HEDLEY ASSOCIATION IN GOOD CONDITION

G. E. Scholar, of the firm of Scholar, Bird & McCulloch, Auditors and Accountants, Dallas, has recently completed an audit of the Hedley Protective Assocation No. 1, which has been forwarded to the State Department of Insurance, at Austin, and made a part of the public records of that office.

The audit shows the local Association to be in excellent shape, with a membership of 1080, cash reserve of $3,597.44 in the bank, and a low death rate.

The report is highly commendatory of the Association's officers and directors, who are: J.
G. McDougal, president and director; W. F. Youres, vice president and director; E. H. Watt, J.

SHERIFF M. W. MOSLEY THANKS THE VOTERS

The people of Donley county have been loyal to me and my interests. In your vote July 28th you gave me a clear majority over the combined vote of three of the best men in the county. This is an honor that seldom falls to the lot of any one.

By your votes you approved of my present efforts to serve you as sheriff. You expressed confidence in me, though I have made mistakes, just like every other human being, and I've tried hard to be fair and square.

No man ever lived who could appreciate your support more than I do. You have been good to me since electing me to the present office. As a hired man,
I have tried faithfully not to disappoint you.

Friends are worth more than money. To be remembered by such a large number of the voters makes life worth while. It gives a encouragement of the kind that is needed to serve the people with whom he has to deal, fairly and impartially.

You have my past record. I only hope to live long enough to repay you and meet your expectations in the new office of Tax Collector. I need your help, and must have it. At the same time, remember that I am just a public servant and more than glad to render any assistance possible at any time.

With a heart full of gratitude and a keen sense of appreciation,
I thank you.

M. W. Mosley.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Progress of Senate Battle Over Ratification of the Naval Treaty.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

OPponents of the London naval treaty, seemingly aware that there are enough of its supporters in the senate to bring about its ratification, spent last week mainly in devising and offering reservations to the pact. Senator Norris, as well as many others, was still deeply concerned about the secret documents which the President refused to give the senate, and Senator Borah visited the White House to tell Mr. Hoover it might be necessary to accept the Norris rider which says ratification is to be with the understanding that there are no secret agreements.

President Hoover was highly indignant over the implications in this Norris reservation. Since he had given the senate his word that no secret agreement existed, he felt that the rider was a reflection on his good faith. Borah said that if the reservation were rejected he could not answer for the fate of the pact. He did not think it likely that the treaty would be rejected, but he regarded it entirely possible that the supporters of the Norris reservation, if defeated, would be able to prolong the fight indefinitely, if not to bring about a postponement of final action until autumn.

THEN Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee came forward with a reservation under the terms of which Great Britain would be required to dismantle her naval bases off American shores.

McKellar offered yet another reservation providing for freedom of the seas, because, as had been admitted by Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, the delegates to the London conference failed to obey the instructions of congress to consider this question before or at the parley. Both these reservations were opposed by the administration senators.

Senator Watson of Indiana, majority leader, in the effort to speed up action on the treaty proposed a unanimous consent agreement that beginning Tuesday, July 22, debate be limited to ten minutes on each amendment and reservation and on the treaty itself, and that each senator be allowed to speak but once on each. He declared that if this plan were rejected closure would be revoked, and a petition for this was prepared.

The fact that this petition was signed by not only the 16 names required for its submission, but nearly the two-thirds majority required for its adoption made it certain that the treaty would be ratified with votes to spare.

MERELY for recreation and a much needed rest, President Hoover will start August 15 on a vacation trip that will last only about two weeks. This was announced at the White House, and it was added that the President would make no speeches or public appearances in the various cities he passes through. It is his intention to visit both the Glacier and Yellowstone National parks, but the itinerary has not yet been made out. It was considered likely he would travel by train to Chicago, take a boat from there to Duluth and make the rest of the trip by railway.

Representatives of the Interior department, at the direction of Secretary Wilbur, have selected a number of camping sites in the national parks for the use of the Presidential party.

Notwithstanding the President's evident intention to avoid political contests during his trip, the Republicans of Montana hope that his visit to that state will help the cause of Justice Albert J. Galen, who has been nominated for United States senator to oppose Senator Thomas J. Walsh. Galen is a moderate wet and Walsh has been an active dry. Both are Catholics.

Though, as was said, Mr. Hoover is declining invitations to make speeches, he has tentatively given assurance that he will be present and speak at the dedication of the Roosevelt arch, where the Roosevelt highway crosses the continental divide in Montana. The date of the dedication, which originally was to have taken place the past week, is to be fixed to suit the President's convenience.

SENATOR ARTHUR CAPPER of Kansas wants the farm board to buy 100,000,000 bushels of wheat, in addition to that already purchased, and he put his plan before President Hoover. The Chief Executive, however, had just had a talk with Secretary of Agriculture Hyde who had returned from a trip to the wheat belt and who was understood to be opposed to such a scheme as Capper proposed. So the President declined to approve the plan, though he told the Kansan he was anxious to do anything desirable to relieve the plight of the wheat growers.

Chairman Legge of the farm board made public his correspondence with Governor Reed of Kansas who criticized the board's plan for reduction of wheat acreage and criticized its activities, or inactivities. In his letter Mr. Legge makes it plain that the grain stabilization activities of the board have undergone no appreciable change in policy in spite of the governor's charges of its having broken the market and caused a record-breaking slump in wheat.

SENATOR Nye of North Dakota, chairman of the special senate committee to investigate campaign expenditures, was in Chicago last week holding hearings all by himself on the expenditures in behalf of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican nominee for senator. Nye and Mrs. McCormick haggled a lot concerning the factions and organizations that supported her against Senator Deneen, and various witnesses testified to their contributions to her campaign fund. But it was not apparent that anything was brought out discreditable to Mrs. McCormick.

knowledge of expenditures of well over $700,000 more than I have included in my accounting. He should be subpoenaed if he has any knowledge of that sort."

FRANK J. DORGER, majority stockholder in the closed Cosmopolitan Bank and Trust company of Cincinnati, filed a petition in bankruptcy. Immediately thereafter O. C. Gray, state banking superintendent, stated that a shortage of $2,000,217 existed in the bank. The institution closed several weeks ago as the alleged result of the $1,000,000 check kiting operations of A. W. Shafer. Examiners also found Dorger's bank accepted $923,000 in fake securities from Shafer.

Common Pleas Judge Stanley Strubel said he would consider a contempt of court charge against Dorger and his daughter, Martha, who also filed bankruptcy proceedings, because the state had been granted a temporary injunction restraining the Dorgers from disposing of their personal assets.

A CTIVITIES of Communists in the United States are being investigated by a congressional committee, which was busy last week in New York city. Most important of the witnesses heard was Charles G. Wood, commissioner of conciliation of the Department of Labor. He said the Communists at work among the labor groups were chronic trouble makers, and described strikes in Passaic, New Bedford and Gastonia, N. C., each of which was either started or influenced by the Reds. He declared the strikes, like other activities of the Communists, were but a means of attacking the government of the United States.

FRANCE and Italy last week reached a "gentlemen's agreement" to take a naval building holiday for six months, and there was great relief in European diplomatic circles. The agreement means little from a naval standpoint, for neither nation intended to lay down any more vessels this year, but it was of immense importance psychologically. The statesmen of both countries now hope to settle most of their problems before the six months are up.

GREAT BRITAIN, still struggling to settle the row in India, has a new trouble on her hands. This is in Egypt, where the Wafd or nationalist party, supporting Nahas Pasha, former premier against King Fuad, is stirring up revolt. The first outbreak was in Alexandria, where a fanatical mob of Wafdists staged a great riot, attacking Europeans and looting shops. Before native troops and police had regained control of the situation 13 civilians, all Egyptians, had been killed, and at least 60 were wounded by gunshot. About 100 others, including 50 police, were injured in other ways. The British battleships Queen Elizabeth and Ramillies were hurried to Alexandria.

Latest developments in the Indian affair indicated that Mahatma Gandhi, head of the passive resistance revolt, would be released from prison and invited to participate in the London round table conference that is to open October 20. As a preliminary, Gandhi is expected to call off the civil disobedience campaign.

It is also reported in London that though Prime Minister MacDonald and his colleagues are eager to shelve the Simon report they may be forced to face it at the round table because of the determination of certain Indian delegations to have the report accepted as a basis of discussion.

MAKING use of dictatorial power conferred on him by President von Hindenburg under the German constitution, Chancellor Bruening put into effect the "emergency finance law" by decree. The reichstag had refused to approve the measure and the government lost patience. The law, which is expected to end the government's deficit, includes an increase in income tax, enforcement of a tax on bachelors and spinsters, a head tax and a special tax on food and liquor served in inns and restaurants.

The reichstag has the right to repeal the law, but the chancellor threatens to dissolve the parliament if a repeal is sought.

GERMANY'S reply to the memorandum of French Foreign Minister Briand proposing a European federation indicates a general acceptance of the plan, though it has almost as many reservations as the Italian reply. The Germans, like the Italians and some others, insist that Russia and Turkey be included in the union, and they make it clear the federation should in no way be directed against the United States. They subtly suggest a revision of the war treaties, but say little of disarmament. The German reply agrees heartily with Briand on the necessity of subordinating economic to political aspects—a view which may prove to be the fatal weakness of the whole scheme.

A "purely tentative" reply from Great Britain was not so encouraging, expressing the opinion that the proposed union is "unnecessary and possibly a dangerous institution." It suggested that the plan be placed on the agenda of the next assembly of the League of Nations.

Greece, Austria and Poland also have accepted the Briand plan, and Russia seems to be fishing for an invitation.

AS USUAL, you can make your own choice as to which faction in China is winning the civil war. Just now things look none too cheerful for the Nationalist government. Dispatches from Peiping say fifteen leaders of the Kuomintang signed a manifesto formally ending the long dispute between the right and left wings of that party, and calling a national conference within a month for the purpose of establishing a government "to succeed the false government which Gen. Chiang Kai-shek usurped." It is predicted Gen. Yen Hsi-shan will be head of that new government.

DEATHS of the week included those of Brig. Gen. H. C. Smithey, U. S. A.; Rear Admiral A. H. Robertsop, U. S. N.; Henry Sydney Harrison, novelist; Judge Jesse Holdom, dean of the Chicago bench; James M. Lynch, veteran leader of the International Typographical union, and Leopold von Auer, eminent violinist.

GILES CLUB PICNIC

The Home Demonstration Club of Giles had a most enjoyable meeting on July 31st. It has long been our custom to celebrate our fifth Thursdays in some way. This time it was a picnic at the Rowe ranch, in the home of Mr. W. D. Shelton, who was one of our members when the Club was first organized.

We arrived at our destination at 10:30, and the morning was spent in conversation and ball playing. A very delicious picnic lunch was served at the noon hour. After lunch the chief form of entertainment was swimming. Later a burlesque program was given, which was much enjoyed.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Shelton and son, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Robinson, Mr. Lloyd Mereman and son, Mrs. A. Lemmon, Mrs. J. D. McCant, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Watt, Mr. E. M. Glass, Mrs. A. E. TO THE PEOPLE OF DONLEY COUNTY

I wish to thank those who voted for me in the race for Tax collector, and hold no enmity against those who did not, as I did most of you that if you did not prefer to vote for one of my opponents that I would appreciate your vote. Having preferred to vote for one of my opponents, you have nothing on me, as I voted for my preference—and here have I a kick coming?

I got quite a kick out of making the race; did me good to get it for a while. I surely enjoyed sitting with you while making the race, and surely do thank all of you for the courtesies extended to me. I now cordially invite all of you to repay that visit.

Thanks,

IN MEMORIAM

About 11 o'clock Sunday night, July 20, 1930, Mrs. Melinda Elizabeth Henderson of Gainesville, Texas, passed away. She leaves behind to mourn her loss seven children, two boys and five girls, several grandchildren, and five brothers, all present at the funeral except two daughters and one brother. She also leaves a host of friends. She was a member of the Methodist church, and lived a true, devoted Christian life. She was 69 years, 5 months and 16 days old.

A mother, grandmother and sister, dear to us all,
Has gone from this world and answered God's call,
Her spirit has flown to a better world, I know,
We can not bring her back, but where she is we can go.

She from this troublesome old world has gone,
But her influence for good will still live on,
And if we only live right here, then some sweet day
We will go where she is, there forevermore to stay.

Her brother,
E. P. Ford.

The Revival closed last Sunday night. While it was not what we expected, yet there were several who prayed through to victory, and we believe they will be found faithful. Much good was accomplished, the Church revived, and harmony prevailed among all the Christians of the town, for which we give God the glory.

SIX-CYLINDER SMOOTHNESS AT LOW COST

Playgrounds for a President

By FLORENCE L. ROBERTS
(Copyright.)

IF JERRY ROBERTS had overheard Mrs. Parks telling one of her neighbors that all a real estate agent had to do was "to flatter around in his auto," he would have laughed. Especially after his experience with her.

His father, senior member of their real estate firm, had counseled him to learn the lesson of patience and never to lose his temper, and Jerry had heeded the advice. But when Mrs. Parks had spoiled several opportunities to sell the little house next door to her own, he went on the warpath.

"If she thinks that we have got to take her low figure," he fumed, "she's got another think coming. Why, when we rented it, we received seventy-five a month and that's 10 per cent on $10,000!"

"I know, that's why she wants it. It's a good buy," answered Mr. Roberts.

"Dad, I'll never quit till I sell that house," he said determinedly, "or else I'll go out of the business."

"It is annoying," agreed the father, "but we must keep cool. I'm glad you didn't quarrel with her."

"I think I would have shown my resentment this last time, if it hadn't been for Betty. She must have a hard time living with an aunt like that."

"Hello, Jerry," called a voice as he stepped out.

"Hello, Betty. . . . Talking of angels," laughed Jerry as they walked along.

"Meaning me?" asked the girl, mischievously.

"Yes. . . . Say, Betty, does your aunt hate me or what?"

"No," Betty laughed merrily. "But she wants that house."

"Why doesn't she buy it then?"

"She says she won't pay over seven thousand."

"But it's worth the eighty-five hundred we're asking, and I could sell it for that, if she would keep out of it. . . . I've a good notion to sell it to a rag picker," Jerry added, laughing.

One day, while in conference with his father, he became conscious of a familiar sound. He laughed aloud.

"Listen, Dad, do you hear anything?"

"Bells?"

"Right; I've got a bright idea. . . . Be back in an hour," making a dash for the door.

He looked up and down the street, then broke into a run.

"Say, Bo," he called at the corner, "for ten bucks will you drive me over to Penn Place?"

"Sure," grinned the man on the dilapidated peddler's cart.

"Great," exclaimed Jerry half turning on the seat to watch the cowbells jangling from the rope suspended across the middle of the cart.

"Here we are," pronounced Jerry, pointing to a stucco house. "Neat, what?"

The man merely lifted his sagging shoulder.

"Look interested!" admonished Jerry, talking and gesticulating as he squirmed on the seat to make the bells jangle noisily, all the while keeping an eye on the house next door.

"Come on in," he told his side partner when he saw Mrs. Parks at her window.

When they emerged and drove off, Mrs. Parks was still looking.

In the next block Jerry paid the man, gave him his card and walked back to the office.

"What have you been up to?" asked Mr. Roberts when Jerry appeared.

"Mrs. Parks is frantic. Calling for you."

Jerry related what he had done.

"Of course the old codger has no intention of buying, but let her think otherwise," he added.

"That's tricky. . . . Every thing's fair in love and war; this is war. . . . Gee whizz! Here she comes now! . . . Leave her to me, Dad," he said, stepping out into the outer office.

"Jerry Roberts! What made you bring that man to look at the house?"

"To sell it, of course," answered a smiling Jerry.

"Is he interested?" incredulously.

"Seems to be," Jerry kidded.

"What is your rock bottom price?" she asked finally.

"Eighty-five hundred."

"Ridiculous!"

"Not at all. This is no Jerry built house, Mrs. Parks, and you know it. For a quick deal and to escape those merry bells," he reminded her, "will you make it eighty-two-fifty?"

"Never!"

"Eight thousand? . . . That's giving it away."

"No!"

"All right, then, I'm going. . . ."

Mrs. Parks turned to follow Jerry's astonished gaze as a man came into the room.

"Good grief!" she ejaculated. "Give me a pen quick!"

Merrily Jerry unfolded a bit of paper which the caller had handed him.

"Dear Jerry," he read, "While waiting for Aunt Mary your 'accomplice' came by. If his presence on the firing line doesn't give you the victory, you can fight your own battles in the future. Decorate him with honors. . . . B"

Jerry looked out the window in time to see Betty and her aunt drive off.

"Here Bo," he grinned, flourishing a bill. "Go blow yourself."

LAVA CLIFFS IN ROCKY MOUNTAIN PARK

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

IN SELECTING the site for his summer vacation, President Hoover has set an example for all of his fellow-Americans. Unlike some of his predecessors, who picked upon one particular locality and established a "Summer White House" there, he is devoting five or six weeks of this month and next to an automobile tour of a number of the national parks in the West, traveling by easy stages from one to another, after spending a short time in each one. Thus these vast areas of scenic wonder have this summer become "playgrounds for a President," although the Hoover tour serves, if anything, to emphasize the accessibility of these vacation lands to every American and the fact that they belong to every one of us just as much as they do to the President of the United States.

Although changes in the itinerary may be made during the course of the tour, at the time this article was written the original announcement of his plan called for visits to the following national parks: Glacier in northern Montana, Yellowstone in southwestern Wyoming, Grand Teton in south central Wyoming, Rocky Mountain in north central Colorado, Mesa Verde in southwestern Colorado, Sequoia and Yosemite in California and Grand Canyon in Arizona. In general, it was announced, he would start in the north and work south, visiting first Glacier and making his last stop at the Grand Canyon when he is Washington-bound.

Already famous as a "fishing President," Mr. Hoover, according to early announcements, would spend a week in Glacier, the longest halt proposed for the entire journey of more than 5,000 miles, because of the excellence of the fishing there. However, in most of the parks where he will pitch his camp temporarily, he will find convenient and well-stocked streams. In the Yellowstone, for instance, the National Park service, which has supervision over the 21 national parks scattered throughout the country, reports that "trout fishing in Yellowstone waters is unequalled." All three drainage basins in that region abound in trout which often are record-breakers as to size. Yellowstone lake is the home of large trout, which are freely taken, the park officials assert, while the Yellowstone river and its tributaries yield excellent catches to the skillful angler. There is good fishing also in the other rivers of that large park, as well as in many lesser lakes. The United States bureau of fisheries during recent years has been keeping the lakes and rivers of the national parks well stocked with fish, having established special hatcheries for this purpose and co-operating closely with the officials of the National Park service in providing this sport for all visitors to the various parks.

However, the opportunity for fishing which the President will enjoy during his tour of the national parks is only a minor item in the attractions which they will offer him. Of our national parks it has been said:

"The national parks, scattered mostly throughout the western part of the United States from the Canadian border to Mexico, with one on the Maine coast, another in Alaska and still another in Hawaii, offer the greatest playground given by any nation in the world to its people.

"These great areas set apart for the permanent use and enjoyment of the American people not only afford opportunity for healthful and pleasant vacations; they combine natural beauties and wonders which, taken as a whole, are unequalled in any other part of the world. They are outdoor laboratories, in which the geologist, the botanist, the student of wild life and of nature in any of its varied and ever varying forms may profitably spend weeks or months of intensive study.

"The national parks constitute a perpetual gallery in which the lover of rocks and trees and glacial, painted in all their natural colors by the Master Hand of the universe, finds never ending pleasure and surprise. They are a series of museums in which are spread before the eye of the beholder the geysers and the mud volcanoes of the Yellowstone, the giant trees of the Yosemite and Sequoia, the stupendously wonderful canyon of the Grand Canyon, described as 'the greatest example of erosion and the most sublime spectacle in the world'; the extraordinary waterfalls of the Yellowstone and Yosemite; the glaciers of Mount Rainier and Glacier; the beautifully blue Crater lake, lying in the vast hollow of an extinct volcano, with sides 1,000 feet high; the prehistoric cliff dwellings of the Mesa Verde; the fantastically eroded pinnacles of the Bryce canyon; the only active volcano in the United States proper, at Lassen; Mount McKinley, the highest mountain in North America, rising higher above the surrounding country than any other mountain in the world, and numerous other marvels of nature.

"There are more features of conspicuous grandeur in the national parks of the United States than are readily accessible in all the rest of the world together, while, considered individually, there are few, if any, celebrated scenic places within easy reach abroad which are not equaled or excelled in America. At the same time there are many features of American scenery which are not to be found anywhere else or, if found, are unequalled abroad in sublimity or beauty. There are more geysers of large size in our Yellowstone National park, for instance, it is pointed out by the National Park service, than in all the rest of the world together, the nearest approach being the geyser fields of Iceland and New Zealand. Again, it is conceded the world over that there is no valley in existence so strikingly beautiful as Yosemite, and nowhere can be found a canyon of such stupendous size and exquisite coloring as the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. In Sequoia National park grow trees so huge and old that none quite compare with them."

Although the visit of President Hoover to the national parks will, as previously stated, emphasize their accessibility and the fact that they belong to all of us, not even the publicity which his tour will give these playgrounds will be needed, probably, to draw to them a record number of visitors this year. For we Americans have been taking advantage in increasing numbers every year of Uncle Sam's invitation to "come out and play in YOUR playgrounds, the national parks." The growth in the number who have answered that annual call has been a steady one, with the exception of the year 1914 when the total amounted to only 225,193. But by 1921 it had passed the million mark and in 1927 it went over the two million mark. Last year's record was 2,680,507 and it is predicted (partly because of the Hoover tour) that this year the number will exceed 3,500,000. In addition to the more than two and a half million Americans who enjoyed the wonders of the 21 national parks last year, more than half a million visited the 33 national monuments—national reservations of historic or scientific interest, such as the petrified forest in Arizona, the Dinosaur in Utah and the Shaco cliff-dweller ruins in New Mexico—which also are administered by the National Park service.

With the annual influx of this horde of pleasure-seekers, it has been an increasing problem to take care of them in such a way as to assure their greatest enjoyment during their stay. But the National Park service has proved itself equal to the task. There are ample facilities for all visitors with all sizes of pocketbooks, so that rich and poor alike can enjoy themselves. Many of the hotels have the best equipment and every luxury that can be obtained in large cities. There are cheaper hotels, also, and lodges in which visitors may live very comfortably and quite economically. Then free public automobile camps have been established, some of them with housekeeping cabins and cafeteria service. Water, electric light and sanitary conveniences are furnished, as well as firewood and, in some places, open fireplaces for cooking. In a word, there are tourist accommodations in the parks to suit all tastes and purses. The aim of the National Park service is to fulfill the purpose for which these great open spaces have been created and to make them popular and comfortable and available for people of all degrees of income.

One feature of the parks which the National Park service is emphasizing, and to which it is giving more and more attention each year, is the educational opportunity which they offer. They are becoming great centers of nature study, and this is being encouraged in every way possible. Comprehensive plans for the development of general educational work in the national parks have been worked out carefully by a special committee of experts appointed for that purpose. In speaking of this, Director Horace M. Albright declared that perhaps the most marked progress of the year past in connection with the national parks has occurred in the development of the exceptional natural educational opportunities available. Nine years ago, he explained, the possibility of developing these areas from an educational and inspirational as well as recreational standpoint began to be dimly realized, and in a small, experimental way nature-guide and museum activities were undertaken in Yosemite National park. The movement, he added, met with popular acclaim and at the same time attracted the attention of scientists.

The fact that President Hoover is to tour the parks by automobiles recalls the fact that it is only within recent years that motor cars have been admitted to these national playgrounds, previous objection having been on the ground that it would interfere with the stage-coach routes in the reservations and further that it would frighten or kill many of the wild animals in the parks. The newest transportation problem in the national parks is now presented by airplane. Up to the present time the National Park service has not permitted the construction of permanent landing fields within park areas, upon the ground that aviation is still in its experimental stage and that until more safeguards could be assured to the public in this mode of travel, it could not be sanctioned.

But Mr. Albright makes the prediction that the airplane probably in the near future will become an accepted means of transportation to various parks, if not within them. This question is being studied not only by government officials but also by others interested in the subject of the extension of air travel in this country.

Clarence Darrow, the lawyer, related at a dinner in Chicago the story of a man whose double life had been exposed.

"The man claimed," said Darrow, "that nowadays we are all entitled to double lives. He pointed to this playwright and that novelist who advocate free love. But he was put out of the church anyhow. His claim didn't go over."

"As one of the church deacons remarked to me afterward, his claim had about as much sense to it as the bigamist's: 'What is home without another?'"

The Mazaroff Mystery

THE STORY

Mervyn Holt is engaged by a man calling himself Mazaroff as a traveling companion. After a short tour they put up at the Woodcock inn on Marrasdale moor. They meet, casually, Mrs. Elphinstone and Sheila Merchison. Mazaroff tells Holt they are his wife and daughter and that his real name is Merchison. That night Mazaroff fails to return to the inn and his disappearance is unexplained. Holt meets Sheila and tells her of Mazaroff's disappearance. Holt is questioned by Police Sergeant Manners and a reporter, Bowman. Mazaroff's murdered body is found. Crole, Mazaroff's lawyer, and Maythorne, private detective, arrive. Valuable diamonds that Mazaroff usually carried are missing. A gun, stolen from Musgrave, is found at the scene of the murder. Evidence at the inquest proves Mazaroff was Merchison. His will leaves all to Holt. Herman Kloop, close friend of Mazaroff, is in London. From him it is learned that Mazaroff possessed two remarkable diamonds.

"Well, about a month or five weeks ago, I was called to the telephone one afternoon, and found Sir Samuel speaking to me. He wanted me to go round to Park lane there and then, to look at and estimate the value of a diamond that had been offered to him. I found Sir Samuel and Lady Loeke in their library; they had with them a stranger whose appearance, as I recollect it, corresponds with the description of Mazaroff given in the newspapers—I particularly remember the cast in the left eye. He was not introduced to me by name. It appeared that the stranger was one who was interested in diamonds in a large way, had heard of Sir Samuel and his wife as possible buyers, and was willing to sell them something of very special value; to wit, a remarkable pair of blue diamonds, of which he had one in his pocket. It was this that I was asked to see. He told me that it was one of a pair—the other was equally fine. He further said that he had been in the diamond trade for some years, in South Africa, had now retired, and this would be his last deal. What the Loeokes wanted to get at was—what were the two diamonds worth? The would-be vendor and myself had a good deal of talk about the matter. He was very fair and reasonable, and he and I eventually came to a decision as to a proper price for the pair."

"run of things in that way. The room into which we were ushered after we had sent in our cards looked as if some very high-class upholsterer had been given carte blanche to wreak his own will and fancy on it. A little, apple-cheeked, rotund man, who wore mutton-chop whiskers and a ready smile came bustling in, a big half-smoked cigar in one pudgy hand. "I know what you chaps have come for!" he exclaimed, beaming from one to the other of us. "This Mazaroff affair!—I've read it all in the papers, and your names, too, same as what I see on your cards—just so. Now then, what's it all about, gentlemen? It's a queer business, I think—what?" "You're aware of it, then, Sir Samuel?" suggested Crole. "Well up in things as far as they've gone?" "Who isn't?" exclaimed Sir Samuel. "Been plenty in the papers, anyway. Of course he and her ladyship's read all we could set our eyes to. It was only this morning she says to me, 'Sam' she says, 'is sure as fate somebody'll be coming to us about this here affair!' And—there you are! But I'll tell you what—come this way, gentlemen, and then her ladyship can hear all you've got to say."

Armintrade, he said, had had the first blue diamond in his possession for some months and might have found an advantageous customer for the pair."

"Unless!" interrupted Lady Loeke. "There was an 'unless' about it." show me and her ladyship the pair. If then we decided to buy, we were to have the pair at the price I've just mentioned to you. And of course, that's where it ended. We've never seen the diamonds since."

Lessening Aversion to Formal Music Lessons

Children's aversion to music lessons, entailing long hours of practice for many months, can be overcome by making them familiar at an early age with musical toys, according to Frank H. Richardson, M. D., in Woman's Home Companion. "Many families have found the approach to a real appreciation and love of music is made easier by having the simpler musical instruments around where they can be picked up and played casually even before formal lessons have begun," says Doctor Richardson. "Such simple things as the lute, flageolet and the humble ukulele; the xylophone or bells will often tempt not only the child but also the guest in the home. "Improved ensembles prove delightful ways of teaching children First Fireplaces Were Wooden Many of the first fireplaces were built of wood, and plastered over the inside with a sort of mud mortar. These early crude fireplaces were huge things, and unquestionably it is from them we got our story of Santa Claus and the chimney. Certainly he would have had no difficulty coming down those early flues. In fact, they were provided with steps on the inside in order that the man of the house could patch the cracks in the plaster with new mud.—Successful Farming.

good-fellowship and freeing them from the embarrassment so overpowering in children whose only contact with strangers has been formal. "Many a child who would have been repelled at first by the technical difficulties of the violin or piano, has come happily to these more difficult musical instruments by way of their humbler and more easily mastered brothers in the musical family. "Buried With His Five Wives In a country town not more than ten miles from Springfield, Ill., is a cemetery near the roadside whose ancient stones, moss-covered and weather-beaten, attract the passerby who may be interested in curious epitaphs. In the center of one lot is a large monument on which is inscribed: "Here lies John Jones, aged ninety-two. At rest." On the side of the monument are five small stones exactly alike, each bearing the name of a woman and date of death and each having this inscription: "Beloved wife of John Jones."—Springfield Republican. FISHERY PIRATE LEADS LIFE OF PERIL, THRILLS

Fog and Rain His Chief Aid; Harassed by Government Boats.

Halifax.—Black, starless nights, thick fog and rain are the fishery pirate's chief friends. Two or three miles off the coast are the forbidden breeding grounds, and here, under cover of night, a trawler, with navigation lights suspiciously covered, moves stealthily. The murmur of voices and an occasional rattle are the only sounds save for the steady hiss of the rain. But on the slippery iron deck figures in dripping oilskins heave and strain at the well-laden nets. Suddenly, around the headland appear the red and green navigation lights of another ship. Her course will bring her within a cable's length of the pirate trawler. Crew Dives Below. An order is passed to the figures toiling at the ropes and they dive below, leaving only the skipper and the man at the wheel. Not a word is spoken as the stranger approaches until without warning, a beam of white light stabs through the darkness, waves a moment, sweeps around and comes to rest on the trawler. In a moment all is confusion. The telegraph rings "full ahead" figures scramble to the gunwale and cut and hack at the impeding nets in a frantic effort to get away from their enemy, the fishery protection gunboat. On the narrow foc'sle of the gunboat a small gun swings around; there is a flash and a sharp bark, and a shell whistles over the trawler's bows. This is a signal to "heave to," and the skipper rings his engines to "stop." A little dinghy puts off from the gunboat, while on her bridge an officer scans the trawler through night-glasses. Identity Discovered. He watches as the tiny boat is pulled across. Arrived alongside, two blue-jackets reach up to lift the canvas over the identification marks proclaiming who and what she is. But the poncher has no intention of yielding so easily. If she can capsize the little boat she will make off while the gunboat wastes time rescuing her crew. Half a dozen of the fishermen leap over the gunwale and attempt to beat off and capsize the raiders. "Eventual," the canvas is wrenched off in the struggle and the poncher stands confessed. Fries to Swim Ashore to See Dad; Tar Drown! Panama City.—Roy Keiso, twenty-two, traveled 2,000 miles from Little Rock, Ark., to visit his father, William M. Keiso, wealthy coffee planter at David, Panama. He shipped aboard the steamer Dix from New Orleans as a sailor, saying he was tired of working in the oil fields and wanted to visit his father in the tropics. When he arrived he informed dock officials he wanted to get ashore to visit his father, but quarantine officials did not believe him and refused. While the ship was crossing Gatun lake, young Keiso leaped overboard, intending to swim ashore, but was drowned. Electrical Shock Gives Student Eyesight Again Austin, Texas.—B. Guess, Jr., lost the sight of an eye six years ago when a dynamite cap exploded. Graduating from high school he entered the University of Texas as an electrical engineering student. In the electrical laboratory he sustained an accidental shock. The eye that has been useless for six years was restored. His vision in the eye is now practically as strong as ever. Falls With Dynamite Williams, Ind.—Muri Smith suffered only cuts and bruises when she fell from a rock ledge at a quarry west of Williams and rolled 40 feet with a three gallon bucket filled with dynamite. Sticks of dynamite were scattered in all directions as Smith rolled, but none exploded.

Indoor Weather Control. It isn't only the heat, but the humidity and the air motion that affect the destiny of whole races. Weather to primitive man was the most important factor in life. In the tropics and the subpolar regions it still remains master of the situation. Civilized man, however, from the time of the domestication of fire, has been progressing slowly in the art of making his own weather indoors. It is now possible to control heat, relative humidity and rate of air motion in any space between four walls, a ceiling and a floor. From factories and public buildings the art of manufacturing weather and controlling it is spreading into homes and apartments. The next few years will see radical progress.

The State of Texas,
To the Sheriff or Any Constable of Donley County, Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to summon Ellen Andreas, and the heirs and legal representatives of the said Ellen Andreas, whose names and addresses are unknown, by making publication of this citation once in each week for four consecutive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in any newspaper published in the 100th Judicial District; to appear at the next regular term of the District Court of Donley county, Texas, to be held at the court house thereof, in Clarendon, on the 2nd Monday in October, A. D. 1930, the same being the 13th day of October, A. D. 1930, then and there to answer first amended original petition filed in said court on the 11th day of July, A. D. 1930, in a suit numbered on the docket of said court No. 1704, wherein Panhandle Construction Company is plaintiff, and Ellen Andreas and the heirs and legal representatives of the said Ellen Andreas, whose names and addresses are unknown; J. J. Alexander, doing business as the Clarendon Abstract Company, a resident of Donley county, Texas, individually and as guardian of the estate of Ellen Andreas; and Wesley Knorpp, are defendants. The nature of plaintiff's demand being as follows:

1 That the plaintiff is a corporation duly existing under the laws of the State of Texas with its principal place of business in Lubbock, Lubbock county, Texas, where its president, John Dalrymple, resides, and complains of Ellen Andreas and the heirs and legal representatives of the said Ellen Andreas, whose names and addresses are unknown, of J. J. Alexander, doing business as the Clarendon Abstract Company, a resident of Donley county, Texas, individually and as guardian of the estate of the said Ellen Andreas, and Wesley Knorpp, a resident of the State of California

2 That the City of Clarendon, in Donley county, Texas, is a municipal corporation duly organized under the laws of this State, which had adopted the laws and enabling acts provided by this State with respect to street improvements, and especially toward paving, and enacted ordinances putting the same into effect, and that the general paving laws and enabling ordinances were in full force and effect within said city at all the times afterward mentioned

3 That the said Ellen Andreas was the owner, and may still be the owner of Lot 23, in Block 21, in the said incorporated town of Clarendon, Donley county, Texas, which was by Guardian's deed transferred to Wesley Knorpp, on June 6, 1927, and by the said Knorpp to W. C. Alexander on the said June 6, 1927, and by W. C. Alexander to J. J. Alexander by deed dated August 15, 1929; that all said deeds are in possession of some of the defendants, and notice is given to produce them; that in the conveyance from Knorpp to Alexander, he reserved a lien for a note of $1,000.00 of that date, payable to himself, due June 26, 1929, with interest from date at 8 per cent, and providing for attorney's fees.

4 That the governing body of the said City of Clarendon had prior to the 4th day of February, 1927, ordered and determined that Sully Street within said city, and especially that part abutting Lot 23, in Block 21, should be graded, paved and drained, and improved within the meaning of the general paving laws of the State of Texas, and therefore had given notice of the time and terms and manner as specified in the enabling acts and ordinances to put the general paving law into effect in said city; that on the 4th day of February, 1927, it would hear evidence to determine if the cost of the improvement chargeable under such paving laws and ordinances to Lot 23 above to the extent of $188.51 would enhance the value of said lot to such amount, which hearing was duly held at the time and place specified, and therein it was determined that the improvement chargeable against such property would enhance its value to at least said amount, on evidence duly presented, and that it was provided in such notice that it was so determined that it would so enhance the value that the said city of Clarendon would contract with party or parties to so improve the street abutting such property according to the plans and specifications then on file and adopted, and to defray the cost thereof chargeable against the owner of the property and the lien on the property, it would issue an assignable certificate to the contractor when the work was so completed to evidence the cost price, which should be a personal debt of the owner or owners and a paramount lien upon said property, and the cost thereof should be payable as follows: One-eighth on ten days after completion and acceptance by the city, and one-eighth annually each of seven years from the date of completion and acceptance, with interest thereon at the rate of 8 per cent per annum, payable annually from the date of the acceptance and provided therein that default in the payment of instalment or interest when due should, at the option of the holder of such certificate mature the whole thereof, and a reasonable attorney's fees should be added thereto, all of which should be paramount lien on the land, and a debt of the owner; and that the certificate should recite all such matters, and be prima facie evidence thereof, and of the regularity of all proceedings; and that after such hearing the governing body thereof did contract with this plaintiff to make such improvement according to such plans and specifications at and for the price of $188.51, chargeable against the owner of the above property and the first lien against the same, payable in the manner, form and under the conditions as before stated.

5 That thereafter this plaintiff did complete such improvement according to the plans and specifications and the terms of the contract, and that such was accepted by the city on the 22nd day of April, 1928, and an assignable certificate issued to it containing all the terms and stipulations proposed to be made therein, and that thereby the same became and was the first lien upon said property, and a personal charge against the owner thereof

6 That ten days after the issuance of said certificate, there matured an instalment thereof in the sum of $23.59 and on the 22nd day of April, 1928, a further sum of $23.59, and that by deed of June 8, 1927, the said Crawford and wife conveyed the two lots mentioned to John W. Ryan and George A. Ryan, by instrument recorded in Vol. 55 page 376, of the deed records of said county, reserving therein the vendor's lien for one note of $1,598.00 due twelve months at 10 per cent interest from date providing for 10 per cent attorney's fees, and the assumption by the grantee of a paying lien on such property in favor of the Panhandle Construction Company, this plaintiff.

7 That the said Crawford, as appears by transfer recorded in Vol. 54, page 106, deed records of said county, transferred such $1,598.00 note to Wesley Knorpp, who appears to hold all interest in the same, together with the vendor's lien pertaining to such the other upon Lot 6, the said John W. Ryan and Roberta Ryan gave and granted a lien to the plaintiff for the sums of money above mentioned, reciting substantially all the matters mentioned above as to be contained and contained in the certificate, which instruments were duly acknowledged by the said Ryan and wife in the manner and form prescribed by the Constitution and laws of this State for the acknowledgment of husband and wife.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION

7 That notwithstanding an installment matured on each certificate on the 15th day of November, 1926, and one on each November 3rd thereafter, to gether with interest at 8 percent on the principal of each certificate, and on each November 3rd thereafter, there has been no interest or principal paid on either certificate or debt, and that by reason of the long non payment of such past due principal and interest, the plaintiff has elected to declare both certificates matured and due as to principal and interest in entirety, and has placed same with an attorney for collection, and that a reasonable fee therefor is the sum of $250.00, which under the terms of the contract and certificates and agreements was and is chargeable as a lien against the property, and that a reasonable apportionment of such fee is one third thereof against the west half of Lot 5 and two-thirds thereof against the said Lot 6; that there is due as a debt by reason thereof against the said W. J. of Lot 5 $142.58 principal, $31.22 interest and the sum of $83.33 attorney's fees, for which demand has been made against the defendants for payment, and the plaintiff has been refused; and there is due on the certificate of indebtedness against Lot 6 the sum of $285.16 principal, $62.44 interest, and the sum of $166.67 as attorney's fees, for which demand has been made against the defendants, and they have failed or refused to pay the same or any part thereof.

8 Plaintiff shows to the court that its indebtedness and lien is a personal charge and indebtedness to the said W. W. Crawford, John A. Ryan and Roberta Ryan, the said John A. Ryan and Roberta Ryan being now divorced, and the said George A. Ryan, and is superior to the claims of the other defendants, and is a first lien against the respective properties described.

Wherefore, plaintiff asks for service upon all the defendants; that upon hearing it have its judgment as aforesaid for its principal, interest and attorney's fees; that such judgment be decreed to be a lien upon the respective tracts of land as set out, and that such lien be foreclosed as superior to the rights of each and all of the defendants, and the land be sold to satisfy the particular judgment against the same, and the proceeds applied to the extinguishment of the plaintiff's judgment, and it have its execution over for any deficiency unsatisfied; and for such other and further relief, general and special, as it may be entitled to receive.

Herein fail not, and have you before said Court, at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and the seal of said Court, at office in Clarendon, Texas, this the 22nd day of July, A. D. 1926.

A. H. Baker,
Clerk District Court,
Donley County, Texas.
