Senate Passes Farm Bill With he Inflation Amendment-Roosevelt to Ask Author ty to Deal With War Debts-Herriot Enters Conversations.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

BACKED by the administration, by the big Democratic majority in the senate and apparently by the favor of a large part of the population of the country, the Thomas inflation amendment bill won an easy victory in the senate. With this most portentous addition the farm bill was passed and sent back to the louse for concurrence. The anti-inflationists, led by Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, made a desperate but hopeless fight, arguing that while "controlled" inflation, as promised by the amendment's sponsors, might temporarily restore a measure of prosperity to the nation, previous experience here and abroad showed that control could not be maintained and that the ultimate results would be disastrous. Reed, Tydings of Maryland, a Democrat, and others seemed terribly dismayed by the prospects for the future and their sincerity could not be doubted.

Senator Thomas of Oklahoma himself led the debate for the affirmative opening with the startling statement that the amendment, if it prevailed should transfer value to the extent of almost $200,000,000,000 from the creditor class to the debtor class. Of course the effect of this assertion is greatly weakened when one realizes that our people cannot really be divided into such classes. There is scarcely a creditor in the land who is not also a debtor, and vice versa. But this point and many another were ignored by the proponents of inflation. Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, for instance, on the second day of the debate, confined his efforts mainly to taunting the "Mellon-Mills-Reed" group for its alleged failures during the Hoover administration. The Wheeler-King silver coinage amendment was accepted by the senate. It would enable the President to fix the ratio between gold and silver and to provide for unlimited coinage of both metals at the ratio so

JUST what inflation, even if "controlled," will do to the nation and its business is a question on which economists and financiers are as far apart as the poles. For the present the prospect of its adoption and the abandonment of the gold standard have served to create almost a boom in certain lines of business, and the prices of commodities have begun to run benefit the ordinary citizen has not been shown to the satisfaction of most of us. An especially dangerous clause in the Thomas amendment is the one giving the President power to devalue the gold dollar to the extent of 50 per cent. Senator Borah, an inflationist, argued that this would be declared unconstitutional. It may be this power will never be exercised by the President, but if it is it will be followed by steps to abrogate the gold clause in bonds, mortgages and other contracts. Provision for such action is made in the pending Goldsborough bill which provides that existing contracts shall be satisfied by payment of their face amount in legal tender, that after its enactment, gold clause contracts cannot be made legally and that any profit made from exchanging gold for legal tender would be subject to a 100 per cent tax. Some experts are of the opinion that the inflation bill may never be used; that it is "a mere bluff intended to have the very effect it is now havingarresting and reversing the downward course of prices," and giving the President a better position in the economic conversations with foreign statesmen. as did the abandonment of the gold standard, which also was inflationary.

WAR debts and reduction of arm aments came to the fore in the White House conversations as Prime Minister MacDonald concluded his part of the parleys and prepared to depart for home, and former Premier Edouard Herriot of France began his sessions with the President. These three gentlemen met together, and after an informal dinner, Mr. Roosevelt took up the disarmament question with them, his evident purpose being to bring France into line at the Geneva conference. French demands for guarantees of security against attack. which have blocked all agreement hitherto, were discussed by the President, and it was said he indicated that he was "searching sincerely for means of associating the United States" with international efforts to check aggressor nations. Such association might take the form of consultation with signatories of the Kellogg peace pact in the event of its violation. And in plan is causing a lot of excited discussion in various European coun tries. Great Britain and Germany might gladly agree to this, but France still asserts the sanctity of treaties must be respected, and in this she is of course supported by all the nations of the little entente, and by Poland. In Czechoslovakia especially sentiment was aroused, and Foreign Minister Edouard Benes told the parliament in Prague that whoever desires to change the boundaries of that country must bring an army along with him. He criticized the Mussolini plan as a "great backward step," and added: "History shows that surrender of territory always is connected with the bloodiest wars."

USSULINI'S four-power peac

SOVIET Russia was on the verge of a quarrel with Japan over the equipment of the Chinese Eastern railway, and in that connection it was interesting to note that a new alignment was bringing Russia and France together, the former drifting away from Germany and the latter beginning to take sides against Japan. Already the French and Russians have arranged for exchange of military information and military instructors. Before long the situation on the European continent may be pan-Germanism against pan-Slavism, with France on the side of the latter and Italy with the former.

CONTINUED Chinese resistance near Kupeikow pass on the road to Pelping so enraged the Japanese military command that it announced the early occupation of all strategic points in the North China area. With this in view, the Japanese launched a general attack south of the Great Wall designed to open the way to the old Chinese capital. As usual, Japan finds a ready excuse for offensive movements already planned,

THE Nazi campaign against the Jews in Germany continues with vigor. Dr. Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, speaking at Cologne, "We consider the Jews our enemies, but hitherto have exercised a clemency which the Jews do not deserve. If they believe that this clemency is weakness we will quickly teach them differently."

Goebbels proclaimed May 1 as the "festal day of national labor," to the disgust of the Communists, who have long considered that day sacred to their cause.

Students of Kiel university asked the rector to compel 28 Jewish professors to resign.

The anti-Jewish movement also was manifested in Rumania, where a tenday boycott of all Jewish shops in the province of Bukovina was ordered by a Fascist organization,

FORMER Gov. Nellie Tayloe Ross of Wyoming finally has been placed in a federal position. The President appointed her director of the mint. National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart

we know as our currency has been undergoing a Epochal Change change in the last in Currency few weeks that is epochal, and it seems entirely likely that history will so record it. America's departure from the "gold standard" that was ordered by President Roosevelt on April 21 undoubtedly will stand as one of the milestones of this age, and it is a thing constituting a new experience to all excepting a few of the nation's millions. They, and they alone, can tell of their own knowledge what happened in the "greenback days" after the Civil war.

In addition to the action of the President in ordering the country's currency off of its basis of gold, other and equally important phases of the currency changes have been accomplished in the time which we may later recall as the crisis of 1933. We have seen the most extraordinary power ever accorded to a President of the United States delegated by congress to Mr. Roosevelt so that he can exercise the unlimited powers of a dictator over our currency within a specified range. He said he considered those powers essential, and congress gave them to him without question.

Thus in the space of a few short weeks, our nation has seen its currency structure lifted bodily from the foundation upon which it has rested more than half a century and rebuilt into a fabric of flexibility equaled only by the possible changes in the coat of the chameleon. Within the range of the limits fixed, the President has been empowered actually to prescribe the value of the money that you and I use.

But let us recount the events and understand what has happened, and see what they portend, if that be possible, through a knowledge of the fac tors embraced. Since the banking holiday of March, the money structure of the country has been imperiled; the situation has been watched by all nations, many of whom have been nervous, and frequent signs have appeared that the enormous gold stock in the United States was not fegarded throughout the world as able to meet the demands should all foreigners having money in this country decide to withdraw it. The President, the treasury and the Federal Reserve board read those signs as dangerous. They saw, too, the tendency of American odity and security values to slide further and further down. A choice had to be made. The President made it. By one simple order, the President laid an embargo on exports of gold. In effect, he said the United States government will no longer permit anybody to pay their bills abroad in gold, because that is what happens when no gold exports are allowed. That simple order had a broader effect. The result of it was that the dollar in American money, measured as it must be alongside of foreign currencles, was worth less than when those abroad entitled to receive funds were able to get the gold if they wanted it. One may consider that the effect is psychological or however you may describe it, yet the end is the same. The law of supply and demand encompasses the currency like it does every other material thing.

. . . So the President decided to allow the dollar to shift for itself in the foreign exchange field. Dollar Down, In reaching that con-Prices Up clusion, he elected to provide protection against further declines, temporarily at least, in the prices of farm products, of commodities such as iron and the natural mineral resources and of corporation stocks and bonds. Those prices automatically increased as the value of the dollar, measured in exchange of other currencies, declined.

To state it in another fashion, when the President took the currency off the gold standard, immediately there was the possibility of a limitless amount of currency being issued. If the currency were on the gold standard, each paper dollar was supported by a reserve of 40 per cent in gold and the amount of currency that could be issued, therefore, never could be more than two and a half times the amount of gold held in the Treasury and Federal Reserve banks. That amount is in excess of $3,000,000,000. But the fact that there is a topmost limit beyond which currency could not be issued, because there is not gold to support it, is held by the sound money advocates to establish a unit of value of currency which is not susceptible of fluctuation. That is the reason they urge retention of the gold standard. Departure from the gold standard then was a matter of grave concern to them, for they believe the dollars they own will be worth less, measured in the commodities the dollars will buy and by the value at which they will be taken in trading with foreign countries.

On the other hand, there were many who were overloyed when the President withdrew support for the dollar, which is the tenchnical way of saying that gold would not be paid out in set-tlement of foreign bills owed by Amer-icans. It is the contention of this

Washington.-The structure which | school of thought that the dollar has fluctuated and that the commodities constitute the thing of fixed units of value. Consequently, when Mr. Roosevelt's action caused an increase in commodity prices, this group argued the dollar was and had been too "dear" and ought to be made cheaper. Similarly, they asserted there had been a shortage of currency throughout the depression and that there could never be sufficient currency if the gold basis were continued. This was so, they claimed, because there was not enough gold in the world to permit retention of a gold backing for each dollar of currency.

> The strength of those favoring a greater amount of currency was increasing numerically Free Coinage through the last of Silver several years. Consequently, there were more of them in congress. This is attested by a vote which the senate took on an amendment to permit free and unlimited coinage of silver. The amendment was defeated, it is true, but the vote showed 33 senators in favor of it compared with 47 nays. That is the largest vote polled on the question in more than 30 years,

In the meantime; the President was getting ready for conferences with the heads of eleven foreign governments on economic and financial questions. Most of those nations were using exactly the same basis of currency as ours became after support for the dollar was withdrawn. He entered those conferences then on even terms, insofar as currency was concerned.

But the departure from the gold standard caused a need for new legislation. Hence, the President analyzed what was needed and asked congress. to give him the authority to employ whatever was needed. He appeased the demands of the inflationists by telling them to put into the legislation authority for him to use any or all of their several schemes in his discretion. There is nothing mandatory about them. He can use the powers or not as he chooses, or as the pressure of public opinion makes a given course of action seem advisable.

Under the terms of the legislation, negotiations are permitted between the Treasury and the Federal Reserve board and the Federal Reserve banks whereby the Reserve banks would buy $3,000,000,000 worth of government onds from private owners The holders would be given cash by the reserve institutions in place of their securities. Thus, banks holding government bonds would be given cash instead of interest-bearing bonds, and the theory is that since the cash would not bring them a return, they would seek to make loans that would provide interest. If it works that way, it means that the banks would seek to encourage use of money in business enterprises. A condition known as an "easy money market" would obtain. . . .

that the Federal Reserve Banks are quasi-private As Greenbacks banks. It is possi-Were Issued ble for them to re-fuse to buy the government bonds in the manner suggested, so the law provides that the

It is to be remembered, however,

Treasury may buy $3,000,000,000 in government bonds and pay for them in "United States notes," just as were issued in the days of the greenbacks after the Civil war. This would pour fust $3,000,000,000 of new money into circulation. It will have either gold or silver back of it, but it remains to be determined which and in what amount, so it is an inflationary provision.

In the case of purchase by the Federal Reserve banks of the bonds in question, the law provides that the Federal Reserve banks will hold them for a stated period, but if the new money was issued by the Treasury to pay the bonds, a sinking fund is set up to retire the notes. It is provided that at least 4 per cent of the outstanding United States notes would be retired each year through an appro priation of funds by congress for that Another provision of the law allows the President to change the value of the gold dollar. Under the previous law, it was required that a gold dollar should contain 25.8 grains of fine gold, or pure gold as we know it. The new law, however, gives the President power to reduce that gold content by as much as 50 per cent.

The third major section of the law allows the President to accept silver from foreign governments in payment of their war debts to the United States. He is limited in this respect, however, and may not accept more than $100,000,000 in any one year, or about one-third of the annual pay ments in interest and principal. He cannot receive it if the price is above 50 cents an ounce. Present quotations are less than that. The silver accepted in payment of war debts is to be the basis for the issuing of silver certificates, but there is no payment due on these debts until mid-June and so if any of the foreign nations are granted the privilege by the President, there can be no currency issued against the funds until after June 15.

A N INSIGNIFICANT little street, ford's career from the stage to worldwide fame on the screen.

Thus in a nutshell, you have the story of the rise of Mary Pickford.

Her theatrical career began in the Valentine Stock company in the city of Toronto, Canada, where she was born. Her first appearance on the speaking stage was made at the age of five, when she took the part of a boy in a play called "The Silver King.

At the age of eight, "America's Sweetheart" went on the road with "The Little Red Schoolhouse," and at the age of nine Mary was starred in "The Fatal Wedding" in the part of Jessie the little mother. When but eleven she was appearing with Chauncey Olcott in "Edmund Burke."

To Miss Pickford belongs the honor of originating the part of Betty Warren in "The Warrens of Virginia," a

David Belasco production which was her first play on Broadway.

From Belasco's management, she went into motion pictures, but let her tell the story in her own words at this point.

"You see," she said, "I did not think much of the movies at that time. In fact, people on the legitimate stage considered it a disgrace to work in pictures, But my mother had asked me to go to the Biograph studio on Fourteenth street and try to see Mr. Griffith. Although I demurred, she insisted, and of course, I could not disobey. But I took the precaution to route my trip so that I could make five cents do the work of 10. Those were times when five cents was al-

"Instead of taking a street car from where we lived to Fourteenth street. I walked the ten blocks, took the car on Fourteenth and asked for a transfer. The old Biograph studio was on Fourteenth street between Broadway and Fifth avenue. Thus, when I had satisfied mother by dropping in at the studio, I could walk back to Broadway and use my transfer to ride to the Times square and the theatrical district where the booking offices were located.

"I felt certain that in the end it would be necessary to visit the booking offices to obtain another theatrical en gagement, which at that moment I need. ed very badly. Imagine my surprise then when I was ushered into the august presence of Mr. Griffith who, after a short talk, gave me my first motion picture engagement." From such a simple beginning, a new figure in world history was born, Even today few people realize how far into the distant corners of the earth our Mary's popularity has reached. Her mail brings letters in nearly every language. Furthermore, Miss Pickford is the only woman in motion pictures who is socially honored by the real royalties of Europe. When she travels people at every station crowd the platform for a glimpse of her. And with all this she is a charming, wistful young woman, happy in the love of a devoted husband. Still there are many simple pleasures which she has had to do without, pleasures which her less famous neighbors accept as a matter of course.

You may wonder from this if she is happy with her lot. The answer is yes. But even the reason for her being happy in spite of missing things which other people enjoy, is in itself a simple thing. Her work makes others happy. Therein lies her compensation, She has learned that service to others is the one coin that pays the debts we owe our hearts.

Gets Leading Role

Miss Alice Dahl was a former mem ber of one of the Little Theater move ments in southern California, which has supplied the screen with so many promising young actresses recently, and has played minor roles in pictures, but "Free Ranger" marks her first appearance in a leading role. Washington.-It's going to be colder on the sun for the next two years, but who knows what will happen on the earth?

A long-range forecast of solar radiation has just been made by Dr. Charles G. Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian institution, and published, with the supporting data, in an institution bul-

There is believed to be a very inti-mate relationship between the sun's "weather" and the earth's weather, but it is so extremely complex that as yet it is not possible to make valid deduction from one to the other. So, Abbot stresses, the prediction has nothing to do with terrestrial temperatures.

For two years the average radiation of the great star into space-from which the earth obtains the heat and light which make life possible-promises to be below normal. It has been rather consistently higher than normal since 1930.

Basis for Prediction.

Abbot bases his prediction on peri-*dicities found by calculation in the solar constant—the amount of radiation per square centimeter per second received at the outside limit of the earth's atmosphere. The normal value is 1,940 calories. This varies with an extremely complex periodicity. By observations and calculations extended over many years Abbot has discovered the existence of seven such periodicities-of 7, 8, 11, 21, 25, 45 and 68month periods-which are intricately interwoven.

In making the two-year prediction

The character of old Jolyan Forsyte in Galsworthy's "Forsyte Saga," is as real as if we had known him throughout the long years of his life. When his death comes, as death inevitably must, it is like tearing the heart strings loose to see him go.

It is strange how these heroes of fiction take hold of us and influence our thinking and our conduct-stimulate us, encourage us, inspire us to greater activity. Hugo's Jean Valjean, for illustration. What hardships and injustices he endured and how nobly he met his misfortunes!

There is the hero of adventure, too. We learn strategy from D'Artagnan, physical courage, loyalty to friends. The Count of Monte Cristo sets us the same example. It seems as we read that they should have lived on forever.

A few years ago Sir Conan Doyle allowed Sherlock Holmes, his great solver of mysteries, to disappeardropped over the ledge of a great rock and crushed to death it seemed-and we thought we had lost him forever. But he was not dead; he came back again to fascinate us for a dozen years more with his keen insight. Nothing is more sad than to see a hero whom we have set up for ourselves wane in his power, gradually lose the characteristics which have won our admiration. It is better that they should leave the stage while they are still heroes

A Tom Thumb city, consisting of one inhabitant and two cottages, believed to be the smallest city of the world, exists near Chippenham in Wiltshire, England. The city, known as Christian Malford, was built 300 years ago and consists of these two thatched cottages. An abandoned canal runs in front of it and a railway runs at the back although trains never stop here because there is no station. Half of the "city" is occupied by a widow whose husband lived there for 87 years. His father owned the cottage for 92 years and his grandfather lived in it for 97 years. The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

A purpose in life is an essential to success whether it be in the world of business, art, of professional circles, or home making. Without some definite aim, one's forces are dissipated. They do not focus. The person has no direction, and drifts through the years finding a lack of interest in life until dissatisfaction writes its lines across the face with no uncertain marks. A dissatis-

The person who discovers something of intense interest early in life, and pursues it with unflagging determination is the one who keeps young when years advance.

Promoting Youthfulness.

One reason why women of today often grow older in appearance than men at the same age, is because men are engrossed in lively topics of business. in matters of vital importance to them. while women are drifting along with days filled with striving to find enter tainment for useless hours. Yet it is the women who are using every artificial method to retain a youthful appearance. Pathos is as often found in such faces as success in looking young. Lines of dissatisfaction and of fear of the ravages of time, are as strongly penciled as beautifying lines. Talk with such persons and vapid minds are discovered, minds totally lacking in interest. They contribute nothing to conversation, and their beauty is not sufficient to hold one's attention. They are old, no matter how young in years.

A life filled with purpose is a young life even in old age. There is an alertness of countenance and a lively interest in what is going on. Strange as it may seem, a purposeful life reaches out to other interests as well as the definite one of pursuit. A homemaker finds a purpose in life when she uses her energies to give beauty to rooms and health and beauty of character to those intrusted to her care. Her interests are wide, Each mind is individual, and with unfolding youthful minds about her, the scope of her own mind is broadened. Those occupied in art and profes-sions find fulfillment of their purpose in contributing something, however little, to their especial vocation. Whatever the work, or however much leisure a weman may have, it is only when life is lived with some definite purpose in view that satisfaction and an attractive countenance can be attained.

be washed. Not so much as a drop of water should touch them, for it mars the finish. They should be dusted and wiped off lightly with a soft cloth. Accessories to fixtures may require washing, such as crystal pendants, and such portions of a fixture as may be of glass. When the glass forms an actual nondetachable part of a fixture, care should be exercised not to let so much as a drop of the water or any liquid touch the metal. Pendants are detachable, and so are strings of crystal. These should be washed in warm soapy water with a little ammonia in it, rinsed in water a trifle hotter, as the glass will be tempered in the warm washing solution, and dried thoroughly and also rubbed to give the desired polish and glisten to the glass. Then the pendants are rehooked to the fixture in the specified holes. It is when crystal chandeliers catch the light and break it into rainbow hues that their real beauty appears.

Japanned trays aud other articles with this attractive finish should never be washed in hot water. It causes the japan surface to crack and even scale off. Then the article loses its good looks. Use lukewarm water and white soap, since this is milder than yellow. With the solution given, wash the tray or whatever piece is being cleaned. Do not immerse in the water, but wash with a cloth wet with it. Wipe with clear rinsing water. Wipe dry. Then sprinkle with a little flour and let it remain on for twenty minutes or so. Then rub the article with a soft cloth and finally with a piece of soft old silk.

Avoid putting very hot dishes on acquered and japanned trays. The marks left are very difficult to remove. Sometimes they respond to rubbing with a flannel wet with sweet oil. After a few minutes wipe off the place quickly with a cloth that is wet with alcohol.

Large Pimples on Face Twelve Years Healed by Cuticura

'I was troubled with pimples all over my face, neck, back and arms. They were hard, large and red, and hurt when I touched them. They fes-tered and scaled over and at times I could hardly stand to have my clothes touch my back and arms. I could get no rest or sleep and was in that con-

CHAPTER I

It was a lonely land by a lonely sea, but Eric loved them both. One was his father—this great Alaskan country stretching one-ninth of the way around the world-and the old gray ocean, wearing a billowing cloak of mist, was surely his mother. The Sea has had many husbands-Phoenicia last night, Venice in the dawn, England and Holland and the little Yankee land in mid-morning, and to each she has borne a breed of giants-but now she has taken a younger, bolder lover in the North, and this wind-tanned youth on the Bradford cannery dock was a child of that mating.

His full name was Eric Ericssen. It was typical of the new species-it could as well have been Kris Nansen, or Nils Larsen, or Storker Storkersen. Like the other founders of the clan. his parents had come from Norway's windy coast first to dig for gold in Alaskan gravels, then more to their liking, to fish for halibut and salmon in the flords of the Northwest. But neither Eric nor his clansmen were Norwegians. Born on Alaskan soil, they were the product of a new enment-new ways, waters, men, and minds.

As the son of a ship captain, of course he had had good schooling. At the close of his second year at the University of Alaska at Fairbanks, he had gone abroad to specialize in geography, ethnology, and economics in the forec'stle of a tramp steamer. Now, still under thirty, he had papers entitling him to sail as master on any ship, of any tonnage, anywhere on the seven seas.

As he sat on the dock at Squaw Harbor any old Alaskan could tell his breed. Both his ancient mother and his young father had put their mark upon him. He was tall and lean, lithe and loose-jointed, by the Alaskan pattern; and he walked like a sourdough rather than a sailor, with a spring of his toes, lightly, swiftly, and tirelessly.

He sat alone, ignoring the motley crowd on the dock. He had little in common with Siwash slimers or Fillpino messboys; even less with Sandomar's gang. There were ten of these men, all recently fired from the cannery force, and, like Eric himself, they were idly watching a sleek yacht, stranger to these waters, glide into the harbor.

deep and wide, for 'most all craft on all seas, but an amused half-smile flickered across his lips as he surveyed the stylish visitor. Obviously she was built for luxurious cruising, not to rough it in these half-charted northern waters. In venturing here she was surely living up to her name, the Intrepid.

The elderly captain docked her handily, and the gang-plank was run out. To Eric's amazement, the greater part of the crew immediately walked off. Not only the kit-bags in their hands but the gray, grim look on their faces told plainly that they were done with the Intrepid for the rest of their seafaring lives.

Eric spoke to the first officer, a stalwart Yankee type that he knew and respected. "Looks like she's going to be short-handed the rest of her

There's six left, out of eighteen," the man answered angrily. "Our time's up, but he won't hit for home, Now se can cool his heels here, or else run the whole ship himself-as he's wanted to from the first. We're going to go out on the Catherine D."

"Who do you mean by 'he'? The skipper?"

"The old man's all right. I mean Horton, the millionaire who owns her. He's not a yachtsman, but he won't stay in the saloon. Always coming between his skipper and the crew. He has no respect for an officer, much less a sailor-be treats 'em all like flunkles. Our fellows are Americans - they won't put up with that. Besides, he expects the impossible. All his life he's got what he wanted, bought it with his checkbook, and he can't see why we can't supply the weather and the tides he demands. Tell him he can't go some place, and that's where he's going to start for."

officer swore, throatily and emphatically and marched off. A burly, middle-aged man in smart yachting cap-no doubt Horton himself-nov disembarked. With him was an athletic man of thirty, with a lean, scholarly face, thin lips, and lcy gray eyes. Catching sight of Eric, Horton signaled him up with an imperious ges-

"What's your name?"

Eric's sparkling blue eyes turned hard gray. "I am Mr. Ericssen."

"Do you want a job? I need some men, to replace those proud devils who just walked off. What can you do on shipboard?"

"Taking your questions one at a "What if I offer double pay time-" Eric's quick anger had failed, would fetch 'em, wouldn't it?"

yacht owner like you to make such an offer."

Eric spoke slowly and quietly, and Nan Horton opened her clear, hazel eyes. Horton's rat-trap mouth grew "I don't require any advice from you."

"You asked for it, and I'm going to give it to you. Bradford's short-hand-ed anyway; if he loses any more men. just at the start of the season, he can't handle his fish. If you try anything like this, you can expect trouble."

"And you'll deserve it, too, Felix." It was the old woman's voice, clear as a bird's. "Your sport is not as important as Mr. Bradford's work, or any man's. Of course you can't steal his men.

"But that argument can be reduced to an absurdity," said the younger man called Roy. "If you start thinking of other people's interests instead of your own you'll soon find yourself in the sentimental soup. Don't you see that if we don't recruit our crew here, we'll have to loaf two weeks waiting for a fresh gang from Ketchi-

"I don't agree with you, Roy." It was Nan's contralto voice, with a 'cello-like richness of tone, and both men turned to her in surprise. "Usually I support you and Dad in 'the public be d-d' attitude, but somehow this doesn't seem to me to be playing the

"Nan, you're talking as though life is a cricket match, or a romance." Roy spoke lightly, yet with a flash of his cold eyes. Eric knew that here was a strong man-perhaps even stronger than the purse-proud millionaire, Felix Horton-who would likely win what he wanted from the world. whether it was wealth or power or Horton's daughter. "Go ahead, Felix, and take what men you need."

"That's what I propose to do." He turned to Eric. "Who's that chap in the mackinaw?" "Johanessen, Bradford's dock foreman." Johanessen was called up and questioned. Would he ship on the Intrepid for twice his present pay? He shook his blond head.

"I am werry sorry, but we iss shorthanded, and I connot spare myself. You see, de feesh run pretty quick now, and we will all be dam' busy: I haf no time to go yachting."

He marched stolldly away; a girlish giggle escaped Mother Horton's pale old lips. Nan's gray eyes brightened perceptibly, and even Roy smiled faintly and knowingly. "Just what we could expect from the simple Nordic,"

But Horton's big jowls flushed. "I'll be hanged if I'm going to rot up here for two weeks. We'll take these bully boys there." He indicated Sandomar's gang. "They're a hard lot, but we can handle them, and maybe they won't be so haughty as those sterling Americans that just walked off. And Ericssen here will ship as first officer-"

Eric's eyes were not now the tint of deep water in the sunlight, but of Bering sea shoals under winter clouds, "I don't want the job. I don't care to work for you. You asked for it, and you've got it. I just saw you try to break up Bradford's force with the rength of your checkbook, and I'm not going to okay that, or help you make a cruise in our waters." He was looking into Horton's face, so he did not see the quick flash, possibly anger, perhaps some other emotion, in his daughter's eyes. But as he turned away, he heard Mother Horton voice unqualified approval.

"I don't blame him a bit, Pelix. If your father was alive, he'd say the Eric turned to his snubbing block, but the matter was not yet closed. An entirely new light was thrown on it when the elderly captain sought Eric and recalled that they had met before. Their eyes grew brilliant as they recalled a dive in Jibuti; a strange, hair-raising, snaky dance by a nautch-girl, the tint of old ivory; and a chair-smashing row with half-a dozen Arabs. "I was a better man then than now,"

Captain Waymire said. "Five years makes a sight of difference. And maybe that's why I hate to face this cruise

"You still have your chief engineer." Eric said.

"Yes, but he can't help me handle that pack of wolves I've just signed up." Then, man to man: "Ericssen. forget the boss' high-handed ways, and help me out. And I'm not speaking for myself alone."

Eric struggled in vain against rising curiosity. "Who are you speaking

"Horton's girl. She asked me to talk to you. I think she approved of your stand, but like me, she's uneasy about those thugs. She won't admit it, but I know she is. Anyway, she wants you on the ship. And Ericssen, want you, too. As another master mariner, I ask you to try to strain a point and help me out."

Eric's gaze wandered off to the deck of the yacht, on which stood a vivid figure. Curly dark hair blowing in the wind, dull-rose cheeks in the sunlight, and for one brief second, steady, tranquil, hazel eyes challenging his own. . . Yes, this was a call he could hardly refuse. . . By GEORGE ADE e. Bell Syndicate.-WNU Service.

HOSE of you who were so Fortunate as to attend the Literary Exercises in connection with the Graduating of the Class of '22 from Bingham College, no doubt will recall the masterly Oration delivered by Herman Tetley. It was the only Speech made by any Graduate and Herm was selected for this Signal Honor because he resembled William Jennings Bryan when the Latter was the Boy Orator of the Platte, instead of the Fully Matured Real Estate Booster of Florida. Herm had a flashing eye, an aqualine Beak and his Hair met the Collar. You could tell, by looking at this Laddy-Buck that he had been incarnated for the Special Purpose of making Speeches.

It was a very hot Day and a great many sons of Old Bingham, wearing Facial Decorations of Ivy and Alfalfa, had come from as far away as Rock Island, Ill., and Chillicothe, Ohio. In spite of the tropical Humidity, Orator of the Day was fully elad in the Habiliments which must be adopted by anyone who hopes to put over an Oration.

He wore a long-tailed, pall-bearing Suit of Winter Clothes and had a little white Hickey inside the Weskit, than which nothing could be more Marmadale. Also he was shod with Patent Leathers of dazzling Radiance.

The Volstead Enactment has made Claret Cup an Equivalent of Arson, but the Bird who wears Patent Leather Shoes in the morning goes scot free. Yet there are those who prate of Justice.

No doubt the Reader wil be inter ested to learn what Herman Tetley talked about. Well, he talked about 25 minutes and his Subject was "Cer tain Phases of Feminism." Read it over again and read it slowly and you will perceive that the Hero who started across the Atlantic Ocean in a Dinghy was a Piker when compared with Herman.

Not only did he sum up, briefly, the whole Significance of Woman's recent Itch to hold Office, invade the Pro fessions and put Nan back into the Nine-Hole, but he went ahead and proved that it was all contrary to the Basic Laws of Nature. When he allowed that there were certain fundamental and biological Differences be tween He and She, which would forever disqualify the Gentler Sex from tackling any rugged Task, he thought he had stumbled upon a new and glittering Truth. He even went so far as to advance the novel Theory that Woman's True Sphere is within the Home.

He did not know that Adam said exactly the same Thing two Days after He lost the Rib, and kept on to Himself as the Head of the House hold even after he was taking Orders. The Records are not complete, but undoubtedly he used to say to Cain and Abel: "What I say goes, but I don't like to have any Argument with your Ma."

Not long after Commencement Day we find Herman back in Sycamore. where his Dad owned the principal Bank. For a great many years the Male Parent of the Class Orator had been engaged in helping Farmers who were up against it and sometimes he collected no more than the Legal Rate of Interest. Tetley, Sr., had quite a Sense of Humor, for he often said that the Lord had prospered him. He had a rating which gave the Son a local Importance not to be attained by putting the Hand inside the Coat and spieling a lot of Websterian Observations.

Herman had read in a Folder that Travel has a Broadening influence, so he talked the Guvnor into letting him go to Europe before he settled down and used his Algebra in running the Bank.

Herman started for the Old World. accompanied by the vast Store of Knowledge which he had acquired at Bingham. He was still strong in the Belief that Woman should not attempt anything more intricate than knitting a Sweater for some Male Relative. He liked the Type of Girl who admired him and his whole Attitude toward the Inferior Sex was one of god-like Forbearance and Patience, tinctured with mild Amusement, but Old Tet. '22, didn't believe that any Flapper could tell him anything he hadn't known for three or four years.

Baby-Face Kids Him Along.

On the Train he met an Actress who had washed up and walked out, leaving Hollywood flat, because the Directors were not Genteel. She had lost her Purse and borrowed $40 from the Class Orator. He gave her his New York Address but up to the time of his Sailing the Letter had not arrived, probably because the Postal Service is so unreliable in a crowded City. So many Letters are being sent to so many different People, it is small Wonder that some of them are mis-

Madge and Ethel and Lora, telling about the Goofie she had been stringing. It is very difficult for an Intellectual Giant to realize that he is being joshed by some Baby-Face whose Brain seems to be absolutely at Rest. In every Large City on the Other Side the educated Greenle went into Shops and permitted hypnotic Sales-Girls to load him up with Junk he didn't need and didn't want. And yet, it seemed to him, all of the time, that they were a lot of deferring Menials who simply wanted to learn his Royal Becoming a Trained Seal.

He came back Home with a busted Letter of Credit but the Complex of Superiority was working overtime. He still suspected that the Creator had put aside all other Engagements and devoted a Week to working out the Plans and Specifications for Herman Wyckoff Tetley Bingham, '22. It's cerainly great if you can feel that Way. It helps one to get through many a Rainy Afternoon—you know, just get in front of a Mirror and wallow in your own Personality.

It was about Christmas Time, 1923. that the handsome Young Gentleman with the best Speaking Voice ever heard at his Alma Mater, first met the Grass Vidow known as Geraldine. When Herman got a Flash at the vivacious Shoulder-Blades and the carefully-blended Complexion and the Third Act Costume, he should have crossed his Fingers and run Two Miles in the Opposite Direction, but he was rather Intrigued, if the Reader will permit us to get away with that Word. He felt that Geraldine might prove to be an Interesting Study. She turned out to be Nothing Else But.

Never having attended Bingham Colege she had to rely on some Practical Knowledge she had picked up on the Side. She sized up the cocky Valedictorian and speared him as if he had been a Fish. She took the proud Patrician and made him a Trained Seal.

Long after, when the Lawyer showed him the Letters which had been pur-chased for $10,000 and asked him where he got such words as "Babyola." Snoopkins," and "Honey-Bunch," he said he sent her the notes to keep her from dying of a Broken Heart or com mitting Suicide, as per Threat.

It required the Services of all the high-priced Attorneys in Sycamore to side-track the Breach of Promise Suit. The Fact that the expensive Detec tives from the City dug up on Geraldine almost enough to send her to the saying it up to the Day of the Fruit Chair, did not alter the Fact that an Episode. When he came to that Part about Woman being the Weaker Vessel and condemned by the im mutable Laws of Creation to remain such, he would tear out another Handful of Hair and carefully deposit it on the Table.

MORAL: An Oration will do no Harm unless prepared and delivered

Leap Year Devised to Overtake Father Time

Every leap year laymen and sci entists alike have the opportunity of watching the efforts of the calendar to catch up with Father Time. Once in four years our antiquated calendar must somehow gain a day to make up the six hours lost each year. This it does partially by adding a day on what we know as leap year. Still the calendar does not quite catch up in and fourteen seconds left unaccounter for each year. Thus there exists centurial leap years, where another day is added. These leap years, now almost forgotten, are those centuries exactly divisible by 400. Three out of four century years, 1700, 1800 and 1900 are common years, but 2000 is leap year. This plan matches the solar year within 26 seconds.

Great Salt Lake The Great Salt lake is almost devoid of life on account of the salinity of its water and its surface is almo devoid of boats because of its specifi gravity which makes it difficult to han dle craft. The students of the Utal university have recently built a boat adapted for passage about the Great lake and in this they will make certain observations as to the move ment of the water. Observations of the lake during the past summer ap-peared to indicate that wind causes tides, similar to ocean tides, which run across the lake in conformity with the natural period of its oscillation, This and other research work will be continued, using the student-built craft.—Washington Star.

Blavery" Really Br to New Guinea

Though to us the working of Lin for less than a dollar a month smacks of slavery under another name, to the New Guinea native it represents wealth obtainable in no other way.

His culture is that of the neolithic Stone age. It requires a long period of careful and expert labor to fashion and polish a stone ax or adze. Such an implement, primitive though it may be, is of incalculable worth to an owner. Even though the careful labor required to fell and shape trees into canoes, shields or other carvings with it is of the most arduous and tedious nature, it serves the purpose nevertheless.

The young man sees years stretch ing ahead, before-through learning the craft and fashioning his own implements or by seizing them in raids upon his enemies—he will acquire a sufficient stock wherewith to purchase and maintain a wife.

For two months' work among the whites he may acquire a steel hand ax or an adze; for three months' pay, an ax or a mattock; for two weeks' endeavor, a butcher knife or a dagger. A shilling will purchase a brilliant loin cloth of red, green or orange cloth-finery unknown to the interior villages.

With the proceeds of his threeyear term of labor, he may return to his village while still in his teens and be the richest man in it. His steel implements and his acquired knowledge of how to use them will enable him to perform many times the amount of work that could be attained by the best artisan in his tribe with stone implements.-Hal G. Evarts in the Saturday Evening Post.

WOMEN ACTIVE IN WORLD OF TRADE

Woman's place may be in the home, but the annual reports just issued Ly numerous leading corporations in the United States disclose that she is also making a place for herself in the financial world through the medium of stock ownership. A few years ago the names of women were seldom found on the rolls of stockholders, but if figures are to be believed feminine investors are encroaching steadil, on a field hitherto dominated by men.

It is estimated that at least 40 per cent of the stockholders of large industries in the United States today are women. This does not mean that they own 40 per cent of the stocks because the men still are in the lead in that respect, but when the corporation lists are compiled it is found that almost half of the names bear a prefix of Mrs. or Miss.

Furthermore, the women are not content merely to own a few or many shares of stock and sit icly by and let the men run affairs. Many women today are members of the boards of large corporations-and they are not mere figureheads. They are active members and the men have come to respect their judgment.

Stock records indicate that the women like railroad shares. One great railroad has 250,506 shareholders as of last January 1, and of this number 108,210 are women, or 43.19 per cent of the total. With an average holding of 39 shares they owned 33.27 per cent of the outstanding stock.

Oil stocks are also to their liking, the biggest company reporting that of its 35,270 owners 36 per cent of the total enrolled are women

Brokers who have handled their purchases say that the women are uncommonly wise in their selections, most of them excelling male investors in this respect. Moreover, when they lose they prove themselves to be good sports and accept their losses with good grace.-St. Louis Globe-Democrat.
