OLIVER HILL SUCCUMBS MONDAY AT AMARILLO

After making a vallant fight against death for more than two weeks, O. J. Hill Jr. passed away at an early hour Monday in an Amarillo hospital, as a result of injuries sustained July 4th.

Funeral services were held at the First Baptist church in Clarendon Tuesday, conducted by Rev. S. R. McClung and attended by a great throng of sorrowing relatives and friends. Burial services were in charge of the Masonic Lodge.

Oliver Hill was formerly a resident of the Hedley community and had many warm friends here who are sorely grieved that he is with us no more. Many from here attended the last sad rites at Clarendon.

Surviving him are his widow, a daughter, his parents, three sisters and four brothers. To all these and other loved ones the Informer extends sincere sympathy.

MRS. MANN'S MOTHER DIES AT ALBUQUERQUE

The many friends of Mrs. R. E. Mann deeply sympathize with her in the loss of her mother, Mrs. Ellen S. Young, who passed away Thursday, July 18, at Albuquerque, N. M. Funeral services were held at Albuquerque the following day, and the remains shipped to the old home in Virginia for interment. Mrs. Mann was in Childress when the death message came, and did not learn of it in time to attend the funeral.

Mrs. Young was born in 1850 at Nashville, Tenn. She was the mother of ten children, seven of whom are living. Her husband died five years ago, since which time Mrs. Young has lived with her children. She was here with Mrs. Mann about a year, and has a number of friends in Hedley who are grieved because of her death.

Thus Has Man Played at Cards Through the Ages

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

DO YOU remember "way back when" your parents would have been horrified if they had found playing cards in your possession because "the devil lurked in a pack of cards?" How surprised they would have been if you had told them that to play cards was not a thing of evil but a perpetuation of an ancient rite as old as the history of mankind. For that would have been perfectly true.

Primitive man was accustomed to resort to the making of magic to determine what course he should pursue in a world filled with bewilderment and superstitious fears. Arrow divination was a favorite kind and to make this magic a circle was drawn on the ground with the proper rites and incantations and divided into the "Four Directions." Then with more mystic ceremonies arrows were cast into the ring and upon the manner of their falling depended the future. A survival of this rite and these instruments is shown in the card game of the Koreans in which an arrow feather appears upon the back of the playing card. (Figure No. 4.)

In fact it was among the Asiatic peoples that the beginnings of card games and playing cards, as we know them now, took place. Marco Polo, the famous traveler, returning to Venice late in the Thirteenth century, told among other wonders, how the great Chan in far-off Cathay had paper money made from the bark of the mulberry tree. The Chinese had been making this paper money since the Sixth century. At first a game was played with the paper money itself but later cards in the form of paper money were made, using the old money symbols, a coin, a string of coins, a myriad string of coins and tens of myriads of strings of coins, which are the names of the Chinese suits today. The form of the Chinese playing cards is shown in Figure No. 2.

The Japanese as early as the Eighth century were making prints from wood blocks and pilgrims to the shrines in the monasteries were given these prints as souvenirs of their journeyings. These prints were used then, as now, to play the Flower game, founded on legends which date back to the beginning of the Japanese people. The Hindus also have a card game but their cards were thin painted disks of wood or ivory or cotton fiber paper. In their game there are 12 cards to a suit and the number of suits to a pack vary—sometimes eight and sometimes ten. The court cards (king, queen and jack) always picture one of the incarnations of Vishnu.

It was probably Chinese cards, however, which found their way into Italy in the Fourteenth century and which soon afterwards became known in every European country. The gypsies, after long wanderings through Arabia and Egypt, from their homes in India also brought into Europe cards which carried in their strange designs, parts of the myths and legends of these countries. Gradually there evolved from all of the sources a game called "tarots," late in the Fourteenth century. These tarot cards were made for the nobles and were painted with the greatest care. They were so costly that the poorer classes of people could not afford them but eventually another card game sprang up in which common cards made with stencils were used. Johannes, a monk at Buefeld, writing in 1377, describes this new game which "men call a game of cards." The pack consisted of 52 cards with three court cards to each suit just like those of today.

It is believed by some authorities that the best wood-block prints made in Europe were playing cards, made about the middle of the Fifteenth century. By this time playing cards were in all parts of Europe. Germany especially was making great quantities of them not only for use in that country but in Italy, Sicily and other countries. In fact, in 1441 the card-makers of Venice protested to the Doge against importation of these German products "by which their art is brought to total decay."

The earliest German cards were very large and made by hand. The designs on them were early German fondness for hunting, and the animals were deer, dogs, falcons and their fat caps "bronde on the crowns like the beautifully decorated Italian cards with raised borders, which were sometimes dotted or checkered. Then, too, the suit signs on the Italian cards were very different from those of any other country. They were long curved swords or scimitars, standing for the nobility; cups for the clergy; daws, or money, for the citizens; and bastoni, or clubs, for the peasants.

In fact it seems that there was no uniformity in the matter of suit signs in any one country. Since most of the playing cards were made for the nobles on special order, the makers often placed on them such designs for suit signs as would best please their patron. Sometimes he chose them himself as in other cases figures from his coat-of-arms were taken. Reference has already been made to the prevailing suit signs in the cards made by the Germans but these hunting symbols were not uniformly used in that country. One set of round cards made in Cologne had suit signs of flowers, parrots and rabbits. Another used lions, monkeys, parrots and peacocks.

The suit signs of today—spades, hearts, diamonds and clubs—originated in France and made their first appearance early in the Fifteenth century. They were called coeurs (hearts), piques (spades), trefles (clubs) and carreaux (diamonds). The suit of coeurs stood for the church, or clergy; the carreaux was symbolical of the arrow-heads of the vassals (the class from which the archers and bowmen were drawn); the trefles, or clover, signified the husbandman, and the piques, or the points of lances represented the knights. It was about this time, too, that the court cards were first named and these, too, we owe to the French. The earliest known cards printed from wood blocks which are preserved to this day are six cards from a set made in Provence in 1440. Four of these are in the British Museum and two are in the museum of the United States Playing Card company in Cincinnati. (Figure 7.) They are the knaves, or valets, as they are known in France, and bear the names of famous knights, Lancelot, Hogier and Valery. It is interesting to note that during the French revolution when the house of Bourbon was dethroned, the kings and queens disappeared from playing cards also. Instead there were substituted philosophers (for the kings), emblematic personages (for the queens) and sansculottes or the revolting workmen (for the knaves).

Playing cards came into England early in the Fifteenth century, during the fighting in Normandy and Touraine, Anjou and Poitou. English soldiers brought back French cards with them and these served as the models for English card makers. In spite of the fact that paper was not made in England until the end of the century, in 1463, upon the petition of the English craftsmen, the importation of playing cards was forbidden. By 1484, card playing had become an important part of the Christmas festivities, at least among the nobility, and it spread so rapidly to the lower classes that Henry VII in 1495 issued an edict forbidding their use to servants and apprentices except during the Christmas holidays.

Although the French gave us the familiar suit signs and the figures on the "picture cards," the queer costumes which we see on the kings, queens, and jacks, when we pick up our hands, are English of the time of Henry VII. The queer-looking lappets over the queen's ears are the same kind as were worn by the ladies of Henry's court, although the wearing of their crowns far back on their heads did not become common until Queen Elizabeth's time. The knaves with their fat caps "bronde on the crowns like the battlements of a house" are like the figures which we see in the paintings and tapestries of that time. Incidentally, the meaning of the name for this card has changed greatly through the years. In those days the term of knave was used in the same way as the French varlet or valet and meant merely a son or young servant. Later it came to mean a rogue and from that meaning our present term, jack, is supposed to have come. It was probably Jackknaves, originally, which was derived from Jack-naipes, "naipes" being the Spanish word for cards.

Card playing grew in great favor in England during the reign of Henry VII and the king himself was an addict. Among his private expenses are several entries for money at cards. His daughter was also a fan and of James IV and his bride it is written: "The King came privily to the said castle and entered within the chamber with a small company where he found the Queene playing at Cardes." When English royalty was overthrown and the commonwealth came into power card playing fell under the stern displeasure of the Puritans. But under the gay rule of Charles II it was again in favor. Moreover, besides the playing cards with the conventional suit signs we find many other early English cards bearing curious pictures, political satires of the day which served much the same purpose as the cartoons and comic strips of the present time. In view of the recent revival of the Beggar's Opera in this country it is interesting to note that one pack of English playing cards was adorned with songs from that famous composition. (Figure No. 9.) It is also curious to find that, despite the Puritan disapproval of playing cards, one of the well-known card makers of that period was L. Hewson, who was a son of Cromwell's general "Hewson, the cobbler."

The practice of printing upon the cards many other things besides the figures of the various suits had a great vogue in Europe during that time. For instance Cardinal Mazarin, in an effort to interest the young prince, who later became Louis XIV, in his studies, arranged for several sets of playing cards, each bearing some geographical or historical information. One set was illustrated with the pictures of famous queens and short biographical sketches and another with symbolical figures of the different countries and a short description of that country. There was also a heraldic series illustrating the various coats-of-arms of the nobility, another illustrating the famous military operations of the period and another adorned with various mythological figures. Among the English cards of this period were some in which the different suits bore the portraits of kings and queens of various countries. Another was devoted to illustrated proverbs; another to Aesop's fables, another showed scenes from the Monmouth Rebellion and still another scene illustrative of the reign of Queen Anne. This practice continued down to the Nineteenth century. One set of French cards made in 1814 reflected the war-like spirit of the Napoleonic era (Figure 3), being illustrated, pictures of soldiers upon whose banners appeared the suit signs and numbers. Another set of 1830 bore the music of famous dances of the time and still another of that period showed the work of famous caricaturists. The same thing was being done in England where the playing cards bore such designs as money tables, the multiplication tables, maps of the various countries, the signs of the Zodiac, portraits of all the kings of England and various other educational features.

Since England became a card-playing nation within a comparatively short time after playing cards were introduced into that country, it was only natural her colonies should follow the lead of the mother country. So America, too, has become a card-playing nation, perhaps the greatest in the world. The fact is that in this country this year there were 52,000,000 packs of cards a week! All down through the history of America is a record of the popularity of cards and the fact that the

"Vaccine" Said to End Poison Ivy Suffering

The affliction from poison ivy is now treated in the same way that hay fever is combated—that is, by injecting into the sufferer minute quantities of extract of the very poison which causes the distress. This has been found effective both as a preventive measure and as a method of treatment. An injection of the poison ivy antigen, which is an extract made up of poison ivy leaves, acts in the same manner as a vaccine. It usually requires about three injections into muscular tissue for the cure of a case. Within 4 hours after the injection begins to disappear. This treatment immunizes the patient against an attack of poison ivy for about two months. However, the patient is again susceptible the following season. It also is possible before the season begins to give one injection of poison ivy antigen and thus afford immunity from the affliction for three or four months.—Washington Star.

DR. CALDWELL'S THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not habit forming.

The Doctor never did approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headache, and to break up fevers and colds. Get a bottle today, at any drugstore and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open. For a free trial bottle, just write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois.

Alfonso's New Name

Cosden Cobb, the millionaire tobacco planter of Kentucky, said on disembarking from the Berengaria in New York:

"I met the king of Spain in London. He isn't as gay in dress as he used to be, but he is gayer than ever in spirit.

"When I congratulated him on the engagement of Primo de Rivera he gave a gay laugh.

"Oh," he said, "you mustn't call me King Alfonso any more. My name is Secundo de Rivera now."

Huge Treasury Surplus May Bring About Another Cut in Federal Taxes.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SECRETARY of the Treasury Mellon announced that the treasury surplus for the fiscal year ending June 30 was $185,000,000. Actual reduction in the public debt during the year was $673,000,000. The surplus would have warranted a total reduction of approximately $735,000,000, the additional amount being carried temporarily as an increase in the net balance in the general fund.

The surplus was accounted for largely by the unexpectedly large income tax receipts in March and June of this year based on abnormal profits from stock speculations during the year 1928. The huge 1928 earnings will be further reflected in the September and December income tax payments. The surplus for the calendar year 1929 may easily exceed $300,000,000, unless it is greatly cut down by loans under the farm relief act, for which $150,000,000 already has been appropriated.

Following Secretary Mellon's statement, President Hoover made it known that "careful study" was being made of the question of further reduction of federal taxes, and it is inferred that he probably would recommend another cut in his December message to congress. Three things, he said, must first be determined. These are the effect of legislation during the last twelve months which has increased expenditures far beyond the budget; how far the expenditures of the government in other directions can be reduced, and how far the increase in revenue is due to the temporary stock exchange activity.

The President evidently believes that it will not be necessary to wait until the March, 1930, tax returns are available before determining whether income tax revenues may be expected to continue at their present volume. The administration program for tax reduction is likely to include a greater deduction for earned income and a reduction in the tax on corporation earnings.

ALEXANDER Legge of Chicago, president of the International Harvester company, has accepted appointment as a member of the federal farm board and will be its chairman for the first year. Other members selected by President Hoover and who have accepted are James C. Stone of Kentucky, representing tobacco co-operatives; C. C. Teague of California, fruit co-operatives; C. B. Dennan of Missouri, president of the National Livestock Producers' association, and Carl Williams of Oklahoma, editor of a farm paper and identified with wheat and cotton co-operatives. W. S. Moscrip of Minnesota, an official of dairy co-operatives, was offered a place on the board but at the time of writing had not accepted.

Mr. Legge, according to the President, is making a great sacrifice as any citizen who ever entered the public service. He is surrendering a salary of more than $100,000 a year to accept a place that pays $12,000 yearly. It is believed he will resign after one year and return to private business, but in the meantime, Mr. Hoover hopes, he will have worked out the solution of the farm problem. During the year Mr. Legge was vice chairman of the National Industries board and the allied purchasing commission invaluable work.

It was officially announced at the White House that President Hoover will convene a national conference within a few days to discuss the health of the nation's children. Dr. Itay, secretary of the international operation of Secretary James J. Davis, will preside at the conference. The conference will be held at the White House, former secretary of the executive will be paid out of a $500,000 fund placed at the disposal of the President from private sources.

According to Mr. Hoover's statement, "the subjects to be covered embrace problems of dependent children; regular medical examination; school or public clinics for children; hospitalization; adequate milk supplies; community nurses; maternity instruction and nurses; teaching of health in the schools; facilities for playgrounds and recreation; voluntary organization of children; child labor and scores of allied subjects."

RUMORS spread all over the country to the effect that Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary in charge of customs, prohibition and coast guard operations, and James M. Doran, prohibition commissioner, had been or soon would be asked to resign at the instance of President Hoover. This was vigorously denied at the White House, and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon said in a signed statement: "There is no truth in these reports, and there are no facts to justify the circulation of rumors of this character, which do an injustice to two gentlemen who are performing a difficult task with a high degree of ability and devotion, and who have in full measure my confidence and support."

The American Automobile association at its annual convention in Buffalo took cognizance of the methods of quick-trigger enforcement agents which, its members said, were endangering the lives of innocent automobile tourists along the Canadian border. President Thomas P. Henry of Detroit and others dealt with the matter in their addresses.

Representative Tinkham of Massachusetts in a letter to Attorney General Mitchell demanded the prosecution of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church for violation of the federal corrupt practices act, asserting that the board is a political organization as defined by that act and that it has failed to file itemized statements of its expenditures for the last four years. Deets Pickett, research secretary of the board, denied there was a basis for its prosecution. He stated that no expenditures had been made which he felt were reportable under the corrupt practices act, and declared that the act was not intended to curtail the right of free speech. He also reported that the board had spent less money in 1928 than the average annual expenditure of the five years preceding.

BOBBY JONES, the eminent amateur golfer of Atlanta, is again the national open champion. In the tournament at the Winged Foot club, Mamaroneck, N. Y., he fell into a bad streak of playing—that is, bad for him—and was tied for first place with Al Espinosa, professional. Each of them took 294 strokes for 72 holes. In the play-off at 36 holes Bobby had regained his form and Espinosa was at his worst, so the Atlanta won easily with 141 to 164. This is the third time Mr. Jones has captured the national open championship.

KING GEORGE'S speech from the throne, read to the British parliament by Lord Chancellor Sankey and of course representing the program of the new Labor government, was not at all startling and was far from extremely radical. The most important promises made by the MacDonald regime were that efforts would be made toward disarmament, that there would be diplomatic recognition and resumption of trade relations with Soviet Russia, that unemployment conditions would be improved and that numerous industrial bills would be investigated. The address mentioned favorable conclusions of the reparations conference and preparation for a second conference of governments which may climax its work with arranging for evacuation of the Rhineland. It then said of disarmament: "Conversations have commenced with the ambassador of the United States on the subject of naval disarmament."

SPAIN'S government is taking measures to check the fall of the peseta and pave the way for a return to the gold standard. Among the relief measures are: Formation of a national council to encourage consumption of home products and thus limit foreign imports; regulation of foreign exchange; and a general shift of officials.

governments of foreign powers, an early reduction of armaments throughout the world."

One of the most important announcements was that the MacDonald government intends to tackle the liquor problem, at least by investigation, and has decided to appoint a commission at an early date to examine the whole field of legislation relating to sale and supply of intoxicating liquor. The only suggestion of real socialism in the message was a hint that the nationalization of mining royalties might be proposed after an inquiry.

FOR reasons that are decidedly obscure to Americans, Baron Tanaka and his ministry in Japan have been forced to resign after carrying on successfully for a considerable time. Yugo Hamaguchi, leader of the Liberals, was summoned by the emperor to form a new cabinet. Premier Tanaka's downfall was attributed chiefly to alleged mishandling of the Manchurian situation last year and to the government's failure to protect Marshal Chang Tso-lin from assassination at Mukden. In Tokyo it is asserted that the general staff and the elder statesmen demanded that he quit after his management made a necessary severe discipline of the Japanese officers concerned in guarding the railway crossing where Chang was killed, and thus lowered Japan's military and international prestige. Lieut. Gen. Chotaro Murakami, who commanded the Japanese army in Manchuria at the time of the assassination, has just been relegated to the reserve list without being promoted to the rank of a full general; he was succeeded by Gen. Eitaro Hata.

Tanaka also was blamed for bad handling of the ratification of the Kellogg peace pact, which was accomplished a few days ago. It was said he permitted too much opposition to develop. Just before resigning Tanaka and some of the cabinet members were decorated with honorary imperial orders.

CHINA is planning to make itself a sea power of considerable importance and will develop a modern naval base on the Chekiang river. The Nationalist government announces that it has signed an agreement with Great Britain providing for the training of Chinese naval cadets in England and has engaged a British naval mission to assist in the development of its navy. It is understood that British shipyards will receive contracts for the building of Chinese warships. Most of China's war vessels were bought from England and Germany 20 years ago, but she has lately built a good-sized fleet of light craft in her own shipyards. In 1927 President Chiang Kai-shek said it was China's intention not to be bound by any agreements pertaining to naval limitation which the powers might make.

DESPITE strict censorship, reports are coming from Italy indicating that Mussolini and his Fascist regime are having difficulties in various districts. Provincial party secretaries have been changed, and two members of the chamber of deputies have been suspended without announced reason. The Fascist police are reported to have arrested 36 former leaders of Italian Masonry following the recent decisions of Masons in Paris to re-establish contact with the Masons in Italy. The country has an adverse trade balance and in consequence economic conditions have become unsatisfactory. Premier Mussolini summoned a meeting of the cabinet for July 15 and there may be a general shifting of officials.

SPAIN'S government is taking measures to check the fall of the peseta and pave the way for a return to the gold standard. Among the relief measures are: Formation of a national council to encourage consumption of home products and thus limit foreign imports; regulation of foreign exchange; and a general shift of officials.

Numbered Jurymen Next

Europe is watching with great interest the result of the plan of President Cosgrave of the executive council of the Irish Free State to circumvent the intimidation of jurors and witnesses. A bill introduced in the dail by him provides for the secrecy of jury panels, identification of jurors by numbers instead of names and secret hearings of all cases where the police superintendent testifies that it is necessary for the safety of jurors and witnesses.

A Cynic on Marriage

Mabel Boll in an interview at Curtis field was talking about a woman novelist.

"She is too cynical," Miss Boll said. "I once heard her advising a pretty girl never to get married. 'Marriage!' she sniffed. 'Bah! What's marriage but the exchange of the attentions of a dozen men for the inattention of one?'"

AMARILLO CARPENTER TALKS

Troubles Are Overcome Since
Taking Orgatone

"Orgatone has certainly done me a lot of good and I am glad to make this statement," said J. J. Hanson of 607 N. Johnson, Amarillo, Texas. Mr. Hanson is a well known citizen here and is employed as a carpenter.

"I suffered terribly from stomach and kidney trouble," he continued. "I had pains in my back that would be so severe at times I thought I would go distracted and my kidneys gave me a great deal of trouble all of the time. I had a bad case of pleurisy and that pain would hurt me so at times I could hardly stand it. I suffered greatly from headaches and would get so dizzy I would almost fall."

"I read so much about Orgatone I decided to try it, and it has helped me so much that I shall take the entire treatment. I began to improve right from the start; my stomach and kidneys operate with regularity; I don't have any headaches or dizzy spells now at all. My entire system is in better shape now than it has been for a long time. I am going to continue Orgatone until my health is completely restored, and I know Orgatone will help anyone suffering as I did."

Genuine Orgatone may be obtained in Hedley by the Wilson Drug Co.

Notice of Sale of Real Estate Under Order of Sale

The State of Texas,
County of Donley.

By virtue of an Order of Sale issued out of the District Court of Parker county, Texas on a judgment rendered in said court on the 13th day of May, A. D. 1929 in favor of A. A. Webster, D. P. Webster, J. G. Webster, J. G. Webster, Trustee, Mrs. Hallie Feild, joined pro forma by her husband, George M. Feild, and Mrs. Cora Belle Deweese, joined pro forma by her husband, Chas. T. Deweese, who compose the copartnership of J. P. Webster & Sons, and against the said Z. T. Thomas and Plough Chemical Company, Inc., a corporation, in the case of A. A. Webster, D. P. Webster, J. G. Webster, J. G. Webster, Trustee, Mrs. Hallie Feild, joined pro forma by her husband, George M. Feild, and Mrs. Cora Belle Deweese, joined pro forma by her husband, Chas. T. Deweese, who compose the copartnership of J. P. Webster & Sons, plaintiffs, against Z. T. Thomas and Plough Chemical Company, Inc., a corporation, defendants, No. 7458, in such court, I did, on the 8th day of July, 1929, at 3 o'clock p. m., levy upon the following described tract and parcel of land situated in the county of Donley, State of Texas, as the property of the said Z. T. Thomas, to wit: An undivided one-ninth interest in and to the West one-half of Section No. Seventy six (76) Block No. Twenty (20), E & G N. Ry. Co. lands, situated in Donley county, Texas; and on the 6th day of August, A. D. 1929, being the first Tuesday of said month, between the hours of 10:00 o'clock a. m. and 4:00 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the court house door of Donley county, Texas, I will offer for sale and sell at public auction, for cash, all the right, title and interest of the said Z. T. Thomas in and to said property being an undivided one-ninth interest therein. Said judgment against said Plough Chemical Company, Inc. is a foreclosure of plaintiff's lien against the land hereinabove described, it being decreed by the court in said judgment that plaintiff's lien against said land is superior to the lien of the defendant, Plough Chemical Company, Inc., against said land.

Dated at Clarendon Texas, this 12th day of July, A. D. 1929.

JOHN BENJAMIN MITCHELL

The following excerpts were taken from last week's Stephenville Tribune:

John Benjamin Mitchell, of Granbury, who has been in the Stephenville hospital the past ten weeks died at 9 o'clock Sunday evening, July 14, at the age of 78 years.

Mr. Mitchell was born in Tennessee and at the age of 21 came to Texas, settling at Granbury, where 49 years ago he was married to Miss Nan Murphy. Six children were born to them, all living except one son, Ruel, who died of influenza at a training camp in Canada during the world war in 1918.

Surviving him are his wife, two sons, A. L. of Granbury and Zeb of Hedley, three daughters,
Mrs. Dr. Gandy of Lipan, Miss Ruth Mitchell of Stephenville,
and Mrs. C. H. Jarrett of Canyon;
six grandchildren, and three sisters who live in Tennessee. His entire family was with him when death came.

The many beautiful floral offerings from friends were mute evidences of the esteem in which the deceased was held by those who knew him and who loved him for his quiet, cheerful unassum-ing manner, his gentleness to his family and consideration for his friends.

HAVE YOU REGISTERED?

To All Concerned:

My attention has recently been called to a rumor to the effect that a number of businesses in Donley county are being conducted under an assumed name without having first complied with the law. The law forbids any person to carry on a business under an assumed name or designation other than his own real name, until after he has filed in the office of the county clerk a certificate setting forth the name under which he proposes to conduct his business, and the true
name of all the parties interested therein.

A fine of $25 to $100 is the punishment for violation of this law, and each day's violation is a separate offense.

I am taking this opportunity to call the attention of all interested parties to the provisions of this statute, as I feel sure that if this law is being violated it is through mistake, and can and will be corrected at once.

THE MEDICINE FOR PELLAGRA

Dr. J. L. Leverett, prominent Paris, Texas, Specialist, is attracting National attention with his NEW method of treating Pellagra and certain forms of stomach trouble closely resembling Pellagra. Under a rigid test of more than 3000 patients the treatment proved to be all that was claimed. A 28 day trial treatment for $5 and this money back if the patient is not benefited and the patient alone is the judge. The medicine doesn't make you sick to take it. For particulars, tes-imonials and blank for FREE diagnosis

Atta-Boy Jimmy

The Jimmie's attractions are meager
(He's far from a lady intriguer).
He's just like a Turk
At doing his work—
So very dynamic and eager!

WE HATE TO BE COMMERCIAL and prosaic, but we trust that you'll pardon us for directing your attention to the fact that our prices and the high quality of our products cannot be duplicated in any other grocery establishment in the city. These dull matters must be dwelt on, at times!
