Spend 110 Millions for New Buildings

Post Offices to Be Erected in 626 Towns.

Washington. - The administration has announced plans for the immediate expenditure of $110,000,000 in the construction of federal post offices and government buildings in more than 600 towns throughout the land.

Announcement of the program came from Postmaster General James A. Farley and Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau, Jr., accompanied by a carefully detailed list of the cities and towns in each state which are to be affected.

626 New U. S. Buildings.

In all, 626 communities in every state and four territories have been selected for new federal buildings, ac cording to the announcement. Half of the program-302 buildings-will be undertaken with the $65,000,000 authorized for that purpose in the recently enacted deficiency-emergency appropriation bill. It was explained that 324 buildings will be constructed with "funds already available from other sources," it was explained.

In selecting the projects to be included in the new program Mr. Farley and Mr. Morgenthau stated they were guided by the language of the deficiency bill directing that they "endeav or to distribute the projects equitably throughout the county so far as may be consistent with the needs of public service," and "with a view of relieving country-wide unemployment."

The announcement by Farley and Morgenthau said:

"The acquisition of the necessary land and the preparation of plans and specifications will be taken in hand

"Preference is being given to those projects for which the government has previously acquired the necessary real estate for building purposes, so that an immediate start may be made in the preparation of plans and specifications. In all other cases the real estate will be acquired as rapidly as possible.

"Of the 302 projects," the announce ment added, "there are 191 communities selected which do not have any federal building at the present time and where the average postal receipts amounted to approximately $29,500 per annum.

"In selecting the new list of building projects, the secretary of the treasury and the postmaster general have given consideration to the locations of the 324 projects already authorized under other funds but which have not been placed under contract. These will also be placed under contract as quickly as plans and specifications can be prepared.

"Every effort will be made in the carrying through of this program expeditiously with a view to relieving unemployment throughout the nation.'

Rabbit Builds Its Home in Nebraska's Capitol

Lincoln, Neb .-- A Nebraska cottontail rabbit, possibly with political aspirations, chose the steps of Nebraska's $10,000,000 state house as a place to rear its young.

Surprised yard men, watering clumps of low shrubs on the first landing of the steps leading to the main entrance of the huge building, found a nest of the new-born rabbits.

In contrast, the principle which many persons follow today is just the opposite. Thrift is not essential to security. Spend all the money you can. Have a good time while it lasts. The more money you save, and thus keep out of circulation, only retards recovery. The restoration of prosperity seems to depend not upon thrift, but upon how much we spend. Buy, Buy, Buy-is the daily "urge.

Another difference in the norms governing these different periods is that of work. Our fathers thought nothing

CHAPLES The Household

In This Interesting Group of Lawn Furniture Note the Bent Iron Frame of the Folding Armchair.

THE popularity of furnishing the lawn is emphasized by the many styles of lawn furniture that are now on the market. Many of the pieces are intended to be left out of doors in rain or shine. Once marble and plaster held aimost sole sway, with occasional wrought fron pieces, and a few examples of hickory and barkcovered wood pieces. Today these are found but there are various new types, less stately and massive, and a bit more comfortable.

Instead of the heavy wrought iron settees and chairs is found bent iron furniture, with curved slats of iron but which have enough "give" to them to suggest springs, although it is true the springs would be stiff. The Iron is painted in gay colors so that the green lawns form attractive backgrounds for the spots of color. Upholstery.

Sometimes the framework is of bent iron and the upholstery, if such a term can be used for the simple textile covering, is of awning cloth Either models can be left out all the time without injury. The all iron pieces withstand the elements better, of course, but the furniture with the textile upholstery will last at least two seasons if heavy awning or tent cloth is combined with the iron. The colors cannot be expected not to fade some under the severe test of rain and summer sunshine. But then the material is not expensive and is so simply attached to the frame that anyone can "re-upholster" the pleces.

There are tables of bent iron with each two legs made of one continuous strip of iron so that the tables rest on flat bars of the metal rather than four separate legs. Many of the bent iron chairs have similar standards for legs. The advantage of such legs is that the lawn is not punctured with little holes where chair or table legs cut through the sod.

There are card table sets of table and four chairs of this bent iron work, so that those who delight in bridge can find a table ready placed, and chairs also, where the beauty of flowers, greensward, and shade trees, can be enjoyed while cards are dealt and played.

Gliders and Covers.

Iron gliders come in a great array of styles, many of them have removable seat and back cushions. These can be the only things carried indoors as pecessity demands. Or if preferred, these can remain out and have the protection of rubberized coverings made expressly to slip over the gliders, and obviate the necessity of tak-

It is quite the correct thing to have cushions as upholstery for all the furniture which remains out unprotected. It is a very simple matter to put the cushions out and take them in, and they certainly soften the furniture to luxurious ease. If the covers to these cushions are of some of the many waterproof textiles, it will not hurt them to be out occasionally, but in heavy and prolonged storms they should be brought in under cover. 6. Author of "ETIQUETTE," "THE BLUE BOOK OF SOCIAL USAGE,"

AVOIDING THE NAME JUNIOR

ETC.

DEAR Mrs. Post: We would like to christen our baby with the same name as his father. But we hesitate because we do not want him to be called "Junior" by every one, which we have grown to dislike very much, Under these circumstance: would it be very improper to write his name with the suffix 2nd?

Answer: You cannot call him 2nd because this means nephew or cousin of a man of the same nam. "Junior" is son or grandson. But if you call your boy Jack if his father is John, or Fred if his father is Frederick, or Henry if his father is called Harry, no one will call him Junior unless you begin it, or at least encourage it.

My dear Mrs. Post: Will you tell me about a christening at home? What kind of invitation is sent and what refreshments are usually served? Answer: Taking it for granted that you have consulted your clergyman and that he is willing to christen the baby in your house, you either telephone or else write on your card, Baby's christening. Wednesday September 20, five o'clock r. v. p.' Cov. er a small table with a white cloth or a piece of brocade and ou it put the bowl that is to be used as the font-a silver one if you have it. If you haven't a silver one, use a china one, and lay flowers around it. The service is exactly the same as in church. The godmother holds the baby and the two other godparents stand next to her.

After the ceremony serve waite almond cake, and caudle (a rather mild sort of eggnog with which every one is supposed to drink the baby's health).

Dear Mrs. Post: Would ; on say that a christening without having godparents is much the same as what you say about a wedding without the bride in the traditional white bridal vell and orange blossoms-"it is a frame with the picture left out." In the same way that a bride can be married without these trimmings, is it possible to christen a baby without having godparents?

Answer: Marriage is equally legal no matter what the bride wears. At a christening the service of some churches requires that a bub; have sponsors in baptism," that is, godparents-just as the marriage service requires that the bride be given a ring.

PROPRIETIES

DEAR Mrs. Post: The other day at the tennis club a boy who had been playing in the next court asked me very eagerly if I would play with him some day soon. Would it be improper for me to call him up?

Answer: I certainly would not tele phone him, not because of any espe cial im, ropriety but because yo" would seem 6 rereager to see him again. But If you see him at the club some day. there is no reason why you might not ask him casually, "Would you like to

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it essential (in this day of unsettled living) to have an address on a man's visiting card? if there is no address on the card, should one be written on in pencil when necessary? Answer: The address on a card is so convenient that it is best to have It put on, especialy as several successive addresses can be cut on the same plate. Of course, if yo have no address on it and the person for whom you leave it dog not know where you live, write in pencil.

My dear Mrs. Post: I am planning to be married this month and must have a very simple and small wed ding. Several weeks ago a friend of mine had a shower party and invited almost every one of my friends. I feel as though I should invite to my wedding all these kind peopl who gave me lovely gifts, but how can I when I can't even include my own relations, outside of our immediate familles? How does one draw the line in making up such a list?

Answer: I don't think that you can very well accept shower presents and then not invite the givers-let alone the friends who give the shower parties-to the wedding. Yor would better have said, "Thank you, Mary, but don't have a shower for me because I can't ask anyone but the family to my wedding." It is quite possible to cet your list as you please so long as you are consistent. Ask nunis and uncles and stop at first coesins. Or isk cousins you know well and omit those you never see. Ask really intimate friends, and no others,

Waterspouts

Ordinarily, watersponts occur only in tropical waters, for the reason that the air in the tropics is always warm and moisture-laden and ready to con-dense upon meeting a sudden cool wind. However, waterspouts have wind. However, waterspouts have been reported in the warm Gulf stream in Northern seas. These spouts are believed to occur when cold wintry biasts from the land pass out over the sea and meet the warm Gulf stream. Waterspouts last only a few minutes and are not dangerous to ships.

Will You Let Your Child's Eyes Limp Through Life?

NOTICE the next time you are in a crowd of people just how many of them are wearing glasses.

Why is it that so many eyes are defective? In a great many cases it is because of poor lighting and improper use of the eyes in childhood. If you permit your child to read, to study, or even to play where there is not enough light or where there is blinding glare you are making a mistake that may be disastrous. Take care now to prevent your child's eyes from limping through life.

Good light cannot be obtained from bare lamps, or lamps improperly shaded. Use good light to eliminate harsh contracts-between bright and

"And gangsters the part of gang-

"Exactly. That's the meat in the coconut. Here we have a picture on which we are ready to begin production. The feature role is that of a gang leader, a suave, crafty, intelligent, ruthless sort of person, who lives by his wits and holds the fate of a hundred benchmen in his hand, who is a menace to society-hated, feared, scorned. And who, may I ask, have you cast to piay the role? Who?"

A grin, edging on a sarcastic grimace, twisted the corners of Producer Heyward's mouth.

"Donald Fairweather! Of all people he certainly comes the farthest from being a gangster type! A good actor, yes. But-if you'll excuse my saying so-a rather effeminate sort of person. A master of love scenes. Sentimental, romantic, a direct appeal to the sympathetic instincts of women!"

Director Tod Philloon rapped the table top and glared.

"Now Heyward, you listen to me. I've been in the movie making game a long time. It's my business. I can't do anything else. And if you'll forgive my immodesty. I've made some pretty good pictures. If I hadn't been able to cast my roles correctly, those pictures would have been flops.

"I'm not saying this to make an impression. They're facts that can't be ignored. You're a banker. You've been out here only two weeks, and at that only because your bank sent you to take charge until the company's stock was disposed of. It's senseless to think you can tell me how to make a picture. It isn't in your line. I happen to have discovered Donald Fairwenther. He's versatile. He can play any part, if I direct him!"

Producer Heyward's face was a dull

A sneer was on his lips.

"You're quite a guy, eh. Philloon? Well, get this, either you get a real gangster type to play the role of Brick' Lagoon, or you're fired! There's plenty of 'em around, go pick one out." Director Philloon stared through a window and chewed his cigar. fle could not afford to lose his job.

Presently Director Philloon turned. "I'd like to make you a sporting proposition. I'll go get a gangster, a real one, true to type, and, with your approval, I'll east him in the role of Brick Lagoon. I'll do my best to build him up and if, as you predict, he comes through, injects realism into the film, we'll use him. If he falls down, we'll pla; Don Fairweather!"

"Done!" Heyward slapped the table.

He knew Philloon well enough to be assured that the director would try in all sincerity to make an actor out of

He felt certain that his own ideas on the matter were correct, and that Director Philloon had a surprise com-

He stood up.

"Just one thing more, Philloon. When selecting your man, remember that this film is actually a character sketch of the well-known gang leader. Tony Scarbo. Pick some one who at least resembles Scarbo in appearance." "I'll bear it in mind," Philloon

Two days later Director Philloon entered Producer Heyward's private office in company with a tail, blackhaired, olive skinned youth, who smiled almost whimsically at the producer. but kept his hand in his coat pocket.

"Meet 'Sliver' Johnson, Heyward. He's your gangster type, all right." "I'm not so sure. Acts like one, but looks like a gigolo. Had any experience, Sliver?"

"Experience?" "I mean have you been in the racketeering game long? Know any real gangsters? Ever taken part in a gun-

Then: "O. K., Sliver. We need an actor. Gangster type. One who can give us the real thing. You ought to qualify if you've worked for Scarbo.

Big stuff. Glamorous.

A murderer. It was Philloon's plan to commerclalize the idea.

But Heyward insisted on realism. And you couldn't have realism within the leading role. But Sliver didn't make good. Philloon knew he wouldn't, even though he did his best to make an actor of the youth. At the end of a month even Heyward could see that the picture would be a flop, with Sliver playing the lead.

"He isn't a gangster, that's what's the trouble. He's a dud. Put one over on us. If he was the real thing he could play the part."

Heyward blamed it on to Philloon.

Heyward spat and chewed his cigar. "You can't tell me that dumb cluck is a gangster. Gangsters are gorillas. This bird's a sissy. I was doubtful from the start."

"Listen, Heyward, I'm telling you Sliver's a member of the Scarbo mob. I know it. That's the trouble with him. He's a racketeer, not an actor. Acting isn't in his line, no more than making pictures is in yours. Now. take Don Fairweather. Don's an actor. I can make a gangster out of him. It's his line, and it's my line." "Nuts! We gotta have realism. We gotta have a real gangster. We gotta have some one who looks and acts and talks like Scarbo. It's Scarbo we're selling, isn't it? Well, use your head!" Philloon got purple.

He was a little tired of being told what an idiot he was.

"Listen, Heyward, we made a deal. If your gangster didn't make good, I could use Fairweather in the picture? How about it?"

"It's O. K. and it stands. But first you gotta give a real gangster a tryout. This Sliver bird is a dud, a joke. He looks about as much like a gangster as I, and acts less like one."

Philloon smiled, triumph and contentment lighting his eyes. "Listen, Heyward, you're the one who's nuts. Try usin' your noodle for once. Do you think for a second I could get one of Scarbo's mob up here when they're all on the lam? You must be crazy. Say, if the cops knew we had a Scarbo man here they'd be up and third-degree him so quick you wouldn't know what it's all about. Scarbo's wanted by the police and wanted bad. He knows it, too, And he's having a tough time keeping out of sight. So what? So he hears about this picture of ours and comes browsing around. He drops in at my office the day after you and I have our talk. I make a deal with him. I show him to you. We sign him on. Fine! He couldn't be in a safer spot. Then you like a real gangster. He's gotta get out and start dodging the police again. So what? Well, Heyward, I guess you gotta admit I'm right. Acting isn't in Scarbo's line. He's a gangster. A killer, Heyward, and he doesn't like Heyward's face was pale. He sputtered, choked.

"Say, look here, Philloon, Now. listen, you better keep him or the pay roll awhile. Sure, that's it, keep him on. Pick your own lead, but keep Scarbo on. I'll leave it to your judgment. I gotta be getting back to New York, anyhow. Leaving tonight. You take things over here, but keep Scarbo on the pay roll-" Philloon wiped his forehead and sat down in the chair vacated by Producer Heyward and grinned.

Some day, he told himself, he'd have to look up this Scarbo guy and see what he looked like.

Mistake at Big Convention

Ohio was represented at the Republican national convention in 1884 by the big four-Foraker, McKinley, Hanna and William H. West. As he spoke, West, a blind lawyer of Bellefontaine, sat in a chair. An orator of unusual ability, he was known throughout the state as "Blind Man Eloquent." he came to the climax, the time at which he meant to shout the name of James G. Blaine, he half rose from his chair and shouted by mistake the name of James A. Garfield. West immediately realized his mistake, and again half rising from his chair he shouted the name of James G. Blaine, but in the confusion few heard him. Ohio's Garfield had been dead three

SYNOPSIS

Seeking death by throwing herself seeking death by throwing herself from Lone Mesa, to escape dishonor at the hands of a drunken desperade, Sonya Savarin allows herself to be rescued by her suddenly repentant attacker. The girl is a self-appointed physician to the Navajo Indians, living on an Arizona sheep ranch with her brother Serge, his wife, Lila, and their small daughter. brother Serge, his wife, Lila, and their small daughter, Babs. She is engaged to Rodney Blake, wealthy New Yorker, but her heart is with the friendless Navajos and she evades a wedding. Sonya pulls Little Moon, wife of Two Fingers, a Navajo, through the crisis of an illness. Two Fingers is deeply grateful. Blake returns to New York, declaring he will give Sonya six more months and then demand she keep her promise to marry him. Sonya again meets the maa whose advances she had repuised on Lone Mesa. He tells her he bitterly regrets his action. Sonya is affected, but unforgiving. She hears rumors of a Border bandit "El Capitan Diablo," and vaguely connects him with her attacker. On Lone Mesa she again comes upon the strange young alm with her attacker. On Lone Siesa she again comes upon the strange young man, but she no longer fears him. When he reiterates his sorrow over his misconduct, she indicates forgiveness and assures him a man can al-ways change for the better.

CHAPTER IV-Continued -7-

Sonya was as good as her word. On Wednesday of that week she took the disreputable old car and set out across the wild and lonely land in the general direction of the government school for which Satter was the gathering agent. She had never been there, but she knew where it was, and she had once met the superintendent, a polished, hard-eyed efficiency expert who had gone out of his way to attract her attention. He was a widower and seemed to fancy himself considerably.

which was more than Sonya did. The large rooms were sweetly cool in the early summer heat, and she took off her hat and leaned back in her chair in grateful enjoyment.

She had not long to wait, for presently the superintendent, a Mr. Claude Spartow, came in briskly with extended

"Why, Miss Savarin-Doctor Savarin, I should say, though the austere title don't seem to belong to a girl like you this is a pleasure, I assure you! Come right into my office."

He led her into his private office, a spacious, comfortable place, its walls lined with filing cases, and pulled up the deepest big chair.

"There!" he said. "That's better.

Now relax. You must be tired." "No," said Sonya, "I'm not, and I'm in somewhat of a hurry. I've come for the two children of the Indian, Hosteen Nez, over in the big cut beyond Lone Mesa, just on the line of the Reservation. This case is rather pitiful, Mr. Spartow, and I'd like to enlist your attention to it. Mr. Satter will remember. I came upon him taking the children, not so many weeks back very near the end of the term-and the parents are 'wild Indians.' They don't understand either the necessity or the methods employed in the matter of giving up their children, and I begged off the littlest one from Mr. Satter. The mother had run herself nearly into collapse, hanging on the buckboard's tail. She is in a serious condition now, with the grief over their disappearance. Doesn't eat. Looks awful. And Mr. Satter had forgotten to tell them where to come for the children. It is rather hard, when you think of it, on parents, you know, elther red or white. As it would take the Hosteen some days to get here and back with his horses to fetch them, I'd like to take the children to them myself. I will be responsible to you for them."

As the girl talked the man's sharp eyes regarded her with an alertness of expression that changed to guardedness as she mentioned Satter's lapse of memory. Now he leaned toward her, amiling.

"Why, how kind of you, my dear Miss Savarin!" he said. "Few women of this day would take so much trouble for ignorant Indians. Of course you may take the little ones. But surely you're not starting back today? You'll stay with us for the night and get a good early start tomorrow, if I have

"Oh, my, no!" said Sonya. "I'll get on my way as quickly as possible. Will it take long to get them ready?" "If you really think you must go," he said regretfully, "I'll have them made ready at once. It won't take

The two were presently brought to her, their belongings in a neat bundle. They still looked as they had looked that day in the buckboard, like fright-

Then she smiled at Spartow.

"I thank you, sir," she said gently, "and I shall not forget your kindness in letting me take them. I hope you'll ask Mr. Satter to tell the fathers next time, will you please, Mr. Spartow?"

Mr. Spartow returned the smile with look that promised to ask the govhe thought it necessary.

Deep Things Begin to Glimmer. That little matter proved almost nore than she could stand, however, for the Indian mother, watching the east continually since her previous visit, having taken her advice literally, collapsed at sight of her children, and Sonya had a brisk half hour in bringing her round again.

When she was able to clasp them in her shaking arms the sight was enough to wring a heart less soft than Doctor Sonya's.

But all's well that ends well, and the girl finally rode away, leading her extra horse with a smile on her lips and the deep light in her eyes that Rod Blake called fanaticism.

Maybe it was, but it made her foolishly happy to see this poor family united again. And Hosteen Nez had looked over his woman's head at her exactly as Two Fingers had and called her Blue South Woman in the Sun. It was all he said, but it was pregnant with deep things, and Sonya knew it so.

So she opened her tips and sang. And then she came to the canyon's mouth and caught her breath sharply, for a man sat there on a golden horse. He looked like a young god with the sunlight on his hair, and his eyes as blue as the heavens, and the grave look on his handsome face.

"Forgive he," he said quickly, "for being in your trail again." "Why?" she said as quickly. "It is free country." "Yes, I know. But I promised to stay away." "That was from Lone Mesa."

"The intent was everywhere. I meant it, too-was goin'-going to Sonya sat and looked at him steadlly, her sweet face grave too. He bore her scrutiny quietly, though a muscle twitched in his cheek, and there was a seeming of strain in his face.

"I've thought a lot about you," the girl said presently: "why, I don't just know. I shouldn't, by all the rules of my life's game, but I have. Tell meif you care to-where have you been since I saw on last? Where do you

He moved in his saddle, put his hat back on his head, laid his hands on his pommel.

"Miss Savarin," he said, "I can't tell you. A lot of places for th' first question-nowhere for th' last one. I told you before, I wasn't fit to talk to. I am a drifter, if you like, just goin' through th' country."

"Oh, no, you're not," said Sonya "the day you came in the store you were familiar with the place and had been there before. Don't you think I know a few things?"

"Well-some," he said. For a while they sat in silence, at a loss for something to talk about, and then Sonya told him about Cactus Flower and how Mr. Satter had taken her children.

"D-n!" he said flushing. "Excuse me—but some people just ain't hu-man. I'd like to see that agent on—" He stopped, and Sonya felt her heart contract, for she knew he had almost said "a cross."

What was this man? What was in the soul of him? What strange con-tradictions? What savageries and con-tritions, what sympathies and cruel t'es? What connection did he have with those awful retributions across the Border of which the Servant had hinted? What did the strange old man know about him? The henchman of Beelzebub he had called him—for no other in all this country answered to the description of the Blue-eyed One with Bronze-colored Hair. Sonya felt cold, as if a wind of portent had blown across her spirit. And swift on its heels a sadness came, the odd, unaccountable feeling of personal loss and sorrow which had assailed her that night at Myra's. She shook herself, mentally and actually, and was angry at herself again, and when this man spoke she listened, forgetting.

"I'm a violent man, Miss Savarin," he said strangely, "and my life won't bear th' light-but a thing like that makes my blood boil. There ain't no manner of use hurting something that can't fight back, and a woman an' a child-well, they're set aside, someway, like a starvin' kitten, or a dog that no one wants. No kind of a man would do them a harm-not an' be a by yourself like that!" "Why not? I'm perfectly safe. Every one knows me, and there isn't a Navajo, drunk or otherwise, who'd say word to me."

"Not th' Navvys, no, ma'am," he sald painfully, "but they ain't all there are, you know."

How well she knew! But she was sorry the inference had been drawn. "As for being drunk-will you believe me when I say I haven't touched a glass or a bottle since since that day-on th' cliff? Every time I've tried, your face has come before me plain as plain-the white fury of it, the courage-G-d! I choke an' quit try-

"I'm glad," she said. "Didn't I tell you it was never too late to look up?

"Sure you did, but that don't mean anything in this case. I'm just telling you that your face stopped my liquor."
"It'll stop a lot of things for you." the girl said in a rush and was astonished at herself.

"What-do you mean?" he said

"I-oh, I don't know!" said Sonya. trembling, "only I know you've got to stop-stop that Border stuff. That yen've got to change—the leopard

"You," he said, wetting his lips which had suddenly lost their color. "you-want me to-do that?"

"Yes," said Sonya thickly, "yes." "Then, by G-d!" he said through his teeth, "I'll-" What he meant to say was not anparent, for at that moment they both heard what they had been too tensely strung to hear before-the roar of a motor in the sky. A small gray ship slipped down directly over their heads and dropped to a landing on the desert out beyond. The man took one look, and reaching out an arm, he pushed Sonya and Darkness back into the canyon's mouth, Un d'Oro shielding them both. The touch of his breast against her shoulder, the scent of him. tobacco and sweat, the nearness of his bronze cheek, sent a wave of weakness don't come out till it's gone." Then he had struck his heels to Ut d'Oro's shining flanks and was out like a flash across the sand. For a moment Sonya sat where he had left her, shaking as with a chill, bewildered and a little scared.

What was this? What had driven the blood from his plane if he was frightened? Here was the answer to some of her questions, that she knew instinctively. If only she could go out there her-She could not even see from where Darkness stood, so prompt and so efficient had been his action. But she must see. Sonya's lips set, as they did when she faced a crisis for her skill, and she dismounted and, dropping Darkness' rein, went forward carefully the few steps that separated her from the sheer edge of the canyon's mouth. Taking off her hat, she carefully leaned along the rock until her line of vision reached the open and the plane. And what she saw bewildered her more than she had been before. The Blue-eyed One was off ground beside him, while another was bent down in the after cockpit. This e rose, as she looked, and gave some thing to the other, who in turn handed It to the rider.

And he, with care and swiftness put it in his saddlebags.

Three times the transference of something from the plane to Un d'Oro's saddle took place. Then the stranger climbed back in the forward cockpit, the plane, which had never stopped its engine, roared a moment, slid along the sand a little way, picked up its tall and took off. And Un d'Oro was low ing away, headed for the town,

Clothes That Go Out for Good Time

regardless of age, and since all the world seems to be seeking tenhis or golf grounds or sunny beaches where to frolic summer hours away, creators of fashion are kept busy thinking up apparel suitable for time, place and the game.

The grand thing about play-togs, | whether you are young or old or in the between years, is that in these modern times they are so entirely set free from old-time rules and restrictions. The idea nowadays is that your clothes simply must not be cumbersome. They must permit untram-meled freedom of action and they must be as chic as they are "comfy."

Which explains why the shorts outfits have become so overwhelmingly popular. In this type of costume designers have not left anything undone that should be done to work out the problems down to the minutest detail of "style," plus service and comfort.

The fact that sports clothes are so skillfully designed is not their only lure for there is another element which enters into the scheme of things that lends infinitely to the zest of sportsy attire—the materials employed. Such cottons! Such linens! They are that swagger, that colorful, that altogether intriguing, one can scarcely comprehend that they come under the humble classification of utilitarian washable

Speaking of the new cotton, there is the new pukker stripe seersucker with its brilliant bands of color alternating multicolored bair-line stripes, and the new cabana twill which is particularly smart in string color and the candy stripe nubby yarn cotton which, seeing, you will not be able to resist and those spongy rugged herringbone cotton coatings which are so attractive the more so in that they tailor like a woolen and wash like a pocket handkerchief-cotton weaves the likes of which would not have seemed possible in years of yore.

The same is true about the marvelous linens which have come out this season.

No one can say that the shorts ensemble shown to the right in the picture is anything but a winner in the arena of fashion. As to being thoroughly practical this threesome which adds a jacket and an easy-totake-off-and-on skirt to a shorts outfit Is about the best thing that ever happened in the way of a sports costume. This model is made of Irish linen in a thrilling shade of sail red. In her hand the young lady carries a new waterproof beach kit equipped with everything which will serve as first aid to seashore beauty.

The beach shorts to the left in the group is also made of linen of the coveted uncrushable type. It is in natural color and is tailored to a nicety, has the big sailor collar which is so important this season and buttons conveniently at each side.

Just to prove that in the new cottons the new linens have a most dangerous rival in the contest now going on for highest honors, we submit to admiring eyes the goodlo centered in the group. They are made of a ripple-tex seersucker and as everybody knows there's nothing smarter in the realm of washable weaves than gay seersucker-a perfect answer to summer wardrobe needscrisp, cool, sturdy, tubable. @ by Western Newspaper Union.

ON SAILOR LINES Half the beach clothes in the country are built along sailor lines, so style dispatches say. But it's in accessories and trims the fad gets into its full swing. Rope is all over the place. Instead of straps, bathing suits now use woven yarn resembling rope. Separate belts come in the same thing.

Buckles used to be just buckles, but now they're anchors. Rope belts, particularly, are hitched up garnish play suits of the more rough and ready type in the most surprising places, at the back where the straps cross, in the apex of a front V.

Matched Scarf and Glove

Sets New Feature Mode Nowadays it would never do to walk out in a pair of gloves that didn't match anything, in this day of passionate ensembling, when even your shoestrings have to match the color of your tie, or something.

Confronted with the difficulty of matching gloves to hats, as somebody timidly suggested at the beginning of the season, the cagey designers have now hit on the idea of presenting glove and scarf ensembles. And very nice they are, too, Consider, for instance, the pictorial possibilities of a bow of sheer chiffon milanese under your chin, matched by gloves of the same gosamer fabric. Or of a frilled organdle collar on your best dark sheer frock, with matching organdie cuffed gloves.

Velvet-Ribbon Trimming Velvet ribbons in lighter or darker colors than the frock, especially in shades of lighter blue on navy, or in bright red or green on white, make an effective trimming.

Plaid Madras Accents Plaid madras from the West In-dies, glass, string, leather and wood are strung together in fascinating ar-ray to accent summer playtime clothes

TOT'S BEACH OUTFIT By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Beach fashions for wee folks show such novel ensembles as this. The deftly pleated shorts are bright blue. The anchor trimming on the little white blouse with the new halter neck, lends no end of fascination to this cunning juvenile costume. The beach hat is a la Chinoise which shows how truly a style-conscious little lady to she who posed for this amusing and most delightful fashion picture. Sun suits for tiny tots are being made of mere scraps of material with a halter neckline and the entire back exposed to the sun's health-giving rays. Their

IMPROPER CARE OF EGGS MEANS LOSS

Cool Storage Room Needed in Summer Time.

By H. H. Alp. Poultry Extension Specialist, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.—WNU Service.

Complaints of consumers about the low quality of eggs sometimes offered for sale during summer months can often be traced to careless management on the part of people handling the eggs after they leave the farm. Poor quality eggs tend to reduce purchases by housewives, and this in turn lowers the prices and profits received by both farmers and dealers. Thus with the arrival of warm weather, greater care should be taken in handling eggs as a truly perishable product.

Too commonly eggs are held in the back room of a store which also serves as storage space for various items, some of which should never be in the same room with eggs. This room during the summer months will frequently have a temperature high enough to start the incubation of fertile eggs.

Another criticism in this connection is that often the small country buying stations do not have satisfactory places to hold a product as perishable as eggs. In one instance last summer, when the prevailing temperature was about 96 degrees Fahrenhelt, there was a produce house consisting of a large room covered by a sheet metal roof. In this room poultry was being fed and eggs stored until time for delivery to the next buyer. Regardless of how good the quality of those eggs when originally received by this dealer, they would quickly deteriorate under such conditions. The level of egg prices depends a good deal on consumer demand, and this fact makes it important to maintain quality if the maximum returns to be gained by both the farmer who cares for the flock and the dealer and merchant who handle the eggs between producer and consumer.

Sun Porch Will Benefit

Growing Young Chicks A sun porch attached to the brooder house is a most valuable improvement to have. For the little chicks to have a clean place, one absolutely free from disease germs and para-sites, to roam during fair weather, is invaluable, says a poultryman in Wallaces' Farmer. They may occupy the brooder house until the cockerels are sold as broilers, after which the pullets can be transferred to summer shelter on the range, away from contaminated ground. These sun porches must be thoroughly cleaned once every year. That is, six or eight inches of the dirt should be removed from the floor after the pullets are taken to the range, and fresh sand or gravel added, ready for the next year's chicks. When such precautions are taken and fresh, clean range is supplied each year, loss from disease and parasites will be reduced to a minimum. Sun parlors may be built the same size as the brooder house, surrounded by wire netting high enough so the birds will not fly out. This adds expense, but it contributes greatly to the health of the young birds, and the extra sunshine which they get while exercising in these parlors promotes rap ld growth.

Solves Green Feed Problem Sprouted oats or barley will easily solve the green feed problem for the back-yard poultry keeper with a smallsized flock. The simplest and possibly one of the best ways to provide for them is to level off a small piece of ground, place the grains to be sprouted directly on the soil and cover them with a piece of burlap or gunny sack kept continually moist. When the grain has sprouted onequarter to one-half inch it is ready to feed. The length of time required to sprout will of course depend upon the weather. If small particles of dirt adhere to the sprouts when fed, no harm, but rather benefit, results. By preparing small plots each day, a constant supply can be maintained.

The Plymouth Rock

Plymouth Rock is the name applied to a type of poultry originated in the United States as a result of crossbreeding and selection for the purpose of attaining certain characteristics of formation, color or utility. This general type has been subdivided into several varieties within the breed which are known as Barred Plymouth Rocks, or Barred Rocks; Buff Rocks, Partridge Rocks, Silver Penciled Rocks, all of which have been recognized by the American Standard of Perfection

Table Scraps as Food

Poultry keepers, who have small flocks in confinement to provide eggs for the table, can profitably use scraps from the table if these materials are handled in the right way. No salty foods should be given, nor any moldy foed of any kind. Bread or crusts are often dangerous to poultry unless first baked crisp in a hot oven to break down the starch cells which set up fatty tissue. Potato peelings, also waste vegetables, may be boiled along with meat scraps.

Remember The

Old Settlers Picnic

August 24

The pioneer spirit still exists among the settlers of Fonley county Due to the fact that the Redee is at Clarendon on Aug. 17th, the date for the picnic, and wishing to co-operate with our county seat and help to make it an old fashioned one, we have changed the date to Aug. 24th.

Bring the family to the Rodeo the 17th at Clarendon, then on the next Friday, the 24th, bring well filled baskets and wash tubs to the Donley County Old Settlers' Picnic at the Tate grove east of Hedley. Everyone tell some old settler to be sure to come.

Boxing the closet is a term which on one side, or a high, narrow one can well be applied to the modern method of keeping closets neat and stance the drawers fit into place cortrim. To meet the requirements of rectly merely by putting them in to such a scheme all sorts and kinds of boxes, durable yet of light weight are found in the shops. There are boxes for shoes and stockings, boxes for blouses, boxes for gloves and hand kerchiefs, boxes for lingerie, and boxes for almost every conceivable thing which can be folded or laid away and kept good. The boxes mentioned are for clothes closets, but the handy containers are found excellent furnishings for other closets too. It seems a bit odd to talk of furnishing closets, but that is precisely what is done when the spaces are fitted

Closet boxes differ from ordinary kinds, for, since they come in sectional cases, they are uncovered, and can be pulled in and out. As a matter of fact they are drawers rather than boxes, although they are customarily called boxes. The cases come in endless sizes and shapes to suit shapes and sizes of closet spaces as well as to best accomodate the contents.

In furnishing a closet with these box-drawer cases it should be remembered that they should fill nooks, and stand on shelves, and be low and out of the way of the space needed for hanging up garments. It is assumed that one or more clothes poles extend the length of the closet, or pos sibly its width, if the closet is deep. Either of these arrangements uses to best advantage the space area of the closet, leaving the walls free for the cases of boxes.

For those who live in rented houses or apartments it is important to have these boxes easily portable. They can be purchased in sections, some times so planned that they can occupy a long, low space, when resting

Fruit-Producing States

More than 175,000,000 bushels of apples, 60,000,000 bushels of peaches and 20,000,000 bushels of pears are produced in the United States in an average year. Washington, Virginia and New York lead in apple growing; California, Georgia and Illinois in peach production; and California, Washington and Oregon are the greatest pear raising states.

TO THE VOTERS OF PREC. 3

Permit me, by this method, to express my profound apprecia tion to each and every person who supported me in our recent primary election. Also permit me to express the hope that those who supported other parties, but who are now eliminated from the race, will take the time to investigate the records and see how I cast my vote on every measure of interest to the people of Don ley county and particularly of Prec. No 8 Mistakes are com mon to every individual and I am sure that I have made some, but I feel that the mistakes that I have made have been few and I am willing to leave this to your better judgment which I am sure will be in my favorafter you have examined the records of the Commissioners Court In filling the office of a County commissioner it is a matter of utmost impossibilit to please everyone Personally I wish that each debeen of such a nature that it could have been granted, but the some have met with disappoint. ments.
