HEDLEY DEBATERS DO WELL AT CHILDRESS

Friday morning the two Debate teams, boys and girls, went to Childress to compete for District championship. Both teams were desirous to win, since the success meant that Hedley would go to the State Meet at Austin—a chance rarely met by so small a school as Hedley.

There were eight girls teams. These teams represented eight counties, Donley being represented by Allene Bridges and Mary Lee Garland. Both teams, boys and girls, had worked up both sides of the question. "Resolved: That the British Cabinet System is More Efficient in England Than the Committee System is in the United States."

The girls showed remarkable enthusiasm after the first success, and came out second in finals, winning over seven schools and lacking one decision going to Austin. Every school defeated was a Class A school.

The boys team represented by James Webb and Joe Everett was declared by many people who heard the debate to be one of the best teams ever represented in debate. They had very convincing argument, and they showed striking ability in forceful presentation, winning for Donley county third place, which is to be highly commended for a small school like our own.

We have sportsmanship to be admired, ability to be proud of, and talent to be encouraged.

HEDLEY WINS THREE FIRSTS IN GENERAL SCHOOL EXHIBIT

Hedley won three first places in the General School Exhibit at the Donley County Meet.

The school exhibit was divided into the following groups: First, second and third grades made up Group No. I; the fourth and fifth grades composed Group No. II; sixth, seventh and eighth grades group No. III; ninth, tenth and eleventh grades, Group No. IV.

Hedley was successful in winning three of these exhibits—Groups I, II and IV. Miss Stegall, special art teacher of Clarendon, succeeded in winning Group No. III.

A project in Texas History, consisting of the Alamo and other historical places, received much comment from the general public. The project was made by three boys of the sixth grade of Hedley.

Liberal Prize Offer Spurs Contest Interest

$3,500.00 Divided into 97 Prizes to be Distributed to Contest Winners

Interest runs high and competition is keen among local women for the honor of receiving national recognition and reward for their ingenuity and skill in home dressmaking. This interest is spurred by the ninety-seven prizes totaling $3,500 00 which are being offered to participants in the 1929 Borden Fabrics Dressmaking Contest now open to local women. The only entry requirement for this contest is the purchase at the TIM & TIDROW STORE of a sufficient amount of this attractive material to make one or more dresses. Children's dresses are eligible for prizes, and many local women are seizing this extraordinary opportunity to create for themselves and their families attractive wardrobes at an extremely moderate cost. Particularly enthusiastic is the management of the TIMS & TIDROW STORE who say that these new cotton prints represent the finest quality at the price that it has been their experience to handle.

The contest is conducted in the interest of Borden Fabrics and also to encourage and promote home dressmaking as an art and an economy.

As an added feature the Universal Pictures Corporation is co-operating and Universal stars will wear the winning dresses in coming productions and in a Cotton Pageant to be staged in the beautiful Imperial Valley in California at the conclusion of the contest. These stars, often called the best dressed women in America, have been quick to realize the style possibilities embodied in these new cotton prints and are rapidly adopting frocks of these dainty materials and patterns as essential features of their wardrobes.

Also of interest is the fact that these Borden Fabrics are guaranteed fast to washing, and should any Borden Fabric fade after proper washing the garment will be replaced or the cost of making same refunded.

HEDLEY TO WITNESS ENDURANCE-DRIVE

Webster Bros. local Whippet dealers, and W. A. Marshall of Tickey have contracted with Happy Grant, Endurance Drive promoter, to stage a 125 hour non stop drive, covering every town in the county.

The event starts at 10 a. m. April 29 and ends at 3 p. m. May 4. Mr. Look Henry will do the driving. He will be locked to the wheel and will drive continuously without food or sleep. In making this drive Henry will endeavor to beat all laws of nature. Other conditions of the drive are that the car will not replenish the oil or water supply.

This visit to Hedley will be awaited with interest.

Mrs. W. G. Brinson and G. C. Brinson are in Glen Rose for treatment. We are glad to hear that at last report both were getting along nicely.

MRS. L. B. MUNCIE

Word reached Hedley Wednesday that Mrs. L. B. Muncie, a former resident of Hedley, had died Tuesday evening following an operation in an Amarillo hospital. We have no further information now, but hope to have for next week's paper.

America's Bloodiest Battlefield a National Park

BATTLEFIELD OF SALEM CHURCH All Photos by Underwood in Lincolnton

WHERE "STONEWALL" JACKSON FELL

SPOTSYLVANIA COURTHOUSE By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

CHANCELLORSVILLE BATTLEFIELD

AMONG the many national parks which Uncle Sam has set aside for the enjoyment of his children, none is more interesting nor has had a more thrilling history than the Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania national battlefields, the latest addition to the list of our national playgrounds. For here was America's greatest scene of courage, a small section that could be included within a semicircle with a radius of twelve miles, an area that has been appropriately called "The cockpit of America," where more armies maneuvered and more men were killed and wounded than on any other similar area in modern history prior to the World War. This park, which was dedicated late last year by President Coolidge, includes six battlefields—Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Cold Harbor, Salem Church, the Wilderness, and Spotsylvania Courthouse. Here in the space of nine days of actual fighting 700,000 men struggled heroically and 100,000 were killed or wounded. No less than nineteen generals were shot down on these fields. Among them were Jackson, Longstreet, Cobb, Hays, Bennett, Grey, Jenkins, Daniel, Sedgwick and Wadsworth. It is a curious coincidence that the latter was the grandfather of Sen. James Wadsworth of New York, chairman of the military affairs committee which passed on the bill presented to congress last year for the establishment of this national battlefield park.

"History stumbles over itself in this neighborhood," says a recent writer. Confederate soldiers fought in the same trenches that their Revolutionary ancestors had used in same sections. Two battles had to be fought at Manassas before the curse of war left that field. Two were fought at Cold Harbor and two at Fredericksburg and two in the Wilderness thickets. In Fredericksburg reminders of Colonial, Revolutionary and Civil war days are to be found on the same block. The Wilderness stretches as grim and tangled today as in the days of the '90's; the Chancellor House, Spotsylvania Courthouse, the trenches of Bloody Angle must all appear very much as they did then." For this region was the very heart of the conflict between the two greatest forces of the Union and the Confederacy, the Army of Northern Virginia, defending Richmond and the Army of the Potomac, seeking to break its way through the cordon of Gray to the Confederate capital.

The first fighting in the section took place in December, 1862, when Burnside attempted to capture Richmond by way of Fredericksburg. First bombarding the town he crossed the Rappahannock under cover of his own guns and attacked Lee's entrenchment on Marye's Heights to the west of it. After a battle that lasted all day, during which the Irish Brigade made itself immortal by its series of hopeless charges on the Heights and the Sunken Road at the foot of them, Burnside withdrew, recrossing the river. He lost 12,965 men and the Confederacy 5,377.

Burnside, after Fredericksburg, was succeeded by Hooker who early the next spring moved his men up the north bank of the Rappahannock and crossed at three different places, marching by as many different roads towards Chancellorsville, where his forces converged and started toward Fredericksburg. Through this move Hooker had gotten behind Lee's army while Sedgwick, with 28,000 men, was in front of it. Learning of the move, Lee faced his army west and advanced to meet Hooker, leaving behind a small force to oppose Sedgwick, still at Fredericksburg. The Union forces planned to crush Lee between them. Sedgwick broke through at Fredericksburg and advanced to Salem church where Lee sent reinforcements to his troops which had retreated before the advancing Federals. The two forces clashed on May 3 and Sedgwick was driven back on the Rappahannock, crossing at Banks Ford, seven miles above Fredericksburg.

At the meantime Lee met Hooker's advance at Chancellorsville, defeated the Federals and forced them to recross the Rappahannock several miles above the ford at which Sedgwick's troops had crossed. The losses in the fighting were 16,845 for the Federals and 12,463 for the Confederates.

Lee followed up his advantage by advancing into Pennsylvania, was defeated at Gettysburg and the two armies returned to Virginia where they wintered. Grant had assumed command of the Northern army, Jackson had been killed and his place in the Southern army taken by Longstreet.

On May 5, a year after the battle of Chancellorsville, Grant crossed the Rappahannock about fifteen miles above Fredericksburg and started towards the Wilderness. Lee, who had wintered at Orange, moved east to intercept him.

It was critical time in the life of the Union. Notwithstanding Gettysburg the North was discouraged. Her sea commerce was badly disrupted, volunteering, which had begun spontaneously and with burning enthusiasm, had stopped and she had been forced to resort to the draft. Political plotting was rife, demands to end the war were insistent. Had Lee forced Grant back across the Rappahannock there would have been a cry for an armistice, backed by Europe.

At "the opening in the Wilderness" the two armies met and began what some historians place among the 20 decisive battles in the history of the world. For three days they struggled for the strategic key to the situation, the Brock road—for Grant the way to Richmond, for Lee the means of blocking the movement and forcing the Federals again across the Rappahannock.

The two great armies swayed and fell back and advanced in turn. One hour the Brock road appeared to be Lee's, again it was almost within Grant's grasp. Then, slowly, the tide of gray began to sweep past the Brock road. Grant's army fell back stubbornly, contesting every inch of ground. His career threatened, Grant sent reinforcements. These, too, gave way before the slowly advancing rebels. But suddenly the Confederates ceased to move forward. Concentrated effort was momentarily succeeded by hesitation and confusion.

For the second time chance and fate had combined against the fortunes of the South. A single bullet, fired by one of his own men, had struck down General Longstreet within less than two miles from the spot where almost exactly one year before "Stonewall" Jackson, Longstreet's predecessor, also had been killed by his own men.

Grant seized the situation and attacked. The Confederates withdrew to their first lines. The Brock road was Grant's. The next day he began moving over it towards Spotsylvania Courthouse, on the way to Richmond. Lee, to the east of him, began to cut a road through the woods to meet him. At the Wilderness the Confederates had lost 10,641 men, and the Federals 17,668.

The race for Spotsylvania, ten miles away, continued with straggling encounters until the armies met at Bloody Angle where took place the greatest hand-to-hand and small arms fighting that is recorded in history. Here for 12 hours nearly 60,000 men struggled for the possession of a section of land containing less than 500 acres, not larger than the average Virginia farm.

At times the ground became cluttered with the dead and dying. Lines of Union troops advanced to the trenches and fired blank into the faces of the Confederates who rose to defend them, whole companies hacked each other to pieces with bayonets, a tree 12 inches in diameter, a portion of which is preserved in the Smithsonian Institute, was cut down, bit by bit, by musket balls. The wounded could not be cared for and many were left on the field to die unattended. The Bloody Angle entirely overshadowed the fighting on the other seven miles of line along the battle front at Spotsylvania.

After Bloody Angle the exhausted armies fought no more for nearly a week. Then Grant began a "siding" movement toward Richmond and Lee moved along on parallel lines. In a short time both armies were on the North Anna river, out of the park area. The Union forces had lost at Spotsylvania 16,577 men and the Confederates proportionately more, their killed and wounded being 11,588. The total losses for both sides in the five battles of the park area was 102,811.

The passage of the bill in congress last year which set aside this area, not as a memorial to war but as a monument to the 100,000 who gave their lives to the nation, marked the culmination of an effort which began more than thirty years ago and which had been made by the people of both the North and the South. Although the effort was unsuccessful for many years these fields of battle were places to which thousands of Americans made patriotic pilgrimages every year and in the march of modern progress they found golf balls instead of cannon balls whizzing across the fields. For famous old Mansfield hall on the battlefield of Fredericksburg, had become a country club and the game of golf was being played over the field once drenched with blood. Cannon balls which had been unearthed in the vicinity were used as tee markers. It was on the porch of this country club that President Coolidge stood last fall at the dedication of the new national park, and said: "The unanimous action of congress in passing the military parks bill and the joint participation of the people of both the North and the South in carrying into effect the law is another welcome demonstration in a long line of events not only that the war is over but that reconciliation is becoming complete."

General plans for the park which are now being carried forward by the government reveal that the project is one of the greatest of its kind ever undertaken. The builders of the park propose to strive for beauty. Scores of miles of fine roads will be built, lined with grass lawns and abutting the trenches in which the northern and southern armies met on the fields of Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Spotsylvania and the Wilderness. Along these roads will be long lanes of blossoming trees, cherry trees, dogwood trees, japonica and many other specimens, some of them very rare, the purpose being to so plant the trees that at all times of the year when any trees are in bloom many hundreds of blossoming trees of one or another variety will offer a colorful drive longer and as beautiful as the famed cherry drive at Washington.

The roads will be well built and about the same width, but at spots the roads will swell into large parks, with beautiful stone or rustic bridges in imitation of nature, and with memorials and markers placed upon them. Beside these areas, where the government will build large parks along the parklike roads, it is expected that states, organizations and individuals will establish parks on the roads as memorials.

An effort will be made to get away from the stilted monuments peculiar to battlefields, and to have placed upon these fields only monuments and markers which have inherent beauty and which are to be placed in spots which can be made attractive and where shrubs and flowers will add charm and there nooks and benches will be provided for those who want to rest. Every advantage is to be taken of the natural landscape to add beauty to the roads and parks. In order that the battlefield park may not be marred by ungraceful monuments or shrubbery, the fine art commission in Washington will pass upon designs and nothing but those which they

Rural Schools Needs Must Be Considered

Rural schools in the farm lands, and district schools in some of the so-called urban areas, exist under a system inaugurated in 1780. The hundred and forty years of practice has established a precedent which proves difficult to alter. But to obtain better schools the existing order of control must be either entirely abolished or radically changed, says Alson Secor, editor of Successful Farming.

"Why should a mistake of 1780 be made perpetual?" he asks. "Just because we have grown up with this system does not make it right. Why, then, did not the colonists go back to the centralized school system? The same answer holds true now what did then: It is easier to create political offices than to abolish them. The politicians of 150 years ago were anxious to hold their little school jobs as the politicians of today are anxious to hold their jobs."

"Consolidation," writes Mr. Secor, "is not essential, however; it may not be economical or desirable. But state aid for the weak schools will put them on a parity with the better schools. This must come. Our school units are too small. The county unit is small enough. But any change that will equalize the opportunities should be made and made quickly. Because farmers can get aroused about equality for agriculture and make a tremendous political fight for that, they should be right in line for equality in rural education."

Home Owners Helped in Modernizing House

There is no doubt that the home modernizing movement will bring about in the near future a class of service from legitimate sources which will enable home owners desirous of remodeling to secure funds on time payment for the purpose.

At the present time savings banks, building and loan associations, life insurance companies, trust companies and mortgage companies are evincing a real interest in the financing of remodeling programs.

Not long ago there started a movement which has been nationally recognized as of extreme importance; the organization of the home modernizing bureau of the national building industries.

An organization this, not only to assist home ownership, but to encourage and make possible home betterment.

At present financing of homes and home improvements is being carried on effectively. And all signs show that this effectiveness will be even more marked in the near future.

Landscape Improvement

St. Louis county is engaged in one of the most ambitious road-paving campaigns ever launched by a single county in the United States. Already 105 miles of new roadways have been completed with 27 miles remaining to be built. A total of 132 miles is anticipated by the county engineer as a result of a bond issue of $3,000,000.

Now that the county is to be ribboned with concrete highways, it is opportune that those in authority should embroider these new thoroughfares with shade trees, ornamental shrubbery and flowers, preferably using those native to Missouri. How charming the landscape if unsightly wayside signs and ragged fields could be displaced with stately sycamores and maples, hedges of alder, buckhorn, native currants, sumac or climbing roses!—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Proper Care of Lawns

Rolling is necessary to keep the lawn in a desired condition, but damage often can be done if the work is not done at the right time or in the right way.

It is important that rolling never be attempted when the soil is in a soggy condition; that is, rolling should be done when there is no excess of moisture in the soil. This is especially true in the case of heavy soils.

The weight of the roller to be used and the amount of rolling required depends upon the type of soil. Light or sandy soil requires and will bear more rolling and the use of heavier rollers than will heavy soils. On an average a roller should weigh from 175 to 225 pounds.

Record to Be Proud Of.

South Windsor, Mich., has more than 87 miles of paved streets, 35 miles of water mains, 27 miles of sidewalk, 40 miles of sewers, 10 miles of gas mains, 15 miles of telephone lines and 12 miles of electric power lines. This is the record of a community scarce three years removed from the pioneer stage of cow pastures, plowed fields, and barbed-wire fences.

Team Work Builds City

The way to build up a community is with community spirit, co-operation, team-work. The local manufacturer, the home producer of any commodity of general use should be given preference. Community spirit should be in the

Little Journeys in Americana

By LESTER B. COLBY

From "Printer's Devil" to the Cabinet

When Z. N. Garbutt, editor of the Pike County Free Press, borrowed Rev. Josiah Carter's roan mare one day back in 1848 and rode out into the country to round up a new subscriber or two he set into motion a train of events that led to the court of St. James, to the freeing of the slaves and to the promulgation of the Open Door of China. Listen.

Pittsfield, Ill., wasn't much of a town then and Garbutt's paper wasn't much of a paper. But fate was waiting that summer's day in a little hill-cabin.

As Editor Garbutt rode past the cabin an angry woman, with broomstick upraised, chased a small, frightened boy from the cabin. The boy ran toward the road. The woman halted at sight of the stranger. Garbutt beckoned to the boy and questioned him.

"She's my stepmother," replied the boy. "And she seems to like to beat me. But—I don't like it."

The boy was a pleasing sort of boy and the naive answer touched Garbutt. After a few moments' talk he lifted the boy up and placed him on the roan mare behind him. They rode into Pittsfield that night and the boy became a printer's devil.

We turn the reel up a few years. The boy, John G. Nicolay, is grown now. He is writing editorials, news items, "sticking" type and getting out the newspaper. He has found another boy for "devil." That boy, literary, clever, is named John Hay and he is writing some verse. He calls it "Pike County Ballads."

Nicolay becomes a great admirer of a young Illinois lawyer, a tall, slender fellow who appears to have political promise.

One day Nicolay, perhaps more than ordinarily inspired, writes an editorial appealing to the nation to make Abraham Lincoln President. He pulls proof, laboriously, on his hand press, and mails them to editors he knows.

The idea takes. There is big talk about it. Political thunders are heard afar. Finally Lincoln is elected.

Now one of Lincoln's strongest traits was his ability not to forget friends. When he went to Washington he took John G. Nicolay with him as his aide, first friend and advisor. Nicolay was, perhaps, a sort of Colonus House to Lincoln.

Nor did Nicolay forget his friend. So John Hay, too, moved to Washington. Of the twain, Nicolay and Hay, perhaps opportunity smiled the larger for Hay.

John Hay became secretary to President Lincoln when twenty-four years old, became ambassador to the court of St. James, became secretary of state under President McKinley and Roosevelt, became the greatest diplomat that the United States has ever known, took time from his political duties to be, for a time, editor of the New York Tribune when Horace Greeley published it. And John Hay promulgated the Open Door to China. A treaty he negotiated with Great Britain healed a sore of fifty years' standing.

John G. Nicolay became one of the greatest historians of Lincoln, became consul to Paris and then marshal of the Supreme Court of the United States. Pittsfield, Ill., is today only a village; maybe 3,000 people. Few see it because no railroad passes through; a stub line its only transport. But on the courthouse square stands a noble boulder. On it are engraved four names:

Abraham Lincoln
Stephen A. Douglas
John G. Nicolay
John Hay

Douglas, who once defeated Lincoln for the senate, was added to the list because he, like the others, was a familiar sight in Pittsfield in those prewar days when the four were carving their careers out of the rough.

So I say to you, viewing the above apart, if you ever see a woman chasing a frightened little boy with a broomstick, lift him up and put him on your roan mare behind you. It may lead him to the court of St. James or to the opening, perhaps, of some door to China. Or even to a share in the making of some future Lincoln.

Why Commander Must First Learn to Obey

In the great academies where young men are trained to be officers in the army and navy, one of the first lessons they must learn is that of obedience. Yet these men are not being trained to take orders all their lives; they are being trained to give orders—to be officers commanding others.

The reason for this is that before a man can learn to command, he must learn to obey. Before he is trusted with the responsibility of giving orders, he must show that he can take them and carry them out.

Perhaps that will answer the question that often occurs in their parents' minds: "Why should I do

This Week's Review

Memphis and adjoining territory is now enjoying a period of unprecedented prosperity and onward progress. Business firms have their goods marked at moderate prices; homes are modern and well-kept; all of which invites one to be a lifelong resident or guest of one of the most substantial communities in America.

In this review of Memphis we have endeavored to point out the progress and advancement of the business, social and professional life of the territory and the elemental factors that are contributing to the onward march of the people of the golden age. While this section contains very little historical data, yet a shrewd observer, picking up a copy of this paper a hundred years from now, will be able to get an excellent idea of the business life of today.

WM. CAMERON LUMBER COMPANY

Everything In Building Material

The Wm. Cameron Lumber Co., located in Memphis, at 219 South 5th St., does an extensive business in Lumber, Building material and Builders' hardware. The business is under the capable management of one who is thoroughly conversant with every branch of the business. The one big advantage in dealing with them is that their stock is so extensive that we might say they carry all materials needed in putting up a building from foundation to roof. Their prices are right and quality and service the best. Their high grade lumber has won popularity and wide patronage for the firm at all times. By reason of their modern facilities they are able to furnish excellent service with promptness and dispatch. They are at all times pleased to be of practical assistance to home builders. They invite you to talk your building problems over with them—their building experience enables them to furnish useful information and sound council. The contractors and builders, the farmers and people generally have come to know that they can depend on this well-known firm for just about everything in the lumber business. The reputation which they have established for stock of quality and for straight forward dealing is bringing thousands of dollars to Memphis that would go to some other trading center were this establishment not located here.

SCOTT TIN SHOP

Everything In Sheet Metal Work

Located in Memphis at 500 Noel Street, with phone 162, the Scott Tin Shop is one of the most modern and up-to-date sheet metal works in this section of the Panhandle. As the general purpose of this edition is to give both the local and outside world an adequate idea of our progress; we deem it quite appropriate to devote space to this well-known firm. Superior to the vast majority of such establishments and surpassed by none, either in general excellence of work or superiority of materials used, this firm has continued its successful career because the management and assistants are among the most efficient engineers of this part of the state. By dint of hard work and unflinching determination to master every detail of this calling, they have acquired a training in the intricacies of the Sheet Metal trade which makes them an authority upon all subjects pertaining to this difficult trade. Well versed in all technical theory of their business, they have merited the position they have obtained. # Memphis, The City Of Opportunity

Located in the Northeast corner of Hall county, is the City of Memphis. Those who selected the original townsite chose wisely, for here every natural condition favors the building of a great city. Because of its location on the main line of the Fort Worth & Denver Railway System, all the immense agricultural, dairying, poultry raising and stock raising for a radius of several miles pays tribute to Memphis. With plenty of fertile land surrounding the city, with the cotton, poultry and dairying industries increasing by leaps and bounds, with several good wholesale houses, and big cotton compress, it is one of the busiest little cities in this part of the Panhandle.

Memphis is not only a city of today, but a city of tomorrow. Its citizens are building with an eye to the future—the brilliant and unmistakable future destined to make Memphis not only the most populous, but the place of greatest importance in this section of Texas. It is at present a city of approximately 5,000, and a supply point of a territory with a population many times greater.

It is a city of fine streets, of beautiful homes, of fine churches and schools. It's splendid business blocks and residences bespeak thrift and permanence.

MEMPHIS POULTRY FARM

I. W. THOMASON AND SONS, OWNERS

With A Modern Poultry Farm Located One Mile North Of Memphis On Highway, Operates A Complete High Grade Breeder Farm, Including Complete Hatchery Equipment With A Capacity of 52,000, Also Does Custom Hatching—Been Established Five Years—Expect to Double Capacity Next Season, Phone 918A—Free Brooder Service On all Orders Of 300 Or More.

This is one of the institutions that has materially aided in the development of this section of the state, has especially been instrumental in aiding the progress of modern poultry raising. They furnish the poultrymen with baby chicks of practically all breeds.

The Memphis Poultry Farm is equipped with the very best of incubators and brooders and great care is taken with the chicks to see that they are in the very best of condition before being sent out. People who have bought here have had excellent success and Mr. Thomason can refer anyone who doubts to numerous successful chicken raisers. With incubators of large capacity, this poultry farm is able to meet all demands of the people for high quality chicks. They offer delivery service on orders of all sizes and at all ages, fully equipped to furnish started chicks.

With orders of 300 or more this concern furnishes FREE brooder service. In other words, with orders for 300 or more chicks an expert brooder man follows the orders to regulate your brooders, your chicken pens, your stoves, also the feeding. This service is ABSOLUTELY FREE and is invaluable to assuring you success with your chicks. It gets your flock started right and cuts down your loss. This service is not only temporary but every customer of the Memphis Poultry Farm is assured of cooperation during the life of the chickens purchased. This service brings thousands of orders to this farm that would be sent elsewhere were this highly important service not available here.

In dealing here you are assured of good pure blood stock that has been started right for they have: A Candee hot water brooder of 6,000 capacity, 10 mating houses, trap nests, a record is kept of all stock, each laying house has 1 1/2 acres, one-half of which is used at a time thus assuring plenty of green stuff which is so essential, and with this free range helps to make for the health of the stock.

Another big advantage in dealing here is the fact that this is a breeder farm not just a mechanical hatchery. They realize that their reputation is at stake so are very careful in the management, checking, mating, breeding and feeding. When he buys eggs produced on some other farm, he demands certain standards of health, calls in person and culls the stock, watches the mating and feeding thus at all times is able to maintain his high quality.

This farm specializes in White Leghorns, Rhode Island S. C. Reds, and Thompson Ringlet Barred Rocks, however, they have other breeds and next year expect to add Buff Orpington and White Wyandotte.

To encourage your trading with this community's high grade poultry farm we print a convenient order coupon:

Memphis has: Improved streets, good schools and churches and as progressive citizens as any town in the State.

Spend Your Money In The District You Make It In

The value in money is in what it will buy—the necessities, the comforts, the luxuries of life. Money spent in your community to buy these things for its people stays there where every person shares in the new profits its trading produces.

More modern conveniences, a wider social life, a greater business activities, in fact, a far-reaching, ever-growing wave of benefits to every citizen of the district follows the practice of buying at home. Our manufacturers, merchants and professional men help financially to support our civic improvements they donate to our school papers, our church affairs, to advertising space in this and that program, (which in most cases is merely a donation), in fact, do perhaps more than their share in dozens of worthy causes each year to help make our community and district a better one to live in.

Surely it is not asking too much when we ask that when you shop, try your home and neighboring towns first. We never heard of a mail order house or some distant merchant contributing to our civic improvements. If every citizen could appreciate the value of the help extend ed by the firms in our district each year, he or she would begin to realize that without this help most of the worthy causes would never acquire the necessary means to be termed a success.

MEMPHIS GARAGE

Offers Complete Automotive Service—Tires, Gas, Oil, Storage And Repairing.

The Memphis Garage located at 325 Noel St., is a mecca for tourists from all states, the local autoist and native citizens when in town, and offer the glad hand to everyone whether they need a little service or just want some information.

This garage is among the best known garage of this section of the state. Service and supplies for the motorists are features of their very magnanimous service, and are sold as reasonably as any place in Memphis.

They welcome all to Memphis and ask them to make their place their auto home while in town. The management and assistants are thoroughly familiar with all the roads over the state and will be pleased to route anyone anywhere, give information upon the rapid development of this part of the state as well as to see that your car is always ready to go.

They make a specialty of their car repairing department and this department is in charge of very capable mechanics and has equipment to furnish the very best of work.

Included in their automotive service is their washing and polishing department which turns your car out looking like new.

CITIZENS STATE BANK

Located In Memphis—Offers Complete Banking Service—Where Personal Service is Extended And Council Cheerfully Granted.

The Citizens State Bank, located in Memphis, is a modern banking institution under the able direction of financiers who have conducted its affairs in accordance with the great cardinal laws governing banking and finance. It has been a most important factor in the upbuilding of this section of Texas.

Among the financial institutions of this part of the state there are indeed few which can show more substantial progress than this well-known institution. From the date of its organization up to the present time they have been known for their sound, energetic and conservative business, commanding a marked degree of the confidence of their depositors and the public at large, a condition that is the aim of the officers and executive board.

Another feature is the savings department, where courtesy and efficiency are always in evidence and many who have never enjoyed the confidence which the possession of a bank account give to every man will find this savings department a stepping stone to success.

Real magnanimous service to the public has been the policy of this bank since its inception, and thus the people have learned that it is the intention of the management that they should not only give interest, but show it.

It is quite fitting and proper in this review that we direct the attention of our readers to this bank as one of the distinctive features of Memphis.

Gigantic Physique of Primitive Man Proved

A man powerful enough to engage in battle to the death with a huge buffalo of a size and type now extinct is considered by authorities to have been traced by a discovery reported from the Transvaal. The bones and skull of a primitive man were found lying near the fossilized bones of a giant buffalo, whose head measures 12 feet across.

"This appears to be evidence of a race of men, earlier than the negro, in South Africa, for whom search has been made for a considerable time," said Sir Arthur Woodward, former keeper of the geological section of the British museum. If this is so the discovery is of great importance.

"In the absence of more information it is impossible to give even an approximate date when this type of man may have lived, but the bones are probably not older than some specimens in the British museum. It is quite likely that this man died in fighting the buffalo and that he was a normal man of his time."

Kill Devil Hill Shifts

Though the tablet to the first successful flight of an airplane recently unveiled at Kitty Hawk, N. C., is supposed to mark the scene of the Wright brothers notable exploit, Kill Devil hill from which they launched their plane on that memorable day twenty-five years ago has shifted a mile northward from its position at that time. The strong sea winds which play over the sand dunes of that region are responsible. However, the site is near enough for the purpose of honoring the cradle of aviation.—Pathfinder Magazine.

CHAPTER X—Continued

Slade suddenly grasped the significance of this arrest.

"How many of you fellows are pussy-footing round out here?" he inquired of Carp.

"I don't mind confessing that several of the boys are riding for you," Carp informed. "But while we've eluded Morrow we haven't been able to trace it back to you. I even got put on the black list, thinking you might do business with me direct after that—knowing my word wouldn't stand against yours. But not you! You've covered your tracks."

Carp spoke softly, as if to himself, detailing his failure to gather conclusive evidence against Slade.

"I even run your rebrand on fifty or so Three Bar cows. You knew there wasn't a dollar changed hands when Morrow gave me that paper which licensed me to rustle my own she stock. The idea in my starting up was to run your rebrand on any number of Three Bar cows. Later Morrow would buy me out—needing for you; can't be proved. Oh, you're in the clear, all right."

Slade broke in upon the monologue. This recitation of his probable immunity from conviction on every count, far from reassuring him, served to confirm his original suspicion as to the reason for this arrest without witnesses. If the sheriff had wanted him he had but to send word for Slade to come in. He threw out one last line and the answer convinced him beyond all doubt.

"Then a lawyer will have me out in an hour," he predicted.

"A lawyer could," Aiden said. "If you saw one. But we've decided not to let you have access to legal advice for the first few days."

Slade turned on Carpenter.

"This sort of thing is against the law," he said. "You're a United States marshal. How can you go in on a kidnaping deal?"

"I'm not in on it," Carp shrugged. "The sheriff asked me to arrest you at the first opportunity. I've turned you over to him. The rest is his affair. Besides, like I was mentioning, they can't prove a thing on you. As soon as they're convinced of that they'll turn you loose."

The sheriff nodded gravely.

"The very day I'm satisfied Harris can't prove his charges I'll throw open the doors. You'll be a free man that minute."

A vision of the near future swept across Slade's mind. If he should be locked up for three months and discharged for lack of evidence it would wreck him as surely as the rumors of the last few months had cut Lang's men off from the rest of the world. Squatters had fled on every available site throughout his range and now wanted to see if the Three Bar would win its fight. If the news should be spread that he was locked up these nesters would rush in. On his release he would find them everywhere. With marshals scattered through the ranks of his own men, intent on upholding the homestead laws, he would be helpless to drive them out. If they locked him up at this time he was lost.

He nodded slowly.

"Well, I guess you've got me," he said. "I don't see that it will amount to much anyway. Sooner or later you'll let me out." He raised his arms high above his head and stretched. Under cover of this casual move he swiftly raised one foot.

Slade planted his boot on the edge of the light table and gave a tremendous shove. The far edge caught the sheriff across the legs and overthrew him. The lantern crashed to the floor and at the same instant Morrow aimed a sideways, sweeping kick at Carpenter's ankles. As the marshal went down his head struck the corner post, or a bunk and he did not rise.

With a single sweep Morrow caught the back of his chair and swung it above his head for the spot which Waddles had occupied at the instant the light went out. The weapon splintered in his hands as it found its mark, and as the big man struck the dirt floor Morrow leaped for the light which indicated the entrance.

"I am equally

head as the table went down but Slade, with the same motion, vaulted the prostrate sheriff. The force of the blow threw Harris off his balance and as he tripped and reeled to his knees Slade's boot heel scored a glancing blow on his skull and felled him. He regained his feet, gripping a fragment of the chair Morrow had smashed over Waddles' head, and struck at a dim form which loomed against the vague light of the window.

The shape closed with him and he went down in a corner with Slade. Slade struck him twice in the face, writhed away and gained his feet, back-slashing at Harris' head with his spurs. Harris caught a hand-hold in the long fur of the other's chaps, wrapped both arms round Slade above the knees and dragged him back. His hand found Slade's throat and he squeezed down on it as the man raised both knees and thrust them against his stomach to break the hold. Slade's arm swept a circle on the floor in search of the gun Harris had dropped but he was jerked a foot from the floor and Harris jammed his head again and Slade crumpled into a limp heap. Harris held him there, unwilling to take a chance lest the other might be feigning unconsciousness. But Slade was out of the fight.

The sheriff struggled to his feet as Waddles tossed Morrow back from the door and slammed it shut. He closed with Morrow but the man eluded him. He dared not shoot with friends and enemies struggling all about the black pit of the little room.

Morrow leaped one way, then the opposite, as the sheriff groped for him. Aiden turned toward a rattle at the stove as he heard Slade's head crunch against the wall under Harris' savage thrust.

"Down him!" Waddles roared. "Tear him down! Tear him down! I'm holding the door."

From the corner by the stove an iron pot hurtled across the room for the sound of the voice and crashed against the wall a foot from his head. A second kettle struck Aiden in the chest and he went down. Waddles saw the light vanish from the window, then reappeared. Morrow had made a headlong dive through the little opening.

Waddles swung back the door and sprang outside as Morrow vaulted to the saddle. The big man lunged and tackled both horse and man as a grizzly would seek to batter down his prey.

The frightened horse struck at him, numbing one leg with the blow of an iron-shod forefoot, then reared and wheeled away from the thing which sprang at him, but Waddles retained his grip in the animal's mane, his other hand clamped on Morrow's ankle.

The rider leaned and struck him on the head. The crazed horse shook Waddles off but as he fell the other man fell with him, dragged from the saddle by the jerk of one mighty hand. They rolled apart and Morrow leaped to his feet but Waddles had wrenched the leg already numbed by the striking horse and it buckled under him and let him fall to the ground as he put his weight on it. He reached for his gun. A form loomed above him, a heavy rock upraised in both hands. The gun barked just as a downward sweep of the arms started the rock for his head. Morrow pitched down across him and Waddles swept him aside with a single thrust.

He rose and stirred the limp shape with his toe as the sheriff reached his side.

"Dead bird!" Waddles announced and turned to limp back to the cabin.

A match flared inside as Harris lighted the lantern. Carpenter stirred and sat up, moving one hand along the gash in his scalp. The sheriff stooped and snatched a pair of handcuffs on Slade's wrists. They splashed water on his face and he opened his eyes. He regarded the steel bracelets at his wrists as he was helped to his feet and turned to Harris.

"Don't forget that I'll kill you for this," he said. It was a simple statement, made without heat or bluster, and aside from this one remark he failed to speak a syllable until the sheriff rode away with him.

The sheriff waved the lantern outside the door and before he lowered it two deputies rode up, leading his horse.

"We started at that shot," one of them announced in explanation of their prompt arrival.

Aiden motioned Slade to his horse and helped him up.

"Shoot him out of the saddle if he makes a break," he ordered briefly.

"Now you can move against those men I've sworn out complaints for," Harris said to Aiden. "Public sentiment has turned against them to such an extent that they won't get any help—and there won't be any to fill their places, once we've cleaned them up. Deputize the whole Three Bar crew when you're ready to start."

The sheriff nodded and led the way with the two deputies riding close behind, one riding on either side of Slade.

CHAPTER XI

The freight wagons rattled away from the Three Bar as the first light showed in the east, and the grind of wheels on gravel died out in the distance as Harris and Billie finished their breakfast.

The "puds had come in from the round-up the night before, prior to the return of Harris and Waddles from their mysterious two-day trip in response to the sheriff's message, and Evans had led them to Brill's for a night of play. They were due back at the ranch in the early forenoon and Harris had allowed the freighters to depart before the others arrived.

"What did Aiden want?" Billie asked, referring to the trip from which he and Waddles had returned late the night before.

"We made a call on Carp," he said. "He had some good news we've been waiting for."

"Then Carp is a Three Bar plant," she said.

"He's a U. S. plant," Harris corrected. "But he's been working in with us to get something on Slade—to gather proof that he's behind these squatter raids of the last few years and the ones they've aimed at us up to date. He couldn't get a shred that would hold in court. But Slade is almost through. His claws are clipped."

The girl started to question him as to Carp's activities but after the first sentence she became aware that his attention was riveted on something other than her words. He had thrown up his head like a startled buck and was peering down the valley.

Her range-bred ears caught and correctly interpreted the sound which had roused him. A distant rumble reached her and the surface of the earth seemed to vibrate faintly beneath her feet. She knew the jar for the pounding of thousands of hoofs, the drone for the far-off bawling of frightened cows. A low black line filled the valley from side to side, rushing straight on up the gently-sloping bottoms for the Three Bar flat.

"They're on us," Harris said. "I might have known. Get back to the house—quick!"

As they ran she noticed that his eyes were not upon the surging mass of cows in the valley but were trained on the broken slopes back of the house.

"Anyway, they don't want you," he said. "We'll do the best we can. I made that prediction about clipping Slade's claws too soon. What with Slade locked up and Morrow six feet underground, I was overconfident. I might have known it was planned ahead."

His face was lined with anxiety, an expression she had never before seen him wear even in the face of emergency. She had no time to question him about the assertions relative to Morrow and Slade.

The front rank of the stampede was bearing down on the lower fence. The barrier went down as so much spider web before the drive; posts were broken short, wire was snapped and dragged, and three thousand head of cows pounded on across the meadows.

ENSEMBLE OF FAILLE OR MOIRE; PRINTED SILK FOR SPRING WEAR

SILK as a medium for the ensemble provides a new theme of interest to the world of fashion. The pliant silk prints which are so tremendously popular for ensemble costumes present only one phase of the subject. The latest silks to bring a new glory into the ensemble realm are the sort which yield handsomely to tailored treatments. Black and navy are outstanding, although lighter tones will figure later on. The various types include fine ribbed silks, moire, heavy crepe, fall-back satin and taffeta, too, if you please.

Advance models of silks such as just quoted leave no doubt in the jacket or coat with skirt. Some of the dressier models top a "dressmaker" styled one-piece frock with a matching coat.

The wardrobe which does not include one or several ensembles of printed silk will be the exception and not the rule this season. So if you have neglected to invest in a silk-print ensemble, "do it now," for sooner or later you will fall victim to the wiles of these captivating modes.

In the realm of sports and informal daytime costume there is simply no getting away from prints. For jackets and coats to be made of sprightly print instead of the customary plain bring

WHAT DR. CALDWELL LEARNED IN 47 YEARS PRACTICE

A physician watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the system and is not habit forming. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for anybody's system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly.

Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to the nearest druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. B.B., Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

An Accessory
"Why don't you put on the brake when you park the car?" asked the instructor.
"But they told me the car was fully equipped!"

When a man speaks with a golden tongue all others are silenced.

WHEN IT LOOKS DARK to any weak, nervous or ailing woman, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription comes to her aid. Women in every walk of life today say Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a reliable medicine. It is made from roots and herbs, sold by druggists, in both fluid and tablet form.

Mrs. Laura Bush of 234 11th Ave., Port Worth, Texas, said: "Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restored me to health when I was nothing but a physical wreck. When I was a girl I got my first weak and sticky my nerves ran very low and I was so poorly I had to give up school. Upon the advice of an aunt I started taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and I am today as healthy as ever and my nerves are completely restored without further trouble."

Officer's Dignity Cut No Figure With Pat

A young man who had spent three years at different U. S. M. T. U.'s was reminiscing. He told several of his experiences in the camps and wound up by relating the following:

"We were all scared to death of an officer that first day in camp, but not so with 'Pat,' whose name, by the way, was Abraham Levinski. The general made up on his horse to observe the conduct of our being mobilized into line. On his appearance officers started to attend to their business up he stepped off about ten paces, and with much deliberation focused the camera on the puzzled officer.

"Now, smile," Pat' soothingly requested, while the company broke in to a roar, joined by the general on the horse."

American Patriot

mind that we are standing at the threshold of a new vogue of fascinating promise.

As to chic styling it is the coats for these ensembles which carry major honors. Skirts are usually regulation type, either circular cut or plaited in some attractive manner. Coats, however, run the gamut from types of simplest tailleur treatments like the one illustrated to models which show a cunning of detail which is simply thrilling.

When demure Mary Philbin, whose cinema artistry has brought her much fame, selected her spring ensemble, as posed in the picture, she decided on faille silk in a bright navy. Being tailored with utmost simplicity the handsome fabric and the beauty of its

a note of fascinating interest into the theme of the ensemble.

The spring fashion parade will be, in consequence, largely a matter of gay print ensembles, the model in the picture being typical of the new trend. The print employed for this long coat and matching blouse belongs to the class of "picture" silks which are so highlighted by fashion this season. This particular silk is called "covered wagon"—which caption tells the story of its design.

The long coat ensemble, as shown here, vies with short-jacket versions. Some of the smartest models of the short-jacket type favor crepes with tiny repeat figures on dark backgrounds. The skirts, usually plaited, are topped with cunning jackets of tone coloring are made the paramount issue.

As said before, however, the types scale from simplest tailleur to most intricately designed modes. Coats are in many instances distinguished by soft lines and original neck treatments. Clever scarf ties, curious sectional seam workings, capes, plaits, tufts, quilting and bows, some of them huge, give sprightly detail to silken costumes. When one stops to think of the possibilities of silk coats separate from their partners, the possibilities are diversified styling, with solid-toned crepe for the lioness.

Poika dots used in reverse coloring make stunning jacket ensembles. A navy dot on a white ground, for instance, is combined with a white dot on a navy ground. The interworking of the two presents infinite opportunity for original treatments.

"Twin prints" also furnish inspiration for clever fashioning. These prints are new on the fabric list. The same design is patterned on a sheer weave and on a heavy weave. The two are worked together, the latter

AMARILLO WOMAN SUFFERED 30 YEARS

Says It Is Marvelous the Relief Orgatone Is Giving
Her—Gains Daily

"I could buy a nice automobile
with the money I have spent during the last thirty years trying to get rid of my troubles, and my efforts failed completely until I commenced taking Orgatone,"
said Mrs. E. S. Dollar, who lives at 2812 Line Ave., Amarillo, Tex.
Mrs. Dollar is well known in Amarillo and has many friends who will be pleased to hear of her improvement. In relating further her experience with Orgatone, she said: "Sometimes for weeks at a time I would not average over three or four hours sleep each night on account of extreme nervousness, which was the result of long years of suffering. My stomach was in a very bad condition all the time, and I had practically no appetite, in fact, when I did eat I just forced myself to do so.

"Constipation bothered me constantly and oftentimes headaches bothered me. I tell you I was in a very badly run down condition
in every way, but in spite of all I could do in the way of medicine and treatment I just kept getting weaker all the time, and I finally came to the conclusion that nothing would ever do me any good.

"It was a hard matter for me to make up my mind to take this Orgatone, for I had been disappointed so many times that I had about lost faith in all kinds of medicines. I finally made up my mind to get one bottle of Orgatone, and if I felt that it did me good I would get more. To my great surprise, I commenced to feel better before I had finished my first bottle. Well, to tell you the truth, it is all so wonderful that I just don't know how to express myself, so I will just say that Orgatone is the most marvelous preparation I ever heard of. I now have a hearty appetite and eat three good square meals
a day, my nervousness is leaving me and the numbness in my left side has been improved considerably. Orgatone is restoring my health and I am now so happy and grateful that I never lose an opportunity to speak a good word for this good medicine. I am more than glad to give this statement."

Genline Orgatone may be obtained in Hedley at the William Drug Co.

Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri is new Secretary of Agriculture

President Hoover's recent appointment of former Gov. Arthur M.
Hyde of Missouri as Secretary of Agriculture, brings for the first time a man from the automobile industry to the cabinet of the nation's chief executive.
Secretary Hyde has long been a Buick dealer at Trenton, Mo.

The appointee has established a remarkable record both in political circles and as a business man. Coming, as he does, from the very heart of the farm belt, Secretary Hyde, through his long association with problems confronting tillers of the soil, is especially qualified to meet the responsibilities connected with this highly important cabinet post.

Being the owner of three large farms in Missouri, Mr. Hyde has a first hand knowledge of the farm problem. The work confronting the new secretary will be largely of an administrative nature, and his automobile business experience will be of inestimable value in dealing with the ramifications of the farm question,
because it, too, is essentially a business problem.

As a lawyer he administered to the farmers' legal needs; as a merchandiser of Buick cars his dealings with them brought him into even closer touch with their financial and domestic problems; as governor of Missouri he became the champion of their cause—and now as a member of President Hoover's cabinet he is to become instrumental in solving one of the most difficult situations confronting the American nation.

Secretary Hyde is an intensely active man. When he practiced law
he was eminently successful. Law has always been his central activity, but as time went by he became increasingly interested in the automobile world as a dealer in Buick Motor cars. He has made a remarkable success of his automobile business,
which he retained during his tenure of office as governor and in which he still has an interest.

Who Knows How?

CLARKE, THE TAILOR

Two Different Reasons
for using
CONOCO-ETHYL
BOTH OF THEM GOOD

1 To Save Wear and Tear

If you keep an accurate record of what it costs to operate your car, you'll soon realize that Conoco Ethyl Gasoline actually saves you money—despite the fact that it costs a few cents more per week than ordinary gasoline.

It saves by keeping out the knock that wears and tears the engine . . . and by producing 100% power from every drop.
There's no waste when you use Conoco Ethyl. It burns cleanly and at the right time—regardless of the compression of the motor.

Conoco Ethyl will reduce your cost per mile. Try it and convince yourself.

With the introduction of Conoco
Ethyl Gasoline into this market,
your dreams of an ideal motor fuel become accomplished facts.

Conoco Ethyl has blazed the trail
to superlative motor operation
under all conditions of temperature—uphill or on the level—in traffic or along the open road.

There is no motor fuel like it—
for it combines all the superior qualities of Conoco, the Triple Test Gasoline, with Ethyl Fluid,
the Anti-Knock ingredient developed by General Motors after years of exhaustive research.

Why not get the most from your motor? Fill your tank at the Conoco Ethyl pump—at service stations and garages.

2 To enjoy High-Compression
Performance

Lots of people don't take the trouble to figure the saving that Conoco Ethyl brings them. They use Conoco Ethyl because this super-fuel does more than merely move their cars. . . it provides a real motoring thrill by bringing out every ounce of power which the engine was designed to develop.

Instant pick-up, smooth running at all speeds, high gear
performance on the steepest hills. There's a great satisfaction in driving under such conditions!

BIG MEN'S SERVICE AT 3 P. M. NEXT SUNDAY

At the Methodist church next Sunday at 3 p. m. a special service will be held for men and boys only. The topic discussed will be "When a Man's a Man."
Help us fill the house with men
and boys.

The Revival is being felt thro-out the community, and many hearts are being blessed. The crowds are larger from night to night than anyone had expected.

Let's make Sunday a great day
with two hundred in the Sunday school.

E. D. Landreth.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Ross of Hereford and A. B. Rosser of Plainview visited the J. W. Adamson family this week. Mr. Rosser is Mrs. Adamson's father, and Mrs. Ross is her sister.
They remained here while Mr.
Ross attended a Presbyterian church conference at White Deer.

Mrs. J. J. Hayes of Gatesville
and Mrs. S. D. Bishop of Floydada spent the past week end as guests of Mrs. T. F. Heath.

T. F. Heath attended the W. O.
W. State Convention at Mineral
Wells the past week.

CLEAN-UP NOTICE

Next Friday and Saturday, April 26 and 27, are hereby declared Clean Up Days in Hedley.
All citizens are called upon to observe this order, which applies to both business and residence property, and includes the entire premises, alleys, and vacant lots.
Wagons will haul off the rubbish
that cannot be burned, free, on Friday and Saturday.

Please cooperate with us, for
we expect to enforce this order for the good of the town. Our laws provide a penalty for failure or refusal to comply.

By order of the City Council.
C. L. Kinsey, Mayor.

SETTING EGGS

Will pay 25c for Fall Blood
Heavy Breed Setting Eggs, 25c
for heavy mixed. Must guarantee stock to not have Leghorn blood in them. Will pay these prices until April 29.

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Luttrell,
Mrs. W. E. Luttrell, Mrs. Reed
Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Luttrell and Mr. and Mrs. V. F.
Wade attended a golden wedding anniversary at Claude April 9th.
Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Luttrell of Claude celebrated their fiftieth wedding day. Mr. Luttrell is a brother of W. E. and W. J. Luttrell of Hedley. Refreshments were served to 150 guests, and a grand time is reported.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to take this opportunity of expressing our sincere thanks for the kindness of many precious friends during the illness of our daughter and sister, Blanche. The beautiful floral offerings were greatly appreciated
and is being enjoyed immensely.

ORDINANCE NO. 28

Hedley, Texas, April 16, 1929.
AN ORDINANCE Amending and Extending Fire Limits in the City of Hedley, Texas, and Prohibiting the Erection of Certain Buildings Within the Same,
and Prescribing a Penalty Therefor.

Section 1. Be It Ordained by the City Council of the City of Hedley, Texas: That the fire limits of the City of Hedley shall be as follows: The West one-half of Block No. 12, the East one-half of Block No. 12, All of Block No. 2,
All of Block No. 3, and all the land lying and being situated between the Colorado to the Gulf Highway
(also known as Railroad Street)
and the Fort Worth and Denver Railroad lying South and opposite Blocks No. 2 and 3, City of Hedley, Texas.

Section 2. That it shall not be lawful for any person or persons to erect, place, enlarge or repair
within the fire limits of this city any building of any size or kind whatever, or part of a building or addition thereto, the outer walls of which are of any other material
than brick, stone, tile or concrete,
and the roof of other than tin,
zinc, slate, sheet iron or gravel,
or to erect within the fire limits
any booth, tent, structure of wood or wooden sheds or any wooden frame to be covered with tin, zinc stucco, sheet iron or any other material. Provided, that the provisions of this Article shall not prevent the erection of frame awnings, sheds or galleries over the sidewalks in front of brick or stone buildings only, or the erection of small frame privies, or the repair of wooden buildings when not damaged to the extent of fifty per cent of their value, the amount of such damage to be ascertained and determined by two citizens, one chosen by the owner of such property and one by the Mayor of Hedley, and in case they can not agree, the two said citizens shall choose the third whose decision shall be final.

Section 3. Be It Further Ordained, That it shall not be lawful to erect buildings nearer than ten feet of the line of Main Street
within the above fire limits (above described) in Hedley, Texas, the ten feet to be used as sidewalks.

Section 4. Any person violating the provisions of this Ordinance, or any of them, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than Fifty ($50.00) dollars
nor more than One Hundred ($100.00) dollars; and each day on which the provisions of this Ordinance, or any of them, are violated shall be a separate offense.
This ordinance to be in effect
from May 4, 1929.

Passed and approved this 16th
day of April, 1929.

C. L. Kinsey, Mayor,
City of Hedley,
Donley County, Texas.
C. L. Johnson, City Secretary.
