BACCALAUREATE SERMON BY REV. S. R. McCLUNG

On Sunday, May 26, Rev. S. R. McClung, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Clarendon, preached the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of Hedley High School. The theme of the sermon was "Choosing Goals in Life." The outstanding characters in the sermon were Lot and Abraham. Rev. McClung showed in a very forceful manner that Lot's goals and aims in life led to downfall due to the selfish motives that promoted the aims and decisions.

The most wholesome life Dr. McClung stated was not necessarily a successful business career, or professional career, but a life of service. The fact that Lot pitched his tent in the wrong direction brought ruin and destruction to himself and his entire family. Although Lot was a "city dad" in the city that was destroyed, he was unable to correct the evils of the city, due to the fact that his aims and goals had led to a separation between himself and God.

We trust that Bro. McClung's life might be lengthened that he may have the opportunity to deliver many more sermons of this type to the graduating classes of tomorrow.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS THE GRADE PROGRAM

The program given in the high school auditorium Tuesday night sponsored by the first, second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth grades was attended by a large crowd. The auditorium was packed and many parents of the children were forced to view the program from the windows of the building. This occasion demonstrates that Hedley needs a much larger auditorium to seat the people of our growing city.

The program consisted of singing, plays, and winding the Maypole. The program was directed by the following teachers: Mrs. Mary Reast, Misses Gladys Simpson, Cordia Holland, Cloteal Moreman, Ines Blankenship, Oeta Mace, Irene Beaty, and Myrtle Mims.

(The school activities of the past several days not mentioned in this issue will be given attention in next week's paper.)

I will conduct a summer school at the Public School building, beginning Monday, June 10. If interested, come to see me at my home.

FIELD MARSHAL ALLENBY'S TRIBUTE

THE PRESIDENT AND THE FIRST LADY OF THE LAND

ENEMIES ONCE, COMRADES NOW

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

IS is the eternal mystery. No one knows where he was born. It may have been among the rocky hills of New England or somewhere in sunny California. During his boyhood he may have played in the pine woods of Michigan or paddled a dug-out on some Louisiana bayou. But the name of the state which gave him birth doesn't matter, after all. For he was an American.

No one knows in what branch of the service he enlisted. He may have been a cavalryman or an engineer. Or he may have been a doughboy, slopping through the mud of France or one of those "cannoners" who have "hair ears." And then again, he may have worn the silver wings of the aviator. But the name of his outfit doesn't matter. For he was a soldier, a fighting man.

No one knows where or how he died. It may have been in that fierce little fight at Cantigny. Or it may have been in the gloomy fastnesses of Belleau Wood or somewhere on the historic Somme that death found him in a burst of shrapnel, a spray of machine gun fire or a bayonet thrust. But that doesn't matter, either. The thing that does count is that "he died fighting," under the Stars and Stripes.

No one knows his name. It may have been just plain Smith. Then again, it may have been Murphy or MacDonald or Cjarnowski or Muller or James. And then again it's possible that somewhere on a western Indian reservation his copper-skinned mother looked proudly upon her lusty first born and said "His name shall be Big Brave." But his name and the nationality of his parents are not so important now. His fellow-Americans will him by the proudest name that any man can bear.

He is "The Unknown Soldier." Seven years ago they brought his body back across the Atlantic and placed it in a white marble tomb in a famous cemetery near the nation's capital—a soldier home from the wars. Since that November day in 1922 men and women of every station in life have bowed their heads reverently before his last resting place. To it have come the great of other countries—the queen of a European royal house, princes, field marshals, lord admirals, statesmen. None has been too great to pay him homage.

But all of this homage is as naught compared to that which is offered up in the hearts of all Americans on May 30, 1929. For the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington cemetery, near Washington, D. C., is a national shrine to which the thoughts of all Americans turn on Memorial day each year and the ceremonies which will take place there—ceremonies in which President Hoover, commander in chief of all American soldiers will take part—will symbolize America's debt to her soldier dead, her defenders in all wars which the United States has been in to wage.

It is as if any other symbol in all America has so gripped the imagination of the people that this white marble tomb and the soldier it shelters. Perhaps it is the thought that FIELD MARSHAL ALLENBY'S TRIBUTE—Viscount Allenby, hero of the British campaign in the Holy Land during the World war and now Great Britain's only living field marshal, is one of the notables from abroad who have placed a wreath on the tomb of America's Unknown Soldier.

"TAPS"—Staff Sergeant Frank Withey, Third United States Cavalry of Fort Myer, Va., and the famous bugle he has used in sounding taps at the funeral of America's Unknown Soldier and at the funerals of the late President Wilson, Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles and S. M. B. Young, Major General Leonard Wood, and William Jennings Bryan. Sergeant Withey has seen 20 years of continuous service with the Third Cavalry.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE FIRST LADY OF THE LAND—Following the custom of other years, President and Mrs. Coolidge led the nation in 1927 in paying tribute to the country's dead heroes at Arlington National cemetery. Mrs. Coolidge is shown placing a flower on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier while President Coolidge looks on.

he may have been a man whom any one of us once knew. But whatever may be the reason why the symbolism of the Unknown Soldier has such a powerful hold on us, the fact remains that few Americans who visit the capital of their country fail to make a pilgrimage to this hallowed spot. There they find that Uncle Sam pays a tribute to this son of his, not alone on special occasions such as Memorial day and Armistice day, but upon every day in the year. For, standing guard over this spot, is a khaki-clad figure, a soldier in the United States army. The story of this vigil is one of the interesting parts of the romantic story of the Unknown Soldier. It was told in a recent dispatch from Washington as follows:

"The soldiers who stand guard ten hours every day at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington regard their selection as one of the most cherished military honors."

Unknown?

I have come back to my mother's land—
I was long, too long, away.
She shades her eyes with a blue-veined hand
In the small upland dale
And looks at my saddle, my horse, my gun—
For my hands were not the stevens.
My western mother has murmured: "Son!
So why am I called Unknown?"

I have come back to my mother's land,
Where the yellow pine glades are;
The opposite fathers, by whom brasses fanned,
And the rose about the altar;
There's a clank of arms on quiet streams
And a bright-head bird has flown
Like those that colored my youthful dreams
Ere they called me the Great Unknown.

I have come back to my mother's land,
Where the sun's like distant drums,
And the fading craft makes bright the strand
And a kindly neighbor comes—
For such is the way of the village folk
When a woman is left alone.
It's of me they talk, when she dells her dough,
So why am I called Unknown?

For I belong to them—mother's boys—
From the hills that rock to the snowdrift's fall
To the desert gray-land with sage
And my hand shall strike with message
All needed to that mother's love
Which sits the heart. Ah, then, who says
That I have returned Unknown?

His Adventures in Love, Life and the Pursuit of Happiness
By GEORGE ADE

The Girl Friend's Birthday Present

"IT'S hard goin' this morning," remarked Artie, as he performed the juggling feat of tossing his hat on the top of a coat tree without looking. He unbuttoned his shirt collar, jerked off his three-fifty tie, and gapped noisily and said, "My old head is so big this morning it makes the hat squeak."

"Were you out?" asked Miller.

"Now, I was settin' in an easy game o' poker. None of us stood to win taxi fare, but I went in, thinkin' I might get 'em loosened up and pull out the price of a birthday present for the one and only"

"Did you?"

"Well, you can't get anything that ain't. I think I'll have to welsch on that present or else go out with a little bag full o' sand. You never saw such a sure-thing crowd in all your life."

"Where were you playing?"

"Over at Kennedy's house. He got me to come over and meet a couple o' Scotch spendthrifts. Oh, but they was pikers! One of 'em, whenever he got better 'n jacks up, always lost his voice and couldn't keep count o' the chips. Then he'd stop the game every three minutes to see how he stood with himself. He'd stack up, you know, an' feel in his pockets and then he'd say: 'I'm forty-five cents loser.' He was a short sport but a bound for bookkeeping."

"Were you playing for money?" asked young Mr. Hall.

"Playin' for—? Now, wouldn't that upper-cut you? Sure you didn't think this was a game o' checkers like you boys play up at your little old Y. M. C. A.? This was the seal army game. I guess I saw as much as three bones change hands."

"Both of 'Em Looked at the Hand and Sized Me Up."

Three Kings Thrown Over.

"How did you come out?" asked Miller.

"Wait and I'll tell you. We kind o' stalled along there for two or three hours or so with a four-bit limit, everybody playin' close to their vests, and beedin' about the way the hands was runnin' and showin' up the cards when nobody come in, and tellin' what they might a' done if they'd done purty well, an' so on—real gambler talk—till I says to myself, 'I'll try it, an' if it don't go, it's a baby risk.'"

"I gets a pair of stenographers and stays in. All of 'em playin', see? Kennedy leads off. I think he tossed in ten white chips; anyway, he was strong. Then this bozo that was keepin' tab on his stack all the time—he had to brood for awhile and have another talk with himself and skin the mitt three or four times, and then he kicked in. Up to me—see? I gives a gentle push to a whole buck's worth, and says: 'Comrades, it'll cost you fifty rubles apiece more to linger in my society.' Say, you never seen people so busy. Kennedy has a long talk with himself and counts his chips, looked a few spots off his hand, and then says: 'Well, I lose eight thousand on wheat today.'"

"Did the other fellows stay?" asked Miller.

"Stay nothin'. They had heart failure when they seen that dollar. I pulled in the dough and threw my hand in the dock. 'What did you have?' says Kennedy. 'Oh, I says, 'I didn't have nothin' but five alices.' 'No,' he says, 'on the square, what did you have?' I told him it was against the rules for me to say, but it was a cinch I had him done. 'Well,' he says, 'I had three kings. That ain't no hid, neither. He was settin' there lookin' into three kings all the time.'"

"Why, he had you beat, didn't he," exclaimed young Mr. Hall.

"Not in a thousand years! Didn't I tell you I got the dough—quite a bundle o' money, too. I think I cleared a dollar and thirty-five cents. Talk about your Monte Carlo boys! Those birds last night was the gamiest I ever sat down with."

"Well, you ain't you have to be

"How did you come out?" persisted Miller.

"W'y, what chance did I have to get into 'em? Talk about safe playin'. They're like the stockyards man that wanted to fight Dempsey. 'I'll fight him,' he says, 'if you blindfolded Dempsey and gi' me an ax.' That was the way with those birds. They liked the color o' my money, but they wouldn't take no risk."

"After that first saucy crack I laid low three or four hands, and then I knocked 'em a horrible twister. It was a jack pot, and this cautious boy at the right o' me opened it. I stay, see? Why shouldn't I. When I had two, four, six, seven and nine, in three different colors?"

"I stands pat on the draw, and then the first crack out o' the box I whoops it a half-fifty kopecks. What does he do? He couldn't drop his hand too quick. Another case o' licked in a punch. He shows jacks up for opener and then starts to pick up my hand, but I says, 'Hands off, Elmer! There's something so good that it costs money to see 'em.' I told him that when he wanted to get wise to what was in my hand, all he had to do was to dig up his bit and come in. 'Well,' he says, 'I don't want to lose my dough.'"

"On the level, no kiddin', that's what he said—that he didn't want to lose his coin. I told him he was in the wrong kind of a game—that he ought to be playin' 'Heavy, heavy, hangs over your head.'"

"Well, I kept on layin' low, and then every fourth hand or so couin' in with a half-dollar raise and takin' the pot. Finally, after I'd sprung it on 'em about a dozen times and was gettin' quite a mess in front o' me, I stood pat on a hand and tried 'em again. 'Hold on,' says this cautious boy, shakin' all over, 'hold on, don't take that.' I told him I wouldn't take it till it come time."

"Then him and Kennedy had a long spiel to themselves. Kennedy was out, of course, not bein' able to show up better'n three. He advised the boy to see me. Both of 'em looked at the hand and sized me up, and finally this boy that was holdin' the hand said he'd go halves with Kennedy and make me spread what I had. They had some more whisperin' and at last they put in a quarter apiece.

"I ain't got a thing but a flush," I says, and I lays down four hearts and a diamond.

"That wasn't a—" began young Mr. Hall.

"Sh," said Miller.

"You ought o' heard the roar," resumed Artie giving young Mr. Hall a reproving glance. "Kennedy hollered the worst of all. 'That ain't no flush,' he says, 'Of course it is, I come back; ain't they all one color?' With that they both begin talkin' at once, showin' me how it was a flush had to be all hearts or all diamonds and that sort o' business. I waited till they got through, and then I said I was dead sure about not bein' wise.

"I says to 'em: 'I been playin' these hands for flushes all night.' The old gag, see? They never tumbled, though. You never heard such bellerin'. Those birds thought I'd been playin' red and black hands all the time.' This cautious boy figured he would a' won four bucks if he'd called me every time I stood pat. Say, you'd died if you'd heard him!"

"Well, who won that pot?" asked Miller.

"I think you're as bright on the game as they was. W'y, that chump had a full house, nines or somethin'. Soon as he took the half I said I'd stop—wouldn't play no more till I learned to read the cards. We all cashed in, and what do you think? I was two-thirty-five to the good. There I set like a big stiff for five hours and pulled against them rummies for two-thirty-five. Kennedy lost a dollar twenty cents, an' I'll make a guess right now he ain't through beedin' yet."

Weakness of Profanity

It was Carlyle's contention that frequent resort to profanity was evidence, for one thing, of a weak vocabulary. There were plenty of English words, he said, that could be used more effectively to express feeling than the little "damn" or similar terms. Carlyle illustrated this by marking that a man gained

MES. C. B. BROOKS AND C. L. GOIN ENTERTAIN SENIORS

The Seniors, with their sponsor, Mrs. Davenport, and their Class Father and Mother, Mrs. Hobart Moffitt and Mr. Alva Simmons, also Mrs. Simmons and Mr. Moffitt, were entertained Sunday evening at a most splendidly served four course dinner. This lovely dinner was more than just a dinner; there was a wealth of love and good wishes going with it. The Seniors may treasure the occasion with other lovely memories of this happy May time—beautiful memories like the scent of crushed roses in the vase of good will.

"You may break, you may shatter the vase if you will, But the scent of the roses will hang round them still."

Beside those already mentioned there were present Willie Mae Blanks, R x Kendall, Mervlene Blanks, Katherine Brooks, Verda Gilliam, Lois Goin, Price Webb, Elba Harkness, L. J. SAME PRESCRIPTION HE WROTE IN 1892

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as today. People lived normal lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings. The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe bowel stimulant.

This prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative. It has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds, fevers. Trail Missing Man While He Trails Wolf

Clinton, Iowa.—Frank Welch, a farmhand near Preston, Iowa, has earned a great reputation in northeastern Iowa for perseverance, but his friends hope the next time he starts out to track down a wolf he will let them know. Recently they spent five days searching snow-covered fields for him, only to learn he had spent the time trawling a wolf across Jackson county, over the ice on the Mississippi river, and into Illinois, where he killed it.

GIRL OVERCOMES HEAVY HANDICAP

Deaf, Dumb and Blind, She Acquires Education.

Spartanburg, S. C.—A second Helen Keller is Miss Ruby Miller, twenty years old, a student at the South Carolina State Institute for the Deaf and Blind, in this city. The girl, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Miller, of Columbia, was left totally blind, deaf, and dumb when three years old, by an attack of meningitis. For nearly six years she remained in a state of under-development.

She now can speak plainly, knit, do basket work, bead work, plain sewing, cook, read and play the piano, and has a speaking knowledge of Latin and French, both vocally and by the sign language.

The girl is unable to hear any sound, yet by training she has learned to use her vocal cords in intelligible speech. Although she cannot hear the pitch of her words, they have remarkable inflection and expression. She "hears" by a sense of touch in which she can tell by vibrations the words others speak to her. To do this she places the fingers of one hand across the speaker's lips and her thumbs beneath the chin.

Miss Miller has no recollection of sound, but says she can recall having once seen some cows pass the front yard at her home before her illness swept away both sight and hearing. In spite of her affliction the young woman is cheerful and full of fun.

Caught in Bear Trap Four Days and Nights

Denver.—Facing the loss of one hand and suffering from exposure, Joseph Schneider, forty-five, war veteran and trapper, lay in a hospital here and told his experience of having been caught in a bear trap for four days and nights.

While gathering pine needles to cover his own traps, Schneider thrust his hand into a huge steel bear trap. Realizing that death by infection and starvation was inevitable unless he could release himself, Schneider struggled four days and nights.

He lapsed into unconsciousness several times and was tortured by hunger and thirst. He tried to reach his shotgun ten feet away to commit suicide, but failed.

Finally, on the fourth day, he succeeded in maneuvering the trap under his knees and sprang the springs enough to tear his hand loose.

Almost exhausted, he walked 12 miles to Tolland, the nearest point medical attention was available.

From there he was brought here.

Police Lose Battle for Woman's Life

New York.—Mrs. Sarah Stucator is dead despite the efforts of 26 policemen who worked in relays for 21 hours to save her life after she had inhaled gas while sleeping.

Mrs. Stucator was found unconscious on the floor after neighbors had smelled gas which had escaped from a disconnected heater.

Calls summoned an ambulance and a police rescue squad. Her heart was too weak to risk a half-hour run to the hospital without administration of oxygen, so two policemen climbed into the vehicle and held the tank while a doctor pumped the contents into her lungs.

Truck after truck, loaded with gas tanks, rolled up in quick succession.

Locomotive Kills Wolf; Trainmen Get Bounty

Montreal, Que.—Running down a timber wolf by a locomotive was the unusual sport tried near North Bay, Ont., recently, when a light engine bagged a 90-pound specimen. Engineer Lafontaine, on rounding a curve, saw the wolf on the tracks a short distance ahead, and opening the throttle, succeeded in striking the beast with the pilot steps. Conductor W. G. Watling ran back and finished off the animal with a poker. A bounty is paid on wolf skins by the government, as the animals are a menace to game and live stock.

Escort Takes Girl's Purse, Ring and Cash

Davenport, Iowa.—When Miss Davenport was escorted to the train, she found her purse, ring and cash missing.

"The next morning the doctor said: 'Well, nurse, how is our patient's heart action today?'"

Years of service in MODEL T FORDS

THE Model T was so strongly and sturdily built that it is still rendering reliable, economical service to motorists in every section of the country. Millions of these cars can be put in shape for two, three and five more years of use at very small cost.

So that you may have this work done economically and satisfactorily, the Ford Motor Company is still devoting a considerable section of its plants to the manufacture of Model T parts. It will continue to do so as long as they are needed by Model T owners. The following list gives the approximate labor charges for reconditioning the Model T Ford—

Engine
Tune motor (including replacement of commutator case, brush and vibrator points if necessary)	$1.00
Grind valves and clean carbon	$3.75 to 4.00
Overhaul carburetor	1.50
Refine detachable car transmission bands	1.50
Install new pistons or connecting rods	6.00
Tighten all main bearings	6.00
Overhaul motor and transmission	$20.00 to 25.00

Rear System
Replace rear axle assembly	2.50
Install universal joint	3.00
Refine brake shoes	1.50
Replace rear axle shaft, drive shaft piston, or drive gear	5.00
Overhaul complete rear axle assembly	$5.75 to 6.00
Polish spring and perches	1.75
Oil and graphite springs	3.00

Front System
Overhaul front axle	$1.00 to 3.00
Rebush spindle bodies and arms (both sides)	2.50
Replace or straighten spindle connecting rod	.75
Tighten radius rod or steering ball cap	.50
Tighten all sockets and joints of front end	1.50
Replace front spring tie bolt or new leaf	2.00
Straighten front axle	3.00

Chassis
Replace rear fender	1.75
Overhaul steering gear	3.00
Repair muffler	1.50
Overhaul radiator	2.50
Repaint Coupe	25.00
Repaint Sedan	25.00
Repaint Touring Car	20.00
Reupholster Runabout	8.00
Reupholster Touring Car	15.00
Replace top deck (Coupe or Sedan)	4.00
Overhaul starting motor	3.00
Overhaul generator	2.00

These prices are approximate and are for labor only, because the need and number of new parts depend on the condition of each car. The charge for these parts is low, however, because of the established Ford policy of manufacturing and selling at a small margin of profit.

THE OIL BROKE DOWN"
DON'T LET THIS HAPPEN TO YOU

STRANDED five miles from nowhere because the oil wouldn't do its job! Has that happened to you? If it has, the chances are that you were not particular the last time you had the crankcase drained—or perhaps you ran too long without changing the oil. This will be a slack summer for service cars if motorists will remember two things: first, to change oil regularly, and secondly, to use only a brand of oil which they know from their own experience or the experience of others will stand up under the most trying conditions of motor operation.

You can depend upon any oil which has the backing of the Continental Oil Company. These are the brands which have been tried and tested—in the laboratory and on the road. They lubricate thoroughly, protect every moving part and stand up under intense heat.

Ask for these brands at leading service stations and garages.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Mexican Revolution Collapses, Leaders Taking Refuge in United States.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

MEXICO'S latest revolutionary movement has finally collapsed after many premature announcements to that effect. By the end of the week the only rebel bands in arms were the troops of General Caraveo near Pulpito pass and some bands of guerrillas and "cristos."

Whereabouts of General Escobar, military chief of the revolution, were unknown, but it was believed he and Gens. Roberto Cruz and Manrique were in the United States. Rebel leaders known to have come across the border included Gen. Ricardo Topete, Gen. Fausto Topete, Jesus Lianraga, Gen. Ramon Iturbe, Deputy Ajredo Romo, and Tomas Balderama, mayor of Nogales.

NOTHING doing at present in the way of reduction of either land or naval armaments. Such is the admission of Nicholas Politis of Greece, chairman of the preparatory disarmament commission in session at Geneva. He said the commission would adjourn in a few days but would be reconvened before the session of the League of Nations assembly which has been set for September.

future, holding that the next move in that line is up to the League of Nations, and that such a conference would be futile until there had been an agreement in advance on a formula quite apart from that of tonnage upon which the chief naval powers were unable to agree in 1927.

LIVELY debates marked the consideration of farm relief legislation in the senate and various amendments to the McNary bill were introduced and discussed. Senators Watson of Indiana and Robinson of Arkansas, respectively majority and minority leaders, accused each other of inconsistency in their stand on the equalization fee and the debenture plan and kept the senate chamber in a turmoil for hours.

Horace Paul Bestor of St. Louis was nominated by President Hoover as a member of the federal farm loan board to succeed Eugene Meyer, resigned. Mr. Bestor has been president of the Federal Land bank of St. Louis since 1922 and of the Federal Intermediate Credit bank of St. Louis since 1923.

ATTORNEY GENERAL MITCHELL'S campaign for increased efficiency in the prosecuting attorneys' offices and his survey of conditions resulted last week in the summary dismissal from office of William A. Degroot of New York, United States attorney for the eastern New York district. Degroot had repeatedly refused to resign. William A. Gober, federal attorney for the southern district of Florida, and John Cook, for the southern district of Mississippi, already had resigned.

CHARLES EVANS HUGHES called from New York for The Hague to take up his duties as a member of the World court which is to convene on May 13. He will sit on the bench of that permanent court of International Justice not as a representative of the United States but as a judge elected by the League of Nations; for the United States is not yet a member of the court.

By a vote of 26 to 19 the house of lords of Great Britain rejected Lord Ceell's motion inviting the house to express the opinion that the time had come when Britain should sign the optional clause of the World court statute. By this clause states recognize the compulsory jurisdiction of the court.

EDITORIAL discourtesy on the part of the Washington Post led Secretary of State Stimson to send a letter of apology and regret to Prince de Ligne, ambassador from Belgium. The newspaper, publishing reports that the recall of the ambassador was imminent, said it was understood that he "has not been seen frequently enough concluding statesmanlike negotiations for his government" and that he was regarded by some of the leaders of his government as what might be termed in America "high hat."

COMPLETELY dominated by Premier Mussolini—who incidentally now holds eight of the thirteen portfolios in his cabinet—the Italian Fascist council of 400 and the senate held their opening sessions on Monday. Giovanni Giolitti, as president

Fascist party, told the deputies that due to a drastic reform in the new chamber several changes in the rules and regulations governing its procedure had been decided upon by the grand council. The old rules, based on a chamber which had a majority and minority, were useless now, he explained, for the whole chamber was Fascist.

Sicily is now believed to be freed from the grip of the Mafia, for the trial of members of that malevolent society which has been going on for nine months, has ended in the conviction of 148 of the 161 defendants and the imposition of sentences running as high as 23 years' imprisonment. The jury was out for seven days. Italy has Mussolini to thank for this, as for innumerable other things.

PRINCE HENRY of Great Britain, third son of King George, went to Japan last week for the purpose of conferring the Order of the Garter on the emperor of that country. He was greeted at Tokyo with a most extraordinary welcome. Emperor Hirohito himself meeting him at the railway station and accompanying him to the Kasumigaseki palace through gayly decked streets that were full of applauding citizens.

MAY day, the traditional day for Communist demonstrations, was especially lively in Berlin. The Reds and the municipal authorities both were organized as for warfare and consequently the numerous clashes between the demonstrators and the police were bloody and desperate. All day and far into the night the rioting continued. The Reds barricaded streets and fought from the house-tops and the police used their rifles, machine guns and armored cars freely. "Hose wagons," designed to drench mobs with torrents of cold water, also were employed effectively. Probably a score of persons were killed in the battles and the wounded numbered many hundreds.

In Paris the police completely squelched the Reds, arresting more than 4,000 and preventing all strikes except that of the taxicab drivers. There was rioting in several other European cities, but in Vienna and in England the day passed peacefully. Moscow's demonstration naturally was immense and impressive. The Soviet army was out in force, leading a tremendous parade of civilians. Reds in Mexico City congregated in front of the American consulate general carrying banners attacking the United States, but they were speedily dispersed by the police.

Demonstrations of workmen in the United States were in all instances quite orderly. JOHN J. RASKOB, chairman of the Democratic national committee, refuses to resign as urged by certain prominent Democrats of the South, but he and his fellow leaders have created a new executive committee which is to establish permanent and adequate headquarters in Washington and devote its efforts to the rehabilitation of the party throughout the country. For chairman of this committee they selected Joutet Shouse of Kansas City, former member of congress, assistant secretary of the treasury during the Wilson administration, supporter of William G. McAdoo in two campaigns and known as a dry. He was a Smith worker, however, in last summer's campaign.

Shouse's task, it was explained, will be to represent the national committee in efforts to co-ordinate the activities of Democrats in both houses, state organizations, and Democratic women's groups, "in order to build a strong, country-wide Democratic organization that will be a vital, going institution." In Washington it is believed Mr. Raskob and his associates think the Democrats can win the Presidential campaign of 1932 with Al Smith as a candidate and prohibition as the

Pigeon Effective in Role of Home Wrecker

Returning home to Philadelphia from his vacation, Robert Ransford opened his front door and pushed on the light. Such a scene of destruction met his eyes, that he hurried to the nearest drug store to call the police. Two answered the call and, with drawn revolvers and cautious steps, searched the lower part of the house for vandals. They found nothing but confused wreckage. Upstairs they found lamps overturned, bureau scarfs pulled off, and in the bathroom, bottles broken on the tiled floor. In the back room they discovered the culprit—a very tired and very hungry pigeon asleep on the bedpost. When it was assured that no valuables were missing, it was concluded that the bird had sought shelter in the fireplace chimney and had been unable to find its way out again.
