MUSICAL

Last Saturday night, June 2, the American Legion Auxiliary sponsored an old time musical. There were around 300 guests present. The music began about 8:30 and lasted until 11:00 o'clock.

Quite a number of talented musicians of the community assisted with the music and they certainly made some real music.

The ladies sold ice cream, and an angel food cake (a $8 egg cake) was given to the holder of the lucky ticket, each number having cost 5 cents, and Grandma McLaughlin held the lucky ticket.

The cake brought several dollars and so did the ice cream, of which the proceeds go toward the buying of a piano for the Legion Hall. Every one enjoyed the musical very much, and hope the ladies will be sponsoring another one real soon. You people that weren't there missed a real treat.

Si Chestnut says: "Many a politician who imagines he has the world by the tail and a down-hill pull, finds out after the election that all he has left is the down-hill pull."

Si may be right about politicians. We don't know much about that game. Business takes up most of our time these days, and banking requires careful attention. We are always ready to serve our patrons and help build up this community. We are not seeking any special "pull."

THE PAPER BOAT

A PAPER boat set out to sea
One terribly windy day
And carefree as a boat could be
It scudded along its way.

But wait! Before the boat set sail
Two passengers came aboard—
A Dancing Doll with her bridal veil
And a Soldier with his sword.

The two of them went off upon
A honeymoon trip together
And so of course they would have gone
In any old kind of weather.

The didn't see the sea was rough
And the waves were billowing high
The didn't hear the hurricane puff
And puff from the hurricane sky.

They didn't know the sort of day
This tossing and gray and foam
Would even make a skipper stay
All snuggled in bed at home.

And so they journeyed on and on
And chatted quite cheerfully
The while the boat tossed hither and yon
And flittered most fearfully.

But soon a seething wave rushed by Boiling with angry rage
It flipped the boat just like a fly
Just flipped it off the page!

WELSH RAREBIT AS QUICK MEAL

There Are Several Ways of Making Every Kind.

By EDITH M. BARBER

IN THINKING about quick meals, Welsh rarebit just naturally comes to my mind. During the last fifteen years many of us have regretted the necessity of eliminating our pet recipe. I am preparing my own special recipe for the first time, and, at the same time, I shall give you several others for rarebit which are all delicious and different. No matter what kind of a rarebit you make, you will need the fresh, soft cheese. This is particularly important for rarebits made with butter. When cheese is old, the fat separates, your ingredients will not blend together and you will have a stringy rarebit. I remember one time, sending my brother to the store especially for soft cheese, and he returned with a pound of "cheese ends," informing me that was all the old cheese they had.

Quick Meal.

- Welsh rarebit on toast
- Broiled bacon
- Mixed green salad
- Sliced mixed fruit
- Coffee

Method of Preparation.

- Prepare fruit and chill
- Prepare salad, make salad dressing and chill
- Flake cheese
- Cut bread for toast
- Broil bacon
- Toast bread
- Make rarebit
- Make coffee

Welsh Rarebit With Milk.

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 1/2 tablespoons flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon mustard
- Dash cayenne
- 1 cup milk
- 3/4 pound American cheese cut small pieces

Melt the butter, add flour and seasonings and stir in the milk until thick and smooth. Add cheese, cook and stir until melted. Serve on cracked or toast.

Tomato Rarebit.

- 1/2 pound soft cheese
- Pepper, paprika
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon mustard
3/4 to 1 cup tomato soup
Cut the cheese into small pieces, add mixed seasonings and cook over a low fire until melted. Add enough to

Teachers Worried

Over Boy Prodigy

Chester Pa.—A seven-year-old boy prodigy, who has completed five years of school work in five months, is worrying his teachers.

Charles Fritz is brilliant in his school work, but Principal A. H. Schowalter, of Dewey-Horace N. school, which Charles attends, believes the boy should give more attention to outside activities.

"I have had a conference with his parents, and asked them to encourage the boy to play more," Schowalter said. "I don't want to see him develop in a one-sided way."

The boy could read newspapers at the age of three. His parents insist he was entirely self-taught.

mato soup to thin the mixture so that it may be poured on pieces of toast.

Herb Powder.

Take fresh marjoram, basil, bay leaf and parsley and dry in the sun until crisp. Pick carefully off the stalks and rub into a fine powder. Add a small quantity of dried and powdered lemon peel and allow to each ounce of herbs in the powder, one-quarter teaspoon salt and one-eighth teaspoon pepper. Sift through a piece of cheese cloth and store in small bottles for use as needed.

Flaked Fish Sandwiches.

- 1 cup flaked fish
  - 2 tablespoons chopped celery
  - 2 tablespoons chopped pickle
  - 1/4 cup thick mayonnaise
  - 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce or catsup, salt and pepper
- Mix ingredients and season to taste with salt and pepper. Spread between thin slices of buttered bread.

Vanilla Junket With Bananas.

- 1 package powder of vanilla junket
  - 1 pint milk
  - 1/4 cup sugar
  - 1/2 cup whipping cream
  - 2 bananas, sliced
- Prepare vanilla junket according to the directions on package. Chill in refrigerator. Whip the cream, adding one-fourth cup sugar just before the cream is stiff. When ready to serve cover the junket with the sliced bananas and garnish with the whipped cream.

Squash Souffle.

- 2 cups mashed squash
- 1 cup cream or thin white sauce
- Salt
- 1 teaspoon grated onion
- Dash of nutmeg
- 3 eggs

To the squash add cream or sauce, salt, onion and nutmeg. Add egg yolks, slightly beaten, and fold in stiffly beaten whites. Set in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) forty minutes. Any other mild vegetable may be used in place of squash.

Vegetable Timbales.

- 2 cups grated raw or mashed vegetable
- 1/2 cup bread crumbs
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons melted butter
- 1/2 cup milk

Mix the grated or mashed vegetables with the crumbs. Beat the eggs and add to them the salt, butter and milk. Add this mixture to the vegetable and crumb mixture. Fill small greased baking molds, set in a pan of hot water and bake in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) until firm.

How It Started

By Jean Newton

The Evil Eye

THERE are few beliefs which go back further into antiquity than the notion of the evil eye—the idea that some people possessed the sinister magical power to work harm upon whom they chose, simply by looking upon their victim. Some have asked how it started.

Belief in the evil eye was prevalent among the Greeks and the Romans and a reference to it is found in "The Wisdom of Solomon," sometimes called "The Book of Wisdom," which dates from about the middle of the first century B. C.

Lights of New York

By L. L. STEVENSON

When the new state hospital at Brentwood is completed, the insane population of Long Island, beyond the limits of Brooklyn, will exceed the sane population. There are already hospitals at Kings Park, Central Islip and Creedmore with thousands of inmates. The Brentwood institution has been completed to a point where it has a population of 10,000 patients. Eventually it will have a total population of 100,000. That's the equivalent to a city the size of Gary, Ind., or Lowell, Mass., and only a few thousand short of a city the size of Utica, N. Y. Incidentally, according to the last census, there are only 73 cities in the United States with a population of 100,000 or more. The Brentwood institution has been years in building and will take more years to complete, the state's investment running into many millions.

Not only as to size alone is the Brentwood hospital unique. For instance, there is a new method of handling patients. The manner of beinging is an example. Instead of being massed at lodg tables and having food served to them, all patients who are able, go to a cafeteria, carry their trays around and select what they want to eat just as do many thousands of normal persons in New York each day. Attendants are not uniformed. In the bakery, the attendant in charge is garbed just as is every other head baker. The laundry attendant in appearance is merely a foreman. Every attempt is made to make the patients feel that they are not in an institution and under guard but that they are normal people engaged in normal occupations.

Brentwood is also a city sufficient unto itself. It has a central power plant which supplies services of various kinds. There is also a complete water works system, the water being pumped four miles away and carried to the institution in great mains. Incidentally, the power plant burns 130 tons of coal a day.

Wondered what had become of the rum runners now that prohibition is only a memory. Learned recently that two of them are on Broadway. They are not following any racket, however. The ex-bold bad men of the sea are now a dancing team appearing in one of the tango palaces. Learned also that another rum dealer, who used to ride around in a big bullet-proof car, still does. But he has turned it into a taxicab and does not inform his passengers that should shooting start, they would be safe.

Then there is Albert H. Wiggin, former chairman of the board of the Chase National bank whose deals in his bank's stocks, supposed to have netted him $10,000,000, and his $100,000 annual pension, loomed large in the public eye only a short time ago. Mr. Wiggin's principal task now is dodging publicity. He has a modest office on Pine street where he looks after the various holdings of his family and himself and a residence down at Charleston, S. C., where he spends his spare time. He also collects etchings, purchasing those that appeal to him whether or not the etcher be known and whether or not he is still alive.

My Neighbor Says

FRESHNESS of fish can be determined by the elasticity and firmness of the flesh. The odor, of course, is a valuable aid.

When making bread never put hot water on yeast cake, as it kills the yeast plant and consequently prevents bread rising. Use lukewarm water.

Cream may be made sour by adding one-fourth teaspoon of cream of tartar to one and one-half cups of cream.

A piece of adhesive tape put on the inside of a tumbler will make it fit if it is too large.

SCHEMER

"Jack and I have parted forever."
"Good gracious! What does that mean?"
"A five-pound box of candy in about an hour."

Rise in Price of Gold Brings Boom to Alaska

Seattle, Wash.—The rise in the price of newly mined gold to $35 an ounce, opening of canneries and fishing grounds, has started a new rush to Alaska.

The Alaska Steamship company announced it was bringing 13 vessels out of moorings and was overhauling them in expectation of one of the largest passenger and freight cargo years in history.

The steamship Yukon left port recently with every passenger accommodation filled, and loaded to capacity with cargo. Many passengers were women on their way to canneries and many more were men going to fishing grounds. The majority, however, were both young and old mining men who hoped to "strike it rich."

Sweden Planning Mass Flight of Navy Planes

Kariskrona, Sweden.—Six Swedish navy planes under the command of Gen. Eric Virgin, head of the Royal Swedish Air force, will soon make a formation and training flight from the naval base in southern Sweden to Gdynia, in Poland. En route certain aerial maneuvers will be staged. Altogether 18 men will participate.

YESTERDAY'S GENERATION ASKS—

DEAR Mrs. Post: My eighteen-year-old daughter is very fond of tennis and cannot understand why I hold it is not seemly for her to ride off with three boys to play tennis. I tell her she should suggest asking another girl to go with them. She considers me hopelessly "old-fashioned" and I have endeavored with little success to show her what you have voiced in the past: that conventions, though regarded by the present generation as irksome, have most excellent reasons for their existence, and observance of them would prevent regrets. Will you please express an opinion of my view?

Answer: Although, according to the present point of view, there is not the slightest impropriety in going off now and then with three boys to play tennis, I agree that it would be a serious mistake should she make going about alone with boys a habit. This is because a girl, who is always with boys, and never goes about with other girls, puts herself in a very insecure position. Perhaps you might explain to her that after all the word declassée means a woman whom the wives, mothers and sisters of her men friends refuse to know.

DEAR Mrs. Post: What should I teach my son, who is nine years old, to reply to an introduction? I want him to say "ma'am" but I am told this is incorrect.

Answer: To a man, "How do you do, sir?" to a woman "How do you do, Mrs. Jones." "Ma'am" has always been a colloquialism—except when replying to royalty. But why "sir" is used when speaking to a gentleman and why "ma'am" is said to ladies in only a few localities is just one of those things that seem to have little reason further than that usage has made it so.

DEAR Mrs. Post: Will you help me plan a very small wedding in church, because it has been a long time since we've had a wedding in our family? (1) Is it necessary for the bride and groom to have any attendants? (2) Is it permissible for the bride's mother to act as her matron of honor? (3) And may the bride's fifteen-year-old brother give her away?

Answer: (1) The groom must have a best man. All other attendants are optional. (2) Absolutely no, so far as walking down the aisle is concerned. But she could stand next to her and hold her bouquet. (3) Yes.

INVITATIONS

DEAR Mrs. Post: The other day we received this invitation: "Dear Mrs. Jones—Will you and Marie come in for tea on Monday, October 2 at 4:30? Mrs. Blank is staying with me and I have asked a few friends in to meet her." I know that ordinarily an invitation to tea written on a visiting card, or an engraved invitation, need not be answered. But what about this one?

Answer: This one is an especially polite invitation to tea in the form of a personal note. It should be answered with a note saying, "Marie and I will be delighted to take tea with you on Monday, and to meet Mrs. Blank."

My dear Mrs. Post: I am moving very soon, and a few days after I'm settled in my new apartment I would like to have a cocktail party. Could I tell my friends that I have moved to a new address and also invite them in the same invitation?

Answer: Of course!

DEAR Mrs. Post: My sister received a wedding invitation for the ceremony and reception of a very dear friend of hers who lives out of town and whom sister has not seen for several years. She cannot go and instead of the usual third person acknowledgment to her friend's parents, would it not be better for her to write a personal note and explain why she cannot be at the wedding?

Answer: Of course to this, too.

My dear Mrs. Post: We have invited out of town friends to come stay with us for a week. I feel that they will drive in their car, which means that they will have their chauffeur in town, too. Are we supposed to pay for garage rent and also to find a place for their man to stay, because we have no additional sleeping rooms where we could accommodate him?

Answer: No. Their car and their chauffeur are their responsibilities. If you have several servants and it is convenient to you to invite him to take his meals in your kitchen, he may perhaps accept this invitation. Or he may even then prefer to eat at a restaurant of his own choosing. At all events, the responsibility to lodge and board him would be yours only if you lived in a big house far out in the country.

AS YOU LIKE IT

Vacation time! Most of the local girls are free to enjoy their vacation as they please. Some of them are bringing out the old walking shoes, hunting for last years straw hat and slacks, and chasing the meths from that bathing suit. But very few are caring whether or not they freckle and tan. Anyway it is time for enjoyment. With the purpose in mind a number of girls met at the home of Nettie Blankenship Friday afternoon to organize a club for girls. After much discussion and usual disturbance the following officers were elected: Nettie Blankenship
President, Anne Ruth Mitchell,
Vice pres., Hazel Stewart, Sec'y
and reporter.

Zona Adamson has invited the girls to her country home for a picnic. The invitation was at once accepted for the coming Friday. With the vote to invite guests the hostess and Edna Mae Smith served a delicious ice
course to: Emma Lewell Plunk,
Opal Hess, Opal Wood, Nina Mae
Bailey, Joyce Tinsley, Opal Dickson, Lela Ruth Watt, Zona Adamson, Martha Sue Noel, Pauline Boliver, Hazel Stewart, Anne
Ruth Mitnell, Opal Cooper and Jessie Mildred Outwell.

"As You Like It" was selected as the name of our club. Other girls are invited to join and be fully initiated, but seriously if you like to hike, swim and laugh
we are looking for you.

"REMEMBER GIRLS
.. I must leave at 4
to cook supper ..."

"Goodness, Evelyn," says Rose, "when will you ever make up your mind to get an Electric Range? We girls also have to have 6:30 suppers, but it's no problem at all with automatic cooking. We just put the entire meal in the oven before going out, set the clock control, and supper is being cooked while we play. The same control automatically turns off the current when the cooking process should stop, and the insulated oven retains sufficient heat to keep the food tender and piping hot to serve when we want it.

"Don't say you can't afford one. Really, it's so economical. Costs less than a penny per person, per meal, to operate, and you can buy one on a small down payment and easy terms. You wouldn't be without one, would you girl?"

Do you know that your increased use of Electric Service is billed on a surprisingly low rate schedule... and adds only a small amount to your total bill?

Chic Beach Togs Cotton Crocheted

By CHEMIE NICHOLAS

EVERY style-minded woman is wearing or will be wearing before the season is over something of cotton-crochet. You are supposed to have at least one crochet garment in your spring and summer wardrobe and many more as you may be fortunate enough to acquire. The important thing to remember is that for real crocheting is done with real thread or string. The vogue for cotton-crochet garments grows more consistent with the passing of each day.

If you are looking forward to turning yourself into a perfect physical condition this summer and if you aspire to do it modestly and if you prefer the sun-suit and the beach dress in the picture will set your fingers to a tingle to begin with hook and cotton without a moment's delay.

As everybody knows, it is neither hygienic nor comfortable to keep one wet and chilly bathing suit while one is sunning oneself. A smart swimsuit like the one centered in this group comes to the rescue. You can make it yourself easily. Crochet either of heavy knitting or crochet cotton thread or of the now-so-popular crochet cord, which is so beautifully soft, comfortable and washable. The smart after-effect over the diaphragm and the clever strap arrangement of this suit are unusual notes. A pleasing variety of stitches adds to its attractiveness.

Below, in the group, is a stunning and versatile garment. It is fundamentally a dress, but it does all sorts of tricks. The entire dress is crocheted of a heavy cotton-crochet cord which is cool and delightfully wearable, having the advantage of being lightweight so that it will not hang you in a cumbersome way. The straight skirt fastens up the front with square wooden buttons, and it will come undone as far as you need it for a vicious serve or a flying leap on the beach. It is backless to the waist and has two narrow straps which button together with the same brown buttons. The straps unbutton and slip off the shoulders for a perfect sun bath. Note the cunning crochet cap which fits so snugly, keeping the hair from blowing about.

The little short-sleeved sweater with the turnover collar shown at the top of the illustration is an item you cannot well do without in your resort wardrobe. You will find that it will fit in with any number of occasions. It is charmingly made of a fine mercerized cotton, and the lacy openwork stitch up the front lends an air which distinguishes it from the general run of sports sweaters.

Have you seen the voguish two-piece frocks (blouse and skirt) which up-and-doing women are crocheting of natural colored string? These string-knit dresses are a most enviable possession and as the summer advances you will be congratulating yourself on being the owner of a costume which so faithfully bespeaks a well-dressed appearance. The charm of it is that it can be kept immaculate in that it tubs perfectly. The skirt will especially prove a treasure, for it can be worn with all sorts of dainty lingerie blouses.

BRIEF SPORT TOGS FOR REAL ACTION

The shirtwaist dress with a skirt "and an extra pair of pants" is a timely suggestion for the girl who has any sort of excuse for shedding her skirt. Shorts are accepted by the right people even though they are often abused by the wrong people.

It's cotton time again. Among the many kinds of cotton which are highlighted is seersucker, a type which makes its entrance in something miraculously like a disguise.

There seems to be a brisk demand for plain cottons, either white or pastel, by way of change. The rank and file of shirtwaist dresses are made of striped shirtings, cotton or silk. Many of these open center front, and fasten with pearl buttons. The slits beneath are either separate, or are with the shirt, in which case the skirt is separate. All of which makes them easier for the laundress and more practical for everyone.

Gloves, Bags, Muffs Take on Increased Proportions

The bags, gloves and muffs which give a fashionable finish to new costumes have taken on increased proportions to fit the long, sweeping silhouette.

Bags are huge. Schiaparelli makes one of mahogany brown calfskin which is almost as large as a small overnight bag.

The new "pillow" muffs cover the entire front of the figure. Exactly the shape of an oblong pillow, made of such furs as beaver and astrakhan, they recall the muffs carried by the beauties of the nineteenth century.

The newest and smartest gloves are of fur (breitchwantz or caracul) and come half way up the lower leg. Others are made of the same wool as the ensemble and cuffed in fur to match its trim.

In such bulky stuffs as these they are naturally larger than last year's gloves.

NEWEST EARRINGS

By CHEMIE NICHOLAS

Listen to this, for it's news, real news with a thrill—earrings that outline the lobe of the ear! See them pictured here. At the top a clip earring in the form of a handsome large gold leaf almost covers the ear lobe. This is a most popular type for daytime wear. The conch shell inspired the design for the becoming rhinestone clip earrings that outline the ear lobe of the patrician young woman posing below in the picture.

PATTERN 9695

A small girl will look very sweet in this little dress. The yoke is scalloped in front and plain in back. There are little bows which tie the sleeves very smartly, and a cunning collar. Her mother can make the dress, omitting the lower part of the sleeves and the collar, as the small sketch shows. Use the pattern to make several different dresses; for example, it's cute made of a cotton print, and equally dainty in one of the pastel shades in plain silk or linen, or dimity.

Pattern 9695 may be ordered only in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8, and 10. Size 4 requires 2 1/4 yards 36-inch fabric and 1/2 yard contrasting.

Royal Exiles Work at Various Trades

Many Russian Nobles Are Now Penniless.

London.—Where are Russia's royal exiles? Interest in them has been aroused here by the libel suit brought by Princess Irina Youssouppoff against the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Film company. The princess alleged that the film "Rasputin" depicted her as being seduced by the monk, Rasputin. The court awarded her $25,000 damages after a hearing, packed with the drama of Prince Youssouppoff's description of how he killed Rasputin. It was the revelation, however, that the Youssouppoffs, once among the wealthiest in Europe, are now comparatively penniless that led to the interest in the fate of other royal Russian exiles.

Investigations have shown that most of them are in London, Paris, and New York working for their living. Grand Duke Cyril in France. The head of them, the Grand Duke Cyril, lives at St. Briac, near Dhard, France. He has little money, but frequently is seen on gala nights at the casinos. The Grand Duchess Marie of Russia is in America, where also is Prince George of Russia. His first job was with a firm of interior decorators in London. Then he became a floorwalker in one of the largest department stores in New York. Now he is once more with a firm of interior decorators.

Eyes on Congress

Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark of Topeka, young and pretty, and one of the most aggressive leaders of the younger set in Kansas, who is being urged to run for congress from the First district and is being virtually assured of the Democratic nomination.

he was said to have become engaged to an even richer American heiress, but he is still unmarried. Prince Vassili sells perfume in the United States. Prince Paul Chavadsa is in the Cunard offices in New York. He is the husband of Princess Nina of Russia. Princess Xenia of Russia married W. B. Leeds, the American millionaire, and was the first Russian royalty to sponsor the mysterious woman who claims to be the Grand Duchess Anastasia of Russia. The marriage was dissolved in 1930. In London there is the former Grand Duchess Zia and the former Grand Duchess Nadja, both happily married, Sir Harold Werther, the husband of the first named, is immensely rich. The second married Lord Milford Haven, a cousin of King George.

Dress Designers. Prince Maria Bariatinski and her mother started to earn a living as dress designers in the fashionable West End district. Then she married James Ford, an officer in the crack guards regiment. Also in the West End district there is an antique store run by Prince Vladimir Galtzine. Next door is the store of Princess Troubetzkoy, whose son is the brilliant pianist, Prince George Chavchavadze.

Princess Youssouppoff's mother, the Grand Duchess Xenia, lives in a cottage in the grounds of Windsor park, given her by the king, but her sons are scattered. Prince Andrew of Russia, who used to live in Rome, now lives in Paris like his brother, Prince Theodore. Prince Rostislav works in a store in New York.

Prince Nikita used to run a dressmaker's store in Paris, and Prince Dmitri used to be the assistant manager at Chanel's, the exclusive Paris dress designers, having married the very attractive daughter of the manager, Prince Koutousoff. Prince Dmitri is now a stock broker. Besides Prince Vladimir Galtzine there is his cousin who married Colonel Zinovieff, who started as a taxi driver in London and now owns a small garage.

THE MEANING OF LIFE By LEONARD A. BARRETT

What is the driving force which motivates life? Doubtless the answer is as varied as are the temperaments of those who compose our citizenship. Certain fundamental motivating forces, however, are common to the majority of people, such as faith, hope, and love. "The greatest of these is love." This trinity of motives is basic to our Christian civilization. The motivating force is not so easily understood when other definite experiences are challenged with the question, what is the driving force of life? No one has yet given a satisfactory explanation as to why the criminal pursues his crime. Is it for greed of gold, or to get rich quickly by obtaining what he desires; or is it the daring spirit of adventure? Crime involves risks which only a criminal would be willing to take. He is urged on by an impelling force which must be something else than mere necessity. In the public parks of every large city can be found men and women who to all appearances are the victims of the economic disorder. The motivating force which makes them "choose to live" rather than voluntarily flee to other lands they know not of, is difficult to explain, unless it be the cruel irony of fate. A stone's throw from the mansions of our large cities are the mansions of the wealthy class in which are lavishly displayed all the possible luxuries of life. What is the motivating force which drives one to the accumulation of money beyond the point of possible expenditure, unless it be the thirst for power.

Perhaps the answer of many persons to the meaning of life is the acquisition of power that "they should take who have the power and they should keep who can." Power, like dynamite, may be used for constructive as well as destructive purposes. Power in the hands of love regenerates society, and reduces to a minimum degree the irony of fate. Every person however must answer for himself what is the meaning of life? Why go on living?

Aluminum Utensils Aluminum cooking utensils are especially good for top-of-the-stove cooking, because they conduct heat quickly from the stove to the food; glass and earthenware utensils are best for oven cooking, with modern nonchips enameled ware a close second, as they absorb more heat than the cooking utensils of other materials.

The Household By Lydia Le Baron Walker

MANY a homemaker is contemplating papering one or more rooms of her house, and doing the actual work herself. Those who do it in an amateur way will find the following suggestions helpful. They are sort of first aids to inexperienced paper hangers in their preparations, rather than in the final pasting of the paper to the walls.

The selection of the paper should be done remembering that the easier the paper is to match the easier it will be to hang. Avoid large patterns. They will cut to waste even when an expert does the work. He knows how to save the paper as much as possible, but there must be correct repeats. He studies and calculates, and knows the problems as solved when he starts. There are problems in large, complicated designs which should be avoided.

Good Patterns. It is wise to choose a small all-over pattern. An indefinite pattern in what is called a self-toned or two-toned paper is a wise choice for living room or other main rooms. A small sprigged or scattered flower pattern is a good selection for bedrooms. Plain papers no longer are merely flat tones. They have to be matched, as well as those with designs readily recognized. This importance of matching strips cannot be stressed too much.

The word, repeats, is unfamiliar to many people. It is the technical term which signifies the full design, used repeatedly. Each full design length in wall paper is a repeat. Study the paper and see if it is short, for short repeats are easier to manage than long ones, and there is less waste. Measure the height of the walls of the room from base board to ceiling. Each strip of paper must be just that length. Measure a strip of the paper without cutting it off. Scan the edges of the paper and you will discover little marks. These show where strips should come together exactly. They correspond with notches in dress patterns. Measure another strip of paper the right length for the wall, being sure that matching marks come together.

Cutting Strips. When you are sure two strips are right cut the roll into such strips. Each alternate strip must correspond with the first and every other one with the second strip of the original two strips measured off. There will be a few inches more or less waste between strips as seldom do papers cut without waste. To insure hanging strips in correct order they should be laid one above the other in correct sequence. Trim edges to match indicated. This will cut off the matching marks, but since strips have been matched correctly before cutting these margins away, they will mesh when hung and edges are fitted together without any space between them.

Antique Furnishings. It has been many a long year since furnishing a home with antiques could be so reasonably done as now. While the antique dealers do not find change plays into their hands, the homemaker with a fondness for antiques and a purse not well-filled does. There are opportunities to acquire beautiful old pieces at moderate prices. Like everything else there is a secret to knowing how the secret is known to collectors, and those who are "in the know," but every one is or it would remain secret, or be what is called an open secret.

One of the advantageous ways to get old furniture and furnishings to buy them out of season. This is not a matter of cold or hot weather, but rather of periods when times are in such demand that command high prices, and other periods when the demand is comparatively small and the articles cannot be sold as much. © Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

Eskimo Vocabulary Is Tough, Explorer Says

Provincetown, Mass.—Years somebody told Commander Donald MacMillan, famed explorer, that Eskimo vocabulary contained about 800 words. So Mr. MacMillan undertook to master the language, confident that jotting down the 300 words in order that he heard them he would be able to speak like a native. But he has found Eskimo the difficult language on earth. Already he has recorded no less than 3,000 words, and he is still at it.

TELLS HOW SHE TOOK 4 INS. OFF HIPS 7 INS. OFF WAIST

In 40 days by taking Kruschen Salts, Mrs. Helga Blangh of New York City reduced 20 1/2 lbs.—took 4 inches off hips, 3 inches off bust and 7 1/2 inches off waist. She writes: "I haven't gone hungry a moment—I feel fine and look 10 yrs. younger." To get rid of double chins, bulging hips, ugly rolls of fat on waist and upper arms SAFELY and without discomfort—at the same time build up glorious health and acquire a clear skin, bright eyes, energy and vivaciousness—to look younger and feel it—take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast. One jar lasts 4 weeks and costs but a trifle at any drugstore the world over. Make sure you get Kruschen because it's SAFE. Money back if not joyfully satisfied.

The WEDDING MARCH MURDER

by MONTE BARRETT

Copyright, 1935, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co. WNU Service.

"Yes. We didn't think we'd have much chance of forgetting what happened with a detective following us around," exclaimed Rylie defiantly. "That's the whole story. I took him out in the country and lost him. But I didn't take him toward Westport, because I didn't want him stumbling into us again, after I met Callis. I opened up the car, after I passed the city limits. I knew he couldn't keep up in that taxicab.

"After he had dropped out of sight, I zigzagged up and down a few side-roads, and then headed for Westport in a wide circle. I was on my way to meet Callis when I had the accident. I didn't want to drag Callis into this. I didn't want some detective asking her personal questions. She had so much more to do with the killing of Franklin than I had."

"What about Webster Spears?" This time Peter turned to the girl. "When you came to see me, I thought you were worried about him, too."

"There was no way we could help Web by remaining here," Rylie answered for her.

"I'm asking Miss Shipley." "Rylie is right. We considered Web, but realized that remaining in the city wouldn't help him."

Until they were dismissed, Rylie to be taken back to police headquarters by a waiting officer, Callis to return to her home, the young couple stoutly maintained their story. No amount of questioning by Kilday could shake it.

"Just the same," growled the sergeant after they were gone. "I know I've got the murderer under arrest. It's either Webster Spears or Rylie Carmody. First I thought it was Spears and that Carmody and the girl were trying to help him. Then I thought it was Carmody and the other two were trying to help him. Now I don't know which it was, except that one of the two is guilty."

"And you think Callis Shipley knows?" Peter inquired.

"Of course." "Well, I don't." Peter spoke with conviction. "Ever since my interview with her the other afternoon I have been convinced that, personally, she is innocent, although Carmody and Spears may be guilty. But if they are, she doesn't know it."

Kilday did not share this conviction. He reviewed the evidence against each. "Spears was in love with Doris Carmody and was moving heaven and earth to keep her from marrying Jim Franklin. We know he told Rylie about Choo Choo Train, hoping that he would stop the wedding. Some one telephoned Ambrose Carmody telling him about the actress. First Spears denied that. Now he admits making the call. Some one telephoned Choo Choo and told her to be at the church. Spears still denies he did that, but I don't know whether to believe him or not.

"He left the church, just before the murder, inquiring about Rylie Carmody and declaring that if he were there, there wouldn't be any wedding. Later he denied making that remark but we've since been able to prove that he did. That night Callis Shipley visited Spears' home. Both she and Spears denied that visit, at first. Now they both admit it. The girl told us what Spears said when he left the church. Then she denied it. Now she admits it."

The detective was restlessly pacing the floor as he summed up the case. "You can't tell me innocent people were trying to deceive us this way. That isn't natural. They had something to conceal. What was it? Well," he smiled significantly, "Spears had a motive for the crime and he can't account for his time at the hour it was committed.

"Then take Rylie Carmody. He admits trying to stop the wedding, after Spears told him about the actress. We know he quarreled with Franklin in the study. He left, but we know he came back, because Callis Shipley rode home with him. Either the girl told him there had been a murder or he already knew it, apparently, when he returned to the church. If she told him, how did he know? If she didn't tell him, how did he know? Then he gives a detective the slip in time to search Franklin's apartment and attack you in that office." He shrugged. "Oh, I know we don't have any proof of that—yet. But he escaped in time to do it, and he can't give a good reason for shaking my detective the way he did. He turns up with an alibi full of holes, and tries to explain his battered appearance by telling us he was in an automobile accident. Huh, I've got enough on both of these birds to send them to the chair, and one of them will talk before he takes the trip. The fear of that is the best cure for a silent tongue I know."

"But, Kilday—" Peter began. "Oh, I know. You're going to hand me that theory that Spears couldn't have taken the dagger from the wall—at least not while he was struggling with Franklin. Well, perhaps he couldn't, but maybe he slipped in there and got the knife before Franklin saw him. Maybe it was Rylie. He's taller. There are a lot of things that don't fit yet, and that may be one of them. But they'll all fit before I'm through." "That wasn't what I was going to say," Peter again interrupted. "If either Rylie or Web Spears committed this crime, the motive seems to be obvious. It was to keep Franklin from marrying Doris Carmody. And if that was the motive, why should either of them have visited Franklin's apartment or office? I can't make that fit." "Not unless Callis Shipley is the woman in blue you've been talking about," Kilday persisted doggedly. "But she isn't," exclaimed Peter. "I'm sure of that. Think back, Kilday. Our woman in blue went there to prevent the wedding. Dan Bullis heard part of her conversation with Franklin. She only consented to leave the church after Franklin promised her that his marriage was going to make no difference in their relationship. If Bullis told us the truth about that conversation, and I see no reason why he shouldn't, then that woman is heartbroken over the murder. Does Callis Shipley act or look like a woman who is grieving over Franklin's death? Not to me, she doesn't. Her one thought, throughout the whole affair, has been for Rylie Carmody. No, she is not the woman in blue. And if she isn't, then I say Rylie had no reason for visiting that apartment. I have another reason for being convinced that he isn't the man with whom I struggled in the apartment. A few minutes ago, the boy lunged at you, here, in a rage over a question asked of Miss Shipley. You caught him by the wrists and held him, easily. I am sure you couldn't have done that with the man I ran up against the other night. That fellow was far more powerful. Whatever doubt lingered in my mind about Carmody's innocence was dispelled then. He is innocent. I'm as sure of it as I am of this broken leg of mine, and it's paining me a lot."

"I Took Him Out in the Country And Lost Him."

"If we accept this theory of yours it looks as though we're farther from a solution than ever," complained Kilday. He drew moodily on his story. "You've made a good point," he admitted, "but if we follow your lead we're right back where we started. I haven't even got a good guess left. Webster Spears was under arrest the night of your fight in the apartment. If that has a place in the crime, then it couldn't have been him."

"It has a place," declared Peter with conviction. "The man I fought was the murderer. I'm convinced of that." He glanced at Kilday, a whimsical smile playing about his lean lips. "Have you ever had to be in bed for three consecutive days?" he inquired. "Try it some time, when you have a particularly knotty problem to solve. I recommend it. You can do a lot of thinking."

The detective was not misled by the apparent inconsequence of the novelist's remark. He leaned eagerly forward. "Have you doped something out?" he demanded.

"I think I have." "You mean you know who killed Franklin?" "Perhaps," declared Peter. "You might call it a guess, because I still lack definite proof, but there's only one person who could have done it. It was the same fellow who helped me along when I took that dive through the window the other night."

"You see, Sergeant," he continued, "we have been hitting pretty close to the truth almost from the first. Ever since I've been lying here, I've been going over the evidence, trying to make it fit. I couldn't get away from that woman in blue who visited Franklin in Doctor Abernathy's study, just before the crime. The very fact that she was the only one of the visitors that we couldn't locate, in spite of all our efforts, made me doubly suspicious of the part she played in the crime. Still, that was only supposition, until the night Franklin's apartment was searched. The prowler passed up a few jewels of value, while ransacking the place. It seemed obvious that he was no ordinary thief and that his search had some connection with the crime. But we have been over that. I need only point out that our previous search of those rooms made us reasonably certain that nothing had been found there. I felt sure, then, that the search would be extended to the office. Whatever the murderer wanted, he wanted pretty badly."

"That was a lucky hunch, although it nearly proved the finish of me. And it proved another thing—this was a hot trail.

"The murderer had admitted himself to Franklin's apartment with a key—a key given him by, or taken from, the woman in blue or Choo Choo Train. We can discover nothing against Choo Choo, so let's follow up the other lead. If his key came from the woman in blue, the motive for the crime was established, but I was still as far from identifying this woman as ever, apparently."

Peter brushed his hand wearily across his eyes. His face showed the strain the events of the afternoon were imposing upon his limited strength.

"Then there is the matter of the phone to Choo Choo Train, just before the wedding," he continued presently. "She thought it was Fletcher calling by Franklin's order. We knew that Franklin didn't tell Fletcher to make such a call, because Nick Royce tells us of the man's surprise when she appeared at the church. Fletcher denies he called. Then who did call?"

"Webster Spears!" Kilday suggested. Peter shook his head. "I think not. Spears was interested in getting the Carmody family to stop the wedding. Besides, he has admitted his conversation with Rylie and his anonymous call to the elder Carmody. But he denies calling Choo Choo. What reason could he possibly have for not telling the truth on that score, as well?"

"No, it wasn't Spears. The murderer called Choo Choo. He did it because he knew her relationship with Franklin, of course, and hoped that her presence at the church would divert suspicion from himself. I believe that was the only reason she was called. Of course, this tells us very little. It does reveal that the man knew Franklin well enough to know his habits. But half of New York knew of his infatuation for this actress. Nevertheless, this man was no casual acquaintance. He had either visited in Franklin's apartment, or talked to him by telephone, there."

"How do you know that?"

"He knew Fletcher's name and was familiar enough with his voice to imitate it when he talked to Choo Choo over the telephone," Peter explained. "A mere casual acquaintance couldn't have done that. Besides that, we have another proof of the fact. When the murderer entered the rear door of Doctor Abernathy's study, Franklin turned to meet him. He was not surprised to see his visitor. If he had been, it would have been only natural for him to have made some exclamation that would have attracted the attention of Nick Royce, standing only a few feet away. He didn't. Royce never knew when the murderer entered. Franklin is bound to have considered his murderer one of his intimate friends."

Peter paused to light a fresh cigarette and inhaled it, deeply, several times, before continuing.

"There is another very vital clue which we must not overlook. That is the revolver. Unless we believe that Franklin thought his life was in grave danger, it is ridiculous to suppose that he carried a revolver to his own wedding. I prefer to think that he had no warning of his danger. In the first place, if he had, he would never have permitted his assailant to approach him near enough to stab him, without firing. He was stabbed from in front, remember, not from behind. Again let me remind you that Royce was only a few feet away in the next room."

"No, if Franklin had been armed, it would have been because he suspected danger. And in that event, he would have used his weapon when the murderer entered the room. I am convinced that the revolver was carried to the church, not by Franklin, but by the murderer himself, who intended, by slaying the man with his own gun, thus to escape detection. You will argue, of course, that he used the knife, instead. I believe that was an afterthought, suggested when he saw the knife hanging on the wall as he entered the room. It suggested a silence, and greater time for escape, that he could not hope for if he used the gun."

"Another point which puzzled me was why the revolver should have been discarded in the shrubbery of the garden. Of course, the murderer had already taken the precaution to leave Franklin's own finger-print upon it, but nevertheless, this revolver has been a significant clue in the case, and marks an apparent mistake on the part of the man we seek. My only explanation for this action is that the murderer joined the throng in front of the church, after the crime, seeking safety in the crowd, rather than in flight. I think it probable that he even entered the church. That is quite likely, as I am sure his acquaintance with Franklin was such that he had been invited. That being true, he could not afford to have the murdered man's revolver in his possession. That explains this point, but it does not explain how and when he obtained that revolver."

Negro Tobacco Pickers
Traveling through the tobacco districts of the South one sees many old log cabins, through the corner of which runs a flue constructed of rocks, mud, cement or any other handy material. In front, opening to the outside, is a fireplace or stove of this same material, says a bulletin of the American Gas association. When the tobacco leaves are cut, the negroes hang them in these cabins and fires are maintained day and night until the tobacco is dry. These cabins are still used and the night fires with the negroes singing and dancing about are most picturesque.

SLICE ON COURSE GOLFING HAZARD; NO 'ACT OF GOD'

Hit in the eye by a golf ball as she was motoring, a New York woman took the eye to Judge Pettie's court the other day and sought damages in the amount of $1,000.

To this the golfer's counsel objected strongly, arguing that a gust of wind had carried the ball off its course, and that consequently, the accident was an "act of God."

The judge gave the case to the lady, who gets $750, and said in the course of a 19-page decision:

"It must be conceded that, although golf should not be deemed a hazardous game, a driven golf ball is a very dangerous missile and that its flight and direction cannot at ways be controlled by the player. The uncertainty is a part of the game. The ball, when struck, is liable to go down the fairway or fly off to the right or left of any angle.

"The element of danger, though not intrinsic in the act itself, is nevertheless present in a given set of circumstances.

"The situation is not changed by the fact that the act of propelling the ball is in itself not wrongful for a lawful purpose, that is to play the game.

"It is not likely that the conclusions I have reached would be a hardship upon any golfer since the risk may be readily insured against for a premium which is the nature of things will be quite small."
