the first day."

"So am I," he said. She found no answer for this but stood silent, knowing that she had suddenly become afraid of him.

"And that's the living truth," he affirmed. "Other men have loved you the first day. You know men well enough to be certain that I wouldn't be tied to one woman for the sake of owning a few head of cows—not if I didn't want her for herself."

He waved an arm toward the door. "There's millions of miles of sage just outside," he said. "And millions of cows—and girls."

He moved across to her and stood almost touching her, looking down into her face. When Slade had stood so a few days past she had been coldly indifferent except for a shiver of distaste at the thought of his touching her.

Before Harris she felt a weakening, a need of support, and she leaned back from him and placed one hand behind her on the table.

Pretty Things that are made at Home

IF YOU have been longing to know "how to make" the dainty crystal beadwork flowers which are so expensive to buy and so charming to wear, carefully follow directions as given below and your wish will come true.

The materials required are just three—fine spool wire, beads and "silly twist." For the "wild flower" boutonniere shown at the top, buy one spool of No. 5 spool wire, a bunch each of green, pink, pale yellow, crystal and red beads.

Make the stems first, as follows: Cut piece of No. 5 wire 3 1/2 inches long and string on 4 red beads. Bend wire in half and string on double wire 15 yellow beads. This completes one stem as shown in Fig. 1. Make 5 like this and twist five stems together at the wire ends. Now wind on 5 petals around stems with silky twist to make flower.

For each petal of the flower cut a piece of wire 6 inches long and string on this 6 crystal beads, 6 pink beads, 12 red beads, 6 pink beads, 6 crystal beads. Take ends of wire and twist together so that you make a loop of beads to make center of petal as shown in Fig. 2. To the top of this loop between the 12 red beads twist another piece of wire cut 6 inches long as shown in Fig. 2 which should leave two ends of wire each 3 inches long. On both of these wires string on first 3 red beads, 6 pink beads, 6 crystal beads and twist ends of these wires around wire ends of first loop to make second row of beads in petal. Repeat this for third row of beads in petal, twisting wire through the twist you made in second row of beads and string on these ends of wires 10 red beads, 8 pink beads, 6 crystal beads. Cut a fourth piece of wire 6 1/2 inches long and fasten the same as previous wires, stringing on ends of these wires 14 red beads, 8 pink beads and 6 crystal beads. Wind ends of wires around other wires. This completes one petal. Make 5 petals for one flower.

The leaves are made by cutting a piece of wire 6 inches long and string on 40 green beads. Twist ends of wire together to make a bead loop for center of leaf. To top of loop fasten second wire as you did wires in making petals and string on both ends of wire 22 green beads and fasten ends of wire around wires of first loop. Repeat this for the third row of beads in leaf, stringing on 25 beads on each end of wire and twist around other wires. This makes a complete leaf as shown on flower. Make 3 leaves for 1 flower.

To branch flower and leaves twist well together 5 pieces of wire cut 5 inches long. To the end of these wires wind on flower with silky twist and wind down wires to make stem three-quarter inch. Wind in one leaf and continue winding to make stem of flower one-half inch. Wind in second leaf and wind down wire to make stem three-quarter inch and wind in third leaf. Continue winding with silky twist to end of wire to complete stem.

For the "canterbury bell" boutonniere shown in the circle the materials necessary are one spool bead wire No. 5, one bunch each of 8 different colored beads, 1 bunch of green beads for leaves, a bunch of yellow beads for center stems, also a skein of silky tinsel either silver or gold. The diagrams to the left of the circle indicate the method of procedure in detail.

Not only boutonnières but cunning party favors can be made of colorful crystal beads. The idea is worked out by taking a pasteboard drinking cup or nut cup, covering it with gold lace or cleverly painting it. Fill it with artificial moss. In this "plant" a little beadwork posy and foliage. Better make up a number of these dainty favors for the coming New Year's, Valentine and other happy holiday gatherings.

Prized as pets in America, Angora rabbits are an important item of industry in France, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. They are raised on more than 1,000 farms for their wool, which, in some seasons, brings as much as $8 a pound. In one year the value of the total amount produced in France was $190,000.

SOME HATS THAT GLITTER

SPARKLE, sparkle little hat—and that's exactly what the entrancing head fitting little evening caps and dressy after-noon toques are doing—sparkling with all their might.

The fetching chapeaux which fashion offers for midwinter dressy wear are all aglitter with sequins, gold and silver cloth and all the scintillating furbelows which fairly dazzle the eye with their brilliancy.

Wherefore there's not a dull moment in the realm of millinery this season. Even the hat for the daytime social hour has yielded to the call of the glittering mode. Because of their sparkling piquant beauty, the new little hats—and so many of them are so tiny and snug fitting—bring with them the promise that every woman is to be becomingly batted this season.

In the "group of intriguing little chapeaux in this illustration, each model plays in a key of pretty frivolity. The two toques at the very top are tuned to daytime occasion. While they glitter, they do so discreetly. The first one is made of gold and silver brocade, encircled with leaflike motifs of black velvet. The rhinestone ornament at the front adds its quota of glitter most effectively.

The next afternoon mode trims a black velvet cap with a banding of gold sequins which assume an artificial bow effect to the front.

Comes now three gorgeous evening caps into the picture. The brilliant creation at the top to the right is entirely of gun metal and silver his part; he has ample respectable precedent.—T. Swann Harding in the American Druggist Magazine.

Druggists With "Side Lines" Nothing New

The druggist who sells lunches, books, radio sets and fishing tackle isn't a modern phenomenon at all, as most of us believe.

Around 1600 to 1625 we find the pharmacist selling sweets, preserved fruits, brown paper pasters, hair powders and perfumes. In 1617, in England, a new charter separated the apothecary from the grocer and he began to concentrate more upon drugs and to dispense.

At a later date apothecaries virtually became physicians. They prescribed as well as dispensed and visited patients. The pharmacist was then practically a fully qualified practitioner.

But gradually he had fewer and fewer drugs to dispense as prescribed. Today a city will often support only a few exclusive pharmacies and the druggist has fallen back upon side lines, quite as in the early days. This is no new and riotous indulgence on his part; he has ample respectable precedent.—T. Swann Harding in the American Druggist Magazine.

This Mother Had Problem

As a rule, milk is about the best food for children, but there are times when they are much better off without it. It should always be left off when children show by feverish, fretful or cross spells, by bad breath, coated tongue, sallow skin, indigestion, biliousness, etc., that their stomach and bowels are out of order.

In cases like this, California Fig Syrup never fails to work wonders, by the quick and gentle way it removes all the souring waste which is causing the trouble, regulates the stomach and bowels and gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act normally of their own accord. Children love its rich, fruity flavor and it's purely vegetable and harmless, even for babies.

Millions of mothers have proved its merit and reliability in over 50 years of steadily increasing use. A Western mother, Mrs. May Snavey, Montrose, California, says: "My little girl, Edna's, tendency to constipation was a problem to me until I began giving her California Fig Syrup. It helped her right away and soon her stomach and bowels were acting perfectly. Since then I've never had to have any advice about her bowels. I have also used California Fig Syrup with my little boy, with equal success."

To be sure of getting the genuine which physicians endorse, always ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name.

Feel Good

Most ailments start from poor elimination (constipation or semi-constipation). Intestinal poisons sap vitality, undermine health and make life miserable. Tonight try NR—Nature's Remedy—all-vegetable corrective—not just an ordinary laxative. See how NR will add in restoring your appetite and rid you of that heavy, lumpy, propped feeling. Mild, safe, purely vegetable.
