2698 BALES GINNED UP TO WEDNESDAY

All harvesting operations have been at a standstill since last Thursday on account of the community "going wet." And the hail has taken its toll again over a strip of country northwest and west of town and extending on beyond Ashtola. As was the case in the former hailstorm the damage was not severe, generally speaking, but was heavy on a number of individuals.

Up to Tuesday of this week the four local gins had turned out 2698 bales, an increase of 248 bales since last report. What we're wanting now is a long siege of good weather.

METHODIST CHURCH ANNOUNCEMENTS

Sunday morning the pastor will preach the fourth of a series of sermons on "Methodist Beliefs," the subject for Sunday morning to be "The Baptism of Jesus—Why and How He Was Baptized." Those interested are cordially invited to hear these sermons.

Sunday night Rev. W. M. Murrell will preach and hold the fourth Quarterly Conference. Every member of the church should attend this very important conference.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Chase, who were married here in Hedley while they were playing on the Gabe Garrett show, are now with the Art Names Company which will be in Hedley all next week. Mr. and Mrs. Chase have a host of friends in Hedley who will be glad to welcome them back again.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCE NEXT SUNDAY NIGHT

Rev. W. M. Murrell, Presiding Elder of the Clarendon district, will be here to preach at the Methodist church Sunday night and to hold the fourth quarterly conference for the congregation. Rev. Murrell is an outstanding preacher and his sermons are always exceptionally fine.

Rev. and Mrs. Landreth will sing a duet at this service.

Uncle Ben Harris has the sincere thanks of the Informer family for the gift of a lead of fine "garden sass." There was a big bushel basketful of it—enough to keep us going several days. Our thanks also to J. M. Everett, the commission having reached us via him.

Mrs. T. M. Owens has been seriously sick for some time, but we are glad to hear that she is improving now.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Hecker and daughter, Betty Margaret, and Homer Simmons visited in Wichita Falls and Barkburnett last Thursday and Friday.

HIGHWAY 5 CONTROVERSY FINALLY ENDED

Under the above heading, the following news item appeared in Tuesday's issue of the Amarillo Daily News:

A five year road controversy was brought to an end yesterday when W. W. Chilton, representing the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce, and P. S. Bailey, newly appointed division highway engineer, met with the county commissioners of Donley and Armstrong counties and witnessed the signing of an acceptance of the State's designated route of Highway No. 5 across those two counties.

Art Names Tent Show in Hedley all next week. This show played Pampa last week and is in Clarendon this week. Call some of your friends in Pampa and Clarendon and ask about this wonderful show.

WORKING ON GAS AND OIL TEST FOR HEDLEY

For some time past, a few of our leading citizens have been engaged in an effort to secure leases on a block of land sufficiently large to justify the drilling of a test well for oil or gas in this vicinity. In a conversation with the editor Tuesday, one of these men made statements as follows concerning the matter:

"If the land owners will lease their land, Hedley has a splendid chance to get an oil test going down within a short time.

"At present there are over 1500 acres leased (papers held in the Security State Bank) for a test well within a few miles of Hedley.

"The business men of Hedley could be of great help in securing leases and suitable parties to drill the test well."

It seems to the Informer that land owners and citizens generally should investigate this proposition and cooperate in every reasonable way to bring the project to a successful conclusion.

HEATING STOVE FOR SALE—Cheap. In good condition. Apply at the Postoffice.

T. E. L. CLASS

The ladies of the T. E. L. Class met in the home of Mrs. L. Spalding Friday, Nov 11th. A splendid program was rendered and much enjoyed by all, after which a social hour was spent. Delicious fruit was served to 8 members and one visitor.

Texas Lady's Life Takes New Turn

"When I think of how I used to wake up morning after morning with a headache, I feel like I have just started living," says Mrs. Lawca Clooney, popular manager of the Telephone Exchange Cafeteria in San Antonio.

"I did not know what it was to be without a headache, the kind which make you weak and nervous until you tremble all over, until I heard my brother's family telling about how good Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is. I took the first one and liked it. I have been taking them ever since. Everyone wants to know what I have taken because I am so well now."

Results like that is what makes Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) so popular. More than three million are used a day. Any druggist will tell you to use them if you suffer from sour stomach, biliousness, tight bowels, sick headaches, indigestion or rheumatism. They are 25c a box.

Ring Stolen by Magpie
A ring lost five years ago was recently found securely imbedded in a magpie's nest at Great Falls, Mont. Roy Johnson lost the ring in 1921 while feeding cattle on a ranch 12 miles south of Belt. The ring was found by Norman Johnson, ten, when the boy tore down a magpie's nest, built in the willow roof of an old cow shed. Twigs and grass were so closely woven around and through the ring that the lad had difficulty extricating the shining piece of gold.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Chairman Legge Makes Plain to Senators His Farm Board Policy.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
ALEXANDER LEGGE, chairman of the federal farm board, intends that the money put at the disposal of the board shall be handled "with a reasonable measure of safety," and he doesn't wish his appointment to be confirmed under the mistaken impression that any other policy will be followed. If the senate does not approve of this policy, Mr. Legge is perfectly willing to give up his office and return to his home in Chicago and his private business.

So much, and a lot more to the same purpose, the chairman told the senate committee on agriculture which was considering his appointment. The Democratic and radical Republican members of the committee questioned Mr. Legge sharply for many hours and made plain their displeasure because the board in the two months of its existence had not more rapidly organized stabilization corporations and placed at their disposal large funds with which to enhance the prices of farm products. Senators Brookhart of Iowa and Wheeler of Montana were especially vexed by the failure of the farm board to take steps assuring the stabilization of wheat prices during the present crop season. Senator Wheeler said that if the board had announced that a stabilization corporation would be prepared to operate the farmers would have held their wheat. Senator Frazier of North Dakota said the farmers of his state had lost from 25 to 40 cents a bushel on wheat because of the failure of the board to take action.

Mr. Legge explained that stabilization corporations would be organized as rapidly as it is possible to determine that they can operate with a reasonable prospect of success. It is intended, he said, that the grain marketing corporation, which was organized at Chicago conferences, shall act as a stabilization corporation. He explained that steps toward the formation of this corporation were taken within nine days after the board organized.

Wheeler intimated that the board's loan to the Sun Maid Raisin Growers' association was made for the benefit of a Wall street house that floated the bonds of the Sun Maid Raisin corporation, but Mr. Legge effectively scotched that idea by explaining that the loan prevented the financiers from foreclosing on the company's property. He also took the wind out of the sails of those who sought to attack him personally in the matter of his connection with the International Harvester company by a detailed statement of earnings and market values of that concern's stock and of his financial interest in it.

SHIPBUILDING company officials for whom William E. Shearer attended the Geneva arms limitation conference in 1927 all virtually disowned him in their testimony before the senate investigating committee, agreeing in stating that they attached small importance to his reports and none at all to his claims of influence there. In his final report to his employers Shearer asserted his work in Geneva resulted in the collapse of the conference. He said: "This advance campaign and the accuracy and authentic data released by me automatically made me leader of the unofficial fight to the extent that the American officials referred the press to me, as they were bound to secrecy, with the result that the attempt to deliver the United States was defeated by a complete expose, which is now acknowledged."

SENATOR HOWELL of Nebraska stirred up a hornet's nest when in the senate he declared the liquor laws could be enforced in Washington if the President desired it, since he is "all powerful in the capital and could out the district commissioners if they neglected their duty. Mr. Hoover responded promptly with a statement that Mr. Howell had impugned the integrity of the district officials, and called on the senator for "definite facts" supporting his charges of prohibition violations in the district.

Reiterating his charges Tuesday, Senator Howell admitted he was unable to give the time and place of violations but said it was "unfair to expect a senator so to do." Senator Brookhart then came to his rescue by telling of a conviction party he said was given in Washington by a New York stock broker in honor of newly elected senators and others some time ago. He declared there was a flask of liquor for each guest, and later he said he would gladly face a grand jury and tell all about the party, giving the names of those present—which caused considerable alarm. There was indication that this function might be investigated by those who are probing the doings of lobbyists, for, according to Brookhart, there was much discussion of pending railroad legislation.

Mr. Howell, in continuing his attacks, charged as one instance of the failure of local enforcers that the Carlton club, one of the most exclusive night clubs in the capital, has never been raided or closed up, although four dry agents reported witnessing Volstead violations at numerous tables. Later he said he would seek to have Gen. Smedley D. Butler, commandant of the marine corps base at Quantico, detailed to Washington for a "clean-up job." General Butler recently compelled the town authorities of Quantico to enforce the prohibition law by ordering the marines not to enter the town until the speakeasies and bootleggers were driven out.

HARRY F. SINCLAIR's appeal to the President for commutation of sentence having been denied on recommendation of Attorney General Mitchell, the imprisoned oil magnate issued a statement calling on Mr. Mitchell to make public all of the record in his plea. His principal reason for asking for freedom, Sinclair declared, was that he had been jailed for jury shadowing—which had not before been prohibited by statute or rule of the court. "Observation of a jury became contempt of court only when I engaged in it," he declared.

"In effect," the attorney general can be summed up to mean that I should remain in jail because I was acquitted of an alleged offense for which he feels I should have been convicted."

FOR the first time President Hoover took a hand in the tariff fight when he issued a statement urging the retention of the flexible tariff, which he asserted is "a protection for the sound progress in our economic system and for the future protection of our farmers and our industries and consumers." He gave at considerable length his reasons for this assertion, taking direct issue with the Democrats and radical Republicans who seek the repeal of the flexible tariff. Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi predicted the President would be defeated on this proposition.

EVERY American was interested in the wedding of Maj. John Coolidge, son of former President and Mrs. Coolidge, and Florence Trumbull, daughter of Governor Trumbull of Connecticut. The ceremony took place in the bride's home town, Plainville, Conn., and though the families tried to make it a simple affair, it was attended by a number of distinguished persons and the details were read with avidity throughout the land. The wedding gifts nearly filled one half of the second floor of the Trumbull home and included a big silver bowl and candlesticks from the foreign envoys in Washington. Mr. Coolidge gave "a substantial check" and Mrs. Coolidge presented a solid mahogany bedroom suite of colonial design and a check for $250, which she received for a poem, "The Open Door," inspired on the fifth anniversary of the death of her other son, Calvin Coolidge.

Chicago, American representatives on the commission that is to set up the bank for international settlements provided for in the Young reparations plan, have sailed for Europe, where they will meet their European colleagues. The effort to put the bank under complete control of the League of Nations failed for the time being in Geneva, but something in that line may come up at later sessions of the league assembly. Since it was specified by the Young commission that the bank should be dominated by financial and not political interests, Messrs. Reynolds and Traylor did not confer with President Hoover before departing.

RAMSAY MAC DONALD, prime minister of Great Britain, occupying the imperial suite on the liner Berengaria, sailed for the United States for his conference with President Hoover. He is bringing no staff of experts with him because, as he told the English, the technical points of the proposed plan for a five-power naval limitation conference have already been settled and all that is needed is a "diplomatic agreement." In the conversations with Mr. Hoover, besides the naval conference, other matters entering into Anglo-American relations will be discussed, one of them possibly being certain changes in the ship liquor treaty negotiated in 1923.

LAST week it was Russia's turn to issue an ultimatum, so the Soviet government warned the Chinese Nationalist government that any further Chinese attacks on the Manchurian border would result in immediate and decisive action by the Red army.

Gen. Chang Fak-wei, reactionary commander of the Cantonese "Iron-sides" division, who was dismissed by the Nanking government, led his troops in a rebellion that for some days looked very serious. But toward the end of the week the Nationalist authorities announced the revolt was broken and Chang's soldiers surrounded at Lichow.

Letters from missionaries tell of the massacre, late in August, of 3,000 rebellious Moslems in the remote Kansu province. The victims were gathered at Tsochow under a pretext and all males between the ages of fifteen and fifty were slaughtered.

POLITICAL quarrels in Austria, which for some weeks have been threatening civil war, were further complicated by the resignation of Chancellor Streeruwitz and his Christian Socialist cabinet because certain elements in their party could no longer be restrained. Johann Schober, head of the Vienna police, was made chancellor and he selected as minister of war Gen. Karl Vaugoin, who has made the army a powerful conservative force. Both these men are bitter foes of the Socialists.

The coalition government of Czechoslovakia which had held office since last February also resigned. Parliament was dissolved and new elections were called for October 27.

ACCORDING to reports from Calcutta, Amir Habibullah, otherwise Bacha Sakao, the water carrier and bandit who made himself king of Afghanistan, was assassinated. Recent advice from Peshawar stated unrest was increasing in Afghanistan, owing to Habibullah's inability to raise money, and a counter revolution was threatened.

Health worth more than fortune
Heir to millions
THE baby to be envied is the one who is born with an inheritance of perfect health, to begin with. And who's lucky enough to have a mother who knows how to build up this fortune. "Perhaps I'm old-fashioned," she'll say to the doctor who pronounces her child physically 100% at a baby show, "but this health certificate means more to me than all the stock certificates in the world. If my baby grows up strong and well, I'm willing to leave it to him to make a career and fortune for himself. "Already I'm teaching him the value of regular habits. Regular sleep, regular meals, regular functions. He's never once been off schedule, not even when he was cutting teeth or traveling to the country. I make sure of that by giving him Nujol regularly." Nujol works so easily and naturally that it won't upset a baby under any conditions. It keeps everything functioning properly. It not only prevents any excess of body poisons (we all have them) from forming but aids in their removal. It is safe and sure. Nujol was perfected by the Nujol Laboratories, 2 Park Avenue, New York.

First Link in Inland Waterways Chain Completed

The Steamer Cincinnati

The Ohio River Monument

President Hoover

Oscar F. Barrett

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

WHEN President Herbert Hoover unveils and dedicates a monument, erected high upon a cliff in Eden park in Cincinnati, it will mark not only the completed canalization of the Ohio river from Pittsburgh to Cairo, Ill. but it will mean also that there has been forged the first link in the chain of inland waterways which the United States proposes to establish. For this will be the first important step taken in a project which the President has declared will "contribute to the wealth and economic progress of every section of the Union, contribute to the unity of the nation and is of concern to every one of our millions of farms and homes."

The dream of a vast inland waterways system which now appears to be approaching realization, is not a new one. More than 150 years ago George Washington, visiting the Ohio river country as agent for Virginia officers who had been granted western lands for their services in the French and Indian war, caught the first vision of the importance of this natural highway into the little-known interior of the continent. In 1783, after a tour from his camp at Newburg into central New York where he had explored the headwaters of the Mohawk and the Susquehanna in a letter to the Marquis de Castellux, he wrote: "I could not help taking a more extensive view of the vast inland navigation of these United States and could not but be struck by the immense extent and importance of it, and of the goodness of that Providence which has dealt its favors to us with so profuse a hand. Would to God we may have wisdom enough to improve them. I shall not rest contented till I have explored the Western country, and traversed these lines, or a great part of them, which have given bounds to a new empire."

After the Revolution he did explore the western country again to have his faith strengthened in the importance of the inland waterways to the nation which was then in the process of building, and he wrote to Henry Lee: "Open all the communications which nature has afforded between the Atlantic states and the western territory, and encourage the use of them to the utmost and sure I am there is no better tie by which they will form a link in the chain of Federal Union." Of Washington's part in the development of our inland waterways, Archer Butler Hulbert in his volume, "The Paths of Inland Commerce" in the Yale University Press "Chronicles of America" writes:

Some of the pictures in Washington's vision reveal in the light of subsequent events, an almost uncanny prescience. He very plainly prophesied the international rivalry for the trade of the Great Lakes, embodied today in the Welland and Erie canals. He declared the possibility of navigating with ocean-going vessels the tortuous 2,000-mile channel of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, and within sixteen years ships left the Ohio, crossed the Atlantic, and sailed into the Mediterranean as he approved and encouraged Rumsey's mechanical invention for propelling boats against the stream, showing that he had a glimpse of what was to follow after Fitz, Rumsey and Fulton should have overcome the mighty currents of the Hudson and the Ohio with the steamboat's paddle wheel. His proposal that congress should undertake a survey of western rivers for the purpose of giving people at large a knowledge of their possible importance as avenues of commerce was a forecast of the Lewis and Clark expedition as well as of the policy of the government today for the improvement of the great inland rivers and harbors.

When the stream of immigration began to pour into the lands beyond the Alleghenies in the early days of the Republic and the new country began to make itself felt as a vital part of the nation and a great political force in the national government, there began an era of internal improvement forced upon the government by the westerners. The most striking manifestation of this movement was in the development of waterways and the '20s and '30s became very definitely "the canal period" in our history. By 1825 New York had completed her Erie canal from Albany to Buffalo at a cost of $7,000,000. Ohio and Illinois caught the canal fever even before the New Yorkers had completed their project and the result was the Ohio canal and the Illinois-Michigan canal. All of these had a profound influence in building up the new country, none more strikingly than the Erie canal. Over it poured a stream of immigration to the west, and back from the borderlands a little later began streaming the commerce which was to build up New York City from a population of 124,000 in 1820 to 233,000 in 1830.

What was true of the Erie canal in New York City was no less true of the Illinois-Michigan canal and Chicago. There is no doubt that this waterway contributed immeasurably to the growth and prosperity of Chicago in its early years and started it on its way to becoming the metropolis of the Mississippi valley. But the "canal period" came to an abrupt close and the decline of waterway transportation began when the first "iron horse" began puffing along the crudely constructed roadbed of the earliest railroads. Although water transportation was to continue in an important role in the development of the Mississippi valley and the trans-Mississippi regions, the railroads became the major factor in transportation of people and of commerce and they continued to do so down to the present time. The revival in recent years of the sentiment for inland waterways development has resulted from economic shifts due to the World War. The large advance in railroad rates as a result of higher wages and higher costs of materials and operation since the war has turned the attention of the American people to the necessity for finding some method for reducing transportation costs. The development of inland waterways holds out a hope for finding that way.

It is altogether fitting that President Hoover should dedicate the monument which marks the completion of the first step in developing the inland waterways system. As a secretary of commerce in the last two administrations, upon him devolved the leadership in solving the problems of transportation and commerce in the United States and as an engineer by training he brought to the task of developing the inland waterways system, which is so largely an engineering problem, the understanding necessary to that solution. Speaking before the Mississippi Valley Association in St. Louis in November, 1927, President Hoover, then secretary of commerce, declared that "The national mind until the past two or three years has conceived waterways development as local projects of some immediate nearby improvement instead of a wide vision of a comprehensive system of twelve thousand miles of connected inland water transportation reaching from the Gulf to the northern frontier and from the lakes to the Atlantic."

He then outlined the plan which he characterized as "the greatest engineering undertaking in history," for such a comprehensive system as is now going forward under his administration as President. The principal points in that plan are two-fold: first, the Mississippi system, to deepen the 9,000 miles of the Mississippi and its tributaries to a minimum depth of six to nine feet so as to permit modern barge service; second, the Great Lakes system; to construct the St. Lawrence shipway from the Lakes to the Atlantic, thus opening the lake ports to vessels from all over the world over 3,000 miles of deep water. Minor points in the plan are the stabilization of lake levels and deepening of channels as to permit full ship-loading and the extension of inland waterway continuous development. Included in the Mississippi system are the Mississippi and the Ohio rivers.

and as far above that point as traffic warrants, the connecting of Lake Michigan with the Mississippi river by a nine-foot channel and the canalization of the Ohio which has just been completed. In the latter the construction of 50 locks and dams by the federal government at a cost of about $125,000,000 will now assure navigation on the Ohio a nine-foot stage the year round. It is in celebration of this fact that the Ohio river dedication, sponsored by the Ohio Valley Improvement association, will be held throughout the Ohio valley, during one week in October.

According to plans for the celebration announced by President Oscar F. Barrett of the Ohio Valley Improvement association, the steamer Cincinnati, which has been chartered by the association as the flagship of the pageant, will leave her home port at Cincinnati, heading upstream for Pittsburg, where the commemorative ceremonies will begin. Pennsylvania will hold its gala affair at Pittsburg, Gov. John S. Fisher presiding. The historic significance of the Ohio river will be stressed at this city, situated at the juncture of the Allegheny and the Monongahela rivers which mingle their mountain waters to form the Ohio. Gov. Howard M. Gore will officiate at the West Virginia dedicatory services.

At Cincinnati President Hoover will unveil and dedicate the Ohio River monument. Myers Y. Cooper, governor of Ohio, will introduce the President and will officially represent his state in the exercises. The monument is a granite obelisk 23 feet above its base bearing four bronze tablets.

On the north face of the monument, a plate bears the following description:

A. D. 1476—A. D. 1925, River Ohio, so called by the Iroquois on account of its beauty—descended by Sieur De La Salle; discovered by the French explorer, La Salle, about 1670 and claimed by him for Louis XIV of France; seized by the British as the result of the French-Indian war 1753-1762; descended by George Washington in 1770; included in the territory of the United States as the result of the Revolutionary war and Treaty of Paris 1763-1765; saved to the Union by General William Henry Harrison in the War of 1812; the first steamboat "New Orleans" piloted by Captain Nicholas J. Roosevelt was launched at Pittsburg in 1811. For more than two hundred years it was the great highway to the west of the American pioneer; this monument was dedicated by Herbert Hoover, President of the United States, to mark the completion of the canalization of the river to a depth of nine feet, from Pittsburg to Cairo, a distance of nine hundred and eighty miles.

The tablet on the south face records the organization and work of the Ohio Valley Improvement association.

On the east face is a testimonial to John L. Vance of Gallipolis, Ohio, first president of the organization, which for 35 years has sponsored the improvement of the Ohio river.

On the west face the tablet bears a part of the work done by Albert Bettinger, Cincinnati, to the accomplishment of regulating the flow of the Ohio river to assure navigation on this stream, a nine-foot stage the year round.

The day after the dedication of the monument Kentucky will stage its demonstration which will feature the importance of the river development to the Southland. Gov. Flem D. Sampson will welcome President Hoover and the members of the Ohio Valley improvement association in behalf of his commonwealth.

The thirty-fifth annual convention of the association will be held aboard the steamer Cincinnati when she ties up at the Evansville (Ind.) public landing. The business sessions of the organization will occupy the day over which President Oscar F. Barrett will preside, with Gov. Harry G. Leslie as an honored guest. Lock and Dam No. 53 at the foot of the Ohio river will then be dedicated as this monument, which is now being constructed at Cairo, Ill., will include the St. Lawrence shipway from the Lakes to the Atlantic.

Little Journeys in Americana

By LESTER B. COLBY

America's First "Sob Sister"

MANY women have lived in history because of beauty, wit, or other charm that made them loved of men. Few women have come walking down the corridors of Time, their fame far-flung because of the acidity of their wrath. Such a woman wrote history in Washington. She has been dead now three-quarters of a century. I am speaking of Anne Royall!

Anne Royall might be called America's first "sob sister." She was the nation's first writing newspaper woman. She was the first woman in the United States to own and edit her own newspaper. She was indicted, tried and convicted as a common scold—the last under the law. She was sentenced to be ducked, though the sentence was never carried out.

John Quincy Adams, one-time President, handed down a morsel to posterity when he described her as being: "Like a virago errant in enchanted armor, redeeming herself from the cramps of indulgence by the notoriety of her eccentricities and the forced currency of her publications."

Public men didn't like Anne Royall. She was the widow of a Revolutionary soldier from Virginia. She appeared in Washington in 1824 asking for a widow's pension. She was denied it and grew embittered. Finally, getting hold of a tumble-down printing press and some battered type, she launched herself upon her career.

At first her small weekly was called the Washington Paul Pry. Later it was renamed the Huntress. All who earned her ill will she scoured in it with abandon. A contemporary, reminiscent in his later years, wrote of her:

"She was the terror of politicians, especially congressmen. I can see her now, tramping through the halls of the old Capitol, umbrella in hand, seizing upon every passerby and offering her book for sale. Any public man who refused to buy was sure of a severe philippic in her newspaper."

None escaped her. It was said that she forced her way into the presence of every President from the time of her arrival until 1854, when she died. All public men who paid her tribute, some have claimed, reaped glowing mention in her columns. But woe betide those who refused.

As age crept on she grew more unlovely still, and the acids of her wrath bit deeper. At last she became so unendurable that a grand jury formally indicted her. She was tried before Judge William Cranch in Circuit court.

The law which made possible the ducking of scolds, long forgotten, was dragged from oblivion as especially suitable for governing her case, and Washington prepared for a hippodrome. With the old crone in their power, however, the idea ceased to hold its humor with her tormentors it seems. Anyway, some one lost heart.

In the end her punishment was commuted to a fine and imprisonment and she was not subjected to the greater indignity. Though she never profited much and died poor, Anne Royall, in the example she set, hatched out a breed of contemptible journalists that persisted for many years. In fact, they are not quite all dead.

Yet she is not entirely without honor. She did originate the personal type of interview and she must go down in history as the first woman in her field. And none who ever felt the searing of her white-hot brand ever forgot that here was a woman who could fight.

Nature Doesn't Remind Us of Shortcomings

It is unfortunate that nature doesn't make us immediately uncomfortable when we neglect our bodies as does the bank or the merchant when we fail to produce in 30, 60 or 90 days. Think what a different world it would be, for instance if the discomfort following the omission of daily exercise or a daily exposure to the sun, or a daily cold bath, or a daily two-mile walk in 30 minutes, were as acute and compelling and filled with desire as are the sensations that follow the omission of one's accustomed meals for 24 hours. There would be no skipping one's duty then. In fact the difficulty would be not to overdo it—even as the difficulty of most persons is to avoid overeating.—Physical Culture Magazine.

Turning the Tables

He had been out of work for quite a long time, but eventually his luck had turned, and he secured a position as driver on a corporation bus service. On the morning of his first day's duty the bus had gone a few miles when an inspector boarded it. The latter was surprised to find the vehicle empty, but the conductor explained that it had not stopped once since leaving the depot. "Has nobody tried to stop your bus?" asked the inspector of the driver. "No, sir." "Nobody put up their hand?" "Oh, yes," returned the driver, "there's been a lot of people who've tried to stop my bus."

Greater Use of Stokers

There is going to be less shoveling this year than last year, if the sales of mechanical stokers for boilers means anything. Figures for the first seven months of 1929 disclose that 998 stokers have been installed, compared with 849 during the corresponding period last year. The boilers served represent a total of 358,418 horsepower compared with and added to the 254,687 of 1928.

When Bilious
I Remembered Black-Draught

Mr. O. B. Davis, Manager of the Commercial Hotel, Dexter, Mo., writes:

"MY parents used Black-Draught for years, and gave it to us when I lived at home. I knew it was a good remedy. When I would get bilious, my head would feel dull, I did not feel equal to a day's work, and had a bad taste in my mouth. Then I remembered Black-Draught and took a few doses. It helped me. The dull, tired feeling left me and I knew, by that, that Black-Draught was as good as ever—a simple home remedy to cleanse the system and make you feel better for having taken it."

Amarillo Woman Sometimes Almost Helpless

Orgatore Has Overcome Her Rheumatism and She Is Feeling Just Fine—Suffered Three Years.

"When I began taking Orgatore sometimes I almost felt helpless—just hardly able to be around—on account of swelling in my joints and limbs but now I have gained back my lost strength, feel fine, and can get around nimbly as I could years ago.

Mrs. S. G. Vaught, who made the above remarkable statement, lives at 810 N. Fillmore St., Amarillo, Texas, and her husband is a well known mechanic at the smelter.

"I didn't know at first," she continued, "what my trouble was, but about three years ago I commenced to be bothered with swelling in my limbs and stiff joints which warned me I was in the clutches of rheumatism. No one who has not suffered with these pains can realize the intense misery I went through. I was badly constipated and nervous, my stomach was out of order and I couldn't get much rest.

"My appetite was very poor and my stomach so upset that I couldn't eat food of any kind without suffering from pains in my stomach. I tried the best of treatment and medicines I could get, but got no relief and at times got so blue and discouraged I didn't think I would ever find anything to reach my case. So when I read of Orgatore, and made up my mind to try it, I had just about abandoned all hope of ever recovering.

"I noticed an improvement almost from the time I started on Orgatore. My stomach was soon getting better and my nerves quieted down so I could sleep. My appetite improved, then the pains and swelling in my joints gradually disappeared and I became less constipated. So I kept taking Orgatore and getting better and finally my pains about disappeared and I was feeling like a different person. Now I can lie down in my bed and sleep all night long, and find no trouble in looking after my household duties. These are the results I have gotten from three bottles of Orgatore and I certainly don't believe anyone suffering as I did will make a mistake by giving it a trial."

Genuine Orgatore may be obtained in Hedley at the Wilson Drug Co.

1919 STUDY CLUB

The second meeting of the 1919 Study Club was held in the home of Mrs. Alva Simmons Wednesday, Sept 25. A review of "The Golden Cocoon" by Ruth Cross was very interesting as we are making a study of Texas writers and literature. Mrs. Thompson introduced the characters. Mrs. Beaty gave a sketch of the author, Mrs. Lowry reviewed the book, and Mrs. Vinyard led club discussion. The hostess served delicious refreshments to thirteen members and the following guests: Mrs. Glynn Shultz, Mrs. Pirtle and Mrs. Lake Dishman.

Wednesday, Oct 9, Mrs. Rollie Bramley was hostess to the 1919

Study Club at the home of her mother, Mrs. J. A. Moreman. Sixteen members responded to roll call with a quotation from the Psalms "Abide With Me" was sung by the club. Mrs. P. V. Dishman gave a good talk on "The Subject Matter of the Psalms," and Mrs. Kendall gave an interpretation of the 23rd Psalm. Mrs. Noel led the discussion of several interesting questions about the book of Psalms.

Dainty refreshments in the club colors (green and white) were served to the members and Mrs. R. E. Newman, guest Reporter.
