FIRST JOB

By R. H. WILKINSON

IT WASN'T entirely Bruce's fault, though people credited him with the greater part of the blame. Jocelyn was one of that kind of girls who never show when they are hurt or depressed or feeling badly. She could, for example, sit in a dentist's chair and let the dentist drill away on a sensitive tooth, and never once mention that the pain was terrific.

It was 4:30 when Bruce reached the house. He was a little disappointed not to find Jocelyn there waiting for him. It was sort of an anti-climax. Some of his enthusiasm about the trip died.

Letter of Betrayal

By EVELYN M. DAVIS

DORIS COUGHLIN sat fidgeting with a book in her hand. The faces of Donald and Kenneth kept dancing before her eyes, blurring the pages. Try as she might, she could not shake off a feeling of impending disaster. She glanced at the clock, and decided that in all probability, Donald had received her letter. Could it be that he—

Fashions for Best Dressed Juniors

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

COME now, Miss Junior, it is quite time to decide as to whether it will be a new coat or a new suit for spring or both. Of course the ideal solution of the problem is a coat and a suit. There are times when a coat is absolutely indispensable, and smartly clad indeed is she who tops a dashing midseason print frock with an advance spring coat which flaunts the latest touches.

Chop Suey in Shanghai

FAR FROM Popular Dish That the Chinese eat chop suey and consider it a delusion is a highly insul- tating and disparaging myth. This is the message of Lin Yuntang to Americans particularly. Apparently he has traveled to some extent in the United States. In the Shanghai China Critic he says:

"We don't eat chop suey, because the things left over from regular feasts are given to servants only. There is really only one chop suey shop in Shanghai that made a reputation by collecting the leftovers from the restaurants and selling them to rickshaw men at so many coppers per bowl."

King's Favorite Quotations

SIX QUOTATIONS from which his majesty the king built his whole life hang in his workshop at Buckingham Palace and Sandringham, says the Montreal Herald. Teach me to be obedient to the rules of the game. Teach me to distinguish between sentiment and sentimentality, admiring the one and despising the other. Teach me neither to proffer nor to receive cheap praise. If I am called upon to suffer, let me be like a well-bred beast that goes away to suffer in silence. Teach me to win if I may; if I may not, teach me to be a good loser. Teach me neither to cry for the moon, nor to cry over spilt milk. In these there is more than the superficial wisdom or sentimentalism which so often characterize such sayings.

SUCH IS LIFE—Aw, Is That Nice?

By Charles Sughroe

Fifty Famous Frontiersmen

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

His a "National Monument"

IF TOWERS nearly a thousand feet above the surrounding country, a silent sentinel over the beautiful valley of the North Platte river. It was a landmark for many a pioneer in the Covered Wagon days of the old Oregon Trail. It is a landmark today for many an automobile tourist speeding west, for when he reaches the city of Scotts Bluff, Neb., he sees off at the south across the river this huge mass of sandstone which bears the name of Scotts Bluff and perpetuates the name of Hiram Scott.

As a member of General Ashley's famous fur-trading expedition up the Missouri in 1823, Scott had first seen this mountain which was to become his monument. Then he became a free trapper and later a partner with Narcisse LeClerc in a company of trappers which reaped a rich harvest of peltries along the headwaters of the Platte.

In 1828 they started for St. Louis to market their furs. A hundred miles up the river from the mountain Scott was taken ill and left behind with two trappers, Roi and Bissonette, who were to bring him down the river by bull-boat. But soon after they launched the clumsy craft, it upset and all their provisions and ammunition were lost. They managed to reach Laramie fork, 60 miles up the river from the mountain where LeClerc and the others were to await their coming.

They were half-starved and leaving Scott in camp, the other two set out in search of food. Then they came across LeClerc's trail and deliberately decided to follow it and leave Scott to his fate. When they overtook LeClerc they told him that Scott had died, so he pushed on toward St. Louis.

Back at his camp near Laramie fork the realization soon came to Scott that his friends had deserted him. So he set out to follow them.

A year later Bissonette and old Joe Robbeaux, seeking water from the spring that gushes from the southern slope of Scotts Bluff, found a skeleton not far away. From the buttons on the fragments of clothing still clinging to the bones and from other trinkets Bissonette recognized the skeleton as that of Hiram Scott. Then the story of the betrayal of the trapper by his two comrades came out. Tradition is that Bissonette and Robbeaux buried the remains of Hiram Scott there and from that day the sandstone mountain which had been the goal of his weary journey was known as Scotts Bluff. A few years ago a tract of 2,300 acres surrounding it was set aside as a public reserve and this natural memorial to Hiram Scott became a "national monument."

"35 Battles—35 Victories"

GOVERNOR of the state of Franklin; six terms governor of Tennessee; four times elected to congress; a projector and hero of King's Mountain; 35 battles—35 victories; no Indian war cry was: "Here they are! Come on, boys, come on!"

Such is the inscription on one side of a monument in Knoxville, Tenn., and it sums up the career of one of the most romantic figures in frontier history—that of John Sevier, "Nollichucky Jack."

Born in Virginia in 1744 of a French Huguenot family, Sevier emigrated to James Robertson's Watanga settlement in eastern Tennessee in 1773. Almost immediately the young Virginian became a leader in various forays against hostile Indians. By his audacity and the swiftness and unexpectedness of his attacks on the Indian towns, he broke the spirit of the Cherokee and their allies and prevented their being used by the British in a rear attack on the colonies during the Revolution.

He used the same tactics in one of the most brilliant victories over the British during that war. He was one of the leaders of the mountain men in their swift dash to trap Colonel Ferguson and his troops at King's mountain before they could receive aid from Cornwallis, and thus contributed to the victory at Yorktown.

After the Revolution the Watanga settlement became an orphan. Neither North Carolina nor the new federal government seemed to want it. So in 1784 the settlers organized the independent state of Franklin, a commonwealth unique in American history, and elected "Nollichucky Jack" as their governor. When North Carolina tried to assert its authority over the region again, the settlers resisted.

Their governor was singled out for punishment, treacherously betrayed, captured and placed on trial at Morgantown, N. C., for high treason. And at once more than 1,000 of the mountain men assembled to rescue their beloved "Nollichucky Jack." A civil war seemed imminent. But Sevier made a spectacular escape from his captors and a short time later his people elected him to the North Carolina legislature. There was some protest over sending him but eventually he was allowed to take office.

Birth Rate Increase Is Sought by Europe

Three Nations Offer Subsidies to Newlyweds.

London.—Just 100 years ago they laid old Thomas Malthus in his grave. He would stir there uneasily if he knew what was happening in the world today.

decreed that the government shall give jobs to no more bachelors. Present bachelor incumbents are busily casting about for eligible wives.

Further small reductions of rent and taxes. The proud father of ten offspring need pay no taxes at all. Bachelors from twenty-five to sixty are heavily taxed.

Subsidies for Newlyweds.

Across the Alps in Germany 100,000 couples have taken advantage of the offer of Cupid Hitler and Goebbels to subsidize last Nazi marriages. Goebbels is conducting the "more babies" propaganda on a gigantic scale. There are 7,000,000 fewer German children up to the age of twelve than there were in 1914.

The Nazi government will lend young couples up to $350, if the promised bride is willing to give up her job and refrain from working so long as her new husband earns a certain wage. The loan is paid not in cash but in vouchers for furniture, linen, or household necessities. It may be repaid in small installments.

The scheme has created some 50,000 jobs so far for young men, who now are able to marry. Many of the new brides have turned their jobs over to their husbands, who were previously unemployed. For each new baby $100 comes off the taxes and furniture installments are suspended for the year.

France has long encouraged big families, but is redoubling her efforts now that Germany and Italy are competing. There, too, the falling birth rate causes anxiety.

SHOULD YOUNG PEOPLE GO TO COLLEGE?

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

The question is frequently asked, "Is higher education a necessity?" Estimating the cost plus the four years spent in acquiring a college education many young people seriously question if that money and time could not otherwise be placed to a better advantage. The argument is frequently advanced not only by young people but by parents as well, why not start one's career with only a high school diploma? As evidence of the wisdom of such a plan, reference is made to persons who have made a great success in life never having seen the inside of a college. True, but is success in life to be measured only in terms of economic value? A college degree does not guarantee a financial success. In truth it may influence one to underestimate the value of money by disclosing the contentment to be attained in cultivating an appreciation for the more permanent and cultural things. A college degree may not be economically necessary but is a great advantage. The most important asset in college life is experience. A campus is a miniature world, wherein are enacted the very same experiences we meet in the larger world of daily toil. Wisdom and the ability to handle people and live with them is one of the tremendously important advantages of college life.

Rooting Out Graft

Louis R. Glavis is director of the division of investigation of the Public Works Administration, and with his staff of 130 men and women he is hot after the alleged grafters in PWA and CWA projects in nine states and the District of Columbia.

When we contemplate the professional career, a college course is not only indispensable, it is required. Our professional schools are becoming more rigid in their entrance requirements, admitting only on rare occasions students who have not had a college course. To pursue a professional course of study these days requires a trained mind. Let no young man remain away from college because of the lack of funds. There is usually some way of overcoming that difficulty through a scholarship and opportunity for part-time work.

"Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom." "Better to get wisdom than gold." "Ignorance is the curse of God. Knowledge the wing wherewith we fly to heaven."

About Mirrors

Never hang a mirror on a wall that is inclined to be damp. For this reason your bathroom mirror needs special care, since steam is bound to accumulate here.

It is a good plan to nail a piece of oiled silk over the back of the mirror before it is hung, and thus prevent damp from penetrating through.

If steam gathers on the mirror wipe well with a dry cloth at the points where the glass joins the framework.

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

NOW that there is so much rubber used in women's foundation garments, it is important for the woman who cleanses these articles herself to know that boiling water is destructive to it. Rubber is very elastic. That is, it will stretch frequently to many times its original length. It will also contract to its former measurement when released without any apparent enlargement. However, as the rubber undergoes continual stretching, it gradually ceases to become as short after the tension is loosened, although it still continues to have the same stretching capacity. It is because there is an insistent effort to contract to first dimensions in rubber that makes it so desirable an element in the manufacture of foundation garments. The very name "elastic" is given to materials in which rubber, sometimes in minute strands, is woven. This is noticeably evident in narrow and often in wide strips of textile which, in some parts of the globe, always are termed elastic.

Also with age and under detrimental treatment, rubber loses its inherent elasticity. It may become hard and brittle or it may partially disintegrate, either one of which things renders it useless for our purposes. Very hot water reduces the rubber in elastic weaves to a softness minus its tensile property. The firm heavy nature of the goods is one of its excellent qualities. It should be sufficiently pliable to use as a textile. It should have a resistance when stretched. For foundation garments this resistance should be great for without an enormous reactionary power to this stretching the garment soon loses its value. Any treatment which diminishes this contracting element is detrimental.

With an understanding of the nature of rubber-woven textiles, we can readily grasp why very hot water should never be used for washing foundation garments, or those which have elastic garters attached. The approved method of washing these garments is to use suds, not tepid, but hot enough to be lukewarm, and a good-sized nail brush, or small (not stiff) scrubbing brush. Lay the garment on a flat surface, and with the brush wet in the suds gently scrub the solid parts, until clean. Immerse the garment in the soapy water, which by the way may require additional hot water poured into it occasionally, to keep it at a lukewarm temperature.

The rinsing water also should be lukewarm. Rinse in several waters, and hang outdoors to dry. If the garment must be dried indoors, do not have it over a strong heat. The water should gradually evaporate under moderate heat. Never use a hot iron on the rubberized textile portions of the garment. If pressed at all, have the iron of low heat.

Household Helpers

When household helpers are paid by the day or the hour, the fact that time is money is borne in upon the homemaker's mind forcibly. A certain amount of work it is hoped and expected will be accomplished in a given number of hours. When the homemaker realizes correctly about what should be done in such a time, she naturally finds it bothersome not to have the task completed. When work does not progress well, she may find the worker is not wholly at fault. Often the helper is kept back, and is annoyed too, because she finds herself lacking the necessary requisites for the work.

It is important, therefore, that the homemaker sees that supplies are adequate for the demands of the tasks. For example, before the laundress comes, there should be soap, starch and bluing and whatever other washing agents she likes to have used or that the laundress wants. Some laundresses put a little borax in the white goods washing water, as it whitens the clothes. Some women use a little household ammonia, some a little washing soda to counteract grease. Some find one or another washing preparation or soap powder to their liking. When the homemaker knows what it is she can have it in readiness. Then, too, some prefer liquid bluing, others like it in cake form. But whatever is needed should be in readiness for the work to begin immediately and progress without interruption to restock.

Woman Names League as Beneficiary of Fortune

Geneva.—A Philadelphia woman has named the League of Nations heir to her considerable fortune, it was learned recently. The league refused to divulge her name, as the woman is still living.

The property on her death, it is understood, will go first to her husband, then to her sister, and on the latter's death it is to be turned over to the league.

The league sought legal advice before accepting nomination as eventual heir. Experts found there was nothing in its financial regulations preventing acceptance of property bequeathed by will.

Device Enables You to Park Your Voice

Cambridge, Mass.—Now you can park your voice—just as you park your car.

The voice parking space device has been exhibited in Memorial hall at Harvard university. The parking space consists of a thin steel ribbon which flows along in plain sight at about one foot per second. Unlike any other form of recording speech, it is not necessary to process the ribbon or treat it in any way. The voice is impressed upon it directly by means of two small magnets which produce a varying magnetization of the steel tape corresponding to the sound wave in one's speech.

Any time the words parked are wanted for transmission the ribbon is run through a second set of magnets and the speech is reproduced in the form of an electric current.

Bows Made Features of Season's Purse and Muff

Bows and muffs are both featured this season, in unusual models and styles. For example, hand bags have bows for ornaments, purses are combined with muffs, or muffs have bows as trimming. Occasionally, all three features are found in a single accessory, the muff purse or the purse muff, whichever you prefer to call it.

In the previous vogue of muffs, some years ago, purses were not infrequently let into muffs in a convenient way. No fumbling about in a bag or pocket was necessary to produce the purse, for it was on the outside of the muff, generally so well hidden in the fur that it was scarcely discernible. In the present combination the purse is sometimes the chief item, with finger-tip muff portions intriguingly introduced. The convenience is as satisfying as formerly.

Favorite materials for purses with bows, and muffs, are satin, silk, velvet, soft suede, or its imitation in fabric-suede. It is easy to see why these are chosen, since the materials are so soft and flexible that they lend themselves admirably to gathers and folds of bows. It is of interest to the home worker to know of these materials, since she can fashion her own purse in one of these latest models if she so chooses.

A length of one of these textiles six inches in width or more can be interlined, and then lined with satin, and have little inside pockets made of gathered or flat satin sewed to lining. The strip is then folded twice. The outside fold is shorter than the other two parts, and forms the flap. The sides of the folded edges beneath are sewed together for the bag portion of the envelope purse. It is advisable to fit the outside flap with snap-fasteners for security.

It is the trimming of the bag which supplies the novel feature. On the flap is sewed as smart a bow of the material as the worker can fashion. Or she can match the color of the bag in heavy ribbon and get the sales person at the ribbon counter to make the bow, which the woman can, herself, sew on the flap.

A bag that is minus a bow can be made in most style by sewing a bow on the outside. It is not always that by such a slight addition a last year's bag can be brought up to the latest vogue.

"I keep fit"

"...in these days of recovery... if I don't, someone else will have my job." How? "Well, I learned years ago that work... wear and tear... takes something out of men and women—particularly those who work indoors.

"I tore down those precious red-blood-cells faster than my good body could rebuild. A friend told me the story of that grand medicine S.S.S. Now at 7 P. M. I am fit to still 'carry on.'"

If you feel weak... lack a keen appetite... or your skin is pale... try S.S.S. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon notice a pick up in your appetite... your color and skin should improve with increased strength and energy.

S.S.S. is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-globin of the blood to enable you to "carry on" without exhaustion as you should naturally. At all drug stores.

Beware Hasty Judgment
Don't forget that it is a good plan to think before you pronounce judgment. After-thought usually spells charity in words as well as in deeds.

Good Advice
Live every day so you can look at yourself in the mirror at night, and say, "You can work for me again tomorrow."—Exchange.
