MUCH BUILDING NOW GOING ON IN HEDLEY

A considerable amount of building activity is visible in Hedley these days. For the past twelve months the old town has been very much alive, and it looks as if the "aliveness" is here to stay.

Material has been placed on the ground for the erection of the compress, which will be located a few hundred yards west of the depot, on land purchased from D. M. Grimsley. This will be an important and welcome addition to Hedley's industrial section.

A crew of men started to work
Monday on a spur track running from the Denver main line to the compress site.

The following homes have just been completed or are in course of construction at this time:

J. S. Beach, five rooms and bath, in west Hedley.

T. R. Moreman, duplex, eight rooms and baths, next to his home place.

G. C. Heath, remodeling and enlarging his home in east Hedley.

R. G. Adamsen, five rooms and bath, in northeast Hedley.

A. A. Nipper, five rooms and bath, in east Hedley.

S. S. Adamson, four rooms and bath, in west Hedley.

O. R. Gulwell is remodeling and adding a couple of rooms to one of his residences.

W. H. Stroul has finished a home of five rooms and bath on his place in east Hedley.

Alva Simmons is building a bungalow on the Simmons and Dishman farm, 2½ miles south of town.

All of these homes are modern in construction and conveniences with beautiful finishings—some in stucco. Many others have been completed in the recent past that are not mentioned here
—and there are more to follow.

J. S. Grooms has built and is occupying a new home near the Dan Grimsley place, across the track from the depot. He has also made some improvements on his former home place in southeast Hedley, which is now occupied by the Ted Stogner family.

bate preliminaries will also be held in the afternoon and the debate finals Friday night. In addition to the debates there will be the declamation, and the Glee Club contests of the various schools of the county. Essay,
Writing, Spelling, Typewriting, Arithmetic, Three R contests
will be held Saturday.

Saturday morning will be devoted to the tennis, volley ball and music memory. Saturday afternoon at 2 the track and field events will be held, which will include relay races, 100 yard dash, 50 yard dash, mile race, high jump, pole vaulting, and other athletic events. Saturday night the one act plays, Junior debate and the extemporaneous speakers will entertain the audience.

A general school exhibit of the work of all the schools in the county will be on display in the school building. The Parent-Teachers Association will serve lunch for the large crowd that is expected. Do not fail to be present and "back up" your school.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Senate, Still Dry, Votes to Put Sharper Teeth in the Prohibition Law.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

THAT the senate is still overwhelmingly "dry" was fully demonstrated last week when the Jones bill to put more teeth in the prohibition act came to a vote. The measure was passed by a vote of 65 to 18 while, in the senators' private gallery, the result was closely observed by Rev. Clarence T. Williams, general secretary of the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition and public morals, and Rev. Edwin C. Dinwiddie, secretary of the national conference of 83 dry organizations. Every proposed amendment was voted down except one offered by Senator Jones of Washington, sponsor of the bill. This provides that: "It is the intent of congress that the court, in imposing sentence hereunder, should discriminate between casual and slight violations and habitual sales of intoxicating liquor or attempts to commercialize violations of the law."

As passed, the bill increases the maximum penalties for illegal manufacture, sale, transportation of intoxicating liquor to imprisonment for five years or a fine of $10,000 or both. An identical measure was pending in the house, having been favorably reported by the judiciary committee.

Passage of the Jones bill was preceded by a debate that drew crowds to the senate chamber, for the leading speakers were Senators Reed of Missouri and Borah of Idaho, respectively against and for the bill. Reed's effort, that spread over two days, was probably his last important speech in the senate, for he retires on March 4, and it was well worth hearing or reading. With all the powers of caustic denunciation at his command—and that means a lot—he attacked the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act and scored with bitter phrases the dry senators and the leaders of dry organizations. There was nothing new in his arguments, but his sarcasm delighted even those against whom it was directed.

Senator Borah admitted that prohibition might be a mistake, but insisted its object is an exalted one. He said he was not committed to opposition to the modification or even the repeal of the amendment to the Constitution or the Volstead act; that he was only committed against the change, the repeal either of the amendment or the law so long as nothing better and more effective has been or can be presented. While the amendment is a part of the Constitution, he declared, congress and the people must support it, maintain it and, if possible, enforce it.

Senator Caraway of Arkansas satirically recalled that Reed was singing a different tune when he was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President at Houston last summer. He dwelt on the statement Reed issued on the eve of the convention in which he made a bid for the support of the prohibitionists.

"On that occasion," said Caraway, "he was offering to lead the dries to victory. But the dries were not deceived and the wets were only disgusted."

WITHOUT a record vote the house passed the Johnson general deportation bill which has provision for the deportation of alien bootleggers, gunmen and bomb throwers. A similar bill had been adopted in the senate. It was considered likely congress would modify the provision part of it, authorizing deportation of aliens receiving a one-year or two sentences aggregate, for violations of laws relating to the sale and manufacture of liquor. This is more than is provided for in most other offenses.

authorizing an additional diversion of water for power purposes at Niagara falls. Mr. Deneen argued that action on the treaty should be deferred pending consideration of other questions at issue between the United States and Canada involving other diversions of water from the Great Lakes, notably the diversion at Chicago for sanitary and navigation purposes. The committee decided to hold hearings on the treaty during the recess of congress.

PRESIDENT-ELECT HOOVER and Mrs. Hoover arrived in Washington Tuesday and went at once to their home on S street, where Mr. Hoover is to remain in virtual seclusion until the day of his inauguration. He has not receded in the least from his announced determination not to make public his cabinet selections before March 4. The latest gossip in this connection was that Mr. Hoover would like to have Senator Borah as attorney general so that prohibition might be properly enforced, but that the senator would not accept the post. There was talk, too, of James W. Good of Chicago for the postmaster generalship, and of Charles Francis Adams, treasurer of Harvard, for the Navy portfolio. On Wednesday Mr. Hoover had an hour's chat with President Coolidge in the White House. He also conferred with Representative Tilson and Senator Watson concerning the date and program for the special session of congress to be held this spring. Next morning Senator Edge of New Jersey, leading wet, breakfasted with the President-Elect, and there was reason to believe they discussed the matter of naming a fact-finding commission to look into the causes of the breakdown in prohibition enforcement. There was a rumor that Mr. Coolidge might be asked to take the chairmanship of such a commission.

GOOD news comes up from South America. After 45 years of quarreling and fighting, Chile and Peru have settled their Tacna-Arica boundary dispute by peaceful means. Tacna goes to Peru and Arica to Chile, and the new boundary is so fixed that the railway, which is Bolivia's sole outlet to the coast, remains in Chilean territory until it crosses the Bolivian frontier. The railroad from Tacna to Arica will be in Peruvian control, and a spur at Arica to connect the two lines will be controlled by Chile. The agreement is the result of diplomatic negotiations undertaken four months ago, after resumption of diplomatic relations between Chile and Peru at the invitation of the United States Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg last July.

COMMANDER BYRD has just made a huge addition to the territorial possessions of the United States. In flights over the Antarctic region he discovered a vast area of land and claimed it for his country, naming it Marie Byrd Land for his wife. The Rockefeller mountain range, in the British Ross dependency, was mapped by aero camera, and another and loftier range, in the newly discovered land, was found. Its peaks seemed to rise to eight or ten thousand feet.

RUMORS that the Spanish dictatorship was weakening and that Primo de Rivera was soon to hand in his resignation seem disproved by events of last week. By a government decree signed by King Alfonso the artillery corps of the Spanish army, in which originated much of the recent disorders, is dissolved. All the officers of the corps are dismissed without salary and become private citizens, and the classes of the Royal Artillery academy at Segovia are dismissed. Command of the artillery posts was taken over by officers of other branches of the service. Some of the artillery officers, who took part in the revolt of a week or two ago, were ordered deported, but probably the others will be reintegrated after taking a new oath to defend the present regime.

SIR ESME HOWARD'S statement to the press in Washington, in which the British ambassador predicted that another effort would now be made to bring about an agreement among the principle naval powers to restrict navy armaments, caused a lot of excitement in the United States.

and Liberals questioned him persistently, and at first his reply was to the effect that the British government had no intention of issuing an invitation for a conference on this subject; that all questions concerning relations with the United States were under consideration and the time had not come to make any statement of result. Later he admitted the government was considering a new line of approach to the United States on the question of naval disarmament.

TROUBLE for the Chinese Nationalists was developing rapidly last week in Shantung, where large numbers of bandits and former northern soldiers were reported to be concentrating. A revolt that started at Lungkow was spreading to other towns, and it was said that Chang Chung-chang, former war lord of the province, was on his way there, accompanied by some Russian generals. Gen. Feng Yu-hsiang some time ago concentrated 30,000 Nationalist troops in western Shantung in readiness for just such a situation as has arisen. The American cruiser Trenton was sent from Manila to Chefoo to look after American interests.

THE extreme cold that has brought so much distress to Europe has had one good effect in England. The coal mining business has been given such a boost that most of the collieries are working full time and many thousands of miners are at work after long months of unemployment.

Traffic and communications in the state of Sao Paulo, Brazil, were paralyzed by floods following terrific rainstorms. The coffee crop was seriously damaged. The port of Santos was completely isolated except by sea.

FULFILLING predictions, President Coolidge last week took the first step toward reopening the question of America's entrance to the World court. By his direction Secretary of State Kellogg delivered to the Washington representatives of all the World court nations identical notes inviting the interested governments to reconsider their rejection of the senate's reservations to American adherence and to take steps making it possible for the United States to become a member of the court.

ONE of the interesting tragedies of the week was the murder in Los Angeles of E. L. Doherty, Jr., son of the oil magnate, by his secretary and companion, Hugh Plunkett, who then committed suicide. It was apparent that Plunkett had suddenly become insane after a year of nervous trouble for which he had been under treatment. The younger Doherty was thirty-six years old and was a partner in his father's oil corporation. The father was prostrated by his son's death.

PHILLIP C. HANNA, a retired veteran of the American diplomatic service, died in San Diego, Calif., at the age of seventy-two years. Mr. Hanna entered the consular service in 1891 and served in various Latin American countries as a consul general, being noted for his unswerving protection of American interests in times of revolution and disorder.

Edward J. King of Galesburg, Ill., who had represented the Fifteenth Illinois district in congress for seven consecutive terms and was re-elected for the eighth, died at his home in Washington after long suffering from heart disease.

Newspaper men mourned the death in New York of Melville E. Stone, one of the organizers of the Associated Press and until 1921 its general manager. Mr. Stone founded the Chicago Daily News in 1875.

THOMAS STERLING, special counsel for the senate's public lands committee, has virtually absolved the Midwest Refining company, a Standard Oil company (Indiana) subsidiary, of fraud in connection with its Salt Creek (Wyoming) leases. In a formal report of his six months' investigation of all the leases covering the Salt Creek field, Mr. Sterling, former Republican senator from South Dakota, declared he found no evidence of fraud on the part of the Midwest company or other operators in the field and that the

THEN AND THERE

History told as it would be written today
By IRVIN S. COBB
How a King Died Like a King

As a monarch, Louis XVI of France was a signal failure. His character was soft, his mentality was dull. His own diary reveals that he neither tried to understand nor cared to undertake the duties of being king. He preferred hunting to the business of statecraft; he rather would spend his leisure hours at making locks or at amateur masonry than in considering the problems of his ministerial advisers or the woes of his oppressed people. Only in his religious principles and in his devotion to his family—a rare trait among rulers of his day—was he steadfast and determined. In coping with the popular discontent which was to culminate in the revolution and the terror, he was alternately feeble in his policies and deceitful in his promises. Largely by his own weakness he invoked the fate which was to engulf him, his court, his dynasty and his heir—the so-called Lost Dauphin. Under the blade of the guillotine, along with countless thousands of his fellow-countrymen and countrywomen—nobles, aristocrats, commoners—he paid the direst of all penalties for his own weaknesses.

It was in the concluding hours of his mortal span—during his trial and in his death-cell and on the scaffold—that Louis XVI rose to heights of manliness and dignity to which none who knew him in his regal days would have dreamed him capable. Next only to his wife, Marie Antoinette, he was the most conspicuous victim of the great uprising; certainly he was one of the most gallant-behaving among all the multitude who lost their heads in the Place de la Revolution.

Those two men who were constantly with him during his last night and his last morning on earth—Clery, a faithful valet, and the Abbe Henry Essex Edgeworth de Firmont, an Irish-born priest—left behind them most graphic accounts of the scenes which preceded and marked the execution. Both of them risked destruction for themselves by their devotion to the fallen king, but both weathered the terror and bequeathed to posterity moving stories of Louis' dying gallantry.

By reading what they wrote we may get a graphic picture of this outstanding tragedy.

IF LOUIS THE SIXTEENTH uttered his last words in resolution during the last few troubled years of his reign, at least he met his fate in kingly fashion—with courtesy for those beneath him in rank, with compassion and grateful thoughts to those who served him at the end, with Christian forgiveness for his oppressors. Indeed, all his dying thoughts appeared to be for others rather than for himself.

Those who attended him during his final night on earth—Clery, the devoted servant, and Father Edgeworth, the heroic priest—bore abundant testimony in their memoirs to their royal master's fortitude and gentleness. Following his condemnation he was permitted a farewell meeting with his family. Of this affecting scene Clery wrote:

"At half past eight the door opened. The queen came first, leading her son by the hand; Madame Royale and Madame Elizabeth followed. They all threw themselves into the arms of the king. A melancholy silence prevailed for some minutes; and it was only broken by sighs and sobs. . . . The king sat down; the queen was on his left hand, Madame Elizabeth on his right, Madame Royale nearly opposite, and the young prince stood between his legs; all were leaning on the king, and often pressed him in their embraces. This scene of sorrow lasted an hour and three quarters, during which it was impossible to hear anything. (Clery was a witness through the glass in a closed door.) It could, however, be seen that after every sentence uttered by the king the agitation of the queen and princesses increased. . . . It was plain from their gestures that they received from himself the first intelligence of his condemnation.

A Monarch's Last Farewell.

"At a quarter past ten the king rose first, they all followed. I opened the door. The queen held the king by his right arm; their majesties gave each a hand to the dauphin. Madame Royale, on the king's left, had her arms round his body; and behind her Madame Elizabeth, on the same side, had taken his arm. They advanced some steps towards the entry door, breaking out into the most agonizing lamentations. 'I assure you,' said the king, 'that I will see you again tomorrow morning at eight o'clock.'—'You promise?' said they all together.—'Yes, I promise.'—'Why not at seven o'clock?' said the queen.—'Well! yes, at seven,' replied the king; 'farewell!' He pronounced 'farewell' in so impressive a manner that their sobs were renewed, and Madame Royale fainted at the feet of the king, round whom she had clung. I raised her and assisted Madame Elizabeth to support her. The king, willing to put an end to this agonizing scene, once more embraced them all most tenderly and had the resolution to tear himself from their arms. 'Farewell! farewell!' said he, and went into his chamber."

After he had become calmer, the doomed man repaired to a turret in the tower where his confessor, Father Edgeworth, awaited him. The latter takes up the narrative:

"I determined to procure the means of administering the sacrament to his majesty, at any risk to myself, since he had been so long deprived of the opportunity of receiving it. I should have brought the elements in secret with me as we were obliged to do to all good Christians, who were detained in their own houses; but the strict search it was necessary to submit to in coming to the Temple, and the profanation which would infallibly have followed, have prevented me. There remained no other resource than for me to say mass in the king's chamber if I could find the means. I proposed it to him, but though he desired it most ardently, he seemed afraid of compromising his safety.

"I entreated him to give me his consent, promising that I would conduct myself with prudence and discretion. He at length yielded."

Consideration for His Valet.

After long delay the consideration of the prison granted reluctantly that the king in his last moments

At half an hour past midnight the king re-entered his bedchamber. Clery goes on to describe what next ensued:

"I undressed the king; and, as I was going to roll his hair, he said, 'It does not signify.' Afterwards, when he was in bed, as I was drawing his curtains, 'Clery, you will call me at five o'clock.'

"He was scarcely in bed before he fell into a profound sleep which lasted without interruption till five. Father Edgeworth, whom his majesty had persuaded to take some rest, threw himself upon my bed; and I passed the night on a chair in the king's chamber, praying God to support his strength and his courage.

"On hearing five o'clock strike I began to light the fire. The noise I made awoke the king, who, drawing his curtains, asked if it had struck five. I said it had. 'I have slept soundly,' said his majesty; 'I stood in need of it; yesterday was a fatiguing day to me. Where is M. Edgeworth?' I answered, 'On my bed.'—'And where were you all night?'—'On this chair.'—'I am sorry for it,' said the king.—'Oh! sire,' replied I, 'can I think of myself at this moment?' He gave me his hand and tenderly pressed mine."

The priest bears testimony that the king heard mass while kneeling on the floor with no cushion beneath him and afterwards prayed. His air was calm, his face was composed, he did not once tremble. At eight o'clock came the escort of soldiers who were to lead him forth to death. Of them he asked, 'that the valet and the priest should not be punished for their services to him, and that the former should be permitted to attend his son, the Dauphin.

"His majesty (says Clery) had his will in his hand and, addressing a municipal officer named Jaques Roux, a former priest who happened to stand before the others, said, 'I beg you to give this paper to the queen—to my wife.'—'It is no business of mine,' replied he, refusing to take it. 'I am come here to conduct you to the scaffold. His majesty then turned to Gobeau, another municipal officer. 'I beg,' said he, 'that you will give this paper to my wife; you may read it.' . . . On the top of the stairs he met Mathey, the warden of the tower, to whom he said, 'I spoke with some little quickness to you the day before yesterday; do not take it ill.' Mathey made no answer and even affected to turn from the king while he was speaking."

Citizens Line Path to Death.

Father Edgeworth was permitted to ride with Louis in the carriage which bore him to the place of execution; soldiers rode with them. Of that dreadful journey the priest set down this account:

"The king, finding himself where he could neither speak to me nor be spoken to without witness, kept a profound silence. I presented him with my Breviary, the only book I had with me, and he seemed to accept it with pleasure; he appeared anxious that I should point out to him the psalms that were most suited to his situation, and he recited them attentively with me. . . . The procession lasted almost two hours. The streets were lined with citizens, all armed, some with pikes and some with guns, and the carriage was surrounded by a body of troops, formed of the most desperate people of Paris. As another precaution, they had placed before the horses a great number of drums, intended to drown any noise or murmur in favor of the king.

"The carriage proceeded thus in silence to the Place de Louis XV, and stopped in the middle of a large space that had been left round the scaffold. This space was surrounded with cannon, and beyond, an armed multitude extended as far as the eye could reach. As soon as the king perceived that the carriage stopped he turned and whispered to me, 'We are arrived, if I mistake not.' My him and would have taken off his clothes, but he repulsed them with haughtiness; he undressed himself, untied his neckcloth, opened his shirt and arranged it himself. The guards surrounded him again and would have seized his hands. 'What are you attempting?' said the king, drawing back his hands. 'To bind you,' answered the wretches. 'To bind me?' said the king with an indignant air. 'No! I shall never consent to that; do what you have been ordered, but you shall never bind me.' The guards insisted; they raised their voices and seemed to wish to call on others to assist them.

Last Words a Prayer for France.

"Perhaps this was the most terrible moment of this most dreadful morning; another instant and the best of kings would have received from his rebellious subjects indignities too horrid to mention—indignities that would have been to him more insupportable than death. Such was the feeling expressed on his countenance. Turning towards me he looked at me steadily, as if to ask my advice. I replied, 'Sire, in this new insult I only see another trait of resemblance between your majesty and the Savior who is about to recompense you.' At these words he raised his eyes to heaven with an expression that can never be described.

"You are right," said he; "nothing less than His example should make me submit to such a degradation." Then turning to the guards, 'Do what you will; I will drink of the cup, even to the dregs.'

"The path leading to the scaffold was extremely rough and difficult to pass; the king was obliged to lean on my arm and, from the slowness with which he proceeded, I feared for a moment that his courage might fail; but what was my astonishment when, arrived at the last step, I felt that he suddenly let go my arm, and I saw him cross with a firm foot the breadth of the whole scaffold; he silenced by his look alone, fifteen or twenty drums that were placed opposite to him; and in a voice so loud that it must have been heard at the Pont Tourant, I heard him pronounce distinctly these memorable words:

"I die innocent of all the crimes laid to my charge; I pardon those who have occasioned my death; and I pray to God that the blood you are now going to shed may never be visited on France!"

"He was proceeding, when a man on horseback, in the national uniform, waved his sword and with a ferocious cry ordered the drums to beat. Many voices were at the same time heard encouraging the executioners. They seemed reanimated themselves and, seizing with violence the most virtuous of kings, they dragged him under the axe of the guillotine which with one stroke severed his head from his body. All this passed in a moment. The youngest of the guards, who seemed about eighteen, immediately seized the head and shewed it to the people as he walked round the scaffold. He accompanied this monstrous ceremony with the most atrocious and indecent gestures. At first an awful silence prevailed; at length some cries of 'Vive la Republique' were heard. By degrees the voices multiplied, and in less than ten minutes this cry, a thousand times repeated, became the universal shout of the multitude, and every hat was in the air."

Kick Is Only Weapon

Strain Gave Ostrich

The full-grown ostrich sometimes weighs more than 300 pounds and is as much as nine feet high. His most marked characteristic is the fact that he has only two toes—the third and fourth—on each foot.

In South America there is another large bird—the rhea—which is also called an ostrich. This bird can be distinguished from the true ostrich by its having three toes instead of two. According to the biologists the original ostrich had five toes. However, the modern bird can probably run faster with the two it has now than could his ancestors with five.

Arabian legend has it that the ostrich is the result of union between the camel and a dodo bird. Certainly it inherited some of the worst characteristics of both. Its awkward shape, the uselessness of its wings, its seeming lack of pleasure in life, all indicating that it is one of nature's errors. The one offensive weapon at its foot, the terrific downward stroke of its huge toe driven by a muscular thigh the thickness of the leg of a full-grown horse. A blow from it will break a rib or the backbone of an ordinary animal. In addition to the force of the blow, the sharp claw can tear skin and flesh like a military sabre.

When the bird is plucked the plucker usually leans on him from behind, since no ostrich can kick to the rear. The philosophy of the ostrich seems to be on a too-proud-to-fight basis, as I have never seen them attack one another. But no doubt beasts of prey are wary of that vicious downward blow, as I have never seen signs of an ostrich having been killed by another ostrich.

Hedley, Texas, March 5, 1929
BE IT ORDAINED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE TOWN OF HEDLEY, TEXAS:

That the following rules and regulations for traffic on the streets or parts of streets in the town of Hedley, Texas, are hereby adopted and established:

1. The driver of a motor vehicle shall not park his vehicle on Main Street in the town of Hedley between the East line of the present State Highway No. 5 in the town of Hedley, Texas and the West line of Main Street, shall park such vehicle within the limit lines as painted or marked on the curb with such vehicle parked against the curb adjoining the sidewalk and at an angle of approximately forty five degrees; and it shall be unlawful for any driver of any such motor vehicle to park said vehicle on said portion of Main Street except as herein provided. Also no double parking is allowed.

2. That vehicles proceeding in an easterly or westerly course upon Main Street shall, when about to enter, cross or turn into State Highway No. 5, the driver of such vehicle shall bring the same to a complete stop within not less than two feet of such point as may be designated by the "STOP TRAFFIC SIGN;" the driver shall then be free to enter said Highway No. 5, if not at the time obstructed by other vehicles or pedestrians, using due caution not to come into collision with other vehicles or pedestrians.

3. A vehicle in turning from an easterly course to a westerly course or from a westerly course to an easterly course on that part of Main Street described in Section 1 hereof shall pass beyond the traffic signs erected or placed thereon by the Council of the town of Hedley before making such turn.

4. All vehicles shall keep to the right of all traffic signs located upon the streets of Hedley.

INSTEAD of exercise

on court or links, try the little exerciser in the vest-pocket box for a dime.
Physicians say Cascarets give your bowels as much real exercise as you get from an hour of hard play! They are made from Cascara Sagrada, which stimulates the peristaltic action and exercises the bowel muscles. Oils, salts and ordinary laxatives don't act like Cascarets. These things only produce mechanical or chemical action, which really weakens the bowels.
Every time you take Cascarets your bowels become stronger. That's the reason they give lasting relief from constipation, biliousness, headaches, indigestion, bloating, etc. That's why 20 million boxes are used a year!

Mother Tells How Milks Emulsion Saved Her Son's Life

"In November, 1918, I wrote you in reference to my son's condition at that time. He had just gotten over the flu and double pneumonia and it looked as if he would never be a well boy again. His lungs were very weak and he had an awful cough. We thought he was going into consumption. He had pneumonia four times.
This had taken all of his vitality and left his lungs in a very bad shape.
"I saw Milks Emulsion advertised in the Birmingham News, got a large bottle and gave it to my son. It did him so much good that I kept on giving him Milks Emulsion until he had taken 125 bottles and now I am very proud to tell you that my boy is a well, strong young man, 18 years old, and in excellent health. I give Milks Emulsion the credit and praise for having saved his life.

Life carefully planned

ASK any of the boys who've made good and they'll tell you it didn't just happen by a lucky
break. Their success was the result of careful planning. Hard work. Night
school, perhaps.
And above all,
always attending
strictly to this important matter
of health.

"I had no time for outdoor exercise," is the story
you'll hear. "I couldn't afford
one of those gymnasium courses.
But I figured I could keep myself in good shape by taking Nujol. I've taken it ever since. And it's helped as much as anything to keep me fit and on the job every day."
There's no easier way to keep in first rate condition than by taking Nujol.
Nujol is not a medicine. It's just a pure, natural substance that helps your system to function as Nature meant it to under

all conditions.
Normally. Regularly. Easily.

It not only keeps
an excess of body
poisons from forming (we all have them), but aids in their removal. Nujol
can't possibly up-
set or disagree
with you, because it contains absolutely no medicine
or drugs. It is simply a pure natural substance. Perfected by the Nujol Labora-
tories, 26 Broadway,
New York.

Start Nujol today. Give it a fair try—for the next three months, anyway. By the end of that time—even before then perhaps—see if you don't feel much more all 'round fit.

You can buy Nujol at all drugstores for a small sum. Worth trying, isn't it? Nujol is sold in sealed packages only. Stop and buy a bottle on your way home tonight.

The two loggers had finished cutting their quota of timber for the homestead cabins and the white peeled logs lay piled and ready to be snaked down to the Three Bar on the first heavy snows of fall.

see one of these rainbow drives with every color from brindle to strawberry roan; none of these humpbacked rants; they'll all be gone. That's almost the last mongrel herd that will ever wear your brand. They'll run better every year until we have all big flat-backed bee stock—a straight white-face run.

She Whirled Papoose and Headed Back for the Ranch.

sharp thunderstorm and the canvas walls of her teepee were almost continuously illuminated by successive flashes. The picketed horses fretted and stamped.

She dropped to sleep again but was roused by voices outside as the guards changed shifts and she estimated that it must be near morning, the fourth change of guards.

The sounds ceased as the men who had just been relieved turned in for their sleep. A horse neighed shrilly within a few yards of her teepee. Another took it up and an answer sounded from the flats. There was a crash of pistol shots, a rattle of hoofs and the instant command of Harris.

"Roll out! Roll out!" he called. "Saddles! On your horses!"

Even as she shouted there came the swish of wet canvas as the men tumbled from their bed rolls, the impetuous of the suddenly awakened Billie thrust her head from the teepee flap, the water cascading down her neck. She saw Harris, buckling his belt as he ran, and the next flash showed him vaulting to Calico's back.

The thunder of hoofs drew her eyes to the bed ground where a black mass surged, then bore off up the valley. A scattered line of riders bore down on the herd, two ghostly apparitions among them throwing the cows into a panic of fear. She knew these for riders flapping yellow slickers in the wind. As the light faded she saw three horizontal red streaks cut the obscurity and knew that one of her guards was in the midst of the rustlers, doing his single-handed best.

The red splashes of answering shots showed on all sides of him. She tugged on her chaps and boots, slipped Papoose's picket rope and vaulted to his back.

The scene was once more illuminated as she rode from the wagon. A riderless horse circled in the flat, a dark shape sprawled near him, and she wondered which one of her men had gone down. A knot of horsemen were turning up an opening gulch on the far side of the valley. A half-dozen Three Bar riders veered their horses for the spot. Harris turned in his saddle and his voice reached her above the tumult.

"Let 'em go!" he shouted. "Let 'em go! Hold the herd!"

Far off on the opposite side she made out a lone horseman riding at a full run along the sidehill above the cows as he made a supreme effort to reach the head of the run. The Three Bar men split and streamed up both sides of the bottoms. The flashes had ceased except for brief quivering plays of less than a second's duration. She hung her spurs into Papoose and trusted to his footwork. A half flash showed the pinto bare twenty yards ahead, with Harris putting him at the slope to pass the cows. She swung her own horse after him and she felt the frequent skid of his feet on the treacherous sidehill.

From the sounds below she knew they were well up on the flanks of the run and nearing the peak. The stampede seemed slowing. A dozen wavering flash revealed Harris a dozen lumps ahead. Papoose followed the paint-horse as Harris put Calico down the slippery sidehill and lifted him round the point of the herd. In the same flash Billie had seen two slickers out before the peaks of the run, flapping wildly in the faces of the foremost cows. This accounted for the showing-up she had sensed. Two of her men were before them and she wondered how this had come to pass.

The lightning-play broke forth once more. She saw two riders swinging round the opposite point. The two slickers were working in the center. Harris' gun flashed six times. She jerked her own and rolled it. The two riders who had just rounded the far point joined it. Cows in the front ranks held back from this fearsome commotion out in front.

The storm ceased as suddenly as it had begun and for two miles she rode in inky darkness. The run had spent its force. The herd stopped and the cows gazed stupidly about, standing with drooping heads and heaving sides. Three Bar men showed on both flanks as in the rear. They had held the drove intact and prevented its splitting up in detachments and scattering through the night.

Harris and Moore rode over to them and for the first time the girl noticed that the two men who had whirled slickers out in front of the run were otherwise to be seen.

"Who was the pair out ahead?" Moore asked. "And what swallowed 'em up?" Harris took his head. "Billie and I were the first to make the front he said.

"Not any," Moore stated positively. "I saw 'em five minutes before you two swung round the point. I was on guard half way up the far side. Split 'em took a header with me and delayed me some."

He pointed to the mud crusted on his clothes. Billie knew that he was the lone rider she had seen on the flanks of the herd as she rode away from the wagon. The fall accounted for their rounding the point ahead of him. Moore was looking off across the country.

"Do you mean to tell me you didn't see those two slickers dapping out in front?" he demanded. "I confess I didn't observe any," Harris said. "You're getting spunky, Moore. A couple of white cows, like you, out ahead of the rest."

Moore regarded him curiously. "Maybe that's so," he said. "Waving their tails in the air, sort of." He grinned and turned his horse to head back a bunch that had drifted out of the herd.

"The boys made a nice ride," Harris said to Harris. "You float round from one to the next and tell 'em we'll soon have a feed. I'll ride back and send the wagon up."

Billie rode with him as he skirted the herd and started on the return trip. Her mind was occupied with the two riders who had slowed the run and disappeared. There had been something familiar about them. As she had viewed them in the lightning's flash they had closely resembled Bentley and Carp. But she decided that this resemblance had been but a fanciful one, suggested by the fact that the two men had been much on her mind of late.

Was Not Impressed by Chauncey's Tales

During an Atlantic voyage Chauncey Depew was entertaining a group of friends one evening in the smoking room with some of his inimitable stories. Naturally, the listeners showed their sense of amusement with one solitary exception. This man maintained an aspect of indifference, and, indeed, apathy.

Mr. Depew, observing this, said: "I have just told you a story which I have never told before. It is a very interesting one, and I am sure you will be interested in it."

SEASONABLE DISHES

Cold weather lends itself to the enjoyment of heartier foods, such as boiled dinners. While many enjoy the ham and bone cooked with vegetables, others who are fond of ham and bacon do not wish its flavors mixed with those of vegetables. The following is one of the old-fashioned dishes:

New England Boiled Dinners.—Prepare plenty of small hard cabbage heads—two or three will not be too many, for a boiled dinner should always be shared—a rutabaga or two if small, cut into eighths; one-half dozen even-sized onions, the same of potatoes and carrots. Getting the vegetables ready for a boiled dinner is not an easy task.

In a large preserving kettle place a three or four-pound piece of tender, quite fat corned beef, add two pig's hocks well scraped and cleaned, cover with cold water and bring to the simmering point. Cook for an hour or two before adding the vegetables. Parboil some cranberry beans after soaking them over night, put into a small salt sack and drop into the kettle with the vegetables, cook all together slowly until the vegetables are tender and the meat well done. Serve on a turkey platter with the meat in the center and the vegetables arranged around it. Cut the salt sack after draining well and empty the beans into two heaps at the ends of the platter. "Much tasting means no wasting"; this is true of any dish and especially of a dinner of this kind; add salt—usually the meat is not salt enough to season all the vegetables—pepper may be added while cooking, a small chill, if desired.

Suet Pudding.—Here is another old-fashioned and always well liked dish: Take three-fourths of a cupful of corn meal, add a little cold milk and when well mixed add a quart of hot milk, stirring until well mixed and smooth; then add a few minutes, then add another quart of cold milk; put all into a deep crockery dish suitable for baking, add one cupful of finely chopped suet, one cupful of sugar, two beaten eggs, one cupful of raisins. Sift over the top on the floating suet two table-spoonfuls of flour; this will form the delicious brown crust after the pudding is baked. Put into a moderate oven and bake three to four hours, stirring the first hour or two, often, to keep the mixture well blended. Then finish baking. Serve hot. This pudding may be reheated until the last morsel is gone, and will still be good.

The pudding needs no sauce, but if liked richer serve with a spoonful of hard sauce.

Diet Hints.

Most of the people who do even a little study of food principles know that fried foods are hard of digestion. The laborer who works hard daily, often in the open air, may be able to digest foods that for the ordinary worker are out of the question.

In some homes fried potatoes are as common and dally a food as bread and butter; the family seem to thrive and grow on them, but a day of reckoning will come for those who abuse the stomach with greasy foods, the fat covering the starch so that the stomach cannot act upon it. As fat is not digested in the stomach and starch is only partly digested in the intestines, the result is disastrous. Of course, with perfect mastication there is some of the starch mixed with the saliva and stomach juices, but a large part of fat-covered food passes into the intestines imperfectly digested.

A very soft-cooked egg, a codded, a medium, or a hard egg, is perfectly easy to serve, with proper care. The eggs should be at the room temperature for these results. To every egg use a pint of boiling water, drop in the eggs, cover closely and set on the back of the stove where they will keep hot but not cook with the heat. If one wishes a soft egg remove it at three to four minutes; if codded, six to eight minutes; if medium, leave twelve to fifteen minutes; a hard egg will need one-half hour's cooking. A hard egg cooked in this way will be tender and digestible, the yolk dry and mealy, as easy to digest as a soft egg and, in many cases, easier.

Every child should be taught the proper making of toast. The bread should be rather dry, then further dried by heating in the oven, then toasted until brown and dry to the center. Toast that is served well browned on the outside, with all the moisture driven to the center, is not only made, nor hygienic toast; it is a soggy indigestible mass which is hard to break up and

HOW TO LIVE LONGER

By JOHN CLARENCE FUNK TRY IT

HAVE you ever tried a winter vacation? Some of you have probably "gone South," or taken a "cruise," or even "followed spring around the world" in the winter. In which case you have been extremely fortunate and doubtless have had a wonderful time. But the present discussion concerns a winter vacation, not a vacation in the winter season. The two things can be entirely different.

Each year winter resorts are becoming more and more fashionable. Tobogganing, skiing, skating and snowshoeing in the northern woods are quite the things to do these days. But aside from the social gesture involved in such a pilgrimage, it is one of the most magnificent opportunities you can give to your body.

Fortunately one does not have to spend any more, and often not as much, on a vacation of this kind as he is compelled to spend on the more conventional journey to the shore or mountains in the hot season.

For the greater proportion of the population in the United States and for practically all of the people in Canada, winter is either at one's back door or at most only a few hundred miles distant. Therefore, instead of grumbling about it, step out into it and put it to use. The winter vacation is one of the best ways to do this.

Those who have not spent days in the winter woods plowing through glistening snow, or are ignorant of the thrills of winter sports have something to live for on the score of amusement alone.

It is not possible even to suggest the genuine delights that are connected with an outing of a week or ten days in the December or January woods. And, as a matter of fact, one does not need the background of a formal winter playground to experience the joys of wintertime. All one really requires is a good companion and the will to make the most out of the beauty and life-building qualities that winter offers.

BEAUTY

THE desire for personal beauty is almost as deep-seated as for life itself. Women and men fortunately take the biblical statement that "God made man in his own image" as a literal fact. It follows, that to develop personal attractiveness or to keep that which nature bountifully bestowed is a most natural objective.

In these days of "service" beauty has not been overlooked. And this is as it should be. Beauty salons and barber shops abound. And millions of dollars annually, through them, are taken from our pockets and given to those whom we believe can make us more pleasing to our mirrors and to the rest of the world. Who would have it otherwise?

Nevertheless, when it comes to buying beauty, humanity is very prone to be gullible. One causes a phantom but with no more effort than to reach into the pocket and take out money. It is here that a fair objection may be raised.

A very misleading statement is this one: "Beauty is only skin deep." Don't believe it! Not even for a moment. Beauty is much deeper than that. In fact, beauty goes into the very heart of one.

Certainly, the set of your features, the cut or condition of your hair and the style of your clothes all play their part in your general appearance. But one can have the best of all these things and still lack that essential attractiveness that is only to be found in abounding good health. Dull eyes, sluggish blood and brain, an ever-tiringly tired body, are not the things that make for beauty. And this, no matter how beautiful you may happen to be.

Incidentally, no amount of rouge or hair-waving for the women, and no amount of shaving and massaging for the men can give you what you lack. As auxiliaries to beauty? Yes. But as a foundation for it? Positively no!

Red cheeks and tips, sparkling eyes, a sprightly step and a keen brain are not to be got from beauty specialists or the lotions they offer for sale. The only things that count in this connection are fresh air, a proper amount of wholesome food, plenty of rest, sufficient exercise, regular alimentary habits and a "cheerful state of mind."

DR. CALDWELL'S THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not habit forming.

The Doctor never did approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Get a bottle today, at any drugstore and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open. For a free trial bottle, just write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. FORD MOTOR COMPANY
Dallas, Texas.

Attention: Mr. W. C. Proctor.

Gentlemen:

We are mailing you today, under separate cover, photographs of the Montgomery Ward car which they are using for testing Riverside tires.
At the time this picture was taken, the car had been 109,000 miles and is still in the best of running condition and appears to be good for more than another 100,000 miles. The morning the picture was made, we washed the car for the first time since delivery; to look at it, drive it and hear the motor run, you would think it had been no more than 15,000 miles.

It was purchased in Mansfield, Ohio, during May, 1928. The driver states that he is using on an average of about two quarts of oil each 500 miles each day. It is driven 250 miles during the day by one driver and the same distance at night by another. They are using the second battery however. The manager of these test cars states the switch was left on over night, which he thinks is possibly the reason for having to purchase a new battery. They are changing oil every 1000 miles; the same fan belt is being used and doesn't look worn. They have given the car a general greasing every 1750 miles and up to the first 100,000 miles had spent a little less than $150 on repairs, etc. The rear axle has never been down; they have used two sets of brake linings, one set of pistons and rings, replaced clutch once, and have only used one extra hose connection.

The original speedometer was replaced by us yesterday, as it had registered 109,450 miles. It was reset correctly at the end of 100,000 miles but later began to skip or lose from twenty to twenty-five miles each day.
The car has been driven at an average of forty miles an hour. The wheels are still tight and running true, and bearings have never been replaced.
We have been unable to secure information as to how many miles the tires have been averaging.

We have permission from the Riverside Tire Company to use the picture and also the above information as an advertising feature if so desired.

Yours very truly,
HUBB DIGGS COMPANY,
By D. V. Brooks, Manager.

QUAINT FLOUNCED TAFFETA; LACE-TOUCHED NAVY FROCKS

IS THERE romance in clothes? Suppose we let this picture of a bewitching gown for "sweet sixteen" answer the question. The eyes carry it unanimously.

Those "first parties" so exciting to the subdeb—what perplexities they impose upon doting mothers in the way of choosing just the prettiest and the loveliest the world affords for daughter to wear.

The naive sunny-yellow rayon taf-to wear with the colorful taffeta party frock must be dyed a perfect match if one would dress in perfect fashion. The outlook for sheer navy daytime frocks with a touch of lace either worked into the making of the dress or as an accessory item is most promising.

This season the word sheer applies to woolsens as well as cottons and silks. Nowadays one may be as comfortably and charmingly attired in a woolen feta frock illustrated is everything that it should be for youth. Perhaps one of the happiest things about it is that it can easily be made at home. There's nothing intricate about it—a good pattern, a few yards of taffeta, deaf fingers, a willing mind and the deed is done!

The bowknot of self-fabric formed of milliner's folds is a master stroke when it comes to trimming a whole frock with "the touch that tells." And aren't those quaint ruffles, one topping another, adorable? The hemline tips up in front just enough to satisfy fashion's demands. The bodice is slightly form fitting, which is the latest style dictum for evening frocks.

Of course the color symphony for this frock could be carried out in any one of a dozen other "delicious" colorings, but it's just this way: All the yellows from daffodil to deep orange have captured Dame Fashion's fancy georgette as in a diaphanous chiffon—all because fabric specialists have accomplished truly wonderful feats recently in the way of producing woolsens weaves of amazing lightness.

These dainty woolen frocks in solid dark tones look their handsomest when feminized with a touch of lace. Collar and cuff sets are especially youthful and they will be very much in vogue on the new navy frocks. The most recent lace collars stress soft jabot effects. In the picture two screenland favorites, Mary Philbin (to the left) and Kathryn Crawford are choosing to take a spring stroll clad in demure navy frocks enlivened with a bit of lace at throat and at wrist lines. The soft jabot effect, just referred to, gives an exceedingly smart lace touch to the two-piece frock to the right.

and she is making a big play on these shades for spring and summer. Pale green is another favorite with the mode for party wear. As to white, be it taffeta, satin or chiffon, the outlook is that it will lead by a big majority when summer comes. There is supposed to be a note of color somewhere about the white, coming in the way of a flower, a ribbon, a pair of slippers. Or, if the trend is toward color, it will be in the form of a ting is significant. The present-day silhouette is changing, the "last word" stressing the princess-cut bodice top with a low flare—in this instance achieved by fine plaiting.

Speaking of new lace accessories, a most popular item is the cape-collared variety deep in the back, sloping over the shoulders from way of a flower, a ribbon, a pair of slippers. Or, if the trend is toward color, it will be in the form of a

Some Marriage Dreams That Don't Come True

During the present season 25,000 prospective chorus girls applied for employment with New York city's theatrical producers. Most of them came from small towns and cities from all over the country. About 5,000 found jobs with "shows," good, bad and indifferent. What became of the other 20,000 it would be difficult to say. The average professional life of chorus girls is three short years and they may expect many weeks of idleness in this period. There always is an over-abundant supply of new ones to select from every fall. Perhaps 150 attain to speaking parts in plays in one season. The rest are rarely heard of again. Most stage-struck girls dream of brilliant marriages to men of wealth but that is an illusive dream. O. O. McIntyre, New York theatrical critic, says not more than ten chorus girls have married millionaires in the last ten years and most of these matches have ended in divorce.

This Little Girl Got Well Quick

"Just after her third birthday, my little daughter, Connie, had a serious attack of intestinal flu," says Mrs. H. W. Turnage, 217 Cadwalder St., San Antonio, Texas. "It left her very weak and pale. Her bowels wouldn't act right, she had no appetite and nothing agreed with her.

"Our physician told us to give her some California Fig Syrup. It made her pick up right away, and now she is as robust and happy as any child in our neighborhood. I give California Fig Syrup full credit for her wonderful condition. It is a great thing for children."

Children like the rich, fruity taste of California Fig Syrup, and you can give it to them as often as they need it, because it is purely vegetable. For over 50 years leading physicians have recommended it, and its overwhelming sales record of over four million bottles a year shows it gives satisfaction. Nothing compares with it as a gentle but certain laxative, and it goes further than this. It regulates the stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

There are many imitations of California Fig Syrup, so look for the name "California" on the carton to be sure you get the genuine.

Exports of automotive products for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1928, totaled 423,000 units, valued at $425,000,000.

Range Gun Fires Steel Balls
A range gun to be used in teaching gun laying and pointing has been invented by Capt. E. H. Stillman, assistant professor of military science and tactics at the University of California, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The gun, a wooden affair worked by a spring, fires quarter-inch steel bearing balls. The spring tension is so adjusted that one inch on the range used equals fifty yards. The steel projectiles fall on a sand table eight by fourteen feet in size, and tiny bursts of sand mark the shell puts. Small wooden model battleships are used for targets on ranges equivalent to 24,000 yards.

Lava Flow Forms Rich Soil
The slopes of volcanoes afford the best vineyard lands the world knows, according to Dr. Henry S. Washington of the Carnegie institution, who gives that as the principal reason why inhabitants of such districts as surround Mount Etna, where recent eruptions have occurred, cling to their homes in spite of the danger, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The famous grape districts of northern France and southern Germany are in ancient volcanic areas which have long been inactive.

Improve the taste of milk this way—and your children will drink more of it . . . .

SAYS one of America's leading physicians: "Two tablespoonfuls of Karo in a glass of milk not only improves the taste of the milk but doubles its food value."

This doctor's advice is valuable—for he knows children and he knows Karo.

"Serve plenty of Karo to the kiddies—especially underweight children, in milk, on cereals, on sliced bread. Watch their weight increase!"

All children like the delicious flavor of Karo—it appeals to their "sweet tooth."

And—do you know why Karo is so splendid for children? Because each ounce of Karo contains 120 calories—the energy-giving value of Karo is nearly twice that of eggs and lean beef, weight for weight.

What is good for children is also good for the entire family.

Make Karo and pancakes your breakfast habit.

TRAFFIC CONDITIONS MUST BE IMPROVED

The Informer is publishing an ordinance in this week's paper that should attract the interest and cooperation of all the citizens of Hedley and the Hedley community.

It is a well known fact that the present system of parking cars in Hedley, especially in the business district, is a most dangerous one. Double parking on the sides and in the center of the street, constant "running of the gauntlet, backing up, and other exercises, make up a condition that is daily inviting disaster and death. Surely something should be done about it, and now that something is being done, it is the duty and should be the pleasure of every citizen of the community to assist in working out a safe and sane parking system.

The City Council has passed this ordinance and erected traffic signs solely for the protection and welfare of both autoists and pedestrians. It was the only right thing to do, and while they have no desire to be "hardboiled" in the matter, they are determined upon the enforcement of same.

Let every citizen of the community acquaint himself with the new ruling, obey the rules himself, and give all possible aid in having them obeyed by the public generally.

A Vineyard, our genial mayor and Denver station agent has purchased 800 acres of fine farming land in Hall county, close to Turkey. Abe must be getting ready for an old age of peace and plenty. We've thought some about doing that, but haven't got around to it yet.

CHARLES REED SANFORD

Charles Reed Sanford was born at Italy, Ellis county, Texas, April 24th, 1897, and departed this life March 14th, 1927, age 31 years, 10 months and 14 days.

He leaves behind to mourn his departure his father, C F Sanford of Hedley, a twin sister, Mrs J W Tarter of Amarillo, three other sisters and three brothers: Mrs R G Blanks of Hedley, Mrs W H Crow of Abernathy, Mrs A N Williams of Amarillo, R O Sanford of Abernathy, J R Sanford of Amarillo, Robert E Sanford of Hedley.

He enlisted in the service of his country at the age of 20, in May, 1917, and was sent to France in December, 1917, where he served until the Armistice was signed, and then in the Army of Occupation until the spring of 1920 when he returned home and finished high school in Hedley and attended State Teachers College at Canyon.

He was converted in early boyhood under the ministry of Rev. Z B Pirtle, the pastor at Lakeview at that time. He was a dutiful son, a loving brother, a true friend. He ever kept his high ideals before him and lived so that his records show an excellent character.

He was buried at Lakeview, beside his mother, Saturday, March 16th. A host of relatives and friends followed his body to its last resting place.
