NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Senate Votes $24,000,000 to President to Use in Dry Law Enforcement.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
DISREGARDING the earnest protest of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, the senate last week tacked on to the deficiency bill an amendment, offered by Senator Harris of Georgia and then much altered, appropriating $24,000,000 to be placed in the hands of the President "to be used as he sees fit" in increasing the personnel of the federal agencies charged with enforcement of the prohibition law. The senators also voted $250,000 for the prohibition investigation proposed by President Elect Hoover. The vote on the former item was 50 to 27, and party and wet and dry lines were disregarded. Many prominent wets voted for the amendment and as many leading dries were against it.

As finally passed by the senate, the deficiency appropriation measure also carried an amendment requiring public hearings on all tax refunds in excess of $10,000. The bill carried $75,000,000 for tax refunds to be added to the $130,000,000 heretofore appropriated for that purpose.

There were strong indications that the conference on this bill would reject the $24,000,000 prohibition item but would accept the appropriation for the inquiry desired by Mr. Hoover.

Radicals and pacifists in the senate were successful in checking progress on the 15-cruiser bill although they would not admit that they were filibustering against it. Representative Fred Briffen, chairman of the naval affairs committee of the house, devised a plan that rather dismayed the opponents of the measure.

ON MONDAY the senate confirmed the appointment of Roy O. West of Chicago as secretary of the Interior. The vote was 53 to 27, the yavies including the radicals and radicals of both parties.

notables who greeted him were Mrs. William Jennings Bryan, who rides in a wheel chair, and Jack Dempsey. Mr. Hoover was soon taken to the J. C. Fenney home on Belle Island in Biscayne bay. One of his first callers was Stuart W. Cramer, a wealthy cotton manufacturer of Charlotte, N. C., who helped swing his state to the Republican column last fall. He was a classmate of Secretary of the Navy Wilbur at Annapolis and the correspondents at once guessed he might be given Mr. Wilbur's portfolio as a recognition of the new political South. Mr. Cramer did not discourage this idea, but declared that Mr. Hoover did not mention the subject of cabinet appointments during the call. Dwight Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, who was in Miami on his way home from a vacation in Nassau, took breakfast with the President-Elect Thursday, and then all appointments were put off until the next week and Mr. Hoover and the members of his immediate party left for a two days' trip to the Florida keys to get some fishing. Two fishing yachts carried them.

OKLAHOMA is in a fair way to get rid of another governor—a habit they have down there. The state's house of representatives voted six impeachment charges against Gov. Henry S. Johnston, and the senate suspended him from office pending an impeachment trial. Lieut. Gov. W. J. Holloway has taken his place. The charges against Johnston include incompetency, corruption in office and violation of the constitution and laws of the state. The name of Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, comely confidential secretary of Johnston, figures prominently in hearings of both house and senate investigating committees. She is charged by political enemies with wielding great influence over Johnston's official acts.

DR. CLARENCE COOK LITTLE, president of the University of Michigan, has resigned, effective September 1, 1925, and asked for leave of absence from June 30 until that date. In his letter to the board of regents, Dr. Little said: "For some time two things have been increasingly apparent. First, that my methods of handling situations dealing with interests of private donors, political interest, local interests, and alumnae interest are not consistent with policies which the board of regents deems wise.

"Second, that I shall, I hope, be more effective in scientific research and teaching than in administration."

CONDITIONS in Afghanistan are exceedingly confused. Habibullah, the rebel chief, after capturing Kabul, was proclaimed king of that part of the country, but a lot of the tribesmen are said to be opposed to his rule, and Amanullah, who abdicated, is trying to form an army of the disaffected ones in order to regain his throne. Habibullah is not getting the support he expected from Russia and it is not believed he can retain the crown he grabbed. The bulk of the original Afghan army is said to be still loyal to Amanullah, due to the influence of the military governor of Jalalabad, who is the former ruler's cousin. The Hindus of Lahore and various Moslem organizations of India are appealing for financial aid for Amanullah.

AT A meeting of the Peasants' league of Mexico, which represents half a million agrarians, the radical leaders put through resolutions demanding laws that would come near to Sovietizing the country. They demanded the abolition of the federal house of deputies and the senate and legislatures in the 28 Mexican states and the substitution of councils formed of peasants, small farmers and the working classes, to the exclusion of nonlaborers and intellectuals. Suspension of the payment of national and foreign debts, the immediate extinction of illiteracy and the establishment of schools in every city, village and ranch were also urged. They proposed division of all the remaining haciendas and ranches among the peasants, although less than 25 per cent of the lands given to them under agrarian law during the last ten years are now being worked.

SEVERE winter storms on land and sea were responsible for a number of tragic occurrences. Near Bellevue, Ohio, a motor bus, running through a blinding snowstorm, was struck by an interurban car and 19 persons were killed. Several steamships were in distress off the Atlantic coast. The Italian freighter Florida was foundering off the Virginia capes when the America went to her aid and rescued the crew of 32 despite a full gale and high seas. The American tanker Dannedaika lost her rudder but made her way toward Bermuda. But the British freighter Teesbridge was believed to have gone down with her crew of 30 men. She called for help off Cape Race and ships that hastened to the location given could find no trace of the vessel. Earlier in the week the Dollar liner President Garfield, on a world cruise, ran on a reef in the Bahamas. Fortunately the sea was calm there and all the 89 passengers were safely taken off by the Munson liner Pan-America and landed at Nassau.

CHARLES R. CRANE of Chicago, former minister to China, had a miraculous escape from death at the hands of Wahabi tribesmen near Basra. Motoring to Koweit with his son, J. C. Crane, Charles Johnson and Rev. Dr. Henry Bilkert of the American mission at Basra, he was waylaid and fired upon and Doctor Bilkert was killed. None of the others was injured. The State department at Washington said that the attack might be explained by a feud between some of the tribes and others that are under the leadership of Ibn Saud, a personal friend of Mr. Crane.

The Iraq government resigned last week because of disputes with Great Britain over unfulfilled promises of the British in regard to autonomy.

GUATEMALA had one of those attempted revolutions, three provinces being affected, and for a few days it looked rather serious. But the government forces took the field and effectually suppressed the affair. The headquarters of the rebels in Maratenango, a seaport, were bombed by airplanes and the city was occupied by the federal troops. All rebel leaders who were captured were court-martialed and executed.

ONCE more the old scheme of constructing a tunnel under the English channel between England and France has been revived. Questioned in parliament, Prime Minister Baldwin stated that a nonpartisan re-examination of the project would be made. At the same time the French committee for constructing the tunnel adopted a resolution pledging collaboration with the efforts to get the approval of the British parliament. Economists have long advocated the construction of such a tunnel, but it has always been opposed by military strategists. The English Socialists now favor the examination of the project provided the military are excluded. Engineers say the channel bore could be built at a cost of about $150,000,000, and the railways like the idea. There is also revived discussion of the counter plan of building a 21-mile bridge from Dover to Calais.

DETROIT river froze over, with only a narrow strip of open water, and coincidentally Sumner C. Sleeper, chief of the Detroit customs patrol, and a dozen of his men, quit their jobs. The immediate result was a grand rush of the rum runners. Small autos, sleighs, little skiffs and even skis and toboggans were brought out in great numbers and the liquor smugglers brought their cargoes across from the Canada shore without the least interruption and in the full sight of hundreds who lined the shores.

WORD comes from Moscow that the Russian Communist party has declared war to the death on the party of the exiled Leon Trotsky, accusing it of an anti-Soviet plot. One hundred and fifty of Trotsky's followers have been arrested and quantities of documents seized. Dispatches from Latvia say many of the men taken have been executed.

THEN AND THERE
History told as it would be written today
By IRVIN S. COBB
How the Bastille Fell

It was the taking of the Bastille which marked the beginning of the French revolution. It had been a symbol for royal oppression. By its downfall it became a symbol for mankind freed of the shackles of tyranny, a symbol of freedom and independence.

The Bastille was both a fortress and a prison. Captives were held here without formal accusation, without trial, sometimes without reason. At the whim of a king or a king's favorite, any unfortunate might be locked up, and, because of some private grudge, some personal quarrel, left to rot alive in its gloomy cells. Notoriously it had become a place of confinement for writers who dared to attack the government or persons in power. For these reasons it was hated by the populace. It was an oppressed country's most perfect emblem of imperial despotism.

When the uprising of the people began, the rabble, led on by a few inspired patriots, attacked it on July 14, 1789. Today, July 14 is to France what July 4 is to America. That date had more and greater significance than merely marking the outbreak of the Revolution. By taking the Bastille the people came to have a realization of their own strength. They discovered that commoners might destroy a stronghold of hated might and not answer for the act with their own lives. The seeds of the French republic were sown in the red ruins of the Bastille. From that sowing came the breaking-down of the ancient feudal system, the overthrow of the aristocrats, the nobility and the throne. From it also sprang the reign of terror.

It is told that when a courier from the rioters brought the news to the King Louis XVII at Versailles, the latter in horror cried out, "But this is revolt!" and the messenger answered, "No, sire, it is revolution."

Revolution it was, and by that revolution a new trend was given to the political development of a great nation and an example was given to other king-ruled nations on both sides of the Atlantic ocean.

The details here printed of the siege and surrender of the Bastille were taken from the Gazette Nationale ou le Moniteur Universel, a newspaper of the time. As the Paris Monitor the journal is still in existence.

IN ITS issue of July 23, 1789—the issue next succeeding the Fall of the Bastille—"le Moniteur"—or the Monitor as we would say—carried an account of the event which perhaps was written by its own editor. Whoever it was, this chronicler must have been an eye-witness. The attention to detail, the certainty with which he speaks of this phase or that, proves this. Besides, in referring to the attacking force he says, "We said this" or "We did that."

After dealing at length with the preliminary stages of the siege of the hated fortress by the populace and with the popular hatred for its commandant, M. de Launay, the paper proceeds to a spirited and circumstantial account of the main engagement:

"At the first news of the attack on the Bastille the very name of which recalled thoughts of lettres de cachet, of shame and of oppression, heads were inflamed, madness transported them and during suddenly became as great as the terror which had so long been felt at the mention of this formidable name. Moment by moment the crowd of attackers grew. To it were added citizens of every age, of both sexes, of every condition. Officers, soldiers, firemen, women, priests, artisans, journalists, the greater part unarmed, all whirling about excitedly, all moved by a common impulse, dashed from the various quarters of Paris and hastened by a hundred routes towards the Bastille. The Faubourg St. Antoine, which was directly under the artillery of the fort and was even more stirred up because of its proximity, turned out in its entirety. One also saw rushing thither country people, strangers and warriors recently arrived from other countries. One young Greek, subject of a great lord, watched our enthusiasm, and, fired by it, turned French. Many, as soon as they learned of the attack on the Bastille, were drawn thither by different motives. Some in the hope of pillage. These received their due.

An Intrepid Patriot. "Others came only to succor the wounded or to shield from the fury of the attackers parents, friends or those from whom they during their captivity had fortunately received consolations. Thus humanity, gratitude, and filial piety were expressed at the risk of life and limb. However, on they fought, dying around the drawbridge. Women rushing to the aid of their husbands fell wounded. One woman who sought only war and victory fought in the front ranks of the conquerors of the Bastille. Soon the people hurled themselves in a mob into the court of the 'government house' and rushed to take the second bridge, at the same time firing a volley of musketry at the troops. These latter repelled with a lively and sustained fire which forced the attackers to retire in disorder.

"This attack had gone on for an hour when suddenly from the arsenal side (of the fort) came the beating of drums and sounds of shouting. At the same instant we saw coming into the Court de l'Orme, a flag escorted by a crowd of armed citizens. A great company then advanced towards the court of the 'government house' and cried to the enemy to hold their fire, that there were deputies from the Hotel de Ville who wished to speak to the governor. Soon a white flag was raised on the bastions and the signs of peace and parley were multiplied by waving of hats. Upon this friendly invitation, M. de Corney, accompanied by several others including M. Joannon, who carried the flag and was preceded by a drum, began to march toward the arch which led toward the Pont d'Avance. A man called to their attention a cannon which had been pulled into a loophole in the tower and which was aimed into the Court de l'Orme. Everyone cried to them to put no trust in the perfidious promises which would be made them.

"M. Francoy alone went forward with drum and flag to the very foot of the moat while M. de Corney remained under the arch. Several of the people threw themselves upon him and begged him not to expose himself thus to the fire of the enemy, but the intrepid patriot as strongly urged them to withdraw from him, an, struck the madman in the pit of the stomach with the butt of his gun and knocked him to the ground. Then courageously seizing an already burning cask of saltpeter he succeeded in extinguishing it and after chasing away some of the rabble who had broken into the archives and smashed the armories under the pretext of searching for powder, he hastened to rejoin the patriots who were attacking the Bastille.

The Price of Peace. "Within the fortress discouragement reigned. The Swiss mercenaries of the garrison, however, exhorted the governor to continue the defense, but the officers, high and low, besought him to surrender, and he himself knew that it was impossible to defend it, the impossibility of getting food preventing him from sustaining the siege over a long period.

"The governor, beside himself, addressed the garrison and asked if it were not better to fight than to render themselves liable to slaughter by the people from whose fury there was no promise of escape. 'Let us go back to the towers,' said he, 'and if we must die let us make our death disastrous to the enemy. Let us crush them under the debris of the Bastille.' But the soldiers answered that they would prefer to die rather than to kill such a great number of their fellow citizens and that a further resistance was no longer possible. They must surrender. The drums were then beaten and a white flag was hung from the tower of the Baziniere. But it was too late. The crowd, angered at the dastardly treason of the governor when he had fired upon their deputies, saw only a new trick in these demonstrations of peace and continued to advance, firing their guns to the very bridge of the interior court.

"A Swiss officer, addressing himself to the attackers through a kind of loophole that he had found near the drawbridge, asked them that they be content with the honors of war.

"No, no!" cried the crowd. He then held a paper through the same aperture, which distance made illegible, crying that they were willing to surrender if they received a promise that the troops would not be massacred by the citizens.

"A certain man runs and finds a plank which is placed on the parapet. Several people place themselves under it to act as a counterweight. The brave unknown goes forward, he is ready to seize the paper but he falls into the moat. Struck down, according to some, by a shotgun, he dies a victim of his courage. M. Maillard, son of a huzzar at Chatelet, undaunted by the death of the other, courageously goes out upon this long, straight plank and seizing the paper places it in the hands of M. Hulin, who reads it in a loud voice:

"We have twenty thousand weight of powder. We can blow up the garrison and the whole quarter if you do not accept our surrender." Upon the word of an officer we accept," said M. Hulin. "Lower your bridges."

"Sic Semper Tyrannus." "The invalids (patients in the military hospital which was part of the Bastille) were drawn up on the right, the Swiss on the left. Their arms were placed against the wall. They took off their hats, clapped their hands and cried 'bravo' to the people who were rushing, crowding, into the fort. The first to enter treated the conquered with friendship, throwing themselves upon the necks of the officers in sign of peace and reconciliation and taking possession of the place as it was ceded in the terms of surrender. But, those who followed them, breathing the conquered as if they had been taken by assault.

"Some of the soldiers stationed on the surrender, at this moment fired several shots and the crowd, carried away with rage, hurled themselves upon the invalids and crushed them with blows. One of them was slain. The unfortunate Bequart, that brave officer who deserved so well from the city of Paris by dissuading the governor when he had wished to blow up the Bastille, and who had not fired a single shot during the day, was pierced by a saber which severed his wrist.

"Maillard, Cholot, the grenadier Arne, and several other attackers, disputed the honor of arresting M. de Launay. He was not in uniform but clothed in a gray frock coat. In his hand he had a sword cane with which he tried to pierce his breast and which the intrepid Arne snatched from him. Hulin and several others charged themselves with seeing him safely to the city hall.

Foared Rage of Crowd. "Nearly all those who composed his escort thought that they would be the victims of the murderous rage of the crowd against the prisoner. Some snatched at his hair, others thrust their swords at him and tried to stab him. The unfortunate man, seized with fear of death, said in a weak voice to M. Hulin: 'Ah, sir, you have promised not to leave me, stay by me to the Hotel de Ville;' and again addressing M. Allie: 'Is it thus that you have promised me?'

"The fury of the crowd was continually increasing and their blind resentment did not spare M. de Launay. M. de l'Epine was hit over the head with the butt of a gun and was forced to abandon the escort. Hulin himself, despite his strength and great stature, could not ward off the violence of the mob. Wounded by the efforts that he had made to defend de Launay, crushed by the blows, overcome by the buffet, he was forced to let his prisoner to snatch a second sword. Scarcely was he freed when turning his eyes he saw the head of M. de Launay brandish the head of a pike.

"An even more terrible scene took place in the arsenal. A half dresser, drunk or mad, armed with two flaming brands, was busying himself setting fire to the saltpeter magazine. The brave Jean Baptiste Humbert, who had the honor to be the first to mount upon the towers of the Bastille and who was arriving then from the Hotel des Invalides, drawn by the tail of a

A Hairdresser on the Rampage. "At these words the brave warriors fell in step behind him and marched to the fortress with three cannon, reinforcing themselves with two others which they picked up near the arsenal. Several military patients who had been restored to arms that morning joined them and they marched into the Court de l'Orme.

"In one of the courts of the Bastille they captured a young girl equally interesting because of her grace and her candor. Having led her near to the first bridge, it is the daughter of de Launay, cried the enraged people. 'Either he will surrender or he will see his daughter die in flames.' A straw mattress was to serve her as a funeral pyre. They set fire to it and the unfortunate girl disappeared in the smoke.

"The Gether of Mlle. de Monsigny, for that is the name of the unfortunate young girl, saw from the height of the tower his daughter nearly burned alive. He was going to hurl himself down when he was hit by two bullets and knocked over. The generous Aubin Bonniere, of whom we have spoken, outraged by such an attempted crime, left his post, scattered the blood-mad mob, seized the victim and placing her in sure hands returned to the combat.

"An even more terrible scene took place in the arsenal. A half dresser, drunk or mad, armed with two flaming brands, was busying himself setting fire to the saltpeter magazine. "Then you're doing the same?" she asked Lufe with sudden hope that her brand would have company in the move.

Old man Brandon shook his head. "Not right off," he said. "Until we see how you folks pan out. We can't fix to handle it the way you do. We're filing to protect ourselves before some nester outfit turns up at our front door."

"But the other small outfits feel the same way," Harris said. "If two of us start the rest will join in."

"Maybe so," the old man said doubtfully. "But noways likely. They're too set on the other side. The thought was deep-rooted and he could not be moved."

"We'll let it out it's only for protection that we all are filing," he said. "And that we don't aim to prove up. The outfits that don't file now will lose out. This will always be open range, more than ninety per cent of it, and those who file on their water will control the grass. As soon as the squatters see one outfit starting they'll take out papers on every piece of dirt they can get water to. They'll have six months to move on, then a six months stay. They'll hang round waiting for things to open up so they can rush in here. The brand owners who haven't hedged themselves beforehand will run down to file and find that nesters have had papers on all the good pieces right in their doorway for months. They'll have only the plots left that their home ranch sets on, and likely no water even for that."

The Brandons stayed for the night and rode off at daylight the next morning, while the Three Bar men prepared for a trip to Brill's. As the rest were saddling for the start Harris saw old Rile Foster seated by himself, gazing off across the hills.

"Better come and ride over with us, Rile," he urged. "Bangs would want you to try and forget."

The old man shook his head. "I'm drifting today," he said. "I'm likely be back before long. I back tracked Blue to their camp and trailed them twenty miles to where they joined another bunch. It was some of Harper's devils--I don't know which four. One way or another, whether I get the right four or not, I'm going to play even for Bangs."

There were less than a dozen others in Brill's store when the Three Bar men crowded through the door. Five men sat at one of the tables in the big room and indulged in a casual game of stud. Harper and Lang were among them. Two of them Harris knew as men named Hopkins and Wade. The fifth was unknown to him.

The albino's eyes met Harris' steadily as he entered at the head of the Three Bar men.

THE HEDLEY BASKETBALL GIRLS WIN LOVING CUP

Thursday, the 14th, the Hedley basketball girls attended the tournament at Miami.

Friday morning we played our first tournament game against Maude. The score, Hedley 89, Maude 19.

Friday night we played a game with Panhandle. Score, Hedley 30, Panhandle 13.

Defeating them sent Hedley to play in the semi finals, against Miami. Playing at 10 a. m. Saturday the scores were Hedley 10, Miami 17.

This put Hedley into the finals Saturday night, playing Perryton. The score at the first quarter was Hedley 8, Perryton 3; at half, Hedley 11, Perryton 12; third quarter, Hedley 11 Perryton 29; at quarter, Hedley 16, Perryton 37.

The Hedley girls played four tournament games, winning three of them. In total they played five games. Doubtless they would have won the trophy if they hadn't played so much.

By a hard fight the Hedley girls won the Loving Cup.

The girls enjoyed the trip and had a splendid time. They appreciate the support given them while up there by Mrs. Webb, Mrs. Goin, Robt. Watkins and Mr. Suider. They also thank Charles Rains for taking five of the girls up there.

"Jointing" Logs Easy,
According to Expert

"Jointing" the logs in a rustic cabin isn't "tricky"—if you know how, declared Frank E. Brimmer. To illustrate his remark he proceeds to tell how it's done, in an interesting article in Field and Stream.

All tree logs are not just perfect, he admits, but the trunks can be laid out to top and make a fairly good wall. On handling them as the wall goes up, he says to use an incline and a chain. With a steel square, a sharp ax and a piece of chalk any man can cut the joints. Before sawing out the windows or doors he suggests that the logs be spiked with a transverse two-by-four to hold them in place. A plummet line helps to keep the wall in line, he finds.

The History of John J. Doherty's Case

"Three years ago I took a severe cold, putting me directly to bed. After months' treatment for pleurisy my physician was baffled by the action of fever or temperature, which was high one day and low the next, and while he tried different prescriptions, I didn't improve any, but slowly became weaker.

"The doctor finally decided to tap me by running a needle-like instrument into the left side of my back and between the ribs, to ascertain if pus was forming in my left lung. The tapping resulted in the withdrawal of a small quantity of pus and the doctor said it was forming so fast that I must have an operation to extract and draw out the pus. At the time I was three inches out of place, due to the pressure of the fast-accumulating pus."

"I was ordered to the hospital for an immediate operation or I would be a dead man in 36 hours. The next morning the surgeon removed one inch of two ribs in the back, forming a square cavity to remove the pus, which required eight feet from the table. About two quarts was removed, a rubber tube was then inserted in the cavity to the lung for a drain, which took about three weeks to perfectly drain and heal the cavity.

"The doctors told me that I had to take all precautions possible, as I was subject to easily capturing tubercular germs, due to the weakness of my lungs. For one whole year I used several kinds of tonic and lung medicines and didn't improve much from weakness."

"Then I began the use of Milk's Emulsion and after a month's trial I found myself with increasing appetite and gaining strength, and today I have regained my natural weight and strength and feel completely myself. And the joy of it is, after using all of the Milk's Emulsion that I did it didn't form a habit. I haven't used any for a month now and I feel at my best. I am 48 years of age and weigh 180 pounds."

"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart for your wonderful preparation." Yours truly, JOHN J. DOHERTY, Odamah, Wis.

Photograph Whist

Photograph whist is a new parlor game that has recently been introduced by collectors and holders of old photographs. However, it can be played by all those who have a well-stocked family album, providing the pictures can be removed without damaging them. The old photographs are shuffled and dealt out like cards to four players who play one each time. The homeliest picture takes the trick, and the one taking the most tricks wins the game. So now you can make use of those hundreds of old family photographs if you do not regard them as too sacred a treasure to use for such a purpose.—Pathfinder Magazine.

When your
for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

GENE TUNNEY may have put off the gloves for good. But he's too wise a man to give up the priceless habits of physical training that stood him in such good stead in his profession.

Just before his last fight, Tunney said:

"I started taking Nujol internally seven years ago. The first month Nujol brought remarkable changes in my physical condition. My elimination became active and normal. My appetite increased and a desire for intensive training was created. Since that time I have taken Nujol about five nights a week. I have regulated myself to the amount necessary to keep my elimination normal. I have found during my seven years' experience with Nujol that it is not habit-forming, or in any way unpleasant or harmful."

Nujol is not a medicine. It contains absolutely no medicine or drugs. It is simply a pure substance—perfected by the Nujol Laboratories, 26 Broadway, New York. It not only prevents an excess of body poisons from forming (we all have them) but aids in their removal. In sealed packages only. Buy a bottle of Nujol today.

For Colds -

How many people you know end their colds with Bayer Aspirin! And how often you've heard of its prompt relief of sore throat or tonsillitis. No wonder millions take it for colds, neuralgia, rheumatism; and the aches and pains that go with them. The wonder is that anyone still worries through a winter without these tablets! They relieve quickly, yet have no effect whatever on the heart. Friends have told you Bayer Aspirin is marvelous; doctors have declared it harmless. Every druggist has it, with proven directions. A DOCTOR'S ADVICE: GO LIGHT ON LAXATIVES!

Everyone needs a laxative AT TIMES. But there's no need for making it a HABIT. If you have the habit, you can be rid of it in thirty days. Or less! And this is how: The next time you go to take any strong cathartic—don't. Instead, take a little Cascara. That's not a vicious drug, but the bark of a tree. The laxative made with cascara couldn't harm a child. It is, in fact, the one cathartic many physicians will approve for children. Gentle as it is, cascaring is just as thorough in cleansing the colon as the more powerful purges that actually sap a person's strength. Proof that there's no habit from cascara begins the very day after taking.

Instead of being clogged worse than ever, the bowels are more inclined to move OF THEIR OWN ACCORD. You may have to take cascara several times to establish regularity. But the times you need this gentle stimulus grow further apart. And you NEVER find you must increase the amount. Cascara's ideal form is the candy Cascaret that pleases any palate, and you'll find them at the first drugstore you ask.

PLEADS RIGHT TO KILL "WITCH"; IS GIVEN LIFE TERM

"Pow-wow" Doctor Slays Man He Claimed Had Put Spell on Him.

York, Pa.—John B. Blymyer, York "pow-wow doctor," was convicted of the first degree murder of Nelson H. Rehmeier, recluse farmer-sorcerer, and the penalty was fixed by the jury at life imprisonment. The slender, pale-faced man who testified he had a right to kill Rehmeier at his lonely home in North Hopewell township on November 27 to break a "hex," appeared impassive and disinterested. A few moments later, in the sheriff's office, he said: Says He's Happy. "I am happy now. I am not bewitched anymore. I can sleep and eat and I am not pining away." As an afterthought, and without the slightest emotion in his voice, he added: "But I think that they went a little strong; yes, that's it—a little too strong." The jury's verdict brought to an end one of the most dramatic and fantastic trials ever witnessed in any court. After Blymyer had been pronounced a borderline lunatic, a psycho-neurotic, a hypochondriacal melancholic, knowing no more the moral implications of his act of violence than an untutored child, his attorney in his closing plea fought hard for an acquittal on the grounds of insanity.

Blymyer's own story of his life was one of the most dramatic ever heard in a court. His justification could be summed up in two sentences: "Rehmeier is dead. I am no longer bewitched—I can live now in peace."

Blymyer said he had killed because he was right; under similar circumstances he would kill again, because in the code of mysticism in which he believes, the death of the "hexer" removes the blight.

He told how for ten years he had been in ill health. Medical men could do little, so he turned to the "pow-wowers." They told him he was bewitched.

Told He Was "Hexed." But it was Mrs. Noll, "high priestess" of Marietta, Pa., who first planted in Blymyer's mind the delusion that resulted in the murder. She told him, Blymyer testified, that Rehmeier had hexed him and that the spell could be broken if he would get the book, "The Long Lost Friend," text book of the pow-wowers, or a lock of Rehmeier's hair. The book was to be burned and the hair to be buried.

He induced Curry, another pow-wow victim, to join him in the expedition. They found Rehmeier at his home and, failing to get the book or hair, the murder followed.

Curry was also convicted and given a life sentence.

Ex-Convict Finds Way to Riches in Cemetery

Columbus, Ohio.—To Wesley McCafferty a cemetery is more than a mere graveyard. It is a place to earn an easy livelihood in which the gross returns are all gain.

McCafferty was recently released on parole from jail at Columbus, Ohio. Being ambitious, he set out to make a living. A large soap concern wanted a list of prospective customers to whom it could send samples, so McCafferty went to a cemetery and compiled an extensive list. He called at the post office, collected the samples mailed his clients, and then sold the soap.

Encouraged by first success, McCafferty answered an advertisement to obtain signatures petitioning the city of Urbana, Ohio, for improvements. This time he was found out and returned to jail.

Still Fighting On

President Butler of Columbia, apropos of the jibbing of France and other countries over Secretary Kellogg's anti-war pact, said at a reception:

"War would vanish if mankind really worked against it. If men only persevered in wise things as splendidly as they do in foolish ones the millennium would be here next week."

"Jones is a man of remarkable perseverance," a banker said to me.

"Yes," said I. "Yes. He's tried 238 cures for baldness in the last 19 years, and he's still fighting on as hard as ever."

"Lucile is the Happiest Girl"

So many mothers nowadays talk about giving their children fruit juices, as if this were a new discovery. As a matter of fact, for over fifty years, mothers have been accomplishing results far surpassing anything you can secure from home prepared fruit juices, by using pure, wholesome California Fig Syrup, which is prepared under the most exacting laboratory supervision from ripe California Figs, richest of all fruits in laxative and nourishing properties.

It's marvelous to see how bilious, weak, feverish, sallow, constipated, under-nourished children respond to its gentle influence; how their breath clears up, color flames in their cheeks, and they become sturdy, playful, energetic again. A Western mother, Mrs. H. J. Stoll, Valley P. O., Nebraska, says: "My little daughter, Roma Lucile, was constipated from babyhood. I became worried about her and decided to give her some California Fig Syrup. It stopped her constipation quick; and the way it improved her color and made her pick up made me realize how run-down she had been. She is so sturdy and well now, and always in such good humor that neighbors say she's the happiest girl in the West."

Like all good things, California Fig Syrup is imitated, but you can always get the genuine by looking for the name "California" on the carton.

Fiercer Than Shark

It is generally believed that the shark is the most dangerous, but the barracuda, a large savage pike-like fish of the tropical seas, is more apt to attack man than the shark. It is almost as large as a twelve-year-old boy and its mouth is such that any bite is likely to result in permanent injury.

...KARO contains almost twice the energy value of eggs...pound for pound

There are 120 calories per ounce in Karo—almost twice the energy value of eggs and lean beef, pound for pound—And, of course, this means that Karo is not only a delicious syrup but a great energy-giving food.

The energy Karo gives is supplied immediately—with-out taxing the digestive system—as in the case of many other foods.

Convince yourself that Karo is very economical too—compare the price of Karo per pound with other staple foods. Serve lots of Karo to the entire family—especially the children, who like Karo and who thrive on it.

Keep them strong, healthy and happy.

The Home Demonstration Club entertained their husbands and several members of the High School faculty with a buffet luncheon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. R. The guests were first served with punch, after which they were given peculiarly shaped gloves and ushered into the living room where they were bidden to shake hands with all present so long as the glove lasted. A very interesting program consisting of music, games, stories, etc., was rendered to the delight of the guests. Prizes in the various contests went to Mr. Maxwell, Mrs. Sherman and Mrs. Bridges. The best number was given last of all—the delicious luncheon, consisting of—but why try to do the impossible when

Fuel system of the new Ford has been designed for reliability and long service

THE practical value of Ford simplicity of design is especially apparent in the fuel system.

The gasoline tank is built integral with the cowl and is unusually sturdy because it is made of heavy sheet steel,terne plated to prevent rust or corrosion. An additional factor of strength is the fact that it is composed of only two pieces, instead of three or four, and is electrically welded—not soldered.

Because of the location of the tank, the entire flow of gasoline is an even, natural flow—following the natural law of gravity. This is the simplest and most direct way of supplying gasoline to the carburetor without variations in pressure. The gasoline feed pipe of the new Ford is only 18 inches long and is easily accessible all the way.

The gasoline passes from the tank to the carburetor through a filter or sediment bulb mounted on the steel dash which separates the gasoline tank from the engine.

The carburetor is specially designed and has been built to deliver many thousands of miles of good service.

Since all adjustments are fixed except the needle valve and idler, there is practically nothing to get out of order.

The choke rod on the dash acts as a primer and also as a regulator of your gasoline mixture. The new hot spot manifold insures complete vaporization of the gasoline before it enters the combustion chamber of the engine.
